Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly.

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by
REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries. Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles, Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

HIGH CLASS

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., AUGUST 13, 1913

NO. 33

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

In The Wrong.

Being in the wrong is bad enough; but never as bad as being unwilling to confess that one has been in the wrong. It is not an acknowledgement of weakness, but of wisdom, to admit, when found to be true, that one was in the wrong. Pope phrased it after this fashion, "A man should never be ashamed to own he has been in the wrong, which is but saying, in other words, that he is wiser today than he was yesterday." And James 5:6 says, "Confess your faults." The greatest fault some people have is that they will not acknowledge their faults.

The Great Need.

There are thousands in our country who have heard the gospel over and over and have wilfully rejected it. If we pity these, what shall we say of the one billion pagans who have never heard and therefore are in total ignorance, of Jesus Christ? "Two infants out of every three in the whole world look up into faces of mothers who can tell them no word about the world's Savior," says Prof. Trull. And these mothers, living nearly two thousand years after Christ's time, have never heard of the Man of Galilee and of His power to save. The world's greatest need is that of carrying the gospel to those who know it not, and have never had a chance.

A Curious Dollar.

An owner chanced to examine a dollar bill the other day and it turned out to be an interesting piece of money. Its antiquity did not make it so; but on it was written "The last dollar of an ill-spent fortune." Possibly some fellow who had inherited a fortune, and had run through with it in prodigal manner, labeled his last bill. But suppose every one who parts with the last dollar of an ill-spent fortune should label that dollar! Every day, some fellow learns all too late that he has spent his fortunes in a prodigal manner. The one who "wasted his substance with riotous living" (Luke 15:13) has a great deal of company, and many followers, in our nervous, restless and uncertain time.

A Temperance Country.

Even if the National Anti-Saloon League and other temperance organizations of America succeeded in out-lawing and closing up every saloon in the United States by 1920, ours will then not be the most temperate nation by any means. The Washington Post is authority for the statement that the movement now on in Sweden to absolutely prohibit the production, sale, and importation of alcoholic liquors, including beer, is likely to be crowned with success, as the prohibition party in that country is by all odds the strongest of all its political organizations. The national legislature of Sweden will allow no liquid refreshments of an alcoholic nature in the parliamentary restaurant and buffet. Sweden is giving us a long lead in the matter of temperance.

An Unrevoked Command.

There is a command which has not been carried out, neither has it been revoked. Hear it sounding down the centuries: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to the whole creation." He wrote correctly who said, "Missions are not a question, therefore, of individual inclination, but of universal Christian obligation; not a mere matter of choice, but of plain obedience; not a matter for discussion, but for propagation." The Christian world has not done its duty, and has, therefore, not received its highest blessings and benefits, because it has not carried out this command of our Savior. When individual Christians shall catch the full meaning of this, a new day will dawn for the Church of the Lord Jesus.

Fowls of The Air.

Our Savior considered them. By His creative act they were given the freedom of the universe in which to build their nests and rear their young. It was well enough. A French scientist said long ago, "If the birds did not breakfast, man would not dine." And scientists are now agreed that if birds did not destroy, by eating, the various worms and insects that inhabit and infest the earth, man could not live on this planet. The plagues of frogs and lice that tormented Pharaoh would be nothing in comparison with the plague of worms and insects that would cover the face of the earth in a few days, were the birds suddenly to die. Besides being beautiful to the eye and sweet to the ear, the bird is one of generous Nature's most benevolent gifts to man. Wicked indeed is the hand of man (and the head of woman) that is raised for wanton destruction against "the fowls of the air."

Woman's Dress.

Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the Vice-President of the United States declares that "Slashed skirts, with the silhouette gown and other freaks of modern fashion, are the worst enemies of the newly made voters of Illinois, and the cabaret and the turkey trot are more in need of reform than Chicago's First Ward." Which is another way of saying that her sex needs something more potent than the ballot: to wit, The power to resist the evil and degrading tendencies of the ball room, and the ability to resist the foolish fashions initiated by the lewd women of Paris. We are wondering how far this style of abolishing dress will go before there is a revulsion of sentiment. We heard an intelligent gentleman of Greensboro say recently that if the men of his town were to come down street as thinly and indiscreetly clad as many of the "best ladies" of the town they would be arrested.

The Decay of Religion.

The nations of antiquity proved themselves competent and capable as long as their faith was strong and their religion sound. There is nothing that weakens a nation and destroys its powers of self preservation and vital integrity like skepticism, irreverence, infidelity. Our colleges and universities which do so much to mould the character and shape the destiny of our young manhood and womanhood do well, therefore, to bear this in mind and lay emphasis upon it, and above all things else strive to be moral and religious. We note this sane fact and noble sentiment stated by the Trustees of Trinity College, Durham:

We hold as fundamental truth that a sound religious faith is the basis of true government, of moral character and of a progressive civilization. Acting upon this assurance, we are exceedingly careful that this college shall hold in their integrity all the cardinal truths of the Christian religion, and devoutly endeavor to make them clear to the minds of young students, knowing that the decay of religious faith and the decline of religious zeal must weaken a civilization at every vital point. Our nation does not need less, but more of sound religious belief and life. So, without lending any aid to sectarian strifes or party conflicts, we shall at all times insist that Trinity College avow its unyielding faith in the Christian religion, its reverence for the Christian Church in all its branches, and its belief in the Holy Scriptures as the volume of divine revelation.

The Extraordinary Man.

It is doubtful if any theory, thought, or principle has made so many ordinary, and commonplace men, as that which made men think they were extraordinary. Almost every young man assumes that his father is ordinary in capacity and financial ability; that he himself is extraordinary and so will not have to pursue the sober, well-trodden paths his father has trod in order to achieve. This principle is particularly fatal in education. The young man assumes that he is a genius, and so, like some genius of his acquaintance, will not need to get an education in order to attain. Here is some sound advice from The New York Christian Advocate:

Do not assume that you are a genius and therefore independent of the laws which are operative in respect to the average human being. The uneducated individuals who have achieved astonishing successes, or more properly those self-educated persons who by dint of severe application have raised themselves to eminence without the advantage of collegiate training, would have lost none of their native ability if they had received the conventional training of the schools, and at the same time would have simplified the development of their minds and economized the expenditure of their energy.

The extraordinary men were those who decided that in mental make up, in advantages and opportunities they were ordinary, and so resolved to make the very most of all that God had given them in order to achieve. In short all of us, and especially young men with careers before them, need to keep fresh in mind Paul's notable advice "For I say to every man, * * * not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think."

EDITORIAL

THE BETTER VISION.

The highest peaks and principles of earth lead to heaven. Christ was on a mountain, high and lifted up, when He was transfigured. John was in the spirit when he saw the open heavens and wrote Revelation. Jacob was at Bethel, on holy ground, when he saw "a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven." The highest things, thoughts and theories of earth reach to heaven.

In order that our minds and meditations might go upward often God uses his messengers to lead upwards. The angels of the Bible are ever seen, first ascending and then descending. Jacob's ladder reached from earth to heaven and the angels are seen going up first, and then coming down. God made the horizon around us, and the open heavens above us, and so fashioned our face, head and eyes, that we might, with most ease, and most often, look upward and not downward, see the skies and the blue vault more than the earth and the perishing things. The song-birds, the green trees, the great mountains and the starry heavens are above us not below us.

This is done that we may be induced to look upward, catch often the higher and better vision. The angels are ascending, leading the gaze from earth upwards; they are busy trying to rivet our attention on the things high and lifted up.

Despite all this miraculous arrangement of our heavenly Father to direct our attention upwards we look downwards all too often and persistently. We see the bad in people rather than the good; we magnify faults and enlarge failures; we dwell on weaknesses and discount the strength even of our friends and acquaintances. Look up. The angels beckon, the ladder lifts to heaven, and God directs us thither. There are beauty and glory and goodness and God and the angels above us. Look up. The highest and happiest and best things of earth reach to heaven and penetrate that blest abode. We are permitted here on earth to catch the higher and the better vision.

THE COLLEGES AND CHRISTIANITY.

The editor of Leslie's Weekly thinks we are educating our youths away from, rather than toward, Christianity. The inference is that the more college education our youths have the less religion they care for. This declaration is made, "The Colleges are crowded and the churches are empty. Is there any relation between the two?" In substantiation of its assumed theory the following fact is noted: "Of the graduating class of Columbia University, for instance, fifty-two confessed that they never attended the campus chapel service, eight declared themselves without religion, and fifty-two were not sufficiently interested in the question of church-going to answer it. Only one member put himself down as a regular attendant at chapel. Only one of an entire graduating class."

We admit that these facts are not particularly reassuring, but they in no sense establish the claims made that we are having too much education and too little religion; and that our minimum of religion is due to our maximum of education.

In the first place, the churches are not empty. There are more and larger churches than ever and the armies that march to these temples with sure and steady tread on the Sabbath, while not as large and enthusiastic as we could wish, were never so strong, and never so determined as at present. Those who march under the "blood-stained banner of the Cross" increase, not decrease, from year to year.

Again Columbia's campus chapel attendance is not coterminous with the religious sentiment of the time, not even that of Columbia itself. There are many Christians, who, for one reason and another, in every university, do not attend chapel service. It is just possible that Columbia's chapel services were none too Christian themselves and so did not particularly invite and inspire attendance on the part of the members of the senior class.

As a rule, however, college students are Christian and remain loyal to the God and faith of their fathers if the teachers in the colleges are themselves Christian and remain true to Christian teaching and influence. The hope of our time, in the colleges, as well as elsewhere is, that the men who direct, govern, control, shall themselves be Christian and so loyal to truth in its highest and best form.

WHAT IF?

It is costing us something to live now. Uncle Sam's people are prodigal "spenders." Their money flows. Here are a few items of consumption the past year, on which the tax collectors have reported: 143,200,000 gallons of whiskey and brandy; 65,246,000 barrels of beer; 14,276,000 cigarettes; 7,699,038,000 cigars; 404,363,00 pounds of chewing and smoking tobacco; 33,209,000 pounds of snuff; 32,764,155 packages of playing cards.

These may not be classed, as Mark Twain always classed cigars "among the necessities of life," but they cut a figure all the same, and must be added to the sum total of our national expenses.

What if, just what if, people would leave off just one fourth of their drinking and smoking for ten years and give that amount to spreading the gospel? The world's pain and anguish and tears would be decreased a hundred fold, and the gospel would be preached to every man, woman and child beneath the stars.

Truly are we, from a purely economic point of view, putting much of our money at the wrong place. We of the United States need very much to hear and heed the plea that Isaiah (55:21) made to the Israelites, and to all who would be happy and gain the true riches, to wit, "Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not? hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness."

A FOOLISH CHALLENGE.

Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist party leader declares that he "has issued a challenge to Christianity." On a recent visit to jail Debs found a girl there, the daughter of a Methodist preacher, who had eloped, was divorced, and later arrested for immorality. Debs secured the release of the woman to become an inmate of his home, and declares that the people who meet him and his wife must also meet and recognize this woman "whom Christianity had cast out?"

That is about the silliest challenge we have seen from a sensible person. Christianity has not cast the woman out.

A similar challenge as this was issued to "Christianity" by the Scribes and Pharisees in the days of Jesus. You will find an account of it in full in John chapter 8, verses 3 to 11 inclusive. Mr. Debs and all who believe like him should read the answer of "Christianity" to that "challenge." Women, and men, too, cast aspersions upon Christianity, and by sin and evil deeds drive themselves, go by wilful and voluntary act, away from the helping hand, the sustaining strength; but Christianity does not cast people out.

Some times people who call themselves Christians act very wickedly, and in a social way behave themselves shamefully; but Christianity does not cast out; it forgives, it helps, it lifts up, it says "Go, and sin no more."

A FITTING EULOGY.

We would like to have good things said of us when we are gone. All of us would. And, be it said, if aught of good can be said people usually say it when we are gone. One of North Carolina's citizens passed out Saturday morning between midnight and day; passed out slain by the hand of the very one who under different circumstances would have been tenderest and dearest in death. The Charlotte Evening Chronicle writes the eulogy in these words, and no one, we presume, will question the truth and fitness of it:

"A fortune founded largely in the liquor business albeit bringing with it the luxurious comforts of life and the fineries of fashion, did not save the career of H. Clay Grubb from a tragic termination. It was whiskey directly and indirectly that brought about the terrible catastrophe of that home when wife and mother forced to a frenzy by the abnormal condition of husband and father, shot thrice and ended the life of a man who had built up for himself on the profits from whiskey traffic a sizeable fortune in this world's goods. Instances are abundant to demonstrate that there is no defense to iniquitous whiskey, but such startling examples as this come only at long intervals. Alcohol has no brief to present in the open court of the consciences of men and the Rowan County tragedy is a specimen of its wickedness that should strike men down with meditation."

BOOKS FOR MISSIONARY WORKERS.

We have just received, by the courtesy and kindness of Dr. O. W. Powers, Mission Secretary, Dayton, Ohio, two books of great weight and worth to those who wish to form mission study classes or to become acquainted with the missionary problem. The title of one is "The King's Business," being a study of increased efficiency for women's missionary societies. The frontispiece, "The supreme call to Christian women of North America," is a woman with a torch of "liberty" enlightening the world in one hand and a Holy Bible in the other, with the inscription "Required at once 12,000 unmarried women missionaries, then in miniature '2257 now in the field.'" This book came as a response from many mission boards for a text-book needed by all woman's missionary societies in seeking knowledge of the missionary situation. Some of the titles of chapters are "The King's Business," "Campaigning for The King," "Resources of The King's Army," "Drilling the King's Army," "The King's Treasury," "The Unity of the Kingdom," etc. The author of this splendid volume is Maud W. Raymond.

The title of the other book is "The New America," a Study in Immigration, by Mary Clark Barnes and Lemuel Call Barnes. This volume is a study of the home problem as presented by the vast horde of immigrants landing on our shores. It is neatly bound, well printed, illustrated and full of much needed information. This is one of the books of the "Home Mission Study Course" gotten out by the Fleming H. Revel Company. We will be pleased to order these books for any individuals or societies desiring to secure copies. They are books worth having and one comparatively inexpensive.

"The hand that tends the sick tends Christ; the feet that go on errands of love work for Christ; the words of comfort to the sorrowful and of sympathy to the mourner are spoken in the name of Christ. Christ comforts the world through His friends."

PARAGRAPHS.

Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, says that instead of the Tobacco Company having been dissolved, as was decreed by the Courts, there is a greater monopoly than ever.

The people of North Carolina mean business this time about just freight rates, the "gate ways" and the door ways of other States to the contrary notwithstanding. A conference between the roads, the Governor, and the Commission in Raleigh Tuesday was of no avail, and now the appeal is to Caesar. So Caesar (the Legislature in this instance) has been called and will get busy about September 24.

H. Clay Grubb, a wealthy farmer and real estate owner of Davidson county was shot to death by his wife Saturday morning last; and we presume no one has shed a tear for the demise. This man Grubb figured in the courts a few years ago, having wickedly murdered his wife's brother, but escaped the penalty by use of much money. The same gun that Grubb used in committing his murder, his wife used in killing him. He came home drunk after midnight and was mercilessly beating his wife when she managed to get the pistol and in self defense slayed her drunken assailant. The God of Heaven delays the execution of judgment, but the weighty hand of justice falls finally. The way of the transgressor is hard. Grubb has his deserts and the world is no worse for his going.

It is the irony of an unjust fate that your town kicker is frequently the greatest beneficiary of the town. We know two men who have never forgiven our good town of Elon College for being a town, or the College itself for having an existence. Yet these self-same men, who have never raised their hand to help the town or College, happened to own real estate near by which cost them three hundred dollars each, just before the town started. One has already sold nearly two thousand dollars worth from his holding and the other nearly three thousand dollars worth from his purchase. Yet those men would throw sand in your eyes and mud in your face a long time before they would give a dollar for town or college improvement. Your town kicker and your chronic grumbler is a prodigy; and the world has to go forward and civilization make progress in spite of him.

Some of the newly born papers, like some of the wild-mouth evangelists who are backed by no church and responsible to no ecclesiastic organization, have a zeal not born of knowledge. Comes now a newspaper of this type from Indiana under the name of "Clean Politics." On its front page of July 25 this statement is printed, "I have been with Clean Politics more than a year and have carefully read our exchanges and we receive practically all of the larger and better of the church papers." I have found these church papers full of church news, of doctrinal articles and disputations; but little, if anything, against the liquor curse. "Clean Politics" ought to be clean enough to tell the truth and say that the church papers, the religious press, were busy fighting the liquor curse a half century before it was born; and that the mightiest force for temperance in the land today was the church paper; and but for the nutriment in behalf of temperance which the church paper has largely created such a paper as Clean Politics could not live a year.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

Dr. J. U. Newman is enjoying his stay at the Northfield Bible Conference and regards Dr. G. Campbell Morgan as the greatest preacher he ever heard. Another and stronger tie that binds Newman to Morgan is that both wear their overcoats in August.

Pleasant Grove church, Halifax County, Va., is organizing a Home Department in connection with its Sunday school. A lady superintendent and four young men as visitors are undertaking the good work of carrying the school to those who cannot come to the school.

Rev. J. V. Knight, pastor, reports that, "at Berea, Alamance, we have had the best meeting the church has had in 25 years. The meeting began on Saturday evening before the first Sunday and closed last Monday night with 58 professions and 42 additions to the church. Rev. H. W. Elder is still with me this week. We are in service at Shallow Ford this week."

From State Sentinel, Dover, Delaware, August 9th.

Rev. A. W. Lightbourne, D. D., pastor of the People's Church of this town, was called to New York City on Saturday last to preach the funeral of his nephew, Lightbourne Middleton, whose death we noted last week. On Sunday morning Dr. Lightbourne was invited to preach in the Washington Heights M. E. Church, of which Rev. Dr. Pierce is pastor, which he consented to do, and where he met many friends of former years.

Rev. W. S. Long, D. D., Chapel Hill, N. C., has not been in the regular pastorate the past year, but desires work the coming year. He will go to any field desiring his services. He is one of our ablest ministers and some of the fields now looking for a pastor would do well to correspond with Dr. Long. He is indeed too valuable a man to be left without full work.

Rev. W. D. Harward writes from Northfield, "I am sure these days spent here will mean great help to me in my work during the coming year and I believe for life time." Of course they will. One of the very best and most helpful things a church can do for its pastor is to vote him a trip to the Northfield Summer Bible Worker's Conference and then give him the wherewith to go upon.

Pleasant Grove church, Halifax County, Va., enjoyed a revival season last week. Rev. H. E. Rountree, Greensboro, did the preaching, eloquently, forcefully, effectually. Bro. Rountree is one of our devout students and his spiritual development keeps pace with his wonderful intellectual growth. There were quite a number of conversions during the revival and twenty joined the church.

We are in receipt of the fifty-fourth annual catalog of Union Christian College, Merom, Indiana, Rev. D. A. Long, D. D., President. Faculty and assistants number 14. Besides the regular college departments leading to degrees, there are departments of Business, the English Bible, Music, Art, Elocution and Physical Culture. Expenses are moderate and the curriculum high. President Long, a young and busy man at seventy is laboring zealously to build up Union. We wish him all success in his worthy efforts.

We are under obligations to some considerate brother for mailing us a copy of the Minutes of the 37th Annual Session of the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference, which was held at Damascus, Orange County, N. C., October 9-14th, 1862. Revs. Solomon Apple was President; W. H. Martin, Vice President; W. S. Long, Secretary; C. A. Apple, Assistant Secretary. The conference showed a total membership in its churches of 3,845. The churches sent up to Conference that year $57.35. The only fund being mentioned is "Conference Fund," and this seems to have been the only cause for which conference sent a call to the churches in those days.

—Christian Missionary:

"The Home Mission Secretary assisted at the dedication of the new church at Wyoming, Delaware, July 13. This is an outgrowth of the movement in Delaware which was begun by the organization of the People's Church, Dr. A. W. Lightbourne, pastor, and continued by the formation of the 'Delmarvia-Pennsylvania' Conference last year. A number of enterprising young men are associated with this movement, and there is an excellent opportunity for church extension in various localities on the peninsula. We need a special fund of sufficient size to maintain an organizer in this locality for some years."

Anent the last sentence, we need a special fund to maintain organizers in many localities; and it would be a fund that could be used to great economic advantage. The small amount we are using to organize and build new churches is deplorable.

A FEW REMARKS.

Owing to the constitutional amendment that United States senators shall be elected by direct vote of the people it is claimed that Governor O'Neal of Alabama has no right to appoint a successor to the late Senator Johnson.

The New York legislature in special session is considering the impeachment of Governor Sulzer of that State. The charges are that Sulzer used much more money in his campaign for governor than that which he swore to as the total; that he used money for private ends which was contributed for campaign funds, and that he used public funds for private investment on the Stock Exchange in New York.

President Wilson has sent as a personal representative to Mexico Ex-Governor Lind, of Minnesota, with the hope of coming to a better understanding with the officials in that country. The relationship between Mexico and the United States is very much strained, and the feeling in that country against American citizens is very hostile, but the jingoes will hardly be able to get up a war with our neighbor, we fancy.

KEEP CLEAN INSIDE.

Deliberately insult the man who starts to tell a filthy story in your presence by turning on your heels. Such a corruptionist has no more right to steal your pure thoughts than to put his hand into your pockets and take your money. These retailers of filth are whited supulchers—clean on the outside, but inwardly filled with dead men's bones. They are debauchees of clean minds, robbers of purity. You should never permit yourself to listen to an improper story—a story you would not care to repeat to your mother or sister. The filthy suggestiveness will soak into your memory as spilled ink soaks into blotting paper.

Allow no man to drag your mind through a sewer. Do you know that there is many a man who would sacrifice much today to be able to wipe from his memory some of the things he listened to when a boy? The man who will deliberately repeat a risque story in the presence of a youth deserves no respect. He is an incarnate devil of meanness. He is daubing a course picture on clean walls. No gentleman will tell a story he could not tell in the presence of ladies. Do you remember what General Grant said to the officer who began to tell a story, remarking, "There are gentlemen present."

Keep your mind unsullied. A foul suggestion may harden into a habit of thought that will lead you far astray. Keep clean inside. It is more a matter of importance that you should keep the dirt off your soul than off your clothes.—E. K. Mohr.

FROM OUR CONTRIBUTORS

FROM JAPAN.

DEAR CO-WORKER:—

Rev. D. F. Jones sent the enclosed for our 25th Anniversary and I send a copy of it to THE SUN, for I believe Mr. Jones' old friends will be glad to review the past with him and it is good for our Christian Endeavor young folks and organized class workers to know of our beginnings. We are grateful for your editorials on Missions. We missionaries ought to be better leaders ourselves, and are trying to be.

ALICE M. TRUE.

July 17, 1913.

A FEW JOTTINGS OF THINGS CONNECTED WITH WORK IN JAPAN BY THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

D. F. Jones in early life had a desire to labor among the heathen which never left him, except during a short while, say two or three years, about the age of 12 to 14. After fully trusting Jesus as his Savior he began to prepare for missionary work, which was not engaged in among the heathen till he went to Japan with his wife about 25 or 26 years ago. His wife, formerly Miss Amelia Parsons, was converted in her teens, and began at once to labor and pray for this one and that one, adding more to her list. Though beginning with dear relatives, it soon took in others till, like some others, her longing was for the conversion of all and sought to lead all she could to Jesus. Among other desires she heard of China's needs and longed to go and spend her life among them to help to tell them of Christ, etc.

You say why go to Japan? First, because her husband was ready to go there, and secondly, it was on the road to China. So, with our little girl Grace, we went to Japan and found plenty to do.

About three weeks after landing we reached Ishinomaki, after traveling as far as the rail from Tokio took us, then two and one-half days of bascha (stage) riding and one of jinriksha. The party whom we hoped to meet there did not come as we expected. The Ishinomaki school authorities asked me to teach English in their school, which I did and made Ishinomaki our home for sixteen months.

We were there when, I should reckon, one-third of the town was burnt up, and found a little quiet work among those near by. The officials were exceedingly grateful for the use of a place for the night, which I shall never forget.

Shortly after settling, we opened our home for meeting every Sunday, using an interpreter, first a young man who brought us up from Tokio and then dear Ohta San, a simple honest looking young man whom my soul could not help loving. Ohta San was, I should judge, even then a believer in the Lord Jesus (having heard the gospel in Sendai in Association with Mr. Jones of the Baptists'), but had not been baptized. We were soon thoroughly satisfied with his testimony, so baptized him in the river near the sea.

Ishinomaki's calamity, when so many were reduced in circumstances, was overruled of God for its good by having a Christian Meeting room built where any and all of its people might go and hear the gospel of Christ and learn how ready and willing He is to save all who come unto God by Him. Truly God is good, and may its inhabitants appreciate it more than ever before and not rest till they hear, believe and become real solid, true living Christians.

Just here let me tell out that we were highly favored. At home in the United States we had a goodly company of praying, working fellow Christians, holding up our hands, encouraging us in the Lord's work, among whom were such men as Dr. Summerbell, Rev. Watson, etc., both of whom stood ready with advice, influence, etc., to help forward every good work. Dr. Summerbell probably never knew how much his kind remarks accomplished when he wrote: "Dear Brother, let it be a New Testament Church, for the nearer it is to such, the better pleased our best people will be." These words may not be exact, as I am now trusting to memory, yet near enough to give his idea. I need hardly add that I sought more than ever to have it so.

These good people at home, on hearing of our venture by buying land and building the meeting house at once, bade us God's speed and took the responsibility off our shoulders by sending means to pay the costs. And I feel persuaded that the godly among them today have a similar love when they pray and give of their means to have the Gospel continued preaching among the needy of Japan.

A few words just here, the Lord did not leave us to do the work in our wisdom and strength, but gave us to realize that we must listen to His Word and not forget that the Holy Spirit in the hearts of His servants would write and talk. Among them was "Preach the Word," that is, the Word of God, so as quickly as we held meetings it was the word and truth of God we endeavored to preach and teach. Soon we had a few who daily for a while were in a class. We continually referred to God's Word. Most of these have labored among you dear people in Japan. The Lord was very gracious in sending us some who have preached Christ and whilst changes of necessity took place, still God was using more or less one and another native brethren to help others to Christ. It was not all fair sailing; some dropped out; some who trusted had to have their trust transferred to others. I trust God has over-ruled even those things for good.

By and by the Government had to move more slowly and, in order to check trouble, took away some privileges and kept more strictly to the terms of their treaties, which necessitated myself being told that I must have a passport for living in the interior, obtained of the government by those who engage me in teaching and this should be obtained while I live in a Treaty port. The Ishinomaki school authorities were very willing to make the application and especially the then principal of its schools, who would personally make one if necessary; but on thinking over the importance of our work, we felt it was God's providence for us to launch out not only North as already begun, but in Tokio itself, and make periodical visits under a traveling passport to all points, leaving a native brother in charge of each district, etc.

Must draw to a close. May each laborer and Christian among you quit yourselves like men. The work is great and the laborers few; cleave to the Lord and the word of his grace, remember men are dying and "Jesus is able to save to the uttermost all who come unto God by Him." Preach and live out the Gospel. Yours affectionately in Christ,

D. F. JONES.

January 1913.

1157 Wisconsin St., San Francisco, Cal.

VACATION AT NORTHFIELD.

I do not know how well my church is enjoying the pastor's vacation, but the pastor himself is simply delighted, not merely to be away from the work of the church, but for the Mount of privilege and opportunity on which he is permitted to be spending these vacation days. The trip, by water, from Norfolk to New York, was pleasant, except for a short while, when the indications were that bread must be "cast upon the waters." But a young man, a New Yorker, who occupied a state room with me, suggested that I use a little Christian Science. Any how I was soon feeling fine. The young man, with whom I traveled, is a civil engineer, and had been down to confer with some officials of the C. and O. Railroad, with reference to some difficulty in the plan, for the construction of the new one million dollar steel pier, at Newport News, Va. He seemed to be feeling good over having received $500 for about two days work. I found that he was very much given up to his special line of work, and so much so that he can not see how a man can get the consent of his mind to go into the ministry when there is so little to be realized out of it in a financial way. His heart, like many others, seems to be set on making money. I thought as to how brilliant one could be, intellectually, and yet how blind and stupid from a spiritual stand point.

While in New York I visited the great free circulating library. I am told that this library contains about sixty-two miles of book shelves and that the building itself cost about ten million dollars.

I was delighted to see Dr. J. U. Newman get aboard my train at New Haven, Conn. He left home about one week ahead of me and had spent the most of his spare time in the great New York library and in the library at Yale.

We reached Northfield and got located just in time for supper August 2nd. Then we soon went to attend the first meeting held on Round Top during this great Northfield Christian Workers Conference.

At the next service we heard Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, and were lifted up in spirit and edified. So before we had slept here for the first night we decided that already we had been paid for our trip. And the thing has grown upon us in these few days until I, for one, feel that I am having and enjoying the privilege of my life. Dr. Newman is enjoying it too and will no doubt tell THE SUN's readers how he is impressed with things about Northfield and especially with the fine and inspiring addresses that are daily being delivered. We have a tent and like this way of living during these days.

Our brethren who have attended these summer Conferences can appreciate something about what we mean when we say that we are being greatly helped. More later.

Sincerely,

W. D. HARWARD.

E. Northfield, Mass., August 7, 1913.

"The memory of our sins—forgiven though they be—keeps us humble, keeps us low at the feet of Christ; but it sends us on our way to works of greater love, because much has been forgiven."

Sins of the spirit are as bad in the eyes of Christ as sins of the flesh. He never spoke a harsh word to the publican and sinner, but He lashed with His scorn the "Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites." The sins which respectable people lightly commit every day of pride, indolence and indifference to the sufferings of the poor may be worse in His sight than the more flagrant ones of those not blessed with the same environment and opportunities of enlightenment.

IDEAL CONDITIONS FOR THOSE PREPARING TO TEACH.

Elon College Offers Teachers Unsurpassed Opportunities for Development. Extremely Low Rates. Fine Equipment.

Teachers cannot teach unless they are educated. For that reason the normal school, which concentrates its effort on methods to the exclusion of real education, is on the wrong track. Elon saw this and has arranged an ideal teachers' course, which gives all the training in method needful and at the same time provides that thorough education which the successful teacher must have. It has an arrangement whereby its students each April and May can discontinue their regular College work and by taking a two months' special course obviate the necessity of the county public school examination, the county superintendents accept the Elon grades in lieu of their own.

At the expiration of two years spent here in study in its regular teachers' course it will award its own Teacher's Certificate.

At the completion of three years spent in study here, the College awards the degree of Licentiate of Instruction, a degree which is recognized as the genuine teachers' degree.

THE YOUNG LADIES' HALL, ELON COLLEGE.

The fourth year of successful study will yield the candidate the degree of Bachelor of Pedagogy, or either of the other bachelor's degrees by certain slight adjustments of course.

The cost here for this course is exceedingly low. To those boarding in the College Board-in Department, it is $191. To those preferring the co-operative plan of board it is estimated to cost for young women $126 and for young men $141.

There is abundant opportunity for self-help for those needing it. Those interested should address the President.

No condition is attached to this extremely low cost, and if the graduate decides to do something other than teach or to go to some other State where the remuneration is much higher, as is commonly known, there is nothing to hinder.

The College also offers a scholarly and cultured atmosphere amid ideal surroundings for educational development, and these are items which the teacher cannot afford to miss.

The Literary Societies, the Reading Room and Library, the fine Laboratories, the two unexcelled gymnasias, furnish just that opportunity of enlarged vision which the coming teacher must have.

Many teachers wish to add Music, Fine Arts, and Expression with the training in Physical Culture which the schools are now exacting of the best paid teachers, and Elon Provides these at extremely low rates, the training in Physical Culture being free.

Absolutely no extras. No lecture or entertainment on the College campus can be charged for. And the town, being distinctly a College town, does not make it embarrassing to those who do not wish to spend money on needless pastime.

W. A. HARPER.

NEWS FROM THE FIELD.

On the fourth Sunday in July I started my meeting at Pleasant Hill, Johnson county, which continued until the following Friday evening.

Bro. Neil Rowland of Fort Worth, Texas, did the preaching. We had large congregations and they all seemed to be delighted with Bro. Rowland's forcible sermons. Had a good meeting at every service. Sixteen souls professed faith in Christ, and four connected themselves with the church and there will be others to join at next appointment. To God be all the glory. On Saturday before the first Sunday in August at Pleasant Union, Harnett county, we started. Large congregations pleasant to mingle with brethren of the various branches of the church of Christ and it appears to me that, more and more, party lines are fading out, and the true followers of Christ are getting closer and closer together, and the prayer of our blessed Lord is being answered:—"That they may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me."

I desire work in my own church next year and can give my whole time to it. Since I have left off my work in behalf of education I have had only irregular engagements in church service.

W. S. LONG.

August 2, 1913.

BETHEL.

We began our revival meeting at Bethel Christian church, Wake county, the first Sunday in August and continued till Thursday evening. Owing to the rainy weather the congregations were not so large as we had hoped for. We feel the services were not in vain. The church is much revived as a result of the meeting. Three were converted during the meeting, for which we give God the glory.

Rev. R. P. Crumpler, of Stem, N. C., was with us and did most of the preaching. Bro. Crumpler has ability not alone to teach school, but to forcefully preach the gospel. Here is hoping he will give more of his time to ministerial work; there is plenty of room in the field.

Although we only have twenty members at Bethel, yet we are holding our own. We are coming to Conference a banner church.

B. J. EARP.

PADDY BLACK WAS TRUE BLUE.

The Rev. J. William Butcher writes an interesting story in the Methodist Recorder of the transformation of Paddy Black, an Irishman, born in the slums of Glasgow. At seventeen he was a "stow-away," bound for Montreal. He worked his way back home as a cattleman. He was married at nineteen, but lived a drunken and dissolute life. In August, 1903, he had a remarkable conversion, and has since been a power for righteousness in Glasgow. This interesting incident is told of his constancy:

A man who had been one of Paddy's shipmates, just as he was about to sail for a South American port, heard of his conversion. Hurrying up to Maclellan's yard, he found Paddy at his forge.

"Paddy," he said eagerly, "is it true that you've turned tee-total?"

"Praise God, it is," was the answer.

"Is it true, too, that you've got religion?"

"Praise God, it is."

"Well, this is the rummiest go in my life; however, I'm off for three months or more; I guess when I come I'll find the old Paddy."

"You won't; he's dead."

"What's your game now?"

"Why, my minister read me that if any man be in Christ Jesus he is a new creature; old things have passed away, all things have become new."

"Well, we shall see; ta-ta."

The voyage ended, the man was paid off, and again made his way to the forge-side.

"Paddy, are you still teetotal?"

"I am."

"Are you still religious?"

"I am."

"Well, this is the rummiest thing out; I didn't think you'd keep it for a week."

"No more I should. That's where chaps like you make the mistake; when Christ saves a man He doesn't let him go; He does the keeping."—N. Y. Advocate.

J. D. WICKER.

CHAPEL HILL.

During the next week I will be in a meeting at Hines' Chapel, and the week after the second Sunday in this month I will hold one at Shallow Well, near Jonesboro, N. C. These churches constitute part of the charge of Rev. W. C. Wicker, D. D., who is now in Europe. Haw River and Palm St. Greensboro also belong to Bro. Wicker's charge. Since he left for Europe I have endeavored to supply his churches. So far as I have been informed he left his work in good shape, and his people well pleased with him as their pastor.

I have had no regular pastoral work this year, but have preached for other brethren, the Baptists, the Methodists, the Presbyterians, and the Christians. I have found it very

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

Prof. P. J. Kernodle, of the Central Publishing Company, Richmond, Va., a former Elon Professor, was a pleasant visitor here Saturday and Sunday. Professor Kernodle thinks there is prospect of a Christian church in Richmond, if it is properly worked.

Mr. Carl B. Riddle of the office force is doing some special work for the College in new territory in Eastern North Carolina this week, and is meeting with success.

Dr. E. E. Randolph, the newly elected head of the Modern Language Department, is soon to move into the Heater home here. Mr. Heater has decided to locate at Apex.

The Whitsett Sunday school had its picnic here Saturday. An agreeable company of young people came and enjoyed the cool of the campus and the inspection of the buildings.

Prof. N. F. Brannock expects this week to move into his elegant new home on the street north of the College campus. It is equipped with modern conveniences.

Every day last week some prospective patron was here investigating the propriety of placing son or daughter in the College this Fall. One day three such welcome visitors came. The prospect is bright and grows brighter. Our friends have it in their power to make it the brightest yet for their institution, and they are doing their best in that direction. Every mail brings added evidence of that. We are grateful as we know how to be and endeavor to prove it by working hard at this end to supplement their efforts.

Mr. Hollis Atkinson was here one day this week arranging a home for himself and mother. They will likely take a few roomers and so give additional accommodations to the student body. They will receive a hearty welcome here as residents.

Dr. Wicker is expected home from abroad this week. Dr. Newman expects to return from Northfield the 20th.

Dr. Lawrence is to deliver an address at Why Not Academy Thursday of this week.

X.

MIRACLES OF REDEMPTION AT CARTERSVILLE.

Sam Jones Tabernacle Meetings.

If I had been a blatant infidel "these forty years" and more—if I had gone further and been an out and out atheist (if such an one exists on earth); if I had been a Fire Worshipper from Persia, a Parsee from India, a Confucian from China, a Buddhist from Japan, a Hottentot from Africa or even a Mohammedan from Constantinople—if I had been any or all of these in one, and had been at the Sam Jones Tabernacle at Cartersville last Sunday, with a grain of intellect and a gleam of conscience left with which to receive the impartation and the implantation of truth, I could not have looked at Gypsy Smith and John Callahan and believed their marvelous stories of redeeming grace in their own lives without shouting with the wondering people at Carmel: "The Lord, He is God! The Lord, He is God!"

THE ATMOSPHERE OF THE SKIES.

The great Sam Jones Tabernacle was crowded at the opening service. Memories of the days when the famous and beloved Georgia evangelist erected that tabernacle and ruled for years its thronging thousands from a throne of love—memories yet further back, memories of gray-haired men and women there who knew Sam Jones in his early erring days as a lost sinner on the streets of Cartersville, and then saw him until death "kept by the power of God" as a miracle of redeeming love—memories like these and the thoughts that these memories brought in whole battalions of holy inspiration, were making the very atmosphere vocal and vibrant with the music of the spheres and the aroma of the skies.

It was enough to give any sane man a good case of religion before a word was uttered or a song was sung.

BOB JONES GIVEN OVATION.

When Bob Jones, the beloved Alabama evangelist who won the hearts of the people during his great meeting last year, stepped on the platform, the great crowd broke into a beautiful demonstration of welcome, waving him a chautauqua salute and making him thank God afresh for the privilege of living, loving and being loved, and especially for being asked by the Christian business men of Cartersville to conduct these annual Tabernacle meetings.

"I love everybody on earth," said Bob Jones "and the peace of heaven is in my heart."

AND M'KENZIE SANG.

McKnezie, Bob Jones' singer, fresh from new and treasured laurels at Tent Evangel, New York, his face haloed with a corner of sunshine, led the great congregation in songs new and old until melody seemed to "rend the vaulted skies" and break in silver waves about the throne of God. And when the people prayed heaven bent down and kissed all hearts into reverence and worship, while on every side the eyes of worshipers were gemmed with tears that were crystal with the light of heaven.

And then Bob Jones introduced Gypsy Smith.

"I bring you the best on earth," he said, "for everybody knows that God has made Gypsy Smith the ideal evangelist of the world."

"My dear friends," said the little bronzed man with black mustache, "I don't believe what my generous friend has said. He meant well, but I am nothing at all but a poor sinner trusting in Jesus for salvation and strength. But the prayer just now got hold of my heart. I was a Gypsy boy again. I saw myself selling clothes pins from that roving camp. And I see myself now in thanksgiving as God's messenger to multitudes all over the world. If I were an artist I would like to paint the picture of the two—the little Gypsy boy as I was, poor, sinful and ignorant, and then speaking to this multitude this morning for the glory of my Redeemer, and I would write under the two pictures in capital letters of gold: 'What hath God wrought?' And I would like for the 'higher critics' to explain that," said Gypsy Smith in ringing tones while a blended smile of humility and triumph wreathed his radiant face.

From that moment the vast crowd belonged to Gypsy Smith. Whether he sang (and he is a wonderful singer) or whether he unfolded the "deep things of God" the multitude hung on his every meaningful word.

"WE ARE PARTAKERS."

His sermon was the heart of the Gospel by Peter. 1. "We are partakers of his divine nature." 2. "We are partakers of his sufferings." 3. "We are partakers of his glory."

It seems almost profane to touch that simple, sacred, marvelous message with reporter's pen or soulless type. Let me give you one sentence—you can imagine the rest. He was stressing the necessity of personal acquaintance with Christ when he said: "Jesus died for me. When a soul first realizes that—when a redeemed soul continues to realize that, it is like all the flowers of earth blooming in one beautiful bouquet—it is like all the jewels of earth shining in one wonderful gem—it is like all the music of earth singing itself in one marvelous heavenly song—it is like all the mornings of earth breaking into one glorious sunrise!"

A BOY'S ARMS AROUND HIS NECK.

At the conclusion of Gypsy Smith's first sermon, I joined the throng that sought his ready hand, and when I got to him I found a twelve-year-old boy with his clinging arms about his neck. It was little Robin Gilreath, son of the beloved and lamented Lem Gilreath, who recently went to heaven on the bosom of his evangelistic songs. The song with which Gypsy Smith had closed his sermon and the gentle tenderness of the man had drawn the little fatherless boy to the great preacher's arms; and that night after his searching sermon on "The Lost Christ," and there were several professions of conversion, I found a grown young man with his arms, too, around Gypsy Smith's neck, declaring in tears that he had accepted Christ with his whole heart.

Such was Gypsy Smith's first day at the Sam Jones Tabernacle. It was enough—quite enough—to pay for his coming four thousand miles to tell the story of the Christ who redeemed the Gypsy boy in England and made him such a wonderful "fisher of men" and a "feeder of the flock" of God.

SUCCESSOR OF HADLEY AND JERRY M'CAULEY.

The Sunday afternoon message of John Callahan, superintendent of the great Hadley Mission on the Bowery in New York, told his thrilling life story "From Barroom to Pulpit," and was another powerful illustration of redeeming grace. Gloriously "born again" after many years of sin and crime, he has proven the genuineness of the "miracle of redemption" by twenty-three years of consecrated living as a mission worker and preacher of the Christ who saved him. Walking in the footprints of S. H. Hadley and Jerry McCauley, leading thousands of the down and out, not to "ethical culture," but to the wonders of salvation through Christ, John Callahan joins Gypsy Smith in putting unbelief to a stammering hush.—Editor Golden Age.

THE NOTABLE WELCOME TO THE RETAIL LIQUOR DEALERS' CONVENTION OF IOWA BY THE WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION

OF THAT STATE.

GENTLEMEN: A welcome to a city should be representative and since the welcome accorded your association by the Mayor of Cedar Rapids represents the thoughts of but a portion of its citizenship, it seems fitting that the entire community should communicate to you its sentiment. Hence, in behalf of those not represented by the Mayor, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union extends this greeting.

It is quite usual in greeting a body to enumerate its accomplishments and tell its worth and standing. Courtesy to the individual somewhat embarrasses us here. Shall we greet you as those who wreck homes, debauch manhood, prostitute womanhood, disgrace and impoverish childhood? Shall we greet you as those who place upon the taxpayer the heaviest burden in caring for the results of your traffic?

Your position in a community is quite peculiar. We fail to find a city that enumerates among its advantages its saloons. The commercial club of our city advertises our manufacturing plants, our churches, our schools and colleges, but never once have the thirty-two saloons of the city been advertised as a reason for industries to locate here.

It is said by some that you help a town. Do you make better fathers, husbands, sons, and so raise the standard of citizenship? Do you bring comfort and happiness to mothers, wives and children? Do you add to the efficiency of the laborer or business man, and so add to the efficiency of the laborer or business man, and so add to the material prosperity of the place?

Any business is judged by its results. Some time since Cedar Rapids had a Manufacturers' Week. Every business in the city save yours exhibited its wares. Yet your ambition is to be classed as a line of legitimate business. The packing house and Quaker Oat mills showed their splendid products ready to feed the world. The pump manufacturers and wood finishing concerns exhibited their contributions to comfort and aesthetic pleasure. The clothing manufacturers gave evidence of prosperity. Did the saloons of Cedar Rapids use their windows or were those of other places loaned to exhibit their finished products? No, you find these in the penitentiary, where eighty-five per cent. of the inmates are your graduates. Seventy per cent. of the insane are others. Ninety per cent. of pauperism is another class. The great burden of private charity is due to the saloon. The taxpayer pays the enormous cost of caring for your product. But only the Father of us all knows the blight of manhood, the shame of womanhood, the wreck of home, the heartbreak of the innocent. Ah, no, gentlemen, you are not welcomed to Cedar Rapids by its homes and social interests.

Yours is not a legitimate business, so declared by the United States Supreme Court. Our stores open at their pleasure, closed only on the day of rest. But in self-defense a community limits you as to times and seasons. If your places of business are so demoralizing that they must be closed on election and holidays, and so dangerous that they are closed in times of fire, riot or other occasions of excitement, how can a city welcome you at any time?

It is passing strange that the political power you wield can stultify the officials of nation, State and city. But it is not long to be so. Not many more times will you be accorded a welcome to any city. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, with men and women of sober, earnest purpose, is steadily working for that day when the God of heaven shall say to you, "It is enough." You know, with us, that the time is near.

THE UNITED MISSIONARY CAMPAIGN

A notable sign of the fast-growing unity of the church, as well as one of the valuable practical results from the hearty co-operation of the different branches, is to be seen in the frequent campaigns started with some large purpose in view. In this way the cause of missions in particular is gaining more and more of the recognition it should have.

The Laymen's Missionary Movement has furnished one of the most striking illustrations of the tendency. Regret has sometimes been expressed, however, that its scheme had not made a place for home missions. Home Mission Week last November greatly helped to supply the lack. It is welcome news that a United Missionary Campaign is now planned to embrace both the home and the foreign field. The denominational boards representing both branches of the work share in the undertaking, and the Laymen's Missionary Movement is enlisted also. The enterprise aims to surpass both in scope and in efficiency anything of the kind that has yet been accomplished in North America.

Larger giving, more information, a stronger sense of responsibility, and the development of nobler Christian character are among the ends sought. Other efforts have awakened and increased missionary enthusiasm in many; stress is now laid on making every member of Christ's church see his duty and privilege in supporting missions intelligently and systematically.

The methods that have been put to the test before are to be used in this movement. Careful local organization, the circulation of literature, conferences at well-chosen centres and conducted by experts, training-conferences, the collection of statistics, and a thorough canvass of each church are features of the scheme. A manual giving details may be had free from any missionary board or from the Laymen's Missionary Movement, 1 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y.

The season for the conferences is to extend from September 15 to February 15, which is to be observed as Missionary Sunday, followed by a simultaneous personal canvass in March. It is none too early to begin to prepare to make this time one that shall mark a great forward step for the church of Christ in its work of winning the world.—Burgess, in C. E. World.

HOW CHILDREN FARE IN MISSION LANDS.

The children of Japan are generally happy. They have a great many toys and games and then they have festivals given especially for them. On the third day of the third month (March), they have the Feast of the Dolls. On the night before the little Japanese maiden is put to bed early, and then her papa and mama get out all of her dolls and arrange them around the room on shelves. It takes a good many shelves to hold them, as there are so many dolls—just hundreds of them! and every doll represents some great personage in Japanese history. There are the Emperor and the Empress and the five court musicians and so on down, too numerous to mention. Many of these dolls belonged to our little girl's mother and grandmother and great-grandmother. Some of the dolls are thousands of years old. They are kept very carefully wrapped in silks and put away in boxes from year to year. After the dolls are all arranged, the little Japanese tables, only a few inches from the ground, are placed all around with the most tempting Japanese food on them for the dolls to eat; and the food is served in the daintiest little cups, bowls and plates with cunning little chopsticks, just like the little girl herself uses. Then the next morning when our little friend wakes up, there are all of her dollies ready for her to play with, and how surprised she is to be sure!—just about like you are on Christmas morning. The feast lasts only one day, but the dolls are left out for display throughout four or five days. Then they are all packed away for safe-keeping.

And now I must tell you about the boys' Festival. It is called the Feast of the Plays and is held the fifth day of the fifth month (May). On this day we can look down the street and see floating over every house where a boy lives, a great fish of cloth or paper; the fish they represent is said to be strong enough to swim up-stream, even over a water fall, and so they express what the parents wish for their son—that he may be strong and brave enough to go against the current. There are a great many flags and banners floating on this day, and the boys themselves go in crowds and carry them around the city. Every flag bears either the name or the portrait of a brave Japanese general who lived about six centuries ago. In early spring the boys fly wonderful kites to represent children or men or various animals; sometimes they make these fight in the air. They have other games, like those American boys play.—Missionary Lesson Leaflet.

A CHALLENGE TO THE BREWERS.

On the Fourth of July McPherson held a big and successful celebration. The day was hot and the dust was tolerably plenty. If there is ever a time when men want to drink it is on an occasion like this. And it may be added that if there ever is a time when there is some excuse for them wanting to take something that they think will relieve the situation and clear the dust and other accumulations out of their throats it is on such a Fourth of July as that of last week. But the fact is that one could have visited almost any town where a celebration was in progress and unless he was a close observer would not have discovered an indication that any of the thousands gathered to celebrate the nation's birthday had looked upon the liquor when it was red or the beer when it foamed in the glass.

The McPherson Republican, knowing whereof it speaks, issues the following challenge:

To the Brewing Companies, Greeting:

In accordance with many and numerous statements that you and your agents are from time to time circulating as to the effect of the prohibition laws in Kansas, in which you take the liberty to state that prohibition does not prohibit and that there are more drunks in the dry states than in your favorite territory, know ye by these presents: That on the Fourth of July, in the year of our Lord, 1913, there was held a celebration in the central part of Kansas in the state that you especially show to the outside world as a joke in the prohibition class, that on this day there were gathered in the city of McPherson, twenty thousand (20,000) people and that during the entire time of the celebration there was not one man so drunk on the streets but that he could walk a straight Kansas gait, and that only two persons were arrested and these were dragged to a quiet place and fined for being drunk. As to your claim that prohibition does not prohibit, you are hereby challenged to show a similar crowd gathered in a "wet" town and in lieu of your failure to do this, you must stand convicted before the civilized world as a misrepresentative of the truth, and admit to the world at large that prohibition does prohibit, that your claims are all hot air, that you are lying to the intelligent American people with the supposition that they will swallow your bare-faced falsehoods. Witness, The City of McPherson and seventeen thousand people from central Kansas.—Kansas Capital.

COLLEGIANS AND RELIGION.

It is often thought and said that the attitude of college students toward religion is hostile, certainly skeptical, or at the very best absolutely indifferent. The figures, however, support the contrary view and it will be welcome intelligence to all friends of education. The following figures have been carefully gathered and are said to be entirely reliable: During the period between 1785 and 1795 12 per cent. of the students in American colleges were members of the church; during 1795 to 1800, 5 per cent.; during 1800 to 1815, 10 per cent.; during 1815 to 1825, 25 per cent.; during 1825 to 1850, 33 per cent.; during 1850 to 1875, 45 per cent.; during 1875 to 1900, 50 per cent.; during 1900 to 1910, 54 per cent. Of course from some of our colleges and universities skeptics emerge, but proportionately there are as many Christians among college students as among the general population. In view of these figures, it cannot be maintained that religious faith is really declining in this country.—Biblical Recorder.

We sink far below our vocation if we do not aspire to be friends of Jesus Christ. He loves to draw us into His confidence, and to say of His disciples of to-day as of His disciples of old, "Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what His lord doeth; but I call you friends."

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, AUGUST 17.

Subject.—"Crossing the Red Sea." Text:
Exodus 14:19-31.

Time.—B. C. 1276 (Price), 1447 (Tofteen), 1490 (Ussher), 1498 (Beecher). Others give other dates.

Place.—At the crossing of the Red Sea.

Persons.—Moses, the Israelites, Pharaoh, the Egyptians.

Golden Text.—Before they call, I will answer.—Isa. 65:24.

Leading Thought.—The Lord is always ready to help.

Exodus and Numbers give the Israelites as numbering 600,000 men, warriors, implying a total population of at least two million. But it is possible that the word "thousand" should be translated "families," which would reduce the total to only 15,000 or 20,000 persons.

There were three recognized routes across the desert of Canaan: the northern route along the shore of the Mediterranean, requiring passage through the country of the Philistines, who would never let the Israelites go by; the central route, by way of Beer-sheeba and Hebron, but leading right through the desert, where so many could not be supported; and the southern route, by way of the Red Sea, which was adopted of necessity. Moreover, Moses was familiar with this route because of his forty years in the region it traversed.

Gathering in Rameses, a district in the land of Goshen, the Israelites passed to Succoth just inside the great wall which bounded Egypt on the east. Thence they turned south, along the great wall, till they came to the northern end of the western arm of the Red Sea, now called the Gulf of Suez. Here mountains coming down to the sea confronted them and prevented their going farther. Pharaoh, having decided to prevent their leaving, rejoiced to see that they had blundered into a pocket, and rushed on behind them.

The water where the Israelites crossed the Red Sea is very shallow, and to this day a strong wind is able to blow it back and leave dry land. God may have made use of this arrangement of nature in effecting the deliverance of His people. A change in the direction of the wind would bring the waters back again upon the pursuing Egyptians.

QUESTION REVIEW.

1. What is the title of to-day's Lesson?
2. Who crossed the Red Sea?
3. How do men cross seas to-day?
4. Who revealed the power of steam and taught men to make steamboats?
5. How do we cross smaller bodies of water?
6. Who taught the principle upon which bridges are built?
7. When there was not time to build bridges or boats, what means did God use in making a way for Israelites to cross?
8. Is anything too hard for God?
9. What was the one thing Israelites had to do? (Go forward.)
10. When God asks of us hard things, what is the one thing we have to do?

HOW PAUL PROVED CHRISTIANITY.

1. He received thirty-nine stripes five times.
2. He was three times beaten with rods.
3. He was stoned once.
4. Three times he was ship-wrecked.
5. A night and a day in the sea.

6. Often was he on journeys.
7. In perils of the robbers.
9. In peril by his own people, the Jews.
10. In perils by the heathen.
11. In danger while in the cities lest he should be mobbed.
12. In danger while in the wilderness.
14. Hungry and thirsty.
15. Was cold and with raiment.
16. Brethren proved false to him.
17. In prison two years.
18. Was physically weak.
19. Made tents to support himself while preaching.
20. Wrote his many epistles to the churches while at work.
21. Was separated from his friends.
22. Lost his position in the Jewish church.
23. He had no vacation in summer or winter.

In all of the afflictions he never forgot His Christ.

INSPIRING POINTS.

1. Where is the source of power? The soul of God is poured into the world through the thoughts of men. The world stands on ideas and not on iron or cotton; and the iron of iron, the fire of fire, the ether and source of all the elements, is moral force.—Emerson.
2. Men are often capable of greater things than they perform. They are sent into the world with bills of credit and seldom draw to their full extent.—Walpole.
3. Since I begin to ask God's blessing on my studies, I have done more in one week than I have done in a whole year before.—Payson.
4. We must not calculate on the weather, or on fortune, but upon God and ourselves. He may fail us in the gratification of our wishes, but never in the encounter with our exigencies.—Simms.
3. The study of God's word, for the purpose of discovering God's will, is the secret of discipline which has formed the greatest characters.—J. W. Alexander.

HELPS FOR C. E. MEETING, AUGUST 24.

"How I Have Proved Christianity and Seen it Proved."—John 3:25-36. Former and Absent Members Meeting.

An "Old Friends Meeting" is well worth while, but it needs to be well worked up in advance. Letters must be sent to all the former members who are out of town, and to all the present-time members who are away from town. Tell them the subject of the meeting, and ask them to send letters giving their observation of actual Christianity, observations that go to show the divine origin and nature of our religion. It may be an account of a single noble deed, or the story of a consecrated life. It may be the recital of some splendid church-work, or the work of some magnificent Christian Endeavor society. It may be a personal experience of the writer, tending to prove the reality of Christianity. Whatever it is, ask the former or absent member to write it out, for the encouragement of those who may not yet have decided for Christ and the Christian life.

These letters will all go to the leader of the meeting, who will introduce them in the meeting where he thinks best. Probably it will be most effective if they are read one at a time, being mingled with the other exercises. In addition, the various features indicated below will be prepared by the leader of the prayer-meeting committee.

It is better to go down on the great seas which human hearts were made to sail, than to rot at the wharves in ignoble anchorage.—Hamilton W. Mabie.

THE LEADER'S TALK.

Speak about the need of proving Christianity. We are expected to give reasons for the faith that is in us. Our faith will not be in us very long unless it is founded upon the rock of reason. Faith is trusting in what we cannot see, but not in what is unreasonable. Trusting in what is unreasonable is not faith but credulity. We can hardly call ourselves Christians if we have not had Christian experience, and every one of them is an argument for Christianity. Besides, all around us are others who are having blessed experiences of Christ, and if we are enjoying Christian fellowship as we should we have been learning about these experiences of theirs, every one of which is a new argument for Christianity.

Every Christian is expected by his Lord to go out into the world and make new disciples. How can he do that unless he is able to prove his belief in Christianity? Everywhere we are likely to meet scepticism in some of its many forms. We should know how to combat it, with argument and fact. This meeting is to help us in this great work. It is to arm us with many arguments for our religion. It is to make us stronger soldiers of Jesus Christ.—C. E. World.

WHY NOT MORE ORGANIZED CLASSES?

The efforts of the Secretary are now being directed toward the organization of more classes in our Sunday school and to the building up of those classes that have been organized. The Secretary is writing to many ministers and Sunday school workers, some of whom are not responding. But his work will be more effective if those who are interested will write to him.

We want 200 new organized classes in the Southern Convention in the next two years. That will be only one new class for each of our churches on an average. Will you help?

IF YOU WOULD LIKE TO HAVE—

- A cradle roll.
- A home department.
- An Organized Class.
- A Teacher Training Class.
- A better organized department.
- A better grade of music and songs.
- More effective helps for teachers.
- Literature on any of the advanced movements.

Books on the Sunday school and for teachers.

Or would like to know anything or get anything that will make your school better and more attractive, write to Charles A. Hines, Greensboro, N. C., our editorial and field secretary, and he will send it to you, get it for you or advise you about it. His business is to make our Sunday schools better.

"Christ would treat us as friends, but if we resent the slightest discipline, if we complain when sudden sickness or trial comes, if we refuse to use the means of grace He plainly points out how can He treat us so."

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Secty. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Of Mission Treasurer for the month of July, 1913, as per standing rule of the Mission Board:

Receipts for July.

For Home Missions	$1,776.40
For Foreign Missions	465.81
For all other purposes	384.68
Total receipts	2,626.89
Cash on hand July 1, 1913	3,853.55
	$6,480.44

Disbursements.

To Home Missions	$1,991.66
To Foreign Missions	1,709.80
To all other purposes	723.62
	4,425.08
Cash on hand July 31, 1913.	2,055.36
	$6,480.44

Liabilities.

Bills payable	$6,600.00
Due accounts as per Ledger	5,152.71
Due salary and local accounts	135.83
	11,888.54
Less cash	2,055.36
Total liabilities	$9,833.18

J. G. BISHOP, Mission Treas.

Dayton, Ohio.

CHILDREN AND MISSIONS.

Sowing Missionary Seed in the Hearts of Children.

In a little home in Scotland some years ago, there lived a mother who was especially careful that her boy should study the Bible, and on Sunday evenings, she would hear him recite his lesson in the Bible and shorter catechism. If he knew his lesson well, she would, as a reward, tell him a missionary story. Among other things she would tell him about how she herself became interested in missions; of how, when a little girl, she heard her grand-father's minister preach a sermon in which he coupled these words: "If ye love me, yet will keep my commandments," and "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations." After a sleepless night, she determined that if she could not go to heathen lands herself, yet she would do what she could to help enlist others, and to give money to send out good men.

Often after hearing the story this boy would ask, "What field do you consider most important, mother?" And she would tell him that Christ died for all, and that all were important, though just now the eyes of many were being turned toward Africa. Then the boy would ask, "Would you like me to go as a missionary to Africa, mother?" The answer would be, "If God prepares you for it, my boy, but not unless." To this mother the church is indebted for the great missionary, Alexander Mackay, for it was in the home, and through the influence of his mother that his thoughts first turned toward the far away lands.

THE HOME.

From the youth of our homes to-day must come the missionaries and mission givers of the future. Christian parents have a wonderful opportunity for doing good, if they will carefully teach the children from earliest infancy to have an interest and love for the little ones in heathen lands; and the habit is thus early formed of looking beyond personal comfort and pleasure.

PICTURES AND STORIES.

Among the chief delights of childhood are stories, games and pictures. These may be used by the parents as a means of imparting missionary inspiration and instruction. Missionary literature abounds in fascinating stories of strange lands and peoples, and thrilling adventures of missionaries among them. Little children sit entranced while such stories are being read or told to them, and stories heard at mother's knee are rarely, if ever, forgotten. The power of pictures to plant a missionary purpose in the hearts of children is shown in the lives of Duc of India, and Richardson of Madagascar, both great heroes of the Cross. The former traced his first desire to be a missionary to a picture of idols shown him by his father at the age of four; the latter to a picture of the martyrdom of the native Christians of Madagascar, shown him by his teacher at the age of seven. The wealth of pictures that makes our present-day books and magazines so attractive constitutes one of the best aids to the study of missions and is a great delight to children. Very pretty picture books can be made by clipping them and pasting them in any ordinary scrap-book.

HOME TRAINING IN GIVING.

Hand in hand with this missionary instruction in the home must go practical training in missionary work. If the child's missionary development is to be complete he must be early taught to sacrifice some of his pleasures and luxuries that he may give of his money to the Lord Jesus for His work, and to pray for the children of foreign lands, and the missionaries who work among them.

CHILDREN'S ORGANIZATIONS.

There is a sense in which God has entrusted the children to us as well as to the mother, and amid her many cares the mother has a right to look to her sisters in the church for help in the religious training of her child. This training may be given to her child through the Mission Bands, Junior Endeavor, and the Sunday school. One great need of our organized work for missions at this time is the organizing of the children and young people in bands and societies. We have auxiliary to the Woman's Home and Foreign Boards, an organization called the Little Light Bearers, or Missionary Cradle Roll, which was organized to gather the babies under the age of five as missionary helpers. They are enrolled as Little Light Bearers by the paying of fifteen cents annually. Graduates from the Little Light Bearers, and any other children over six years of age, may be retained as members of the advanced Little Light Bearers, or Literature and Mite Box Secretary at a very slight cost.

IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

There is no place within the church that offers a better opportunity for sowing of missionary seed than in the Sunday school. The teachers have a great opportunity for implanting missionary seed in the hearts of the children, as they meet them Sunday after Sunday in their classes. Where we have a school whose officers and teachers are thoroughly interested and enthusiastic in the saving of souls, it will not be long until the children will catch the inspiration, as they are great imitators. This interest and enthusiasm in mission work can be awakened by devoting say one Sunday in each month as missionary Sunday, and when rightly conducted this cannot help being the brightest Sunday in the month. The exercises for this day should consist of stirring missionary songs, prayers for definite things, and, in connection with the lesson, some time devoted to short and bright talks on missionary topics by persons selected and prepared. All money given this day should be used for mission work. As the children become more interested and enthusiastic in this work, so will their offering be much larger. In proportion to their income, children are the largest givers in the world. Not only in the sense of giving money, but also in their prayers. Few among older children pray with a little child. "Thank God for bairn's prayers," wrote James Chalmers from New Guinea; "I like best the prayers of children."

MISSIONS IN THE LIBRARY

Another aid in the teaching of missions in the Sunday school is a Sunday school Library containing books of the noble work done by the heroes of the cross. Much will depend upon the librarian, who should know these books and where to place them, that they may do the most good. There are, perhaps, about 70,000 persons in the Sunday schools of our own Christian churches in the United States and Canada. If all these should give an average of only one cent a week for missions it would give to our Mission Board over $35,000 for the extension of Christ's kingdom each year.

What are we doing for the children of our homes and churches in arousing their interest and love for saving of souls? May we awaken to the opportunities that lie before us in "Teaching the little ones early to serve Him,

To help in this mission of love,
That their mites may be added with blessing
The blessing of heaven above."

—The Christian Missionary.

IF YOUR CLASS OR SOCIETY IS—

Having meetings.
Doing any business.
Giving socials or picnics.
Ever electing any new officers.
Trying any new or novel plans whatever.
Having any contests for members or planning same.
Or doing anything else, won't you write something about it and send it to the editor of this department?

That's what this page is for—to tell the news of our work.

If your class, society or school is dead, let's have it its obituary, so we will know the truth.

"That uncontrolled temper, that over-mastering egotism, that clinging sloth, that secret impurity, that intemperance, that untruthfulness, that vanity—what are they but sevenfold devils that Jesus must cast out again to-day."

Who are we to live a full life, unmortified, undisciplined when our Saviour was crucified? Who are we to rebel at poverty or suffering or disappointment when He chose them as His lot? Who are we to make the test of life what we should like when He made the test of His God's will.

PITY POOR KANSAS.

This paper is in receipt of numerous requests to republish in tabulated form conditions in Kansas under prohibition, as set forth by the governor and attorney general of that state in recent addresses. This information is probably desired that sympathy may be expressed for "poor, bleeding Kansas" because of the loss of her saloons and the hard times which have come to that state with the strict enforcement of law. Here is a boiled-down synopsis of the statements made by these two officials:

A half-million young men and women in Kansas over 21 years of age have never seen a saloon in that state. There is not a Kansas newspaper which publishes a liquor advertisement. Since Kansas adopted prohibition illiteracy has been reduced from 49 per cent. to less than 2 per cent. There is only one pauper in every 3,000 population. Eighty-seven of the 105 counties have no insane, fifty-four no feeble-minded and ninety-six no inebriates. Thirty-eight poor farms have no inmates. In July, 1911, fifty-three county jails were empty and sixty-five counties had no prisoners serving sentence. The county jail at Hugoton has not had a prisoner for two and a half years and the county commissioners have rented the building for a dwelling. Some counties have not called a jury to try a criminal case in ten years. In one Kansas county there has not been a grand jury called for twenty-five years. In 1880 the bank savings deposits in Kansas were thirty million dollars. Today they are two hundred million dollars. Kansas stands first among all the states in the per capita valuation of assessed property. During the panic of 1907 Kansas sent fifty million dollars to New York to relieve the money market, while her wet neighbor, Missouri, sent nothing. The death rate in Kansas has dropped from seventeen to the 1,000 in 1880 to seven and one-half to the 1,000. Kansas is the healthiest state in the Union.

Do you not feel sorry for such a state? It is lacking in the luxuries of many other states, such as jails, the poor farms and grand juries. Kansas would have all these were she to permit saloons to return.—From the American Issue.

FOR NATIONAL PROHIBITION.

The call of the Anti-Saloon League for national prohibition is one of the most striking signs of the times.

It places that organization alongside the Prohibition Party, and henceforth those two great bodies of temperance workers should march shoulder to shoulder.

It is a recognition of the truth that the nation is awake as never before to the evils of intemperance, and ready as never before for a prohibition amendment to the Constitution.

It is a condemnation of our national policy of licensing the liquor traffic, even in prohibition States.

It is a clarion call to all citizens that love God and their fellow men. Now is the time to strike the final blow at that ghastly iniquity, the saloon. If all lovers of righteousness will combine, the victory will be ours.—Arrow, in C. E. World.

—Johnny: "Grandpa, do lions go to heaven?"

Grandpa: "No, Johnny."

Johnny: "Well, do ministers?"

Grandpa: "Why, of course. Why do you ask?"

Johnny: "Well, suppose a lion eats a minister?"—Universalist Leader.

OUTDOING THE TRUSTS.

You own recorded titles, true, to all your farms and lands,
But in fee simple I own more than e'en your deed demands.
For barb-wire fences, abstracts, deeds, can't shut the beauties in
That my soul sees and drinks and loves and woos and can but win.
You cannot keep the rhythmic waves of golden, bending grain;
You cannot fence the emerald sheen of meadow and of plain;
You cannot shut out from my eyes the sunset hues that glow,
Out in the cotton fields where white and reddest blossoms blow;
You cannot silence symphonies of silver-throated birds;
You cannot still the bleating of your homeward-wending herds,
And each song of the warblers is a mine of wealth to me,
And the lowing of the kine and sheep suggest a grassy lea.
Your stubborn fences cannot hide the grace of waving corn,
All heavy with a harvest rich when golden wealth is born.
I look upon such beauties and my soul drinks in their worth;
Then a harmony of Harvest Home finds glad some lilting birth.
I would ne'er exchange my title, this unquestioned right I hold,
For bare possessions that you own with their return of gold,
For I reap a harvest rarer than you find in bonds or bank,
And it depends not if the growth has dwarfed or flourished rank.
My title finds the poetry of color, shape and sound;
It puts on record, abstracts clear, where naught but smiles abound,
The radiant smiles of Nature, with her bounties to unfold—
Yes, the interest on my principal is worth much more than gold.
—CORDIE WEBB INGRAM, in Farm and Ranch.

A CONFESSION.

We have always taken the unpopular side of the social card question, namely: That the social card is the beginning of the gambler's card. I write this in the office of the Smithfield Hotel, Smithfield, N. C., a traveling man has just asked the clerk for a deck of cards. Listen to my question to him and his answer: "Stranger, answer a question for me, if you please. Do you think that playing Rook and other parlor games will lead to gambling." Here is his answer: "Friend, a man must learn to fancy the handling of cards some how, and I would dare not think of teaching any young person how to handle any kind of a card." Take the case. C. B. RIDDLE.

We shall be made truly wise if we can be made content not only with what we can understand but content with what we do not understand—the habit of mind which theologians call—and rightly—faith in God.—Charles Kingsley.

GOOD HABITS.

The habit of work.
The habit of honesty.
The habit of attention.
The habit of happiness.
The habit of politeness.
The habit of usefulness.
The habit of cleanliness.
The habit of promptness.
The habit of appreciation.
The habit of thoroughness.
The habit of thoughtfulness.
The habit of accomplishment.
The habit of correct speaking.
The habit of neatness in work.
The habit of enjoyment of work.
The habit of telling the exact truth.—School Education.

Children's Missionary Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions For Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDREN

The Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

FOSTER'S STORY OF THE BIBLE

From Genesis to Revelation. Told in Simple Language.

ADAPTED TO ALL AGES, BUT ESPECIALLY TO THE YOUNG

By CHARLES FOSTER

Size, 6½ x 9 in.; 704 Pages: 300 Illustrations.

BEAUTIFUL COLORED PICTURES
THE BEST EASY-READING VERSION OF THE WHOLE BIBLE

It adheres most closely to the Scriptures, retaining much of their force, dignity and distinction of style, with the pure and simple wording of the English Bible, without comment or doctrinal discussion.

MOST GENERALLY USED—750,000 SOLD

Approved by eminent men of various religious denominations. Valued in thousands of homes.

FINE CLOTH, with beautiful design in three colors (shown above), $1.50

SEND US YOUR ORDERS.

Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

See Us about Job Printing

WHEN YOU WANT GOOD WORK.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

THE HANDSHAKE.

Who can measure the shake of the hand? From out this common custom mighty currents of change have gone forth. The Indians buried the tomahawk as a sign of friendly relations and smoked the pipe of peace. His white brothers clasp hands, and in the hidden palms, face to face, not merely hands, but hearts unite. Guilds and orders have recognized the secret strength of fellowship present in the shake of the hand and have carefully delineated the grip. It has long been one of the marks of good fellowship in the church.

Some one has said, "I would not pin my religion to a handshake," and another quickly replied: "No; but I would pin a handshake to my religion." Wasn't the reply of wisdom? Have not people been won to Christ by the shake of the hand with its measure of hearty good will? Have not young men been turned toward the Christian Ministry by the sympathy and power of the hand, which often speaks a language too deep and hallowed for the tongue to utter? This is not mere sentiment, for it is a fact that the handshake of a man reveals much of character. The fellow feeling in his heart finds its way with the rich, warm blood to his finger tips. Happy possessor is the man whose strong circulation makes his finger end the point of electric thrill. He may be no more honest or earnest than his brother with a poor circulation and cold hands, but certainly he has an added power for influence and fellowship. Let us be thankful that the Nimrods of science, in their mad chase of microbes, had not labeled this useful and beautiful salutation with the class of the forbidden.

Sorry will be that day for the Christian church when it allows the hearty handshake of sincerity and good will to pass out of its life. There are some churches which need a revival of good, old fashioned greeting and handshaking. It would work wonders for their refrigerant life. An hour spent in this kind of warm-hearted follow-ship would probably be as acceptable to the Lord as a program of religious punctilio.—Exchange.

ARROW HEADS.

The National Museum now has an okapi, but the average American is not excited by the news.

"A cat may look at a king," but the denizens of the new $15,000 home for cats won't deign to.

The Chicago public schools are agitated over the spelling-book question. More agitation of that subject in school circles will save considerable agitation outside.

The Government's conscience money has averaged for the past century $4,200 a year, but last year the amount was only $2,814.44. Are we becoming more honest, or less conscientious?—C. E. World.

—He (nervously): "Margaret, there's been something trembling on my lips for months and months."

She: "Yes, so I see. Why don't you shave it off?"—Tit-Bits.

—"Are you the same man who ate my mince pie last week?"

"No, mum. I'll never be th' same man again."—New York Mail.

FOR SALE.

I offer my two story, six room dwelling, and farm of 53 acres, almost adjacent to College campus, for sale at reasonable price. A fine location for those wishing to educate their children. Correspondence solicited.

J. J. LAMBETH, Elon College, N. C.

Holy Bible

THE FINEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD
—FOR THE MONEY—

This Photograph represents exact size $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{4}$ inches

Bound in French Morocco, absolutely flexible, with overlapping covers as shown in this photograph. Has red under gold edges.

—IT CONTAINS—

The Authorized Version of the Old Testament and New Testament

—HAS—

Self-Pronouncing Text
All the proper words being accented and divided into syllables for quick and easy pronunciation.

—IT ALSO CONTAINS—

A New Series of Helps to Bible Study

—INCLUDING—

4000 Questions and Answers
which unfold the Scriptures

31 Beautiful Illustrations
showing scenes and incidents of Bible History

12 Maps of the Bible Lands in Colors

Large Clear Type Fine Paper

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN one year,
$2.50, postpaid.
Or sent alone for $1.50, postpaid.

—ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO—
The Southern Christian Pub. Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

—Hubby: "Of course, dear, it's only a rough idea of mine, but do you think it's possible that there's ever such a thing as a printer's error in that cookery manual of yours?"—London Opinion.

—Absent minded Man (whose wife is at the seashore): "Let me see. I've given the cat some seed, and let the bird out. I guess that's all she asked me to do."—Life.

The cloud is always thickest when and where the wind is about to shift, and roll it away out of the blue sky.—Charles Kinsley.

Remember us when you want fine Job Printing.

The Southern Christian Pub. Co.

Help your church paper by getting a friend to subscribe for THE CHRISTIAN SUN—$1.50 per year.

VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.

135 acres one-half mile northwest of Elon College, on macadam road. Good dwelling and outhouses. Good wheat, corn and tobacco land. Meadow and pastures with water. Well timbered. Will sell cheap.

J. W. CABLE, Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. E. M. CARTER, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

E. M. Carter, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

AUGUST 13.

Amount brought forward.. $2,095.40

DUES.

John Newman Denton $.10
S. E. Denton, Jr.10
Joseph Rabb Denton.. .10

MONTHLY S. S. OFFERING

Apples Chapel 1.28
Waverly 4.22
New Hope, Va.83
1st Ch., Norfolk..... 3.25
K. S. Cammon, Supt.... 2.06

SPECIAL.

Mrs. Hannah Loundermilk .50
Mrs. Lucy J. Chriscoe.. .25
R. J. Lawrence..... 1.00
J. G. Flent..... 5.00
T. P. Fulton..... 5.00
H. F. Samuel..... 1.00
J. W. Fulton..... 1.00
J. F. Fulton..... 1.00
Mrs. Mary Joiner..... 1.00
J. A. Strader..... .50
Mrs. Mary Caffey..... .50
M. C. Dean..... .50
Mrs. L. E. Ward......25
I. D. Dalton..... 1.00
Salem Chapel, Col..... 2.22
Balance from Loan.... 20.14

40.86

$2,149.27

Pearlie Knott is visiting her sister, Miss Annie Pierce, for a few days.

Miss Sudie McCauley, of Chapel Hill, who is to serve as matron and teacher, has arrived and begun her work. We are very glad, indeed, to have her with us in this capacity, and feel sure we will be able to get more good from the school work.

As was previously announced, our class attended the picnic at Baynes' store last Saturday. Notwithstanding the long trip and hot weather, all of us enjoyed the day very much. We are under many obligations to our friends who treated us so kindly.

On account of the lack of help we have been unable to carry our class out this summer, but we are at work on a program and will be ready in a short while to visit our friends with entertainment.

Last Sunday I was with the people of Salem Chapel and Rev. R. S. Brown, who is pastor at this place. They were glad to hear of the work at the Orphanage and many of them proved their interest by their liberal contributions. So many people, I find, are anxious that our hands be free that we may be able to do more through this channel of Christian service. I trust it may soon be realized.

Among the donations of this week are two ironing boards, donated by our friend and brother, Geo. H. Frey. These boards have just been brought over from the depot, and while I was setting them up, the girls were talking among themselves as to who would use them. Of course all of them want one, but cannot use two boards at one time, all of them. We are indeed proud of the boards, as they are so much better than the boards we have been using.

It isn't too late to send canned fruit; we have received a box, containing eight cans, this week. Mrs. Mary Bradley, Mrs. J. C. Carden, Mrs. N. L. Hawkins, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. J. B. Richmond are the donors. There are two other cans we have no names for. We have a card from one of our friends asking for one dozen empty cans to fill for us. That is good; we have quite a number of empty ones yet.

E. M. CARTER, Supt.

McRae, Ga., July 30, 1913.

Dear Uncle Emory:-

Mama has to write this time, Newman's right hand is sore. We keep well—and generally good, but the weather is so hot, sometimes we feel cross. Not much, but our dimes with love.

Fondly,

JOHN NEWMAN DENTON.
S. E. DENTON, Jr.
JAS. RABB DENTON.

Fine to have a mother in the time of trouble. I hope Newman's hand is well ere this. Come again.

A SAFE SCHOOL FOR BOYS.

There are two features of Oak Ridge Institute, Oak Ridge, N. C., which will especially interest careful parents. One is the pronounced moral and refined character of the village of Oak Ridge and the marked absence of temptations and diversions from study so often present in larger towns and cities. And the other is the close personal attention and training the boy receives at the school.

Here, the mother may know that the moral and spiritual welfare of her boy is in safe keeping, and at the same time, be sure that he will receive the best mental and physical culture which the most thorough equipment and conscientious effort can provide.

The aim of Oak Ridge Institute is to grow men—physically, mentally and morally; to turn out good and valuable citizens—honorable and conscientious gentlemen in the best sense of the word. Parents interested in a preparatory school should write for this school's handsome catalog. Address either Prof. J. A. or M. H. Holt, Oak Ridge, N. C.

For the last four terms all rooms have been reserved in advance and numbers of applicants turned away.

Advt.

WHAT MINISTERS' CHILDREN CAN EAT.

The Baptist Examiner declares that "lay preaching is necessarily unsatisfactory in these days when the entire time of a man is demanded." The latest United States census reports the average salary of Baptist pastors in the Northern Baptist Convention to be $1.87 per day. Years ago a minister of another communion reported to one of his Church officials that he was unable to support his family on a salary of $300 per year. The official exclaimed: "Money! Money! I thought you were not preaching for money, but the good of souls." "I am not preaching for money," replied the devoted minister, "but my children cannot eat souls; and, besides, if they could, I am afraid it would take many of the size of yours to make a square meal."—Exchange.

HOLDING THE BOYS.

The best way to keep the boys in the Church is to put about them a little more of that parental authority which has gone so much out of fashion of late. And better still, if that authority were backed by a little example, it would solve the problem. Put around the boys a wall of strong men—fathers, uncles, older brothers, grandfathers—and let that human wall be in the Church and Sunday school, and there would be no "boy problem." It is because the men are away that the boys reaching the "mannish" age think that they must stop too. They will do everything they can at that age to be like men.—Presbyterian of the South.

Community health is purchasable. It is a matter of brains and energy backed up with dollars and authority.

CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB A PERFECT PLAN.

A prominent business man who recently obtained his piano through the Club expressed the opinion that the Club plan, as conducted, was perfect. He pointed out the following facts: 1. The tone, action, design and finish of the instrument were of the highest quality and all that any one could desire. 2. By purchasing in a Club of one hundred members each buyer secured the maximum factory discount, which represents approximately a saving of one dollar out of three, as compared with customary prices. 3. Each member is entirely independent of all other members and is responsible only for his own purchase, nevertheless, he gets the benefit of the special low price which results from the big wholesale transaction. 4. The buyer tries the instrument in his own home before accepting it, and without any expense or obligation. 5. Those who do not find it convenient to pay the full amount in cash are offered terms to suit their convenience and yet get the full benefit of the tremendous saving in price.

There are many other attractive features which this gentleman did not mention. If you are interested in securing a splendid piano or self-player piano write for a copy of the Club's handsomely illustrated catalogue, also for booklet containing letters from those who have joined during the past year. Address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Advt.

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Statements, Envelopes Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Company, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days. usually gives entire relief in 15 to 45 days and effects cure 20 to 60 days. Write for trial treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box 11, 47

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912. Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81 4:35 a. m.
No. 29 Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41 4:10 p. m.
No. 43 6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84 12:48 a. m.
No. 38 11:35 a. m.
No. 66 12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

THE ASTOR BABY

What's a baby worth? Well, that depends. When a baby's life is in peril we are all ready to go to the limit. We are willing to go as far as human endurance and our means will permit. When Mrs. Madeline Force Astor, widow of the late John Jacob Astor, who perished with the Titanic, gave birth to a son, somewhere between $40,000 and $45,000 was spent for medical attention alone. Mrs. Astor was probably worth about thirty million dollars.

Well, you say, that is all right, they can stand it. Did you know that North Carolina admits on her tax lists that she is worth over twenty times as much as the Astor widow, and yet our State does not appropriate for public health purposes, the protection of babies, children and adults, altogether but $42,000. Evidently there is something wrong about this comparison. Either our boasted Southern chivalry is resting on its oars and laurels and needs to take a brace, or else Mrs. Astor is too crazy about her baby.—N. C. State Board of Health.

A MIRACLE IN MUSIC.

This is truly a wonderful age in which we are living. Who would have ever believed it possible to invent a piano which everybody can play, no matter whether they have ever studied music or not? Twenty years ago no one would have believed it possible. But now the self-player piano has been perfected and is recognized as the King of all musical instruments. Even a child can reproduce the masterpieces of the world's greatest composers. In the case of the Ludden & Bates Self-player Piano which is being supplied to members of the Christian Sun Piano Club the skill and ingenuity of the inventor have reached their climax. The action is superb and responds perfectly to the will of the performer.

This splendid instrument, consisting of the celebrated Ludden & Bates Cabinet Grand Upright Piano, into which is built the most perfect self-player mechanism ever devised, may be used either as a regular piano or a self-player. It thus serves the entire family not only as an entertainer but also an educator in music. It is the greatest home-maker of modern times. The Club saves each member $153.00 on this instrument, thus bringing the price down to about what a first class piano would ordinarily cost.

If you would like to know more about the self-player piano and the Club's splendid offers address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club, Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Advt.

"The first duty of a statesman is to preserve the public health."—Gladstone.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

BABY DIES OF FRIGHT.

At one of the Atlantic Ocean fashionable summer resorts, a mother took her baby boy, two years old, to the beach for his first ocean bath. The little fellow was greatly frightened, and when a big wave came toward them she said in fun that she was going to put him under it. The threat threw him into a spasm, and the mother, thinking that a plunge in the water would restore him, put him under the wave, and the shock had the opposite effect: it stopped his heart, and her darling baby lay dead in her arms. The mother meant everything for the best, and would have freely given up her life for her child, and yet she made a mistake in frightening him in fun with the plunge. He thought she was going to drown him. The practice of frightening children with ghost stories is as cruel in spirit as it is immoral in principle. Let there be no deceits for children, no suggestions of cruelty, even in fun. The fun is just as much pain to them as though it were in earnest. Innocent children are the last persons on earth to be trifled with by insincerity, and yet the deceit of children by parents and nurses, the idle threats of danger from human and superhuman sources, are as old as the race, and the false dealing which is called fun comes under this description:

For their deceit is falsehood. (Ps. 119:118.)

—Christian Herald.

THE PROBLEM SOLVED.

We were sitting around the red-hot stove in the lobby of the village tavern and just when a silence had fallen upon the group one man turned to another and asked:

"Squar' Perkins, if you don't mind I'd like to ask you a question."

The squire didn't say whether he minded or not, but the other man went ahead with:

"It's about this 'ere high cost of living. Have you figured out what's the reason for it?"

"I have," was the answer.

"Then I'd like to hear it."

"Did you raise any wheat, corn or oats last year?"

"Noap."

"Any potatoes, beets or carrots?"

"Noap."

"Any tomatoes, cucumbers or onions?"

"Noap."

"Didn't raise nothing whatever to eat?"

"Guess I didn't."

"Just ate all you could of what other folks raised?"

"Looks that way."

"And sot around and let your wife take in washing and support you?"

"Why, she likes to wash."

"Well, I've answered your question. You and a hundred thousand lazy loafers like you boosted the cost of living!"

I expected to see a row follow, but none came. There was a minute of suspense, and then the questioner yawned, and stretched and exclaimed:

"Well, by thunder! I've been puzzling over that matter for more'n a year, and here you have solved it in three minutes."—Detroit News-Times.

HELPING.

The basket of blocks was on the ground, and three rather cross little faces looked down at it.

"It's too heavy for me," said Jimmy.

"Well, you're big as I am, 'cause we're twins," said Nellie.

"I won't carry it!" said the little cousin, with a pout.

Mamma looked from her window, and saw the trouble. "One day I saw a picture of three little birds," she said. "They wanted a long stick carried somewhere, but it was too large for any one of them to carry. What do you think they did?"

"We don't know," said the twins.

"They all took hold of it together," said mamma, "and then they could fly with it."

The children laughed and looked at each other, then they all took hold of the basket together, and found it very easy to carry.

"The way to do all the hard things in this world," said mamma, "is for every one to help a little. No one can do them all, but every one can help."—Exchange.

The school children of Chester, Pa., by adopting penny-savings accounts, deposited in ten years $300,000 which otherwise would have gone for ice-cream cones or cheap picture-shows. This shows the possibilities of pennies.

MORPHINE WHISKEY
and TOBACCO
HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARCROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

The Southern Christian
Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books: Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

See Us for Your Job Printing

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

A LEADING BOARDING SCHOOL

for 250 Students. Established 1884. Prepares for College, Business, Teaching, or for Life. Health, Character and Scholarship. Wide patronage. VERY REASONABLE RATES. Each Student receives personal attention. School highly endorsed. (Location is near Greensboro, N. C.) For Beautiful Catalogue, Views, etc., address the President.

W. T. WHITSETT, PH. D.
WHITSETT, NORTH CAROLINA

DR. J. H. BROOKS,
Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

For HEADACHE—H'S CAPSULES.
Whether from Colds, Headaches, Stomach or Nervous Troubles, Capsule will relieve you. It's liquid-pleasant to take—acts immediately. Try it. 10c
25c. and 50c. at drug stores.

SPEND YOUR SUMMER

In The Glorious Mountains of Western North Carolina.

"The Land of the Sky"

"The Sapphire Country"

Where there is Health in Every Breath. The Climate is perfect the Year Round. In Spring and Summer the Region is Ideal.

Reached By
SOUTHERN RAILWAY

Solid Through Train, including Parlor
Car, between Goldsboro, Asheville and Waynesville Via Raleigh, Greensboro, Salisbury.

Other Convenient Through Car Arrangements.

SUMMER TOURIST TICKETS ON SALE UNTIL SEPTEMBER
30, 1913.

For complete information apply,

J. H. WOOD, D. P. A.,

Asheville, N. C.

R. H. DeBUTTS, D. P. A.,

Charlotte, N. C.

J. O. JONES, T. P. A.,

Raleigh, N. C.

THE BEAUTIFUL CHIMNEY ROCK
GAP

REACHED VIA

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY
Chimney Rock Gap has been for years famed for its beauty in both Song and Story.

Why not spend your vacation at one of the comfortable Hotels beautifully situated in this lovely valley?

Hotel Rates remarkably cheap, $5.00 to $10.00 per week.

THE SEABOARD'S NEW SCHED-
ULES make it EASY to get to Chimney
Rock, Rutherfordton and surrounding Mountains. Write today for Booklet:
James Ker, Jr., T. P. A., Charlotte, N. C.
H. S. Leard, D. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.,

OBSCURER HEROES.

Among the obscure heroes of the Civil War to which the memory of the nation has turned as a consequence of the Gettysburg reunion are the women and the very young boys who bore the burdens while husbands, fathers and brothers were at the front. Of this class, the Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph speaks as follows:

"Now it is a monument to the women of the Civil War period that is proposed. Some time in the future there may be a similar proposition of the lads of tender years who were taken from school and from play and put to work because their fathers were in the army. They also were called upon to make sacrifices in order to keep the wolf from the door."

With no intention to detract from the valor and devotion of the Northern women, it may with accuracy be said that upon the Southern women and their sons the greatest privations of the Civil War were visited. In the North, conscription did not rage so fiercely. There were men left at home to look after those civil, commercial and domestic affairs inseparable from the welfare of those in arms at the front.

But the South was literally drained of men. In the memories of many women surviving today, the drastic call for men is yet vivid. As the battle of the first two years depleted the Confederate ranks and the demands grew more strenuous, the conscription laws were broadened. Young men, old men, some of them semi-invalidated, and often mere boys were drafted for the battlefield.

It was the slim army left behind that formed the home-guard, those that stepped into the shoes of their fathers not only on the plantations, but equally in the cities, operating business with which they were scarcely familiar, shouldering burdens at home which in the natural course of events would not have been thrust upon them for many years. It was under conditions of this nature, with industrial and commercial machinery entirely demoralized, that the women and boys of the sixties lived. The historian has scarcely touched on these phases of the great conflict and it is, necessarily, rich in testimonials of quiet endurance and patient heroism that will never see the light of day.—Atlanta Constitution.

DO YOU GET THE IDEA?

Sometimes the very preacher who in his earlier ministry may perchance have felt himself fully competent to elucidate, even without any previous notification, anything that Paul—at any time ever wrote, after long and patient research may, and very likely will, come to sympathize more fully with poor, candid Peter, who confessed, and put in writing at that, that his brother Paul had written some things hard to be under-

WEST DORMITORY
Elon College Campus View, Looking North-East From the Depot.

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING
The Administration Building, Looking North West, Showing the West Dormitory in the Distance.

EAST DORMITORY
West Dormitory, View, Showing Rear Porch and Annex, Containing College Dining Hall, Women's Gymnasium and Art Studio.

Elon College
For Both Men and Women
Elon College, North Carolina

For a quarter century Elon College has rendered the best families of the South a paragon service in providing young men and young women with the best mental, moral and physical training under positive Christian influences, tho entirely free from sectarianism.

Karl Lehman, of Boston, testifies that "of all the Colleges I have visited as International Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor during six years, the spirit of Elon College appeals to me as most genuinely Christian." Elon College is situated in the delightful hill country, a section unsurpassed for beauty, with a climate far-famed for its healthfulness. There is no medical fee, for there is no necessity for it. Its campus, comprising twenty-five acres of native oak and hickory, shrubbery, winding walks and driveways, is one of the most beautiful in the South and, with its two unsurpassed gymnasias, provides abundant opportunity for recreation and relaxation.

The splendid equipment of Elon College was only made possible through liberal endowment. It maintains seven elegant new buildings, especially designed and appointed for college work. These are furnished with every known convenience; steam heat, electric lights, running water, baths and sewerage. The College plant is conservatively valued at $300,000.00.

Elon College is distinctly a high-grade institution, though its charges are moderate. Its graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great universities without examination. Its literary and scientific courses are arranged in various departments which lead to the degrees of Master of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Pedagogy, and a three-years' course leading to the degree of Licentiate of Instruction, designed especially for teachers. This institution affords special opportunities for training in Piano, Voice, Expression, Fine Arts, Normal Training, Physical Culture and Commercial Practice.

The Faculty consists of twenty-one specialists; men and women selected not only for their superior teaching ability, but also for their exemplary character and manners.

The student body numbers nearly four hundred and comes from thirteen states.

The lowest Rates in the South, only $131 to $191 per College session of ten months. Fall Term always opens the first Wednesday in September. For full descriptive catalogue and view-book, address

President W. A. Harper, LL. D.,
Elon College, N. C.
Box 88

West Dormitory, a Winter View, The Old College Well, now a Campus Lounging House, but Sacred in Elon History.

East Dormitory, Showing the Annex, Dining Hall, Gymnasium and Power House in the Distance.

The Gym. Room of the Alumni Building, one of the largest boys of polished maple in the South.

MALARIA DRIVEN OUT

Chills and Fever quickly cured and the entire system built up, restored appetite, clear brain, good digestion, renewed energy if you take

JOHNSON'S TONIC

The warranted remedy, contains no alcohol or harmful ingredients. Liquid 25c and 50c, Chocolate Coated Tablets 25c at dealers or direct. Address "Johnson's Tonic," Savannah, Ga.

stood. Do you get the idea?—Alabama Christian Advocate.

Now is a good time to subscribe.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun!

ONLY $1.50 PER YEAR

TUBERCULOSIS LEGISLATION.

Out of forty-one state legislatures in session during the season of 1913, laws dealing with tuberculosis were enacted in thirty states, while in thirty-four states consideration was given to bills dealing with the prevention of this disease. This is a summary of the legislative campaign for 1913, issued by The National Association for the study and Prevention of Tuberculosis today.

Appropriations to the amount of over $5,000,000 have been set aside for the treatment and prevention of tuberculosis by the various state legislatures in session this year. Most of this money is for the maintenance of state sanatoria. There are at the present time 39 such institutions in 31 different states, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, each having more than one sanatorium. Delaware is the only state which has made provision for a state sanatorium for tuberculous negroes. In addition to the amounts appropriated by the various state governments, Congress will be obliged to set aside nearly $1,000,000 for the maintenance of the United States Public Health, the Army and Navy sanatoria, and the tuberculosis hospital of the District of Columbia.

Among the notable advances in the legislative enactments of this year, are the tuberculosis registration law of Colorado; laws providing for subsidies to local hospitals in Minnesota and Wisconsin, an act providing for the establishment of county hospitals in Indiana, and the establishment of state bureaus for the prevention of tuberculosis in Ohio and California. A complete analysis of the tuberculosis legislation considered and enacted in 1913, is being prepared by The National Association.

A LITTLE SERMON ON LITTLE SINS.

Henry M. Stanley tells us that when he was passing through the forests of Africa, the most formidable foes he encountered, those that caused the greatest loss of life to his caravan, and came near defeating his expedition, were the Wambutti dwarfs. These diminutive men had only little bows and arrows for weapons, so small that they looked like children's playthings; but on the tip of each tiny arrow was a drop of poison which would kill an elephant or a man as surely and quickly as a rifle. Their defense was by means of poison and traps. They would steal through the dense forest, and, waiting in ambush, let fly their arrows before they could be discovered. They dug ditches and carefully covered them over with sticks and leaves. They fixed spikes in the ground and tipped them with poison. Into these ditches, and on these spikes man and beast would fall or step to their death. One of the strangest things about it was that their poison was made of honey. It is thus that Satan wages his destructive warfare against God's people. Stealthily, under cover of darkness, by treachery, with weapons seemingly harmless, through the sweets of life, he comes clothed as "an angel of light." Yet how deadly are the little honey-coated sins which he administers, how sure the destruction of him who is deceived into wandering from the straight and narrow way.—N. Y. Observer.

FATHER WILL MEET ME.

I left Cheyenne, Wyoming, one morning on the "overland flyer," for Omaha. The ride as far as Kearney is through a dreary, desolate country of sand knolls, prairie dog towns, barren hills, waterless valleys and dry streams. In the seat ahead sat a little boy, intently gazing upon the monotonous landscape. Dinner was taken in the diner. A social chat enlivened the weary hours. Still this little fellow sat there peering through the window. About the middle of the afternoon I spoke to him.

"My little man," said I, "aren't you tired?"

"Not much," came the quiet reply.

"Well, aren't you hungry?" I asked. The little fellow looking up at me with a smile, replied:

"Yes, a little; but you see, papa is going to meet me at Grand Island."

Friend, what a lesson there is there for you and for me. We are being carried along life's journey at sixty heart-beats a minute. Our ticket is purchased for the through train with no stop-over privileges. Why should we sit and grumble if the way is dreary at times? Why should we be complaining because life at times may seem monotonous? Let us remember that a Father is waiting to welcome us at the other end. Lisp a short prayer for the day as you climb out of your sleeping berth. The whistle will soon blow for the terminal, where friends are waiting to meet you. You are going this way only once, go it right.—Selected.

THE VICTORIES OF PRAYER.

Oh, the victories of prayer! They are the mountain tops of the Bible. They take us back to the plains of Mamre, to the fords of Peniel, to the triumphs of Moses, to the transcendent victories of Joshua, to the deliverances of David, to the miracles of Elijah, to the whole story of the Master's life, to the secret of Pentecost, to the keynote of Paul's unparalleled ministry, to the lives of saints and the deaths of martyrs, to all that is most sacred and sweet in the history of the Church and the experience of the children of God. And when, for us, the last conflict shall have passed, and the footstool of prayer shall have

MEDICAL COLLEGE OF THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

CHARLESTON, S. C.

Owned and Controlled by the State.
Medicine and Pharmacy.

Session opens October 1st, 1913, ends June 4th, 1914. Unsurpassed clinical advantages offered by the new Roper Hospital, one of the largest and best equipped hospitals in the South. Extensive outdoor and Dispensary service under control of Faculty. Ten appointments each year for graduates in medicine for hospital and Dispensary service. Medical and Pharmaceutical Laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped. Department of Physiology and Embryology in affiliation with the Charleston Museum. Practical work for medical and pharmaceutical students a special feature. Eight full-time teachers in the laboratory branches.

For Catalogue Address

OSCAR W. SCHLEETER, Registrar,
Corner Queen and Franklin Streets, CHARLESTON, S. C.

GOD'S WORD IN SONG

OUR SONG BOOKS TEACH THE GOSPEL AS FULLY IN
SONG AS OUR PREACHERS DO IN SERMON

"The Gospel Message in Song"—revised and enlarged—contains 205 of the sweetest and most soul-stirring songs. Words and music of the highest class. The thought of a reformation in song book making prompted this compilation. No other song book like it before it had been published. In it the Gospel is taught as fully in song as loyal disciples endeavor to teach in sermon. Published in round and shaped notes. Out Five years and over 60,000 copies sold. Endorsed by leading men and women in the Christian Church. Beautifully bound and printed. Prices: 30c a copy prepaid; $3 per doz. not prepaid; $3.50 per doz. prepaid; $20 per hundred not prepaid; $5 at the hundred rate.

"Redemption's Way in Song"—by S. H. Hall, Flavil Hall and F. L. Rowe—especially suited to Evangelistic and Gospel Tent Work. Prices: 15c a copy prepaid; $1.40 per doz. not prepaid; $1.60 a doz. prepaid; $10 per hundred, not prepaid; $5 at hundred rate. Send all orders to

S. H. HALL, . . . 81 Ashby St., Atlanta, Ga.

Flavil Hall F. L. Rowe S.H.Hall

BUY A PIANO FOR YOUR HOME

Even those who think they can not own a piano may own one at a very low cost. As a boy, I longed for music, but had to forego that pleasure because of the high prices charged for pianos. My boyhood home would have been complete had there been a piano in it.

I can sell you a high grade piano with a 10 years guarantee by the Manufacturer, with high grade workmanship and finish for $150.00.

If the piano is not satisfactory after 30 days trial, money will be refunded.

S. L. ROSE, Goldsboro, North Carolina

EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

has often heard class-members say: "I cannot understand the Bible." They could not understand any other book that was printed three hundred years ago. So many English words of that day were different.

More than forty new dictionaries have been required since then, to keep up with the changes in the English language. The

American Standard Bible
Edited by the American Revision Committee
uses the words of our day, which make the meanings of the Bible writers clear to us.

Write for Our Free Booklet, "How We Got Our American Standard Bible"
No teacher can afford to be without it.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

given place to the harp of praise, the spots of time that shall be gilded with the most celestial and eternal radiance shall be those, often linked with deepest sorrow and darkest night, over which we have the inscription, "Jehovah-Shammah: The Lord was there!"—Simpson.

Please send your subscription to THE SUN. We need it now.

Make of disaster an opportunity for your courage.—G. S. Merriam.

Cancer Cured at the Kellam Hospital

The record of the Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having cured to stay cured permanently, without the use of the Knife, Acids or X Ray, over 90 per cent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from Cancer which it has treated during the past eighteen years. We have been endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. Physicians treated free. KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St. Richmond, Va. Write for Literature.

DAISY FLY KILLER

placed anywhere, attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or drip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers, or 6 sent by express prepaid for $1.

HAROLD ROMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

SOUTHERN SCHEDULES.

Ashville, N. C., May 7.—Better facilities than ever before given for reaching the tourist resorts of Western North Carolina are provided in the summer schedules and through car arrangements just announced by the Southern Railway.

Beginning June 1, two sleeping cars will be operated daily between New Orleans and Asheville, one via Mobile, Montgomery, and Atlanta, and the other via Meridian, Birmingham and Chattanooga. On the same date the sleeping car service between Memphis and Asheville on trains 35 and 36 will be extended to Lake Toxaway and a through sleeping car line will be established between Memphis, Asheville and Waynesville, the car to be handled on the "Memphis Special." Through sleeping cars between Savannah and Asheville will be put into service June 1, between Charleston, Asheville and Waynesville on June 2.

Greatly improved service between Augusta and Asheville has been arranged. The parlor car service which was operated last year in connection with the "Carolina Special" will again be given and in addition a new sleeping car line will be inaugurated via Blackville and Columbia, leaving Augusta at 11:45 P. M., arriving Asheville at 2:10 P. M., and leaving Asheville at 4:30 P. M., arriving Augusta at 8:20 P. M.

On June 15 a sleeping car line will be established between Jacksonville and Asheville in addition to the car operated between Jacksonville and Cincinnati via Asheville. Daily sleeping car service between Atlanta and Lake Toxaway will be established on June 22, additional trains being operated between Hendersonville and Lake Toxaway to handle this car. Parlor car service on trains 5 and 6 between Asheville and Lake Toxaway will be inaugurated May 25.

Tickets will be on sale June 23 to 28 inclusive. Final return limit to reach original starting point by midnight July 13, 1913.

Round trip fares from principal points as follows: Raleigh, $9.20, Goldsboro $10.65, Selma, $9.65, Durham, $8.45, Burlington, $7.40.

Rates in same proportion from all other points.

For detailed information, schedules, Pullman accommodations, etc., ask your agent or communicate with:

J. O. JONES,
Traveling Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

It is easy to see that sanitary laws are indispensable for community good and safety, and in order to get the greatest amount of benefit from them, we all should lend our best support to their enforcement and be ready to obey them all the time.

DEATHS

Milloway.

Mrs. Jane Milloway died at her home in Guilford county, N. C., August 4, 1913, aged 85 years. She became a member of the Christian church at Hines' Chapel in her youth and died in the faith of the gospel of Christ.

Lindsay.

Cornelia Francis Lindsay died August 5, 1913, aged 73 years. While young she joined the Baptist church and lived a Christian until the end came. She was laid to rest in the family cemetery near Damascus church, Orange county, N. C.

W. S. LONG.

Moore.

Whereas God in His infinite wisdom and love, on June 22, 1913, took Walter Mackernally Moore at the early age of 15 years, eight months and seven days, from time to eternity and we trust from New Lebanon church to the church in the Holy City of God, and from our Baraca class, as a faithful member to the happy band of angels, be it resolved;

First, that we, the family, the Baraca class, the Sunday school and the church bow in humble reverence before our heavenly Father.

Second, that the home has lost a noble son, the class a good student, and the school a faithful member.

Third, that we extend our sympathies to the mother, brothers, sisters and relatives.

Fourth, that a copy of these resolutions be spread on our minutes, a copy sent to the Christian Sun, and a copy sent to the home.

R. A. TRUITT, Teacher,
W. G. SHARPE, Pres.,
C. C. GRIFFIN, Sec.

Committee.

Herndon.

Carl Hines Herndon, only son of Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Herndon, who was stricken with paralysis in early Spring and was brought from Zebulon, where he resided, to his parental home here, died Thursday, July 31, and was buried in the Elon College cemetery August 1. After pursuing literary work to the Junior year in Elon College he took his law course in the University of the State and was engaged as a successful practitioner at Zebulon where he was stricken. On September 11th, 1912, he was married to Miss Lora Helen Barnes of Henderson who proved a devoted and faithful companion and was by his bedside constantly during his affliction. He was born June 30, 1880, and had, therefore just passed his 33rd year. He was a member of the Durham Christian church, though for some years previous had been a member of the Elon College Christian church, and when taken ill was teacher of the Baraca class at Zebulon and was highly esteemed and much beloved by every member of the class. The funeral was conducted from the parental home at Elon College by Revs. J. O. Atkinson and J. W. Wellons of Elon College, and by Rev. Mr. Perry of the M. E. church, Zebulon. A great and noble soul, one that loved his fellow-man and had full faith in his God, has gone from us, leaving behind dear ones and many friends to mourn his departure. Besides a young wife, he leaves a father, mother, and two sisters, to mourn their loss. God comfort them and rest his noble soul.

A FRIEND.

FEVERISHNESS AND ACHING
Whether from Malarious conditions, Colic or over-heating, try Hicks' CAPSULES. It reduces the fever and relieves the aching. It's liquid—10, 25 and 50 cents a box. Drug Stores.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf.

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly.

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.

Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles,

Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

HIGH CLASS

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET.

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., AUGUST 20, 1913

NO. 34

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

The Straight Way.

The leading editorial in The Youth's Companion for this week is contained in two lines, is long enough at that, and reads as follows: "The straight and narrow way is singularly free from automobile accidents."

Satisfied.

In the mad rush for gain is there any wonder that there is such little satisfaction in the world, that scandal multiplies, licentiousness increases and suicides are abundant? Long ago the Book declared, (Ecc. 5:10): "He that loveth silver shall not be satisfied with silver; nor he that loveth abundance with increase."

What's in the Voice?

A minister observed that the reason why he loved to hear a certain noted musician sing was because "he had an orange blossom in his voice." In a telephone office where many persons work hangs a sign reading: "The voice with the smile wins." The preacher said (Ecclesiastes 5:3): "A fool's voice is known by multitude of words." Almost all people judge you by the tone of your voice.

By this Sign Know.

If the signs be removed we shall with groping and great difficulty find the way. Therefore we need to keep the signs well in view, clear and lifted up. Keeping the Sabbath holy is one of the sure signs by which we know that the great Jehovah is our God. Hear Ezekiel (20:19-20): "I am the Lord your God: walk in my statutes, and keep my judgments, and do them; and hallow my Sabbaths; and they shall be a sign between me and you, that ye may know that I am the Lord your God."

A Good Name.

Recently a man died who was worth more than a million dollars which he had acquired by changing his name. When this man was young an uncle by marriage bequeathed him a million dollars on the one condition that his name be changed to that of the testator. The nephew of course, on being apprised of the will of his kinsman, readily agreed, received the bequest, and grew to be a man of wealth and great influence. Jesus the Christ, our great benefactor, has promised us untold riches of grace, favor, bounty and all good things if we will lay aside our old name and nature and bear His; accept His free gift of never dying love. "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches."

An Individual Campaign.

There is a local Presbyterian church in one of the mission fields which holds to a hard and fast rule fixed for itself that no person shall be received into church membership until that person, after conversion, has won another person to Christ. The motto is, "Win one," and then be received into the fold. This idea is rich in suggestion, and the church that adopted it is growing in might, membership and power. If "the whole church is to give the whole gospel to the whole world," then individuals, one by one, must do the work. He who has not been instrumental in winning one other to Christ has not tasted the real joy of Christian living. "The fruit of righteousness is a tree of life: and he that winneth souls is wise."—Proverbs 11:30.

Man's Cruelty.

For sheer, heartless, wicked cruelty we do not believe the following startling fact related by The Youth's Companion can be surpassed: "The meanness to which men will stoop for the sake of a little material gain is almost beyond belief. Agents of Chicago humane societies have lately discovered that it is a regular practice among horse dealers to put out the eyes of horses, in order to sell them under a guarantee that they will not shy or run away. They pass a needle through the eye in a way that leaves no scar. To all appearances the horse is sound, but he will never see again. The condition is especially common among pedler's horses, for pedlers must have an animal that will stand. In one day the agents found fifty horses thus blinded."

The Great Highway.

A great highway, as a memorial to Abraham Lincoln, is being advocated, to extend from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The project is finding favor and seems very probable. It is proposed to have it completed by the opening of the Panama-Pacific Exposition so that motorists can go from New York to San Francisco, a distance of three thousand miles, in eleven days. It will, when completed, be the longest and most expensive thoroughfare for vehicles and motorists on earth. In thinking over this gigantic scheme one is reminded of that other, and even far more desirable highway that is spoken of, and is yet to be accomplished, in Isaiah 35:8: "And an highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called The way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for those; the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein."

Solving the Biggest Problems.

The American people have a great many big problems to solve. In these all of us are interested. How shall they best be solved? An editorial in Harper's Bazaar recently gave an answer that we heartily commend to all who care: "Nothing else but righteousness can solve our biggest problems today. Religion alone is the solution. The modern woman is too apt to put her emphasis on 'reform' and 'progress' rather than on the cleansing fire of religion. She has not taken into account that the greater the abuse and the more necessary the fight, the more tremendous must be the motive of those who advance against entrenched evils. The whole force of love to God and love to men should be behind them. Women should see to it that the public opinion which they create—and they create a tremendous amount of it—shall be interposed with a passion for righteousness, a spirit of eager service to God. Woman is the born priestess of the race. She kindles the altar flame, she waits before the oracles."

Tithing the Luxuries.

Many think that they cannot give a tenth of their income to the Lord's cause. Suppose then they would give one tenth of that which they spend for sheer luxuries. Maud W. Raymond in "The King's Business" tells what would happen in this way:

"The records of the United States Census Bureau give the factory value of the candy produced in 1909 as $134,796,000. The retail customer, of course, paid much more than this. In 1912 the president of the National Society of American Florists placed the amount spent annually for cut flowers in the United States at $65,000,000. The greater part of this expenditure was either by women or for women. It is reasonable to assume that if Christian women had last year tithed their supply of these luxuries alone, they might have nearly doubled their offering for foreign missions, while if they would be willing to reduce their supply (of candy and cut flowers) by half, they might at once realize the $20,000,000 necessary to discharge their debt to the women of non-Christian lands with a generous margin."

The Way of Rome.

What the Vatican Tribunal at Rome cannot accomplish by adroitness is hardly worth undertaking. Anna Gould, who married a worthless Count, de Castellane of France, wanted that marriage annulled so she could marry a still more worthless Frenchman. Now the Catholics are opposed to divorce, but the Countess got hers. A Catholic newspaper, La Croix, explains it in this way: "We can assure our readers that the result of the trial leaves not the slightest doubt that the tribunal decided that Anna Gould, at the time of her first marriage, did not give full consent within the meaning of the doctrine of the Catholic Church. She always anticipated that a divorce was possible, and therefore, as her consent to the marriage as the Catholic dogma exacts did not exist, the marriage is nullified." When one sees evidence of such skillful adroitness, such patent subterfuge as that, one is reminded to quote Paul (Gal. 6:7): "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." If the Catholic Church sows falsehood and hollow mockery like the above quotation indicates, one wonders what it will reap; and one is not surprised to find it reaping the abomination of desolation in more instances and places than one.

Honduras is the twenty-sixth nation to accept Secretary Bryan's peace plan.

EDITORIAL

THE PERSONAL ELEMENT IN MISSIONS.

Ours is a missionary age. The man or the woman who has not felt the joy of missionary service, nor been moved by the missionary zeal and enthusiasm of our time, is to be pitied. You may somewhere find a Christian today who can say he has no interest in missions, but you will find his kind scarce in the world and growing scarcer all the while. Furthermore, he is to be pitied rather than condemned. He is ignorant of the conditions and times in which he lives, for his normal spiritual development has been arrested, and he is not living up to his times and his privilege. It is easy now to believe in missions. It is easy now to work for missions. It is easy now to give to missions. The thought and theory of missions are in the atmosphere. Missions have become popular.

He who has not realized that missions are popular and are the absorbing theme and topic of our times is a non-progressive, a stand-patter, out of touch with the real issues and movements of the day. Time was when a few men and women, met somewhere in prayer meeting or in company with a devout pastor, were about the only ones interested in missions or cared what became of the missionary situation. It is not so today. The best men, the biggest men, the most noted and influential laymen that I know anything about are interested in missions, and count it a worthy and popular thing to be so interested. Some months ago we had in the city of Greensboro a Laymen's Missionary Movement Convention. I was privileged to attend a day. I have attended a great many gatherings and conventions of various sorts in our State, political, educational, and religious. But I am borne out in saying that this was the finest looking company of successful and intelligent and influential business men I have ever seen together. I asked a noted politician, capitalist, man of affairs, what he thought of that Convention. "The finest looking and most intelligent and influential set of men I was ever in," was the reply. It has come to pass in our day that a missionary meeting is the most popular, practical and potential of all meetings. A few years ago we thought that books on missions were for women, children and preachers only: filled with pious platitudes and sentimental slush. That time has passed, and the very best books of our time are not of fiction, fancy and romance, but of some missionary theme and thought. The biggest presses in the greatest publishing houses throb and strain from day to day printing and putting out the very best thought of the times about missions. No man in our time is acquainted with the best books, is even conversant with the current literature of the day unless he reads much of the output on missions. I declare to you that the very best books coming from the press today are those books that deal with missions. You need not seek romance, fiction, thrilling stories of adventure if you want a book to while away the time with. Only secure one of the latest books on missions, and you will get the best there is.

More than this, there are men today prominent in political and social circles who have made themselves so purely by a study of the missionary question. It was not insignificant that the President of the United States recently offered the position of minister to China to John R. Mott, a man who has become famous as a student, speaker and writer on missions, and one who has written one of the most thrilling and interesting books of the day on missions.

I am safe in saying that the very atmosphere of our time is charged with missionary electricity, missionary zeal, missionary energy and expectation.

Now is the time, therefore, for the individual with real personality, with real spirituality, to enter the mission work and accomplish more for good and for God than ever before in all the world's history. The time never was as ripe as now for men and women, boys and girls, who would really like to achieve something for Christ and the church. The missionary door swings wide open, and the opportunity for power and service is not only great but really inviting.

The need is great, the nations cry, a thousand million souls wait in heathenish darkness. Think of it: two-thirds of all the babies on earth, who lean on their mother's bosom, look up into the faces of mothers who know nothing and can tell them nothing of our Christ—two out of every three. Now with this wave of missionary zeal, missionary fervor, missionary popularity, missionary opportunity sweeping over the country we of the Christian churches have dispersonalized missions, removed the personal element from missions, and so are missing the finest opportunity any people ever had.

Who amongst us really cares for missions? Oh, we have a sort of impersonal, careless, indifferent concern. But where is the great heart amongst us that is bleeding for the cause of missions, and where is the soul that bends beneath our missionary burden? I do not know. Reader, do you? We go to our conferences, read our report on Foreign Missions, discuss it indifferently, resolve what must be done and go away feeling about missions much as we did before we went to Conference. We have de-personalized, de-spiritualized the matter of missions at the very time when there is greatest need of spirituality, greatest need of towering, striking, telling personality amongst us for missions, to awaken and arouse us to duty. We are not feeling the burden of missions because there is no heart amongst us aflame with missionary anguish.

The only way to reach people for any cause is through a person who has been reached by that cause. The only way to stir persons to Christian privilege and duty is through a person whose soul has been stirred, and whose heart, affections, love, life, have been set on fire by Christian privilege and duty.

We may write preambles and read pamphlets and pass resolutions about missions from now till doom's day: but never will we be stirred to missionary activity nor moved to missionary effort till a person with spiritual zeal, fervor, fire and flame come amongst us and bring his own heart, hot from the altar of service and sacrifice, and touch our hearts with his zeal, glow and fervor. We have got to have men of spiritual power and personality amongst us whose soul is on fire with missionary zeal before we ourselves catch the glow and feel the warmth of missionary activity.

Our many Conferences, preambles and resolutions about missions, seem hollow mockery, not to say hypocrisy and sacrilege. For ever more in this world must you have a person behind a paper, if that paper is worth the ink put upon it. I am tired and sick and worn with pamphlets about missions, indifferently written, till there come amongst us a man, or we rear amongst us men who have burdened their hearts and souls with the shame and sin and crime of our neglect and indifference, and awaken us out of our lethargy, our coldness, our unconcernedness for missions. Where are your missionary men? Where are they whose hearts are bleeding, whose souls are burdened, whose lives cry out to us for the work of missions at home and abroad? If you will give us men consecrated, heart, soul and body, to the cause of missions, the money will come. The people of God have money and will give it for missions if properly appealed to.

Listen: "Fifty times as much wealth lies at the disposal of God's people as they have ever yet consecrated and utilized." God's people never were as wealthy, and they never were as willing, as they are today. Men are learning that only the blackguard, the knave or the fool will spend all his earnings upon himself. Men who are getting most out of their money are those who are giving much of it, investing it to advance God's kingdom among men. The day of your selfish, stingy, grudging man has passed. Selfishness and close-fistedness don't pay. We have learned that there is genuine joy, real pleasure, in the privilege of giving. You may consider it a favor conferred on a man when you ask him to give a hundred, two hundred, three hundred dollars for a good cause, and get him to do so. And he considers it a favor also, after he has done it. I have never yet seen a man give for a good cause, and regret it. I met a man some time ago who had given away a thousand dollars to a good cause. He admitted that he got more real pleasure out of it than out of any thousand dollars he had ever spent or invested. I read the other day of a millionaire who had succeeded before he died in giving away for good purposes about all his millions, and he declared he had had more fun, real genuine pleasure with his millions than any millionaire alive.

Now here is my plea, and my position. We of the Christian churches have not given the people a chance. We have not gone to the individual members of the churches and laid before each one of them seriously, sensibly, soberly, the matter of missions. I believe that every church member has the right to expect that he and she will be waited upon once or twice per year and asked to contribute to missions.

We lay our assessments. We preach, indifferently, a sermon on missions. We say how much the assessment is and we beg the few. We do not appeal, through persons burdened for missions, to every member of the congregation to do his or her best.

I believe with Robert E. Speer that "the Church was established to spread Christianity and when in any age or in any land she has forgotten this, she has paid for her disobedience. So long as there are any unreached men in the world or any unreached life, the business of the Church is her missionary duty." We of the Christian churches have not taken this matter seriously enough. We have not laid the matter of missions on our hearts. We have not got under this missionary burden. We have got to make this a matter of individual and personal concern. We have got to talk missions one with another, and have got to carry the matter of missions home to the hearts of our people one by one.

We are living in a personal age; but we are not making missions a matter of personality. There is personality in business. If the jobber or wholesale merchant wants to sell goods he sends his salesman out to find the purchaser. He goes after his business; and the one that goes after the business gets it. This is a personal time. This missionary matter must be made personal. Somehow there must be somebody in the church to see each member personally and present the matter of missions to him. When you face the individual with his duty and opportunity you will see greater results than at present.

We have de-personalized the matter of missions. There is nobody amongst us who cares. Our hearts must become aflame for missions: and then results will come.

May I give you a concrete example of what I mean? Some year or more ago it was found that our missionary debt was growing so much that some of our missionaries must needs come off the field.

Did you hear any voice raised from a Conference platform, or a church pulpit, for funds to keep them there? Did you see any tears shed because our missionary force had outgrown our missionary fund! Did you see a soul bending beneath this burden, and come in contact with a heart that was breaking because we must needs go backward? I did not. Our platforms were ready, our pulpits were open. But in stolid and indifferent silence we permitted this awful thing amongst us.

We have got to get men at the head of our mission interests and at the foot of our mission interests whose souls are in the matter, and the flame of whose spirit will set us on fire for this good cause. If we may have a preacher in the pulpit who is awakened on the subject of missions, you will see that congregation giving to missions. If you can get a person in your congregation to work for missions, you will see some results for missions.

We must be a missionary people. In order to be this there must be persons amongst us who have spiritual power and whose personality dominates their work.

We catch fire by mingling with those on fire. Whenever and wherever men of missionary zeal and fervor come, then and there will you see the people giving to missions, loving missions, praying for missions.

WINCHESTER, VIRGINIA.

The Virginia Valley Central Conference, that delightful body which makes up in largeness of name, and loyalty to service, what it lacks in numbers and membership, met in annual session here last week, August 14-17. The session was not largely attended, either because the place of meeting was far removed from the great majority of the churches, or because a church was to be dedicated and much money solicited. Possibly both causes had some effect. Rev. W. T. Walters was properly and wisely made President, and Rev. A. W. Andes, Secretary. Brother Samuel Earman has been Treasurer so long and so efficiently that everybody expects him to receive all moneys, knowing he will properly account for the same.

The routine work of the Conference was attended to with dignity and dispatch, the several reports on Missions, Education, Sunday Schools, Christian Endeavor, and so forth being well prepared, properly presented, and becomingly discussed. There were some exceedingly thoughtful and timely addresses during the session, one by Rev. A. W. Andes, who delivered the annual sermon, the outline of which we print elsewhere this issue, two by Dr. J. P. Barrett on "Emotionalism in Religion," and "The Message of the Church," two by Rev. W. G. Clements, one on "Temperance," the other on "The Principles of the Christian Church; one by Supt. E. M. Carter on The Christian Orphanage; two by Dr. W. A. Harper, one on Thomas Jefferson's Mistake and another on Christian Giving; one by Mr. Netum Rathbun of the C. P. A. on The Relationship of our Publishing House to the Church Enterprises. These were the feature of the Conference, so far as public addresses were concerned and were utterances worthy of the good men and able thinkers who delivered them. The Conference was greatly edified and congregations were benefitted.

That which was of absorbing interest was the dedication of the Winchester church at the eleven o'clock hour Sunday. The day was auspicious, the congregation large, the people expectant, the pastor hopeful. Before the house could be dedicated the pastor announced that $3,815.00 would have to be contributed in cash and subscriptions. The spirit of desire and liberality came upon the people and their response was magnanimous. The total contribution at the close of the offering was found to be $4,200.00. Those taking part in the dedicatory service were:

Invocation, by Rev. E. M. Carter; Historical Sketch of the Church, printed elsewhere in this issue, Rev. W. T. Walters, pastor; Scripture Lesson, by Rev. A. W. Andes; Prayer by Dr. J. P. Barrett; Sermon by The Sun's editor; Dedicatory Prayer, Rev. W. G. Clements; Benediction, Pastor Walters.

There were printed programs, containing hymns in full, for the occasion, and the singing was appropriate and inspiring.

Brother Walters and his people have built a magnificent house of worship, at a total cost of more than $14,000, and great economy was practiced in building and in buying, or so substantial and handsome a structure would not have been finished at so small a cost. This is a work of power and promise and untold credit is due those who have taken the lead in bringing the same to its present status. One hardly knows whom to commend most for the noble efforts put forth and the great results achieved, Pastor Walters, his good wife, or the faithful band that has stood by them and so ably upheld their hands in the work. Both Brother Walters and his good wife are held in high esteem in all the city of Winchester, and are everywhere spoken of most cordially and kindly.

Sister Walters is much interested in our Woman's Missionary work, and besides being President of the Woman's Board of her own Conference is the Treasurer of the Woman's Board of the Southern Christian Convention.

The Woman's Board in this Conference is an aggressive body and held an open session and mass meeting during the Conference session. They are planning larger and better things for the coming year. The paper by Miss Martz, a member of the Conference Board, printed elsewhere in this issue, was read before the Conference to great effect and will bear fruit. The women of the Conference are waking up on the subject of missions.

Among the visiting ministers from other Conferences we were glad to greet Rev. W. E. Baker, of Erie, Pa.; Rev. J. H. Barney, of Clearville, Pa.; two Brothers Garland of Pa.; Dr. J. P. Barrett, of Dayton; Rev. W. G. Clements, of Morrisville, N. C.; Rev. E. M. Carter, Supt. of the Christian Orphanage, Elon College, who preached in the Conference Church to great acceptance Sunday afternoon. These visiting brethren added much to the sessions by their presence, counsel and public addresses, and did much to make the Conference successful and happy.

The next session of the body is to convene with Antioch church, near Harrisonburg.

Winchester, a delightful and historic town about which we would like to write if space permitted, entertained delegates and visitors with a cordial and lavish hand. We were permitted, during our stay, to be entertained at the Presbyterian Manse by Rev. Dr. Horace Lacey and his delightful family, and the fellowship, with its cordial hospitality, was happy indeed.

With the Average.

So many, so very many, Christian people think they are all right if they live up to the average, give as others give, go as others go, read the Bible as much as others—and so on. To these we commend the words of Mr. J. Campbell White: "Christ never asked any one to be an average Christian. We have entirely too many of them now! No man has done his duty till he has done his best. No congregation has done its duty till it has given its maximum, not alone of money, but of lives and prayer and propagating power." No man should be satisfied in thinking he is about as good as others. The only goodness that gives satisfaction is that which comes when one is conscious that he has done his best. "She hath done what she could" was the high and holy encomium pronounced by our Savior.

(For other editorial matter, Notes, Personals, etc. this week, see Pages 14 and 15.)

WINCHESTER CHURCH.

The first step toward the establishment of a Christian Church in Winchester was taken at the annual conference which met at Bethlehem in the year 1908. Through the recommendation of the Committee on Home Missions, the Conference directed the present pastor to preach one Sunday per month in Winchester during the following year, provided suitable arrangements could be made. A shortage of ministerial help in the conference prevented the taking up of the work immediately; and when this condition was relieved the securing of a place in which to hold services and other hindrances intervened and caused further delay. The first service was held in the chapel on the Valley Pike, in the extreme southern part of the city, on the 21st of March, 1909. A monthly afternoon service was held there until July, 1910, when the Friends kindly tendered us the use of their church, which was accepted and used until the opening of the Sunday school room of the present structure. The Sunday school was organized October 9, 1910, with 29 members. The present membership of the regular school is 198. The total number connected with the school including departments is 229.

The church was organized at the first service in the Sunday school room, October 15, 1911, with 17 charter members. The present membership is 52. The church lot was bought May 5, 1909. Excavating for the building was begun Feb. 9, 1910.

The first load of material for the new church was placed on the ground March 10, 1910, and the first stone laid March 14 of the same year. The building was completed about Nov. 1, 1911.

The building, including the furnishings, light and heating plants, concrete steps and pavements to the street cost $10,244.11. Take from this the sale of $200.60 worth of surplus material and the net cost of the building including what is mentioned above is $10,043.51.

The following items of expense are to be added: lot, $2700; street paving, $138.64; insurance, $152.25; interest until Aug. 18th, $1321.76; incidental expenses, $239.28; making a total net cost of $14,595.44. Total amount collected $6,658.16, less the $200.60 collected from surplus material, leaves a net cash contribution of $6,658.21; leaving an unpaid balance of $8,137.23. Of this amount $4,322.62 has been secured, leaving a balance of $3,814.61 to raise before the church can be dedicated.

W. T. WALTERS, Pastor.

Twenty-seven countries have accepted America's invitation to participate in the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco in 1915, fourteen countries have not yet replied, and eight countries have definitely declined. These are Great Britain, Bulgaria, Egypt, Morocco, Russia, Serbia, Siam, and Turkey.

FROM OUR CONTRIBUTORS

A MESSAGE FROM THE CONVENTION.

The World's Sunday School Convention at Zurich, Switzerland, was rich in great speakers and preachers. The opening sermon was by Rev. Floyd W. Thomkins, S. T. D., Rector of the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Pennsylvania. Dr. Thomkins spoke in part as follows:—

"All thy children shall be taught of the Lord; great shall be the peace of thy children."—Isa. 54:13.

Go—teach—peace. The commission of the Sunday school is to go—teach. So far as the world is properly taught it will keep peace. The Sunday school has brought this great truth to the Convention to teach us how to teach. We are all one, though different. The great spirit of unity is in Jesus through love. The vision that Isaiah saw was his unworthiness. This led to his thorough consecration. Through his consecration he drew near unto the Lord in worship. In like manner as the disciples on the Mount of Transfiguration saw "Jesus only," so should we in this Convention. This leads us to enquire what we should do and how we shall see "Jesus only."

First—We should magnify the importance of our work. In living; in church work; in the new generation. The conversion of children saves lives for service—brings the Kingdom nearer. We should realize that through this channel of blessing the Kingdom shall be brought nearer. The days to come shall be days of better things. It is passing strange that some ministers neglect the Sunday school; thus neglect the future development of the church and the coming of the Kingdom. It is a great vision that every servant of God need clearly to get before him. He should have an abiding love for children. This is peculiarly the children's decade.

Second—This study of children will mean the study of child psychology. This is not to be done through machinery, but we must get into the spirit of appreciation for children. We should be filled with a spirit of sympathy with children, and understand the love of God for the children. Did you ever hold a little child in your arms and study him as the image of God? We should cultivate the habit of such study and we should learn to study children, love childhood and youth in spite of all their eccentricities. We should have such love for God and His work of redeeming the race, not in a theoretical or theological sense, but by the simplicity of our teaching. Too often human teachings are anything else but simplicity. Frequently human learning is obscure. The method of the Master was to teach the profoundest truths with the greatest simplicity. This is an evidence of His greatness as a teacher. How simple the words and teaching of John 3:16: "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him might have eternal life." Believe in Christ, look to the cross with its richness of meaning through its simplicity. "By grace are ye saved through faith," Zwingli, Luther, Huss, Calvin used these great Bible texts and taught Christ in power and simplicity. All children love Christ. Teach them Christ died to save sinners. It is well to teach them many other things, but by far more important to teach them to think "Christ died for me."

Third—This brings us to the Bible. The Sunday school is the Bible school and the teaching is the teaching service of the church. We may differ as to the source of authority. Some may place it in the church, some in the Book and some in human experience; but there is no question that we have here the Word of God. The old, old Book exhibits evidence of the divine element in it. Upon the very spot where the Bibles were burned in London, the British Bible Society have established their headquarters and from here annually issue thousands and millions of copies of the Word of God. What would our religion become without the Book? The teacher should see Christ therein and teach Christ from the teachings of the Book. Teach the child to learn the Word by heart. Teach him to love the Word of God.

Fourth—We should have a recognition of the spirit in which we are to work. We should think of the nations without Christ. How many still ignorant of His coming, His teachings and of salvation through Him! What shall that spirit be? One of the essential elements of the teacher's spirit is that it shall be hopeful. A spirit of hope should permeate all that we undertake. Hope is a vision. Without hope there is no vision of the success in any field. The physician must labor with hope if he would be successful. The poet is inspired with hope before he can write his best poem. Hope clothes his ideal in language, embodies it forth for the contemplation and appreciation of others and his undertaking is a success; hope leads the sculptor to see the vision, to be inspired with an ideal; hope leads the author to achieve success; and in like manner the teacher must work under the inspiration of hope. We should catch the vision of the possibilities of our work. This should stimulate us and inspire us to work our hope into a sublime realization. Teacher, catch the vision. "This is God's world; God is in His world, and all is well." We should fight sin with this vision.

It should be a spirit of joy. Angels sang when Christ came to earth, and they sing when a sinner is born into the Kingdom. We should rejoice in our work. We should rejoice to think we can spend our life in such a glorious service. We should not think of salvation as a preparation to die; but rather as a glorious preparation for living. It is sweet to die for our country, but it is far more blessed to live by our religion, and to reveal the power of a living religious experience in our daily lives. Rejoice in the Lord alway and again I say rejoice.

Again, a spirit of certainly should characterize our teaching. We must know Him whom we teach. We should know God's love. We should be able to say, I know Him whom I have believed and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed to Him against that day. Our Sunday school work must come out of a rich religious experience in order to be convincing to others. Our own Christianity aside from organization and from work is the most powerful factor in our successful teaching. Loyalty to Christ will make our work a blessing not only to ourselves but to others. Loyalty to Christ will make the Church and the Kingdom advance. When we are filled with this spirit we can feed the lambs. We can give them the milk of the Word and give them the meat of divine truth and the bread of eternal life. Trained teachers with this spirit are needed for the success of the work committed to the care of the thousands who come for divine instruction to the teaching service of the church. The state compels its children to attend day school. Why not compel, by example, the children to attend the Sunday school? By a law that is higher than government every child will sing, "I was glad when they said unto us, Let us go into the house of the Lord."

W. C. WICKER.

THE FOREIGN MISSION SECRETARY IN JAPAN.

Dr. M. T. Morrill, our Foreign Mission Secretary, must have lived the strenuous life in Japan. I can not see how he could adjust himself to the change of climate, customs, food, travel, interpreters, etc., and do as much as he did in the time. He spent 85 days in Japan and during that time delivered 85 addresses and sermons. As our denominational representative he participated in the Quarter-centennial celebration of the inauguration of our work there. The brethren were delighted with him and his greetings and messages. He was highly honored by the civil officers.

He made the acquaintance of our thirteen Japanese pastors; he met them in their homes, was entertained in most of their homes, talked with them about their work, learned their habits of work, study, and counseled with them on multitudes of matters.

He toured our entire field; visited all of our organized churches, some of them several times, giving various kinds of addresses; at one time it would be speaking to the congregation, then a gathering of missionaries, next a number of school teachers, sometimes students, then the Y. M. C. A., and next it would be the townspeople, and policemen and so on, anywhere and everywhere that he might bring Christianity and our cause into prominence. He carefully studied our mission property which is held by a corporation for the Mission Board. He studied locations and possible future acquisitions for our growing work.

The annual Mission meeting was held while he was there and three days were spent in counsel in all phases of the work with our missionaries.

He gave careful study to the matter of schools of various kinds in Sendai, Utsunomiya, Tokyo, Kyoto, Osaka, Kobe, looking into their methods, faculty, ways of administration, curricula, finances. He studied high schools and colleges, theological universities, girls' schools, boys' schools, and the like.

Our missionaries are faithful, highly respected, effective, sacrificing and our pastors are doing good work.

I have only mentioned some of the matters and work he tried to do while on the field. Our work is successful. He is home now to tell the brotherhood by voice and pen the needs and the opportunities of the Christians in Japan. Are we going to give the work a worthy support? The annual meeting of the Mission Board will be held early in October, only a few days away. The books of the Mission Treasurer close September 30. Are you going to help make it possible by a generous gift between now and then to let the Board plan for advance work? The Mission Board is hampered in planning any further work by the debt now contracted to keep the work up to its present limits. Will you help between now and September 30th?

WARREN H. DENISON.

Norfolk, Va.

The National Commission of Fine Arts has outlined a plan for beautifying the Panama Canal. Why not accept the suggestion of a monumental statue of Christ, the Prince of Peace, made by Governor Long, ex-Secretary of the Navy?—C. E. World.

Good husbandry always pays. The Government will receive $2,500,000 this year from its national forests.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION.

"Good education is that which gives the body and the soul all the perfection of which they are capable." "Gymnastics for the body; music for the soul" was Plato's definition and summary of education.

Pestalozzi, Spencer, and Frobel, agree that "the nature which should control education is the nature of the child." In animal training the nature of the animal is considered. No one would try to train a hound to hunt birds, nor a bulldog to retrieve ducks; a collie to hunt rats or a terrier to drive sheep. A Clydesdale could not be trained for the race-track, nor an Arabian steed for draft purposes. The ox must be trained for draft and not for speed. The threefold nature of the child must be considered in general education, and special endowments must be considered in special education. Education is really the building of men and women out of boys and girls; and that means the harmonious development of body, mind, and heart. The heart is the most important of all three. God never said, "Keep thy head with all diligence;" but "keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life." For, "as a man thinketh in his heart so is he." Character, then, is the essential thing in building men and women.

Much has been said and written about the character and personal influence of teachers in collegiate education; and the emphasis has been in favor of Christian institutions, as compared with technical schools and Universities. It is claimed that teachers in Christian Colleges are more religious, come in closer touch with students and exert a more spiritual influence over them. While this may be generally true, it must be admitted that many teachers in State schools embody a high type of faith and life; yet teachers in Christian Colleges feel religious responsibility more keenly and touch students more closely because of smaller numbers, and a more homogeneous constituency. But this is not the only reason nor the largest factor in favor of Christian colleges.

There is what one may call a college atmosphere, which the students breathe. Doctors cannot preserve health in malarial atmosphere. Christian colleges generate a religious atmosphere by their creation, support, management, purpose, and constituency. They have no right to exist, and no claim upon public support, unless they stand for Christian Education.

The University has no such origin, purpose, support. It has no religious center, nor altar of worship, is not amenable to any religious authority. Ethics, morals, letters, arts, professions, furnish it thought, and men of all creeds or no creeds make up its Faculty. The student body, the social community, the source of revenue, all come from a heterogeneous constituency. The school looks to the State for money, for students and for support. The atmosphere is patriotic rather than religious around Universities. There is no escape from the influence of such an atmosphere over the young.

This is the potent thing in human society, the public spirit that carries individual thought and life on its bosom as ocean tide carries things on its mighty current. It is not the largest nor richest school that is the best; it is the school that creates the best atmosphere, that creates the best spiritual sentiment. Montenegro was the smallest of the Balkan states, but she uttered the first word in that conflict that drove the Crescent from Europe, and made the Ottoman empire tremble on foundations that had stood for twelve hundred years. Small colleges may some day rise in their majesty and with the sword of the Spirit conquer the world. There is, also, a practical side of Education and this must not be ignored.

Information is not education. "Blind Alec" of Stirling, Scotland, committed the entire Bible, but did not understand the meaning of a single verse. A Scotch student learned six books of Euclid by heart, but could not tell an angle from a triangle. Dr. Arnold, of Rugby, said: "The effort a boy makes is a hundred times more valuable to him than the knowledge acquired as the result of the effort." Herbert Spencer says: "The child should be taught as little as possible." "Knowing how to learn, the ability to acquire for one's self, being able to stand alone and to walk alone is the first and greatest victory in education." Life is a perpetual school in farms, trades, business, professions, homes; and the person who knows how to learn in all fields has already attained the first degree in education.

Dr. Arnold's students used to say "that a boy who was under his influence could not do a notably mean thing because a boy's honor was made so much of in his school." This admits the influence of the teacher over pupils, imparting his very self to students. It is the Professor himself that most impresses and fashions manhood and womanhood. The Vichy waters in France are noted not only for their medicinal qualities, but for their petrifying properties. The water is colorless and clear, but slowly precipitates its mineral elements upon any substance exposed to its liquid flow until it is covered with stone. If a figure in human form is exposed to its flow it becomes a human form in stone. In a similar manner the student is influenced by the teacher. This character molding is the chief element in education. Frank Gilbert, son of W. T. Gilbert, who, with Sir Arthur Sullivan, was the author of "Pinafore," "Patience," and numerous other operas which have been sung around the world, was an Oxford graduate, and a great musician; but drink had fastened itself upon him. He roamed from city to city seeking a place to redeem himself and finally landed in Norfolk; but drunkenness drove him into the dives to make music for shame. He died in the Norfolk City Alms House. He had not learned how to live.

Knowledge and character are useless unless applied to the world's work. In fact, education is like "breaking a colt." They first put a bridle on the colt, lead him around, hitch him to a limb and, when used to the bridle, he is "bridle-wise." Then they put harness on till used to that and then he is "harness-wise." His education is going forward, but of no service, so far. Then the colt is hitched to cart, buggy, plow, or wagon, and when used to these, he is "work-wise." All this training leads up to work, and the finest horse is valued by what he can do. All education is a preparation for life-work. Savages and barbarians do very little work. Civilized man is the worker of the world. The more men know the more they have to work. Doctors, lawyers, mechanics, who know most, are busiest. An old false conception of education was that it enabled men to live without work. Incapacity is the only condition that exempts from work. Work is the end of education. In fact all work is educative. Jesus said: "My Father worketh hitherto and I work." The Christian era is the working age. All nature discloses divine activity. The flow of streams, the ceaseless tides, the silent course of the stars, the reproductive forces in land and sea, all tell of God's plan of activity. "The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth his handiwork." Christian civilization is the busiest of all ages because most like God. Work increases with education. All discoveries, inventions, progress, must increase the necessity and opportunity for work. Education is an apprenticeship for real labor. The world and the kingdom both need workers. "Go work to-day in the vineyard." W. W. STALEY.

FROM DAMASCUS, GATES COUNTY, N. C.

It was decided by the members of Damascus that they would hold a revival this year. From the time it was decided to hold revival services everybody seemed to go to work to prepare for it, so that it might be a success. The church and the Sunday school seemed to fall in line for the work.

The week after the first Sunday in August was the time appointed, and Rev. C. C. Ryan, of Vaughnsville, Ohio, was engaged to assist the pastor, Rev. H. H. Butler. Before the day arrived for the meeting to open, the church and grounds were put in order by the members of the church, so that even the house would present an attractive appearance.

Rev. C. C. Ryan, who was here two years ago and held a gracious revival, and greatly endeared himself to the church and the community, arrived on Saturday night, and on Sunday preached an able sermon to a large audience. This was well received, and on each afternoon and night during the week he preached powerful sermons that told upon the congregation. On Tuesday the pastor, Rev. H. H. Butler, arrived, and the work began to increase in interest. People of every denomination in this section joined heartily in the work to try to get sinners to repent, and backsliders to renew their obligations. From the powerful preaching of Bro. Ryan and the prayers of the people there were sixty-five conversions and reclamations, and the church was greatly revived. At the close of the meeting fifteen joined the church, and on the following Sunday the doors of the church were again opened and five more joined.

The ordinance of baptism will be administered on Saturday before the second Sunday in September at 10 o'clock A. M.

This was one of the best revivals that have been held in this section in years; and we hope that the good accomplished will remain as a lasting memorial to the powerful preaching and earnest prayers.

The church and the friends of the church made up a purse of over $100.00 and presented it to him as a token of their appreciation of the work that he had done in the community.

The prospects before Damascus now seem to be bright, and we hope that the good Spirit will continue with us and that this marks the dawning of a new day for the cause of the Christians in this section.

W. L. HOFER.

MEMORIAL CHRISTIAN TEMPLE, NORFOLK, VIRGINIA.

There is a good interest in the work at the Temple. The congregations have kept up remarkably through the summer heat. Two new members were received recently and three children were consecrated. The Sunday school average attendance through July and so far in August has been 180; and the average mission offering for the same period has been $4.46 per Sunday aside from the birthday offerings for the orphanage; and the average number of Bibles in use in the school for the same Sundays has been 39. We are planning a "Midsummer Rally" for the school for next Sunday, August 17th. The Superintendent is assigning to the various classes and departments the task of conducting the opening ex-

(Continued on Page 7.)

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

RALEIGH LETTER.

Just a little over a month since our pastor, Rev. L. F. Johnson, and his good family left us. We miss them very much, in many ways, and some of us laymen have to keep busy now. At the last meeting of the Business Board of the Church, a unanimous vote of thanks was tendered our retiring pastor for his loyal and faithful support in all our undertakings to buildup our church spiritually, socially and financially. The work is moving along fairly well. We have had good Sunday school every Sunday, six good sermons by Rev. W. L. Wells, of Columbus, Ga., and Rev. I. A. White, of our city.

The midweek services are holding up fine. The Christian Church Improvement Society meets every Wednesday night immediately after prayer meeting, and so far we have raised our subscription list to the Building Fund at every meeting. Of course there is plenty of room for improvement, but when we consider the warm weather and the number of our people who are off on vacations, we think we are averaging up pretty well. Work on the new Sunday school rooms has started up again, after a long standstill waiting for a part of the metal ceiling that came wrong and had to be returned. Possibly this was a good thing for us, as our bills are coming in just a little faster than the cash. See here, dear reader, have you subscribed to this work yet? Did you know that the Raleigh church was located in the capital city of North Carolina? Did you know that we have thousands of visitors here every year, and that until we began these improvements, we had about the poorest and most dilapidated church, on one of the nicest lots in the city? And further, did you know that our membership is small and needs your assistance now? Well, such is the case, and if you haven't sent in your subscription, get busy and let us have it; it will do you good, and help us, too. And when you come to Raleigh we want to show you a church that you will be proud of. If you have already subscribed you can send along the cash, and we will gladly send you a receipt with our "many thanks." In our next letter we want to send a list of subscriptions received since Brother Johnson's last report to The Sun—that is, should our good editor want a "next letter" after considering this.

Our people are loyal and true, and are standing faithfully by the work and patiently waiting the coming of our new pastor, Rev. C. E. Newman, of Henderson, N. C., who can't be with us until the beginning of another conference year, some time in November. In the meantime, we want your prayers, for it is not our purpose by any means to be idle or "asleep at the switch," but to have something doing all the while, for the building up of the Master's Kingdom.

C. H. STEPHENSON.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

Mr. Floyd T. Noah, of Columbia, S. C., is visiting his parents this week at this place. Mr. Noah is in the insurance business in Columbia.

Mrs. Thomas Cheek, Mebane, N. C., was in town the first of the week looking over the College plant with a view of placing her son here this Fall. Mrs. Cheek was favorably impressed with Elon.

President Harper returned Monday from the Valley of Virginia Conference. He brought with him a number of applications from new students and reports a most successful Conference.

Dr. W. C. Wicker returned Thursday of last week from his tour to the World's Sunday School Convention, Zurich, Switzerland. Dr. Wicker reports a grand trip, and we are sure the good Doctor richly deserved the vacation.

Miss Florence Wilson and mother who have been spending the summer in Lancaster and Boston, Mass., returned to their home here Monday of this week. They report a most enjoyable vacation.

The College has in its employment thirty-one men making preparation for its opening. These men are constructing the New West Dormitory, erecting the new tank, installing new parts in the Power House, cleaning the buildings, making necessary repairs throughout the entire plant, beautifying the campus, and handling the very heavy correspondence of the President at this season of the year.

Mr. H. D. Lambeth, our new Postmaster, has greatly improved the postoffice facilities by enlarging the room, completing the walls, adding necessary paint to all parts, and improving the lobby by conveniences for the public.

Mr. Warren McCulloch, Greensboro, N. C., has accepted a position with the Christian Publishing Company as linotype operator. Mr. McCulloch is a man of considerable experience, being a member of the typesetters' union, and will add to the Company's present proficiency in a large measure.

Dr. H. H. Utley, Benson, N. C., a former Elon student, has been recently honored with the position as county physician of Johnston County. Dr. Utley is a busy man, filling this responsible place to which he has been chosen, being president of the medical association of which he is a member, chairman of the Good Roads Committee of his county, and enjoying a large practice. But with all this Dr. Utley is a Christian man of an ideal type and always finds the time to labor in the Master's vineyard.

This writer has just returned from Eastern Carolina where he has been for fifteen days in the interest of the College and is glad to report a successful trip. The success which came was not due to the representative, but to that which he represented—Elon. For two years he has assisted the President in his correspondence with prospective students and only knew the inside of the solicitation work, but now he has had a taste of the other side and finds that the better and richer. Better and richer, because it was a treat to leave the confines of the office walls, to meet and greet the people, to talk with young men and women who are anxious to go to college, and to hear from the lips of parents their words of appreciation for what the denominational college is doing for the present generation; namely, educating men and women in the fullness of their ability and moulding that higher type of citizenship for which our country hath need.

Volume IX, No. 2, of the College Bulletin made its appearance Tuesday from the Southern Christian Publishing Company's plant. This Bulletin is the Opening Number, has 58 pages, neatly bound in black, the colors of the class of 1914 to which the volume is dedicated. The first article in the Bulletin is from the pen of Dr. Martyn Summerbell on Christian Education, the second on Colleges and Citizenship by President Harper, and throughout the publication important matters are discussed on the plane of liberality, and is exceedingly readable. The Bulletin contains several new views of the College and village and may be had free upon application to the President's office.

C. B. RIDDLE.

THE SOUL-SAVING WORK OF THE PASTOR.

The writer of Proverbs says in his 11th chapter, 30th verse: "He that winneth souls is wise." And Dan. 12:3 says: "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever." And in Ps. 126:5 and 6 we read: "They that sow in tears shall reap in joy. He that goeth forth and reapeth bearing precious seed shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

Few, if any, men on earth are so honored of God in their callings as are the humble pastors of Christ's church. Some of us will never cease to wonder that God in his infinite goodness saw fit to lay hands upon us and to call us out of our low estate into the exalted position of soul-winners. Indeed angels might well envy the pastor his position as he undertakes to present the gospel to individuals and to congregations; for if God had chosen so to do, He might have made the angels His messengers to men. But He completed the great plan of salvation by the gift of His Son, and thus arranged for the salvation of all mankind, and then made man His messenger to men. No class of men is called upon to do a greater variety of work than is the pastor, but all of his work should lead to the one end—that of soul-saving. And when I say soul-saving I mean saving men and women soul and body. I fear the church has long made the mistake of separating human beings into soul and body and permitting the secular and the social world to have the body while the church vainly endeavors to save the soul. It was Cicero who said: "I am a soul, and I have a body." And the Bible elevates the body to the position of "Temple of the Holy Ghost." From this viewpoint it is the business of the church to save men and women for Christ, and to develop them for the kingdom. The pastor must be the very leader of his church in this great work. As he is engaged in this work as a leader, and as the great weight of the responsibility comes crushing in upon his heart and mind, he must go about his work remembering that the greatest work a man can do is to win another man for Christ.

1. The first and great essential for a soul-winning pastor, then, is to be very much given to prayer. Yes, to linger at the mercy seat in most earnest prayer until he has received the baptism of the Holy Spirit for service, and then under the guiding influence of the Spirit he is to "study to show himself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." And the promise is, "He that abideth in me and I in him the same bringeth forth much fruit." The pastors of this country are the called and chosen ambassadors of Jesus Christ. If they do not measure up to their commission it is useless to look elsewhere for a body of men sufficiently equipped, deep enough interested and strategically scattered over the church's territory to accomplish the work.

Great movements spring up and then subside, but the minister remains to pursue his mission or to fail in it. Imposing conventions are held to discuss the problems and methods of church work and to organize groups of men into greater working forces, and after awhile they, too, simply become a memory, but the pastor abides. Or to paraphrase the poet—

Movements and conventions may come, and movements and conventions may go,
But pastors go on forever.

The pastor is the constant, dependable, active agent of Christ to carry forward the propagation of the gospel. He is expected to endorse these movements, and to co-operate with them, in most cases he does, but back there in his local parish in his work. If he neglects that his ministry fails; but if he succeeds there, he contributes his portion to the world's salvation.

2. The success of a pastor as a soul-winner depends also upon his ability to enlist others in the work of soul-saving. Mr. Moody once said: "I had rather put ten men to work than to do the work of ten men." Not only is it the sole business of the ministers to save men and women, but that is the end of all church work. A well-equipped factory, with a most splendid superintendent, working all by himself, or working with a small force, will be able to pay a very small dividend, if any, on the capital invested. Hence the directors of such concern employ all the men necessary to run the machinery to its full capacity. And every man employed is expected to work at full time. If he does not his wages are docked accordingly.

In like manner, a pastor working all by himself, or working with a very small force of willing workers, backed by the power of God's Spirit may be able to keep the church together and to make some little show of winning others for Christ; but no church, under those conditions, can do anything like what the Master expects of it in winning others from sin. The sooner the pastors of this day can lead their churches to see that the sole end of the pastor's work and the sole end of the church's work is to win men for Christ, the better it will be for the kingdom. The present-day demands so much of the pastor's time in keeping his church straightened out and in working order that even his time for seeking and winning the lost is very limited. One special work in soul-winning then, that the pastor is to do is to lead his church forever away from the thought that the preachers alone are to be the soul winners, and to lead them up to the thought that as church members every one of them is expected to do his duty. This will take a great deal of time, and it will take more patience and tact and earnest prayer than it would be for the pastor to go out and by his own efforts alone try to win men, but to put others to work is the far more successful method in the end. Then, too, the pastor owes it to his people to let them help him in leading in this work, for it is so strengthening to the Christian life to undertake to lead others to Christ. Indeed, we believe it to be impossible to get to heaven without trying to take others with you. Whittier once wrote a great truth that is a solemn truth for man—

"Heaven's gate is shut to him who comes alone, Save thou a soul and it shall save thine own."

3. After the pastor has gotten his own spiritual equipment for soul-saving, and after he has arranged to enlist the services of every one possible to help in this great work, and even in connection with all that, the pastor is first of all and chiefest of all a preacher of the Word. Somehow the people of this strenuous day ought to learn once for all that the primary work of a pastor is to preach the Word. The ordination service in our church gives this advice to ministers: "Keep your own soul alive to God by meditation, prayer and searching the Scriptures daily. . . . Never disappoint a congregation, nor spend more time in a place than is strictly necessary. Labor constantly to feel the higher responsibilities of your office and ministry, and take heed that that blood of souls be not found on your skirts." We are thus taught that we are not to be gad-about, but that first of all we are to know the word of God, to live the word of God, and to preach the word of God.

Upon the pastor is laid the awful responsibility to preach the gospel so as to make men desire to accept it. He is not to preach himself, nor any isms. He is not to preach about the psychology through Christ Jesus. He has the Bible, and he is to believe the Bible and preach it to other people in a convincing way that will make them believe it. In the Bible he has the promise of the Divine Spirit, and he must draw upon that promise for powers, or neglect it only to fail in his work.

The pastor must be what he preaches, or those who know him will regard him as an actor, or a hypocrite who says one thing and does another. Thos. Carlyle once received a letter from a young man. It read thus: "Mr. Carlyle, I wish to be a teacher. Would you tell me the secret of successful teaching?" Carlyle wrote back: "Young man, be that which you would have your pupils be. All other teaching is unblessed mockery and apery." In like manner the preaching that wins men for Christ is the preaching that comes out of a life that reproduces the Christ and lives as it would have those live who may be led to Christ.

The pastor must be a hero who is willing to be obscure, to suffer, to sacrifice, or even to die if need be, for the salvation of his fellows, otherwise he cannot measure up to the noble example of his Lord. He may have tribulations, but he must rejoice in them if thereby he wins men and propagates the gospel. He must learn the deep, the almost unfathomable spirit of the apostle when he said: "Woe is me if I preach not the gospel."

There can be but one secret of soul-winning, and that is the Holy Spirit's co-operation with us. We must depend upon Him to do His work with us as His agents. Guided by Him we must expect results, and we must be ready to honor Him and to appreciate Him because He does work through us. Without the aid of the Holy Spirit our mightiest efforts will be impotent, but with His help our weakest endeavors will prove omnipotent. It is glorious to believe that there is only one thing that conditions the Holy Spirit's co-operation with us, and that is our co-operation with Him. The Holy Spirit does not intrude Himself upon us, neither does He wait to be implored and begged to come into our natures. He is far more anxious to use us than we are to have Him use us as channels of service; so, if we will only permit Him to come in He will furnish us all the power we can use.

When all the pastors of all denominations everywhere reach this high stage of consecration and service men and boys will come to the church, mission work will be cared for, a denominational fraternity now unknown will be developed in the churches, and most of the problems that are now so difficult and embarrassing will be solved and the various "movements" with their banquets, speeches and machinery will become unnecessary.

5. Again, in order to do the very best work in soul-saving the pastor must be passionately in love with his work, and personally interested in the salvation of every human being he meets. The reason so many people are doing so little in winning souls for Christ is because so few are passionately in love with Christ and His work. It takes tact and earnestness to win souls, and if we live Christ and love men enough to bring them to Christ that will bring about the earnestness, and the earnestness will usually suggest the best method.

About the last advice that Paul gave young Timothy was: "Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine."

Timothy was thus warned to preach the word both under pleasant and unpleasant circumstances. He was to preach the pleasant truth and the unpleasant truths. He was to be constantly preaching the word. And while a pastor's pulpit preaching is his primary work, I do so love to think that the pulpit is not the only place for preaching the word. We are to preach the word one day out of seven from the pulpit; but we have the privilege of preaching the word for seven days out of seven by a consistent life. I also love to think that the minister of the gospel is not the only one who is called upon to preach the word seven days out of seven by an upright walk and a godly conversation. This will all lead to individual personal work. The world must be won by winning the individual, and the individual must be won by the pastor and such helpers in his church as he can enlist in the service, and it must be done by the preaching of men who preach for souls, work for souls, and sacrifice for souls. It is too true that the church of today is seeking largely to do by purse what the early church did by person; to do by proxy the work of proximity. One of the best ways to get people into the kingdom is to go after them in person. Nothing compares with individual work to secure results. Personal evangelism discovers the peculiar needs, and the peculiar bias of the soul that we would help, and leads us the more easily to meet its needs. Some one has said: "Door-bell evangelism is a thousand times better than church-bell evangelism." What he chooses to call church-bell evangelism is necessary, for the church is recognized as the leading agent in winning the world for God, but if this world is ever brought into the church through acceptance of the Lord Jesus Christ, there must be a great deal of time and patience spent in going from house to house prevailing upon people to throw off their non-church-going habits, and to present themselves at God's house that they may hear the word and heed the word. In the main the church of Christ today is honestly crying out from its pulpits, bidding men to come to Christ.

The trouble is that the great masses are not hearing the call, hence the urgent necessity for those who hear to say, Come.

Even with the preacher it is often the case that the one long sermon wrought out in his life reaches and saves more people than all his pulpit preaching. Pulpit preaching is calculated to strengthen believers, and to convict the unsaved, but it is more often the case that personal touch leads men to a decision for Christ.—Rev. A. G. Dixon, in Methodist Protestant.

MEMORIAL CHRISTIAN TEMPLE.

(Continued from Page 5.)

ercises of the school with good results. So far the Elementary grades, Baracas, Philatheas, have decorated the rooms and conducted the opening exercises according to their own plan. Others will follow.

The pastor's two daughters are convalescent after eight weeks of typhoid fever. The pastor and family expect to be able to leave for a rest and vacation the 18th for Hunter's Island, N. Y., the home of his father and mother.

The Sunday school recently went to Sandy Point and Claremont on the James River and had a fine outing.

The church has used the duplex envelopes this year and are more than pleased with them. We recommend them to all churches. The church is considering the publication of a church manual at the close of the year, September 30.

WARREN H. DENISON.

August 12, 1913, Norfolk, Va.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: AUG. 24.

Subject—"The Bread from Heaven." Text—Exodus 16:2-15.

The Golden Text is meant to indicate the great purpose of the lesson, "Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life."

The timbrel with which Miriam accompanied her song of praise after the passage of the Red Sea was a sort of tambourine, beaten with the hand.

Marah, where the bitter waters were made sweet, is somewhere on the Red Sea's eastern shore, just where is not known. Elim was an oasis not far away.

The exact location of the wilderness of Sin is not known. It was between the Red Sea and Mt. Sinai. The Israelites reached on the 15th day of the second month, or early in May, a month after leaving Egypt.

The flesh pots of Egypt, for which the Israelites longed, were three-legged bronze vessels used in cooking meat.

The manna spoken of in the lesson was like the manna of the tamarisk of today in Arabia. This is a honey-like exudation, found solid in the cool of the early morning. Occasionally in that region it is carried by the winds and comes in showers. This merely indicates the natural base for the miracle. God multiplied this, if it was the means he used. The divine hand is seen in the fact that the portion was doubled on the sixth day, so that no work was necessary on the seventh day. It is supposed that the name came from the words, "Man hu," meaning, "What is it?"

This is only a way of showing God's care for us. If a man had always lived in the far north, where the ground is ever covered with snow and ice, the growing crops we have here would be as marvelous to him as the facts of this lesson are to us.

The giving of the Manna teaches a lesson in moderation. It also demonstrates the value of little things. It took many of the small articles to make a meal. Sabbath observance is also emphasized.

QUESTION REVIEW.

1. What people have we studied about today?
2. Were they the same people God led across the Red Sea on dry land?
3. Did they thank God for that deliverance by trusting him the next time they came to a hard place?
4. Why did Israel find the wilderness a hard place?
5. Instead of praying to God for food, what did they do?
6. What do you suppose human parents, or a human king, would have done with such folks?
7. Instead of punishing his faithless, fretful children, what did God send them that evening?
8. What did he send next morning?
9. How long did God continue sending manna to feed Israel?—Leonard.

LESSON ANNOUNCEMENT.

One of the oldest turquoise mines in the world is in the peninsula of Sinai. These granite cliffs and mountains are said to be the oldest geological formations on earth. Near these old, old mountains and the ancient turquoise mines the Israelites set up a camp, turned their flocks out to pasture and began to go to school. They stayed here in school for months, though they did not realize it was going to school. Next Sunday's lesson tells about their great schoolroom, the platform from which they heard the teacher's voice and the beginning of their lessons.—Hageman.

THE BUSINESS OF THE KING.

A Class Song of Woman's Bible Class, Ebenezer M. E. S. S., Perkasio, Pa.

Tune—"Let the Lower Lights be Burning."

Organized for Christ our Savior,
In our happy Sunday school,
Lifting high our Ebenezer,
Guided by his blessed rule.

Chorus.

Sound it forth, oh, sound it loudly,
Let the notes triumphant ring;
For our motto we tell proudly—
Is, "The Business of the King!"

To the harvest field He's calling,
There are sheaves to garner in,
Hark, the gentle strains are falling—
"Bring them from the fields of sin."

There is joy in His glad service,
Work for one and all to do;
Happiness and peace he gives us
If to him we're always true.

In His name united ever
For His cause we firmly stand,
We will shirk our duty, never!
Till we reach the promised land.

—A. M. S.

WHAT DO YOU GIVE?

A somewhat loquacious member of a class took fully ten minutes to tell all that he had received from the class in the two years he had been a member of it. When he at last sat down, the leader said a bit tersely:

"That is fine, Brother Blank. We are all glad to know that you have received so much out of the class, but it seems to me that a question for all of us to ask ourselves when we are rejoicing over what we have received, is the question, 'What do we give to the class?' We must give out, as well as take in, or we will miss the highest possible good."

A DEMAND FOR A CRADLE ROLL.

What is said in the foregoing article applies strongly to the Cradle Roll. It is easy to start. The editor of this department can give you information as to getting started. All it needs in the small church is one faithful person. Mothers take to it readily and the babies too as soon as they are old enough to know what the cradle roll is; every child loves to be connected with the Sunday school.

The smallest church in our convention ought to have its cradle roll. It is difficult to understand how they get along without it. Resolve to start one before the month is out.

WHY NOT A HOME DEPARTMENT?

There isn't a Sunday school in our Convention that cannot be greatly benefitted by a home department. It will reach more people; it will help those outside and those now in the Sunday school. It will increase attendance.

Starting a home department is the easiest thing in the world. It is one of the simplest forms of church work. All that is necessary is a little information that can be obtained free. Write to the editor of this department.

The members can use regular home department quarterlies or our own quarterlies. We recommend the latter. Try it in your Sunday school and see if it does not work a revolution in interest.

NOTES ON C. E. LESSON FOR AUG. 31.

Topic—"Missionary Essentials at Home and Abroad. II. Prayer." Eph. 6:10-20.

This is to be a prayer meeting. The spirit of prayer should pervade the whole meeting. Talk of some need of the mission field or some particular country or mission point, and after such a brief statement let there be a brief prayer for that particular place. The leader should make his talk broad enough without making it so general that it will lack definiteness. He should call attention to the series of topics of which this is one. Divide among members the matter in the Christian Endeavor World.

The following are some of the themes for prayers:

1. That more missionary societies may be organized and more mission study classes be formed in the homeland.
2. That the home church may give more liberally.
3. That revivals may spring up on mission fields.
4. That more strong men may enter the mission work.
5. That new doors may be opened for missionaries.
6. For the neglected fields of the world where the gospel is desired and where it is not.
7. That missionaries may be protected amid all their dangers.
8. That the labor of the missionaries may be greatly blessed.

HINTS ON SERVICE.

1. Sing with spirit; the missionary spirit.
2. Study the lesson, and pray over it.
3. Carefully read the daily readings, one each day.
4. Have your pastor send for added material from your missionary boards.
5. Some societies debate, as to the greater missionary heroes, those of one country or another.
6. Positively you cannot make this an interesting meeting unless you prepare, and you should be ashamed to be content with otherwise.
7. Look here, just because your name is not "written on a Christian Endeavor roll," is no reason to the Christ who sacrificed for you. What wilt thou do for him?

AUBURN.

We began our meeting at Auburn on the second Sunday in August. Not being able to secure the aid of any other minister, I did all the preaching. But the members of the church and of other churches joined heartily in the work and we had a good revival. There were twelve professions of faith and eight additions to the church, with others to join at our next meeting.

The church seems to be revived spiritually, and has taken on new life. I never saw the members of a church more enthusiastic over a meeting. The Spirit of God was with us and worked with us all during the meeting.

J. C. STUART.

August 18, 1913.

ALAMANCE COUNTY S. S. CONVENTION.

The Alamance County Sunday School Convention will meet at New Providence Christian Church, Graham, N. C., Aug. 30-31. We want every Sunday school to send delegates. We are expecting you, and homes will be provided for all who attend. Send names of delegates to Miss Maggie Pickard, Graham, N. C.

Switzerland is the twenty-seventh nation to accept in principle Secretary Bryan's peace plan.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
 Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
 Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Sec'y. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
 Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
 Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
 Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

EXTRACT OF LETTER FROM MISS TRUE.

(In the spring a number of the members of the W. F. M. S. of the Memorial Temple wrote to Mrs. Watanabe, the Bible woman they help to support. The following is an extract from a letter from Miss True, in reply.)

DEAR MISS BRICKHOUSE:—Your nice bunch of letters came last week, and yesterday afternoon I went up to Mrs. Watanabe's for the Sunday evening meeting.

It was a lovely spring day, one of the first real spring days, the roads were good and the scenery was pleasing. Before the evening service, I read each letter to her, and she was very much pleased and touched by your thoughtful and friendly interest. She insisted that I pronounce each name carefully, so she could write the name in Japanese "kana" on the appropriate letter and envelope, and was very particular that the young men who came in afterward put the right letter in the appropriate envelope. Of course you are all good pen women, but the boys specially admired the fine, delicate penmanship of one of the letters. One boy was holding a letter upside down, when Mrs. Watanabe corrected him—her husband taught more or less elementary English, so I suppose she knows a bit about the letters from that.

We made arrangements for a Woman's Meeting at night, but three of the young men, and six or eight of the bigger S. S. boys, settled down near the baby organ as if they belonged there, so we didn't turn them out. I tried to speak on the connection of love and prayer; i. e., if we love God we will not forget to pray to Him, neither will we find it a task to do so but an increasing joy. Mrs. Watanabe followed with some words on the same theme.

A woman stopped after the meeting, to whom we tried to explain how to pray very simply and definitely. This morning we went calling. The first house was of the proprietor of the largest dry goods store in the place. They have a fine yard, splendid store houses, a kitchen big enough for a hotel, and large comfortable rooms. But the young Christian woman is almost the slave of her mother-in-law. She allows her to leave the house only when she pleases, and then fixes the time for her to return, just as one would for a child in her 'teens. A short time ago Sunday evening she was allowed one hour to go to a friend's house, and spent 30 minutes there and 30 minutes with Mrs. Watanabe at the service. Of course, the mother-in-law is a strong Buddhist. Money doesn't bring happiness or freedom. A younger daughter of the house is in Sendai attending school, and attends church there, through this sister-in-law's influence.

The next house was the photographer's. He and his wife were working on school groups or on a group of fishermen making sheets of the green sea weed used for rice salad. He also showed us a picture of the sea weed fields down at the mouth of the river, where each man owns his own little marsh farm for sea weed culture, the boundaries of which no one but the owners could possibly understand. He insisted on toasting some of those same sea weed sheets, and giving us to eat with the tea. I've eaten it many a time. It is not at all bad dipped in the soy flavoring. The wife has attended church in Sendai, and wants to come to church when she can.

We went to the County Superintendent's home next. There, apples and dainty cakes were served with the tea. Christian pictures are on the walls. One daughter is a Christian; the other is religious but fears to give up the good she has found in the sages of old—or that's not putting it exactly right—I've tried to tell her that all the good in the past came from the living God, but she thinks there may be salvation some other way, and is afraid to trust everything to Christ alone. She says she has seasons of prayer and meditation which she enjoys. A teacher of Confucian ethics stamped his life and philosophy upon her. I am anxious for her—in so many ways she has Christian standards of morals.

Then we went to a home where the daughter sells "suchi" or rice salad. The girls were washing in the river. The daughter came up and expressed her intention of attending church every Sunday night and following the teaching she had learned from the young evangelist who preceded Mrs. Watanabe at Inogawa.

At one other home we explained the Christmas story from a S. S. card to a mother, and gave the card to her baby. I forgot the rice merchant's, too, where Mrs. Watanabe talked very earnestly to the mother of God, his love and care, and the foundations of the Christian faith.

I had time for no more calling, because I had a girls' meeting here in Ishinomaki at 3 in the afternoon. But I do feel that Mrs. Watanabe is getting into the homes of the women, and results will come—have come. The young men take the missionary as a sort of church guest, and called around in the morning—one came before he had had his breakfast, and two came before we had ours—to see if we are still in existence, and show their interest in our welfare.

Cards, Bible ones or otherwise, small scrap books for the sick or as rewards for S. S. attendance, the large picture rolls, are things Mrs. Watanabe can use in her work. Such inspiration as you gave her through friendly greeting, Christian fellowship, and cordial appreciation put her at her best. I'm sure she was able to speak more freely and more earnestly to the women this morning because of it.

So far as Christian friends of experience are concerned there are no such persons in the place, so only those people young in years and in Christian experience are possible for her. But she has been thrown upon her Bible and prayer as never before perhaps, because at Akabana, after her husband's death, there was always a missionary or some student down for Sunday, but in Inogawa she has to do the teaching and be the inspiring source most of the time.

Tuesday morning.—It is raining today and the farmers will be glad. They have been specially going to the temples to pray for rain, as the land is too dry for rice planting. Yesterday I saw them in the fields, stirring up the ground, themselves nearly waist-deep in mire. Some had a horse and very rude plow, some did not. One woman was wading in an un-ploughed miry rice field, gathering land snails. These the people eat.

A boy walked along the dyke with me Sunday as far as the ferry to Kanomata, where the river branches into two mouths. Mrs. Watanabe is on the upper mouth beyond Kanomata—not on the seashore, perhaps 5 or 6 miles from that. But the boy said though there has been no Sunday school for a year or more at Kanomata, he and another boy believe in Jesus, and every morning, sometimes in their homes, sometimes in the temple yard, they pray to the Christian God. They have also taken great pains not to lose their Christian books and tracts which they received at Sunday school. The Sunday school bears fruit, you see. We must begin that S. S. work in Kanomata again.

As I sat by the wayside eating my lunch later, an Inogawa woman who had been selling vegetable oil came along and was sociable. She took the bread and cakes I shared with her, home to give her five children as something unusual for them—rice and salted pickles and bean soup being their daily fare, with fish occasionally. I had the pleasure of telling her the old, old story, the first time for her to hear it from anyone. That one might tell it with power! They need it so—these hard-working women with little true joy in their lives.

Grandmother Kato has just come in and had a season of prayer. She was thankful that a grandson had found steady employment. She is learning to pray, but a woman converted when about 60, finds it hard to frame her sentences reverently and satisfactorily to herself, so forms of prayer are a help.

Tonight and tomorrow night the pastor from Wakuya holds special meetings here.

OUR WORK AND AIM.

(Read during the meeting of the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board of the Virginia Valley Central Conference, at Winchester, Va., Friday, Aug. 16, 1913.)

Tomorrow (Aug. 16th) will be the first anniversary of the Woman's Mission Board of the Virginia Valley Central Christian Conference.

You will readily comprehend that your Board is quite young, and, consequently, will be very liberal in commendation of the little we have done, and judge us leniently for much we have failed to accomplish. We had fondly hoped and earnestly prayed for more tangible results during our first year. We feel somewhat disappointed but not in the least discouraged. We hope to utilize our failures as stepping stones to greater attainments during the ensuing year.

Our motives are often misunderstood, and attempts to organize missionary societies in our churches are frequently met with polite indifference, or only by partial co-operation, yet we do not lose our inspiration, because we believe that every Christian has received the commission royal to labor in the cause of missions. This divine commission makes each Christian personally responsible for its fulfillment; mark you, personally responsible.

As a denomination we are not grasping the opportunities presented in the mission field. Too many regard missions merely from a financial viewpoint, forgetting the moral and religious welfare of those less fortunate than ourselves. Education along missionary lines is necessary. It should form a part of every child's education, because it eliminates selfishness which is the source of so much unhappiness. One great feature of our work is to obtain and distribute information relating to missions. We feel certain when our people fully realize what opportunities we are missing in the great plan of redemption, that there will be a great awakening of the missionary spirit. Do we not hinder the work of redemption when we fail to give it our best energies?

The distinctive work of the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board is the betterment of women. It is an effort by the women for the women. It is the noblest work in which women can engage, for this reason, the uplift of woman means the uplift of humanity. The strength of a nation lies chiefly in the morality and spirituality of its women. No nation has ever risen above the virtue of its women. The redemption of woman means the redemption of the race.

Do you not catch a vision of woman in pagan lands, who, by the customs of her country, is doomed to a life of degradation and squalor—of woman dwarfed intellectually, and groping pitifully for something better—something to fill her empty heart? Those of us who live under more favorable conditions know that it is the principle implanted in every human heart which lures it back to God who gave it.

Knowing her environments, and her undefined desire for something higher, are we not culpable if we fail to do our part in sending to our benighted sisters the Gospel of Christ, which will satiate the longing and fill her life with joy?

We know our duty. The burden hangs heavy on our hearts and can only be lifted by a united effort of all our people. We hope in the golden future to arouse a missionary spirit which will ultimately result in a live missionary society in every church in our Conference—a band of women ready and willing to do direct Home Mission work by taking personal interest in the lowliest of our sex. Such an interest, once awakened, will radiate to the very circumference of the world.

Women of the Virginia Valley Central Christian Conference, we feel that you are loyal and true to your church, and we plead for your interest, your sympathy, your prayers, and your financial support in this great cause.

To the members of the Board, I wish to say by way of encouragement,—

"Be strong.

We are not here to play, to dream, to drift,
We have hard work to do, and loads to lift;
Shun not the struggle; face it—'tis God's gift.

"Be strong.

It matters not how deep intrenched the wrong,
How hard the battle goes, the day, how long;
Faint not; fight on. Tomorrow comes the song."

(Miss) H. C. O. MARTZ.

Lacey Spring, Virginia.

THE TOUCHSTONE OF SPIRITUALITY.

The ancients used a hard dark-colored piece of stone called Lydia stone or basanite to test metals. They could tell by the mark left on the touchstone whether the metal was pure gold, or what was the quantity and quality of the alloy. It was not an exact test like the modern assays, but it answered practical purposes.

The work of foreign missions is the touchstone of spirituality. A man's attitude toward this work is fair test of his spiritual condition. If he is utterly opposed to foreign missions, it shows that he is unregenerated, and has in him nothing of the Spirit of Christ. If he is opposed to it because of prejudice or wrong education, he deserves the rebuke which our Savior gave Peter: "Get thee behind me, Satan, for thou mindest not the things of God, but the things of men." If he is opposed to missions because of his love for money, then he ought to give heed to the words of the Master: "No man can serve two masters, for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon." If he is simply indifferent and ignorant about it, he is a carnal Christian, and has but little spirituality. If he is truly enthusiastic worker, it marks him as a deeply spiritual Christian.

It is a profound and solemn truth, and ought to awaken us to our true condition. Beyond all doubt, this is a true touchstone, indicating clearly our lack of spirituality, or the degree of our spiritual development.

(1) The great God and Father of us all is missionary in spirit. "God so loved the world that He gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." China, India, Africa, and the islands of the sea are parts of the great world which God loves. He does not confine His love to some small section of it, or some little handful of His creatures. When the angel and the heavenly host from His throne sang on the plains of Bethlehem the special message was: "Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all the people;" and the mighty chorus, "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace among men." Before the throne of God they had caught no narrow vision of what the Saviour's coming meant. They saw the radiance of the light of life—the light which lighteth every man—enwrap the whole earth. They believed that the "good tidings of great joy" were not for the favored few, but for all the people in the world. How little do we understand God's plan, and how we fail to sympathize with His great love when we oppose or neglect sending the Gospel to all men.

(2) The Son of God was also an advocate of world-wide missions. The Hebrew prophets foresaw Him coming as the Saviour of the whole world. He was not simply to be the Jewish Messiah. He was to be the "Lord of lords and King of kings." When he came and suffered and died, it was for all men. In His great commission, He said: "All power hath been given unto me in heaven and on earth; go ye, therefore, and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." This was no local and temporal command. It was meant for all the world. It extended over all the ages, "even unto the end of the world." This great commission is repeated in another form in the first chapter of Acts: "But ye shall receive power when the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be my witnesses, both in Jerusalem and all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." Here the command indicates the ever-widening circles until not one corner of the earth is left untouched by the message of the Gospel.

(3) The Holy Spirit is intensely missionary. The book of Acts is called "The Acts of the Apostles." It ought to be called, "The Acts of the Holy Spirit," or "The Acts of the Spirit Through the Apostles." The book is a history of the first spreading of the Gospel. The Spirit of God, like a great general, directs the advance. The early Christians were His army, and they ever moved under His direct commands. He is the power at Pentecost; He directs the work in Jerusalem, in all Judea, and in Samaria. He shows Peter by a special vision that he is to call no man common or unclean; that he is to regard no people as being outside of the pale of God's love, and when, under the Spirit's direction, Peter preaches to the Gentile household of Cornelius, the power of the Spirit falls on

Children's Missionary Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions For Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDREN

The
Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

them, and Peter is compelled to admit them to baptism. The Spirit tells Paul that he cannot stay at home, but must go far hence to the Gentiles. At Antioch he begins the work of foreign missions. "And as they fasted, the Holy Ghost said, 'Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them.'" Thus He thrust His laborers forth into the foreign field. He directs them in all that they do. He selects the field. He gives them wisdom and power. But for the fact that Christians have almost cast away the leadership of the Holy Spirit, this world would long ago have been brought to the feet of Jesus.

Now, what is a Christian? He is one who seeks to do the will of God as revealed in Christ through the power of the Holy Spirit, and since the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit are intensely missionary, he who is opposed to missions is not a Christian, and he whose zeal is but faint must have but little of the Spirit of God in him.

The solution of the missionary problem is easy. If we can find some method of deepening the spiritual life in our churches, the question is solved. When all Christians have learned that they are the servants of Jesus Christ; that they belong absolutely to Him; that His Spirit dwells in them; and when they begin to say with earnest hearts, "What shall I do, Lord?" the tide of missionary zeal will rise with a glorious increase until it shall sweep over the face of the whole earth.—The Foreign Mission Journal.

FOR SALE.

I offer my two story, six room dwelling, and farm of 53 acres, almost adjacent to College campus, for sale at reasonable price. A fine location for those wishing to educate their children. Correspondence solicited.

J. J. LAMBETH, Elon College, N. C.

Representative Britten, of Illinois, introduced a resolution into the House on August 5th calling for an emergency appropriation sufficient for the construction of three battle-ships of the Dreadnought type.—C. E. World.

UNEXCELLED ADVANTAGES AND LOWEST COST FOR CULTURAL STUDIES.

Piano, Voice, Expression, Fine Arts, Physical Culture.

Elon's special departments offer the following paragon advantages:

1. Study of whatever kind is not only a matter of application, but it is also a matter of environment, atmosphere, spirit. That is why the graduates of Elon's special departments appear to such fine advantage culturally. They not only receive the very best technical training, but they breathe into their life the vital atmosphere of that far-famed Elon spirit and are moulded by it.

2. The literary department of the College is open to those who are especially interested in the special studies, who take such courses as they wish, and this makes an ideal arrangement.

3. The best special teachers, those in demand in the best high school and College positions, have had College training as well as special training, and it is for these that Elon especially prepares.

4. The College Library, Reading Room, Literary Societies, and the Gymnasias add greatly to the enjoyment and value of special departments here.

5. The Music Department, giving instruction in Piano, Voice, and Harmony, having an enrollment of one hundred pupils, has a faculty of four teachers. The Director has been with us fourteen years and is famous for developing the individuality of her pupils. She is a graduate of the New England Conservatory and has studied many seasons abroad under the great masters there. Her three assistants have had the best training this country can afford. The department has new pianos throughout and a tuner is kept constantly here to remedy any variation in the instruments. Two lessons a week are given and a daily practice period is required for each course. Extra practice periods can also be had.

6. The Expression Department is presided over by a student of Leland Powers and is a growing department in the College. It is one of the most difficult arts, but a wide field of usefulness opens up to those capable of mastering it. Class instruction is also given.

7. The Director of the Fine Arts Department is a graduate of the Cooper Union, New York City, Art School, regarded as the best art school in this country, where for four years she studied, mastering every form of painting, including miniature in which she took high rank, and where for two years she was an instructor. The College campus furnishes abundant inspiration to art pupils. Mechanical drawing and architecture are also taught in this department.

8. The Physical Culture courses are free and besides aiming to correct bodily defects in the individual by delicately designed and costly instruments, also gives that very sort of training for physical and athletic directors and coaches which is so much in demand now in the educational world and which may be said to constitute a new profession. The directors are from the best schools in the country and the gymnasias are unexcelled, that for men costing $26,000.

9. Each of these departments has its elegant appointed studio, there being four for the music department and two for the physical culture classes, where abundant inspiration for the special line is had. All the music practice rooms are private and individual, which yields the best results.

10. The cost is exceedingly moderate. Board is $125 the year, including steam heat, electric light, and bath facilities, in the College boarding halls for which Elon is justly famed. The cost for instruction is $40 the year in each department per course, except for music under the director, which is $50 the year, and the College fees are but $16 the year and entitle the student to all the privileges of the College. The total cost therefore for a single course may be made as low as $116 the year.

11. The healthfulness of the College, its freedom from distracting diversions, its lack of extras, its fine spirit, and its powerful prestige are matters that the thoughtful, conscientious investigator will not fail thorough-

THE FINEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD
FOR THE MONEY

This Photograph represents exact size 5½ x 8½ inches

Bound in French Morocco, absolutely flexible, with overlapping covers as shown in this photograph. Has red under gold edges.

—IT CONTAINS—

The Authorized Version of the Old Testament and New Testament

—HAS—

Self-Pronouncing Text

All the proper words being accented and divided into syllables for quick and easy pronunciation.

—IT ALSO CONTAINS—

A New Series of Helps to Bible Study

—INCLUDING—

4000 Questions and Answers
which unfold the Scriptures

31 Beautiful Illustrations

showing scenes and incidents of Bible History

12 Maps of the Bible Lands in Colors

Large Clear Type

Fine Paper

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN one year,
$2.50, postpaid.

Or sent alone for $1.50, postpaid.

—ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO—

The Southern Christian Pub. Co.,

Elon College, N. C.

Remember us when you want fine Job Printing.

The Southern Christian Pub. Co.

ly to consider.
Adv.

W. A. HARPER.

VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.

135 acres one-half mile northwest of Elon College, on macadam road. Good dwelling and outhouses. Good wheat, corn and tobacco land. Meadow and pastures with water. Well timbered. Will sell cheap.

J. W. CABLE, Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. E. M. CARTER, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

E. M. Carter, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

is doing fine work, under the leadership of Bro. J. M. Saunders.

E. M. CARTER, Supt.

FORGET YOUR TROUBLES.

Don't mope and brood over your woes, disasters, and losses. Do something. Set to work. Brooding only weakens, and makes misery of feeling more intense. Begin at once to repair the disaster. If all your lifework suddenly falls in ruins about you, like a house of cards, put some of the stones of the ruin down at once, as a foundation for the new building. If all you have earned, with hard and anxious labor, is plucked away from you, do not fret, begin again, gather some more. You will not forget your trouble in any way so easily, as by filling life again with activities, interests, and toils.—Selected.

HE LEARNED HOW IT WAS DONE.

Elihu Root tells a story about himself and his efforts to correct the manners of his office boy. One morning the young autocrat came into the office, and, tossing his cap at a hook, exclaimed:

"Say, Mr. Root, there's a ball game down at the park today, and I want to go down."

Now the great lawyer was willing that the boy should go, but thought he would teach him a little lesson in good manners.

"James," he said, "that isn't the way to ask a favor. Now you sit down in my chair and I'll show you how to do it properly."

The boy took the office chair, and his employer picked up his cap and stepped outside. He then opened the door softly, and holding the cap in his hand, said quietly to the small boy in the big chair:

"Please, sir, there is a ball game at the park today; if you can spare me I would like to get away for the afternoon."

In a flash the boy responded:

"Why, certainly, Jimmie; and here is fifty cents to pay your way in."

SEEING IS BELIEVING.

There is an old adage in business that you "can't sell a pig in a poke," which is only another way of saying that people do not like to buy "sight-unseen." That is why the Christian Sun Piano Club has arranged to give you the opportunity to see your piano or self-player piano and try it thoroughly in your own home, without expense or obligation, before you decide to join the Club. If you like it, you join; if you don't like it, you don't join. In the meantime it costs you nothing to find out whether the Club will really save you one hundred dollars or more which it claims to, and whether the instruments really possess the superior quality which is claimed for them.

Joining the Club is as simple as "falling off a log." There are no fees to pay and no obligations to assume except the obligation to pay for the instrument you select, provided you decide to keep it. The terms must suit your convenience. You are absolutely independent of all other members and yet you get the benefit of the big saving in price which results from joining with them in a big wholesale transaction involving one hundred instruments, eight car loads. There is everything to gain and nothing to lose. Write for your copy of the Club's catalogue. Address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

A WOMAN'S FUNDAMENTAL RIGHT.

The most fundamental right of a good woman is to preside over her home and have her own way in its management. In this sphere she is well-nigh an oracle, and when she speaks her words ought to be law. And this is the highest honor that can possibly be bestowed upon her head and heart.—Texas Christian Advocate.

SUPERB EQUIPMENT.

If every parent who reads this paper could but inspect the splendid equipment of Oak Ridge Institute, North Carolina's widelyknown preparatory school for boys, there would not be room enough at this school for one-tenth of next season's students.

One glance would suffice to fall completely in love with the handsome, elaborately furnished buildings. A round of the beautiful grounds of one hundred and fifty acres of hill, trees, baseball and football grounds, tennis courts, etc., would convince anyone that this school is eminently fitted to develop physical health as well as mental soundness.

To converse with its faculty of college-bred Christian men would only strengthen one's confidence in entrusting Oak Ridge Institute with the care and training of a growing boy.

A complete story of this school's success in preparing young men for college, life and business is fully told in its beautiful illustrated catalogue which the management will gladly send free to anyone interested. Address J. A. and M. H. Holt, Proprietors, Oak Ridge, N. C.

For the last four terms all the rooms have been reserved in advance, and numbers of applicants turned away.

AMERICAN SUFFRAGISTS ATTACK WASHINGTON.

On July 31 suffragists from all parts of the country met at Hyattsville, Md., a town six miles from Washington, D. C., and started in more than seventy automobiles for the capital. The plan, which was to have two suffragists from each State present to their State Senators a petition for woman suffrage and get from them an expression of opinion on the suffrage question, was carefully carried out. The Senators received the petitioners courteously. Practically every Senator was armed, when the women left, with a bundle of petitions to present in Congress.—Exchange.

LOOKOUT FOR THE HEALTH OF YOUR HORSES THESE HOT DAYS!

Much of the sickness that impairs the health of work stock has its beginning in ordinary ailments of the organs of digestion or elimination. Stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels of animals are quickly benefited by the use of BLACKMAN'S MEDICATED SALT BRICK.

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads,
Bill Heads,
Statements,
Envelopes
Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Company,

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

MORPHINE WHISKEY
and TOBACCO
HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARCROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.
Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81 4:35 a. m.
No. 29 Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41 4:10 p. m.
No. 43 6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84 12:48 a. m.
No. 38 11:35 a. m.
No. 66 12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

It was my very great privilege last week to visit the Children's Home, Winston-Salem, N. C. Notwithstanding the Superintendent of the Home was off on a business trip, I was very pleasantly entertained by the matron of the little boys' cottage. They have a very beautiful location and are building some large, substantial buildings, which will add to the appearance of the location and will enable them to do more effective work.

Our work here is small—while I contend there is no excuse for its being so—and it is an inspiration to visit the older institutions and see what might be done here. But my desire for accomplishing what might be ours, when I begin to consider the possibilities, is no longer satisfied with inspiration in this way, but I am made to feel very small, indeed.

Miss Nettie McCullers, our housekeeper, was called home this morning (Aug. 12) on account of the death of her father. She has our sincere sympathy in this sad bereavement.

I am mailing to the Sunday school superintendents and secretaries a little folder, not so elaborately gotten up but it will give an idea of the work and what we propose to do. I hope they will be carried to the schools, giving all a chance to know what we are asking them to help support. Don't put them in the waste basket. This work will prosper according to what we put into it.

Last Sunday I was with the good people of Durham, their pastor, Rev. J. O. Cox, being away with Rev. L. I. Cox in revival meetings. It was a real pleasure to me to worship with this good people and to observe the growth of their work. The Sunday school

Amount brought forward$2,149.27

MONTHLY S. S. OFFERING.

1st Church, Greensboro $ 2.07
Burlington 13.47
Dendron 2.43
Durham 5.00
Beulah, Ala.67
Henderson 2.73
Berea (Nan.) 6.35
Ebeneza 1.25

33.96

SPECIAL

Miss Ida Ingold$ 3.00
Mrs. Hattie Blanchard,
on support of child .. 3.00
Palmyra S. S. 2.10
Tyler Bowling, work .. 2.00
R. D. Thompson, Jr. ... 1.00
Otis Boyd 1.00
Mrs. A. S. Farmer 1.00
Stark Holt 1.00
Sale of plow 3.00

17.10

$2,200.33

THE DENOMINATIONAL PAPER.

Dr. E. Y. Mullins, President of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, writes to the Religious Herald:

"For a long time it has seemed to me one of the strangest and most self-contradictory things in the world for a Baptist pastor to neglect to put forth active efforts for the circulation of the denominational paper. I have sometimes tried to imagine what would be the state of the kingdom if our denominational papers were all suddenly blotted out of existence. Any one whose imagination is capable of even a feeble flight would not require long to picture to himself a most somber result if such a thing should occur. The denominational paper keeps the churches and pastors in vital touch with each other and the ongoing of the kingdom, and comes as a heaven-sent influence each week into the homes of the people to uplift, to inspire, and to reenforce everything the pastor is trying to do."

Dr. J. F. Love, Assistant Corresponding Secretary of the Home Mission Board, says in the same paper:

"The religious newspaper is today the preacher's strongest ally and indispensable friend, the chief instrument for the defense of evangelical faith on earth, the strongest bond that holds us together as a denomination, and the most effective agency in promoting denominational efficiency. We would simply fail before our enemies and at our task as a denomination if the Baptist weeklies were suspended for a twelve-month."

These things being true—and we think no one will be disposed to deny them—then the question comes, Why should not the Baptist brotherhood—pastors, laymen, and all—make every effort to extend the circulation of the denominational paper? Ought not the paper, as a matter of fact, be in every Baptist home?—Baptist and Reflector.

HOW THE BIRDS PROTECT OUR ORCHARDS.

A very interesting experiment by Mr. E. H. Forbush, State ornithologist of Massachusetts, shows how the birds will work for us, if we will only let them. An old neglected orchard was selected, and special efforts were made to attract the birds during the winter months, by preparing food that they particularly liked, and placing it where they could readily find it; for instance, suet, which was tied to the branches of the trees.

As a result of this effort, the birds, instead of leaving when the snow fell, remained; and chickadees, nuthatches, woodpeckers, and creepers spent the winter in this old orchard, eating large numbers of eggs of the fall canker-worm moth and the larvae of other injurious insects. In the spring, when the female canker-worm moths appeared, the chickadees fed on these. Other trees in the neighborhood were badly infested with worms, while this orchard where the winter birds had been at work was practically free from them; the few which did appear were easily disposed of by the summer birds which came to the locality.

The other orchards were almost stripped of their foliage, but this one retained its leaves, and with one exception was the only orchard in the neighborhood to produce any fruit. It is interesting to note that the exception was the orchard nearest the one in which the experiment was tried.—The Home Progress Magazine.

PREDICTIONS AS TO OUR COTTON CROP.

The time has now come in the history of the cotton-growing industry when a large or small crop in the South is determined by whether it is above or below 15,000,000 bales of American cotton; and according to the government's estimate of acreage and condition, it does not appear probable that a 15,000,000-bale crop is in sight. With an increase of 2.5 per cent. in acreage and a condition on July 25 of 79.6 per cent., as compared with a ten-year average of 80 per cent. on that date, there is now the promise of a crop at least equal to that of last year, but not too large for the trade demands of the world.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

Under the Sherley amendment to the purefood act a large quantity of stramoline, an alleged cure for tuberculosis, was recently condemned and destroyed. The amendment declares it unlawful to make statements about the curative effects of medicine.

FOR FEVERISHNESS AND ACHING
Whether from Malarious conditions, Colds or overheating, try Hicks' CAPUDINE. It reduces the fever and relieves the aching. It's Liquid—10, 25 and 50 cents at Drug Stores

SPEND YOUR SUMMER

In The Glorious Mountains of Western North Carolina.

"The Land of the Sky"
"The Sapphire Country"

Where there is Health in Every Breath. The Climate is perfect the Year Round. In Spring and Summer the Region is Ideal.

Reached By
SOUTHERN RAILWAY

Solid Through Train, Including Parlor Car, between Goldsboro, Asheville and Waynesville Via Raleigh, Greensboro, Salisbury.

Other Convenient Through Car Arrangements.

SUMMER TOURIST TICKETS ON SALE UNTIL SEPTEMBER 30, 1913.

For complete information apply,
J. H. WOOD, D. P. A., Asheville, N. C.
R. H. DeBUTTS, D. P. A., Charlotte, N. C.
J. O. JONES, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLELARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10½ x 12¼ in.

Contains in addition to the Authorized Old and New Testaments, all the Sayings of Christ in Red; The Temple Library at Nippur; Names and Order of the Books of the Bible; Maps of Bible Lands; Pronouncing Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names; Comparative Systems of Scripture Chronology; History of the Period from the Close of the Sacred Canon of the Old Testament until the Times of the New Testament; Illuminated Marriage Certificate and Family Record; Chronological Index to the Bible; Concordance; Full-Page Dore Pictures, Half-Tones and in Colors, etc.

No. 820 P. R. L. Bound in IMITATION OF LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Gilt Titles, Marbled Edges. (Weight, 12 lbs.) $2.10

No. 822 P. R. L. Bound in SEMBLE LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Full Gilt Sides and Back, Gilt Edges. (Weight, 13 lbs.) 2.85

No. 823 P. R. L. Bound in AMERICAN MOROCCO, Padded Sides, Rounded Corners on Cover, Gold Side & Back Titles, Gold Edges. (Weight, 15 lbs.) 5.00

HOLMAN RED LETTERSELF-PRONOUNCING*TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red. New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5½ x 7¾ inches.

THE TYPE.
23 The Bāb-ŷ-lō'ni-anŷ, and all the Chāl-dē'anŷ, Pē'kōd, and Shō'a, and Kō'a, and all the Ās-sŷr'-i-anŷ with

No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges $2.50

No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges 3.00

Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENTSELF-PRONOUNCING

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Daintiest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2¾ x 4¼ inches.

THE TYPE.

Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Je'sus is the

No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges50

No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms75

Postage, 3 Cents.

SEND ALL ORDERS TOThe Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

has often heard class-members say: "I cannot understand the Bible." They could not understand any other book that was printed three hundred years ago. So many English words of that day were different.

More than forty new dictionaries have been required since then, to keep up with the changes in the English language. The

American Standard Bible
Edited by the American Revision Committee
uses the words of our day, which make the meanings of the Bible writers clear to us.

Write for Our Free Booklet, "How We Got Our American Standard Bible"

No teacher can afford to be without it.

SEND ALL ORDERS TOThe Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

DR. J. H. BROOKS,

Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

High Point Glass and Decorative Co.

Art Glass, Leaded Glass, Beveled Glass,

CHURCH MEMORIAL WINDOWS

Beveled Plate Glass and Mirrors. Prices and descriptive matter on request.

High Point Glass & Decorative Co., High Point, N. C.

Help your church paper by getting a friend to subscribe for The Christian Sun.

THE BEAUTIFUL CHIMNEY ROCK GAP

REACHED VIA

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY
Chimney Rock Gap has been for years famed for its beauty in both Song and Story.

Why not spend your vacation at one of the comfortable Hotels beautifully situated in this lovely valley?

Hotel Rates remarkably cheap, $5.00 to $10.00 per week.

THE SEABOARD'S NEW SCHEDULES make it EASY to get to Chimney Rock, Rutherfordton and surrounding Mountains. Write today for Booklet: James Ker, Jr., T. P. A., Charlotte, N. C. H. S. Leard, D. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.,

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—We have only increased 82 ministers in 40 years, about an average of two ministers a year increase.

—Our Christian Church is responsible for sending the gospel to 1,000,000 souls in paganism. At the present rate we wonder if we will reach one hundredth part of them. Who is responsible?

—Rev. R. L. Williamson is doing good work as pastor of a circuit of churches in the Valley of Virginia, and is held in high esteem. He is a man of consecration, of ability, and devotion to his work.

—Has your church the new, and greatly improved, edition of The Christian Hymnary? If not The Sun can supply you. The price is 75 cents the copy by mail, or 50 cents in quantities to churches, freight or express charges extra.

—Rev. A. W. Andes, who delivered the annual address before the Virginia Valley Central Conference in Winchester last week, said there were now 235 vacant pulpits in our Christian Church. The need for ministers is indeed great.

The Interstate Commerce Commission estimates that the physical valuation of the railroads will take about seven years to work out and will cost from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000. The committee has asked for an immediate appropriation with which to begin work.

—Governor Sulzer of New York has been impeached by a vote of 79 to 45 in the legislature of his State. The trial is to begin before the Senate of his State early in September on the accusation of "high crimes and misdemeanors" in office. Former Lieutenant Governor Glynn is acting governor.

—Chicago now has several women on its police force, since that city and the State of Illinois adopted woman suffrage. Women are entering many heretofore untried fields of service, and it yet remains to be seen whether this means the betterment of woman's condition, the purity of her life and the nobility of her character.

—The dailies one day this week carried two pictures on their front page. The one was of the notorious and undesirable Harry K. Thaw, the other of a Miss Graham who in Liverpool bet $250.00 that she could steal her passage across the ocean on the Adriatic, and won her bet. These pictures are not apt to help much the pure in heart.

—The secret of the great work Rev. W. T. Walters is doing at Winchester, Va., is found in the word "energy"—good, refreshing, zealous, consecrated energy. Count on the man whose heart is full of the love of God, and whose mind is a very dynamo of consecrated energy. One preacher like that will do more church work in a month than a whole bunch of "higher critics" will do in a lifetime.

WEST DORMITORY

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING

EAST DORMITORY

Elon College Campus View, Looking North-East From the Depot.

The New $250,000 Men's Gymnasium

The Gift of the Alumni Association

The Administration Building, Looking North West, Showing the West Dormitory in the Distance

West Dormitory View, Showing Rear Porch and Annex, Containing College Dining Hall, Women's Gymnasium and Art Studio

Elon College

For Both Men and Women

Elon College, North Carolina

For a quarter century Elon College has rendered the best families of the South a paragon service in providing young men and young women with the best mental, moral and physical training under positive Christian influences, tho entirely free from sectarianism.

Karl Lehman, of Boston, testifies that "of all the Colleges I have visited as International Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor during six years, the spirit of Elon College appeals to me as most genuinely Christian." Elon College is situated in the delightful hill country, a section unsurpassed for beauty, with a climate far-famed for its healthfulness. There is no medical fee, for there is no necessity for it. Its campus, comprising twenty-five acres of native oak and hickory, shrubbery, winding walks and driveways, is one of the most beautiful in the South and, with its two unsurpassed gymnasias, provides abundant opportunity for recreation and relaxation.

The splendid equipment of Elon College was only made possible through liberal endowment. It maintains seven elegant new buildings, especially designed and appointed for college work. These are furnished with every known convenience; steam heat, electric lights, running water, baths and sewerage. The College plant is conservatively valued at $300,000.00.

Elon College is distinctly a high-grade institution, though its charges are moderate. Its graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great universities without examination. Its literary and scientific courses are arranged in various departments which lead to the degrees of Master of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Pedagogy, and a three-years' course leading to the degree of Licentiate of Instruction, designed especially for teachers. This institution affords special opportunities for training in Piano, Voice, Expression, Fine Arts, Normal Training, Physical Culture and Commercial Practice.

The Faculty consists of twenty-one specialists; men and women selected not only for their superior teaching ability, but also for their exemplary character and manners.

The student body numbers nearly four hundred and comes from thirteen states.

The lowest Rates in the South, only $131 to $191 per College session of ten months. Fall Term always opens the first Wednesday in September. For full descriptive catalogue and view-book, address

President W. A. Harper, LL. D.,
Elon College, N. C.
Box 88

East Dormitory, showing the new Gymnasium and Power House in the Distance

West Dormitory, a Winter View, The Old College Well, Now a Campus Lounging House, but Sacred in Elon History

The Gym Room of the Altered Building, one of the largest rooms of polished maple in the South

The National Anti-Saloon League and other organizations are protesting to Secretary Bryan against the appointment of Mr. Charles Vopicka, a Chicago brewer, to be minister to the Balkan States, on the ground that no man connected with the liquor trade should represent the American people at foreign courts.—Ex.

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

FOR MALARIA and as a general TONIC

50¢ $1.00

If not sold by your druggist, will be sent by Parcels Post on receipt of price. Arthur Peter & Co., Louisville, Ky.

OLDEST BEST

Subscribe for The Christian Sun. $1.50.

THE QUESTION OF "GREATNESS."

A great magazine not long ago called upon its readers to vote on the question, "If Congress should decide to award ten prizes to the most deserving men in the country and leave the choice to a popular referendum, who should get the largest number of votes?" More than a thousand readers voted. The following were chosen in the order named: Mr. Edison, Miss Jane Addams, Mr. Carnegie, Mr. Roosevelt, Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard, Dr. Alexis Carrel, Colonel Goethals, Mr. Bryan, President Wilson, and Mr. Luther Burbank. Others received votes, such as Dr. Booker T. Washington, Mr. J. D. Rockefeller, Mr. Orville Wright, Dr. Wiley, Ex-President Taft, Mr. John Mitchell, Miss Helen Keller, Miss Ida Tarbell, and Admiral Perry.

The result of the vote was somewhat of a surprise to the editor of the magazine, since, to use his words, "not one poet, novelist, dramatist, actor, musician, artist, architect received votes enough to bring him anywhere near the top-most ten." According to the editor, "ministers of the gospel fared no better. They did not get within range of the prize."

We cannot share with the editor in his surprise. It would have been very strange if in this age, which most emphatically depreciates spiritual values and acknowledges no values which are manifested outside the realm of visible, practical utility, the choice should have included representatives of the classes mentioned. Besides, those of these classes whose names have been standing unchallenged for centuries on the world's roll of great ones would have failed in their day and generation to get a vote had a voting contest been held. Their greatness was acknowledged by those who came after them.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

HOW WE LOVE TO SMASH.

How we do love to smash things! At Coney Island I noticed a crowd around a booth. I heard the sound of something smashing, crashing, and breaking. What do you suppose it was? Men were paying five cents for the privilege of having three shots with a baseball at rows of cups, saucers, plates, and other dishes arranged inside the booth. One after the other the smashers appeared. All they wanted to do was to hit something and hear it break. After they had done this they went away satisfied. If they failed, they invested five or ten cents more, and some as much as twenty-five or fifty cents.

On the way back from Coney Island I passed a vacant building at Long Island City. Evidently it had fallen into disuse. The smashers had taken the opportunity to have some fun without paying for it. Every window in the building was broken. The boy

No End of Good Reasons

UNLESS you buy carelessly, these are a few of the features that will lead you to the I H C line when you buy a hay press. I H C presses are provided with self-feeders, eliminating dangerous foot-feeding and increasing capacity by even operation; the bale chamber is of just the right height to permit convenient tying of the bales; the bale tension and roller tucker make for uniform, compact and attractive bales, the toggle joint plunger is the most powerful and simple compressing device ever used on a hay press—though producing greatest pressure, they require least power to operate. I H C presses bale more hay with less power in a given length of time than any other press of equal size.

I H C Hay Presses Motor and Horse Power

cannot be surpassed in convenience, durability, simplicity, and economy of operation. They will put your loose hay into neat, compact bundles, occupying but one-fifth the former space, increasing your available barn room, and making it possible to sell your hay in distant localities at the highest market prices.

You will find three sizes, 14 x 18, 16 x 18, and 17 x 22-inch bale chamber, in the I H C hay press line, baling at a most conservative estimate, from six to sixteen tons per day. If your choice is a horse power press, you will be interested by its special features, the pull power principle, compound leverage, and the low step-over. If you desire a motor press, study the durable power jack. Remember, too, that this is an all year round machine, for the engine may be detached and used as a regular portable power plant to run saw, pump, cream separator, churn, feed grinder, electric light plant, repair shop, etc.

Have your local dealer show you the line of I H C hay presses and explain their many features to you. Get catalogues from him, or, write the

International Harvester Company of America
(Incorporated)

Chicago

U S A

smashers had been enjoying themselves.

I remember the reprimand a little boy received from his father for breaking a new toy soon after it had been presented to him. This is what the child said: "Daddy, what is the use of a toy until it is broken?" That is the disposition of the American people at present from infancy to old age.

It is not remarkable that we have smashers and busters in Congress and in all our State legislatures, and that the demagogues who seek public favor can find it quickly by preaching a gospel of busting, smashing, defaming, and denouncing.—Jasper, in Leslie's Weekly.

SHALL WILL OR DISPOSITION RULE?

Our receiving of God's richest blessings never depends upon our temperament or feelings, but only upon our will. Either we will or we will not yield to God and trust him completely. When we so will to yield and trust, he will do everything for us. And we may so will at any time, no matter what our feelings or natural dispositions are. After we have thus given God full right of way in our life, it is a simple matter for him to make any changes that are really needed in our natural disposition. But if we wait for a change in our disposition first before yielding up our will to God, we may have a long wait ahead. "It is easier working through the will to alter the disposition, than working through the disposition to alter the will." Even an enslaved will that knows it cannot obey God can nevertheless choose voluntarily to trust God to break its bondage whenever it will so trust. Our own will is a door between God and ourselves, for us to open or close as we please.—S. S. Times.

—But just suppose the newspapers had given as much space, and as prominent position to matter, in promoting some good cause, some great moral issue, some wholesome problem, as was given to the escape from the asylum of the notorious Harry K. Thaw? There is simply no telling what good would have been accomplished. But the way of the world, the newspaper world in particular, is to print, read and talk about the bad.

YOU ARE INVITED

To join with ninety-nine other subscribers in placing a big wholesale factory order for one hundred pianos (eight car loads) and thereby secure the maximum discount from the regular retail price. This means a reduction of nearly one-third.

In order to relieve you of all responsibility for other people's debts we have organized the Christian Sun Piano Club, which is financed and managed by Ludden & Bates, one of the oldest, largest and most reliable piano houses in the country. You get the benefit of the tremendous purchasing power of one hundred buyers, and yet you are responsible only for the one piano or self-player piano you select. There are no Club fees or expenses. You simply pay the special Club price for your own instrument, just as if you bought it from anyone else, and on terms to suit your convenience.

In order to secure perfect satisfaction and avoid all causes for complaint, the Club sends you the instrument for an approval test in your home. Without expense or obligation on your part you thus have the opportunity to satisfy yourself before accepting the instrument. Several Clubs have already been completed and everyone has expressed himself as pleased. Another Club is forming. If interested write for catalogue which gives full information. Address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books: Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Eaton College, N. C.

XUM
FOR HEADACHE
"HASN'T FAILED YET"

Bargains in large and small tracts of Land
Beautifully located and at owners' price.
W. H. GRAHAM, Cuero, Texas.

A LEADING BOARDING SCHOOL

for 250 Students. Established 1884. Prepares for College, Business, Teaching, or for Life. Health, Character and Scholarship. Wide patronage. VERY REASONABLE RATES Each Student receives personal attention. School highly endorsed. (Location is near Greensboro, N. C.) For Beautiful Catalogue, Views, etc., address the President.

W. T. WHITSETT, PH. D.
WHITSETT, NORTH CAROLINA

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

SOUTHERN SCHEDULES.

Ashville, N. C., May 7,—Better facilities than ever before given for reaching the tourist resorts of Western North Carolina are provided in the summer schedules and through car arrangements just announced by the Southern Railway.

Beginning June 1, two sleeping cars will be operated daily between New Orleans and Asheville, one via Mobile, Montgomery, and Atlanta, and the other via Meridian, Birmingham and Chattanooga. On the same date the sleeping car service between Memphis and Asheville on trains 35 and 36 will be extended to Lake Toxaway and a through sleeping car line will be established between Memphis, Asheville and Waynesville, the car to be handled on the "Memphis Special." Through sleeping cars between Savannah and Asheville will be put into service June 1, between Charleston, Asheville and Waynesville on June 2.

Greatly improved service between Augusta and Asheville has been arranged. The parlor car service which was operated last year in connection with the "Carolina Special" will again be given and in addition a new sleeping car line will be inaugurated via Blackville and Columbia, leaving Augusta at 11:45 P. M., arriving Asheville at 2:10 P. M., and leaving Asheville at 4:30 P. M., arriving Augusta at 8:20 P. M.

On June 15 a sleeping car line will be established between Jacksonville and Asheville in addition to the car operated between Jacksonville and Cincinnati via Asheville. Daily sleeping car service between Atlanta and Lake Toxaway will be established on June 22, additional trains being operated between Hendersonville and Lake Toxaway to handle this car. Parlor car service on trains 5 and 6 between Asheville and Lake Toxaway will be inaugurated May 25.

Tickets will be on sale June 23 to 28 inclusive. Final return limit to reach original starting point by midnight July 13, 1913.

Round trip fares from principal points as follows: Raleigh, $9.20, Goldsboro $10.65, Selma, $9.65, Durham, $8.45, Burlington, $7.40.

Rates in same proportion from all other points.

For detailed information, schedules, Pullman accommodations, etc., ask your agent or communicate with.

J. O. JONES,

Traveling Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

Some go up like sky rockets, they blaze, they flame, they sputter as they fly. But did you watch them? They came down like a dead stick, and verily no man knoweth in what dismal swamp they stuck in the ground.—Selected.

DEATHS

Marshall.

Harden Hazlip Marshall, son of W. H. and Alice Marshall, died July 28, 1913, aged 25 years, eight months and 20 days. For nearly three years he had been living in Oklahoma, where he was stricken with indigestion and passed into the marvelous light and liberty of God.

In the year 1903 he confessed Christ and united with Salem Chapel Christian Church, where he has since been a loyal member and a devout Christian worker. The funeral services were conducted by the writer and Rev. Mr. Lambeth, of Winston, N. C. The interment was in the cemetery at Salem Chapel. There was a large attendance and the floral designs were beautiful. We extend, as best we can, all the sympathy that one human heart can have for others. May the bereaved ones look to Him who is able to bind up the broken hearts.

R. F. BROWN.

Foster.

Our heavenly Father in His wisdom has seen fit to remove from Lebanon church one of its most faithful and loyal members, Deacon J. A. Foster. His life was beautifully characterized by faithfulness and sincerity, ever ready to do whatever he found needed to be done within his church for the upbuilding of God's kingdom here on earth and the betterment of humanity in general. His Christian character was such that one need be with him only a very short while before becoming much impressed with his sincerity and faith in his Master.

Our friend has gone before us and we would not recall him, for his sufferings during the last few months here were great. His influence will live on until the more perfect day.

Therefore, be it resolved:

First—That in the death of our brother we have lost a faithful member and one whose interest was ever with us for high and holy purposes.

Second—His loyal support and constant attendance were sources of inspiration to our meetings and we will miss the influence of his Christian character.

Third—That we extend our sympathy to the bereaved family in this their hour of sorrow, praying that the everlasting influence of the Holy Spirit may sustain each one.

Fourth—That a copy of these resolutions be sent the family, a copy be recorded on the church book, and that copies be sent The Christian Sun and Milton News for publication.

MR. J. T. EARP,
MRS. J. H. YARBROUGH,
MISS HULDA TAYLOR,
MISS LULA OLIVER,
Committee.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf."

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly."

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.

Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles,

Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

—HIGH CLASS—

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., AUGUST 27, 1913

NO. 35

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

The Largest, and the Oldest.

If one is looking for the largest college to go to, believing, as many seem to believe, that there is virtue in mere numbers, one would better go to the college at Cairo, Africa, the largest college on earth, enrolling more than 10,000 students a year, and having more than 300 teachers. Or if one is looking for the oldest, supposing there is virtue in antiquity, one would better go to University College, Oxford, the oldest college, established in 1050. The largest and the most ancient even are not always the best.

Prayed to Conquer.

Where is the busy man who now finds time to pray one hour a day? Yet Martin Luther, that life packed from beginning to end with ceaseless activity and boundless energy, said: "If I fail to spend two hours in prayer each morning the devil gets the victory through the day." We wonder if any CHRISTIAN SUN reader finds the time to pray two hours each day? And then we wonder if any SUN reader will be the scholar, the thinker, the man of letters, learning and affairs Luther was. His motto was: "He that has prayed well, has studied well."

The Most Costly Book.

The German government owns a copy of the Hebrew Bible for which the Pope of Rome some time ago offered $150,000, but the offer was declined. That is the largest sum of money ever offered for any one copy of a single volume. But the Bible cost more than any other book, has done more than any other book, and is worth more. Have you ever considered the sacrifices, the tears, the anguish, the pain, the self-denial, the patience, the endurance, the martyrdom, the crucifixion, the stonings, the shipwrecks, the stripes, the humiliation and the innocent blood that it cost to make the Bible? No wonder it is the most precious book on earth. It cost more to make it; and it is worth more than all the rest combined now that it is made.

Self-Denial.

Our Creator knew that it would be far better for us, in character building and in soul development, to have to deny ourselves, say no to many indulgences, luxuries and invitations. Charles Kingsley very wisely said:

"The very worst calamity, I should say, which could befall any human being would be this—to have his own way from his cradle to his grave; to have everything he liked for the asking, or even for the buying; never forced to say: "I should like that, but I can't afford it; I should like this, but I must not do it." Never to deny himself, never to exert himself, never to work, and never to want. That man's soul would be in as great danger as if he were committing great crimes." Hence our Savior said (Luke 9:23): "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me."

Love Saves.

The world is cruel, and there is sin on every side. Often the righteous are provoked, and are tempted to use harsh or unkind deeds or words. It is of no avail. The world is to be saved by love only. Sinning, erring, wayward man is to be won to the ways of righteousness and peace and truth by love only. When killing cruelty was doing its most deadly and dastardly deed, crucifying, on a cross of sin and shame, man's only Redeemer, that heart of Love cried out from the depths of bitter anguish, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." (Luke 23:34). Love may receive the stab and the blow, but it lives and wins out. Pilate and Pompey and Cæsar and Rome, with all their splendor and glory and power, have passed away; but Jesus lives, and His power, the power of living love, grows stronger and more mighty day by day. Love saves.

Are You Hesitating?

We heartily commend the following sound advice and broad wisdom, from the Western Christian Advocate, to any of our young friends who are hesitating:

"Is there a young man or woman prepared to enter college, but still hesitating over its advisability? We would cast the deciding vote in favor of the affirmative. Four years of student life will give direction to and enrich all the subsequent stretch of living. It will justify itself in ways of utility—in a practical fitting for calling and labor—but infinitely more than that in the evoking of the latent powers of the soul, in the development of personality, in the awakening of deepest and truest being. What will be learned from books and lectures will be much. The roads to knowledge, which may be traveled in all subsequent years, will be pointed out and the love of truth and joy in its search will be kindled into ardor. But, in addition to this, there will be the contact with the minds and characters of Christian thinkers, association with fellow-students in an intimate life of ideal fellowship; and all the play and interplay upon mind and heart of the world of the recitation rooms, halls, dormitories, athletic fields and campus."

Division.

China cannot have type-writers, even though they have come to be an essential to modern business. The reason is not far to seek. Our English alphabet has twenty-six characters; the Chinese alphabet has 50,000, more or less. A Chinese typewriter to be of practical value would have to be about as large as a Pullman car, and would be a cumbersome machine indeed to work with, as the operator would have to walk around the key board to find the proper letter or sign. The Chinese language is one of the most imperfect and unwieldy languages on earth. Its trouble is too much division, separation, distinction. Likewise the churches of Protestantism are too much divided. There is too much separation, distinction, division. They are, for practical purposes, therefore, too unwieldy. Catholicism is a power in the world because of its unity, identity, oneness. When Protestantism becomes united and presents a solid front to the hosts of Satan, that arch-enemy of man will take fright and flee away. No wonder our dear Savior prayed: "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word: that they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." (John 18:20, 21.)

Substituting Wish for Truth.

It is a trait of human nature, very often marked, to declare a thing to be true, when about the only foundation is the wish that it were true. Cardinal Gibbons, possibly the most learned and universally esteemed Roman Catholic dignitary in America, recently declared before a great assembly of Catholics that "the Protestant system of religious truth has collapsed." "It was unable," continued the Cardinal, "to abide the successive strokes of biblical criticism or to survive longer the killing analysis of its fundamental principles. The masses of men in non-Catholic communities and countries recite no creed and own no church affiliation. They have pushed the fundamental principles of the system—the denial of doctrinal authority and the adequacy and the right of self-guidance in religion—to their logical issues." This great preacher may not have meant to do so; but did he not egregiously and obviously falsify when he said that the "Protestant system of religious truth has collapsed." We did not know before that the various denominations, with their millions of firm believers and faithful followers, had collapsed. Evidently the Cardinal's wish was father to his thought, and so led him into grievous error. But this is a trait of human nature that often leads to error and to blatant falsehood.

How a mother's love abides, when all other human attachments fade, is evidenced by a statement from Mrs. Thaw, mother of the incorrigible Harry, to the effect that "If Harry had been a poor man, they would have let him go after the first trial. He has been punished because of his wealth." If that is not a case of love's blindness we don't know. Everybody else than this fond mother, we presume, will admit that but for his money the notorious Harry would have gone to the chair and have been forgotten before now. But the mother's love is there, and is admirable, too.

We have many interesting letters from pastors and churches which, because of our Elon College Special Edition, had to be carried over till next issue.

EDITORIAL

ELON COLLEGE EDITION.

We make no apology,—such would be useless and uncalled for,—for presenting to our readers this week an Elon College edition of THE SUN. Just now hundreds of young men and young women are debating in their own minds as to whether they shall, or shall not, go to college. If this week's SUN shall help one such to cast the vote in the affirmative it will not have been in vain. That which turns one into the way of education, especially of Christian education, is highly worth while at any cost.

But beyond this, THE SUN must be of inestimable value this week because of the breadth of thought presented by the four thinkers and scholars amongst us,—Long, Staley, Moffitt, Harper. Any institution may well be proud of such a galaxy of names, and the influence of such stout and strong characters; and certainly any newspaper can rejoice that carries in its columns in one week contributions from such rich and ready pens.

And finally, our church life in the Southern Christian Convention is so intimately associated with Elon College, so entwined about it, so inseparably connected with it, that what helps the one assists the other: that which hurts the one retards the other. If THE SUN can in any way help the College it has done good service to the church whose it is. Elon College is not the Christian Church of the Southern Convention, but it has been, and is, and we pray God it may ever be, a powerful agency for progress, development and usefulness in the Church.

If THE SUN may be used to make the College a more worthy servant of the church, it will be well. To that end we strive.

A WORTHY WISH TOO LATE.

A worthy and most estimable lady remarked in the writer's presence recently, "I made the blunder of my life when I had the opportunity of going on through college, but did not do so. Now it is too late." It was. And what a blunder! She was hampered in usefulness, embarrassed by limited education, and was unhappy because she saw what she might have accomplished but now could not.

This woman is not alone in her experience. I have yet to find the person, male or female, great or small, who ever expressed a regret at having gone to school so much, or too long. I have met hundreds who, in the class of my estimable and unhappy woman, expressed deep regret at not having gone to school more, and acquired more education while opportunity afforded.

This is the time of year, just now the season, when many young men and young women are deciding their educational fate. I wish I could get the ear of every one of my acquaintances and readers, among the young people who are in doubt, hesitating, wavering, and cast the deciding vote in favor of their going on to school, while an opportunity affords. If I could, what a happy host would greet me with thanks and great gratitude in the years to come.

This one fact ought to be worth something, and ought to be the deciding influence; namely, that no one has ever regretted going to school or college as much as he or she did; but thousands and tens of thousands, when it was all too late, have lived to regret that they did not go more and learn more.

Those who have the opportunity to keep on, but drop out now, will join the vast throng of those poorly prepared for life's battles, conflicts, and fierce races. Those who have the opportunity now and keep on will join that splendid company of thinkers and workers that carry the world's thought and work forward, and shape and govern the destinies of men and women. The man who completes his college course multiplies his chances for success in life by one thousand.

Education is more, and is better, than lands, houses, bonds, securities, bank accounts. These belong to life; education is life; a life of broader horizons, keener perceptions, nobler aspects, firmer footing. From a financial and material point of view it is highly worth while; from its power to enrich the life morally and mentally, it is of inestimable benefit and blessing.

It is a precious boon for which worthy and meritorious boys and girls are sacrificing, toiling, laboring and longing; and they will never regret having done so.

Elon College offers the best of educational advantages at a minimum of cost. The religious life here is happy and wholesome. The moral training is uplifting and inspiring. The teachers are well equipped and are industrious. The discipline is sane and safe. Student life is healthful and helpful. It is a progressive institution with a splendid past, an inviting present, a promising future. Surely no young man or young woman who reads these lines, and hesitates about going to college, can possibly make a mistake in deciding for an education and in deciding to seek that education as it is offered at Elon.

HE LIVES NOW.

Joseph Allison Foster, of Semora, Caswell County, North Carolina, fell sweetly on sleep August 6th, 1913. His remains were laid to rest in Lebanon church cemetery; but the bereaved ones who knew him well will not live long enough to bury or forget the good, the charity, the loving kindness this man did while in the flesh. He never married, but from their very early life two nieces, Cora Lee and Ellen Foster, with their widowed mother, Mary, came to be the objects of his care and kindness, and lived beneath his friendly roof. These were true and faithful to him in health, in affliction and death, and made for him a peaceful and happy home. Two brothers and one sister had long preceded him to the spirit world, and one sister, Mrs. M. A. Taylor, Danville, Va., survives him. He was born May 13, 1847, thus being in his sixty-seventh year when called to the better world. He joined Lebanon church in 1873 and for years had been one of its active and faithful deacons.

By virtue, frugality, energy, courage and wisdom, starting life in poverty, he accumulated a large fortune in lands, houses, deeds and mortgages, and with a liberal hand did unnumbered deeds of charity to those who needed help. He was ever a friend to those who most needed a friend. No needy and helpless one ever appealed to him in vain.

His devotion to his church was as strong as the tie and bond of life itself. He loved his church even as he loved his home, and served his God with a reverence and faithfulness seldom seen. He made his mistakes, and human judgment brought him into human condemnation. He was mortal. But no man ever doubted his love to God, his sincere piety, his faithfulness to church and duty.

Uneducated himself, he was a true friend to Christian education. He contributed of his means annually to the support of his church College, Elon, and remembered it, with the Christian Orphanage, in his last will and testament. He was a benefactor with his means, and lived amid the joys of a devout life.

The last few years of his life he was afflicted and suffered much, but often his voice, during the time, was heard shouting and praising God for His goodness and His great mercy and loving kindness.

After a life spent in faithful service to God and his fellowman, he fell on sleep as sweetly and as peacefully as the child that leans on its mother's bosom, and the faithful, loving soul went back to the God who gave it. The Sun's editor conducted the funeral services from Lebanon church, where the deceased loved above all things to serve and to worship.

MORAL DEPRAVITY.

Our friend Crowson, of The Burlington News, believes in moral depravity; thinks that all of us by nature are moral degenerates. Not only does Crowson think so; he says so. Here are his words and his proof, in an editorial last week:

"We believe that every man, woman and child by nature is dishonest. Dishonesty creeps out when least expected. This is proven to any one who will ride on trains. A little motherly looking woman came in the car the other day. She got on at a flag station and had her money ready to pay her fare. Several other persons boarded the train at the same station and in calling for the fares the conductor passed her by. A look of sharp cunning came to the little woman's face as she saw that she was to get a free ride. Each time the ticket collector passed through, the woman looked out the window until he passed by when she would turn and watch him until he left the car. She knew that she was stealing a ride, but considered it legitimate, because the collector did not demand her fare. Thousands do the same thing, and consider it no sin, when the fact is, it's a kind of dishonesty that really shows human nature as it really is."

The point is well taken, but one swallow does not make a summer, and the theft of a motherly looking woman does not prove the dishonesty of the race. And we admit that there are thousands who are daily stealing after the same manner.

But Crowson forgets that while a thousand motherly women would, if they could, steal a ride on a train, there are ten thousand other women who would remain at home the balance of their days, because they hadn't the fare, rather than try to steal a ride or steal anything else. On that same train we have no doubt there were twenty persons who, before they would have stolen their ride, would have pushed their fares into the face of the conductor, or called him back after he had passed them by. Your dishonest person falls under your eye, arouses your suspicion and attracts your notice. Your honest person attracts no notice, and goes on the even tamer of his way—because honesty is natural. Sin is always obtrusive. Righteousness is modest, quiet, retiring.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Maj. Elijah Moffitt, of Asheboro, died Saturday a. m. in the hospital at High Point and was buried at Asheboro Monday, the 25th. The obituary will appear in next week's issue.

—Rev. C. C. Peel is this week assisting Rev. G. R. Underwood, pastor, in a series of meetings at Sanford, N. C. Bro. Peel has been unanimously called to serve Hebron church, Halifax Co., Va., the coming year, and has accepted. He has served this church successively for several years.

—Deacon J. Milton Banks, of McCullers, N. C., was an agreeable visitor last week. He was at Elon arranging to enter one of his sons in the College at the opening next week. He reports an excellent meeting at Wentworth church, where Dr. P. H. Fleming assisted the pastor, Rev. J. W. Patton, in a series recently.

—"The King's Business," a study of increased efficiency for Women's Missionary Society (Continued on Page 11.)

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Secty. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY IN MISSION WORK.

(Read before annual meeting Woman's Board Virginia Valley Central Conference.)

Woman has always been a most active worker in the spread of the Gospel. There is no place where her influence is felt to better advantage than in the church. In Matt. 28:7, we find the angelic message to the women at the empty tomb of the risen Lord, "Go quickly and tell his disciples," and they ran to bring His disciples word; and as they went they saw Jesus who said to them, "Fear not: go tell." Obedient to the divine command, these women and others with them, labored together to spread the glad tidings. Ever since then the Lord has been making use of women as well as men in His work of salvation, and often He has pointed out the way where a woman's hand and voice and sympathy have been able to help and rescue as a man could not. The W. H. and F. M. Society of our own denomination has by the devoted and faithful lives of comparatively few accomplished much, but as women of the Christian Church we do not yet realize all that we can do. Here in the needy places of the homeland, and there in the foreign fields, doors are opening, hands are beckoning and voices calling, calling us to personal service for our Lord and Master.

Let me tell you what our missionaries are doing. They are preaching the gospel; they are teaching in schools; they are training Bible women, ministering to the purifying of the home, and caring for the sick and suffering. We know these facts, but we must admit that there is a general and deplorable indifference amongst us. If we should continue to trace this indifference, we would find that the cause lies with the individual.

But let us come closer home and examine ourselves. Are you and I really, vitally interested in the salvation of the ones with whom we come in contact,—our neighbors, friends, acquaintances, and even the heathen across the seas? Did not Christ die to redeem their souls as well as yours and mine? I fear our sins of omission will be greater than we can bear. If the individual membership of the church will not come up to the help of the Lord in carrying on His work, the uppermost purpose of Christ's coming into the world must fail in the hearts of Christians and yours is the loss. President Woodrow Wilson says: "Always be afraid of the man who is indifferent to his own success and certain of the success of the thing he represents. Stand out of his way, for he has behind him the hosts of the Almighty."

So let us pray with such faith and love for the success of our laborers both at home and abroad, and "Satan will tremble when he sees the weakest saint upon his knees." It may truly be said that the church is awake today as never before, but are we awake as individuals? God forbid that we should be indifferent to the call that comes to us for more faithful service and that we should fail because of our indifference.

There seems to be an epidemic of excuses when we ask numbers of our good women to share in this work. Some insist that they do not believe in missions, while some have even given as an excuse that their husbands do not believe in missions. Now how can a woman be opposed to foreign missions when the Gospel of Christ has been the means of lifting her from degradation? How gladly she should do what she can in sending the glad tidings to those groping in darkness. How sad it is to have to call our missionaries in one by one. They have left home and friends in the interest of a great cause, and they need the prayers and sympathy of the entire denomination. They see the great opportunity for the saving of multitudes, but can we blame them for being disheartened when we fail to do our part by our gifts and our prayers? Our church has been laggard in the matter of providing missionaries. Parents give their children to many positions and much business, but the King's business lacks recruits. We believe that to retain and deepen the interest of our people it is essential that their knowledge concerning missions should be growing and their horizons constantly widening. Valuable information is furnished every week in the CHRISTIAN SUN and Herald of Gospel Liberty, and every month the Christian Missionary is issued—a magazine devoted entirely to missions. But so long as only a fraction of our church membership take these papers, so long only meager results can be expected. What we need, and need sadly, is individual, personal responsibility.

"Each soul you've failed to save
Is your own loss.
Each heart you've failed to cheer
Is your own loss.
Others will bless and serve,
Others will help and pray,
And at the Judgment Day
The loss is yours."

(Mrs.) W. T. WALTERS.

Winchester, Va.

THE VALUE TO YOUNG PEOPLE OF INTEREST IN MISSIONS.

As the centuries have moved on, the life and teaching of Jesus, while in no way lessening the thought of the glory of God as the highest aim of every man's thought, has greatly changed our conception of God and "His glory." The One who came to minister and not to be ministered unto, and who always spoke of God as a tender, forgiving, pitying Father, and whose own life of perfect service and perfect surrender has forever transfigured man's ideal of glory and growth, set henceforth a new standard for human growth and abiding gain.

The last one hundred years by its lessons of deepened personal consecration, naturally leading into missionary lines of service, has led to unexpected results and proved beyond a question that the service of God in behalf of others invariably uplifts and develops the man or woman who tries to serve and glorify God by serving his fellow men. It needs but a glance to prove to the candid mind what the work of missions has done for the world as it was one hundred years ago, and for the various churches that have carried on this missionary work. There can be no question that missionaries have done more than any other class of men in opening the whole world to Christianity, to commerce, and to international brotherhood. Great as these results are, however, the influence of the work upon the missionaries themselves proves in a striking way the wondrous truth in Christ's words, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." So that the world at large is beginning to realize more clearly than ever before that all Christ's requirements hide in them untold power of blessing to men. So many a man has faced what seemed a painful and unwelcome duty, and trying to perform it in the spirit of the Lord Jesus, has suddenly found it filling his soul with peace and his life with unexpected strength and joy. It is only when one has grown old, and looking backward sees clearly what the unforeseen effect of doing little things daily for others as for Christ has had upon his own life and the lives of those who were young when he was young, that he can even faintly realize the personal gain of trying to serve God by serving others. If there is one thing in human experience which cannot be questioned, it is that a sincere effort to do God's will in serving others inevitably lifts every young person steadily towards something higher and broader and nobler than he or she could possibly otherwise have attained. There are many external things, of course, that help to train the lives of the young; good homes, good society, education and worthy objects of ambition are powerful factors in making young men and women. And yet, strange as it may seem, the history of the most successful servants of God who have also stood high in the honor given by men, amply proves that a man who lacks almost all the external advantages can unexpectedly secure high distinction by living a life absolutely consecrated to Christly services for others.

But it is to the average young man and woman of the present day that the ideal of Christian service appeals in its most practical and highest form.

The various forms of united work in the church for the young never appealed so strongly as today, because never before has the value to the church and to the young people in the church been so clearly proven. If one is to do a man's work in the world, he must understand the value of the claims of the work laid upon him and how he may best perform that work. He will also, if wise, seek the benefit of co-operation with others in that work, and he will be keenly alive to the value of the very best and noblest friendships he can form in his early life. Every young person is under positive obligation to make the most of every faculty of mind and body and win for himself whatever will add strength and perfection for the service of God in the maturer years, and in no way can he do this more successfully than by choosing in early life the Lord Jesus as Friend and Master, and associating himself with the church, with those who listen to God's call to service for all this great world of needy, lost peoples—men, women, and children sitting in darkness and the shadow of death. The great advantages for education and for money earning constitute a loud call to the young today, to see to it that every means for the world's evangelization is actively and zealously used; education to prepare the mind, and the money to provide other necessities to give the saving bread of life to every being for whom Christ died. As a beginning of the work, "Go ye and disciple all nations." The Young People's Missionary Society in all our churches should be the most successful institution, for it has been many times proven that where the Young People's Missionary Society is flourishing, the Sunday school and Christian Endeavor flourish, while the pews are well filled

(Continued on Page 11.)

Elon's Contribution to the Church, as

BENEFIT CANNOT BE COMPUTED.

Trained Leaders.—United the Church.—Larger Promise of Future Usefulness.

To measure the benefit that Elon College has been to the church is a difficult task. To predict with accuracy the extent of its usefulness in the years to come is still more difficult. It began its career without money and with very few real friends, but these were loyal and true; having a vision of great service and blessing. There were many obstacles encountered at the beginning. The conferences had not recovered from the ravages and losses of a terrible civil war; they were, in most instances, widely separated, and none of them strong financially or numerically; many of the leading men thought it best for each conference to establish a school within its own borders, and, for this reason, opposed the attempt to build an institution for the benefit and fostering care of all the conferences of the Southern Convention. In spite of these obstacles and others that might be stated, and in the face of ridicule and obloquy the institution was projected, and in less than two years from the time the work began the site had been selected, the grounds laid out, the administration building, one dormitory, and several residences erected, the institution named, a charter obtained, and the doors opened to the public September 2, 1890.

Since the opening there has been more than 3,000 matriculates, 205 regular graduates, 40 have entered the ministry, and a much greater number has entered the profession of teaching, while many are lawyers, physicians, merchants, farmers, etc.

Thus a large number of young men and women have been trained for leadership in all the most important fields of service in modern society.

The most obvious result has been the unification of the people. The conferences and the churches have been drawn together as never before. They co-operate in all the activities of the church as at no other period. They have learned by experience and contact that they are neither so poor nor so parsimonious as they once thought themselves to be; and they are beginning to believe that they can do yet greater things by divine aid.

Missions, home and foreign, have taken on new life, and many are being prepared for this work. The publishing interests of the church caught the quickening influence of the college and put forth enterprise and developed plans that merit and command the confidence and patronage of all the churches.

Having provided for the liberal education of those whose financial means would enable them to secure it, it was reasonable that we should, as a religious people, provide for the homeless, and helpless also; hence the Christian Orphanage. The history of this institution has been a joy and a blessing to the church, and, if properly conducted and supported, untold good will be done for poor helpless children.

For nearly a quarter of a century Elon College has given the church and the world the best moral, mental, and physical training under Christian influences. Its location is ideal, and its healthfulness unsurpassed. There are now seven new buildings, especially designed and appointed for college work, furnished with every known convenience; steam heat, electric lights, water, baths, sewerage, etc., valued at $300,000.

The faculty consists of twenty-one specialists. The literary and scientific courses are arranged in various departments which lead to the degrees of Master of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Pedagogy, etc. It also affords special training in Piano, Voice, Expression, Fine Arts, Normal Training, Physical Culture, and Commercial Practice.

When one recalls the condition of the church at the time the college was projected and compares it with the present outlook he can realize that a wonderful change has been wrought. Every department of the church has taken on new life. New activities have sprung up. Every conference has strong, enthusiastic workers, and best of all these young people having been associated and trained under the same influences, are binding together all parts of our territory and begetting enthusiastic interest in all branches of church work that is prophetic of greater and better things in the near future. No one who has aided in establishing this institution can regret what he has done. For one I gave my best services and all my property, and am happy in the thought that I had the opportunity to render the service, and I rejoice in the progress and achievements of the institution, and the inspiration it imparts to all departments of our beloved Zion.

W. S. LONG.

Chapel Hill, N. C., August 18, 1913.

THE SUN is only three cents a week. Can you afford to be without it?

A MOST REMARKABLE RECORD.

Revealed the Church's Ability.—Given Confidence in Our Permanency.—Added New Enterprises.

I have been requested to write a letter on "What Elon College Is Doing for Our Church"; and I gladly undertake to comply with the Editor's request. I prefer to put "has" in place of "is" because it more fully includes what I propose to say.

REV. W. W. STALEY,
D. D., LL. D.
Second President. Served Eleven Years without Salary. Left the College Free of Debt and Substantially Endowed. 1894-1905.

I desire to have an understanding with the readers of this letter before judgment is placed upon what I say. With Gradgrind loyalty I propose to stick to "facts."

I lay the painter's brush aside and use my pen in the interest of plain truth. Moreover, I propose to leave out personal interest and denominational pride, so far as I can, and to write in the interest of pure history of an Institution which has made a most remarkable record within the twenty-three years of its useful life. The most remarkable thing about Elon is that it has been a "growth" from inherent qualities rather than the working out a plan with capital to execute a great design. Nobody ever conceived or dreamed of an Institution on such an extensive and well equipped outline as the College now presents. The ideal for Elon was only a modest, but first class college; it is now, in fact, a great Institution with imposing buildings, a splendid faculty, and a noble body of more than three hundred students. One could hardly keep from thinking of Gideon's three hundred when that number of students was reached last year. The Spartan band at Thermopylae could hardly have been braver than the young people who diligently seek knowledge at this College. But "What has the College done for our Church?"

It has discovered men, women, and money, as unknown as petroleum before Standard Oil bored in many places into the earth. Standard oil is blamed for the supposed evils it has done, and overlooked for the discoveries it has made and the good it has done. Latent talent and potential ability have come to light for work in the church and set in motion new and progressive activities of unquestioned and incalculable value to the cause of Christ.

It has given settled confidence in the permanence of the denomination to all thoughtful and loyal members of the church. Those who do not think of church interests beyond their own local congregation are unaffected by any institution; but thoughtful people can easily see that the concrete stability of "our church" has been greatly strengthened since Elon came up from the soil of a poor but honest constituency. Nobody hears, in these days, of prominent ministers of the Christian church going over to other denominations. It was not always so. I can well remember when leaders among "our ministers" conferred on the matter of going to other communions; and some of them actually went. There was no logical and intelligent center to prevent centrifugal forces from overcoming centripetal forces. Those conditions have been banished by Elon's influence over the ministers in the Southern Convention.

It has added new churches, new enterprises,

Seen by Her Three Former Presidents

and new impulses to the old ones. Doing things on a large scale inspires local churches to do things on broader lines. Imitation is a large factor in human service. This was the thought of Jesus when He said: "Follow Me." Thomas A. Kempiss has reproduced this beautiful and potent idea in his "Imitation of Christ." Elon has done things on such a large scale as to quicken the aspiration and enlarge the plans and liberality of the whole church. The Orphanage could hardly have made the record it has made, if Elon had not made the church conscious of its ability to do greater things than it had been doing. The Editor's report in THE SUN, from Minutes of the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference of 1862, in which all the churches sent up $57.35 for "Conference Fund," contrasted with what the same churches are now doing reveals what Elon has done for our church.

It has sent many students to Higher Institutions of learning, and their records in these Universities have amazed our own people and opened the eyes of other people. Elon has lifted the intellectual level of the church; made a demand for higher grade preaching; put organs and carpets and paint into churches and homes; cultivated intercourse among conferences; raised the standard in all departments of church life; and diffused its own intellectual and spiritual ideals among the churches.

It has given a locus to all church enterprises; issued books and current literature; aroused the spirit of liberality throughout the church; set the light of the denomination on a candle stick; created a Delphos for the whole church; located the CHRISTIAN SUN; stirred the young people of the church to real activity; made a model Sunday school as an example to the churches; and now steers the church on time's great sea toward heaven's safe harbor.

W. W. STALEY.

If ever a man needs religion in his work, it is the dean. Now by religion I do not mean a heavenly life insurance policy, which a man sees to once for all, and then goes about his daily task: I mean a life principle. Religion is a jealous thing: it must either have first place in a man's heart, or no place. It cannot be subordinate to any other aim, impulse, or passion. It accepts no compromises. It must either be the master of a man, his great guiding principle, or it is worse than worthless. Christianity is either the most important fact in the world, or it is a myth, like the stories of Mars and Venus. Thus I believe that the so-called denominational colleges have accomplished and are accomplishing vast results for good in our country. For they really believe in something, and stand for something. I hope it is not true, as is often stated, that some of them have really changed their principles to obtain money, selling their birthright for a mess of pottage.—William Lyon Phelps.

My belief in daily chapel is based on the belief that the foundation of a college education should be religious.—Wm. Lyon Phelps.

TRAINED MINISTERS.—TRAINED LAITY.

Increased Self-Respect.—Revealed our Ability as a People.—Built Better than We Knew.

Within the limits of a newspaper article it would be impossible to discuss all the ways in which Elon College has made its impress for good upon the Christian Church; so I shall confine myself, and briefly, to a few of the most striking benefits that have manifested themselves.

1. I believe I shall not be far wrong in saying that, in my judgment, the chief direct contribution of the College to the Church is the forty young ministers who have graduated there, and the few others who have spent a College to the church continue increasingly from year to year.

2. Perhaps not so visibly or directly, but none the less real, have been the blessings that have come to the church by Elon's gift to it of the one hundred-sixty-five other graduates, and hundreds more of trained young men and women who, after spending one or more years there, have gone out into the various other professions and vocations of life; and have set a-going in every nook and corner of the Convention beautiful streams of good influence that have nourished and strengthened every enterprise of the church. With these young men and young women to help in the local churches, there's always an intelligent and willing contingent to count upon in the furtherance of every good cause.

3. As a result of this increasing intelligence, ability and enthusiasm in the ministry and in the laity, the gift of Elon College, there has come to us all a greater degree of self-respect and self-confidence, which under divine direction, have made us love our church better, and increased our loyalty to the principles for which it stands. And along with this greater self-respect has come an increasing respect and consideration on the part of other denominations. Because of what Elon College has done for us we mean more to ourselves, and count for more in the eyes of the world in fulfilling the mission whereunto we are sent.

4. And, finally, as a direct result of all these good gifts comes the revelation to the church of its ability to do its part of the world's work. Largely by reason of the almost marvelous things that our people have undertaken and accomplished in the establishment, equipment and support of Elon College, the Christian Church, South, has, during the past two decades, "lengthened its cords and strengthened its stakes," beyond even the fondest dreams of most of our loyal leaders of even a quarter of a century ago. We have learned that we have the money for missions and education and all the other forward movements of the church, and that our people are ready and liberal in response to every worthy call.

Our leaders builded even wiser than they themselves knew, when they established Elon College. They expected great things, but God has given us even greater. Verily, today the Christian Church, in contemplating the great foundation which it has laid at Elon College, may realize as never before the blessed assurance contained in Luke 6:38: "Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom."

E. L. MOFFITT.

Whatever may be our notion of a college education, and almost every expert has a different one, culture without character is a poor thing. Unless the majority of students are actually better men when they graduate than when they enter, the college is a failure.—William Lyon Phelps, Formerly Instructor in English at Harvard University.

E. L. MOFFITT, LL. D.

Third President. Builder of the West Dormitory and Power House. Modern Conveniences Installed under His Administration. 1905-1911.

year or more in special training for the pastoral work of the church. All these young men—except two who have left the church—have gone out into the several conferences, and have carried with them that enthusiasm and ability that have meant so much to every enterprise of the church. They have stood shoulder to shoulder with the older ministers who have made Elon College possible, and have given them new courage for the great work which they had been struggling with for so many years, comparatively alone. There is not a conference within the bounds of the Southern Christian Convention that has not been greatly encouraged and quickened and blessed by the coming of these consecrated, enthusiastic, loyal and capable young men into the ranks of its ministry. May this sort of contribution from the

What the Church Has Done for Elon

A MARVELOUS GROWTH.

Due to a Marvelous Support by a Marvelous People.

My distinguished and worthy predecessors in office, Presidents Long, Staley, and Moffitt—a trinity of great names—have written with eloquence and conviction on Elon's Contribution to the Church. The SUN's genial Editor has suggested a theme on which I am delighted to write—What the Church Has Done for Elon.

And in the very beginning I may say that like every parent in his sacrifices for his child, the Church has done far more for Elon than Elon has done, or can do, for the Church, in that the Church conceived the institution and gave its being and life and even now sustains its life. Per contra, it is the filial duty of this child to render due thanks in the form of devoted service to its devoted mother. And I say devoted advisedly, because no Church of any name or order has ever done a more worthy part by one of its foster institutions than the Christian Church has done by Elon.

The sacrifice entailed in the establishment of the College can never be fully told in this life. How that widowed washer-women gave of their hard-earned store to erect an institution that would never be honored with one of their children as a student is enough to bring tears from the Christian's heart, who today views the consequence of such sacrifices in the magnificent institution that crowns the campus provided by the munificence of a devout layman whose life is still spared among his people. Truly it may be said that every man did his full duty and gave with hilarity, with laughter in his heart as well as smiles on his face. The beauty of it all is that such sacrifice is treasure laid up in Heaven for the donors, and many a benefactor of Elon will find more stars in his crown by reason of his generous liberality toward it.

Twenty-two years passed and it became necessary for this foster mother to come to the financial necessity of her child. Fifty thousand dollars were needed to rid her of debt incurred in additions to the physical plant of the College. The friends literally tumbled over themselves in the delight at giving to a cause so worthy. Seven hundred and nineteen of them came to the rescue. Great sacrifices were made. Widows had their glorious share—God bless the widows! And those whom the Lord had blessed with large means gave splendidly to place the institution on its feet financially. How can the College repay this inspiring response to its necessity? Surely it will be devoted to the interests of that Brotherhood whose individual members thus opened up the way to large things.

But larger necessities were upon the institution. Her sister colleges had added to their advantages the means of scientific physical culture in the form of adequate gymnasial equipment. Should Elon take a back seat? She had never done it. The Board of Trustees said she should never do it. They voted to erect a gymnasium for men embodying dormitory facilities and to trust divine guidance to pay for it. Their faith was not misplaced, for last June the Alumni Association met in that great building and under the inspiration of the occasion voluntarily asked to be allowed to assume the obligation to pay for it, the Class of 1913 having already set the pace in subscribing over a thousand dollars in that direction. The Board of Trustees graciously acquiesced, and were so jubilant that two other needs were immediately provided for with the same confidence in divine assistance to meet the obligation thus incurred.

These were a building for young women who must have the cheapest possible boarding facilities in order to go to College and an adequate water supply with fire protection. The Board authorized the erection last year of the Young Men's Club House, where they could support from a marvelous people.

The College plant is now conservatively estimated to be worth $300,000—at least the representative of a great corporation having to do with the valuation of Colleges gave it as his opinion that it was safely worth that amount. And this plant has been supplied with every modern convenience—steam heat, electric lights, baths, sewage, pure water—in respect to which conveniences no College is better appointed.

But this is not all. For each year the Conferences undertake to raise $1,800 for the current expenses of the institution and an endowment of more than $30,000 has been provided. Students, too, have been sent in large abundance and last year three hundred-fifty-eight were matriculated, than which number only two N. C. Church Colleges had more, notwithstanding Elon is a comparatively young institution. Surely no child ever had a more generous parentage than this College, and it shall be its great pleasure to do the things that will help and please and honor that parentage.

W. A. HARPER.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

Dr. J. U. Newman, Dean of the College, has returned from his trip to Northfield, Mass. The Doctor visited several places familiar to him in former days on his trip and reports a most enjoyable vacation.

Mrs. Sadie Jones, Matron of the Ladies' Hall, visited her people in Wake County last week. Mrs. Jones has conducted the general boarding house of the village this summer and will move into the new Ladies' Hall building the latter part of this week.

President Harper, Uncle Wellons, Mrs. W. P. Lawrence, Rev. E. M. Carter, Dr. G. S. Watson, and Rev. J. O. Atkinson attended the funeral of Major Elijah Moffitt in Asheboro Monday.

Mrs. Laura Lee, Everett, Pa., arrives this week to take charge of the Young Men's Co-operative Boarding Club. Mrs. Lee comes highly recommended and we have every reason to believe that her coming is the College's gain.

Mr. A. E. Stone, a traveling salesman with headquarters in Raleigh, was here Monday and made arrangements to enter his son and daughter September 4th. Mr. Stone was highly impressed with the College and we are glad to enlist him as a patron.

Every effort is being put forth to have things in proper shape for the opening of the College next week. Applications continue to come in and a successful year is evident. The friends of the College have been loyal this summer and the work in the President's office is a positive proof of the same. It is not too late for many new students to be located. Will those on the firing line continue the good work?

C. B. R.

—Rev. I. W. Johnson, D. D., pastor, assisted by Rev. Chas. H. Rowland, D. D., closed a meeting of unusual power and results last week at Oakland church, Chuckatuck, Va. There were about seventy-five confessions, and fortyeight united with the church.

W. A. HARPER

Elon's Fourth and Present President. His Administration Began June, 1911.

secure good, plain, substantial board at cost. It felt that it must do the same for the young women of the Church. It has done it, and God will provide the women to fill it and the way to pay for it. The Board also voted for the construction of a 50,000 gallon steel tank on a seventy-foot steel tower—an absolute essential for an adequate water system for the College plant and certainly a justifiable investment as the means of a better fire protection.

In twenty-four years, then, the Church has provided a plant for its College that is the marvel and the pride of its every member. This plant has grown from the Administration Building and East Dormitory in 1889 to seven magnificent structures especially designed for their purposes in 1913—a marvelous growth and a growth impossible without a marvelous

Thomas Jefferson's Great Mistake

*A GREAT POLITICAL LEADER

But a Poor Educational Prophet.—Jefferson Aimed at a New Type of Education.

Thomas Jefferson was not only the author of the Declaration of Independence, but the founder of the University of Virginia, and in this latter accomplishment he took an even greater pride than in the former. Jefferson had been educated in France and the free-thought philosophy which then infected French

Bible not be taught in these institutions, but they will not even give credit for it for entrance to their graduate schools when studied in the Christian College by those applying for entrance. These things are presumably so in all the States. So that it is not a case of religious freedom, but of freedom from religion, that we find in our State institutions of higher learning. Do not misunderstand me. I am not saying that all the teachers in such institutions are irreligious. I know many men and women in them who are devout Christians, but some of them are irreligious and, though I regret to say it, not all are able to be freed from the charge of dissoluteness. The State institution, whose cementing bond is patriotism, can make of religion only an incident. In order for spiritual life to ripen in its fullness, the very atmosphere environmenting the young must be tense with religious sentiment. It is not so much the lack of religious instruction in the State institution as the absence of the religious atmosphere that unfits it for developing the noblest type of Christian manhood.

Jefferson's Educational Aim Impossible and Inconsistent.

The trouble with Jefferson's aim is that it conditions of naturalization. These two provisions of our fundamental law argue, and that, too, rightly, that preparation is necessary for the profitable enjoyment of civil liberty. Jefferson knew the folly of granting the suffrage to boys and immature young men and to adults reared in an atmosphere not conducive to training for free suffrage, and if he did not know, the supreme folly of negro suffrage has since taught us the lesson. Seeing with such unerring accuracy the unconditional necessity for a long apprenticeship before the privileges of civil freedom could be profitably invested in men, how could Jefferson with such blindness confer the privileges of religious freedom on persons immature and untrained for it? The inconsistency is inexplicable and the consequences of it alarming in extent and in spiritual poverty.

Its Consequences Deplorable.

In the public schools of many States, for example, the Bible cannot be read nor prayer offered. In many others it can be read, but no explanation offered or prayer made. But there is no law against teaching things inimical to the Bible, and teachers have been frequently known to go out of their way to criticize the Bible and the Church nor have the Christian people any redress against this paralyzing condition. In seeking for a false liberty in religion, we have given up what religious instruction we had in our public schools. That is serious enough, but that is not the worst of it. We have not only given up our right to have our children instructed religiously, but we have acquired the chance of having them instructed irreligiously. It is true that the home and Sunday school and other church auxiliaries can counteract the irreligious tendency in our public schools, but does it and ought it to have it to do? And how are we to correct it in the institutions of higher learning, with the home influence removed? When we pay our money for education, haven't we the education fastened its tentacles upon his mind. He believed in freedom and realizing that all the institutions of higher learning in his country were controlled by the Church, he felt that religious thought could not be free unless religious control were in some way removed from the Colleges and Universities. He therefore founded the University of Virginia with this distinct aim in view, believing that a new type of Christian man would result in this atmosphere of religious freedom.

THE NEW WEST DORMITORY OR YOUNG LADIES' HALL

The Latest Addition to the College Plant. Will Furnish Young Ladies with Board on the Co-operative Basis at Cost. Estimated to Cost about $60.

And the People Took on to It.

Since his day the various States have been establishing their universities, technical schools, normal schools, all based upon the same philosophy and all inspired with the same purpose. The public school system in its primary, secondary, and high school grades is directed to the same end. The people did not object to the expenditure of their money on these enterprises, because they believed in freedom in politics and tolerance in religion, and inherently felt that Church and State should be separated. We believe the same, but experience has taught us certain facts in respect to the matter which they did not perceive. For they did not realize that in accepting Jefferson's doctrine they were cutting off the possibility of religious instruction for their children and opening up the way for the sure entrance of instruction inimical to the very existence of the religious life. But they were. The thing was insidiously done, done with the hilarious acclamations of praise of the citizens, who were charmed with that sweet-sounding word, freedom, but it was done nevertheless.

But Got What They Had not Planned For.

President Van Hise, of the University of Wisconsin, says: "Religious instruction in the University of Wisconsin is impossible under the State Constitution." Not only can the cannot be realized, and as wise a man as he should have known it. He was the advocate of civil liberty, but he gave the man no exercise of the rights of suffrage till he should be twenty-one years of age and denied to adult individuals coming from foreign lands the rights of citizenship till they had met with the right to say what kind of education it shall be? But we have forfeited that right, if we wish religious instruction, because the courts have frequently held that the Bible is a sectarian

THE YOUNG MEN'S CLUB HOUSE

This Building, Erected in Summer of 1912, Furnishes Good Board at Cost. The Matron's Room and Kitchen and Dining Hall are in this Building. The Young Men Dining Here Room in the Dormitories or in Town.

(Continued on Page 9.)

*Delivered by President Harper before the Virginia Valley Central Conference, Aug. 16, 1913.

Some of Elon's Unparalleled Advantages as

CHRISTIAN SPIRIT SUPREME.

Unsurpassed Equipment.—Sensible Athletics.

In speaking of the advantages at Elon one could take much space, for her advantages are many. But briefly one may say Elon is a place for young men and women—a place where they may labor preparing for the higher pursuits of life. And in preparing them for life, one should first note its strong endeavor for Christian influences—which matter is insisted on from day to day. Elon teaches young people high ideals. No student goes to Elon and does not feel the presence of such an atmosphere. Elon is a place of peace, not a place of unhappiness—a place where faculty and students co-operate, each working to the other's advantage.

Literary work at Elon is thorough in every branch, with a Faculty of strong, learned men and women who love their work and love to labor to see the College prosper, who are willing to toil through difficulty that Elon's young men and women may grasp the truths they, from day to day, come in contact with. The Faculty is ever ready to help when help is needed. With firmness they go about each duty. Hard work is their delight, believing in right deeds, deeds of helpfulness to all and the development of manly and womanly character.

Elon is a place of health and of beauty, with a beautiful campus covered with native oaks. The buildings are new and well equipped with every convenience.

Elon is a place where all can enjoy themselves at the time for enjoyment, and a place for work in the time for work—a home-like place to every student. Everything is neatly kept, each building is under a proctor's care, who sees that everything is in good condition. The conduct in the buildings is good, and each dormitory is a nice, quiet place for study. Elon is a place where there is but little need of medical attention, with its pure cold water from the deep well. And the pleasant climate makes life at Elon exceedingly enjoyable.

Elon believes not only in mental and moral development, but physical as well. With well equipped gymnasias and good athletic fields, we are true believers in athletics. Athletics at Elon is pure and clean. Our teams are all of College boys only—boys who work hard and make the teams merely on their merits. Our teams are strong and very prosperous. No college has purer athletics or better advantages for athletics than Elon.

The College is young, bright, and prosperous. The great good name she has won, which reaches far, has been made by the diligent work of a loyal Faculty, working with a student body in greatest harmony and co-operation. Elon is a place loved by all students and all who know her. May we all strive to make Elon even greater, and may we hear the shout from many other voices—Elon for me!

C. C. JOHNSON.

Siler City, N. C.

STUDENTS LIVE AS BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

No Hazing.—Moral and Spiritual Atmosphere Beautiful.

A few days ago I was talking with a young man in my community about going to Elon. The young man replied to me in this way: "Is the student body in a college as distant towards a new fellow as it is in a preparatory school?" I asked him to explain. He went on to say that he had attended a preparatory school and had found that the students would not give a new fellow any encouragement. They would rather haze him in some way than to lend him assistance. Then I said to the young man that I understood what he had reference to. I told him at once that such conduct as he had reference to was not carried on at Elon, but when I vouch for the student-body at Elon I don't vouch for all college student bodies.

At Elon a young man or a young woman can not do a better thing than to come in as close contact with the student body as possible; for it means for him the very best social advantages that can be found anywhere. Expercome to Elon who seemed upon their arrival to be up to any kind of indulgence. They would seek strong drink and all other filthy and bad habits; but after staying there a while and learning that the sentiment of the student body was against it, they stopped it. A student of that type at Elon is not recognized by the student body as being of good moral standing. So if there is anyone who wants to improve on his morals, he can not do a better thing than mingle for a few years with Elon students. But if he wishes the opposite effect, he should not go to Elon.

The spiritual training as well as the moral training among the students is unsurpassed. If you will look on the first page of the summer bulletin gotten out by Elon's president, you will find there what Karl Lehman said about the spirit at Elon.

Our Y. M. C. A. which is run by the students offers such advantages as can not be found elsewhere. Young men are induced to go to these meetings and take part. We have had a goodly number of young men to offer up the first prayer there.

that they ever offered in their lives. Why did they do it? Simply because they could not resist the spiritual influence which their fellow students exerted. Whatever holds true with reference to the Y. M. C. A. holds true with reference to the Y. W. C. A. and the other religious organizations as well.

With such advantages as are offered at Elon by the students no one can go there and spend any length of time without coming away better socially, morally, and spiritually.

F. F. MYRICK.

THE MAGNIFICENT WEST DORMITORY

Equipped with Every Modern Convenience. Here Young Ladies of the College enjoy Every Advantage, with Home Surroundings, at the Extremely Moderate Rate of $125.00 for Board and Living Expenses.

ience has taught me this lesson, and I wish to unfold it to everyone who is anticipating going to Elon. There you meet with students of the very best social type from the various parts of our land. Consequently you learn their ways and they learn yours; and you soon have worked out for yourself a true type of social character which you otherwise could not have worked out.

The upper and the lower classmen associate together more than they do probably in some other institution. This of course is due to loyalty. You don't find a student body anywhere so loyal to one another as they are at Elon. Students consider their fellow students as brothers, and not as distant relatives.

The literary societies are run solely by the students. They meet once a week and put into practice the principles learned from day to day in the class rooms under the careful hands of the professors. Thus the Freshman has the opportunity of grasping principles that a Senior has just grasped. This he could not otherwise do before reaching his Senior year.

There is a moral atmosphere among the students unsurpassed. I have seen young men erature is not intended to enhance a man's social value, and the study of English composition is not intended to produce creative writers any more than the study of Geology is meant to make successful miners, or the study of Political Science to produce capitalists. I suppose the two greatest teachers of Political Science this country has ever seen were Professor W. G. Sumner and Professor Arthur T. Hadley, both of Yale. I had the privilege of studying under both men, as an undergraduate and as a graduate student. Yet I think I have no more cash in my pocket now than if I had never attended their courses. But the remarks of those teachers in the classroom—the superfluous wealth of splendid minds—are part of my mental furniture to this day.—William Lyon Phelps.

On August 5 Sir Edward Grey stated in the British Parliament that the refusal of Great Britain to participate in the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco had no political significance, the reason being that the government did not wish to ask the country to incur the expense involved.

Seen by Three Members of Its Student Body

ADVANTAGES SHOULD BE SOUGHT FOR.

Students Genuinely Welcomed.—Close Contact With Faculty.—Character Growth Aimed at.—Unparalleled Rates.

All living creatures seem to be endowed with a sense of desiring advantages. Throughout the animal kingdom we see the different things hunting for its advantage. Likewise with the spiritual animal—man; he hunts and seeks out every advantage possible for his comfort and care. The farmer purchases his farm near the good market and where the country is well watered. The merchant builds his store house where the passing public drifts and where conveniences for his customers may be had. And in every phase of life, and with every human being, this spirit may be seen. Some abuse this desire by cultivating it in such a manner as to allow it to want more than is due us, but shall we condemn this spirit of our nature and call it selfishness, greed or gain? Certainly not, for this it is which gives aid to progress and assistance to systematic laws.

Perhaps no time in our lives should we let the spirit of advantage control as that time when our lives are being molded and shaped to serve well our native land in whatever path of duty we may be called. Not that the spirit of selfishness, but that the desire to make use of the many opportunities about us should be one motive in this endeavor. And certainly this formative period comes in the days of College training—a time when young men and women fix firmly the ruling motives of their lives. So the great importance of a place for this College training is a consideration worth while and no easy thing for parents to decide.

To those looking for a place for themselves, or for others, we commend Elon College and give our reasons by naming advantages which all clear minded people should and do seek to obtain.

(1) Elon students are always welcomed, not only to the College buildings, but to the homes of the village; homes in which godly men and women live and make life a pleasant and happy thing.

(2) The students and professors not only meet in the class room, but many a young man at Elon has been counseled by his teacher by the latter's fireside, and lasting friendship formed.

(3) Many a young man comes to Elon who would be rude and rough were it not for the fact that he soon finds himself alone, either to reform or hunt another school.

(4) Co-education, a thing greatly misunderstood by many, works like a charm at Elon College. The social advantages offered are of such a nature as to cultivate the higher and nobler desires in the student. The fact that young men and women meet on class cultivates a spirit of industrialism and the struggle to best each other creates a desire for study.

(5) Elon's rates cannot be duplicated. $125.00 will pay your table board, room rent, electric lights, baths, and servants' attendance for one year, ten months, in the College Boarding Department. Last year the table board for the young men of the Club cost about $6.50 the month. The young ladies who occupied the Ladies' Hall last year paid $7.07 the month. This paid for table board, room rent, fuel, lights, water, matron's services, 'phone rent and miscellaneous expenses.

These advantages which we mention are only among the many at Elon, and we shall be glad to answer any personal question of any prospective student. C. B. RIDDLE.

A GREAT POLITICAL LEADER.

(Continued from Page 7.)

book and its teachings are sectarian and therefore cannot be given in the public school system, whether of the secondary or of the higher order. And yet we repeat, there is no court that has yet forbidden any teacher in these schools to find flaws in the Bible. We have their public schools and rounded out the educational system with their institutions of higher learning and their technical and normal schools. They have gone further and introduced an economic reason for patronizing these institutions by granting free tuition to all who will fulfill certain trivial conditions. This is a frank acknowledgment of their inability to secure patronage in open competition and so they take the money out of your pocket and mine to buy it. And many are decoyed by this practice into sending their children, who would much prefer the spiritual environment of the Church College. A little investigation, however, will show that, even with free tuition, education in them will cost more than in the Church College, where the life is simple and the demand for extras reduced to a vanishing point. And further the State frequently discriminates against graduates of Church institutions in favor of the graduates of its own schools in the matter of certification of teachers—another frank admission of their inability to secure patronage under normal conditions of open, free, fair competition.

Behold a New Educational Power—Carnegie's Money!

But even this is not all. For recently there has appeared on the educational horizon a spectacle not before seen in the world's history—the spectacle of a man immensely rich buying the Church Colleges and Universities away from their allegiance to the bodies creating and so far supporting them through offers of retiring allowances for their decrepit teachers and other good and valuable considerations. And last year thirty-three Colleges and five Universities were false to the pledges given in their foundation in order to dwell in the tents of the wicked, and I use this word wicked advisedly, because an ancient commandment, if I mistake not, enjoins upon honorable people not to steal. One of the most disreputable things that has happened recently in the educational world was the attempt of this same man to wrest from the Methodist Church the control of the Medical Department of Vanderbilt University by the offer of a large sum of money made through steel, and the bishops of that Church in a published statement with due severity properly characterized him as "an agnostic steel monger," making an "impudent proposal," which is "not so much a donation as an attempt to denature the institution."

Higher Education Impossible Without Bias for or Against the Church.

But to return to our original statement that Mr. Jefferson's aim of education for the young with religious freedom is impossible of realization, we have to remark first that it is impossible to teach literature, science, philosophy, history, social science, pedagogy, psychology, ethics, and kindred branches, all of which find

(Continued on Page 14.)

THE ALUMNI BUILDING

Erected during 1912-1913—the Finest Gymnasium and Dormitory Building in the State.

The Gift of the Alumni Association. Ninety-four Young Men Reside Here.

sold our religious birthright for a mess of liberty-seasoned pottage.

Blind Leaders of the Blind.

The National Educational Association gives large space in its annual programs to problems of school and college administration, to technical education, to vocational training, to the futility of classical education, to the study of child nature, to the problems of adolescence, but is silent in respect to the need of religious instruction. This association is our highest educational body. It is representative of the educational thought of the day. And in that thought there is no space for the consideration of religious instruction. Not only do we not have this instruction, but we do not even realize that we need it. Truly do the educational leaders of our day need to see a great light and they can find it in the simple language of Holy Writ in many places, but nowhere more plainly stated than in Proverbs 22:6: "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." And we all need to realize that "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

Frank Acknowledgment of Incapacity.

But the States have not only established

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: AUG. 31.

Notes for the Busy Man on Next Sunday's Subject.

Topic.—Israel at Mt. Sinai. Ex. 19:1-21.

Time.—In the third month after the Passover. Scholars differ as to the year, from B. C. 1498 to 1276.

Place.—Mount Sinai.

Persons.—Moses, the Israelites.

Golden Text.—Let us have grace, whereby we may offer service well-pleasing to God with reverence and awe.—Heb. 12:28.

Leading Thought.—God will help us to know and do his will.

As the Israelites approached the Sinai Mountains they camped at Rephidim, and were there attacked by the Amalekites, the most powerful people in the Sinaitic Peninsula, a tribe that often ventured even to attack Egypt. They would not allow the Israelites to encroach upon their territory and use their pasturage without a struggle. During the battle Moses took up his position on a hill where he could be seen by his soldiers, and held up his wonder-working rod, to encourage them with memories of what God had done for them, and also as a visible symbol of prayer for God's all-powerful aid. As Moses grew weary, Aaron and Hur whom Josephus calls the husband of Miriam held up his hands, and thus established for all times a synonym for faithful helpers. Thus was the battle won—a battle on which the fate of Israel seemed to depend.

The Israelites came to the Sinai region just two months after their start from Egypt, in the latter part of May or early in June, and they remained at Sinai for eleven months. The traditional Sinai is Jebel Mousa, as it is now called, or "Mountain of Moses," 7,363 feet above the sea, and the center of a wild region through which, usually, the Israelites were scattered, finding pasturage for their cattle. The scenery among these granite mountains, hemming in little and fertile valleys, is superb. On Jebel Mousa is a precipitous bluff, 2,330 feet above the plain below. In this plain the Israelites were probably encamped, and the law was proclaimed from the bluff above.

"I bare you on eagles' wings" (v. 4) refers to the habit of the eagles to carry their young over the forests and mountains where they could not go unaided. "Peculiar treasure" (v. 5) signifies that the Israelites were to be set apart as God's own people, the special messengers of the Most High to men. For this purpose every Israelite was to consider himself a priest.

QUESTION REVIEW.

1. Who of you visited some mountainous region this summer? I hope that while there, you felt, as the ancients always did, that mountains lift one specially near to God.
2. In what mountain did Moses meet God when he was pasturing the sheep of his father-in-law? (Mt. Horeb.)
3. What promise about that mountain was then given Moses? (That Israelites led by him should worship God in that mountain.)
4. You have found that the mountain had another name. What name was given it in today's lesson? (Mount Sinai.)
5. Where was the great company of Israelites encamped? (In the plain at the foot of the mountain.)
6. Who was to meet them there?
7. How had God already shown his wish to make Israel his people?
8. How were the people to prepare for meeting

God?

9. How was God's presence manifested?

LESSON ANNOUNCEMENT.

Next Sunday we are to have the story of how we got the laws by which we are governed today. Every state and province has its own laws. Every city has many ordinances. But the foundation of all laws is found in a few very ancient laws which we are to study next Sunday. The countries and the cities that keep these laws most fully are the happiest and most prosperous places. The places which do not know them or do not keep them are heathen places, or the rough, unsafe, unpleasant corners of civilized lands. These laws mean everything to a community and to an individual.

I wish the boys and girls would find out what sort of Sabbath rest laws we have in our State and whether they are satisfactory to most people. Also find out what businesses are not affected by the Sabbath law and why.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR LESSON: SEPT. 7.

Topic: "The Ideal Christian.—IX. His Faith."

1 John 5:1-15. (Consecration Meeting.)

What is faith? Some one defined it as doing God's will and asking no questions. Another said, "Grasping Christ by the hand." Luther said it was trusting God in the dark. Let the leader explain that there are various grades of faith; strong confidence or weak, according as we really trust the person in whom we have faith.

Let the leader briefly show that faith is the commonest possession of man. We trust our senses, although they often deceive us. The merchant trusts his ships and his captains; the banker trusts the man to whom he lends money; the shop-keeper sells on trust; so does the wholesale merchant. Give a few more simple examples of faith. Religious faith is simply trust in God and in Christ. The more we know God, the better shall we love Him and the more shall we trust Him.

The child lying by its mother's side asks, "When will it be light?" "It will be light after a while," replies the mother, and the child slips its hand into mother's hand and is content to wait. So, in the darkness of this world, hedged about by mysteries, we can slip our hand in God's hand and wait until the promised light comes.

A Christian Zulu illustrated faith in the following way. In Zululand men carry people across rivers when the water is high. Before starting, the traveller is told to take a firm hold. Those that obey, and have confidence in the guide, reach the other side; those that lose confidence and loosen their hold perish. Faith is keeping a tight hold of Christ.

A child is feeding pigeons on Boston Common. One fowl, holder than the rest, sits on her wrist. It has confidence. Needless to say, it gets more than the other pigeons that flutter away in fear. The one that trusts God gets most from Him.

One day at prayer meeting a Korean deacon startled everybody present by proposing that the Koreans build a church without foreign aid. The missionary asked, "Can you do it?" The deacon replied, "We can ask such questions as 'Can you do it?' about men's work, but not about God's." There was faith.

Children's Missionary Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions For Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDREN

The
Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

SUGGESTIVE THOUGHTS.

"Nothing is harder than trusting—in the dark; but that is faith."

"The highest compliment you can pay any one is to repose perfect faith in him."

"Faith is born of experience; your faith in God will increase as you live with God."

"Obedience is the air that faith breathes; when obedience fails, faith dies."

"You believe a telegram that comes to you from a thousand miles away, and through the air; why should you have less confidence in a message direct from God to your conscience?"

"Faith in an automobile comes from riding in it, trusting one's self to it. In the same way we get faith in the promises of God."

"Deadly forces are many of them invisible, like typhoid germs; so are the mightiest forces of life."

"Soldiers get faith in their commander by fighting under him. In that same way we get faith in God."

CLASS RAISES MONEY BY FARMING.

Last spring the young men's class of the First Baptist Sunday school of Olathe, Kans., took it upon themselves to raise funds to install a furnace in the new church.

After discussing many plans, they decided to rent a piece of land and raise corn. Ed Hoff, a farmer who belonged to the class, offered to rent them twenty acres, furnish a team, and give them two-thirds.

A schedule was made out so that certain members were responsible for the work from April to May. Another division took the corn through May, and a third through June. The first division went out, one or two men at a time, and broke the ground; other members of the division took turns at planting it. The second and third divisions carried it through cultivation.

On the whole it required hardly two days' work for each member of the class. Then in the fall, all turned out and made a regular picnic of gathering. The corn averaged fifty bushels to the acre, which gave them for their share of the crop about six hundred and eighty bushels. This they sold for three hundred and forty dollars.

CHURCH NEWS.

GRACE'S CHAPEL.

We began our revival at Grace's Chapel second Sunday in August and continued through Friday. Brother H. Shelton Smith, of McCleasville, N. C., was with me and rendered much service. Bro. Smith is one of the best personal workers with whom I ever labored. He spends much time in prayer. I feel that a great deal of good has been accomplished by his being with us at Grace's Chapel. He has won, not only many friends among us, but we believe, stars in his crown. In answer to our prayers God blessed twenty souls and caused them to rejoice in the forgiveness of their sins. Seven united with the church.

B. J. EARP, Pastor.

INGRAM, VIRGINIA.

Ingram, Va., is one of our very best churches with a small membership. I have been pastor of this church six years, and I will say that I never served a church with more ease and pleasure. I find in this church some of the purest and best Christian people. My relations with this church as pastor have been the most pleasant in every respect. Full harmony has prevailed through all these years. The needs of this church are such as to call a pastor who can meet his appointments here in his private conveyance, as the church is so far from the railroad.

I am very anxious for some good pastor to locate in South Boston or somewhere and reach the work on buggy so he can do the pastoral work that is really necessary. This is a good church and there are other churches in reach of this one that might unite in a pastorate and locate a pastor in their midst. This would be quite a saving to the pastor. I am paying $150 railroad fare to my churches annually. This would pay my house rent. The Christian church needs the pastorate system. I fully believe this would be best for both pastors and churches. We pastors could do better work and it would be easier on our churches, and they could do more for their pastors in supplies. It seems to me that our strong churches might do good mission work in uniting with weaker churches and locate a good pastor and give the smaller church the same benefits with enlarged opportunities and in this way our weak might soon be built up and made strong. I regard this matter of vital importance to our cause. I have no selfish purpose in view but as I see it this is the best interest in the Christian church. I have been trying for three years to get some one to locate in this field. Can't this be done?

S. B. KLAPP, Pastor.

Greensboro, N. C., August 15, 1913.

ROANOKE, ALABAMA.

Our meeting began at Corinth Saturday before the third Sunday in July and continued until the following Saturday. It came to a close with six additions to the church. The house was filled to overflowing most of the time and the interest was good throughout the meeting.

The good people of Corinth need some help to build them a new home. We have asked through THE SUN once for help and our good brother Almon, of Culman Co., was the only one to respond; but we thank brother Almon very much for his help. Brethren, we need your help and we would appreciate a contribution of any amount from you. We need help, and we need it very much indeed.

On account of the death and burial of one of my neighbors, Bro. A. J. Osburn, I was not able to reach Forest Home until Sunday night of the fourth. Our meeting was good, but on account of my throat giving away we had to bring it to a close on Wednesday night.

Our meeting began at Mt. Zion on Saturday before the first Sunday in August, and continued until Thursday night following, when it closed, with three additions to the church and the church greatly revived. The baptismal service will take place the next first Sunday morning. Rev. W. R. Knight came and preached one time for us, and my father, Rev. C. M. Dollar, came and preached three times. Rev. T. J. Edmonson came to Corinth and preached for us twice and Rev. C. M. Carter twice.

Besides the joy of my own meetings I enjoyed a feast with Rev. C. M. Carter at my home church, Rock Springs, this past week. It was indeed a feast to me, for I was never in a meeting just like it before. It was the first time in several years that I had been at home in a meeting. I suppose that Bro. Carter will write of the meeting here.

J. D. DOLLAR.

THE VALUE TO YOUNG PEOPLE.

(Continued from Page 3.)

every Sunday, the pastor preaches earnestly, and souls are born into Christ and the church.

The Missionary Society is an inspiration to "Look up and not down," "Out and not in," and "Lend a hand." This is what the great world needs to bring brotherhood. It is exactly what every individual needs for his own development, for his own happiness.

When the young man joins the missionary society, he may have little idea what service God will require of him; but day by day his path will grow clearer and his fellowship with those of his own age in the society increase; he will find help and guidance and strength that will, before he is aware, transform him from a timid and sometimes awkward boy into a strong and useful man who may perchance find, to his own glad surprise, that the simple effort he has made to serve others has opened to him utterly unforeseen paths of usefulness and honor among his fellows and the conscious approval of the Lord and Savior who has helped him.—Rev. Ellen G. Gustin, in The Christian Missionary.

Representative Britten, of Illinois, introduced a resolution into the House on August 5th calling for an emergency appropriation sufficient for the construction of three battle-ships of the Dreadnought type

VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.

135 acres one-half mile northwest of Elon College, on macadam road. Good dwelling and outhouses. Good wheat, corn and tobacco land. Meadow and pastures with water. Well timbered. Will sell cheap.

J. W. CABLE, Elon College, N. C.

FOR SALE.

I offer my two story, six room dwelling, and farm of 53 acres, almost adjacent to College campus, for sale at reasonable price. A fine location for those wishing to educate their children. Correspondence solicited.

J. J. LAMBETH, Elon College, N. C.

STUDENTS, ATTENTION!

Students attending Elon College will find me fully prepared to supply their wants in dry goods, clothing, shoes, furnishings, etc., at less prices than same goods can be bought for in the cities. I am now handling the above lines exclusively, and am endeavoring to give the people and students of Elon a first class and up-to-date dry goods and furnishing store. You will find it to your advantage to trade in Elon.

Adv.

C. A. HUGHES.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

(Continued from Page 2.)

cieties, is an admirable book, and should be read by all our good women interested in missions. Our Women's Missionary Societies that have formed mission study classes will find the book exceedingly helpful and suggestive as a text book.

—Rev. "Gypsy" Smith, accounted the world's most noted and successful evangelist, is engaged to hold a meeting of ten days in Danville, Va., beginning September 14. Danville counts itself fortunate, as well it may, and is making great preparation to receive the great speaker, and give him favorable conditions under which to preach and labor for the winning of souls.

—The funeral services of the lamented Maj. Elijah Moffitt were conducted in the Presbyterian church, Asheboro, by THE SUN's editor, assisted by Revs. J. W. Wellons and E. M. Carter, the latter being Superintendent of the Orphanage of which Major Moffitt was a Trustee and life long friend. The music at the funeral was consoling, appropriate, comforting, and the floral offering was elaborate, suggestive and beautiful. The attendance was large. Surely had Bro. Moffitt found a large place in the hearts of his townsmen and the public.

—We are just in receipt of the following:—"Dear Readers of THE SUN: We, your missionaries in Ponce, (Porto Rico), feel compelled to take our furlough. It is now five years and eight months since we returned from the States last. Malaria has taken such a hold on us that it seems impossible to get rid of it without the change. The best arrangements that could be made have been made for the work, which will be left in the hands of the native workers. Pray earnestly for them and the work. We expect to sail on the Coamo, leaving San Juan August 20. Sincerely, D. P. and Eva O. Barrett."

—Rev. W. G. Clements, Morrisville, returned this week from the Valley of Virginia where he attended the annual conference at Winchester week before last and then spent several days visiting churches and also scenes of peculiar interest to him because of his experience as a soldier in '62-'65, having seen much service at the front there in those stormy days. Instead of farms laid waste by shell and bullet, as Bro. Clements left them 48 years ago, he found waving fields of growing grain, fine, fat cattle grazing on a hundred hills, plenty for man and beast on every hand, and a people prosperous, progressive, and happy. So does our heavenly Father seek to restore, for the bounty and blessing of man, that which war and wickedness have torn down.

—How has our Bible come down to us? is a question more easily asked than answered. Prof. John T. Faris justly observes: "No novelist ever conceived a romance so marvelous as the story of how God preserved His Word through the centuries. Fire, earthquake, and war have blotted many things out of existence, but the Bible hath withstood all opposing forces." It is indeed an interesting theme, this miracle of the ages, the preservation of our Bible in all its power and purity. We are just in receipt of an admirable brochure of over 30 pages from Rev. B. F. Vaughan, Centerville, Ohio, the versatile author of "Life and Writings of Rev. H. Y. Rush, D. D.," in which the story of "How Our Bible Has Come Down to Us" is admirably told. It is an absorbing, not to say thrilling story. The booklet can be obtained of Bro. Vaughan by sending him 6 cts. in stamps to cover cost of preparation and sending. A dozen can be had for 60 cents.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. E. M. CARTER, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

E. M. Carter, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amount brought forward$2,200.33
DUES.

Baird Moffitt$.25
Carrie Dunn10

MONTHLY S. S. OFFERING.

Ingram$ 2.00
New Hope, Va.66
Suffolk, Va. 25.00
Oak Grove, N. C.50
Rosemont, Va. 3.57
Timber Ridge 2.68
Antioch (R.) 1.67
Caryville, O. 1.10
Damascus 1.75

SPECIAL.

Miss May Lattimore (on support of Carl)$10.00
Mrs. Hattie Blanchard, (support of child) ... 3.00
Langdale, Ala., Class 5. 5.00
Tyler Bolling, work ... 2.00
Miss Jessie Wampler ... 1.00
Bethlehem (R.)50
Va. Valley Central Con. (collection) 5.35
Mrs. Bettie Andrews, (support of children). 1.50

MITE BOX.

Carrie Dunn$ 4.15 72.78
$2,273.11

Last week it was my privilege to attend the Valley of Virginia Central Conference. It was a privilege in two ways: the advantage of the trip, and the association with the brethren.

It was my first opportunity to visit our national capital; and then to be alone was not so much satisfaction. But I spent a day in the city visiting the capitol building, the park, the Library of Congress and the Senate Chamber. The Senate was in session, and was debating the Tariff, which we have heard so much about. The few minutes I was there I could see the rule, "Anything is fair in love and war," I believe is the old adage; but that was not exactly the idea in this, but "Anything is fair in politics." But every man has the right of an opinion and should be firm in his convictions.

The Conference was good. If I mistake not, and I think I am not wrong, every church except one raised all its apportionments. I do wish that could be realized in more of our Conferences. Talk about the condition of our Foreign Mission work—and I think it is alarming—but if all the conferences of the American Convention would lay an apportionment on their members and go about raising it, we would have better times in the mission fields.

Our beloved brethren, Revs. W. T. Walters, A. W. Andes and R. L. Williamson, are in the work, but need more help. Such is the condition in all our fields.

There are many of the people of the Valley Conference who are interested in our work, and we are looking for greater results from that section.

Mrs. Frank Shepherd gave us one peck of cucumbers and five chickens.

I am going to ask Dr. Atkinson to indulge me just a little further this week, that he will allow space enough for the selection, "Put Christ in Your Will," by Rev. J. E. Hutson, in Our Children. I think it is fine—some very strong truths in it.

Fondly,
E. M. CARTER, Supt.

Lawyers, Va., Aug. 11, 1913.

Dear Uncle Emory:—

I will send 10c. for my dues, also am sending money order for $4.15, which I got in my mite box. Hope it will help some. Wish I could have gotten more for the orphans, but this was my first attempt at begging. Hope I can do better next time. I see that others are asking for mite boxes, and hope they will have better success than I did.

With much love for you and your success at the orphanage.

As ever,

Your niece,
CARRIE DUNN.

Carrie, you have done such good work. I hope it will be encouraging to all the cousins.

Asheboro, N. C., Aug. 10, 1913.

Dear Uncle Emory:—

As I happened to think about the Orphanage, I decided to write a note. I am sending a quarter. Please send me a mite box. I am glad my plan was accepted and I will try to fill the box. There is nothing doing in Asheboro now. School will begin in a month.

Your friend,
BAIRD MOFFITT.

I am glad you are making this request and hope you will have good luck gathering the nickels and dimes for the Orphanage.

PUT CHRIST IN YOUR WILL.

It is customary for men of property to make out their wills before their death, and it is truly amazing that so few Christians remember the causes of Christ in the distribution of their goods and chattels.

It is greatly to be wondered at that any Christian man can die in peace, right upon the heels of having made an intensely selfish and worldly disposal of every fraction of that wealth, in the accumulation of which he had so often sought and found God's providential aid, and for the enjoyment of which he had so often returned thanks to the Almighty. Charity would suggest that the failure of a Christian to embrace the cause of Christ in his will results oftener than otherwise from mere oversight. But what an oversight! It tends rather to heighten than to diminish the marvel.

That one in a thousand might be supposed never to think of the numerous calls of Christian benevolence in the construction of his will, might be believed; but that one of a thousand should think upon these things, is almost incredible. For a man, under such circumstances, to be forgetful of his obligations to Christ, is as hard of belief as that the laborer should forget his meals or his wages. What, then, are we to conclude? Can it be possible that such forgetful professors are not real Christians? It were hard, in the main, so to believe, and yet the conclusion is inevitable. For a wealthy Christian, in the hour of death, to scatter his money right and left, and cast not a farthing into the treasury of the Lord, reminds us of the man who was told that his boss was dying, and had just said that he was going to Heaven. "O no," said he; "I guess that's a mistake about his going to Heaven. I know the 'Ole Boss' too well for that. Why, when he was up and about, and purposed to go anywhere, he would be talking about it for weeks beforehand. He would tell the shop-hands about it, speak of it to visitors and never tire of talking it over, and if he had had any thought of going to Heaven we'd have heard of it long before now." So for a dying Christian, momentarily expecting to appear before Christ, not to think of Christ's churches, colleges, Orphanages and Mission boards, would seem to indicate either that he is a hypocrite, or that he is of the number of those who are said to be saved "yet so as by fire." For ourselves, we are content that this reasoning should be understood to apply only to those Christians who should have something left after apportioning a reasonable competency to such friends and relatives as are usually embraced in the provision of a will. It is that "something left" which we contend the Christian should devote to the cause of Christ. But should it be asked, how are we to agree upon what shall constitute a "reasonable competency"? we answer and we believe our answer to be beyond the reach of cavil, that when a testator leaves to a man a sum of money, the lawful interest of which will afford him a respectable living,—say, in the style of the average lawyer or doctor—he has left him a "reasonable competency."

On this subject of will-making we wish to register our solemn protest against the unspeakable folly of deferring so important a matter to one's deathbed. If you have a will to make, make it now. Go today and attend to it. If your life should be prolonged, you can alter the document to suit any change of fortune for the better or the worse. The wise man is he who so distributes his wealth in his lifetime as that there shall be no need of a will to be wrangled over when he is dead. Having given your sons and daughters the best education they will take, start the former in life and make provision for the comfort of the latter. Now, look about you. Seek the highest joy this earth affords—it consists in Christian usefulness. From now until death consecrate your all to Christ. "Lay up for yourselves treasures in Heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal."—J. E. Hutson, in Our Children.

A SPLENDID FITTING SCHOOL.

Parents who have a son to prepare for college would be making a grave mistake were they not to consider the decided advantages for such work offered by the Oak Ridge Institute, Oak Ridge, N. C. This school is one of the most successful in the South today, and is in a region long noted for its healthfulness. It was established sixty years ago and has been under the present efficient management for 38 years.

The highest moral tone pervades the section and community and is a potent factor in the high type of Christian Manhood which the school turns out. President Elliot of Harvard University said: "Those schools prepare best for college which prepare at the same time for life," and the quality of this school's work is best evidenced by the prominent success which so many of its students have attained in life. A handsome catalog giving full information about its splendid buildings, equipment, courses, faculty, business training department, terms, etc., can be had free by addressing J. A. and M. H. Holt, Proprietors, Oak Ridge, N. C.

For the last four years the rooms have been reserved in advance and numbers of applicants turned away. Advt.

SPEND YOUR SUMMER

In The Glorious Mountains of Western North Carolina.

"The Land of the Sky"
"The Sapphire Country"

Where there is Health in Every Breath. The Climate is perfect the Year Round. In Spring and Summer the Region is Ideal.

Reached By

SOUTHERN RAILWAY

Solid Through Train, Including Parlor Car, between Goldsboro, Asheville and Waynesville Via Raleigh, Greensboro, Salisbury.

Other Convenient Through Car Arrangements.

SUMMER TOURIST TICKETS ON SALE UNTIL SEPTEMBER 30, 1913.

For complete information apply,

J. H. WOOD, D. P. A., Asheville, N. C.
R. H. DeBUTTS, D. P. A., Charlotte, N. C.
J. O. JONES, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.

THE BEAUTIFUL CHIMNEY ROCK GAP

REACHED VIA

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

Chimney Rock Gap has been for years famed for its beauty in both Song and Story.

Why not spend your vacation at one of the comfortable Hotels beautifully situated in this lovely valley?

Hotel Rates remarkably cheap, $5.00 to $10.00 per week.

THE SEABOARD'S NEW SCHEDULES make it EASY to get to Chimney Rock, Rutherfordton and surrounding Mountains. Write today for Booklet: James Ker, Jr., T. P. A., Charlotte, N. C. H. S. Leard, D. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.,

SIN COVERED OR CONFESSED—WHICH AND WHY?

Sin covered; it is an old story. It was attempted by the first sinners in the Garden of Eden. It was undertaken by the warrior Achan at the fall of Jericho. It was the endeavor of Ananias and Sapphira on the threshold of the new dispensation. Men try to hide their sins often by doing some good things. More often they do so by committing yet other sins; for instance, covering a half-truth with a lie and hiding theft by forgery. Perhaps this concealment of sin is due to a wrongness of view in regard to it. The sinner may sin under the impression that sin is insignificant, or that sinning is beneath God's notice, or that God is too good to punish sin. At all events, there is one well-nigh universal attempt to conceal sin.

Yet, sin is destructive. And it is destructive even here. There may be a secret iniquity lurking at the heart, but sooner or later it is likely to do its deadly work, just as the clinging serpent brought down the soaring eagle. It generally shows itself in the countenance of its victim, the lines of the face revealing the presence and power of sin in the heart. It shows itself in one's deeds, for however diligent he may be to shield from view the impurities in the fountain of his life, they will certainly appear in the stream of his conduct. Sin is destructive on one's whole being, weakening the body, dulling the mind, clouding the moral sense, and destroying the soul. Heavy falls the hand of retribution upon the sinner even in this life. But beyond the earth-life there is a period unending into which the sinner is to enter and give account of his sin. Stopford A. Brooks's fine poem entitled "Justice" sets forth most vividly the fact that sin's consequences are inescapable.

Three men went out one summer night,
No care had they or aim;
They dined and drank. "Ere we go home

We'll have," said they, "a game."

Three girls began that summer night
A life of endless shame,
And went through drink, disease and death

As swift as racing flame.

Lawless and homeless, foul, they died;
Rich, loved, and praised the men;
But when they all shall meet with God
And Justice speaks, what then?

"He that covereth his sins shall not prosper; but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy."

Sin confessed: that is the only way out of it. It is impossible to long hide one's sins from the world and certainly they are not for one moment concealed from the sinner himself or from the eye of an all-seeing God. Let the sinner, therefore, lay bare his heart before God even as David did in his penitential Psalms. Nor is it sufficient for one merely to say to God with his lips that he has sinned; for in his heart there must be renunciation of sin for Christ who is the Savior from sin. And this renunciation must not only form in the heart, but express itself in the life. Thus the confession will be made public so that all may know that the sinner has identified himself with his better nature and is seeking to live a true life.

If sin be genuinely confessed, it means that sin will be forsaken. Not that one will never sin again, but that in his inmost soul he detests sin and with all of his power will struggle against it. There is a definite and decisive severance from the old iniquity and visible entrance upon the Christian life. Profession is of itself powerless. Life must surpass lip service and character must interpret creed or sufficient evidence is not given of genuine conversion. Said Jesus to a sinner long ago, "Go, and sin no more." And today, He says the same thing to every penitent soul.

There remains but another point to consider: sin forgiven. There is here cleansing from corruption, pardon for iniquity, the utter blotting out of transgression, reinstating into divine favor, salvation from sin. Now the thunders of Sinai have ceased and the glow of Calvary irradiates the soul and illumines the life.

Sin covered means sin destructive; but sin confessed and forsaken means sin forgiven. Will you cover your sins and die, or confess them and live?—Biblical Recorder.

A MIRACLE IN MUSIC.

This is truly a wonderful age in which we are living. Who would have ever believed it possible to invent a piano which everybody can play, no matter whether they have ever studied music or not? Twenty years ago no one would have believed it possible. But now the self-player piano has been perfected and is recognized as the King of all musical instruments. Even a child can reproduce the masterpieces of the world's greatest composers. In the case of the Ludden & Bates Self-player Piano which is being supplied to members of the Christian Sun Piano Club the skill and ingenuity of the inventor have reached their climax. The action is superb and responds perfectly to the will of the performer.

This splendid instrument, consisting of the celebrated Ludden & Bates Cabinet Grand Upright Piano, into which is built the most perfect self-player mechanism ever devised, may be used either as a regular piano or a self-player. It thus serves the entire family not only as an entertainer but also as an educator in music. It is the greatest home-maker of modern times. The Club saves each member $153.00 on this instrument, thus bringing the price down to about what a first class piano would ordinarily cost.

If you would like to know more about the self-player piano and the Club's splendid offers address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Advt.

FEVERISHNESS AND ACIDITY
Suffer from Malarious conditions, Colic, Headache, try HICK'S CAPSULES. It cures the fever and relieves the acidity. 10, 25 and 50¢.

Help your church paper by getting a friend to subscribe for The Christian Sun.

INCREASE YOUR GRAIN YIELD.
Agricultural experts tell us that the quantity of grain grown per acre depends primarily upon an even stand of seed in planting. It is, therefore, of the greatest importance to use a thoroughly dependable seeder.
In the Farquhar Pennsylvania we offer a Drill especially adapted to Southern conditions. This machine sows all kinds of grain including rust-proof oats with absolute regularity. The grass seeder can be used either in front or behind the boots. Fertilizer attachment is of the positive force feed variety. Light of draft, durable—an implement that can be profitably employed on every farm.
Big new Catalog describing the Pennsylvania seeder mailed free on request. A postal will bring your copy of this instructive book along with full particulars of our special introductory proposition. For your own good, write us to-day.

A. B. FARQUHAR CO., Ltd.,
Box 306
York, Pa.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLE

LARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10½ x 12½ in.

Contains in addition to the Authorized Old and New Testaments, all the Sayings of Christ in Red; The Temple Library at Nippur; Names and Order of the Books of the Bible; Maps of Bible Lands; Pronouncing Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names; Comparative Systems of Scripture Chronology; History of the Period from the Close of the Sacred Canon of the Old Testament until the Times of the New Testament; Illuminated Marriage Certificate and Family Record; Chronological Index to the Bible; Concordance; Full-Page Dore Pictures, Half-Tones and in Colors, etc.

- No. 820 P. R. L. Bound in IMITATION OF LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Gilt Titles, Marbled Edges. (Weight, 12 lbs.) $2.10
- No. 822 P. R. L. Bound in SEMBLE LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Full Gilt Sides and Back, Gilt Edges. (Weight, 13 lbs.) 2.85
- No. 823 P. R. L. Bound in AMERICAN MOROCCO, Padded Sides, Rounded Corners on Cover, Gold Side & Back Titles, Gold Edges. (Weight, 15 lbs.) 5.00

HOLMAN RED LETTER

SELF-PRONOUNCING TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches.

THE TYPE.

23 The Bāb-y-lō' nī-anq, and all the Chāl-dē'anq, 'Pō'kōd, and Shō'a, and Kō'a, and all the Ās-sūr'i-anq with

- No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges $2.50
- No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges 3.00

Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENT

SELF-PRONOUNCING

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Daintiest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2½ x 4¼ inches.

THE TYPE.

- 5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the
- No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges50
- No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms75

Postage, 3 Cents.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

has often heard class-members say: "I cannot understand the Bible." They could not understand any other book that was printed three hundred years ago. So many English words of that day were different.

More than forty new dictionaries have been required since then, to keep up with the changes in the English language. The

American Standard Bible
Edited by the American Revision Committee
uses the words of our day, which make the meanings of the Bible writers clear to us.

Write for Our Free Booklet, "How We Got Our American Standard Bible"

No teacher can afford to be without it.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

A GREAT POLITICAL LEADER.

Continued from Page 9.)

liberal space in the curricula of both State and Church Colleges, without taking position for or against the Christian religion. In the Christian Colleges it is always for the Christian religion. In the State College and in the so-called free Colleges it is sometimes for the Christian religion. Elon in twenty-three years has graduated but one who was not a church member. Columbia University, one of our free Colleges, last year reported only one church member out of a class of six hundred. The reason for this is found in the contention we here make in respect to the studies of the curriculum. These branches of learning are so interwoven with Christian thought and life that there is absolutely no escape from making them tell tremendously in favor of the Church or with equal power against it. It is therefore a matter of religion or irreligion, of religious or irreligious instruction, in our institutions of higher learning. It cannot be non-religion, because there is no mid-way ground. Did not the Master Himself say: "He who is not for Me is against Me"? It is simply a question of which kind of instruction Christian parents desire for their children, and Mr. Jefferson's dream, based on the infidel philosophy of the France of his college days, cannot make it otherwise in its consequences — consequences freighted with life or death to the soul.

Because Religion Touches Life at Every Point.

One other fatal error of the Jeffersonian educational aim is embodied in its conception of religion as a separate department of life. But religion is no such thing. It is not a matter to be put on or off at will, but a spirit that enters into every department of life and is an ever-present force or it is nothing. It cannot be left at home when you go off to College and taken up when you return home. It is an abiding presence, giving its color to every act and thought of life, and nothing else can take its place without direful consequences to the spiritual man. The human heart demands religion all the time and must have it, or the life will not be full-orbed. Nor can the religious life be well-rounded unless the atmosphere of its daily duties is tense with spiritual power. It will not do to lug religion in from the outside, thus making it a secondary rather than a primary matter; but this is the best that can be done for it in the State School. If the State cannot provide this essential ingredient of life through its educational institutions, and experience has shown that it does not and the courts declare that it cannot, would it not be economy for the citizens of the State to see to it that the State hand over the business of education to the Church schools which can and do supply

WEST DORMITORY
Elon College Campus View, Looking North-East From the Depot.

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING
The Administration Building, Looking North West, Showing the West Dormitory in the Distance.

EAST DORMITORY
West Dormitory, View, Showing Rear Porch and Annex, Containing College Dining Hall, Women's Gymnasium and Art Studio.

Elon College
For Both Men and Women
Elon College, North Carolina

For a quarter century Elon College has rendered the best families of the South a paragon service in providing young men and young women with the best mental, moral and physical training under positive Christian influences, tho entirely free from sectarianism.

Karl Lehman, of Boston, testifies that "of all the Colleges I have visited as International Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor during six years, the spirit of Elon College appeals to me as most genuinely Christian." Elon College is situated in the delightful hill country, a section unsurpassed for beauty, with a climate far-famed for its healthfulness. There is no medical fee, for there is no necessity for it. Its campus, comprising twenty-five acres of native oak and hickory, shrubbery, winding walks and driveways, is one of the most beautiful in the South and, with its two unsurpassed gymnasias, provides abundant opportunity for recreation and relaxation.

The splendid equipment of Elon College was only made possible through liberal endowment. It maintains seven elegant new buildings, especially designed and appointed for college work. These are furnished with every known convenience; steam heat, electric lights, running water, baths and sewerage. The College plant is conservatively valued at $300,000.00.

Elon College is distinctly a high-grade institution, though its charges are moderate. Its graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great universities without examination. Its literary and scientific courses are arranged in various departments which lead to the degrees of Master of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Pedagogy, and a three-years' course leading to the degree of Licentiate of Instruction, designed especially for teachers. This institution affords special opportunities for training in Piano, Voice, Expression, Fine Arts, Normal Training, Physical Culture and Commercial Practice.

The Faculty consists of twenty-one specialists; men and women selected not only for their superior teaching ability, but also for their exemplary character and manners.

The student body numbers nearly four hundred and comes from thirteen states.

The lowest Rates in the South, only $131 to $191 per College session of ten months. Fall Term always opens the first Wednesday in September. For full descriptive catalogue and view-book, address

President W. A. Harper, LL. D.,
Elon College, N. C.
Box 88

WEST DORMITORY, A WINTER VIEW. THE OLD COLLEGE WELL, NOW A CAMPUS LOUNGING HOUSE, BUT SACRED IN ELON HISTORY.

THE GYM. ROOM IN THE GYMNASIUM BUILDING, ONE OF THE LARGEST ROOMS OF PINEAPPLE MAPLE IN THE SOUTH.

MALARIA
DRIVEN OUT

Chills and Fever quickly cured and the entire system built up, restored appetite, clear brain, good digestion, renewed energy if you take

JOHNSON'S
TONIC

The warranted remedy, contains no alcohol or harmful ingredients. Liquid 25c and 50c, Chocolate Coated Tablets 25c at dealers or direct. Address "Johnson's Tonic," Savannah, Ga.

that spiritual culture so needful for the proper ripening and fruiting of the life in Christian character?

Shall We Follow This False Educational Aim?

We of the South have followed Mr. Jefferson a long way in politics and in education. We must not let our veneration for him as a great political prophet blind our estimate of his failure as a relig-

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Statements, Envelopes Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Company,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Cancer Cured at the Kellam Hospital

The record of the Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having cured to stay cured permanently, without the use of the Knife, Acids or X Ray, over 90 per cent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from Cancer which it has treated during the past eighteen years. We have been endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. Physicians treated free. KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St. Richmond, Va. Write for Literature.

A LEADING BOARDING SCHOOL

for 250 Students. Established 1884. Prepares for College, Business, Teaching, or for Life. Health, Character and Scholarship. Wide patronage. VERY REASONABLE RATES Each Student receives personal attention. School highly endorsed. (Location in near Greensboro, N. C.) For Beautiful Catalogue, Views, etc., address the President.

W. T. WHITSETT, PH. D.
WHITSETT, NORTH CAROLINA

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days, usually gives entire relief in 15 to 45 days and effects cure 80 to 90 days. Write for trial treatment free. Dr. H. B. GREEN'S SONS, Box H, ATLANTA, GA.

MORPHINE WHISKEY and TOBACCO
HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARCROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

ious leader. We do not impugn to him improper motives. His aim was high and his purpose holy, but it simply could not be realized, and I have an idea that were Jefferson living today he would be pleading for the Bible in the public schools in the secondary grades and for religious instruction, not sectarian, in the State institutions of higher learning, in both of which he believed, but which experience has taught us cannot be realized and the courts have shown to be inconsistent with the genius of our government. You call this religious toleration gone to seed, and I agree with you. I go further and declare it a false toleration, the consequences of which Mr. Jefferson either did not or could not foresee. But we see them and it is entirely within our power to escape them, if we will.

Education Must be Christian or Un-Christian: It Cannot Be Non-Christian.

Enough has been said to make the issue plain. Our education is to be Christian or un-Christian. It cannot be non-Christian. I do not believe the State school will ever go out of the business of education. I am sure the Church school is here to stay. My appeal is therefore to the Christian parents to weigh this matter well. They can give their children either a Christian or an un-Christian education. It is with them to say which it shall be. By the grace of God many who go to State institutions come away Christian men and women, in spite of and not because of the presence of positive Christian example and teaching. But what of those who do not so come away? The element of risk, irreparable risk, is inherent in each case. You may be satisfied in your own mind that you can take it in the case of your children. I have no more to say. It is your matter. But remember that a remedy that kills more than it cures is a poor one, and further, remember that the chances are always with the majority. Therefore as for me and my house, like Joshua of old, we will serve the Lord in education as in missions and as in all the other relations of this life to His Kingdom.

W. A. HARPER.

President Wilson signed an executive order on August 9 prohibiting airships from flying over the Canal Zone.

Salvador signed a treaty with the United States, on August 7, which embodies Secretary Bryan's peace plan in its entirety.

Bonded warehouses at various ports in the United States hold $105,928,884 worth of imported foodstuffs and merchandise, held in expectation of lower tariffs.

Help your church paper by getting a friend to subscribe for The Christian Sun.

ATTENTION BRETHREN!

Our Song Books teach the Gospel as fully in Song as our Preachers do in Sermon.

FLAVIL HALL F. L. ROWE S. H. HALL

THE GOSPEL MESSAGE IN SONG

Revised and enlarged by FLAVIL HALL, and S. H. HALL

This book has 205 hymns. The thought of a reformation in song book making prompted its compilation. In it the Gospel is taught as fully in song as the disciples endeavor to teach in sermon. No other such book before it had been published, nor has any other such yet been published, except our other new book mentioned below. The words and music are high class, and as sweet, inspiring and soul-stirring as any published. Published in both round and shaped notes. Out five years and over 60,000 copies sold. Endorsed by leading men and women in the Christian Church. Beautifully bound and printed.

YOUR ORDERS WILL BE GRATEFULLY APPRECIATED AT THE FOLLOWING PRICES: 30 cents per copy, prepaid; $3.00 per dozen, not prepaid; $3.50 per dozen, prepaid; $20.00 per hundred, not prepaid; 50 at the hundred rate.

REDEMPTIONS WAY IN SONG

By F. H. HALL, FLAVIL HALL, and F. L. ROWE

This book contains 115 songs as sweet, uplifting and soul-stirring as ever filled the hearts of the devotees of our "Risen Lord". True to its title—Redemption's Way, in its fullness, fearlessly and specifically presented. Convenient in size for Evangelist in Gospel tent work. The best book for any and all purposes. Published in both notations.

PRICES IN REACH OF ALL: 15 cents per copy, prepaid; $1.40 per dozen, not prepaid; $1.60 per dozen, prepaid; $10.00 per hundred not prepaid; 50 at the hundred rate.

VOCAL MUSIC LESSONS

By FLAVIL HALL

This book has 25 pages of plain, practical rudiments, and 28 pages of soul-stirring music. These songs are selected with a view to having practice material. Teachers of vocal music should, by all means, have this book for their classes. Besides theory, it contains some very important lessons for the church regarding Vocal Music. Prices: 10 cents per copy; $1.00 per dozen.

SEND ALL ORDERS FOR THE ABOVE BOOKS TO

S. H. HALL, 81 Ashby St., Atlanta, Ga.

BUY A PIANO FOR YOUR HOME

Even those who think they can not own a piano may own one at a very low cost. As a boy, I longed for music, but had to forego that pleasure because of the high prices charged for pianos. My boyhood home would have been complete had there been a piano in it.

I can sell you a high grade piano with a 10 years guarantee by the Manufacturer, with high grade workmanship and finish for $150.00.

If the piano is not satisfactory after 30 days trial, money will be refunded.

S. L. ROSE, Goldsboro, North Carolina

MEDICAL COLLEGE OF THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

CHARLESTON, S. C.

Owned and Controlled by the State.
Medicine and Pharmacy.

Session opens October 1st, 1913, ends June 4th, 1914. Unsurpassed clinical advantages offered by the new Roper Hospital, one of the largest and best equipped hospitals in the South. Extensive outdoor and Dispensary service under control of Faculty. Ten appointments each year for graduates in medicine for hospital and Dispensary service. Medical and Pharmaceutical Laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped. Department of Physiology and Embryology in affiliation with the Charleston Museum. Practical work for medical and pharmaceutical students a special feature. Eight full-time teachers in the laboratory branches.

For Catalogue Address

OSCAR W. SCHLEETER, Registrar,
Corner Queen and Franklin Streets, CHARLESTON, S. C.

HIGH PRICES FOR HOGS

Hogs are selling at a high price, and will continue to do so in the future. Dead hogs bring no money to the farmer.

Do not let your hogs die. Cure them of Cholera, keep the worms out of them, keep their blood in good condition, and make them thrifty by the use of the Remedy manufactured by The Snoddy Remedy Company, of Alton, Ill. A $5.00 case cures 50 hogs. We want to tell you how to do it. Send for our Free Booklet of incalculable value to the farmer. Free for the asking. We want agents everywhere.

SNODDY REMEDY COMPANY,

121 Alby Street, Alton, Ill.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

TEN THOUSAND AUTOMOBILES.

There are 9,573 automobiles in North Carolina; this many have been licensed by our Secretary of State. This is an average of nearly one hundred to each county. We wonder how many homes have been mortgaged in order to secure the family automobile. Still, the automobile is a great invention, and it has a big place in our modern life. As a rule, it is better not to go in debt for one and when it has been secured it is better to beware of speed mania and the midnight "joy ride."—Biblical Recorder.

CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB A PERFECT PLAN.

A prominent business man who recently obtained his piano through the Club expressed the opinion that the Club plan, as conducted, was perfect. He pointed out the following facts: 1. The tone, action, design and finish of the instruments were of the highest quality and all that anyone could desire. 2. By purchasing in a Club of one hundred members each buyer secured the maximum factory discount, which represents approximately a saving of one dollar out of three, as compared with customary prices. 3. Each member is entirely independent of all other members and is responsible only for his own purchase, nevertheless, he gets the benefit of the special low price which results from the big wholesale transaction. 4. The buyer tries the instrument in his own home before accepting it, and without any expense or obligation. 5. Those who do not find it convenient to pay the full amount in cash are offered terms to suit their convenience and yet get the full benefit of the tremendous saving in price.

There are many other attractive features which this gentleman did not mention. If you are interested in securing a splendid piano or self-player piano write for a copy of the Club's handsomely illustrated catalogue, also for booklet containing letters from those who have joined during the past year. Address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Advt.

The new parcel-post rules that went into effect on August 15 make the weight limit for parcels twenty pounds instead of eleven, and local rates are reduced. Banking by mail has also been introduced into the postal-savings system so that depositors living in remote districts may avail themselves of the benefits of the system.—C. E. World.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

DR. J. H. BROOKS,

Dentist

Foster Building. BURLINGTON, N. C.

High Point Glass and Decorative Co.

Art Glass, Leaded Glass, Beveled Glass,

CHURCH MEMORIAL WINDOWS

Beveled Plate Glass and Mirrors. Prices and descriptive matter on request.

High Point Glass & Decorative Co., High Point, N. C.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books: Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.
Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81 4:35 a. m.
No. 29 Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41 4:10 p. m.
No. 43 6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84 12:45 a. m.
No. 38 11:35 a. m.
No. 66 12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's Icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf."

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly."

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work.
We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.

Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles,
Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

HIGH CLASS

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., SEPTEMBER 3, 1913

NO. 36

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Foreign Missions and Prosperity.

No wonder the Presbyterian churches in the city of Philadelphia are prospering, and increasing in wealth and in membership. They gave during the past year $87,700 for home missions, and $97,700 for foreign missions. When you see a people giving gladly to missions, and giving more for foreign missions than they do for home missions, then you may expect the Lord to prosper them. There is a degree of faith and unselfishness about giving to foreign missions not present in gifts to home missions. Hence the larger blessing.

Clean and Neat.

"Why," asked the teacher in hygiene, "must we always keep our homes clean and neat." "Because," replied the matter of fact little girl, "company may come in at any time." Ever so, dear little lady. And likewise, for your unexpected good reason should we keep our hearts clean and our tempers sweet: company may take a peep at our inner lives at an unexpected moment. What was it Paul wrote, 2Cor. 3:2? "Ye are our epistle * * * known and read of all men." "Be sure your sins will find you out"; and your virtues also, sooner or later; "because company may come in at any time."

Skeptics and Immorality.

A Nation of skeptics would mean, has always meant, a people grossly immoral, criminal, licentious, corrupt, and vicious. Mental unbelief means, sooner or later, moral depravity and sensual corruption. Dean Farrar never wrote with keener penetration and more historical acumen than when he declared, "If there is one thing which history has taught more clearly than another, it is that a Nation cannot lose its religion without losing also its virtue and its integrity; the fate of Nation after Nation, in epoch after epoch, has shown that the ages of mental disbelief are ages also of moral iniquity." The deadliest foe that a Nation can have is the influential man who disbelieves God. "Blessed is the Nation whose God is the Lord."—Psa. 33:12.

A Happy Decrease.

According to the government's report there were 21,554 fewer saloons in the United States in 1912 than in 1911, and there were fewer wholesale liquor dealers by six hundred. May their kind decrease among the children of men till their names only remain on the dark pages of history. The total consumption of liquor has not decreased, according to the report, which shows that the thinned ranks of a deadly foe are fighting more desperately. The fight is on to a finish, and either the saloon is to be outlawed and put out of business, or the rest of the nation is to be outlawed and the saloon enthroned in power. There is now no compromise, and no hope of a compromise, between the saloon, with its vice and crime, and sobriety with its virtue and chastity.

Conscience Makes Cowards.

A story is now circulating to prove that all men are to be considered dishonest until proven to be honest. A journalist, so the story goes, who held that all men were scoundrels, picked out twelve of the most honorable men in a great city and wired each the following: "All is discovered; fly at once!" Next morning the journalist found, to his great satisfaction, that eleven of the twelve had gone, and the twelfth was packing his belongings. That, indeed, if true, is strong argument. But much may be said to the contrary. Men in high and honorable places are not always the most honest. Again, these twelve may have been of the weaker sort, and may have done in the past that for which they were heartily ashamed. At any rate, though the story is a good one, we are not convinced by it that all men are scoundrels.

Not on Speaking Terms.

John Wanamaker, merchant, Sunday school worker, statesman and philanthropist, was seventy-five years old the other day. Letters, messages, telegrams of congratulation and good wishes came from the four corners. He submitted to an interview with the newspapers and said: "Since so many of my esteemed fellow citizens will have to wait a good while to know what it is to be seventy-five years old, I will say for their benefit that it is possible to fill up one's life so that the years upon your brow and the feelings of your heart are not on speaking terms." A smart way of saying that a man may live to seventy-five and beyond and still have a mind so busy and a heart so happy with wholesome occupation that the passing years will not frighten, alarm or deter. A man is as youthful as he feels, and the real joy of living comes from wholesome and helpful service.

Manna and the Sabbath.

A conference of pastors was held in an Indiana town recently, the papers say, and it was agreed that the churches of the town should all be closed on the following Sunday so that the large canning factory of the town might secure enough men, women and children to keep the cannery running all day Sunday, lest the vast quantities of peas brought in the previous week should all spoil before they could be canned. The factory had been running day and night the past week and the pastors decided it would "be a sin for them to hold services on Sunday while worshipers were needed to help save the vast pea crop." Such conduct brings the ministry into disrepute and makes the church of God a party to wilful Sabbath desecration. What a contrast this to the command given the Israelites about gathering up the manna in the wilderness (Exodus 16:5).

Burden Bearers and Critics.

There is an organization in the United States known as the Itinerant Workers' Association. This body of men is composed of tramps, hoboes, bums and beggars. In their recent convention at Cincinnati they declared that freight cars had not kept pace with other improvements for travel, and it was decided to appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission to make the railroads improve freight cars so that the members of their fraternity might have more comfortable means of travel. They suggested that hammocks swung beneath freight cars would be a great improvement over steel rods to ride on. So, even and always. The folks who do the least are the quickest to criticize the real workers in the world of energy and industry. Busy people who are really doing things for the world's welfare have little time for vulgar and useless and silly criticism and abuse.

Reaching the Rich.

That the Salvation Army has done a wonderful and worthy work no one, at all acquainted with its history, can doubt for a moment. Its work has been among the poor, the fallen, the outcast. But an officer of the Army declared the other day in New York: "We have been going after the poor for the past forty years; and now we believe some attention should be paid the rich, especially the idle members of that fortunate set. We often hear clergymen pray for the poor and lowly, but seldom are the rich made the objects of their petitions to the Almighty. They need the consolation which religion affords just as much as the poor." If the Army shall follow this officer's lead it will find itself facing the greatest task ever yet undertaken. The degenerate, idle rich are the most difficult class to reach with the Gospel known to the ministry. The fact is that a rich man is exceedingly seldom brought into the kingdom of Christ. We wonder if any CHRISTIAN SUN reader ever saw a rich man converted to Christ under the preaching of the gospel? We doubt it. Many have seen men come into the kingdom, give their hearts to God, and then become rich: but it is rare indeed that any man ever seeks forgiveness of sins and accepts Jesus the Christ as Savior after becoming rich. Our Savior knew His word, and marked it well, when He declared, "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God" (Mark 10:25). If a man does not enter the kingdom of God, through repentance and forgiveness of sin, before he gets rich, there is not one chance in ten thousand that he will enter then. The rich men that we know who are in the kingdom entered first and then got riches. The man who expects to get riches first and religion afterwards is doomed to death and eternity without religion, so far as our reading and observation have ever lead us.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

EDITORIAL

THE CHURCH AND ITS PUBLICATIONS.

Every church, and every branch of the church, hoping or expecting growth and development, must undertake the education of its members along two lines, academic and journalistic. In the former the youth of the church are taught in schools, colleges or universities owned or controlled by the church. By the latter, homes, parents, children are taught and enriched by the current literature and books issued by the church, or growing out of the history and traditions of the church. The tide of church activity and church influence will not, in the nature of things, cannot rise any higher than the current of its academic and journalistic life permits. There are two things as essential to church life and development as sunshine and rain are to plant life and growth. A denomination must have its colleges, and then it must have its books, permanent and current literature.

We of the Southern Convention have been, and are, laying emphasis on our College; the education of our youths at our own institution. This is well. It has meant, it will continue to mean, untold riches and benefits and blessing to our church life. But along with this must go a care, a concern for our own papers, books, publications. No nation, no people, no organization, civil or ecclesiastic, ever becomes permanent and powerful without a great literature. We of the Southern Convention have grossly neglected our publications.

We have not written or published enough books. We have not read and prized sufficiently those that have been published. We have not given sufficient heed to our other church publications—tracts, current literature, and most of all our church paper.

If we are serious and really mean business we must give more heed to our publications; putting our church life, thought and activity into permanent and potential form. We have got to put more emphasis upon our publications if we enjoy the growth and prosperity of which we, as a people, are worthy and capable. Our publishing interests must keep pace with our academic and collegiate interests. Our church paper must reflect, interpret, and put in readable and permanent form the best ideals of which we as a people are capable, and the noblest ideas which we as a people are trying to put into practice.

This can be done only by the care, interest, thought, consideration, of those leading in our church life, and the loyalty of those who compose the rank and file of the Church.

AFTER THE REVIVAL, WHAT?

The revival season, with many of the churches in the country, draws to a close. There have been reported many good meetings; some "wonderful" meetings; a few "great" meetings. In some churches ten names were added to the church roll, in others twenty, in a few thirty, in still others, forty, fifty, sixty. Now, what is the church going to do with these members? What is the church going to do for these members? Has the church nothing to offer, save a place to worship, a seat once a month in a friendly pew, a book in which to keep their names enrolled? Has the church nothing better to offer than this?

If not, one wonders if the church is really worth while to them.

Ours is a working age. People now want to do something. The reason why any institution prospers, grows, develops now, is because it does things. Has the church, the average country church, nothing these new members can do? If it has not, then these new members are a burden rather than a blessing, and the church can't mean much more than the grave yard.

After the revival, what? Is it to be the same life, the same church, the same conduct, the same attitude? If so the revival, with all its noise, demonstration and emotion, need not have been. What will the churches do with their recent additions?

A PROTEST.

Sobriety, temperance, virtue and chastity never yet made a request or a demand for morality and righteousness, but that the saloon, and the men who love liquor better than their own souls, entered a "protest." The State of California enacted a law that saloons must close between the hours of 2 and 6 a. m.,—four hours out of the twenty-four,—leaving just twenty hours of every day for the destroyers of home and happiness to drive their nefarious business. The saloon men of San Francisco have entered a protest that such a law invades their "rights and privileges," and "interferes seriously with their business." Of course. Any act whatever that looks to sobriety and moral betterment invades the rights and privileges of those who would sell their souls for drink.

This Nation of ours has protected, under its strong arm, this vampire of blood and death, the saloon, about as long as it can, and the fight to outlaw the demon is on in earnest. And he who runs may read clearly now the writing on the wall to the effect that the saloon has been weighed in the balances and has in every particular been found wanting. From Maine to Florida, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, this destroyer of youth, this curse of manhood, this body of death, must be outlawed, and put out of business. Decency, virtue, and sobriety have submitted to its killing effects and influence long enough.

When saloon men protest, it is time for sober people, and those who love virtue, to congratulate themselves and get busy.

SEVENTH DAY ADVENTISTS AND MISSIONS.

The Seventh Day Adventists have been holding a tent meeting for several days (and nights) at Greensboro. The meeting was largely attended. At the close of the meeting a collection for foreign missions was taken amounting to $2,030. The speaker who took the offering prefaced his remarks with these words: "Seventh Day Adventists are coming to be known as the strongest missionary people in the world, our gifts to this cause being more than fifteen times as much per member as that given by any other denomination. We stand pledged to raise $10.80 a year per member, for every member of the denomination, for foreign missions." At the Greensboro meeting many persons gave $100 each, others $50 and so on down.

The Adventists are a missionary people, and this accounts in large measure for their denominational growth, but that they give fifteen times as much as any other denomination is an error.

CALLED HIGHER.

It was difficult indeed to realize that the contents of a telegram, received from Dr. E. L. Moffitt Saturday morning, August 23rd, were true. (The mind is always slow when the heart is unwilling.) The shocking message read: "Elijah died at hospital here this a. m. Burial at Asheboro Monday. Notify friends." Elijah Moffitt, useful, influential, a worker for good and for God, serving his day and generation well, cut down in the very vigor and prime of life! It is difficult to realize, and impossible to understand now, the part of wisdom in removing, in these early years, a man and a citizen so useful and so helpful to the world. But God's ways are the ways of wisdom, and He can do no cruel, unkind or unwise thing.

Elijah Moffitt was the third son of the late lamented E. A. Moffitt, and Martha A. Moffitt, and was born August 16, 1871, being 42 years and 7 days old. He was married to Mary Blanche Baird at Waverly, Va., Oct. 15, 1902, and there are two children, a son and a daughter. Besides a wife and two children there survive him three brothers, John T. Emmett L., Herbert E., and three sisters, Mrs. E. H. Morris, Mrs. J. R. Parks and Mrs. C. C. Howell.

In early years Elijah professed faith in Christ and lived a true and devoted life, serving well his church and remaining always faithful to his God. He was an active Sunday school worker, being for some years President of the Randolph County Sunday School Association, and later President of the North Carolina State Sunday School Association.

He was a graduate of Elon College and of the law school of the University of North Carolina, and had been for several years a successful practitioner at the bar. Governor W. W. Kitchen honored him with the title of Major, making him a member of his personal staff.

For several years he had been a member of the Board of Trustees of the Christian Orphanage, in which capacity he rendered invaluable service to church and charity.

A noble soul has fallen on sleep. He was one of the purest, truest, kindest and most unselfish men in all our acquaintance. His life was an inspiration to those who knew him best; and his influence will abide to help others to a better life and a more exalted effort for truth, honesty, virtue and integrity.

A MERITORIOUS MOVEMENT.

THE SUN's editor desires to sanction, with all the emphasis at his command, the important resolutions which the Eastern Virginia Sunday School Convention adopted at Suffolk in July referring to the matter of missions in the Sunday school. Secretary Harrell presents the resolutions on another page of THE SUN and they are worthy of consideration not only by the schools of Eastern Virginia, but by all our schools everywhere. We cannot, too early in life, begin to teach and impress the matter of missions; and we certainly will not too much in life learn of this important and ever absorbing theme.

The Sunday school can go on with its regular lesson, and yet may each Sunday teach and learn something about missions to the benefit of all.

George H. Trull has prepared a most interesting and very vital volume, Missionary Methods for Sunday School Workers, which tells how this work can be done and at the same time furnishes the lessons for study in connection with Sunday school work.

We trust many of our Sunday schools will take up the study of missions in connection with their regular lesson, and will carry out the plans so admirably worked out and adopted by the Suffolk Convention.

THE FOURTH COMMANDMENT.

The calendar makers print all Sundays in red. The act is more fitting than was intended. The day itself has come to be our day of blood, of tragedy, of accident, of death. Sunday is indeed the reddest, and the bloodiest day of all the week. Your Monday morning paper tells the gruesome story: "Drowned in Surf While Bathing Yesterday: Mother and Daughter"; "Fishing Party's Boat Capsized in Squall: Only Four of the Party of Ten Rescued"; "Automobile Come to Grief; Drunken Driver the Cause; Two Well Known Young Men Killed"; "Four Persons, Two Men and Two Women, on 'Joy Ride,' Thrown Violently from Car, Three Being Killed Instantly"; "Father and Son in Altercation. Both Drinking Heavily. Father Killed, Son Dangerously Wounded." Just read your Monday morning paper and you will find the above head-lines over articles relating the events of any Sunday. Sabbath desecration is something appalling. We have violated, and do continue to violate, to our great hurt and injury, the fourth commandment, Exodus 20:8: "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—If one thinks that Thomas Jefferson was an infidel or even a skeptic, let such an one read the letter from him in this paper entitled, "Thomas Jefferson on the Christian Religion."

—If Dr. Carlyle Summerbell's article on "Religion and Morality" in this issue is not discriminating, penetrating, and pointed, then we don't know. As an exposition of the Unitarian attitude we have not seen, in so short a space, its equal.

—Why not have a Cradle Roll in connection with your Sunday school? In other words, if you can't carry the babies to Sunday school, why not carry the Sunday school to the babies, and thus from babyhood have these little ones members of the school? Read the important article on the subject printed elsewhere in THE SUN this week.

—As Elon College opens for another term and familiar faces are seen, no one is missed as much as Miss Mary Lou Pitt, who for some years has been an exceedingly popular and beloved music teacher in the institution. During the summer Miss Mary Lou became Mrs. J. Calloway Roberts, and now resides in the Methodist parsonage, Suffolk, Va.

—Rev. S. B. Klapp, Greensboro, August 27: "We had the best revival at Happy Home last week that has been there for many years. Twenty-seven confessed Christ and eighteen joined the church. I am at Smithwood this week in a good revival. Bro. Morgan is with me. I go to Pleasant Grove, Randolph Co., next week to begin a meeting in our new house of worship. I find this to be a good people and a working church."

—Main Street Church, Berkley, Va., has extended a call to Rev. L. F. Johnson, D. D., formerly of Raleigh, but who has spent the Summer in study in a Bible school in New York. Since early Spring, when Rev. J. M. Roberts, the then pastor, was taken suddenly ill, the Berkley church has been without a regular pastor. Bro. Johnson will find a most willing and ready people to labor amongst, and an open door to usefulness and great opportunity.

—Their numerous friends at Elon, and elsewhere, greatly sympathize with Brother W. E. Lowe and wife, whose only son, only a few months of age, was recently stricken with infantile paralysis. The little fellow has just been carried to Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, for treatment, without much improvement so far. The fond parents are bowed with grief because of the affliction, and their friends in THE SUN family will remember them in prayer to the heavenly Father that the dear one may be restored.

—Rev. B. F. Black, who has been for some time Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Clifton Forge, Va., has accepted the call to the Holland and Holy Neck, Va., pastorate, to begin, we presume, with the next Conference year. His hosts of friends will welcome Bro. Black back into the pastorate, in which he was useful and much esteemed before going into Y. M. C. A. work. A splendid field of service opens before him as the pastorate he accepts is one of the most promising and pleasant amongst us.

—Since it is against the law in North Carolina for any boy to smoke cigarettes, or for anybody to sell or to give a boy under seventeen a cigarette, we wonder why some of the policemen, magistrates, mayors and recorders do not get busy, and see if the scourge that is carrying so many of our youths to untimely graves cannot be checked, to some degree at any rate. We call attention to an article elsewhere in this week's SUN from The Charlotte Observer on "The Boy and the Cigarette," and respectfully recommend the reading of the same to the officers of the law.

—In seeking the cause for the phenomenal progress and wonderful success of Rev. W. T. Walters in building a church and congregation at Winchester, Va., you will find it in his home. During the Conference at Winchester Sister Walters assigned the homes for the delegates, entertaining a large number of them herself, looked after and presided over the Conference Woman's Missionary Board, had charge of the singing, showed Bro. Walters how a Conference should be handled, knew all the work of the body and made everybody comfortable, cheerful and happy.

NEWS AND VIEWS.

—President Wilson again went in person before the members of Congress last Wednesday and delivered a special message on the Mexican situation to that body.

—Honorable John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative, has hastened back to Mexico with the hope of bringing about a better understanding between Mexico and our government.

—Governor Cole Blease of South Carolina has opened his campaign publicly, for a seat, from South Carolina, in the United States Senate. Let us believe that our neighboring State has not descended so low, in the moral scale, as to be willing to send this profane and reckless man to the Senate. To have him Governor at home is bad enough; to send him to Washington to advertise their shame would be inexcusable.

—It is estimated that by December next sufficient water will be swept into the Panama canal to allow vessels that draw twenty feet of water, to pass through from ocean to ocean. Dredges are to be put into the Canal in October that will remove a million and a half cubic feet of earth a month. Digging the Panama canal is the greatest liberty man has ever taken with nature; the union of two oceans by the destruction of interposing mountains.

—Prime Minister Asquith, of England, while playing golf last Thursday, was assailed by two militant suffragettes who had come up to the play ground unobserved. Besides a severe tongue lashing, knocking off his hat, and dragging him some distance by the coat, the Premier escaped unhurt. The English suffragettes, by their silly and senseless militant attacks, are doing more against woman suffrage than sensible women seem able to do for it.

—The Palace of Peace at the Hague, the gift of Andrew Carnegie, was formally dedicated August 28th amid royal splendor and applause. The Dutch foreign minister, in the presence of Queen Wilhelmina, formally received, on behalf of the nations of the earth, the magnificent gift. In this palace, it is fondly hoped, representatives of the various nations will talk peace and teach peace, and negotiate peace plans, until "war shall be no more."

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

Students are arriving today (Tuesday) on every train and every indication is visible for a good opening. All the professors are on the Hill and everything is in readiness for the machinery to start tomorrow.

We believe a great work has been wrought by all friends of the College this Summer and the harvest is soon to be reaped—though not in its fullest, for those of us who are successful in getting some young man or woman to attend college may see the ripest fruit from his or her labors in the years to come. We cannot rise higher as a church than the extent of our educational standard and hence there should be a great move among our people for more education for our young people. Surely no church has an educational institution more loyal than Elon, whose doors stand open wide to welcome the boys and girls, not only from the Christian church, but from such homes as may be found throughout the land. Elon is of the people, it grows by the people for the people. May she not continue in this way by the united efforts of friends in all quarters? There is every promise of a very successful opening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lee, Nansemond Co., Va., friends and benefactors of the College, are here at the opening and visiting at Dr. and Mrs. Atkinson's. C. B. R.

AN APPRECIATION.

On my last trip to Langdale two of the brethren there met me in West Point, their market, and in their own inimitable way of doing things, took me in charge and carried me to one of the clothing houses and, because of the generosity and goodness of the Langdale people I am privileged to wear the most comfortable Summer suit of my life. And they not only purchased this nice suit, but went still further and put shoes on my feet. God bless every contributor, and make of me a better pastor and preacher.

G. O. LANKFORD.

Children's Missionary Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions For Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDREN

The
Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

FROM OUR CONTRIBUTORS

LITTLE JOURNEYS INTO MISSION LANDS— III. AFRICA.

BY PROF. W. P. LAWRENCE.

Across the Atlantic Ocean to the northeast from South America is one of the largest of the five continents. The name Africa was given to the northern part of it by the Romans. This name finally came to be applied to the entire continent. The Greeks knew it as the land of Libya which name is still used east of Italy. Although the northeast corner of the continent known as Egypt in the early morning of human history was a highly civilized country, yet the continent as a whole until within the last hundred years had been regarded as the land of mystery, deadly disease, savagery, and death.

Geography.

Africa lies almost directly under the equator and extends north and south five thousand miles. Its greatest breadth from east to west is about 4,600 miles. Its area is about 12,000,000 square miles. It is larger than all Europe, India, and Australia combined, and would make more than two hundred and fifty states the size of Virginia. There are few indentations on the coast, yet a steamer following the coast line would sail more than sixteen thousand miles in making a voyage around it. It is also noted for its rivers. The Nile is the longest and the Congo is one of the largest rivers in the world. Near the middle of the continent on the east and also on the west are great mountains, some of them reaching the enormous altitude of 18,000 and 19,000 feet and those not subject to volcanic action are perpetually covered with snow. Much of the coast, especially on the Atlantic side, and in the region of the Equator, is low, marshy, and alarmingly fatal in its effects on the life of Europeans and Americans. The vast width of the continent causes scanty rainfall in parts of the interior. The greatest of the rainless districts is the great Sahara desert, which is traversed by no stream except the Nile. In the vast river valleys and wherever there is abundant rainfall on the coast and inland there is abundant forest. It is the land of many of the largest animals. Here are found the elephant, the hippopotamus, the rhinoceros, the giraffe, the lion, the leopard, the bear, and other vicious animals. There is an abundance of reptiles and insects. The most dreaded of the insects is the tsetse fly, which is fatal to domestic animals. In various parts, corn, cotton, wheat, rice, millet, and two or three kinds of grain peculiar to the country, flourish. Coffee of an excellent quality grows abundantly. Sugar cane and tobacco are successfully grown also.

History.

Africa has no history until recent years, except Egyptian history and the record of the Phœnician and other peoples on the southern shores of the Mediterranean. The African languages, of which there are many, and these many subdivided into many more dialects, have never been moulded into literary form, hence there is no literature,—no written records. The only African history, therefore, other than the exceptions just mentioned, is tradition. The native African has a very short memory and his traditions are, on that account, very meager and untrustworthy. A difficult task of the missionary is to put African language into written form, and then to translate the Bible or parts of it into that language. The poverty of African thought also makes a poor language—poor in thought and poor in expression.

The People.

Africa is the black man's country; it is the home of the negro, and is rightly called the "dark continent." The African is not only dark in color, but his mind is under a cloud of ignorance, and his soul is in the deep darkness of superstition. The native African is a very different being from the Indian whom the explorers found in South America. The Indian was highly civilized in many respects. He had beasts of burden. He built cities of stone, stone temples to his gods and decorated them with handsome friezes of pure gold. The native African, on the other hand, has never domesticated a single wild animal; he has a very crude religion but little more than a wild superstition; he builds no temples of worship; and the lowest classes of the race such as the pygmy race of central Africa have no houses and wear no clothing. Here too the horrible social custom of cannibalism is still practiced. A missionary in the valley of the upper Kongo recently wrote vividly of his experience among cannibals. One tribe was attacked by a neighboring tribe. The attacking force was defeated and pursued to their own territory where in a fierce fight many of them were killed or taken prisoners. The victors returning passed the mission outpost bearing their victims quartered for meat as we would beef or mutton. The gruesome sight robbed the missionary of his appetite for several days, for he himself had narrowly escaped being made meat of several times before he won the friendship of the tribe among whom he had come as a representative of the Christ.

The total population of Africa is believed to be about one hundred and fifty millions. The population is mainly negroid, that is, black or of the black race. The Bantu race in south Africa has a brown color and appears to have been driven southward by the negro and Hamitic races. There is a considerable mixture of Arabs in the eastern and northern portions. Europeans rule nearly all of Africa and have partitioned it among the various nations, the larger shares going to England and France. Morocco on the northwest, a country of white people, and Abyssinia on the east coast, a country of native and Arab population intermixed, are the only countries represented as free. For centuries Africa has supplied stock in trade for the slave exporter; and the tragic chapter in African history supplied by this inhuman form of commerce will never be written. It is swallowed up in the oblivion that has gulped down all the other savagery and inhumanity of the ill-favored land. Who can imagine what blessings civilization and Christianity are destined to bring to these millions groping in darkness, even the darkness of the Dark Continent.

Religion.

The native African can hardly be said to have a religion at all, so low is his conception of a deity. If we knew no other religion than superstition and witchcraft, we would be on a level with the Native African. Christianity then, is a marvelous revelation to him. As he gropes his way out of the thick darkness of his former life, it is the sunburst after an arctic night. Christianity found its way in northern Africa along the Mediterranean coast and flourished until the seventh century, when it was overrun by Mohammedans. Mohammed still holds sway here and in Egypt, and has gained in prestige until more than a third of the entire population, something like sixty millions of people in Africa, are adherents of the Mohammedan faith. Mohammedan missionaries serve without pay and they teach but one theme, and that is, "There is one God and Mohammed is his prophet." Of Christian faith there is both the Roman Catholic and the Protestant. Roman Catholic missions flourish especially in the vast territory controlled by France. Protestant missionaries have to combat not only the false religions of the natives, but have to meet also Mohammedanism and Roman Catholicism. It is not an easy matter to make a radical change every time in an enlightened and fair minded man, and the task to make Africa a Christian continent is one so stupendous as to baffle imagination. Intelligent and profitable industry will go hand in hand with Christianity. Before this new religion, therefore, will vanish the innumerable ills of an enslaving ignorance, savage social and family life where virtue is unknown. It is interesting to see what is being done even now.

Missions.

South Africa is a prosperous Christian country. It has cities with modern conveniences and comforts, railways, telegraphs, and telephones. It is to serve a white European population, however, that these things have been provided. Northern Africa is almost entirely Mohammedan. Out of a population of 17,000,000, fully 15,000,000 are Mohammedan. But here as in many other parts of the Islam territory the Mohammedan religion has lost its hold and is become no religion at all, except in name.

The first Protestant mission in Africa appears to have been that of the Moravian church at Cape Town, South Africa, 1737, founded by George Schmidt. From that year forward Protestant missions have gained headway until a large part of South Africa has been evangelized and a rim of the coastal country far up towards the northwest, also small territories in the northern and northeastern borders. There are many obstacles that hinder progress. One of these is the deadly climate in western and central Africa. Another is the restrictions of the governments, schools not being allowed and other drawbacks being hooked onto the work. Still another hindrance is the existence of cannibalism. But perhaps the most formidable difficulty is the wide acceptance of Mohammedanism. In it Christianity has to meet and defeat the next best religion to itself in the world. Yet with all these opposing forces Protestant missions have made hopeful headway. To divide the field into different sections, we can best see what has been done. The Missionary Review of the World (1912), Vol. 25, Page 460-461, published statistical facts from which we get the following:

NORTHEAST AFRICA.—Work first begun 1812 by British and Foreign Bible Society. Now sixteen societies have 70 organized churches, 296 foreign missionaries, 818 native workers, 58 stations, 198 substations, 10,619 communicants, 211 Sunday schools, 15,024 members of Sunday schools.

NORTHWEST AFRICA.—Work first begun 1824 by British and Foreign Bible Society. Now 12 societies have 4 organized churches, 155 foreign missionaries, 28 native workers, 39 principal stations, 12 substations, 184 communicants, 19 Sunday schools, and 793 members of Sunday schools.

WESTERN AFRICA.—Work first begun 1811 by Wesleyan Methodist Missionary Society (British). Now 29 societies have 470 organized churches, 518 foreign missionaries, 2,538 native workers, 141 principal stations, 1,807 substations, 78,334 communicants, 623 Sunday schools, and 47,357 members of Sunday schools.

SOUTHWEST AFRICA.—Work first begun 1842 by Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions (U. S. A.), a Rheinische missionary society beginning work the same year also. Now 20 societies have 456 organized churches, 664 foreign missionaries, 2,217 native workers, 145 principal stations, 1,276 substations, 33,389 communicants, 331 Sunday schools, and 20,968 members of Sunday schools.

SOUTH AFRICA.—Work first begun 1737 by Moravians. Now 52 societies have 3,928 organized churches, 1,589 foreign missionaries, 8,680 native helpers, 610 principal stations, 4,790 substations, 322,673 communicants, 1,826 Sunday schools, and 88,254 members of Sunday schools.

SOUTHERN CENTRAL AFRICA.—Work first begun 1810 by British and Foreign Bible Society. Now 22 societies have 150 organized churches, 403 foreign missionaries, 3,093 native workers, 104 principal stations, 850 substations, 20,640 communicants, 653 Sunday schools, and 58,803 members of Sunday schools.

EAST AFRICA.—Work first begun 1817 by British and Foreign Bible Society. Now 20 societies have 218 organized churches, 648 foreign missionaries, 2,962 native helpers, 179 principal stations, 1,065 substations, 30,395 communicants, 225 Sunday schools, and 8,932 Sunday school scholars and officers.

The editor of the Missionary Review of the World in commenting on the work in Africa the past ten years notes that in 1900 there were 95 societies in the field with 3,000 foreign missionaries and 15,730 native helpers. Now there are 158 societies with 4,273 foreign missionaries and 69,704 native helpers. Then there were 6,838 stations and outstations; now there are 11,074. Then there were 275,000 communicants; now there are 387,200. This is a gain of fifty per cent. in church membership.

In the list of foreign missionaries given here I included teachers and physicians. Africa affords an inviting field for doctors and teachers as well as Bible teachers and preachers.

An inspirational study of missions in Africa will be found in the biography of David Livingstone and of Robert Moffatt, also in Henry M. Stanley's "How I Found Livingstone."

HOW ABOUT TEACHERS?

Now that a Chautauqua at Virginia Beach next summer is practically an assured thing, through the devotion and work of some of our members, it behooves us to "get busy" and help to make the work a success. None of us have gotten to where we do not need to learn, nor, though teachers ourselves, have we any the less need to be taught.

Yet, sometimes the knowledge of this fact comes hard. Before we are willing to learn we must realize the NEED to learn, and "how can they know unless they be taught, and how shall they be taught without a teacher?" to paraphrase a little.

That practically every church in the district needs this teaching, none can doubt who listened to the reports brought in at the last Eastern Virginia Convention. I believe in the great majority of cases where the work is lagging it is not through unwillingness to do the work, but through a lack of accurate knowledge as to how to go about it. The fact that there was no class in the Conference now taking a Teacher Training course, amply justifies this view. We need definite, personal information on every branch of the work, Cradle Roll to Home Department, and including also the most up-to-date method of conducting a Sunday school, as well as the vital need of a trained force of workers. No one needs to be told that we need practical training in our daily avocation, but because our Sunday school work is so largely a labor of love, we have overlooked the fact that it would cease to be a "labor" and become a joy, did we have the proper tools with which to work and a knowledge of how to use those tools.

Now for my suggestion. Could we not secure the services of a trained worker, one who has some understanding of every branch of the service, who would visit every school in the Convention, giving definite attention and thought to the individual needs of that school? I would suggest some such plan as the following. The worker could correspond with the pastor (of course, his help and co-operation would be absolutely necessary to make the work a success) and make his visit at the time the pastor deemed most suitable; two or three days would then be spent in going over the field, interviewing the workers, and trying to secure leaders for the new branches of work taken up (the problem of the day, as has been well said, is not the boy or the girl, but the leader). Then on Sunday, visit as many of the Sunday schools as possible, watching, suggesting, and helping. Finally, to call a meeting or conference of all the workers in the charge of the pastor, and meet with them and the pastor, giving final suggestions, ideas, help and information, answering questions, etc., as might be needed.

Of course, this plan would mean some expense as it would take practically all of the workers' time for as many weeks as there are pastors in the Convention, but if it resulted in the formation of even two or three Missionary societies, or two or three Teacher Training Classes, or Home departments, or Cradle Rolls; if even a few of our workers got a new vision of the glory and dignity of the work, and decided to get more information by visiting the Chautauqua and Convention next year, would it not have been infinitely well worth while? Every one of us has to pay larger and larger taxes every year to care for the criminals and delinquents we are raising up; will not enough of our consecrated workers be willing to stand a tax for a shorter time to SAVE some of these boys and girls from becoming delinquents? Certainly "the preservation of the child is better than the reclamation of the man," and we are convinced it is only a question of seeing the need, for the need to be met.

COUNTRY CONTRIBUTOR.

CRADLE ROLL DEPARTMENT.

When a girl I found a poem, old as the hills, I suppose, and rather Catholic in its teaching, but embodying a great truth. Briefly the story of the poem was this. A little girl, a "little child angel," could not be happy in heaven, because she "could see her dear mother there weeping. She is lonely, she cannot see The wonderful glory of Heaven since the gates shut after me."

She begs the angel to open the beautiful gates, but he tells her it is impossible, he has no keys. The Mother of our Lord overhears the child's plea, and intercedes for her, and the beautiful gates are set ajar, nevermore to be closed, for, lo,

"In the little child angel's fingers, lie the keys to the Gates Ajar."

This is a beautiful conception, and a true one. Our little ones open the gates for many of us, and keep them ajar, some here, some Over Yonder, but the keys for many a heart and home lie in the little one's fingers.

Will you neglect the use of those little fingers which can turn the key in many a stubborn heart you could never reach in any other way? God put it in the heart of one of His workers to utilize this love by forming a Cradle Roll department in the Sunday school; to recognize the fact that our little ones are still very close to the "wonderful glories of Heaven" that we need them in our Sunday school life, we need to get a view of Heaven through the gates they have left ajar behind them.

As Cradle Roll Superintendent for the Eastern Virginia Sunday School Convention I need your help and co-operation. If I can help you in any way, won't you write me? If you can help me, (and I am sure you can), won't you write me and give me suggestions or help in any way you can? If you know of a school that has no Cradle Roll, and know of a worker in that school who might be induced to take up the work, won't you let me know? I am going to write to each one of you personally, dear Cradle Roll Superintendents, as fast as I possibly can, but in the meantime, won't you take this as greeting? I am asking the Editor to give us a little space every once in a while (or twice in a while) for our own, so if he kindly consents, we will have our very own column for our work among God's little ones. Cordially, Your Cradle Roll Supt.,

MRS. F. BULLOCK.

R. 3, Waverly, Va.

[We will be glad indeed to have in THE SUN a Cradle Roll Department, and wish sincerely that it, with a Home Department for the Sunday school, might fill a column or more every week. We need sorely a Cradle Roll and a Home Department in every school, and THE SUN is ready to do its part.—Editor SUN.]

WINCHESTER LETTER.

The sixty-fifth session of the Virginia Valley Central Christian Conference was held with the Winchester church last week. It was one of the best sessions in the history of the organization. All the sessions were well attended and a great deal of interest was manifested in all phases of the work. Quite a number of visiting ministers were present which added materially to the success of the conference. Among those present from a distance were: Dr. J. P. Barrett, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Dr. W. A. Harper, Rev. E. M. Carter, Rev. J. H. Barney, Rev. A. R. Garland, Rev. T. P. Garland, Rev. W. G. Clements, Rev. W. E. Baker, Mr. Netum Rathbun, and Prof. and Mrs. J. J. Lincoln. The special addresses delivered by Drs. Barrett, Atkinson, Harper, Revs. E. M. Carter, W. G. Clements, and Mr. Rathbun were much enjoyed and drew quite a number to the Conference who otherwise would not have attended.

One of the best hours of the Conference was the one occupied by the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board. They carried out a well prepared program.

The church reports were encouraging. All reports except one showed all apportionments paid in full.

Sunday was the great day of the gathering. For the last few years our little band in Winchester has been toiling and sacrificing to erect a house of worship and give it to God. For months a good number of our people have been pledged together to pray daily for the success of last Sunday. The day was ideal for the occasion. After the preliminary exercises, which consisted of hymns, an invocation by Rev. E. M. Carter, a scripture lesson by Rev. A. W. Andes, and a prayer by Dr. J. P. Barrett, Dr. J. O. Atkinson took the floor for the offering. He made a few remarks of explanation and then called the congregation to prayer after which an opportunity to give was offered. Some other special services made our congregation smaller than it would otherwise have been, but a good congregation was present and the offering was liberal. The total amount of the unsecured indebtedness at the opening of the conference was $6,315. The conference generously voted to assume $2,500 of this, leaving a balance of $3,815 to raise. The result of the offering was $4,135, which has since been increased to $4,169, or $354 more than was asked for. Following this came the dedicatory sermon by Dr. Atkinson, which was regarded by all present as one of the ablest sermons ever heard in Winchester.

The dedicatory service was read by Dr. Atkinson, after which Rev. W. G. Clements led in the dedicatory prayer. A hymn and a benediction and the service was at an end. We turned away from it with hearts that were too full for utterance. We had trusted the Lord and He had answered our prayers. To Him we render thanks and give the praise for what has been accomplished in Winchester in His name. We are grateful to all who came. Their presence and sympathy and offerings all helped to make the day what it was. Dr. Atkinson showed himself a master in the art of taking an offering and the Lord graciously blessed his services.

In the evening Drs. Atkinson and Barrett preached two strong and acceptable sermons to large and attentive congregations in two union services. The former was an open air service and the latter in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT:

Reported	$6,621.16
Rev. W. D. Harward	2.00
Ever Ready Society	2.45
J. F. Tamkin	1.70
E. J. Schaffemaker	3.00
Mrs. Jas. Shifflett	.50
J. A. Taylor	1.00
J. W. Tate	2.50
L. S. Rhodes	2.00
Foster Brothers	5.00
R. A. Henton	4.00
Mrs. L. V. Showalter	2.50
J. E. Foster	1.00
W. F. Reherd	10.00
Mrs. D. J. Driver	5.00
Mrs. J. E. Lincoln	2.00
Mrs. Mary E. Clem	1.00
Mrs. W. J. Estep	.50
Miss Mattie Estep	.50
J. A. Andes	2.00
Mrs. J. A. Andes	2.00
Mrs. W. T. Walters	10.00
Mrs. Chas. Neikirk	5.00
W. L. Posten	1.00
Mrs. Susie Strickler	5.00
Jno. W. Hook	5.00
Mrs. Lottie Barr	5.00
C. H. Barr	5.00
Mrs. M. C. Garvin	10.00
Mrs. Maggie Huffman	1.00
C. S. Fogle	5.00
Netum Rathbun	5.00
Miss Bessie Lafollette	1.00
Cash offering	25.37
Dr. J. P. Barrett	10.00
Rev. A. W. Andes	25.00
Mrs. A. W. Andes	12.50
H. G. Brill	1.00
A. B. Richards	75.00
Mrs. A. B. Richards	25.00
E. W. Cather	40.00
Mrs. W. Trammell	5.00
A. J. Showalter	1.00

Total$6,949.18
May the Lord richly bless every contributor.

W. T. WALTERS.

August 22, 1913.

VIRGINIA VALLEY CENTRAL CONFERENCE.

This has been an unusually busy Summer with the writer, and in consequence, but little has been heard from him through THE SUN. Almost immediately after my return from the Sunday school and Christian Endeavor General Convention at Burlingtno, N. C., and the Elon College Commencement, I went to Timber Ridge, Hampshire County, W. Va., where I attended our own Sunday school and Christian Endeavor Convention.

Scarcely was the work of these Conventions off my hands before a heavy load of special work, in preparation for our Annual Conference, was upon me.

The Conference was held in the new church at Winchester, Va. It was called to order at 10 o'clock a. m., Thursday, August 14, by the President, Rev. W. T. Walters. Dr. J. P. Barrett, editor of the Herald of Gospel Liberty, Dayton, Ohio, conducted a Quiet Half Hour, thus helping create a proper spiritual atmosphere for the Conference. Rev. W. T. Walters, pastor of the local church, in a few well chosen remarks, welcomed the visitors to the hearts and homes of the church and people of Winchester. Rev. W. G. Clements of Morrisville, N. C., responded, giving some reminiscences of his former visits to Winchester and the Virginia Valley during the Civil War.

The following ministers of the Conference were enrolled: W. T. Walters, L. L. Lassiter, A. W. Andes, R. L. Williamson.

The following churches were represented by one or more delegates: Antioch, Bethel, Bethlehem, Concord, Dry Run, East Liberty, Joppa, Leaksville, Linville, New Hope, Newport, Palmyra, Timber Ridge, Whistler's Chapel, Winchester, Woods' Chapel.

The following were represented by letter only: Beulah, Christian Chapel, Island Ford, Mayland, Mt. Olivet (G.), Mt. Olivet (R.), Timber Mountain.

Two were not represented at all; viz., High Point, Mt. Lebanon.

The following were invited to seats as deliberative members during the session: Dr. J. P. Barrett, Netum Rathbun, Agent of the C. P. A., Rev. W. G. Clements, Morrisville, N. C., Prof. and Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Wakefield, Va., Revs. A. R. and T. P. Garland and J. H. Barney, all of the Ray's Hill and Southern Pa. Conference, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C., Dr. W. A. Harper, President of Elon College, Rev. W. E. Baker, East Springfield, Pa., Rev. E. M. Carter, Supt. of the Christian Orphanage, Elon College, N. C., Revs. J. P. Hyde and C. D. Taylor, both of the Methodist church.

The Annual Address was delivered by Rev. A. W. Andes.

Rev. W. T. Walters was elected to deliver the Annual Address next year, with Rev. R. L. Williamson as alternate.

The following very helpful and inspiring addresses were heard at intervals during the session: Our Church and Publishing Interests, by Publishing Agent, Netum Rathbun; Christian Emotion in Christian Missions, by Dr. J. P. Barrett; Is It Right to Use Alcoholic Drinks as a Beverage? by Rev. W. G. Clements; Thomas Jefferson's Great Mistake, by Dr. W. A. Harper; The Personal Element in Missions, by Dr. J. O. Atkinson; Christian Giving, by Dr. W. A. Harper; The Christian Orphanage, by Rev. E. M. Carter; Obligations of the Church, by Dr. J. P. Barrett; The Principles of the Christian Church, by Rev. W. G. Clements.

An hour was given to the Conference Missionary Association. The treasurer's report showed that $120 had been received in membership fees during the year. Several new members were added. The same officers were retained for another year.

A committee on Memoirs was appointed by the Conference, and subsequently reported respecting the death of Rev. J. W. Dofflemyre. A copy of their report will be found elsewhere in these columns.

An hour was given to the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board, which was used in the execution of an appropriate and impressive program.

It was voted that the Conference follow the same plan as for several years past relative to the printing and distribution of the minutes;

i. e., that we have them printed in the Annual, and buy 150 Annuals at 20 cents each and sell them at 10 cents each, supplying the deficiency out of the Conference Fund.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Pres., Rev. W. T. Walters; Vice-Pres., Rev. R. L. Williamson; Assistant Secretary, A. L. Hook. The offices of Secretary and Treasurer are standing, and are filled respectively by Rev. A. W. Andes and Samuel Earman.

A special paryer led by Dr. W. A. Harper, was offered in behalf of Rev. M. L. Bryant, who is prevented from work and from attending the Conference on account of affliction.

The following Standing Committees were announced: Foreign Missions, Rev. R. L. Williamson, M. V. Louderback, Mrs. W. T. Walters; Home Missions, S. W. Lincoln, Samuel Earman, Mrs. Mary Grove; Sunday Schools, R. A. Larrick, R. Roy Hosaflook, J. E. Foster; Moral Reform, Miss H. C. O. Martz, R. A. Burke, L. S. Rhodes; Education, Rev. W. T. Walters, Rev. L. L. Lassiter, Rev. A. W. Andes, Rev. R. L. Williamson; Religious Literature, Rev. L. L. Lassiter, Miss Ivie D. Andes, M. A. Dofflemyre; Christian Endeavor, C. L. Rhodes, L. Walter Larrick, A. P. Liskey; Apportionments, Rev. A. W. Andes, R. A. Henton, J. E. W. Bryant.

The Conference adjourned on Saturday afternoon to meet at Antioch near Harrisonburg on Thursday, Friday and Saturday before the third Sunday in August, 1914.

Sunday following the adjournment of the Conference was a glad day for the entire Conference, and especially for the Winchester Church. It was the occasion of the dedication of the new house of worship there. Dr. J. O. Atkinson asked for $3,815 in order that the indebtedness might be secured. In a short time cash and pledges to the amount of $4,136.37 were in hand. Dr. Atkinson then preached the dedicatory sermon, and formally dedicated the house to the worship of God. The establishing of a church in Winchester has cost hard work and some sacrifice on the part of some, and now that it is dedicated is cause for rejoicing on the part of all concerned. Bro. Walters and his good wife are to be congratulated on the success which has attended their untiring labors.

Another conference year has come and gone. We are now entering upon a new year. What shall we make it?

A. W. ANDES.

ALABAMA LETTER.

The revival season in the Alabama Conference is drawing to a close. Only a few more weeks and all our protracted services for the year will be over. In the main all our meetings have been good, and in a number of instances the interest reached high tide and visible results were abundant.

The writer's meeting at New Harmony began on Tuesday before the first Sunday instant and continued almost a week. Interest and congregations were good from the beginning. From the second day until the close, there was hardly a service without one or more conversions. In all there were nineteen additions to the church. A gracious revival indeed was enjoyed by the church membership. During this meeting Rev. J. L. Mitchell, of the M. E. church, was present and did most of the preaching, and he did it with power.

On Tuesday preceding the second Sunday revival services were begun at Pleasant Grove. These meetings continued for six days with increasing interest. The church was revived and six members received. Rev. J. H. Hughes did the greater part of the preaching. His sermons were clear, convincing, pointed and powerful. Bro. Hughes won the hearts of the people here and we shall be glad for him to pass this way again.

Rev. G. D. Hunt reports fine meetings on his charge. One revival of more than ordinary interest was that at Beulah, where Bro. Hunt has been pastor for about twenty years. Nineteen members were received.

Another revival of unusual results was held at Rock Springs, Rev. C. W. Carter, pastor, who says this was in many respects the most powerful meeting he ever attended. Of the nineteen accessions to the church, fifteen were heads of families.

We are now engaged in a union revival at Wadley. The four churches of the town are participating in this meeting. It is indeed an inspiration to have part in services of this kind, where four pastors and their several congregations are working together with one accord for the salvation of the lost. Evangelist J. O. Hanes is doing the preaching. Brother Hanes believes in the Bible, God, and Christ, and his sermons ring clear with a wholesome sound. A great meeting is in progress. To the Lord we are looking for great results.

G. O. LANKFORD.

August 20, 1913.

WHY BE CHRISTIANS?

This is a personal question which may be applied, collectively, to all God's children; but each one should apply the singular to himself, and ask, Why should I be a Christian?

There are several reasons why we should be Christians. It is a duty that we owe to our Savior, to our fellow man and to ourselves.

Christ so loved us, that He gave up all the joys of heaven, and came to earth to suffer and die, that we through His death might be saved. He taught us, by His own example, how to live above sin; and it behooves us to consecrate our lives to Him, and try to follow His example and obey His precepts. Nothing less than this will suffice for us.

We should be Christians, because the Christian life is the only one that is worth living at all. It is the only real or true life that can be lived; and it is the only one that contains any real and abiding joy or happiness. It is the life that will reign with Christ throughout all eternity.

" 'Tis religion that can give Sweetest pleasures while we live;
'Tis religion must supply
Solid comfort when we die."

We should be Christians, because it pays to live for Christ. Worldly pleasures are only transitory; but the Christian life has real and lasting joys.

"I would rather be a door-keeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness."

Christianity should begin in youth; for that is the time in which all the virtues of life are developed.

"Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them."

Christianity makes better homes and better society. Every parent should be a Christian. The Bible says: "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Just see the importance and need of Christianity! No parent can be true to his child unless he is a Christian; he cannot train him up in the right way unless he is in that way himself.

Our lives are ensamples for others; and we cannot be true to our home, to our friends and neighbors and to our country unless we are Christians. Christianity is the proper equipment with which to fulfill every duty of life.

We should be Christians, because Christ has a place for us in His Kingdom. He wants us to be co-workers with Him; and if we fail to occupy our position in His kingdom, we will forfeit the dwelling-place that He has gone to prepare for us in heaven.

Christians, let us be true to our Savior, and to the name we bear. Let us be sure that we wear the mark of Christianity on our foreheads, and that we have it imprinted on our hearts, and stamped upon our lives and characters. The greatest honor that can be bestowed upon us, is to be called a son or a daughter of the Lord. We then become heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ.

MRS. J. F. WHITLEY.

Franklin, Va.

WINCHESTER, VA.

It was my great pleasure to be at the Virginia Valley Central Conference, which met with the Winchester church, August 14. To say that it was a great and pleasant meeting would not express it. The work was well thought out, and the plans put in motion with the sweetest Christian fellowship. Shaking hands with friends, tried and loved in the days gone by, was invigorating to my youthful heart. And forming new acquaintances gave a broader view of Christian work.

Brother Walters, the Winchester people, and the Conference have wrought wisely in building the Winchester church. My stay was in the nice home of Bro. Henry Barrett. He and his wife did more to make my stay with them pleasant than I deserved. My sojourn with them was one that I shall long remember with delight.

On Sept. 14, 1862, I was wounded at South Mountain, Md. After my arm had been amputated at Shepherdstown, I went to Winchester in tattered, bloody garments. Mr. Balley Kiger and wife clothed me with a clean suit, and had the blood washed out of my uniform, and fed me day by day for about one week. While at the Conference I went up to the old grove and hill, but Balley Kiger and wife had gone to the Spiritland; and all the children but one daughter gone to other parts of the country. She is an excellent widowed lady boarding in a hotel. My heart leaped for joy when I shook her hand. She was only a little tot when her father and mother found me a bloody soldier and clothed me, a hungry young man and fed me. I was delighted to meet this daughter and talk with her a few minutes, as she told of Winchester's trying days during the war between the States.

I found much joy in visiting the Hollingsworth home. It was through the kindness of Bro. Walters and his wife that I was enabled to go out to this historic spot. Two sisters, Mary and Annie Hollingsworth, live there in one of the old time mansions. It was here, through their kindness, I had the pleasure of sitting in George Washington's chair, seeing a copy of the first Congressional Record, placing George Washington's razor on my face, and seeing a Bible that came from the old country hundreds of years ago. These two maiden ladies are interesting conversationalists. I was sorry to see that the city had emptied the sewer pipe in a very short distance of this historic home. It seems to me it was a mistake.

After the adjournment of the Conference, I spent five days with Bro. Williamson and churches of his charge,—Leaksville, Newport and East Liberty. I found he was much beloved by his church members. He is doing a good work.

Bro. Williams, Bro. Percell and I, with others, spent two hours in Luray Caverns. I shall not undertake to describe them; for a sculptor's skill, a painter's brush and an angel's pen, all combined, could not do it. You must go and see it for yourself.

W. G. CLEMENTS.

Morrisville, N. C.

NOTICE

To the Sunday Schools of the Eastern Virginia Sunday School Convention.

The following definite missionary policy was outlined at the Suffolk Convention, July 25th, for all the Sunday schools in the bounds of the Convention, and as Secretary of this department I want to urge that the policy be put into operation at once.

The resolutions, as adopted, were:

(1) That each Sunday school appoint a Mission Secretary, who shall have charge of the mission interests of the school.

(2) That all schools work out and put into operation a missionary program that shall provide for the teaching of missions throughout the year.

(3) That in all schools the weekly missionary offering be taken from each class, immediately after the offering for Sunday school purposes.

(4) That $1200.00 be designated as the "Convention Aim" for missions during the coming year, and that the apportionment on the schools remain the same as during the past year, with the understanding that it shall be regarded as the minimum, below which no school should fall. After this session we would recommend that the amount raised be equally divided between home and foreign missions.

(5) That Children's Missionary Societies be organized and maintained in all schools.

To sum up the above resolutions, they ask for a Mission Secretary, a mission program, a weekly mission offering, and definitely organized Children's Missionary Societies in all schools. All of these each school should have, and shall we say must have? The matter of having all these good things in our schools lies largely in the hands of the Superintendent and their co-workers. Let each school be loyal to the call of the Convention for better and larger things in the interest of the cause of Christ. Our Sunday schools will do great things, if they are properly directed and trained.

Each Sunday school should purchase at once and put in the hands of its Mission Secretary the following books: "Five Missionary Minutes," by Trull, and "Missionary Methods for S. S. Workers," by Trull. The two will cost $1.06 postpaid. The one will furnish an interesting and helpful missionary fact for each Sunday in the year and the other will give many helpful suggestions. They are indispensable for successful work. Order of the Southern Christian Publishing Company, Elon College, N. C., who will fill orders promptly.

J. W. HARRELL, Secretary.

Report comes from Washington that President Wilson has appointed ex-Governor Glenn of this State to a responsible federal position. Whatever the position may be it will prove a popular appointment, as Governor Glenn does with might, energy, honesty and efficiency whatever he undertakes.

"Answer not before thou art heard, and interrupt not in the midst of speech."

Mr. T. L. Bland, proprietor of a Rocky Mount, N. C., hotel, was convicted and fined, under the State prohibition law, for serving beer and liquor with regular meals in his hotel. He promised to "be good" and not violate any more. The prohibition law of the State prohibits all right, when backed by officers who care and will execute.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: SEPT. 7.

First of Two Lessons on The Ten Commandments.
Scripture: Exodus 20:1-11.

Time.—In the third month after the Passover. Regarding the year scholars differ, varying from 1498 to 1276 B. C.

Golden Text.—Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind.—Luke 10:27.

Careful estimates show that the Ten Commandments could be cut in Hebrew letters upon one side of a stone tablet one inch thick and 9 inches by 6, so that Moses could easily have carried from the mount the two small tablets upon which the Commandments were inscribed.

To "have" other gods "before" God is to worship idols in place of the one true God. It is to put any one or anything in the place which God alone should occupy.

The difference between the first and the second Commandment is this, that the first forbids the essence of idolatry and the second the forms of idolatry. The first requires worship of the one true God, and of Him alone; the second requires that we worship Him in the right way.

God calls Himself a jealous God, ascribing to Himself this quality which is forbidden in His creatures, merely for the sake of extreme emphasis. Human jealousy insists upon having all the affection of the loved one; so does God, and rightly. Of course it is not implied that the evil, foolish side of human jealousy is present in God.

Verses 5, 6 teach the doctrine of heredity, but declare that the effects of evil are transmitted only to the fourth generation (and they may be largely removed even thus far by right living), while the effects of good descend in blessings to thousands of generations (see Revised Version margin).

"Vain," in the Bible, means "empty," "heedless." To take God's name "in vain" is to take it carelessly upon our lips, to use it heedlessly.

The Israelites were bidden to "remember" the Sabbath because it was not then newly established, but had been a law of God from the beginning.

QUESTION REVIEW.

Will some boy or girl repeat some law of our government? (Probably no response.)

Are any of our laws based on the ten commandments? Name one or more things mentioned in the commandments that are also forbidden by law of our State.

Why is it that all civilized nations know God's laws better than the laws of their own land?

What is God's law about whom we shall worship?

What is God's law about wrong ways of worship we are to avoid?

Repeat the law which asks us to reverence God's name.

What is God's law about the Sabbath?

LESSON ANNOUNCEMENT.

Today's lesson told especially about our duties toward God. Next Sunday's lesson will tell about our duties toward men. From the time we rise in the morning until we go to sleep at night we are meeting people. The things we regret when night comes are the wrongs we have done others. Next week we are to study about our duty to others.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR LESSON: SEPT. 14.

Fourth of Series "Favorite Verses." This Time
"In the Gospels."

This is to be a comment meeting—which means that every verse recited is to be accompanied by a few words of comment, which should not be much longer than the verse. If the one who gives the verse does not comment upon it some one else must do so. A few of the brightest members in the society should agree to make comments where there is failure by any one. There should be no work for these, however, as each should comment upon the verse he gives. Below are given verses that should be used and the C. E. World gives comments upon each of these verses.

The leader may begin by speaking of the great blessing we have in the four Gospels—so much better than the gospel would have been without them. The Gospels can be readily harmonized. Each gospel is complete in itself, yet the Bible would be incomplete without any one of them. Mark saw and interpreted some things differently from Matthew. John remembered many things that Luke did not. In quoting Christ's word all show a remarkable memory, for in all quotations the thought is the same and in many cases the words are identical. If one wishes to become intimately acquainted with the life of some great man, Washington for instance, he will not read one biography and stop, but he will read many biographies. So we need many biographies of Christ. Sometimes we think it a great pity that all the disciples did not set down their impressions. We have the views of the stronger characters, but others would have given us some things the others did not. Do you not wonder what Judas or Thomas would have written, or what Peter would have thought?

Following the leader's talk there might be short talks by others on "The Gospels." Let these be brief. Have a well arranged program. Have gospel songs. Let there be no waits; these will kill any meeting.

Let each member have one of the following verses assigned him in advance:

Matthew: 1:21; 4:19; 5:8; 5:16; 5:48; 6:3; 6:10; 6:21; 6:24.

Mark: 8:36; 9:23; 9:43; 10:15; 10:31; 10:45; 12:10; 12:17; 12:30; 12:31; 13:33.

Luke: 2:49; 6:5; 6:46; 9:26; 9:32; 10:42; 11:13; 14:27; 12:8.

John: 2:25; 3:3; 3:16; 4:34; 6:35; 8:32; 10:14; 11:25.

ENDEAVOR GOES FORWARD.

Some Notes and Views on the Work the World Over.
Suggestions for Workers.

When the South Dakota of the Pacific fleet came into San Pedro, Cal., bringing Secretary of the Navy Daniels for an official visit, Miss Antoinette P. Jones was granted permission to conduct a service aboard in the evening. About one hundred men attended the service. It is gratifying to note that Secretary Daniels, a Tar Heel, is a churchman, and this is true of nearly every one holding high positions in the Wilson administration.

In store windows in Waterville, Me., attractive posters recently appeared announcing a "Bee" social in the Christian Endeavor society. Honey was listed as one article of refreshments and an address was promised on "The Habits of the Bees." The only admission fee was "Come and get stung." Many came, but no one was stung. It was a busy social.

The second society has been formed in the Canal Zone. The first one was at Cristobal; the second one at Empire. Four Christian Endeavor presidents came together at Empire, writes one, and they decided a new society should be formed. It has fourteen members to begin with and this will soon be increased. Gradually new fields are open and as surely the society is reaching "the uttermost parts of the earth."

Brewers and big whiskey concerns are leaving no stone unturned to advertise their business in books and through the news papers. It is suggested that Christian Endeavor societies might get a bust of Neal Dow or a steel engraving of Frances Willard, together with about 20 good temperance books and place these in the local library, or if there is no local library put them in the church to be loaned out to members and people of the community.

THE PERSONAL APPEAL.

Advertising in the papers, putting out bulletin boards, distributing flyers and other kinds of printed matter, appeals by the minister from the pulpit—all of these methods of increasing the size of the Organized Adult classes are good, and too free use can hardly be made of such methods. But when all is said and done, nothing counts for quite so much as the personal appeal of the members. We venture the assertion that more than half the new members that come into a class come because of an invitation or a personal appeal from some member. One man in a class last year brought in nine new members, each one of whom became a permanent member. Another man added five new men to the class. There is a certain potency in the personal appeal, far more convincing to the average man than the printed word or general appeal. Each man should be a personal fisher of men.

TO THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS AND CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETIES OF THE SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN CONVENTION.

Th first Sunday in September has been set apart as the time for an offering from the Sunday schools and Christian Endeavor societies for the maintenance of the work of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention of the Southern Christian Convention.

This work is done for the benefit of all and we trust that every school and C. E. Society will feel the obligation of helping support the work.

Send your offering to the treasurer, Rev. J. O. Cox, Durham, N. C.

W. T. WALTERS, President.
Winchester, Va.

All men are glad to have pleasant memories, but not all are providing the material for such memories. If you would look back, by and by, to something that you are glad you said or did, now is the time to do or say something which will give you food for gladness.—Henry Clay Trumbull.

You cannot dream yourself into a character; you must forge and hammer yourself into one.—Froude.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Secty. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

THE CRADLE ROLL.

Behold, How Great a Matter a Little Fire Kindleth!

Did you hear about neighbor Jones' barn burning to the ground? Well, one of the men lit his pipe and thoughtless threw down the match. Such a little thing.

Do you remember about the cow that kicked over lantern in Chicago, one time? Well, now it hardly seems possible that such a great fire could result from such a small beginning. No, but it got started.

That is it. Let the missionary fire get started and there is no stopping it. It is the flame of God's love that can not be quenched, but must be carried to the uttermost parts of the earth.

Our organized mission work had a small beginning. Dr. Watson called for dimes from the children, that was all, but that was the spark that started the flame which has reached far off Japan and Porto Rico, as well as the needy places in our own land, and carried with it the saving gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. We have, by the work of our Foreign Board and of our Home Board, with the life membership plan, etc., gathered the means to accomplish very much good. The local societies have helped to give our people a knowledge of the needs of mission work, by their study classes and programs. The Conference Boards have bound the workers together and made us feel that we were all of one heart and one mind in this matter. The State Boards, which are the helping hands of the other societies, have aided by furnishing the encouragement needed to further the work. Occasionally the fire starts up with renewed energy when the Young People's Missionary Society is started. Then come the Glad Gleaners with their willing hearts and hands, to cheer us in the way. What more could we ask or need, to carry on our mission work?

But, with all of our means for keeping up our missionary fire, we still lack one other department. So thought the women of our general Boards, last fall, at our Convention in Huntington, Ind., when another little tongue of flame, The Missionary Cradle Roll, was added.

It is to this department that I wish to call your attention. It is such a little thing, hardly worth bothering with. It will only be wasted energy to think of trying to build up our work with such a small addition. Just so some of our people will think. And just so do they think about the other departments; and hence they pay very little or no attention to them; just so the man who lit the pipe in the barn and threw away the match.

FIRST BENEFIT.

Let us see where it can be of use. First, to revive the old society. For example, here is a missionary society that is about ready to give up the work, so few of its members are interested. Let us take from the few one woman, and make her a Superintendent of Missionary Cradle Roll. She will visit the homes and enroll the names of the babies; she will talk of the great good that has been accomplished by enlisting the children for the cause of missions; she will tell of the many thousands of baby names that stand out as shining lights in the great mission movement; she will tell how the money, paid by the babies alone, in other churches, has furnished the whole salary of a missionary in India or some other place. She will have a reception for the babies and their mothers, and all who come will have such a good time, and they will hear something about Missionary Cradle Roll work. Then there will be the annual meeting with all the pleasure that it can bring by gathering the little folks and others together. The children's mite-boxes are opened, and all are anxious to know how much money is in them. And, too, there are the mothers' meetings, where they learn of the children and mothers in heathen lands and the great need of our helping to send the gospel of Christ to these places. The mothers and friends of the Cradle Roll babies are awakened and their interest in the Woman's Missionary Society is renewed and their work takes on new life.

SECOND BENEFIT.

Second, the Missionary Cradle Roll lays the foundation for new missionary societies. There is no church but what affords at least one woman who could take up the work as Superintendent of the Missionary Cradle Roll. And, as she works for the children, her own missionary zeal, though it be small, is increased, and other women begin to feel the force of it. Out of the meetings for the children, will grow the desire for meetings in which the women may learn more of the mission work, and a new missionary society will be the result.

THIRD BENEFIT.

Third, we need the Missionary Cradle Roll to perpetuate the work. A farmer has an orchard. Not many of the trees bear fruit without attention. Others will not bear fruit at all unless some special care is given them. The trees also do their life work and die; therefore, to keep up the orchard, the farmer must plant new trees. So we must plant new mission workers.

A few persons are born nurses, so it is said, but most nurses must be trained for the work. Just so in mission work. A few people seem to be natural born church or mission workers, but the large majority must have a course of training, and this training cannot begin too early. The Missionary Cradle Roll is an admirable class in which to begin. In fact, it must begin here if we would have the very best of workers. Let us not despise this little fire. The Cradle Roll members are the ones who will carry on the work when we have served our time.

The wise suggestion of our Dr. Watson, more than twentyone years ago, has not been acted upon, and the opening up of the Missionary Cradle Roll Department has helped to open our eyes to the fact of our great neglect in this matter. The suggestion is this: "It will be wisdom speedily to encourage juvenile organizations generally. The children educated in the direction of missions, soon we will have trained an army of men and women for the work."

You and I have something to do with the kindling of the missionary fire. Let us, women of the Christian Church, arise to do our duty toward the babes of our church, that our mission work may prosper, and that God may be glorified.—Mrs. Emma S. Powers, in The Christian Missionary.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND MISSIONS.

Is there not a loss in missionary activities, because of our disregard of God's plan? Any of our methods, unless based on the Divine Word, will sooner or later come to naught. But if we as young people, have a desire to do something to spread the gospel (and if we are Christians we will have the desire), then let us acknowledge our lack of wisdom and ask of Him "who giveth to all liberally and upbraideth not." Let us look into His word and see if we cannot find a few practical methods for Young People's Societies. We have heard His call, "Come ye." When He called His disciples, they left all and literally lived with Him, and did what things He commanded them. He has established for us the church, which is His bride. We are to live in it, and do all the little services that are asked of us, however simple, however difficult. You may be asked to do something that you feel yourself incapable of doing. Nevertheless He has said, "Lo, I am with you alway." Obedience is all that is required. He will do the work through you, if you will only let Him.

Young people, in your desire to do missionary work, do not get away from Christ's plan, which was not just getting a number of people together and giving a musical program, with some missionary facts and the excellent thoughts of the hard-working conscientious leader, who is earnestly endeavoring to promote the missionary cause, and who finds that she must constantly be giving novel entertainments or the interest in the society lags. Christ's plan did not include refreshments. Oh, that the time would come speedily when His followers will be guided by the true Shepherd in bringing His sheep to the fold! Here, young people, is where I fear we make our mistake. Like Martha, we are troubled with "much serving," and forget that it was Mary who chose the better part which was not taken from her—simply sitting at His feet. Has He not promised us, "Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them?" Now here is something practical to do; and the doing of it will bring forth greater results than anything else that I can tell you of. Just the meeting together of a few consecrated people earnestly considering the work and how it may be accomplished, will do more toward raising the church debt and sending the gospel to all nations, than all the missionary teas, rummage sales and ice cream socials that have ever been. Do you think that is exaggerated? Take the Haystack Meeting, or any movement that has brought forth fruit, and see if it did not have some such method.

Would that you might be impressed with the importance of the little conferences of a few people where you are sure of all being of one mind. Remember His words, "That if two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in heaven." Young people, learn of Him.

When the Executive Committee of Christian Endeavor Society holds its meetings regularly each month, things come to pass, although they seemingly do nothing but talk things over. When there are no committee meetings held, the society as a whole suffers. I cannot explain it; I only know that it is true. Some one will read a call for cards or seeds from some of our missionaries, and will tell it to a group of girls, and they will gladly help. Two or three will agree to tithe, and will be so blessed that they will tell others, and soon a number are tithing. Keep your eyes open, "do the next thing," and a multitude of things will present themselves. Always interest some one else in what you are doing, and do some definite thing. Some one has said, "In order to move others you must first be moved yourself." And you must be so moved that you will make sacrifice and suffer hardships. Some way people will not believe unless they see. When they see you wearing less elaborate apparel and making fewer visits to the ice cream soda resorts and increasing your missionary gifts, they will believe.

Why not try this: instead of always serving refreshments to your friends, ask them to deny themselves some of these luxuries, that they may help some missionary cause which you are interested in and have so informed yourself about that you can tell them all about it and its needs? You will be surprised at the number who are willing.

If you have a mission study class, take up the book of Acts and learn of Paul. If Paul had waited for the mission board to send him, perhaps he would never have got outside his own neighborhood, and he surely had heathen enough there to convert. He went into it as a business. He preached the gospel under any circumstance. He did not care that he was sent to Rome as a prisoner. All he wanted was to be at Rome that he might preach to them also. And when you and I get really in earnest we will go as did Paul, who often supported himself by the labor of his hands.

Finally, young people, begin at the foundation; for "other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Christ Jesus." Then do the next thing, and the next, never looking back, but pressing forward toward the mark of the high calling of God.—Miss Amy Mott, in Christian Missionary.

THE NEGRO AND HIS RELIGION IN SLAVERY TIME.

BY REV. J. W. WELLONS.

I have often been interrogated, as a man living and connected with slavery, and a preacher that preached to the slaves and controlled them as private property, about the religion of negroes in slavery time. So I have decided to write on the topic.

Slavery existed from one generation to another by inheritance, or purchase as property. And it was to the interest of the slaves' owners to take care of them and protect them and look after their spiritual welfare, as well as their temporal. But many slave-holders were irreligious, and were not interested in their spiritual welfare as they were not even about their children's souls' interest.

Before 1831 the slaves had preachers among them that preached to them in their own congregations, visited their sick, and buried their dead; but such duties were very much neglected among the white people, as well as among colored people. There were negroes that were free among them to whom freedom had been given by their former owners for faithful service; and some had purchased their freedom and others hired their time. Among the slaves, their marriage vows were simple—simply a moral obligation. The ceremony was usually performed by some good man without license. Frequently the owner would give up the dining room, where a nice supper was served. Often the man and woman were not owned by the same person. The man was allowed to go to see his wife every Saturday evening and remain until Monday morning; but sometimes they lived some distance apart and were not allowed to go so often but stayed longer with his wife and children. When good slaves had to be sold for division or debt, they usually looked out for some one to buy them, but those who could not be controlled were sold on the market as common property. I have given this as a general rule. Of course, there were exceptions to the rule.

But in 1831 there was an insurrection among the slaves with the intent to kill all the white people. Nat Turner, a slave in Southampton County, Va., was their leader. He thought he had his plans well laid, but his means of communication were limited and thus he was unable to carry out his vile purposes. Nat Turner was a slave preacher, and his master allowed him many privileges, and loaned him a horse and saddle to go on his ministerial duties. Nat claimed that he had a vision, and that he was to be the leader of the warring slaves. On Sunday night he had his meeting in the woods where they were to start from. He supposed there would be a general move all over the country among the slaves in the different States, but he was disappointed and he and a small company, not more than fifty men, were the only ones that moved. With axes, knives, scythe-blades and clubs (firearms were then very scarce and they could not get them at any price), Nat went first to his master's home, a Mr. Turner, who had been so kind to him, entered the house while the family were all asleep, and killed all the family. Going from house to house, slaying as they went during the night, they divided themselves into two companies, a fellow by the name of Bill in charge of one company and Nat in charge of the other. As brandy was plentiful, they were all well drunk. As day approached the alarm went out and the families began to scatter and were run down by the negroes and slain. During the day the white men scattered them, and voluntary companies came from Petersburg and Richmond, making a search of the country, gathering up the guilty parties. Then all slaves were required to have a pass from their owners or overseers to leave their home, or they were dealt with. Nat was the last one captured, and I saw him hung and heard his last words.

After this time the slaves were not permitted to assemble without some white person to overlook them; and were no longer allowed to have their preachers. Our churches were built with galleries or rooms attached for the colored people, where they worshiped with the white congregations. Our revival meetings in the country were all held in the Summer and they had arbors not far distant from the church and a preacher would preach to them while preaching was going on in the house. After preaching the colored people would conduct their own meeting. In cities and towns the colored people occupied the galleries during the forenoon and evening services, but in the afternoon the colored people would occupy the auditorium room and the whites in the gallery while the preacher preached to them, and then they would conduct their own services and they were frequently very noisy and emotional. Some of the large plantations had chapels built for their slaves and a preacher employed to preach to them. I received scores of them into the church; baptized them; administered the communion to them; controlled them as slaves; visited their sick; read and prayed with them, and buried their dead. Many of the large farms had overseers with a colored man foreman to control them. Many of them cared very little about their spiritual interests, but looked very well after the physical conditions. Generally they were clad and fed well (of course, there were some exceptions). They had their gardens and patches, made baskets, trays, bottomed chairs, made tubs and trinkets and "noggins" and sold them to raise their money to buy their Sunday clothes. Many of them were honest, Christian men and women, but many were wicked, dishonest, and intemperate, and very hard to control. Not many among them could read or write. The white children going to school, and then playing with the colored children, taught them to read and write. My wet nurse was a colored woman and a slave. I played with slaves, worked with them, and afterwards preached to them. In time of the War between the States our slaves, as a whole, stayed at home, worked, and took care of the families of the men in the war. A few deserted on the lines and left their homes.

After the war was over the slaves became free citizens, and schools were established for the colored children. Their commercial interests became the same as the whites, but their social relation was not the same and never will be. We then organized churches for them, taking them out from the white congregations and we set apart ministers among them, organized their churches and conferences, and helped them build their churches and colleges. The writer organized many of the churches among the Christian denomination, organized their first conference for them, and taught them how to preside over religious bodies; prepared the first paper on education for their conference; made the first speech on education for them, and subscribed the first five dollars for their school, and had built the first college building for them, the money being furnished by the people of the North, supplemented by gifts from the white and colored people of the South. So I think I ought to know how the slaves and the white people worked together in ante-bellum times. What a great work the people of the South have done for the slaves, civilizing and Christianizing them!

Slaves being freed, they were all married according to the laws of the country. Many old men and old women among them who had grown families were required by the laws of the country to be married. Coming with license from the court, with white gloves on, I married them, numbers of them, charging them fifty cents when they came to me.

When they first came to this country they came from a heathen land and they were not fit for citizens, but had to be trained and educated. As the older ones died out the younger generations had been trained to become citizens and with such privileges as they could be allowed. At first many of them thought they were competent to fill many of the most important stations in business, but many of them soon found out their mistake and saw they were not competent to fill important positions and submitted. There were white persons who wanted them to seek high positions that they might use them for their purposes. What a set we had in our legislatures just after the War, but they soon saw their incompetency to fill the important stations in our government and peaceably settled down, not seeking to fill offices of trust. The colored people now have their churches and preachers who are having school advantages and qualifying themselves to be preachers and teachers.

This bit of information I have set down on paper for the benefit of the coming generations, that they may have a correct idea of slavery, and the church in slavery times.

FOR SALE.

I offer my two story, six room dwelling, and farm of 53 acres, almost adjacent to College campus, for sale at reasonable price. A fine location for those wishing to educate their children. Correspondence solicited.

J. J. LAMBETH, Elon College, N. C.

We never know when we do any little thing for Christ, in love, what the end of it will be, what a harvest of goodwill may come from it.

CHURCH NEWS.

MOUNT ZION.

The meeting at Mt. Zion began the fourth Sunday in July and continued until the following Thursday. The pastor was ably assisted by Rev. A. T. Banks, who came on Monday. Bro. Banks did good preaching and endeared himself to the church. There were two professions and four additions. The church is working harmoniously.

BETHEL.

The meeting at Bethel began Saturday, Aug. 2nd, and continued six days.

Rev. T. F. Haney, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Hartsville, S. C., came on Monday evening and ably assisted in the meeting to the close. Bro. Haney's sermons were much enjoyed by his many friends at Bethel. There were five conversions. The church is in a good spiritual condition.

THOS. W. STROWD.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

BETHLEHEM.

Our protracted meeting at Bethlehem closed on the 22nd of August, and resulted in ten accessions to the church. We had a good meeting, and the sermons by Rev. A. B. Kendall, who assisted me in the meeting, were much enjoyed by the congregations. The busy season with the farmers prevented many of them from attending.

J. W. HOLT.

HINES' CHAPEL.

The meeting at this church began the first Sunday in August and continued several days. Several things interfered with the services, principally the rain and the crops. Those who attended gave good attention to the preaching and it is believed that good was accomplished. Very many of those whom I once met here are no more among the living. There is a new house of worship in course of erection. Dr. Wicker is greatly beloved as pastor of this church.

SHALLOW WELL.

I have just returned from this church. The meeting which began the second Sunday in August closed on Thursday following. There were thirteen accessions to the church—nearly all young men—and several other converts who may join later. The services were interrupted here by rain, but the attendance was good and the congregation and church greatly revived. We had preaching both in the day and night. Rev. Neil Rowland and Rev. J. D. Wicker were with me in this meeting. Bro. Rowland has lost none of his zeal.

Dr. W. C. Wicker is pastor of this church also, and I hear nothing but good words about him here.

W. S. LONG.

Chapel Hill, N. C., August 15, 1913.

ANTIOCH (C.)

We closed our revival August 22nd at Antioch, Chatham Co. Bro. H. Shelton Smith, of McLeansville, N. C., was with us all the week, and labored prayerfully, faithfully and efficiently to win souls for Christ.

I do not think I ever saw a church more revived than was Antioch toward the close of the meeting. It did not become necessary to ask the church to do personal work; the members, near the close of the revival, anxiously went to their friends and led them to the altar for prayer.

In answer to our prayers God blessed fourteen and caused them to rejoice in a Savior's love. Seven united with the church. Others are thinking of joining at next appointment.

B. J. EARP, Pastor.

MOORE UNION.

Our meeting here was held from Monday after the first Sunday until the second Sunday. We were hindered some by the rains. We had with us our young ministerial student, H. S. Smith, and Sister Anna Dalrymple, of Salisbury, N. C. These both rendered valuable help and made for themselves many friends. They both left for themselves a welcome in the hearts of my people to come again. Our meeting here was very good. Some twelve or fourteen reclamations and professions, most of them reclamations, and the church considerably revived. We are expecting the brethren to begin the new house of worship here right away.

CLINTON.

Our meeting here was held from the second Sunday evening, and I remained here until Thursday evening. Up to the time of my leaving there had been about thirty professions or more. I left the meeting in the hands of our beloved young brother B. J. Harward, deacon of Moore Union, and Sister Dalrymple. I left the meeting in their care, to either close it that evening or continue it. This was a glorious meeting indeed, and a gracious revival. Sister Dalrymple is a faithful worker. She would hold cottage prayer meetings at night and work in the meetings in the day. She endeared herself to our people at this mission point very much. We expect to say more about the work at this point later. We give God all the honor and all the praise for these blessed results.

Yours in Him saved to serve,

P. T. KLAPP.

Elon College, N. C.

PROTRACTED MEETING.

The protracted meetings among my churches began with the second Sunday in July. Have held five series of meetings. All were good and at each point I had splendid ministerial help. Fuller's and Mt. Auburn each protracted from the second Sunday.

FULLER'S.

Rev. A. T. Banks did all the preaching except one sermon. Rev. N. G. Bethea of the M. P. Church was present and rendered valuable aid. The congregations from the first service were beyond the seating capacity of the house. There were several professions and reclamations and two united with the church. Bro. Banks has been unanimously elected to serve this church as my successor.

MT. AUBURN.

Dr. Fleming assisted. A splendid meeting was the result. There were a number of professions. Eight united with the church. This is Dr. Fleming's home church. He enjoyed benign with the people and the people were delighted to have him.

LIBERTY (HALIFAX CO.), VA.

Rev. J. O. Cox was with me and did good and faithful work. In two years the membership has grown from sixteen to forty-nine, and about all available material for the present had been utilized. The meetings were well attended. Three united with the church.

VIRGILINA.

I have been in ten successive series of meetings at this place and all have been good. This year Rev. I. W. Johnson, of Suffolk, assisted me. The congregations after Tuesday were large. There were over twenty professions and thirteen united with the church. Four others gave in their names to unite with the other churches of the town. During the past four years I have received into this church on an average of twenty members a year.

POPE'S.

The meeting began on the second Sunday in August. Dr. Staley was present on Sunday and preached. Revs. H. F. Wolf and J. W. Wellons were with me during the week. Bro. Wolf and Uncle Wellons did splendid work. The meeting was one of the best I was ever in. There were a number of professions and a genuine old time revival. Eight have united with the church.

LIBERTY (VANCE).

The third week in September is our regular time at Liberty for our series of meetings. Rev. J. Lee Johnson is to assist me. I am expecting a good meeting. The work in my entire field is in a very good condition. My churches will go to the annual conference with good reports and all calls from that body complied with.

C. E. NEWMAN.

WINDSOR NOTES.

The third Sunday in August we dedicated our new church at Ivor, Va. Rev. W. W. Staley, of Suffolk, Va., conducted the dedicatory services. On account of a wreck ahead of our train we were delayed, and instead of reaching Ivor at 9:45 as we had expected we reached there about 12:30. Hence the morning services were delayed. However, Brother Davis, a Methodist minister who was visiting his old home near Ivor, kindly took charge of the service during our delay and thus the delay was less tiresome to those present. The church has been built and furnished at a cost of something over $2,500. When the building was begun about one year ago the church had about 36 members. About eight of these were men, the others women and children. Since the building has been completed eleven members have been received. On the day of the dedication there was an indebtedness of $1250 on the building. This amount was pledged in about thirty minutes. Owing to the lateness of the hour the congregation was dismissed for dinner after the collection and the dedication deferred until the afternoon. Hence the people had to content themselves with having one sermon by Dr. Staley instead of two as they had expected.

The music for the occasion under the direction of Mrs. Naomi Varner was very appropriate and beautifully rendered. We are informed that the music at the dedication of the old church at Ivor was led by Mrs. Varner's father, Bro. Stephen Eley, who died a few years ago in Berkeley. Altogether the day was a glad day for the people of Ivor and we trust brighter days are in prospect with our work at this place.

The first Saturday in July was a glad day with the people of Johnson's Grove. The last of a debt with which the church had been struggling for some time was paid that day and thus a burden was lifted. The week following the fifth Sunday in August was set apart for a meeting. We are expecting Rev. H. H. Butler to aid in this meeting.

Week following the second Sunday in September is set apart for the meeting at Union, Southampton, and week following the fourth at Barrett's. We are expecting Rev. H. H. Butler to aid at Union and Rev. C. C. Jones at Barrett's. The church at Windsor is planning for repairs which we trust will be made in the near future.

R. H. PEEL.

Windsor, Va., Aug. 30, 1913.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. E. M. CARTER, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

E. M. Carter, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amount brought forward$2,273.11

DUES.

R. P. Crumpler, Jr.$.10
Pearl Almon10

MONTHLY S. S. OFFERING.

Shallow Ford30
Wentworth 2.27
Beulah (Girard, Ala.).. 3.20
Rose Hill, Ga. 2.14
Wake Chapel 3.15
New Lebanon, N. C.36
Linville 1.40
Mt. Auburn 4.00

SPECIAL.

Tyler Bolling, w^{ork} 2.00
Caswell Lodge, A. F. &
A. M. 35.00 54.02
$2,327.13

By the time this is read by the family of cousins we will have given our program to the people of our village. We do not propose to have an elaborate program, but try to show something of the talent of a few of the children.

On yesterday evening's mail we received the check for $35, which you may notice reported, from the Caswell Lodge No. 539, A. F. & A. M., Union Ridge, N. C., as a token of their appreciation of our exercises at the picnic, a short while ago. We are under many obligations to the members of the Lodge for this liberal donation.

Our good brother and co-worker, Dr. J. N. Cole, of the Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., is touching the key note in his article, "In the Education of the Orphan Child," and says, in other words, that the orphan child should have such educational advantages as the average well-to-do working man, or such as the State offers to all her children. At the same time, Dr. Cole lays special emphasis on the importance of their being taught to work. I will say, however, that we are carrying our children through the eighth grade, with the privilege of taking the preparatory work at the college, and the collegiate work, if their aspiration is strong enough for free tuition. And, with the assistance of another teacher, whose personal influence may mean much along this line, we are endeavoring to do the most effective work in the history of the institution.

Yet, the idea of Dr. Cole is for there to be, in each orphanage, a fund especially for the educational advantage of the children. And, in closing, he says: "They have the advantage of the common schools in the fact that they always have the children in hand and can bring them up to their requirements; and in some cases I believe, they are doing some of the best work that is being done anywhere. Nothing can be more wholesome for the child than the habit of thoroughness that is being taught in the orphanages."

If the church could realize what it is to care for, clothe, feed and educate "our family," and at the same time, how easy it would be if all would lift, I feel the work would go along more smoothly and with more satisfaction to the entire church. It just means a hearty co-operation, that's all; and I am hoping we may realize it some day.

Fondly,
E. M. CARTER.

Stern, N. C., Aug. 22, 1912.

Dear Uncle Emory:—

I have been at Cascade, Va., and at Stoneville, N. C., visiting mama's people with her nearly all the time since I wrote my last letter to The Sun. I have been having some mighty good times with my little cousins and others, but I am glad to be home with daddy once more. When I wrote my last letter I could not walk; but now, I can walk almost anywhere I please. I am sending my dime for August.

Love and kisses to all the cousins.

R. P. CRUMPLER, JR.

And you have been taking a vacation! Am so glad you were so much improved in health that you were able to go.

Cullman, Ala., Aug. 18, 1913.

Dear Uncle Emory:—

Here I come with my letter and dime for August. I am in school now. I have six studies. It keeps me quite busy to keep up my lessons. My teacher's name is Mr. Dewitt Snuggs. He is a good, kind teacher, and we all like him fine. I haven't missed a day this term. The revival is going on at the Baptist church this week, so I will go to meeting and school both this week. My two little brothers both have the whoopign-cough. Love to you and all the cousins.

ANNIE PEARL ALMON.

I am glad to have the Alabama girl come again; and hope she is able to keep up her studies in first class manner.

BEARING ANOTHER'S BURDENS.

The site of the Jerusalem temple was supposed by a legend to have been selected in this way: Many years ago, two brothers had adjacent farms near Mount Moriah. Both were married, but one had a large family of children, while the other was childless. During harvest, it was the custom to pile the sheaves together in the different fields. When the sheaves were thus piled together, the brother who had no children said to his wife: "There is my brother; he has a large family of children and I have none. It must be a struggle for him to get along. So I will take some of my sheaves, unknown to him, and place them upon his pile and they may make him happier." The other brother at the same time was saying to his wife: "There is my brother; he has no children. He does not know the joy of love of a nursery as I do. His home must be a very lonely home. I think I will take some of my sheaves and carry them over to his pile. Perhaps the gift will bring to him some of the happiness my children have brought to me." At midnight the two brothers went out and gathered up their sheaves. As they were staggering along under the loads of affection, they met just half way between the farms, and fell on each other's necks and wept, because both brothers had found a true fraternal love. There, on the scene of that incident of brotherly affection, the temple of Jerusalem was built.—Selected.

THE BOY AND THE CIGARETTE— ALSO, THE LAW.

It is against the law in North Carolina for any boy under 17 years of age to smoke cigarettes. Know that? So, and what is more, any person who gives the boy a cigarette, as well as any one who sells the same to a boy, can be fined for the offense. Still further, the law requires the officers of the law—"every police officer in the State of North Carolina," it reads—to ask the boy caught smoking to tell where he got the cigarette, and on being told, to forthwith issue a warrant for the arrest of the party so offending. If the boy refuses to tell, he shall be hauled up before a magistrate, mayor or recorder, as the case may be, and tried for a misdemeanor. The old cigarette law was amended in this stringent manner. Of course no attention is going to be paid to it. The streets of Charlotte are filled with urchin-smoking cigarette fiends every day and the enforcement of this law would paralyze the delivery service of the whole town, and might even break up some of the Sunday schools. But all the same, the parent who is worried by his boy smoking cigarettes has it in his power to give painful trouble to both the boy and the one who gives or sells him the cigarettes.—Charlotte Observer.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.
Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 814:35 a. m.
No. 29Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 414:10 p. m.
No. 436:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 8412:48 a. m.
No. 3811:35 a. m.
No. 6612:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

DR. J. H. BROOKS,

Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

High Point Glass and Decorative Co.

Art Glass, Leaded Glass, Beveled Glass,

CHURCH MEMORIAL WINDOWS

Beveled Plate Glass and Mirrors. Prices and descriptive matter on request.

High Point Glass & Decorative Co., High Point, N. C.

SPEND YOUR SUMMER

In The Glorious Mountains of Western North Carolina.

"The Land of the Sky"

"The Sapphire Country"

Where there is Health in Every Breath. The Climate is perfect the Year Round. In Spring and Summer the Region is Ideal.

Reached By

SOUTHERN RAILWAY

Solid Through Train, Including Parlor Car, between Goldsboro, Asheville and Waynesville Via Raleigh, Greensboro, Salisbury.

Other Convenient Through Car Arrangements.

SUMMER TOURIST TICKETS ON SALE UNTIL SEPTEMBER 30, 1913.

For complete information apply,

J. H. WOOD, D. P. A.,

Asheville, N. C.

R. H. DeBUTTS, D. P. A.,

Charlotte, N. C.

J. O. JONES, T. P. A.,

Raleigh, N. C.

THE BEAUTIFUL CHIMNEY ROCK GAP

REACHED VIA

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

Chimney Rock Gap has been for years famed for its beauty in both Song and Story.

Why not spend your vacation at one of the comfortable Hotels beautifully situated in this lovely valley?

Hotel Rates remarkably cheap, $5.00 to $10.00 per week.

THE SEABOARD'S NEW SCHEDULES make it EASY to get to Chimney Rock, Rutherfordton and surrounding Mountains. Write today for Booklet: James Ker, Jr., T. P. A., Charlotte, N. C. H. S. Leard, D. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.,

FISH

Let us tell you how to catch them where you think there are none. We make the famous Double Muzzle Wire Fish Basket. Greatly improved this year. Write EUREKA FISH NET CO., Griffin, Georgia

HE SHALL NOT BE AFRAID.

A few years ago the writer lived in a little village in Eastern North Carolina and occasionally visited an old ante-bellum home that stood just outside the village limits. The home was just as the days before the war left it. The rooms were spacious, ceilings high, and the fireplaces wide. The stairway that led to the second floor was long and steep.

The occupants of the home were four maiden ladies who had grown up in the days before the war. They had never known any other place, and so were very fond of the old place and its memories. The family had once been large; but now they were the only ones left, and they were getting old. The other members of the family were sleeping in a little cemetery just back of the yard. These four ladies loved to talk of the old place and the people and incidents that had been connected with it in days past and gone. One person had been connected with the old home in a very impressive incident.

It was a little boy, a nephew of theirs who had come to live with them years before. His mother had died, and they were to rear him. He was given a room upstairs, away from them. This he did not like because he was afraid of the dark and did not like to sleep in a room alone. Every night one of them would have to go with him upstairs and stay with him till he was in bed. When they left him for the night, they would assure him that there was nothing to hurt him. But it did no good. He would cover up his head and try to hide, and go to sleep that way. This was kept up for a long time. He could not be laughed out of it nor shamed out of it.

When the revival season came on and a series of meetings was held in the village church, the little boy and his aunts attended the services, and he manifested much interest in the preaching, being a most attentive listener to all the preacher said. One night when they came home from the service the little boy went upstairs and went to bed alone and made no complaint at all. The next morning he came down to breakfast and told his aunts that he was going to join the Church. They were surprised, since he had not previously made any public profession of religion. He said he believed in Jesus, and all his fears of the dark room had gone, and he was no longer afraid to go alone upstairs to bed. It was Jesus who had taken away his fears. He wanted to unite with the Church. He said that no one but Jesus had been able to quiet his fears of the dark, and that he wanted to do what he could for him and the Church. He joined the Church at the first opportunity and lived faithful to his vows.

This boy is now a man of fifty years, and is at the head of a large university in the South. Since learning the story from his aunt the writer has had the opportunity of hearing him address a large religious gathering. As he stood before that large audience that night and held it almost breathless for an hour or more, the writer could not forget the old ante-bellum home and the room upstairs. It was there that he first took a stand for the Master.—C. R. Ross, in Nashville Christian Advocate.

Out in the Open
No fear of the Burning
Sun

MENTHOLATUM

Quickly relieves

SUNBURN INSECT BITES

Sold by all Druggists
25 and 50¢ a jar

FREE OFFER—To any one who has not used Mentholum we will send a sample on request or for ten cents in coin a large trial size package.

THE MENTHOLATUM CO.
153 Seneca St. Buffalo, N.Y.

"Where There's a Will There's a Way"

STUDY AT HOME

Hundreds of Dixie's Future Lawyers and Expert Legal Men Will Be Trained By Mail.

Many young Southern men cannot afford to attend a resident law school or give up their work to gain a law education. There are hundreds of these ambitious young men today—some farming, some clerking and some in business for themselves—who in the privacy of their own homes during leisure hours, are taking a course in law, upon which the greatest resident school in the world could not improve. If you have not had a chance to go to school, learn about the famous

LA SALLE HOME STUDY LAW COURSE

Let us tell you how to utilize your spare moments in preparing yourself for a great profession—how to stand and pass the bar examinations in your state—how the greatest course in law procedure ever prepared will fit you for the Bar and make you a success in business life.

VALUABLE LAW GUIDE FREE
Our big 112 page prospectus shows what we have done for thousands of others and what we can do for you. It is a complete guide in law study, and tells everything about it in clear, simple terms. Write for it, and take the first step toward securing a diploma and the degree of LL. B. Write at once.

La Salle Extension University
Dept. 84, Chicago, Ill.

MORPHINE WHISKEY and TOBACCO
HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARCROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

INCREASE YOUR GRAIN YIELD.
Agricultural experts tell us that the quantity of grain grown per acre depends primarily upon an even stand of seed in planting. It is, therefore, of the greatest importance to use a thoroughly dependable seeder.

In the Farquhar Pennsylvania we offer a Drill especially adapted to Southern conditions. This machine sows all kinds of grain including rust-proof oats with absolute regularity. The grass seeder can be used either in front or behind the boots. Fertilizer attachments of the positive force fed variety. Light of draft, durable—an implement that can be profitably employed on every farm.

Big new Catalog describing the Pennsylvania seeder mailed free on request. A postal will bring you copy of this instructive book along with full particulars of our special introductory proposition.

For your own good, write us to-day.
A. B. FARQUHAR CO., Ltd.,
Box 306 York, Pa.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLE

LARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

Contains in addition to the Authorized Old and New Testaments, all the Sayings of Christ in Red; The Temple Library at Nippur; Names and Order of the Books of the Bible; Maps of Bible Lands; Pronouncing Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names; Comparative Systems of Scripture Chronology; History of the Period from the Close of the Sacred Canon of the Old Testament until the Times of the New Testament; Illuminated Marriage Certificate and Family Record; Chronological Index to the Bible; Concordance; Full-Page Dore Pictures, Half-Tones and in Colors, etc.

- No. 820 P. R. L. Bound in IMITATION OF LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Gilt Titles, Marbled Edges. (Weight, 12 lbs.) $2.10
- No. 822 P. R. L. Bound in SEMBLER LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Full Gilt Sides and Back, Gilt Edges. (Weight, 13 lbs.) 2.85
- No. 823 P. R. L. Bound in AMERICAN MOROCCO, Padded Sides, Rounded Corners on Cover, Gold Side & Back Titles, Gold Edges. (Weight, 15 lbs.) 5.00

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10½ x 12½ in.

HOLMAN RED LETTER

SELF-PRONOUNCING TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches.

THE TYPE.
23 The Báb-y-ló'ni-ang, and all the Chál-dé'ang, Pé'kód, and Shó'a, and Kó'a, and all the Ás-sýr'-ang with

- No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges $2.50
- No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges 3.00

Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENT

SELF-PRONOUNCING

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Daintiest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2½ x 4¼ inches.

THE TYPE.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Je'sus is the

- No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges50
- No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms75

Postage, 3 Cents.

No. 013 R. L.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

has often heard class-members say: "I cannot understand the Bible." They could not understand any other book that was printed three hundred years ago. So many English words of that day were different.

More than forty new dictionaries have been required since then, to keep up with the changes in the English language. The

American Standard Bible
Edited by the American Revision Committee
uses the words of our day, which make the meanings of the Bible writers clear to us.

Write for Our Free Booklet, "How We Got Our American Standard Bible"

No teacher can afford to be without it.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

WHAT IS SPIRITUALITY?"

That was a fine question raised by the Winston District. I venture an answer, not out of the dictionary or encyclopedia, but out of my own heart, simply and briefly:

Spirituality is the inward possession and the outward expression of the life of God.

Spirituality is the fruit which the Christian branch bears when he is planted by a vital, fruit-bearing faith in the Christ-vine.

Spirituality is the mind and feeling and will of God expressed in the mind and feeling and will of man.

Spirituality is the perfect flower of God, blooming in the life of man, showing forth the beauty of God, and bringing forth the fruit of God.

To have such a vital faith in the God the Supreme Being, and in the spirit-world that it spiritualizes the whole life, lifting it out of the carnal, worldly, and ungodly, into the spiritual, heavenly and godly—that is spirituality.

To my mind "spirituality" is a very wide, a very deep, a very rich, and a very vital term; and it is applicable to the life of only such as can sincerely say with Paul, "It is no longer I that live, but Christ liveth in me."

To be filled by the Holy Spirit so that one lives, thinks, speaks, and acts always in the atmosphere of the Spirit—that is spirituality. —N. C. Christian Advocate.

Churches, schools, labor unions, fraternal orders and other organizations to the number of 200,000 at least will be asked to join the anti-tuberculosis workers of the country in the observance of the Fourth National Tuberculosis Day, which has been designated for December 7th, according to an announcement issued today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The movement will be furthered throughout the country by more than 1,000 anti-tuberculosis societies working through various state organizations and the National Association. Personal appeals will be made to clergymen, school principals and leaders of various organizations urging them to set aside a definite time during the week preceding or the week following December 7th, for a lecture on tuberculosis.

Last year over 60,000 churches gave attention to this subject on Tuberculosis Day. It is hoped this year to swell the number of churches to 100,000 and to urge similar action besides in a large number of the schools and other societies. The Tuberculosis Day Campaign will come this year during the Red Cross Christmas Seal sale. It is planned to urge the churches of the country to take a definite part in this movement.

Help your church paper by getting a friend to subscribe for The Christian Sun.

WEST DORMITORY ADMINISTRATION BUILDING EAST DORMITORY

Elon College Campus View, Looking North-East From the Depot.

The Administration Building, Looking North West, Showing the West Dormitory in the Distance.

The New $20,000 Men's Gymnasium, The Gift of the Alumni Association.

West Dormitory, View, Showing Rear Porch and Annex Containing College Dining Hall, Women's Gymnasium and Art Studio.

West Dormitory, a Winter View, The Old College Well, now a Campus Lounching House, but Sacred in Elon History.

The Gym Room of the Alumni Building, one of the largest rooms of polished maple in the South.

Elon College

For Both Men and Women

Elon College, North Carolina

For a quarter century Elon College has rendered the best families of the South a paragon service in providing young men and young women with the best mental, moral and physical training under positive Christian influences, tho entirely free from sectarianism.

Karl Lehman, of Boston, testifies that "of all the Colleges I have visited as International Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor during six years, the spirit of Elon College appeals to me as most genuinely Christian." Elon College is situated in the delightful hill country, a section unsurpassed for beauty, with a climate far-famed for its healthfulness. There is no medical fee, for there is no necessity for it. Its campus, comprising twenty-five acres of native oak and hickory, shrubbery, winding walks and driveways, is one of the most beautiful in the South and, with its two unsurpassed gymnasias, provides abundant opportunity for recreation and relaxation.

The splendid equipment of Elon College was only made possible through liberal endowment. It maintains seven elegant new buildings, especially designed and appointed for college work. These are furnished with every known convenience; steam heat, electric lights, running water, baths and sewerage. The College plant is conservatively valued at $300,000.00.

Elon College is distinctly a high-grade institution, though its charges are moderate. Its graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great universities without examination. Its literary and scientific courses are arranged in various departments which lead to the degrees of Master of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Pedagogy, and a three-years' course leading to the degree of Licentiate of Instruction, designed especially for teachers. This institution affords special opportunities for training in Piano, Voice, Expression, Fine Arts, Normal Training, Physical Culture and Commercial Practice.

The Faculty consists of twenty-one specialists; men and women selected not only for their superior teaching ability, but also for their exemplary character and manners.

The student body numbers nearly four hundred and comes from thirteen states.

The lowest Rates in the South, only $131 to $191 per College session of ten months. Fall Term always opens the first Wednesday in September. For full descriptive catalogue and view-book, address

President W. A. Harper, LL. D.,
Elon College, N. C.
Box 88

WINTER SMITH'S

CHILL TONIC

Makes You Immune From Malaria

in all its forms. Contains no arsenic or opiates; pleasant to take and harmless, for children as well as adults. Sold and guaranteed by your druggist.

OLDEST AND BEST

Arthur Peter & Co., Louisville, Ky., General Agents.

YUM

FOR HEADACHE

"HASN'T FAILED YET"

FOR FEVERISHNESS AND ACHING

Whether from Malarious conditions, Colds or overheating, try Hicks' CAPUDINE. It reduces the fever and relieves the aching. It's liquid—10, 25 and 50 cents at Drug Stores

Subscribe for The Christian Sun. $1.50.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT AND HIS CRITICS.

Much hostile criticism has been printed concerning a recent address by Mr. Marshall. The point attacked is of sufficient importance to make it worth while to cite conclusive authorities upon the issue thus raised.

Referring to the wide discontent at the unequal distribution of the advantages of the commonwealth between the very rich and the very poor, Mr. Marshall said that wealthy men talk of "both an inherent and constitutional right to pass their property down from generation to generation."

Hinting that this might not always be permitted by law, he said, "The right to inherit and the right to devise are neither inherent nor constitutional, but, on the contrary, they are simply privileges given by the State to its citizens."

Saying that "nothing but a desire to arouse thoughtless rich men to a sense of their danger" induced him to suggest this, he counselled them to "hear what the people are saying about them, and not to dream that what has been forever will be."

For this his critics have bitterly assailed him as "imprudent, if not reckless," and say that "sensible persons have been shocked by his foolish utterances."

What have the highest authorities to say upon the issue thus joined?

Professor Bowen, of Harvard, thus speaks for the science of political economy: "Nothing is more certain than that all inherited property is actually enjoyed by the gift of law and the consent of society; . . . its distribution . . . is regulated by considerations of expediency alone." Note that this was published in 1856, long before our present social problems reached their acute stage.

In 1908 Professors Dewey of Columbia and Tufts of Chicago spoke thus for the science of ethics: "There is no absolute right to private property. . . . It has been estimated that a trust fund recently created for two grandchildren will exceed five billion dollars when handed over." Reference to the political as well as financial influence of such a sum leads them to remark, "Society will be obliged to ask how much power may safely be left to any individual."

For our comment on the case, see Prov. 15:2. — Editorial in The Homiletic Review.

ARE YOU SURE

you are giving your stock the right kind of care? You know the dangers of summer heat and how important it is that your work stock should have the proper attention during this hot weather. They should have plenty of salt, as salt is cooling and healing to over-heated and inflamed membranes of the stomach and bowels. Nothing will serve this purpose so well as BLACKMAN'S MEDICATED SALT BRICK and every man whose stock is exposed to the summer's heat should use it.

Condense Your Hay

LOOSE hay is one of the hardest things in the world to manage. There's no getting around that. The wind plays havoc with it. It slips and slides off poorly loaded wagons. In barn and yard much of it is wasted. It is too bulky to haul or ship far. In mow and on wagon it takes five times the space that baled hay does.

Handling hay is a problem, and right here is the answer—in the baling. An I H C hay press puts your hay in convenient shape for handling and economical feeding; no need to build outdoor stacks exposed to all weather, for lack of barn space. You can ship the bales to cities and distant places where the hay market and prices are good. Large cities, where storage space is costly, require hay to be baled, and top prices are paid. Shredded corn fodder makes a good feeding substitute for all the hay you may ship to the city.

I H C Hay Presses Motor and Horse Power

are the only kind you will consider in buying, when you have made a comparison, studied the construction, the durability, the features, and the possibilities of the I H C hay presses. You will find both styles made in three sizes, 14 x 18, 16 x 18, and 17 x 22-inch bale chamber, baling from six to sixteen tons per day.

The efficiency of the I H C features, the self feeder, toggle joint plunger, bale tension, and spring roller tucker, proves their worth on demonstration. The self-feeder eliminates dangerous foot-feeding and increases capacity by even operation; the bale tension and roller tucker make for uniform, compact and attractive bales; the toggle joint plunger is the most powerful and simple compressing device ever used on a hay press. The bale chamber is of just the right height to permit convenient tying of the bales. If your choice is a motor power press, you will have a year-round machine, for the engine is always ready to do farm jobs for you, pumping, sawing, grinding, running the repair shop, electric light plant, etc. In the horse power press, study the pull power principle, compound leverage, and the low step-over. It will bale more hay for you with less strain on the horses than any other press made.

Drop in on your local dealer and look over the I H C hay press line. Get catalogues from him, or, write the International Harvester Company of America

(Incorporated)

CHICAGO

U S A

THE WILLIAMS PORTABLE CORN MILL

The Most Perfect Bread Meal and Feed Mill in the World

Handsome
Offer to Dealers

HUNDREDS of Williams Mills have been sold on an iron clad guarantee to perform absolutely as we claim, or mill taken back and money refunded. To date, we have not a single dissatisfied customer.

If you want the finest, softest, round sweet meal for yourself, or wish to make the most money by public grinding, get a Williams. The pebble stone grit buhrs will outgrind and outwear any other buhr. No other mill has patent device to prevent hard substances from injuring buhrs. So constructed that buhrs cannot run together when grain gives out—an exclusive feature. Equipped with cleaning fans, new feeding device and sifter. Strong and durable as steel. Low first cost. Ask your dealer or write us at once for free catalog and full particulars.

WILLIAMS MILL MANUFACTURING CO.,

41 Main Street.

Ronda, North Carolina.

North Carolina Medical College

(Oldest Medical College in the State)

J. P. MUNROE, M. D., PRESIDENT. W. O. NISBET, M. D., DEAN.
A. J. CROWELL, M. D., SEC. AND TREAS.

Full Laboratory Courses in Eight Laboratories. Thorough Theoretical courses in Extensive and Full Clinics in Hospitals. Free Dispensary. Outpatient Department. Hospital Appointments to Our Graduates. Full Corps of Professors and Assistants.

Study the Diseases of the South in the South.

Robt. H. Lafferty, M. D., Registrar, . . . CHARLOTTE, N. C.

LAZY LIVER

Stir up your liver a little, just enough to start the bile nicely. One of Ayer's Pills at bedtime is all you need. These pills act directly on the liver. Made for the treatment of constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick-headache. Ask your doctor if he knows a better pill for a sluggish liver. Then follow his advice.

J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Money For Your Church

Form a club among your friends to buy Dress Fabrics direct from us. Our prices save you money; we also give generous Club Rebate which you can donate to your church. Queen Fabrics are beautiful in design, exclusive in patterns, exceptional in quality. Free samples, money-back guarantee. Write today for details of Church Club Plan.

QUEEN FABRIC MFG. COMPANY, Dept. 133
Syracuse, New York.

NEW FEATHER BEDS ONLY $6.50. Full weight 36 pounds. New, clean and odorless. 6-pound Pillows $1.08 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for FREE catalogue. Address SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 71, Greensboro, N. C.

A LEADING BOARDING SCHOOL

for 250 Students. Established 1884. Prepares for College, Business, Teaching, or for Life. Health, Character and Scholarship. Wide patronage. VERY REASONABLE RATES. Each Student receives personal attention. School highly endorsed. (Location is near Greensboro, N. C.) For Beautiful Catalogue, Views, etc., address the President.

W. T. WHITSETT, PH. D.
WHITSETT, NORTH CAROLINA

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads,
Bill Heads,
Statements,
Envelopes
Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

The Southern Christian Publishing Company,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

DEATHS

Bateman.

At Altamahaw, N. C., August 16, 1913, Mrs. Martha Bateman, widow of Josiah Bateman, about seventy years old. She leaves one son and his family in sadness. She was a consistent member of the M. E. Church. Funeral and interment at Bethlehem Christian Church, conducted by Rev. J. W. Holt.

Riddle.

On August 11, 1913, Sister Flora C. Riddle was called to her reward. She was deaf and dumb and had spent about two years at Morganton, N. C. She was about 17 years of age, and had been a member of the Jonesboro Baptist Church for two years. Her remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at Grace's Chapel. Services conducted by the pastor.

B. J. EARP.

Simpson.

Near Morton's Store, Alamanec Co., August 19, 1913, in the 49th year of her age, Elizabeth Simpson, wife of William Simpson, to whom she was married in 1880. Born to them were six children, three of whom preceded her to the spirit world. She was a member of Bethlehem church about 34 years. Four brothers survive her and her sorely bereaved husband. Funeral and interment at Bethlehem conducted by Rev. J. W. Holt.

Morton.

In Greensboro, N. C., at St. Leo's Hospital, August 21, 1913, Miss Sarah Alice Morton, sister of John Morton, who lives near Stoney Creek church. Her age was 53 years, 1 month and 26 days. She had been a member of Bethlehem about 30 years. She was a worthy Christian woman. The circumstances of her death made it one of peculiar sadness to her friends. She attended church on Wednesday, was carried to the Hospital on Thursday, and was buried on Friday, August 22, 1913, at Gilliams church. Funeral and interment conducted by Rev. J. W. Holt.

Huffman.

J. P. Huffman and family attended the burial of Mr. Huffman's father, George Huffman, of Burlington, Route No. 10, Monday, August 25. He was in his eighty-first year. For several years he had been blind, also was a sufferer from cancer of the stomach. He bore his affliction with patience. The community has lost a faithful citizen.

In his early life he owned and conducted a large flour mill, but owing to a decline in health retired several years ago. His remains were laid to rest in Low's church cemetery, of which church he was a devoted member. He leaves a widow, two daughters, and five sons, who will sadly miss him.

Funeral was conducted by Rev. Mr. Stickley, of Greensboro, assisted by Rev. Mr. Cox. H.

Faulkner.

Mrs. Lucy Ann Faulkner, age ninety-two years and nine months, died at the home of her son, Lorenzo Faulkner, in Franklin Co., N. C., June 29, 1913. Sister Faulkner professed faith in Christ under the preaching of Rev. J. W. Wellons at Coghill's Arbor before the War. Later she united with Liberty Christian church and remained a member till death. In 1838 she married Joseph Faulkner. There were ten children in the home. Four boys and two girls are living. The four sons and one daughter were present at the funeral and their ages averaged 66 years. There are one hundred children, grand children, and great grandchildren.

Sister Faulkner was a Christian woman and her end was triumphant. She was in her usual health until stricken with paralysis on Thursday night, and suffered but little till the end. Although mother and grandmother has gone to her reward, the influence of such a life as she lived cannot end with death, but remains to bless her children and children's children.

C. E. NEWMAN.

REPORT ON MEMOIRS.

Virginia Valley Central Conference.

Rev. J. W. Dofflemyre.

Whereas, Rev. J. W. Dofflemyre, who was the oldest minister in the Conference, and who, for many years, was president of the Virginia Central Conference before the union of that body with the Virginia Valley Conference, passed from his arduous labors to his eternal reward, October 19, 1912, therefore be it resolved:

First—That we bow in humble submission to the will of God who doeth all things well.

Second—That this body sustains the loss of a brother and co-laborer in the great work of the ministry in our Conference.

Third—That this Conference extend its Christian sympathy to the bereaved family.

Fourth—That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family a copy be recorded in our minutes, and that copies be sent to the Christian Sun and to the Herald of Gospel Liberty for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
L. L. LASSITER,
A. S. ANDERSON,
R. L. WILLIAMSON,
Committee.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books: Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's icy
Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf.

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55
cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—
Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly.

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent
scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work.
We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.

Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles,
Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

—HIGH CLASS—

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET.

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people.
Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., SEPTEMBER 10, 1913

NO. 37

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Christian Education.

For secular schools and colleges now to claim that church schools and colleges are prejudiced and narrow and weak is as if a child were to say the same of its mother, immediately when the age of youth or maturity had been reached. The forerunner of all our great colleges and universities was the church school and college. Christianity is the parent of liberal and true and genuine education. Out of the church college, State and secular institutions of learning have come. And the most liberal, the fullest and freest educational atmosphere on earth today is that in and about the Christian institution. The founder of Christianity said: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." (John 8:32.)

Making an Orator.

Every body envise the orator: the person who is endowed with such persuasive speech that he can sway his fellows to think as he thinks and feel as he feels. The orator is the person with an effective speech, and Ex-President Patton of Princeton University has given the following simple, but sure, outline of an effective public address, what such an address must contain, to-wit: "Facts, Big facts, Human facts, Related facts." SUN readers who wish to become orators may remember that outline. A practical working out of the outline is found in the Second Chapter of Acts, in which we are told by scholars we have the most perfect oration ever delivered by a man—that by Peter on the day of Pentecost, an address that meets every requirement of the public speaker's art.

Paris Models and Indecent Dress.

Indecency and immodesty in woman's dress have gone so far that the secular press has taken up the matter most determinedly, and what the papers are saying about present styles is a caution. It has been known from of old that Paris, gay, sinful, frivolous, lewd and wanton Paris, sets the pace in styles and fashions for American women. The often erratic Collier's Weekly rings clear in this matter with the following utterance: "The Paris dressmaker has become a degenerate, and as such it is time that every decent American woman should leave his designs unbought. Thousands of clear-minded and clear-thinking American women are already doing this, and the steady trend toward American fashions for American women, and the wonderfully rapid spread of the idea throughout the country, are the first awakenings of American womanhood to the right thing to do." That high-minded and right thinking women should be forced, by the magic hand of fashion, to follow styles created for them by women of questionable character and unsavory records in Paris is a strange fate from which the decent and right thinking should, and will one day, find a way of escape.

Divine Pleasure.

Men rebel against God, show indifference to God; but God does not rebel against men, nor show indifference to their welfare, nor seek to destroy them. God's pleasure is man's salvation. "I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live; turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die?" (Ezek. 33:10.) This is the divine plea, the plea even of plaintive pity for every sinful heart to turn and look and live. God's pleasure is that every man be saved. "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure." God thus works through man's work for man's salvation. Surely there is no limit to God's mercy and loving kindness.

The Richest Inheritance.

The most valuable legacy of our Nation is not the lands we own, the houses that we have builded, the fields cleared, or the wealth accumulated. Brace, in A History of Humane Progress, rightfully declares: "There are certain practices, principles and ideals implanted or supported by Christianity that are the richest inheritance of our race. They are such as: Regard for the personality of the weakest and the poorest; respect for women; the absolute duty of each member of the fortunate classes to raise up the unfortunate; humanity to the child, the prisoner, the stranger, the needy, and even the brute; increasing opposition to all forms of cruelty, oppression and slavery; the duty of personal purity and the sacredness of marriage; the necessity of temperance." Such are homely virtues, but they are indeed our richest inheritance.

Negroes and Property.

One need not shut one's eyes to the fact that the negro race is accumulating property, and very rapidly. When it is remembered that the race was in slavery up to within less than a half century ago, that now it owns $700,000,000 worth of property in the United States, that the race during this period has increased in population from 4,500,000 to 10,000,000 souls and now owns 20,000,000 acres of land it will be seen that there is real progress. Only 30 per cent. of the race is now unable to read and write, and illiteracy is rapidly decreasing. Many are slovenly, indolent, careless, indifferent; but the above figures indicate great progress. The ancestors of this race are yet in the wilds of Africa living in a semi-barbarous condition. The most fortunate day that ever dawned for this people was that on which they were brought to this country to come in contact with the white man and learn the white man's methods, plans, pursuits and way of worship. It was a terrible ordeal through which they had to pass, and through which our Nation had to pass to bring them here, school them in civilization, obedience and respect and set them free. It was a baptism of blood for the elevation of two races. And the end is not yet. As no one could see a hundred years ago what would be wrought out by the hand of God through this strange episode in history, much less can one now see what the future has in store for the two races living side by side under the same form of government. Only God's wisdom can discern in a matter of such import.

A Christian College.

The Biblical Recorder of Raleigh quotes approvingly Dr. Augustus H. Strong's definition of a Christian College as follows: "An institution established and endowed by Christian people to promote the Kingdom of Christ by training young men's highest powers, intellectual, social and religious, for the service of Christ in the Church and State. That only is a Christian college in which Christianity is the confessed and formative principle of its whole organization, method, and life. * * * In a Christian college, first of all, it would seem that all the instructors would be active Christians. Personality counts for as much as definite instruction. It is the man that teaches quite as much as what he teaches." This seems to us the very cream and core of the whole theory of Christian education. A stream can rise no higher than its source. "A fig tree cannot bear thorns nor the thistle figs."

The Ten Most Useful.

Nobody can tell which man or woman, of a State or community, is the most useful. The modest, timid, and unheard of may do that today which shall on tomorrow, or in future, prove them to have been the most useful. Still even our mortal standards are worth while and our speculations about the most useful, eminent and successful are interesting. Recently the Independent of New York asked its readers to name the ten most useful living Americans. The following received the most votes, in the order named: Thomas A. Edison, Jane Addams, Andrew Carnegie, Theodore Roosevelt, Helen Gould Shepard, Alexis Carrell, George W. Goethals, William Jennings Bryan, Woodrow Wilson, Luther Burbank. That list is significant in one particular: there is not a preacher in the list and the first three names are rather arrayed, with all their strength and great influence, against the church. The same question was raised by a British paper as to the ten most useful living Britishers. Those receiving the highest vote were: William Lloyd George, Prime Minister Asquith, Sir Edward Grey, A. J. Balfour, John Clifford, Viscount Kitchenor, Earl Roberts, F. B. Meyer, Andrew Carnegie, G. Campbell Morgan. In this list are two ministers and with one or two exceptions all are prominent and influential church men. We Americans seem to rate a man's usefulness by the amount of material things he acquires, controls or affects. The British seem to have an idea that men who rise to eminence and renown in state craft, in culture and in the pulpit are the most useful.

EDITORIAL

ELON'S FINE OPENING.

It will be information of the most gratifying sort to all SUN readers that in beginning its twenty-fourth annual session Elon College has by far the largest, best, and most auspicious opening in all its history. Owing to the fact that fifty-two persons received their diplomas and certificates from the College in June, and that special efforts were made last Summer, when the financial condition of the country was the most favorable, it was not thought possible to increase the number in attendance upon the insitution this year. At this writing, Tuesday noon, September 9th, 276 have matriculated, and every day brings additional numbers. If the increase continues even as in previous years, it seems now safely conservative to say there will be 400 young men and young women enrolled in the College before the present scholastic year ends. Beginning in 1890 with, say, 100 students, the College has in less than a quarter of a century increased its attendance fourfold.

This begins to show us what the future may have; what in truth it will have in store for us if we remain faithful and loyal and true and if the College shall continue true to the intents and purposes of its founders. Suppose an increase the next twenty-four years equal to that of the past twenty-four, and you have an institution of more than 1500 matriculates. This of course raises the vision too high, as in the beginning there was an open and an unworked field. There is reasonable ground of hope and expectation that, with no unforeseen providence hindering, the next twenty-five years will witness a thousand matriculates at Elon. All of this is problematic and belongs to the future, and depends upon our loyalty, devotion and co-operation.

Every year, with its increased current of young life pouring into the College, brings fresh hope and new courage to those who love the institution and the cause for which it was founded, namely, to give Christian training to young men and young women seeking preparation for life's duties.

We have wrought well, far better than was deemed possible by the most sanguine, and it has hardly begun to appear what great things even in the line of Christian education and character-building, the future has in store for us. Let us fear God and undertake only in His name and all will be well with us.

PAY THE DELEGATES' FARE.

A few wealthy and generous Presbyterian laymen of Canada recently solved a vexed church problem, and made an epoch in the history of religious assemblies. These laymen desired a great convention, and went to work to get it. They put up a fund of $100,000 with which to pay the railroad fare of three delegates from each congregation of their denomination. The results were all that were desired, and a most largely attended and hence a most enthusiastic assembly was held.

It is impossible to have an inspirational church assembly, conference, or convention, unless the numbers are there. There are enthusiasm, inspiration, and information in mere numbers. Many of our general religious gatherings are practical failures because so few representatives and delegates are present. The wholesome and uplifting addresses, papers, and plans are all but thrown away, because those who should hear them are not there. The greatest single drawback to the success of our conferences and congregations is the fewness of those who attend, the wilting, scorching, killing effect of the smallness of numbers.

This can be remedied, and it should be done. Why should a church elect a delegate to an annual conference, and then politely ask him to go into his own pocket for his railroad fare? Literally ask a man to perform a duty at a sacrifice of time and much personal inconvenience, and then ask him to pay for the privilege of doing so! There is not much courtesy in that, or common sense, or generosity. The church is worthy of better things.

This is not paying a person to perform a religious duty, or go on an errand of mercy or of missions. When you pay a person's fare you have not paid the person anything. You have expressed a willingness to share with him the sacrifice he is making to perform a duty.

Is the church, the local church, not able to pay the fare of a delegate or delegates to the conference? Then why ask one member to do at his own expense that which the whole church is not able to do? There isn't much fairness, much equity, much reason in that.

Conferences will soon be upon us. Delegates will be elected. Good and active and busy men should be chosen. It is a big sacrifice for such men to lay down their work and go. And that is enough of a sacrifice to request or require. They should not be expected to pay further for the privilege of making the sacrifice. The local church should pay the fare to conference of the delegates elected. This is reasonable, fair and simple justice.

And then when delegates are chosen to the General Convention Conferences should take steps to provide for paying the fare of the delegates elected to represent them.

This matter is worth considering. It would solve the vexed problem of poorly attended assemblies. It would send men to these sessions who ought to go, and who would go. It would send a thrill of life, hope and inspiration to every local church in the Conference. What think the brethren of it?

STUDYING MISSIONS.

There is absolutely no excuse for one's not having an intimate and working acquaintance with missions, and missionary methods and undertakings. The best talent of the time is engaged in making the theme of missions interesting, absorbing and worth while. The best books of our times are books on missions. We are overwhelmed with wonder and admiration at the fresh and full and vigorous current of literature now pouring forth from pen and press on the single theme of missions.

While we write there lie on our desk a half dozen volumes, recently from the press, treating the topic of missions in some of its phases. In literary finish and array of interesting facts these books would rank well with the classics. It is more than current literature. It is mental and spiritual food of the best and highest type. Unless one reads now books on missionary topics one certainly misses some of the very best that the thought, culture and Christianity of the times have to present.

If a CHRISTIAN SUN reader wants an absorbing book take our counsel and try a plunge into some of these volumes: Missionary Methods for Sunday School Workers, by George H. Trull; The Call of the World, by W. E. Dougherty; Immigrant Forces, by William P. Shriver; The New America, by Mary Clark Barnes and Lemuel Call Barnes; The Decisive Hour in Christian Missions, by John R. Mott; The Miracle of Missions in Four Volumes, by the late Arthur T. Pierson; or any one of a score of such books now within easy reach. If such an one will not find himself more than repaid for his pains and his money then we are deceived indeed.

Missions have come to be a world-wide theme, and of absorbing interest in all lands. He who does not now get in touch with the sweep of the missionary topic is certainly out of date and behind the times, and that to his own hurt, intellectually, morally and spiritually. Secure a book on missions for half a dollar and see if our word does not hold good.

COMPULSORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

Parents and guardians in North Carolina should not forget that the State now has a compulsory school attendance law, and that all children between the years of 8 and 12 must be sent to school at least four months of each year. That parents who read THE SUN may be warned, and so keep the law, we give herewith a section from the law as it was enacted by the last Legislature:

"That from and after the first day of July, 1913, every parent, guardian, or other person in the State of North Carolina having control or charge of a child between the ages of 8 and 12 years, shall cause said child or children to attend the local public school in the district, town, or city in which he resides, continuously for four months of the year. This period of compulsory attendance shall commence at the beginning of the compulsory period of the school term nearest to the eighth birthday of the child or children, and shall cover the compulsory period of four consecutive school years thereafter. This period of compulsory attendance shall commence at the beginning of the school term unless otherwise ordered by the County Board of Education, or by the Board of Trustees in town schools."

God Is Just.

Thomas Jefferson was wielding a sagacious pen when he wrote: "I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just." When one sees the wide-spread, not to say universal violation and even the desecration of the holy Sabbath day throughout our country, in the face of the fact that a wise God said, "Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work," one wonders what the outcome will be—since God is just and will keep His word though the heavens fall.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Elon's fine opening is a source of great gratitude to all friends of the College.

—Rev. G. O. Lankford is a member of the Faculty of the Wadley, Alabama, High School for the opening scholastic year.

—Rev. Gypsy Smith, the world's greatest evangelist, is to begin a series of meetings at Danville, Va., Sunday, Sept. 14, and continue same for ten days. Fortunate indeed will be those who can hear him.

—The tragic death of Sister J. W. Bolton, as told of by C. A. Hines this week, will be greatly deplored. She was a most estimable Christian woman and much beloved in Greensboro, where she resided for two years.

—Rev. L. F. Johnson, D. D., began his pastorate with the Main St. Church, Berkley, Va., last Sunday. The papers speak well of his opening service. Bro. Johnson has a great field of usefulness at Berkley, and one to engage his best efforts.

—Mr. and Mrs. Willis J. Lee of Nansemond Co., Va., who have been visitors at Elon College the past ten days, returned home Thursday of this week. These are friends of Elon and of every enterprise that makes for the progress and development of the church.

—Rev. M. P. Julian, pastor of the Christian church, Vienna, N. J., who was born in Randolph Co., N. C., and whose parents were Quakers, his father being a minister in that church, would like to locate in the South as pastor. Any one interested can write Bro. Julian.

—Mr. E. C. Hines, who graduated from Elon College two years ago and has since that time been principal of the McLeansville High School, has been elected principal of the Yanceyville High School at the county seat of Caswell. Mr. Hines is a popular teacher and will make good.

—Rev. R. F. Brown, a ministerial student in Elon College, was called home, by wire, last Thursday with the sad intelligence that his mother was dying at her home near Roanoke, Ala. Bro. Brown has our sympathy, and that of his host of friends, in these dark and sorrowing hours.

—If it is desired to keep the new convert true to his profession and get him or her interested in church work, why not put THE CHRISTIAN SUN in the convert's home? It is doubtful if there is a surer method of keeping the new member safe and steadfast than by getting him to read his church paper.

—Mr. Alonzo C. Hall, now a graduate from Columbia University, New York, and from Elon College, was a pleasant visitor recently. He goes next week to the chair of English in Columbus, Ga., city schools. Mr. Hall has taught with eminent success, and is a writer, as well as a teacher, of the king's English.

—Our Mission Treasurer's report for August, printed elsewhere, shows that we are still going forward—into heavier indebtedness. We must evidently do one of two things: Raise more for missions or call in a few more missionaries. The Report does not indicate whether the indebtedness is on Home or Foreign account.

—We have been advised that Rev. H. S. Booth, Third Church, Norfolk, Va., Rev. Daniel A. Keys, South Norfolk, Va., and Rev. C. C. Jones, Wakefield, Va., and Rev. J. O. Cox, Durham, N. C., have declined re-election to their present pastorates the coming year. These are all worthy, useful and influential men, and will not be left long without pulpits that need their services.

—We are in receipt of a very inviting and impressive book, "Religion in College Life," by Rev. Martyn Summerbell, D. D., LL. D., published by Fleming H. Revell Co., N. Y. The volume of 215 pages contains college sermons and addresses, by that prince of Christian scholars and thinkers, Dr. Summerbell, several of which addresses were delivered at Elon College. It is a worthy and well printed book of great worth and merit. The price is $1.00 net.

—Our valuable friend and brother, T. H. Crocker, Middleburg, N. C., graciously remembers that this is the dull, and so the very needy season with church papers, and so sends his renewal, adding these cheering words: "I congratulate you both on the literary and mechanical excellence of THE SUN. It is better than ever." We wish many others, whom it would in no wise inconvenience, would send in their renewals now, as there is no time of the year when they are so much needed and appreciated as now.

—Our good brother J. V. Knight, a ministerial student in Elon College, has labored with commendable zeal and diligence in revival meetings during the Summer vacation, and his labors have been blessed. His letter in THE SUN this week tells a story of service, energy, and devotion that is interesting to read and think upon. Will not more of the ministers who have been in revivals and interesting church work write THE SUN of their labors in the Master's vineyard? We are inclined to think that a sort of make-believe modesty seizes many ministers when they happen to think of writing of their work for their church paper, as if telling about the Lord's work were, or could be, boasting about their work. Every preacher, with any religion, loves to read in his church paper about happy and wholesome revivals and other salient church news. Well, how can any one read such news unless some one write it? The modesty of some people is shocking—in that it does not exist save in their minds.

—Rev. B. F. Black quits Y. M. C. A. work to engage in the regular pastorate at a great sacrifice in salary, but his heart leads him to the pulpit, salary or what not. Bro. Black has had an exceedingly interesting career as Y. M. C. A. worker. His first engagement was with the Street Car Railway Association of Memphis, in which capacity he served five years and during the time enlisted 3500 men in the work. From Memphis he went to the general Y. M. C. A. work at Suffolk for a year. From Suffolk he went to Clifton Forge, Va., where he now is general secretary with one of the largest Railway Y. M. C. A.'s in the whole country. In the two years he has been there this Association has paid off its indebtedness of $500 and put in $1200 in improvements, and the receipts have increased from $5,536 to $7,521 per year in the time. Bro. Black returns to the pulpit not worn with service nor weakened from failure, but strong in the consciousness of work well done, and a record of achievement in the Master's vineyard for which any one would be grateful. When in the pastorate eight years ago he was exceedingly popular with his parishioners, and was a preacher of interesting power and personality. The Holland and Holy Neck field has done well in securing him, and Bro. Black will render valuable service. He was married (a second marriage) at Clifton Forge April 23, 1913, to Miss Allie Frances Swisher, and the happy pair will reside at Holland, beginning their residence there in October.

NEWS AND VIEWS.

—Thirty blocks, entailing a loss of many millions, of the business part of Hot Springs, Arkansas, were wiped out by fire Sept. 5. The city has made an appeal for outside help as hundreds of its people are left homeless and without food.

—Governor Cole Blease, of South Carolina, remains pitiable and out of place. His latest is an attack on the church. He is reported as saying, in his opening speech as candidate for the United States Senate: "I used to go to church once in a while, but I soon found out what they preached about was Blease and prohibition; I was for one and against the other, so I quit going." As long as a State keeps a man like that in high office it has cause for shame and humiliation.

It is indeed a most hopeful and encouraging fact that the schools and colleges now opening have the largest attendance of any year in their history. These young men and young women are to be congratulated. They have opportunities that come only to the few. They are now to prepare themselves to be the leaders in State, church and society in the future. As their opportunities are great, so will the obligations laid upon them, and the tasks expected of them, be great. We trust this will be the happiest, as it promises to be the fullest of all the school years of our various educational institutions.

Our esteemed townsman, Mr. J. W. Ingle, than whom, by the way, no people ever had a more courteous and kindly post master, went last week, with more than half a dozen brothers and sisters from various parts of the State, to Blowing Rock, N. C., to give their father and mother a surprise in the way of celebrating with them their golden wedding. Mr. In-gle's father, Rev. J. W. Ingle, went, years ago, from Guilford county to Blowing Rock in search of health, and there he has lived to a happy old age and reared a family of Christian men and women. In desiring long life and health the elder Ingle did well to go to Blowing Rock; and in desiring to enjoy the same blessings we do not see how his son could have done better than to come from Blowing Rock to Elon College.

The erudite editor of The Statesville Landmark is trying through his columns to correct certain common errors in our written and spoken language. Attention is called to the fact that we often speak or write "of a young man with a bright future before him," as if the future could be elsewhere than before him. Also attention is called to "little tots," when nobody ever heard of a big tot. May we respectfully suggest to Judge Clark that he add to his list of correction "widow woman." One often hears even scholarly people say "widow woman," as if a widow could be anybody else than a woman. But even a more common redundancy is a "bad cold," as if one could or did sometimes have a good cold. The Bible speaks against this redundancy when it says, "Let your conversation be yea, yea, and nay, nay," meaning that superfluous words and blunders in speech were to be avoided as hurtful both to manners and morals.

TRAGIC DEATH OF MRS. BOLTON.

Friends of Mrs. J. W. Bolton, wife of a former pastor of the First Christian church of Greensboro, will be shocked to learn of her tragic death at her home near South Bend, Indiana, a few days ago. Mr. Chas. A. Hines has received a letter setting out the details of the occurrence, the latter being from a daughter, Mrs. J. S. Barber, of South Bend. Following is a part of the letter:

"On August 22 Mrs. Bolton fell down an open stairway into the basement, striking her head on a sharp cement step which crushed her skull. Her whole right side was dislocated, breaking a leg, ankle bone, hip and four fingers of the right hand. It was impossible to tell whether her neck was broken, but it was evidently, as it was badly swollen. Death was instant and there was no signs of a struggle.

"The neighbors became alarmed at not seeing her and early on the morning of the 23rd made a search of her home. The coroner pronounced it an accident immediately, as there were no signs of foul play. She had been down town on the morning of the 22nd. After dinner a neighbor called, rang the bell, but got no response. She left, thinking Mrs. Bolton was away from home. The accident undoubtedly happened just after dinner, as the condition of the kitchen showed as much."

Just eleven weeks before Mrs. Bolton's death her children were called to the family home on account of the death of the husband, Rev. J. W. Bolton, and the double grief of the children arouses the deepest sympathy of friends of the family.

Mr. Bolton was pastor of the Greensboro Christian church from November, 1908, to November, 1910, and while there made many strong friends. He was a forceful preacher and a man of deep piety. His wife was as popular as he, on account of her untiring efforts in behalf of the church and her lively interest in everything. C. A. HINES.

FOR SALE.

I offer my two story, six room dwelling, and farm of 53 acres, almost adjacent to College campus, for sale at reasonable price. A fine location for those wishing to educate their children. Correspondence solicited.

J. J. LAMBETH, Elon College, N. C.

FROM OUR CONTRIBUTORS

INTERESTING PLACES IN PARIS.

No one goes to Europe without visiting Paris, if possible. This city has projected herself into the thought of every civilized people. As Apollo was consulted at Delphi, so the goddess of fashion sits on the tripod and dictates here. The god Mars likewise has long held his court here, in the cite in the Seine, and here only is learned the par excellence code de cuisine (way to cook).

The wonderful transformations of her civil and social life exhibit all the variety of the kaleidoscope, now grave, now gay, humorous, social, ancient, modern, full of churches yet irreligious, surpassing all others in contributing to life's reliefs and indulgences, yet the most reckless in sacrificing life, today it is vive la roi, tomorrow it is the guillotine. Strange, beautiful, mysterious metropolis; we will enter thy gates, walk thy streets and boulevards, and visit thy cathedrals.

The first cathedral that we visited was La Madeleine, or Church of St. Mary Magdalene. The foundation of this superb classic edifice was laid by Louis XV in 1764. The original design was in the style of the Pantheon, but the architect, Couture, who replaced Constant d'Ivry in 1777, reverted to the Græco-Roman temple form. The building was unfinished when the Revolution broke out, and was recommenced by the architect, Pierre Vignon, under the First Empire. Napoleon intended to erect it as a temple to victory. In 1814 the work was again suspended, but was afterwards resumed under different architects and was only completed in 1842, at a total cost of £520,000, or $2,496,000.

The carvings over the front entrance represent the Last Judgment, designed by Lemaire; the bronze doors are adorned with groups, illustrating the Ten Commandments; and many carved figures and splendid pictures representing New Testament scenes adorn the interior.

During the civil war which succeeded the Siege of Paris the Madeleine was in considerable danger. A barricade, defended by cannon and mitrailleuse, was erected by the insurgents across the Rue Royale, the Royal Street, immediately in front of the church, and in the conflict between the troops of the Republic and the Commune many houses were burned down and many others much injured by shells and bullets. When the Versailles army finally prevailed, some hundreds of insurgents, who had sought sanctuary in the Madeleine, were killed on the spot. The public is admitted to view the interior of the Madeleine, with its monuments, chapels, and daily service with splendid music. The musical services at Mass on Sundays are very fine, especially on great festivals like Pentecost. We were not so fortunate as to hear the music at its best as we went during the week when there was no special service going on, but the worshippers were there in large numbers, considering that they are going and coming all day and every day during the week and every week during the year.

Visitors are entering and leaving the church of the Madeleine almost continuously from one o'clock P. M. when they are admitted until night. The Roman Catholic church in Paris is the predominant church and they have many fine cathedrals. We visited Notre Dame, St. Etienne du Mont, and Sante Chapelle, of which we will write later. W. C. WICKER.

PAGE VALLEY LETTER.

Many hearts were made sad when it was learned that Mrs. Nettie Rosenberger Lassiter, wife of Rev. L. L. Lassiter, passed over the river Saturday evening, August 30. On Sunday morning preceding her death she went to Bethlehem church to attend services, Brother Lassiter preaching. She was said to have been apparently in her usual health, but ere the day closed she was stricken with paralysis, and lingered on the shores of time nearly a week, not being able to speak but two words, "yes" and "no." Such is the uncertainty of life.

To try to offer a fitting tribute to such a life is a pleasant but impossible task. Pen and ink are too cold and unfeeling to express the warmth of the love and affection which were hers. Words are too shallow to tell of the depth of such a devotion to all that she loved. As a wife, she loved truly, sacrificed nobly, and gave her time and strength unstintingly to help her husband in his work. She was indeed a true help-meet. As a friend, she exhibited to an unusual degree the qualities of true and helpful friendship. As a Christian, she was loyal to the church of her choice, but loved all of God's children. She was a meek and humble follower of her Master.

We cannot say that such a life has ceased. She continues to live in the hearts she has gladdened and the lives she has blessed. The seeds of love and kindness that she sowed will continue to bring forth fruit as long as life lasts. She lives too in the realm of endless life—in that clime where there are no disease germs, and where the power of sin and Satan can never more be felt.

We are sure that the sympathy of our entire brotherhood will be extended to our dear Brother Lassiter in his sore bereavement, and prayers will be offered in his behalf.

I should be glad to tell THE SUN readers of my work, but that would make this letter too long. I will just mention in this that Rev. W. G. Clements came from Conference to visit us for a few days. We appreciated and enjoyed his presence with us very much. While here Brother Clements preached for me several times, bringing messages of gospel truth that will long be remembered. He endeared himself to our people here. My work this year is the same as last: Bethlehem, Concord, East Liberty, Leaksville, Mayland, Newport, Whistler's Chapel and Wood's Chapel.

R. L. WILLIAMSON.

Sept. 3, 1913.

IN REVIVAL WORK.

Last night (Sept. 5) I closed my last revival for this Summer at the Ether Christian church. This was the tenth meeting that I have been engaged in since June 1. My first meeting was at New Providence, of which mention has been made in THE SUN. The next scene of my labors was at Reidsville, N. C., with Rev. L. I. Cox and Dr. A. B. Kendall. From Reidsville I went to Graham where I was assisted by Rev. J. Lee Johnson. Here we had a splendid meeting, and Bro. Johnson did some great preaching, and the people of Graham will be glad to see him again.

The week following third Sunday in July I was with Rev. R. F. Brown at Beleys' Creek. Bro. Brown is doing a good work here, and his people hold him in high esteem. The Lord gave us a good meeting. Thence I went to attend the Young People's Convention of the western conference at Randleman, N. C., and from there I went to Ebenezer church to assist Rev. J. Lee Johnson in his meetings there. These are splendid people, and the Lord wonderfully blessed our labors. From Ebenezer I went to Big Oak to hold my meeting with Rev. S. B. Klapp to assist me. We had a good meeting; there were eleven professions and five accessions. From Big Oak I went to Piney Plains, where I assisted Rev. J. Lee Johnson in another good meeting. Bro. Johnson is much loved by his people, and is doing a good work. I left Bro. Johnson and went to hold my meeting at Shady Grove, where I was assisted by Bro. W. L. Maness, of the M. E. Church, South. We had a good meeting here, eleven made profession and there were three accessions.

On the fourth week in August I was with Rev. S. B. Klapp at Smithwood, where we had a good meeting. On Saturday night before the fifth Sunday in August we began our meeting at Ether with Rev. A. T. Banks to assist us. Bro. Banks did excellent preaching, and made a host of friends. There were thirteen professions here, and so far only three have joined the church. The church was much revived and many were built up in the faith.

To God be all the praise for all these blessings. J. F. MORGAN.

THOMAS JEFFERSON ON THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

At the May meeting of the Massachusetts Historical Society Mr. Winslow Warren submitted to the society some letters and memoranda handed him by Mr. Richard W. Hale of Boston, written in 1818 by his grandfather, Salma Hale of Keene, N. H., a member of Congress from New Hampshire and author of a History of the United States. In these papers Mr. Hale gives an account of a visit at Monticello to Thomas Jefferson and of most interesting conversations with him concerning the American Revolution and other subjects. In the course of the account he says:

"After dinner the Christian religion became a topic of conversation. In the course of it I remarked that I had lately seen quoted, in a pamphlet, a letter from him, expressing a doubt whether Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and classing him with the great men of antiquity, Zoroaster, Socrates, Confucius, etc. He remembered no such letter; but, after reflecting awhile, he observed that something like that might have been said in his correspondence with Dr. Rush. This pamphlet, I observed, was the first of a series, seven or eight in all, on the subject of Unitarianism, and was published alternately by opponents and professors of that doctrine. The information interested him, and he was gratified when told that, on my return home, copies of all of them should be sent to him."

Upon his return Mr. Hale accordingly sent to Jefferson the pamphlets referred to, which were by Morse, Lowell, Channing, and others, and he received in acknowledgment the following letter from Jefferson, dated Monticello, June 26, 1818, which is of distinct interest and significance for the light which it throws upon Jefferson's religious thought:

"Sir,—I thank you for the pamphlets you have been so kind as to send me, which I now return. They give a lively view of the state of religious dissension now prevailing in the North, and making its way to the South. Most discussions begin with a discussion of principles, but soon degenerate into episodic, verbal, or personal cavils. Too much of this is seen in these pamphlets, and, as usual, those whose dogmas are the most unintelligible are the most angry. The truth is that Calvinism has introduced into the Christian religion more new absurdities than its leader had purged it of old ones. Our Savior did not come into the world to save metaphysicians only, his doctrines are levelled to the simplest understanding; and it is only by banishing hierophantic mysteries and scholastic subtleties, which they have nicknamed Christianity, and getting back to the plain and unsophisticated precepts of Christ, that we become real Christians. The half reformation of Luther and Calvin did something towards a restoration of his genuine doctrines; the present contest will, I hope, complete what they began and place us where the evangelists left us. I salute you with esteem and respect.

"TH. JEFFERSON."

—In Christian Register.

A TRIBUTE TO THE GREATEST OF ALL BOOKS —THE BIBLE.

For nineteen hundred years the battle between the spiritual and the material conception of life has raged around the Bible. "Search the Scriptures" was the command of Christ, and to the Scriptures the Christian world has turned ever since for its authority.

Atheists and Materialists have assailed the Bible at every point; they have disputed the facts which it sets forth, and ridiculed the prophecies which it recites; they have rejected the account which it gives of the creation, and scoffed at the miracles which it records. They have denied the existence of the God of the Bible and have sought to reduce the Savior to the stature of a man. They have been as bold as the prophets of Baal in defying the Living God and in heaping contempt upon the Written Word. Why not challenge the Atheists and the Materialists to put their doctrines to the test? When Elijah was confronted by a group of scorners who mocked at the Lord whom he worshiped, he invited them to match the power of their god against the power of his and he was willing to concede superiority to the one who would answer with fire. When

The Challenge Was Accepted

He built an altar, prepared a sacrifice, and then, to leave no room for doubt, he poured water upon the wood and the sacrifice—poured until the water filled the trenches round about. So firm was his trust that he even taunted his adversaries with their failure while his proofs were yet to be presented. The prophets of Baal, be it said to their credit, had enough confidence in their god to agree to the test, and their disappointment was real when he failed them—they gashed themselves with knives when their entreaties were unanswered.

Why not a Bible test? The Book of books has lived and grown through the centuries; we are celebrating the three hundredth anniversary of the King James translation. The Christian world has confidence in the Bible; it presents the book as the Word of God, but the attacks made upon it by the enemies continue in spite of the growth of the Bible's influence. The Christian world, by its attitude, presents a challenge to the opposition and this is an opportune moment to emphasize the challenge—the moment when Christianity around the world is celebrating the triumphs that the Bible has won during the past three centuries.

Is the Bible the Work of Man,

Or is it an inspired book? Is it the product of human wisdom, or did its authors speak as they were commanded by the Lord?

Judged by human standards, man is far better prepared to write a Bible now than he was when our Bible was written. The characters whose words and deeds are recorded in the Bible were members of a single race; they lived among the hills of Palestine in a territory scarcely larger than one of our countries. They did not have printing presses and they lacked the learning of the schools; they had no great libraries to consult, no steam boats to carry them around the world and make them acquainted with the various centers of ancient civilization; they had no telegraph wires to bring them the news from the ends of the earth and no newspapers to spread before them each morning the doings of the day before. Science had not unlocked Nature's door and revealed the secrets of rocks below and stars above. From what a scantily supplied storehouse of knowledge they had drawn, compared with the unlimited wealth of information at man's command today! And yet these Bible characters grapple with every problem that confronts mankind, from the creation of the world to eternal life beyond the tomb. They have given us a diagram of man's existence from the cradle to the grave and they have set up the signposts at every dangerous point along the path. We turn back to the Bible for the Ten Commandments, which form

The Foundation for Our Statute Law,

And for the Sermon on the Mount, which lays down the rules for our spiritual growth. The Bible gives us the story of the birth, the words, the works, the crucifixion, the resurrection, and the ascension of Him whose coming was foretold in prophecy, whose arrival was announced by the angel voices, singing peace and good-will—the story of Him who gave to the world a code of morality superior to anything that the world had known before or has known since—the story of Him who is the growing figure of all time, whom the world is accepting as Savior and as the perfect example.

Let the Atheists and the Materialists produce a better Bible than ours, if they can. Let them collect the best of their school to be found among the graduates of the universities—as many as they please and from every land. Let the members of this selected group travel where they will, consult such libraries as they please, and employ every modern means of swift communication; let them glean in the fields of biology, paleontology, archeology, geology, zoology, botany, and astronomy, and then roam at will wherever science has opened a way; let them take advantage of all the progress in art and in literature, in oratory, and in history—let them use to the full every instrumentality that is employed in modern civilization; and when they have exhausted every resource, let them embody the results of their best intelligence in a book and offer it to the world as a substitute for this Bible of ours. Have they the confidence that the prophets of Baal had in their god? Will they try? If not, what excuse will they give?

Has Man Fallen from His High Estate,

So that we cannot rightfully expect as much of him now as nineteen centuries ago? Or does the Bible come to us from a source that is higher than man—which?

But our case is even stronger. The opponents of the Bible cannot take refuge in the plea that man is retrograding. They loudly proclaim that man has grown and that he is growing still. They boast of a world-wide advance and their claim is founded upon fact. In all matters except in the science that teaches us how to live man has made wonderful progress. The mastery of the mind over the forces of Nature seem almost complete, so far do we surpass the ancients in harnessing the water, the wind, and the lightning.

Inventive genius has multiplied the power of a human arm and supplied the masses with comforts of which the rich did not dare to dream a few centuries ago. Science is ferreting out the hidden causes of disease and teaching us how to prolong life. In every line, except in the line of character-building, the world seems to have been made over, but the marvelous changes by which old things have become new only emphasize the fact that man, too, must be born again, while they show how impotent are material things to touch the soul of man and transform him into a spiritual being. Wherever

The Moral Standard is Being Lifted Up—

Wherever life is becoming larger in the vision that directs it and richer in its fruitage, the improvement is traceable to the Bible and to the influence of the God and Christ of whom the Bible tells.

The Atheist and Materialist must confess that man ought to be able to produce a better book today than man, unaided, could have produced in any previous age. The fact that they have tried, again and again, only to fail each time more hopelessly, explains why they will not—why they cannot—accept the challenge thrown down by the Christian world to produce a book worthy to take the Bible's place.

They have prayed to their God to answer with fire—prayed to inanimate matter with an earnestness that is pathetic; they have employed in the worship of the blind force a faith greater than religion requires, but their Almighty is asleep. How long will they allow the search for the strata of stone and fragments of fossils and decaying skeletons that are strewn around the house to absorb their thoughts to the exclusion of the architect who planned it all! How long will the agnostic, closing his eyes to the plainest truths, cry night, night, when the sun in his meridian splendor announces that noon is here!

The Bible has stamped

Its Impress Upon the Map of the World;

Its boundaries are clearly marked, and the light that emanates from the Christian nations is flowing outward toward those who sit in darkness. Back of the progress that marks the present day is the code of morals that Christ proclaimed, and back of that code of morals is the divine character of Him who is both Son of God and Savior of Mankind. It is not necessary to rely upon His birth as a virgin's child or upon His mysterious resurrection to prove his claim to our worship. "He walks today along the shores of every sea" and performs that continuing miracle which we behold when a man begins "to hate the things he loved and to love the things he hated"—that mysterious exercise of mysterious power that converts the selfish, self-centered human being into a center from which good influences flow out in every direction.

The followers of Buddha may look upon life as a misfortune, if they will, and see escape only in the loss of individual identity—"the dewdrop melting into the Sea"; those who believe in the Bible will still regard life as a great opportunity to be crowned with a heavenly reward.

The followers of the Arab prophet may put their faith in force and rely upon the sword for proselyting power; those who believe in the Bible will still trust in the persuasive influence of love and depend upon its manifestations to bring recruits to the army of the Prince of Peace.

The followers of Confucius may content themselves with the negative philosophy of their teacher; those who believe in the Bible as they embody in their lives the precepts of Him who would make man a positive force for good—an overflowing spring.

Renew Their Strength in Proportion

The Materialist may confine his thoughts to the things that the senses can weigh and measure; the Christian's faith reaches toward the throne and takes hold upon the verities that the mind cannot grasp.

The Atheist may delude himself with the thought that he has driven God out of the Universe; the Christian sees the Creator everywhere, hears His Voice in the promptings of conscience and feels His presence in his heart.

To the doubts and "I do not know's" of the Agnostic, the Christian, Bible in hand, answers: "I believe."—Hon. William Jennings Bryan, in The Advance.

The second treaty of peace between the Balkan allies has been signed and presumably means the ending of the Balkan war. Greece gets the larger share of territory, Servia gets most of Northern Macedonia, and Montenegro gets some additional territory. Bulgaria gets Adrianople which belonged to Turkey.

COLUMBUS LETTER.

On the morning of July 15, accompanied by Mrs. Wells, I left Columbus to visit our home people in North Carolina. We reached Raleigh, N. C., on Wednesday, July 16, where Mrs. Wells' people reside. It was indeed a great pleasure to us both to get back to our home State and meet and be with many of our dear friends and loved ones. It was our first visit home since we were married the 4th of last December.

While I was in Raleigh it was my pleasure and privilege to fill the pulpit in Raleigh Christian church two Sundays, both morning and evening. The work there moves forward. Dr. L. F. Johnson has served them as pastor for the last four or five years, but very recently resigned to take up work elsewhere. Dr. Johnson did some hard and splendid work for the Raleigh church, and his labors have not at all been in vain, for under his pastorate the work there made commendable progress. Rev. C. E. Newman will succeed Bro. Johnson. Bro. Newman is an earnest, consecrated worker and a good preacher, and we feel sure the Raleigh church will do well under his leadership.

After spending a few pleasant days in Raleigh, I went to visit my mother, who lives near Semora, N. C. This to me of course was a great joy. Mothers and fathers in their old age should not be neglected by their sons and daughters, but too often such is the case.

During my stay at home, I was fortunate to be in a revival meeting at Lebanon, my home church, of which Rev. J. W. Patton is pastor. Bro. Patton was assisted in the revival by Rev. L. I. Cox. The meeting was good. The Spirit of the Lord came upon us in great power, and many souls were blessed and resolved to live a better life. Bro. Patton is much beloved by the people about Lebanon. He has been called to serve them another year. We wish for both pastor and people a great year's work together in the upbuilding of our Master's kingdom.

My visit home was pleasant, restful, and profitable, although I preached every Sunday while I was away. It goes to prove that a man is always happier and better off while he is at work than any other time, provided it is work of the proper kind and amount. After being away about three weeks I returned to Columbus and found my field of work in fairly good condition, considering the extreme warm weather. During my absence Bro. John Falkner supplied for me, and his services were enjoyed and appreciated by our people.

For the last few months our work here has not made the progress that we would like to have seen. Hot weather and sickness, together have somewhat interfered with our attendance, but now since the weather has moderated and the sick grown better our attendance and interest are more encouraging. We have the best Sunday school and the largest attendance I think we have ever had, and we are striving to make it better.

The Georgia and Alabama Conference meets with the Rose Hill church this Fall, and we are looking forward to that with much pleasure and profit. We expect to report all of our Conference assessments paid up in full, and a special foreign missionary offering besides. We hope every church will put forth an effort to raise a special offering for foreign missions, if it is not but $5.00; but make it just as large as you can. We need to be aroused on the subject of missions. We have too many stagnated churches. Show me a church that does not give scarcely anything for missions, and I will show you a stagnated church, a church that has no outlet, for it is the outlet that prevents stagnation. We must not only receive, but we must give. "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

W. L. WELLS.
2841 Beacon Ave., Columbus, Ga.

MORE PREACHERS NEEDED.

In THE SUN of August 20th you give us a bit of Bro. Andes' address before the Virginia Central Conference, which says there are 235 vacant pulpits in our Christian church. A sad fact indeed and should wake us up to a sense of duty. It reminds one of Amos 8:11: "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine not of bread nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord." But is God to blame for it? Is He not still calling workmen to go into his vineyard? Have we not in the Christian church bright young men with excellent Christian characters and a determination that will always win when a chance is given. Have we given them a chance?

Are preachers really scarce in the Christian church? Let's see if they are. The Annual published by the Christian Publishing Association in 1911 shows the following: 1309 churches, 1132 ministers. Subtracting 235 from 1309 leaves us 1074 with pastors, giving one preacher to each church. We have 58 left idle. This is the entire Christian church in the United States. Let's see about the Southern Convention. The Annual for 1913 shows 211 churches, 99 preachers. Out of this number we have 20 idle men. I don't know how many vacant pulpits in the Convention, but there are several at least. What's the matter?

Let's ask the pastor a few things. Mr. Pastor, why don't you encourage that young man who wants to preach? Well, I'll tell you plainly, to start with, I can do all the preaching my churches need, and I don't think we need anybody else just now; and more than that, if he should go to preaching the church might choose him and I would have to move. But at last he slips by the pastor and goes to preaching anyhow.

Then the responsibility falls on the church. Will the church answer a few things? Why don't you put that young preacher to work? He doesn't suit us. Maybe he doesn't, but give him a chance. No, we don't want that upstart. We want a man that can straighten us out.

Brethren, the trouble is with us. How treacherous and deceitful we have been. It reminds us of the Master's words (Matt. 23:27): "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem! thou that killest the prophets and stonest them which are sent unto thee. How often would I have gathered thy children together as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not." The church has not murdered its pastor, but it has killed his influence by the way they talk about him.

The rich man who retired happily at night in an upper chamber of his palace to dream of his silver and gold and all the good things the future held for him, never thought of danger while he slept. The room contains nature's sweetest flowers, and on the walls hang the richest paintings of all the famous artists of the world. But under him the fire has gained great headway and has undermined the foundation. The house falls, the man wakes, but it is too late. Now he must perish with his treasures. Will this be our fate or will we choose the better part?

Not all the preachers, not all the churches, are guilty of these things, but brethren, as a body we have gone away backward. Yet some of the best preachers, some of the best churches in the world belong to our body, the dear old Christian church. We don't claim that we can't do the big things and therefore are content with the little things, but yet we rejoice to know that "tall oaks from little acorns grow, great streams from little fountains flow." Do we really want victory? If so, victory is ours. But we must return unto God that he may return unto us. The Master said: "You shall not see me till you say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." Take courage, brethren. God is willing to prosper us today. If we are willing and obedient we shall eat the good of the land. So come to the Lord's table and help yourself. God has prepared an expensive feast for your satisfaction. It is free for the asking.

A. N. MCABEE.

THANKS! THANKS!!

Elon is under serious obligations to her friends; the best friends in the world they are, too. Everything considered, we have had a glorious opening—due to our many devoted friends and the blessing of Heaven.

Last year we attained a record that our best friends felt we could not equal. They did not say so, but they would write that we must not be discouraged if we fell behind the boom year just a little. They knew that special efforts had been put forth by the entire constituency to reach the high mark of last year, and like all boom achievements, they feared a falling off. But the friends had builded better than they knew, and, thanks to their efforts, the College by Saturday night had enrolled six students more than had been enrolled a year ago that night. Let us take courage and give thanks for this further evidence of the growing grasp of the College on its field of influence.

And the beauty of it is that others still are to come. Several former pupils have been providentially detained at home. They will return during the present week. New ones, too, are to come in large numbers between now and October 1st, so that we may predict a total yearly enrollment substantially in advance of last year's high water mark of 359.

One other word in conclusion, not necessary to be said, but yet perhaps worth while. It is this: Our friends who have stood so solidly for us during the vacation campaign can render us a paragon service during the next few days by using their influence to bring here the many young people yet undecided as to where they will attend College this year, and in asking this, I am sure I am asking what our friends will do with joy, even if it had not been requested.

W. A. HARPER.

PRAYER AT ITS BEST.

Only after self has died, and Christ has completely taken self's place within us, do we begin to know the fullest joy and power of prayer. For then our very life consists of Him whose great present activity is intercession. If the actual spirit of the greatest musician of history could enter into a man today, that man himself would of necessity become a master musician. So one into whose very being the great Intercessor has entered must of necessity become an intercessor himself. In Christ we are taken into the God-life of prayer; we have only to recognize this, and use our priceless privilege, in order to enter into the mysteries and the joys and the fruit-bearing of prayer. How simple and direct Christ made the pathway to the greatest blessings when he, our substitute, identified himself with us.—S. S. Times.

Love alone makes the heart rise to know the secret of all being. * * * Failing in this knowledge, man may know many things, but nothing truly; for all such knowledge stays with outward shows.—Henry Jones.

If the Word of God is hid in the heart it will come at once into our thoughts when we are tempted to sin, and the reply to the tempter will be, "it is written."

CHURCH NEWS.

POPLAR BRANCH.

On the fourth Sunday in August our revival began at Poplar Branch, Lee County, and continued through the fifth Sunday.

Bro. Frank J. Apple was with us and rendered faithful service. We feel some good has been accomplished by the efforts that were put forth, and unto God we give all the praise. As a result of our efforts, and in answer to our prayers, eight professed faith in Christ.

B. J. EARP.

MT. BETHEL.

We began our meeting here the third Sunday and continued until the fourth Sunday evening with three services a day. Rev. C. C. Jones of Wakefield, Va., came to our assistance Monday and did the preaching the balance of the time. The meeting resulted in reviving the church. Some twelve or fifteen professed faith in Christ, some of whom were backsliders; two professed sanctification. Bro. Jones ddi faithful preaching and made for himself a host of friends. The church and friends expressed their appreciation of his service by presenting him with a nice purse.

I said, in my last item of news, I would have more to say about the meeting at Clinton. The meeting at this place resulted in some forty-five or fifty professing faith in Christ; a few of this number were reclamations. I hope to give something more about this meeting later. God be praised for all this.

Yours in Him saved to serve,
P. T. KLAPP.

BEREA.

Our revival at Berea (Alamance) began Saturday before the first Sunday in August. We had the happy privilege of having Rev. H. W. Elder, of Richland, Ga., with us, who did the preaching; I mean the Lord preached through him. It has never been my privilege to listen to a series of better gospel sermons.

Our congregations were unusually large, filled with inspiration, and ever ready for service. The meeting came to a close on Monday night following the second Sunday with fifty-eight conversions and reclamations, and forty-two additions to the church, which is in fine condition.

SHALLOW FORD.

Our meeting began on the second Sunday in August. Bro. Elder also assisted us here, continuing to preach with power and to great effect, which could not be resisted because it was filled with the power of God, and came from a life thoroughly consecrated to God.

The meeting closed Friday night following, with twelve conversions and seven additions to the church, with other names already given for membrship. Th work of the church was greatly revived, and we are now able to go forth with greater energy, power and ambition for good than at any time previous in the work.

O'KELLY CHAPEL.

The meeting here began on Saturday before the third Sunday in August. Here we had no ministerial help to begin with, but after the services began our good brother P. H. Massey, from the Methodist church, came to our assistance, and delivered a series of fine gospel sermons. Bro. Massey's power seems to be bound up in the earnestness of his soul.

We are also indebted to Miss Elsie Adkins, of the Durham Chrsitian church, who did excellent service in assisting in the music. Miss Elsie was formerly a member of this church, and always renders splendid service when visiting her old home. The meeting closed on Thursday night, with several conversions and four additions to the church.

MONTICELLO.

Here our meeting began on Saturday before the fourth Sunday in August. Rev. A. T. Banks was with us and did most of the preaching. Bro Banks seemed to be at his best in the pulpit. His sermons were simple and filled with power. All who heard him enjoyed every sermon from the very beginning.

Here we were highly favored with the presence of Miss Frankie McNeil (a former class mate) who took great delight in furnishing the music for the meeting which was enjoyed by all.

The meeting closed on the fifth Sunday at 11 A. M. with ten conversions and five additions to the church. The work here is in fine condition.

In addition to my own work it was my happy privilege to be with Rev. H. W. Elder at Enigma, Kite, and Oak Grove in Georgia, and with Rev. J. H. Hughes at Dingler Chapel and New Home, in Alabama. Their meetings were good, of which they will write later.

My vacation was entirely spent in revival work, during which time I have seen 237 souls come into the kingdom of God.

J. V. KNIGHT.

Elon College, N. C., Sept. 4, 1913.

SMITHWOOD.

We began our meeting here the fourth Sunday. Here we had a real good revival in this church. There were ten professions and the church very much strengthened. The people seemd to be very busy so that the congregations were not so very large. The Sunday school is in a very good condition, with Bro. W. D. Humble Supt. Bro. J. F. Morgan was with me and did most of the preaching. Bro. Morgan had been pastor of this church some years ago. Here we have some most excellent members, with a small church, but I think a hopeful future. I am now at Pleasant Grove in a good revival.

S. B. KLAPP, Pastor.

PLEASANT GROVE.

Rev. S. B. Klapp, pastor of Pleasant Grove church, Randolph Co., N. C., closed an eight-day revival Sunday evening last. His congregations were large and attentive from first to finish. The closing sermon Sunday evening to the young people was one among the best we ever heard here. Much interest was manifested and good accomplished all through his meetings. Twenty-one were converted and fourteen added to the church. Five received baptism by affusion Sunday p. m. Nine or more are to be baptized by immersion the first Sunday in October at 10 A. M. at Ward's mill pond, near Cheeks, N. C.

It was not only a great revival, but the good Lord has wonderfully blessed the church under the pastorate of Bro. Klapp. Pleasant Grove is not only the oldest Christian church in Western Carolina, but numbers more members than any other church belonging to their conference. It has one of the largest and best kept up country cemeteries in the State.

We recently tore down the old church building and in sixteen and one-half days we had the present new building, 40x65 ft., all completed by free labor. "In union there is strength." Bro. Klapp is not only loved by his own church, but by all denominations.

Pleasant Grove surely has the right name, being one of the most pleasant locations for a church in Randolph county. People go there from far and near. The crowds were estimated on the first Sunday of the revival at 1500 or more. Much praise is due the hospitable people for the great interest taken for the welfare and comfort of all who attended those meetings. Their latch string hangs on the outside of the door year in and year out to all good people.

A FRIEND.

Bennett, N. C.

HAPPY HOME.

Our revival began here on the third Sunday in August and closed on Friday. The congregations were not as large as usual owing to the rainy weather and the farmers' cutting tobacco; but we had the best revival that has been in this church in many years. There were twenty-seven professions and eighteen accessions to the church and some others to join perhaps at our next appointment. This was a great meeting. The most of the converts were grown people—some heads of families. I think this church is in the best spiritual condition I have ever known it to be. I have served this church for the last five years, and I have never preached to a more agreeable congregation. This is truly a noble people and a good church; some just as good as you will find any where. When I begin to think of the Sunday school workers I turn my mind towards Bro. W. D. Wall, who has been one of the most untiring and faithful workers I know. For the past nineteen and a half years he has been the faithful Supt. of this Sunday school, living five miles from this church and making an average of four trips to his church in each month all these years, making 926 trips and ten miles each trip, a total of 9260 miles going to church and Sunday school, this being a distance of more than one-third around the earth. Let him who has made a better record answer this. Bro. Wall is backed up by some of the very best Sunday school and church workers. Bro. J. M. Richmond, assistant Supt., is one of the best Christian men in that county, and one of the best S. S. teachers. I have only to mention Bro. J. W. White, Bro. M. E. Lillard, and others. This is said to be the best Sunday school in Rockingham Co.

Bro. Cornelius Rowland was with us in this meeting, and endeared himself to this people very much by his earnest and strong sermons. Truly Bro. Rowland is a great preacher, a good Christian man of God, and I am glad to have him with me in any of my meetings.

S. B. KLAPP, Pastor.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Of the Mission Treasurer for the Month of August, 1913, as Per Standing Rule of the Mission Board.

RECEIPTS

For Home Missions	$ 1,976.63
For Foreign Missions	410.91
For all other purposes	269.92
	$ 2,657.46
Cash Balance August 1st	2,055.96
	$ 4,712.82

DISBURSEMENTS

To Home Missions	$ 258.88
To Foreign Missions	1,471.54
To all other purposes	634.85
	$ 2,365.27
Cash Balance August 30th	2,347.55
	$ 4,712.82

LIABILITIES

Bills payable	$ 6,600.00
Due accounts	6,911.30
Local salaries and bills due	203.18
	$13,714.48
Less cash balance	2,347.55
Total liabilities	$11,366.93

J. G. BISHOP,
Mission Treasurer.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: SEPTEMBER 14.

"The Ten Commandments"—the Last Six Studied.

The first four Commandments make the first table of the Law; they cover our duties with relation to God. Today we study the second table, our duties with relation to man.

The fifth Commandment is "the first with promise." The sixth is, in the Revised Version, "Thou shalt do no murder"; it does not forbid killing dangerous beasts, or animals needed for food, nor does it forbid the killing of murderers for the protection of society and as a warning to others. All these acts are warranted by God's word.

The Commandment against false witness is a specification of the worst and most dangerous form of lying, and includes the lesser forms. So also the Commandment against adultery includes the lesser forms of impurity. These are taken as typical sins of their respective classes.

The last Commandment is the most spiritual of all, reaching to the thoughts and intents of the heart.

The Teachings.

The fifth Commandment calls upon us to honor fatherhood and motherhood, the divine principle of unselfish love, wherever we find it.

The sixth Commandment forbids murderous hatred as well as the actual deed.

The seventh Commandment forbids the impure thought and desire as well as the impure act.

The eighth Commandment forbids the taking of anything to which we have no right, under whatever guise of legality or permission of society.

The ninth Commandment requires that we shall not exaggerate, or bear tales, or believe falsehoods.

The tenth Commandment requires contentment with what God deems best for us.

QUESTION REVIEW.

1. Of how many commandments does God's law consist?
2. How did Jesus condense it into two laws? (Golden Text.)
3. What then, is the one thing necessary to keeping God's whole law? (Love.)
4. To whom, next to God, do we owe love and obedience?
5. Repeat the commandment about our duty to our parents.
6. What does God command in reference to the property of others?
7. What in reference to the lives of ourselves and others?
8. Give the commandment which guards the tongue.
9. Which commandment urges us to keep pure and clean?
10. Which command is to guard our hearts?—Leonard.

MAKING CLASS ROOMS.

Always a difficulty in our Sunday schools is a lack of separate class rooms. The following plan will furnish two or more class rooms at a nominal cost.

Set off a corner of the church about twelve feet square. Have a carpenter make of the thinnest, lightest wood four light folding doors three feet wide. Fasten them to the wall twelve feet each way from the corner and fasten them together with reversible hinges so that they will fold together like a fan. At the corner where they meet suspend from the ceiling a rod with a hook at the end, and in the upper corner at the end of each partition fasten a ring. These doors when not in use will fold back against the wall and take up no room scarcely. When ready for use they can be unfolded quickly (the ring and hook to hold them steady) and a class room is made. Eight doors, four for each of two sides, are all that is needed. The church walls will make the other two sides. The last panel of one of the doors may be left open to swing freely for a door. They should be about six and a half feet high and ought not to cost more than $20. If there is a carpenter in the class and others will help him they ought not to cost that much. A room twelve feet square seated with chairs ought to hold from 20 to 30 comfortably.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ECONOMY.

Sometimes a great deal more money is spent for literature than should be. This can be remedied by having some one whose business it is to look after ordering literature and keeping track of increase and decrease in certain classes. Then, this person can see that if there are many absent ones and all the literature is not used on one Sunday that it gets into the hands of absent ones the next Sunday. This person ought to save the school considerable money in a year.

DON'T BE AFRAID OF THE NEW.

Many a school does not attain its highest possibilities because the superintendent hesitates to undertake anything new. A method may appeal to him as a good one, but it is novel in that vicinity and he decides to wait a bit. The devil's most successful argument is "wait a while." Radical measures are necessary if the members are to be kept for the school and for Christ. The superintendent is afraid that some of the older and most conservative members will object and disapprove, but he forgets that younger and more vigorous members are disapproving of his do-nothing platform.

Have the faith to undertake something occasionally. Don't let your school dry of the dry rot. Decide you want a new plan of opening and closing, better facilities for the primary department, a new organ or a piano, and then set out to get it. Have faith in yourself and in your school. Be a leader, not a drag-behind.

WHAT IS YOUR CLASS OR SOCIETY DOING?

Very few schools and classes have availed themselves of the opportunity of having a write-up of their organization and its work in this department. We are led to wonder what sort of organized classes and societies we have if they have no press reporters and corresponding secretaries.

This page is open to our Sunday school and Christian Endeavor work. Will you not use it for the glory of God and the advancement of the work?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR LESSON: SEPT. 21.

Topic: "How to Get the Most from this School Year."—2 Tim. 2:15-26.

The schools and the colleges are now about all opened and students are settling down to the year's work. The serious ones are pondering the topic that we have here for discussion.

This is expected to be a sort of question and answer meeting. The leader asks a series of questions, along the lines suggested in the C. E. World, and the members answer them. A great deal of work should be assigned in advance if this meeting is to be made a success.

The leader's talk should cover the subject generally. After explaining the purpose and method he has outlined for the meeting, he may talk of the object of schooling. First, the false objects should be noticed, those that many pursue, such as athletics, sports, social enjoyment, fraternities, personal popularity, etc. Show that the real purpose of school life is beyond and above these. It is to bring out the latent possibilities of the student and fit him for a definite life work. It is to introduce him into the wonderful world in which he lives. It is to make him useful to the world, not a money-maker or an honor-taker. It is true that it will make life more enjoyable for him, but it ought also to make it more to be enjoyed by others. Best of all it is to make him of more service in the Master's kingdom, giving him high ideals and clear vision of needs and methods.

THOUGHTS FROM OTHERS.

"There is something thrilling in the thought that all over our broad land, in city and hamlet, east, west, north, south, our youth have almost simultaneously begun their year of study. There are some poor schools, some unworthy teachers, some sections where schools are too few and the months devoted to education are wrongly limited; but the beginning of this new 'lap' of the great onward march of our children toward the goal of an intelligent citizenship has been practically an onward and a united movement. What would the patriarchs of the olden times say if they could come to earth and witness it? What would St. Paul and St. Peter say? What would Plato and Quintilian say?"

"It is easy to imagine their surprise and equally their delight. Broad as was their vision and high as were their ideals, it is doubtful if they had ever dreamed of a time when the State would provide for all its children a thorough education; when libraries would open inviting doors at almost every corner; and wisdom would indeed be justified of her children."

"But proud as we may well be of the magnificent educational opportunities afforded to our youth, it is well for us to remember that they are as yet far from perfect. Serious criticisms are passed in various towns and cities upon the manner in which the schools are conducted. In certain quarters, politics control the educational system. In others, it is asserted that immortality prevails to an alarming extent."

"There is much for us all to do before our schools and colleges will be the fine and uplifting forces which we would have them. It is a duty which we all owe our country to follow closely their fortunes. Upon them, next to our churches, rests the future of our beloved land."

FOR DAILY READING.

Mon., Sept. 15.—By striving.....Luke 13:22-27
Tues., By health.....1 Tim. 4:8; 3 John 2
Wed., By service.....Isa. 58:4-9
Thurs., By honesty.....Prov. 11:1-6
Fri., By noble thinking.....Phil. 4:8, 9
Sat., By clean living.....Ps. 24:1-6
Sun., Topic.

The truly great and good in affliction bear a countenance more princely than they are wont; for it is the temper of the highest hearts, like the palmtree, to strive most upwards when most burdened.—Sir Philip Sidney.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Sec'y. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

PAGE FROM THE LIFE OF ONE OF OUR MISSIONARIES.

(Extract from a letter from Miss Alice True.)

I went up to Mrs. Watanabe's yesterday, so will describe the visit for you, though nothing unusual occurred. Mrs. Watanabe's son, with one of the Iinogawa Christian young men appeared at my door at Ishinomaki, Sunday just before noon. It seems that the son came up from Tokio about two weeks before. He was too late for service at church, but when rested and refreshed went to see the city and view from the hills. As I was going up for evening service, we all three went together.

Our way lay past various small shops of fruit, bean-cakes, cloth, etc., over the two bridges, and the island where is now being displayed a large model of famous Nikko. The stores do perhaps a better business on Sundays than other days, and Sunday visitors to Nikko are many, especially from out of town. To our left up the dike we go, until we reach the village of Inai, where we have Sunday school in a carpenter's tiny living place—it ought not to be called a home exactly, for it had no business to be built. There was an eight or nine foot space between two houses. Whoever owned it put between the barber's shop on one side and tiny store on the other, the cheapest roof possible, and in it about two-thirds of it a board floor. The renter has an old discolored straw carpet over the floor—most of it. There is a place in the ashes for a fire.

Some large Sunday school pictures are on the wall (Cain and Abel for one), and old Heralds of Gospel Liberty given the woman to make her walls warmer in the winter.

Unintentionally, Rev. Bodman's (Lubec, Me.) face appears on the wall, having been printed in the Herald, so we have called it Mr. Bodman's Sunday school since.

The two young men sat down on some lumber inside the doorway. With the children gathering on the straw mats, they didn't have much choice of any other resting place. Twenty-four of us had the lesson of Moses's birth, reviewed American S. S. cards, sang hymns, and listened in a reasonably prepared state of mind to a short prayer. Usually there are about forty children who gather at Inai. Sometimes we meet at Miss Abe's, but her uncle's having guests made it inconvenient that day to have the children. Miss Abe came and was secretary of the little Sunday school and taught the children the words of a new song. After the children were sent away, seven of us adults studied as best we could (for various interruptions), the first part of the second chapter of Acts. The little deaf and dumb boy appeared, too late for S. S., and wanted his card, but would be satisfied with none. The little seven-year old boy is growing destructive and mischievous, they say, and should be in school. Three dollars a month will accomplish that; we hope to try to do something for him at the church.

We went on up the dyke, then following a small canal toward the hills, past a pond, up a small hill, and around the base of another, where we all rested by the roadside, near the river bank. After this we proceeded to Iinogawa. After resting a bit we go to call on the wife of the chief official at the Court House, but she was not at home. Her garden is gay with poppies and other flowers. We do call on a bank official and his family from Tokio. They are cordial. The man had been to see the Nikko model, with his children. They are a possibility—friendly, but not particularly religious. We also call on a milk dealer from Kanomata whose deceased daughter was the friend of Yamada San, who was in Utsonomiya school for a time. Their rose vine with its innumerable bunches of red roses is a thing of beauty.

Mrs. Watanabe leads to the home of Ishizaki San, one of the two young men first baptized in Iinogawa. The mother has been sick, but is better.

Seven young men, some elderly women, and a dozen, perhaps, of the S. S. children, composed our audience when we were through singing our hymns. I tried to speak on "Life," saying that greater than even the written word or the sage's instruction is life. God could not open the way to Heaven for us without the life of His Son being offered up. We cannot evangelize a town, ordinarily, by tracts, Christian papers, etc. It is only when people see a Christian live that they too will become Christians. After me, Mrs. Watanabe spoke on Naomi. When the children had left, we both spoke of the opportunity of giving an offering for the flood sufferers in Dayton. Mrs. Watanabe said she had had experience with floods and had sympathy for such occasions.

At half past ten, after the front shutters had been shut, a guest came. It was the dealer in liquor, on whom we had called. She poured out her troubles about the prodigal nephew who had wasted $400 of the family money in Tokio and is now at home. He had come to the service that night and she wanted us to reform him straightway. I would have begun to reach the boy by first dealing with the generation which preceded him, if she had given me time, but she seemed to know what she wanted, and felt able to conduct things herself, for she murmured a short prayer, and then vanished as quickly as she came. It was late and I was sleepy, but I would have talked with her gladly had she stayed. About seventeen years before she was baptized by Dr. De Forest in Sanamura, some distance up the river toward Ichinoseki. Nobody in Iinogawa dreamed of her being a Christian. Her reputation and business are so bad that Mrs. Watanabe is greatly distressed about the effect of her words in the place. May now be the time when she shall see the result of an evil life and truly repent and come back to the state she was in seventeen years ago. In the morning one of the Christian boys had business in Ishinomaki, so he accompanied me down.

The world and followers of Christ have such different loves and hopes and desires. It comes to me now more than usual as one feels and sees the social atmosphere in which the Christian must live.

One of the older Sunday school girls, who came faithfully to the meetings, has died of typhoid fever. She had been a candidate for baptism when the fever came and seems to have died in the faith. Her body was cremated and the family are waiting until their house fumigations are complete before the funeral. Typhoid is such a dreaded disease. The people dread and fear, without reason, places where it has been, even after they are fumigated. Wish we could dread sin and its results that way.

THE EVERY MEMBER CANVASS FOR MISSIONS.

The great Every Member Canvass for missions next March is to be a nation-wide effort to enlist the Christian forces of the nation, in a definite way, in the great mission cause at home and abroad. It is expected that a million men will be on teams that will do the canvassing and that $10,000,000 more will be given to missions than in any previous year. This is to be a great effort for a great cause. The busiest men of the land will be engaged in this effort. The canvass will be made in a business-like way by the different churches and the funds will be used to further the mission work being carried on by each denomination.

What part shall the churches of the Southern Christian Convention have in this effort? Shall they fall in line with the other denominations and take their place alongside of them in this great work? It will be an opportune time for our people to begin an aggressive campaign for missions. The very air will be filled with the mission spirit, and all about us people will be subscribing for missions and giving to missions and talking about missions. We have long been waiting for such a day. What shall we do with it?

All of our churches, city, town, village and rural, ought to take the canvass in the most thorough manner possible. The canvassers should be sent out two and two, having enough teams to finish the canvass inside of one week. If we are going to do this work it is time that we were getting the matter on our hearts and beginning to make preparation for it.

Throughout the country conferences will be held during the fall and winter months in the interest of this campaign, under the auspices of the Laymen's Missionary Movement. The strongest men of the country are to take part in these conferences. They will aim to prepare the way for the Every Member Canvass and furnish information and instruction that will insure success. All who can reach these conferences will do well to attend them. They are very helpful. They will make life mean more and help to enlarge our vision. When shall we come to see that missions is the supreme business of the church?

We would urge every pastor in the bounds of the Convention to send 50 cents to the Laymen's Missionary Movement, No. 1 Madison Ave., N. Y., and obtain a package of 20 pamphlets that will tell how the canvass should be made, as well as give much missionary information and inspiration. The package is really worth its weight in gold to any pastor or layman that will carefully read the contents.

The Foreign Mission Committee of the Convention will be glad to render any assistance possible in the preparation for this canvass. It is hoped that all will lend their influence to the effort and make the work as telling as possible. The Committee hopes to have representatives as all the Conferences who shall present the work.

J. W. HARRELL,

Chr. Foreign Mis. Com. Southern Con.

To the truly moral and religious man, everything that comes to pass is the will of God with him, and therefore the best that can possibly come to pass.—Fichte.

THE BANKER AND THE FARMER.

During the past year there has been considerable development of the co-operative work between the banks and the farmers. In Georgia this movement seems to have been largely advanced along practical lines. As an instance, The Savannah News notes that nine banks in Tatnall County have signed a call for a meeting on Saturday of this week to discuss means of increasing that county's supply of fine work stock. It is suggested that one or more carloads of young registered Percherons be procured this Fall through the State College of Agriculture as the beginning of an effort to raise within the county limits all the work stock its farmers will need.

The News says the banks will do what they can to bring the farmers directly in touch with the raisers of the stock it is intended to buy, so that the prices paid will be as low as possible. There is every evidence that the banks over Georgia are doing their part in the upbuilding of that State. They are seeking new ways of helping the farmers in their territory, and the same may be said of the bankers of the South in general.—Charlotte Observer.

Secretary Daniels has been putting in his spare time writing a biography of President Wilson and will soon have it completed and printed. We may then expect to see the Secretary of the Navy under fire of the critics pretty much as Secretary Bryan was for lining his pockets by lecturing as a side line. But The Observer rather admires the thrift of the North Carolina statesman and hopes he will in the end draw the strings over the mouth of a heavily fattened purse.—Charlotte Observer.

COULD NOT WRITE.

Versailles, Ky.—Mrs. Elisha Green, of this place, says, "I could not write all the different pains I had, when I first tried Cardui. I could scarcely walk. Now I am able to run the sewing machine and do my work; and my neighbors tell me the medicine must be good, for I look so much better." Cardui is a specific, pain-relieving, tonic remedy, for women. In the past 50 years, it has been found to relieve women's unnecessary pains, and female misery, for which over a million suffering women have successfully used it. Try Cardui for your troubles. It will help you. At the nearest drug store.

Adv.

Ever since last December iron-moulders in Erie, Pa., have been on strike. On the night of August 22, rioting became so violent that two troops of the State militia were called in.

A navy chaplain declares that the United States Navy is now from 85 to 90 per cent. temperate.

GROWTH OF THE Weaver Organ and Piano Co. OF YORK, PA.

Successful experience and growth of over 40 years. As the instruments manufactured by this Company increase in favor the world over, the factory at York, Pa., is periodically increased in size. Over 70,000 Pianos and Organs have been made and sold and they are giving the best of satisfaction.

First regular factory as it was built in 1882. Business established in a small shop in 1870.

Write direct to the manufacturers for catalogue and they will direct you to the nearest distributing point where you can see and hear their instruments and learn all about the prices and terms.

Factory as enlarged in 1892

Factory as further enlarged in 1898

Instruments Manufactured.

WEAVER PIANOS.

The Pianos that have set a new high standard of excellence in the Piano World.

WEAVER PLAYER PIANOS
The World's Best Player Pianos.

WEAVER ORGANS.

For 40 years the Standard.

YORK PIANOS.

YORK PLAYER PIANOS.

Noted for their charming tone, responsive actions and great durability.

LIVINGSTON PIANOS

AND PLAYER PIANOS

Noted for their superior quality as instruments at medium price.

The Modern Up-to-date Factory of 1913

Equipped with the best labor-saving machinery for the most economical production of Pianos of the best quality.

A factory in which the quality of the instruments turned out receives the first consideration.

The factory that has set a new high standard of excellence.

6lb Pair of Pillows Free!

We again make our unparalleled offer of free pillows with your order enclosing $10 for our famous 36-lb. feather bed. All made of new sanitary feathers; best ticking and equipped with sanitary ventilators. Freight prepaid. Delivery guaranteed. Money back if not satisfied. Agents make big money. Turner & Cornwell, Box 43, Memphis, Tenn., or CHARLOTTE, N. C.

GOD'S WORD IN SONG

OUR SONG BOOKS TEACH THE GOSPEL AS FULLY IN SONG AS OUR PREACHERS DO IN SERMON

"The Gospel Message in Song"—revised and enlarged—contains 205 of the sweetest and most soul-stirring songs. Words and music of the highest class. The thought of a reformation in song book making prompted its compilation. No other song book like it before it had been published. In it the Gospel is taught as fully in song as loyal disciples endeavor to teach in sermon. Published in round and shaped notes. Out Five years and over 60,000 copies sold. Endorsed by leading men and women in the Christian Church. Beautifully bound and printed. Prices: 30c a copy prepaid; $3 per doz. not prepaid; $3.50 per doz. prepaid; $20 per hundred not prepaid; $50 at the hundred rate.

"Redemption's Way in Song"—by S. H. Hall, Flavil Hall and F. L. Rowe—especially suited to Evangelistic and Gospel Tent Work. Prices: 15c a copy prepaid; $1.40 per doz. not prepaid; $1.60 a doz. prepaid; $10 per hundred, not prepaid; $50 at hundred rate. Send all orders to

S. H. HALL, 81 Ashby St., Atlanta, Ga.

Flavil Hall F. L. Rowe S.H.Hall

REVIVALS.

The meeting at Amelia, Johnston Co., N. C., began on the 4th Sunday in July, and continued seven days. Rev. G. J. Green did the preaching, to the delight of the congregation. He ranks among our best preachers, and is an excellent revivalist. There were about fifteen converts and nine accessions. The people are kind and energetic. The music was good. The church seems to be in good condition.

The meeting at Oak Level, Franklin Co., N. C., began the first Sunday in August and continued five days. Five converts, four accessions, and the church edified. Dr. Staley did the preaching. It is useless for me to say it was the pure gospel clothed in strong English. But few churches are blessed with such fine music as Oak Level. It has one of the finest, best behaved congregations of young people to be found in any church, and the older people are of the best type.

We expect the meeting to come off at Hayes' Chapel (Garner) the third Sunday in September and week following. The preaching is to be done by Rev. C. Rowland, which means it will be done with power and demonstration of the Spirit. The church and community deserve much credit for repainting and beautifying the house of worship.

W. G. CLEMENTS.

HAPPENED RECENTLY.

The Titanic claims now amount to $16,804,112.

Twenty-five per cent. of the 25,000 woman workers of Kansas City, Mo., receive less than $6 a week, according to a report of the Board of Public Welfare just made after a two years' investigation.

Providence, R. I., mourns the fall in a storm of a historic elm that shaded the home of Essek Hopkins, first admiral of our navy. It was old when the house was built in 1756. Washington once hitched his horse to the tree.

A remarkable feat was accomplished by Samuel Richards, Jr., of South Boston, who on August 17 swam to the Boston Light and return, 23 miles, in 13 hours, 9 minutes. It is to be regretted that he did not make his swim on some other day than Sunday.

Texas has grown tired of its State-owned railroads and proposes to sell them. If we move in this direction it must not be as States but as a nation.

A Scotchman in Winnipeg had

Cancer Cured at the Kellam Hospital

The record of the Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having cured to stay cured permanently, without the use of the Knife, Acids or X Ray, over 90 per cent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from Cancer which it has treated during the past eighteen years. We have been endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. Physicians treated free. KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St. Richmond, Va. Write for Literature.

Join the CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 15.

I Will Pay You $5.00 Cash

N. F. SHIVAR

If Shivar Spring Water fails to benefit you.

For five years I have been trying to devise some sure plan that would convince people who suffer as I did that Shivar Spring Water would help them, and that I believe in its efficacy with every particle of faith I have, backed by every dollar I have.

First, I told you I would give you your money back if ten gallons failed to help you in any case of dyspepsia, indigestion, gastritis, diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys or bladder, Bright's disease, diabetes, rheumatism, gall stones, nervous headache, uric acid poisoning or chronic sores due to bad blood.

Less than TWO IN A THOUSAND asked for their money back on that offer. Now, I think that if these few had kept on using the water for more than the ten gallons they would have been benefitted.

So, to show my faith in Shivar Spring Water, and make it unreasonable for you to refuse its help in getting well, I am going to make you this remarkable additional offer. Read the terms carefully; and if not already a sufferer file this for future reference:

1. You are to order and drink twenty gallons of this water as directed, at least two quarts a day, as directed in our free booklet.

2. If after that time you feel that you have received no benefit, send me back the empty demijohns and I will at once refund your money, or

If you will at the same time send me a letter telling me just why you were drinking Shivar Spring Water and that you carefully followed the directions, used the water and received no benefit therefrom, I will then send you ten gallons more, absolutely free of charge, and if after using the third ten gallons you see no benefit, I will cheerfully send you five dollars in cash.

No strings to it; no fuss about it; just a simple letter to me telling the truth about your own case.

What Shivar Spring Water Has Done for Others.

WAS AN INVALID AND A SKELETON FOR YEARS.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.
Shivar Spring Water has done more for me than all the medical treatment I have used. I was an invalid and a skeleton when I began using your water and have gained from 90 to 124 pounds during the 9 weeks I have been using this wonderful water. I met some friends at Church and they did not know me, the improvement in my condition was so great. Several of my friends are using your mineral water since they see the good it has done me. Had I known of this great water I might have been restored long ago.

MISS ANNA SWYGERT,
Lexington, S. C.

GAINED FIFTEEN POUNDS IN A SHORT WHILE.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.
I commenced using Shivar Spring Water about June 1st, and in six weeks I gained about fifteen pounds. I highly recommend Shivar Water to anyone afflicted with stomach trouble. There are a number of parties here that are using Shivar Water on my recommendation, and they are all being benefited.

C. V. TRUITT, La Grange, Ga.

HIGHLY BENEFITED—ORDERS 30 GALLONS.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.
Am enclosing check for $5.00 for which you will ship me at once six carboys (30 gallons) of water. I have found the water very beneficial. My stomach is much stronger and I have gained 9 pounds since I began using the water.

MRS. ALICE CUTHBERTON,
Monroe, N. C.

SUFFERED FIVE YEARS WITH BAD BLOOD, RHEUMATISM AND KIDNEY TROUBLE—WELL ONCE MORE.

Shivar Spring Co., Shelton, S. C.
After using your water six or eight weeks, I feel better than I have felt in five years. Why should others suffer with Kidney trouble, when Shivar Spring Water will cure the most stubborn case ever known? I suffered for five years with bad blood, rheumatism and kidney trouble and spent thousands of dollars for medicine and doctor's bills, and found no relief until I used about five bottles of your water. After using ten bottles I feel perfectly well as I ever did. Before using this water my weight was 132 and today 198. I will thank you by saying enclosed find $5.00 for which send me six bottles promptly, and oblige

J. W. REID,
711 Main St., Columbia, S. C.

"I think more of Shivar Spring Water every day. Nothing but it and God alone could give such healing power."

D. P. GOODE,
Rutherford College, N. C.

"This water is gradually restoring a complete wreck, for which I am very grateful."

GEO. D. TAYLOR,
New Bern, N. C.

"My stomach trouble has been relieved so that I can eat anything, even to lean ham meat, without any unpleasant feeling."

J. W. WILSON,
Matthews, N. C.

Shivar Spring Water does not deteriorate from standing and may be shipped any distance or to any climate. YOU ARE SAFE IN ORDERING IT.

You may send me two dollars for ten gallons, two five-gallon demijohns. Give Shivar Spring Water a fair trial, following directions, and if the results are not satisfactory to you I will refund the price on receipt of the two empty demijohns and your report—YOU to be the Sole Judge.

N. F. SHIVAR, Proprietor Shivar Spring, Shelton, S. C.

Reference: The advertising manager of this paper is personally acquainted with Mr. Shivar and can vouch for the genuineness of his offer. You run no risk in making the deposit.

to dismiss his gardener for dishonesty. For the sake of the man's wife and family, however, he gave him a "character" and framed it in this way: "I hereby certify that J. G. has been my gardener for

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days, usually gives entire relief in 15 to 45 days and effects cure in 20 to 60 days. Write for trial treatment free. Dr. H. R. GREEN'S SONS, Box 14, ATLANTA, GA.

FOR FEVERISHNESS AND ACHING Whether from Malarious conditions, Colds or overheating, try Hicks' CAPUDINE. It reduces the fever and relieves the aching. It's liquid—10, 25 and 50 cents at Drug Stores.

over two years, and during that time he got more out of the garden than any man I ever employed."—Ex.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. E. M. CARTER, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

E. M. Carter, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amount brought forward$2,327.13

MONTHLY S. S. OFFERING.

Wadley, Ala.$1.65
Apple's Chapel76
Morrisville 2.59
Ebenezer 1.05
Dendron, Va. 5.25
Franklin, Va. 5.26

SPECIAL.

Mrs. Bettie Cates, on support of children 3.00
Tyler Bolling, work 2.00
Antioch (Warren), N. C.
Eugene H. Rainey 1.00
Mrs. W. W. Haithcock .25
Belle Wall25
Pearl Wall25
Collected25

$2,350.69

The Executive Board had a right busy session at the Orphanage the third. At this meeting there were five other applications accepted; this gives us, in all fifty-nine. We have at present in the building twenty-six girls and twenty-eight boys.

There may be a question in the minds of some people concerning the right to exist and need of an Orphanage. But when you have studied its place and results there will be unmistakable evidence in its favor. It has been said by one of thirty-seven years of experience that if there is a better kind of a home than the right kind of orphan home, it is a private home. And when there are so many who are homeless there is a need for some organized way of doing such a needed work. The task of making the right kind of an orphan home is no small one; neither can it be done in a day, and then, only by those who have the virtue of all the Christian graces. So I am appealing to the church at large for a more loyal and hearty support of the work.

We have some bills that are due; yes, more than due. And these people would like to have their money. But we cannot do justice to our creditors unless the people will hold up our hands.

I am very sorry it became necessary for our Farm Manager to resign. His place as a farmer will be hard to fill, and we regret to see him leave.

Remember that it will make the work go so much better if your school will adopt the monthly offering plan.

E. M. CARTER, Supt.

A CHILD'S FAITH.

The following little story shows a child's faith. She believed that God would answer the prayer she made in so much earnestness, and sure enough He did.

A poor, invalid woman, with her little girl, was almost starving. The mother had taught her child the Lord's Prayer, and every day little Susie, kneeling at the bedside, prayed:

"Give us this day our daily bread."

But no bread came.

One morning, after saying her prayers, Susie wandered out into the street, faint and hungry, wondering if she could find the place where God kept His bread. At last she saw a large, well filled bakery.

So she entered confidently and said to the baker:

"I've come for it!"

"Come for what?"

"My daily bread," answered the little one, pointing to the tempting loaves.

"I'll take two, please—one for my mother and one for me."

"All right," said the baker, putting them into a bag and handing them to the child. She at once started toward the door.

"Stop!" said the baker angrily.

"Where is your money?"

"I haven't any," she said, simply.

"Haven't any?" he growled; "then what brought you here?"

Susie burst into tears, sobbing: "Mother is sick, and I have prayed and prayed for bread. I thought God meant for me to come and get it; so I came and asked for it."

The man was so touched by her earnestness and faith that he gave her freely all the bread she needed.—Exchange.

THE PRESIDENT'S EXAMPLE.

A West Rutland, Vermont, correspondent of the Congregationalist of Boston has the following to say concerning President Wilson's church-going on a recent hot Sunday wherein he set a good example to all the American people: "Suffer a word of appreciation of the attitude of the President of the United States toward Sabbath-keeping and church-attendance. Sunday, July 6, was one of the warmest days Vermont has known for many years. Multitudes of regular attendants who had been unable to sleep the night before on account of the oppressive atmosphere remained at home. The President had only the day before returned from Gettysburg, worn and weary, but when the time for church arrived he took his whole family four miles to the Lord's house and worshiped with the small congregation in the plain Vermont meeting-house, without ostentation and without parade. And thereby set a splendid example to all Americans to 'Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.' Our officials get plenty of criticism, it is time we all joined in thanksgiving to God that we have an executive who did not bid farewell to religious principles when he moved into the White House."

FOURTH ANNUAL EXCURSION FROM ALL NORTH CAROLINA AND VIRGINIA POINTS ON SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

To Jacksonville and Tampa, Florida,
September 23, 1913.

Tickets will be on sale from all points on Seaboard Air Line Railway in North Carolina and Virginia September 23rd. Tickets returning will be limited to return so as to reach starting point by midnight of September 30th.

Regular train service should be used to Hamlet, from which point special train will start as section of No. 3, at 9:00 P. M. Vestibule coaches, electrically lighted Pullman sleeping cars.

Round Trip Rates

From	To Jacksonville	To Tampa
Richmond	$9.50	$11.50
Petersburg	9.00	11.50
Norlina	8.25	10.25
Portsmouth	9.75	11.75
Boykins	9.25	11.25
Weldon	8.50	10.50
Durham via Apex	7.50	9.50
Oxford Louisburg	8.00	10.00
Raleigh	7.50	9.50
Wilmington to Laurinburg inclusive	7.50	9.50
Monroe to Hamlet inc.	7.50	9.50
Clio, S. C., to McColl inc.	7.50	9.00

Those desiring Pullman reservations on special from Hamlet should write at once to the undersigned. Any further information will be cheerfully furnished upon application to any Agent, or

M. LEVIN,
Traveling Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

JOHN T. WEST,
Division Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

NATIONAL CONSERVATION EXPOSITION

Knoxville, Tenn., September 1st to
November 1st, 1913.

Southern Railway announces the sale of very low round trip tickets for the above occasion. Tickets will be on sale daily up to November 1st, 1913.

Ask your agent, or write the undersigned for complete information, Pullman reservations, etc.

J. O. JONES,
Traveling Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.
Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81	4:35 a. m.
No. 29	Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41	4:10 p. m.
No. 43	6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84	12:48 a. m.
No. 38	11:35 a. m.
No. 66	12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

Help your church paper by getting a friend to subscribe for The Christian Sun.

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads,
Bill Heads,
Statements,
Envelopes
Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

The Southern Christian
Publishing Company,

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

SPEND YOUR SUMMER

In The Glorious Mountains of Western North Carolina.

"The Land of the Sky"
"The Sapphire Country"

Where there is Health in Every Breath. The Climate is perfect the Year Round. In Spring and Summer the Region is Ideal.

Reached By

SOUTHERN RAILWAY

Solid Through Train, Including Parlor Car, between Goldsboro, Asheville and Waynesville Via Raleigh, Greensboro, Salisbury.

Other Convenient Through Car Arrangements.

SUMMER TOURIST TICKETS ON SALE UNTIL SEPTEMBER
30, 1913.

For complete information apply,

J. H. WOOD, D. P. A.,

Asheville, N. C.

R. H. DeBUTTS, D. P. A.,

Charlotte, N. C.

J. O. JONES, T. P. A.,

Raleigh, N. C.

FAIR PLAY FOR BABIES.

Crying is the complaint language common to all babies. It is a language of limited vocabulary, but withal is one seldom properly interpreted. Most mothers interpret the baby's every cry as a call for food, and they immediately proceed to shut it up by stuffing the child with food that it doesn't want and shouldn't have.

When the baby cries, look for some cause besides hunger. Don't stuff a nipple in its mouth and let it go at that.

Perhaps the baby is tired of lying in one position so long. Turn it over.

Quite likely it is thirsty. Give it a drink of cooled, boiled water—no ice in it.

Maybe its garments are wet or soiled, and therefore uncomfortable. If so, remove them at once, wash the parts carefully, apply some unscented talcum powder, and put on clean, thoroughly dry garments.

Perhaps its clothes are uncomfortably tight or a pin may be sticking it. Correct this.

It may be complaining about being too warm or asking relief from "prickly heat." Make it comfortable by removing all unnecessary clothing. Light dressing and two sponge baths daily will prevent "prickly heat."

Maybe it is objecting to the quality of the air of the room. Close, hot, smelly air will make any baby peevish. Give it lots of fresh air; let it sleep outdoors as much as possible, protected from dust, sun and flies. When in the house keep the windows open.

Learn to do something to stop a baby's cry besides stuffing a nipple in its mouth. Put yourself in the helpless baby's place and figure out what would happen to you if every time you asked for a drink of water you were given food; every time you grew tired of lying in one position and wanted to be turned over, food were pushed into your mouth; every time you wished to be let alone that you might sleep, food were forced on you; every time you complained about your clothes being too tight or uncomfortable, a nipple were stuffed into your mouth; every time you complained about being too warm and wanted relief from "prickly heat," you got food instead of relief. Wouldn't it make you mad, dyspeptic, and what not? Then have thought for the poor, helpless baby.—N. C. State Board of Health.

FARMERS AND RAILWAYS.

"To Help Southern Producers Find Markets for the Products of the Soil" is the slogan of the market department of the Southern Railway and affiliated lines, (including the Mobile and Ohio, the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific, the Alabama Great Southern, and the Georgia, Southern and Florida), and with this end in view, two booklets have recently been issued which should prove of great value to fruit, vegetable, and truck growers of the Southeastern territory.

Join the CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 15.

One of these booklets contains as complete a list as could be compiled of the brokers, commission merchants, jobbers and receivers of vegetables and berries located at the principal cities of the United States and Canada east of the Rocky Mountains. The booklets give the name of dealers, character of business, and commodities handled, in each town, together with the population of the town. A copy will be furnished free of charge to any grower of vegetables or berries along the line of the Southern Railway and affiliated lines.

The work of the market department is in the hands of market agents located at Atlanta, St. Louis, Cincinnati, and Washington, whose services are at all times at the disposal of farmers living along the Southern Railway and affiliated lines.

WINTERSMITH'S
(NO CURE NO PAY)
CHILL TONIC
FOR Malaria
In All Its Forms

and for the most obstinate cases of chills Wards off fevers and liver troubles by keeping the system toned up and vitalized. Oldest and best for family use. Contains no arsenic or opiates. Pleasant to take Harmless for children. Sold and guaranteed by your druggist.

General Tonic

Arthur Peter & Company,
Louisville, Kentucky

DR. J. H. BROOKS,
Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

High Point Glass and Decorative Co.
Art Glass, Leaded Glass, Beveled Glass,
CHURCH MEMORIAL WINDOWS

Beveled Plate Glass and Mirrors. Prices and descriptive matter on request.
High Point Glass & Decorative Co., High Point, N. C.

MORPHINE WHISKEY and TOBACCO
HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARCROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLE

LARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10 1/4 x 12 1/4 in.

Contains in addition to the Authorized Old and New Testaments, all the Sayings of Christ in Red; The Temple Library at Nippur; Names and Order of the Books of the Bible; Maps of Bible Lands; Pronouncing Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names; Comparative Systems of Scripture Chronology; History of the Period from the Close of the Sacred Canon of the Old Testament until the Times of the New Testament; Illuminated Marriage Certificate and Family Record; Chronological Index to the Bible; Concordance; Full-Page Dore Pictures, Half-Tones and in Colors, etc.

No. 820 P. R. L. Bound in IMITATION OF LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Gilt Titles, Marbled Edges. (Weight, 12 lbs.) $2.10

No. 822 P. R. L. Bound in SEMBLE LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Full Gilt Sides and Back, Gilt Edges. (Weight, 13 lbs.) 2.85

No. 823 P. R. L. Bound in AMERICAN MOROCCO, Padded Sides, Rounded Corners on Cover, Gold Side & Back Titles, Gold Edges. (Weight, 15 lbs.) 5.00

HOLMAN RED LETTER SELF-PRONOUNCING TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament. Printed in Red.

New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5 1/2 x 7 3/4 inches.

THE TYPE.
23 The Báb-ý-ló-ni-an, and all the Chál-dé-an, 'Pé-kód, and Shó'a, and Kó'a, and all the Ás-sýr'i-an with

No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges $2.50

No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges 3.00
Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENT

SELF-PRONOUNCING

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Daintiest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2 3/4 x 4 1/4 inches.

THE TYPE.
5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Je'sus is the

No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges50

No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms75

Postage, 3 Cents.

No. 013 R. L.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

has often heard class-members say: "I cannot understand the Bible." They could not understand any other book that was printed three hundred years ago. So many English words of that day were different.

More than forty new dictionaries have been required since then, to keep up with the changes in the English language. The

American Standard Bible
Edited by the American Revision Committee
uses the words of our day, which make the meanings of the Bible writers clear to us.

Write for Our Free Booklet, "How We Got Our American Standard Bible"

No teacher can afford to be without it.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Shirley President Suspenders
50¢

Work with you—not against you
"Satisfaction or money back"

Be sure "Shirley President" is on buckles
The C.A. Edgerton Mfg. Co., Shirley, Mass.

NEW FEATHER BEDS ONLY $6.50.
Full weight 36 pounds. New, clean and odorless. 6-pound Pillows $1.08 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for FREE catalogue. Address SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 71, Greensboro, N. C.

A LEADING BOARDING SCHOOL

for 250 Students. Established 1884. Prepares for College, Business, Teaching, or for Life. Health, Character and Scholarship. Wide patronage. VERY REASONABLE RATES. Each Student receives personal attention. School highly endorsed. (Location is near Greensboro, N. C.) For Beautiful Catalogue, Views, etc., address the President.

W. T. WHITSETT, PH. D.
WHITSETT, NORTH CAROLINA

THE HABIT OF HOME.

If we lived the life we should live, it would be a well-balanced intermixture of all things that are desirable: pleasure and duty, gravity and laughter, society and solitude. Unfortunately, no one of us lives the life he should. Instead, we are creatures of habit, some habit usually pushed to excess even in the best of us. If we read, we read when we should be working or sleeping. If we play games, it is the same. And the automobile habit, in its extreme form, threatens to become with many people a mania sorely detrimental to housekeeping and to children, to the purse and to the brain.

Of all habits, there is none sweeter for a woman than the habit of home—and none that seems at present less likely to encroach unduly upon her time. Going is so easy. A thousand vehicles convey you. Bargain sales tempt you; this woman must be seen; that woman must be coaxed; another has a pattern that you must copy now. You can stay at home at any time.

Yet if you sit down for a moment and think, you will see how much of it is only habit. When you are going, going, going, you want to go, and an accident of illness or weather that thwarts you seems like a great misfortune. You turn to home pursuits with a feeling of rebellion, or, at least, of dull disappointment. But when you have stayed at home a week, you taste the charm of it, the daily employments come to have their interest, and even their freshness, and you are really reluctant to turn away from them.

One of the wisest of books, the "Imitation of Christ," sums it all up in one sentence, so simple that a high-school freshman can translate it, yet so beautiful that even a great poet could not convey its meaning adequately. Thomas a Kempis is speaking of his monk's cell, but his words apply even more truly to a woman's nursery and to her fireside. "Cella continuata dulcescit, et male custodita taedium generat." If you stay at home, you love home; but gadding makes even home unlovely.—Youth's Companion.

A SPLENDID TONIC.

Cora, Ky.—Mrs. Iva Moore, of this place, says, "I was so weak, I could hardly walk. I tried Cardui, and was greatly relieved. It is a splendid tonic. I have recommended Cardui to many friends, who tried it with good results." Testimony like this comes unsolicited, from thousands of earnest women, who have been benefited by the timely use of that successful tonic medicine, Cardui. Purely vegetable, mild, but reliable, Cardui well merits its high place in the esteem of those who have tried it. It relieves women's pains, and strengthens weak women. It

Elon College

For Both Men and Women

Elon College, North Carolina

For a quarter century Elon College has rendered the best families of the South a paragon service in providing young men and young women with the best mental, moral and physical training under positive Christian influences, tho entirely free from sectarianism.

Karl Lehman, of Boston, testifies that "of all the Colleges I have visited as International Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor during six years, the spirit of Elon College appeals to me as most genuinely Christian." Elon College is situated in the delightful hill country, a section unsurpassed for beauty, with a climate far-famed for its healthfulness. There is no medical fee, for there is no necessity for it. Its campus, comprising twenty-five acres of native oak and hickory, shrubbery, winding walks and driveways, is one of the most beautiful in the South and, with its two unsurpassed gymnasias, provides abundant opportunity for recreation and relaxation.

The splendid equipment of Elon College was only made possible through liberal endowment. It maintains seven elegant new buildings, especially designed and appointed for college work. These are furnished with every known convenience; steam heat, electric lights, running water, baths and sewerage. The College plant is conservatively valued at $300,000.00.

Elon College is distinctly a high-grade institution, though its charges are moderate. Its graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great universities without examination. Its literary and scientific courses are arranged in various departments which lead to the degrees of Master of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Pedagogy, and a three-years' course leading to the degree of Licentiate of Instruction, designed especially for teachers. This institution affords special opportunities for training in Piano, Voice, Expression, Fine Arts, Normal Training, Physical Culture and Commercial Practice.

The Faculty consists of twenty-one specialists; men and women selected not only for their superior teaching ability, but also for their exemplary character and manners.

The student body numbers nearly four hundred and comes from thirteen states.

The lowest Rates in the South, only $131 to $191 per College session of ten months. Fall Term always opens the first Wednesday in September. For full descriptive catalogue and view-book, address

President W. A. Harper, LL. D.,

Elon College, N. C.

Box 88

The New
Kline Hydraulic Pump

Just the thing for water supply for farms, towns and Irrigation. Built in any size up to six-inch discharge. Send for catalogue to J. M. KLINE, Beavertown, Pa.

COUGHING?

Coughing these days? Throat tender? Lungs sore? Better take the 75-year-old cough medicine—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Ask your doctor about this medicine. Then do as he says. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

is certainly worth a trial. druggist sells Cardui.

Your Adv.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun. $1.50.

GET YOUR PIANO THROUGH THE Christian Sun Piano Club AND SAVE ONE-THIRD THE COST.

No matter where you live, nor what style of piano or player-piano you want, the Club will save you at least one-third the cost. By "bunching" our orders in a club of one hundred buyers each of us gets the rock-bottom factory price and saves from one to two hundred dollars according to the style of instrument selected.

But the big saving in price is only one, and by no means the most important, of the many attractive features of the Club. Read the following brief outline, then write for catalogue giving full explanation and particulars.

FEATURES OF THE CLUB

1. A clear saving of one-third the cost.
2. Nothing to pay unless, after a thorough trial of the instrument in your own home, you find it perfectly satisfactory and decide to keep it.
3. If, after the free trial, you are delighted with the superior quality of the instrument, the attractive price, the liberal and convenient terms, the protective guarantees and the Club as a whole, then you accept it. But if, for any reason, you are not pleased, you simply notify the Club and upon receipt of their shipping instructions return the instrument, freight collect. The trial costs you nothing, puts you under no obligations and is the only perfect protection against every possibility of dissatisfaction.
4. Freight prepaid, safe delivery guaranteed.
5. Easy and convenient terms of payment and a clear receipt to your family in the event of your death before the instrument is fully paid for, provided, of course, you have complied with the printed regulations of the Club.
6. Every instrument is fully guaranteed against all imperfections of workmanship and materials.
7. Liberal allowances for old pianos and organs in exchange for new pianos and new player-pianos.
8. Each purchaser is responsible only for his own order and yet benefits by the combined action of the one hundred buyers.
9. You have a complete line of the best pianos and player-pianos to select from and will find no difficulty in getting an instrument that suits you exactly.
10. Even a child who knows nothing about business is perfectly safe in purchasing through the Club, for there are no tricks, no misrepresentations, no exaggerations, no falsifying, no special prices to special buyers, no imposition, no annoyance by insulting letters, no begging you to keep the instrument, etc., etc.
11. You get an instrument of the highest quality, of the sweetest tone, of rare artistic beauty, of the greatest durability, of the strongest endorsement, and of the most approved reputation and standing.
12. You deal with people of the highest standing, of unquestioned reliability, of greatest experience and efficiency, of clean and honorable reputation, people who would not cheat you if they had the opportunity.
13. Every statement and representation made by the Club is guaranteed both by the Advertising Manager of THE CHRISTIAN SUN and by Ludden & Bates, one of the oldest, largest and most responsible piano firms in America.

Absolutely No Risk in Purchasing Through the Club

The Club assumes all of the responsibility of proving to your entire satisfaction that you are getting an instrument of the highest quality at the lowest possible price. You are the judge and the Club leaves the decision entirely to you. When you have tried the piano or the player-piano we know what your decision will be, for we know what hundreds of other people think of the instruments and the prices. If you would like to see the letters of those who have purchased through the Club we will gladly send you a booklet containing them.

If you would like to save a hundred dollars or more on your instrument and be absolutely sure of perfect and lasting satisfaction, write for your copy of the Club catalogue today. Address

Ludden & Bates CHRISTIAN SUN
PIANO CLUB DEPT., Atlanta, Ga.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

DEATHS

Markham.

Mrs. Nancy Markham died at her home, near Mt. Pisgah church, in Chatham county, N. C., Aug. 29, 1913, at the advanced age of 89 years, 11 months and 21 days. Her husband, W. A. Markham, died on the same day of the same month 18 years previous. Sister Markham joined the Baptist church while in her youth and was a good Christian, a faithful wife and mother, and a most useful neighbor. For ten years she was blind. Her last sickness lasted about two months. Her afflictions were borne with great patience and Christian fortitude.

She leaves five children: Mrs. Mary Farrell, widow of Rev. Matthew Farrell; Mrs. Elizabeth Stone, of Chapel Hill; Mr. John W. Markham, of Venable; Miss Fidelia Markham, and Mrs. H. W. Trollinger, of Burlington, N. C. Five children preceded her to the grave.

W. S. LONG.

Lassiter.

Sister Nettie Rosenberger Lassiter, wife of Rev. L. L. Lassiter, was born February 7, 1859, and was called to her reward August 30, 1913. On Sunday before her death she was stricken with paralysis. For a number of years she had been a loyal and consistent member of Bethlehem Christian church. She leaves to mourn her departure a husband; three brothers, Jackson, Daniel, and Wilbert; five sisters, Mrs. J. C. Grove, Mrs. J. W. Harrison, Mrs. D. J. Driver, Mrs. Caskil Sellers and Miss Fannie Rosenberger, with a host of sorrowing friends.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. H. C. Moore, a former pastor, and Rev. Samuel Roller, a minister of the Brethren church, and friend of the family. Attendance at the funeral was very large, and the floral tribute abundant and beautiful. She was laid to rest in Fairview cemetery beside her daughter, Miss Vernie, who preceded her several years. May God's presence comfort the bereaved husband and sorrowing relatives.

R. L. WILLIAMSON.

Anderson.

Aubrey Littleton Anderson, infant son of C. H. and Laura Anderson, News Ferry, Va., was born Feb. 9, 1913, and passed out into the company of angels on July 10, 1913. The interment was in Pleasant Grove cemetery, and the burial services, in the absence of the pastor, were conducted by Deacon R. D. Thompson, Sr., from Pleasant Grove church.

Our heavenly Father saw fit to lend this life to earth for a brief span only, even as a fragrant flower which blooms only for a night, and with the breath of morning is blown into that world of invisible beauty and sweetness from whence it came. In the few brief months of its earthly existence it entwined its arms about mother's and father's neck and with the cords of tenderest love pulls them heavenward day by day. When their tasks are done they will know where to find their darling babe. May God help them all along the way.

J. O. A.

Faucett.

Whereas, It has pleased our heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, to remove from our midst, by death, our brother and friend, Adolpheus Jerome Faucett;

And whereas, He was a devout Christian and member of the Durham Christian church, a faithful and efficient teacher in the Sunday school; and whereas, in his death we have lost a most faithful member and true friend; therefore, be it resolved:

First—That we bow in humble submission to the will of our heavenly Father, who doeth all things well.

Second—That the church and Sunday school feel keenly their loss, and deeply sympathize with the family in this sad hour of trial and bereavement.

Third—That we commend his example of loyalty to God and faithfulness in service to the members of the church and Sunday school—especially the Baraca Class, of which he was the able and honored teacher. He is dead, but his works live.

Fourth—That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, to the city papers, and The Christian Sun for publication, and a copy be spread upon our records.

MRS. J. W. ATKINS,
MR. C. R. BROWN,
MR. HUBERT HOWARD,
MISS MINNIE CARDEN,
Committee.

THE BEAUTIFUL CHIMNEY ROCK GAP

REACHED VIA

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

Chimney Rock Gap has been for years famed for its beauty in both Song and Story.

Why not spend your vacation at one of the comfortable Hotels beautifully situated in this lovely valley?

Hotel Rates remarkably cheap, $5.00 to $10.00 per week.

THE SEABOARD'S NEW SCHEDULES make it EASY to get to Chimney Rock, Rutherfordton and surrounding Mountains. Write today for Booklet: James Ker, Jr., T. P. A., Charlotte, N. C. H. S. Leard, D. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.,

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books: Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's Icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf.

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly.

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work.
We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.

Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles,
Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

HIGH CLASS

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., SEPTEMBER 17, 1913

NO. 38

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Twins.

"Happiness was born a twin." Possibly a triplet. There can be no happiness unless one or more share it with you. There can be pleasure, pride, gloating, in one mind or heart only. But never happiness. That comes in doubles, or stays away. "He that hath mercy on the poor, happy is he," says the Proverb (14:21).

Sunday Schools and Missions.

Some of our Christian Sunday schools are beginning to teach missions and give pupils a chance to contribute to missions. This is well. If the Sunday schools take hold of the matter vigorously it will count. The Methodist Episcopal Sunday schools have given $300,000 to missions in the last five years. The result has been a wonderful increase in attendance, and in conversion of Sunday school pupils.

Offering the Word.

If one does not read the Bible now it is one's own fault, folly or neglect. It is not only the best book in the world, it is the cheapest. You can get more reading matter printed and bound in attractive form in a Bible than in any other book whatsoever. And Bibles are everywhere. Few homes are without one. The Gideons, an organization of travelling men, are banded together to place a Bible in every room of every hotel in all the land and country. In their recent convention they raised $25,000 for further distribution of the Book in the hotels of New England. There is no valid excuse for failing to read the Bible.

Business Men and Missions.

Of all people beneath the sun who ought to be missionary leaders and enthusiasts business men should stand in front frank and contribute most liberally. Cut the price of raw cotton down to six cents a pound, and then the price of all cotton products accordingly and the stagnation and paralysis of the business world in America may be imagined. Yet in all human and calculable possibility cotton would be that price or lower but for foreign missions. The missionary opened the marts of trade in pagan lands and made possible the trade-relations which now exist between our country and China, Japan, India, etc. And yet "business men" may now and then be found who say, "Spend your money on missions at home and let the heathen go." If this advice were followed there would follow in a decade the greatest reversion and stagnation in business circles in America that our history ever recorded. Even business men frequently can't see beyond their noses, especially when there is a plan afoot that touches their pocket book directly. Trade and commerce have always followed the missionary.

Showers in Season.

God controls the wind, the rains and the seasons. We need not fret nor worry if either chances not to suit our plans, pride or convenience. Our Father who controls these knows what is best and always does the best for us without consulting us. When we shall have learned to trust Him and at all times to do His will, showers out of season, and calamities that kill and are cruel will cease. Ezekiel 34:26, 27: "I will cause the shower to come down in his season; there shall be showers of blessing. And the tree of the field shall yield her fruit, and the earth shall yield her increase, and they shall be safe in their land, and shall know that I am the Lord."

Rebuilding the Garden of Eden.

It is strongly believed by the Turkish Government that the now arid desert between Babylon and Bagdad is the site of the ancient Garden of Eden. To that end 3,000 men are at work daily to reclaim and restore this lost paradise. At a cost of $7,500,000 six hundred thousand acres are to be irrigated, this land now being valueless. It is estimated that when the coveted region is fully irrigated and restored the value will be $190,000,000. It is a vast project and the promised reward is inviting. Likewise is the project to bring man back from his sinful and fallen estate a vast one, and will require for a long time the daily toil of more than 3,000 souls; but restored and exalted, this whole earth will become one boundless paradise whose value cannot be computed.

Saving the Saved.

The most needful movement in this country is one to get inactive church members to become active, and non-giving members to become givers. We are told on good authority that of the twenty million Protestant church members in America "less than one-half of them are doing anything, or giving anything, to meet the missionary needs either at home or abroad." That is a grave indictment and, if fact, is an appalling one. One acquainted with local conditions is prepared to believe and to lament the fact. If reports from Christian churches be true, any church in town or country, less than one half the members, a mere handful in fact, have all the church work to do, and all the Conference claims to pay, and all the laborious and financial burdens to bear. This is true, but it is pitiable. Something should be done to reach the infinite number of church members who simply hang on and have to be carried. We need a revival in which we shall seek to save the saved.

Humility and Ambition.

It seems strange to link the words together. They seem on the surface, and in the acting, to be so very, very far apart. One appears meek, lowly, humble and not infrequently deceives oneself into believing one is meek, lowly, humble, when in very truth these noble virtues have been chosen as the shortest and easiest road to fame, place, and position. Shakespeare penetrated this thick mask when he said:

"Lowliness is young ambition's ladder
Whereto the climber-upward turns his face;
But when he once attains the utmost round
He then unto the ladder turns his back,
Looks in the clouds, scorning the base degrees
By which he did ascend."

You find men proud of their professed lowliness, humility, meekness. We doubt if Moses ever called himself a meek man, or if Elijah ever proclaimed the fact that he was a lowly man, or that Christ ever professed to be the humblest of the humble. Yet these three held converse with God on Transfiguration and constituted the most select company ever assembled on this earth. When we use our lowliness, humility, meekness for purposes of preferment and promotion, then these cease to be virtues and forthwith are vices of the baser sort.

Nathan Hunt's Hat.

In the museum at Guilford College hangs the hat of the man who had the honor, years ago, of founding that splendid institution of learning. Upon a card attached to this broad brimmed No. 8 is written: "Worn by Nathan Hunt during the last twenty years of his life." This hat is worth thinking about; has been thought about, talked about, and sung about. There is a poem by J. H. Peele the first stanza of which is:

"Thou sure art made of honest stuff,
Thou broad brimmed felt of gray;
For twenty years, just think of it,
He wore thee day by day."

There can be no doubt about it; that hat is made of honest stuff, and the man who made it, likewise he who wore it, were. Here an honest man and an honest hat met and formed fellowship; and since the hat, of perishable stuff, could not make the man famous, the man immortalized the hat. When two streams of rugged honesty meet and form common current, time and eternity coalesce and immortality has arrived. Hence Paul's noteworthy injunction, "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just * * * think on these things" (Phil. 4:8). Nathan Hunt's hat is worth thinking on for very many reasons.

Wouldst thou bring the world unto God? Then live near to Him thyself. If divine energy pervades thine own soul, everything that touches thee will receive the electric spark, though thou mayst be unconscious of being charged therewith.—L. M. Child.

The heaviest cross is light if borne in meekness and trust: the lightest cross crushes one if the heart is heavy and sore with pride. Sufferings must come, it is the course of nature; but they do not necessarily cause misery.—Mozoomdar.

God employs no hired men; His work is done by His sons.—Old Proverb.

EDITORIAL

WHICH DAY OBSERVE?

Our mathematical brother, Dr. McCulloch, of The Methodist Protestant Herald, writes in his paper of the largely attended and very enthusiastic meeting the Seventh Day Adventists held in Greensboro recently and thus concludes:

"We sometimes think that men are more easily wrought up to a high pitch of enthusiasm and to greater activity about non-essentials than about essentials. If two men had migrated from Palestine to America, one traveling east and the other west, and both observing Saturday as a day of rest, when they met in America, they would have found themselves a day apart in their Sabbath day, and yet both would be right in that both had kept strictly to the law of observing every seventh day."

The Adventists teach that the world is going wrong and wickedness is rampant largely because we observe Sunday as the Lord's day instead of Saturday; that Saturday is the "seventh day," the very one on which God rested after He had created the world and the one on which He commanded, through Moses on Sinai, that we should rest. The Adventists claim that we adopted this change from Saturday to Sunday simply because the Roman Catholic church said for us to do so, and that when we Protestants keep Sunday instead of Saturday we obey Rome rather than the Word of God.

Let the indictment stand for what it may be worth. We Protestants have come to believe that the day on which Jesus Christ arose from the dead is a more sacred day than that on which our Lord rested after He had finished creation, (an act which is not finished yet, by the way), and that the event of Christ's resurrection is more important and more memorable than any other single transaction that history tells about. In short, it was more necessary that a world be saved than that it be created, just as it is more necessary that an individual be saved than that he be born. Now this whole plan of man's salvation, of his future existence, of his immortality, and his eternal happiness, is locked up in the fact and the event of Christ's resurrection. "And if Christ be not risen (from the dead) then is our preaching vain, * * * we are found false witnesses of God * * * and we are of all men most miserable."

Christ arose from the dead on the first day of the week and "became the first fruits of them that slept." In that act the plan of salvation was made perfect and complete. By observing the first day of the week instead of the seventh we celebrate and memorialize the completion of that plan whereby men's souls are saved rather than that day on which the plan of making a place for their material bodies was finished. Jesus Christ made the first day of the week holy and sacred forever more by coming forth in newness of life that day, breaking the bonds of death, and shaking off the shackles of the grave. The question of which day may be incidental, accidental as Dr. McCulloch indicates, but the Christian world is striving for a Lord's day one day in the seven, and what day, pray, is more fitting as Lord's day than that on which He came from the grave conqueror, victorious, triumphant over every foe?

ONE THOUSAND NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

A delightful reader, whom I do not remember to have met, from Danville, Va., renewing for THE CHRISTIAN SUN, gives this thrill of exaltation: "I enjoy my paper so much. I think your editorials and Bro. Staley's letters alone are well worth the price of the paper. I hope it may go into a thousand new homes." Now isn't that perfectly delicious,—linking the editor's name along with that of Dr. Staley as a writer! We consider that the best and biggest, bravest and sweetest bouquet we have had all these Summer months of blooming roses. It really makes us blush and hang our head in unworthiness to think of it. (But it is hard on Dr. S.)

But passing over this rose bed, is it not strange that this very day, Sept. 15, on which the Danville letter was written, the Business Manager and the Editor had gone over the matter and had seen from facts, figures and the books that the only hope of keeping THE SUN up to its present size, form, print and mechanical make-up One Thousand New Subscribers must be put on our mailing list. It is the simple truth. We at this end of the line have led off. We have shown our faith in the work and in the brotherhood. We have acted in good faith, and solely upon faith. Positively and truthfully it must be said that a thousand new subscribers must come, or the paper cannot stand the immense additional cost of production.

What say our friends? What say our officials in the churches? What say our ministers, the pastors? We mean those who profess to love their church, its paper and its enterprises. Unless we can now have the help of these retrenchment must be made. So far as this writer knows, or has ever heard, not one-half of our pastors, not one fourth indeed, have appealed to their congregations since THE SUN was enlarged last April, or secured even one new subscriber to it, or cares one whit whether the paper remain in its present attractive and readable form or go back to its former inferior print, size and quality.

One thousand new subscribers! Who will help us get them? To the task, beloved, and the toil will be easy. An average of five new ones from each church would make the number.

AUTOMOBILE AND TELEPHONE INDICTED.

A North Carolina Superior Court Judge, in his charge to the Grand Jury, declared that extravagance was largely to blame for the increasing and multiplied crime the Courts have to deal with. The argument was that people went in debt to keep up, and then debt drove them to crime. "About the only difference between debt and hell is," said the Judge, "that debt ends and hell doesn't." An extravagance is the cause of debt—the desire to make a show, appear great, shine in society.

Two of the immoral agencies of the time, the Court contended, were the automobile and the telephone. People owned automobiles who if their debts were paid could not buy a pair of shoes, and people, boys and girls especially, said things over the 'phone that they would not think of saying in the privacy of the home, or face to face. So the Judge contended.

The automobile is no curse. The telephone is no curse. Both are of inestimable blessing and benefit. But like every invention and every discovery ever made, these with all material advantages and conveniences constitute a new challenge to Christianity, test the worth and strength of Christianity in making the right sort of men and women to use them. Whenever in any age material development outruns moral and spiritual development things seem all out of joint.

The moral and Christian forces about us must move with greater power and rapidity in order to grapple successfully with the new problems presented, created by these new and later inventions. The right sort of morals, the right sort of Christians, must be made in the home and on the marts of trade to grapple with and subdue the new temptations, and the easy ones, to which our age of prosperity has subjected us.

OBEDIENCE.

All of us obey. We have to. Sometimes we obey our appetites, sometimes our folly, our fancy, or neglect. Nevertheless we obey. The question ever and always is, What do we obey? There is a virtuous line which reads, "There is but one path that leads to Christ and heaven—that of obedience." In such teaching we must bear in mind, not obedience to our shortsightedness, indulgence, blinded convictions, but obedience to God. If we obey Him we shall have happiness and reach heaven.

With these restrictions obedience is one of the fundamnetal virtues. The ten commandments are the foundation of law, but obedience is the foundation of the commandments. Only by obeying do the commandments become of any avail whatever.

And out of obedience comes reverence. You cannot respect, much less reverence, that which or the one whom you will not obey.

Since we must obey why not choose the highest and the best to obey; for in so doing we can come closer to God and the glory land.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Rev. N. G. Newman, D. D., changes his address from Holland, Va., to Defiance, Ohio.

—THE SUN will appear brighter and better, this week than it has since August 1st. "Suffolk Letter" takes its place again.

—Will some one send on the other student to Elon by first passenger train or express? There are now 299 (Tuesday noon).

—Dr. W. W. Staley dedicated the remodeled and greatly improved church building at Isle of Wight Court House, Va., Sunday, Sept. 7.

—Prof. C. J. Felton, an assistant teacher in Elon College last year, is now in Defiance College, Defiance, Ohio, whither he has gone to take the theological course, we are advised.

—Editor Hines is especially fine in his department this week, particularly on "Country Organized Classes" and the "Christian Endeavor Lesson." Read what he writes; it is worth while.

—In the death of Bro. Levi H. McCauley, Union Ridge, North Carolina, loses one of its bravest soldiers, truest men and best citizens. We extend sympathy to the bereaved family, whom we number among our good friends.

—Rev. N. G. Newman, D. D., left for Defiance, Ohio, September 15th. The best we have to wish him and us is that by next year this time, or sooner, we may print that he has returned from Ohio to the South to remain the balance of his days.

—The missionary debt is growing. All the missionaries are in from Porto Rico, some are in from Japan. Since the income will not even justify keeping those on the field we have, why not call in all the others and see if the debt can then be liquidated?

—We learn from The Herald of Gospel Liberty that Rev. D. P. Barrett and wife and children, of Porto Rico, are in Norfolk, Va., visiting relatives and friends and are in on furlough for awhile. We are advised that they have taken a house at Winchester, Va.

—A most interesting letter that in our Cradle Roll Department. If the babies and the older people can't go to Sunday school why not carry the Sunday school to them? It is not their fault that they can't go. Do for them that which they can't do for themselves.

—His hosts of friends will extend sympathy to Rev. L. L. Lassiter in the loss of his wife, about which sad event Rev. R. L. Williamson wrote in THE SUN last week. Sister Lassiter was an amiable, consecrated Christian character, and the world is poorer for her going.

—Rev. G. D. Hunt, in his Wadley, Alabama, letter this week, makes suggestions and comment of a timely and interesting character. Bro. Hunt is one of our most beloved and active workers, and as President of his Conference wields a wide influence for righteousness and progress.

—Col. J. E. West, Chairman, Suffolk; J. O. Atkinson, Secretary, Elon College; Revs. H. W. Elder, Richland, Ga., and Bro. K. B. Johnson, Cardenas, N. C., constitute the Home Mission Board of the Southern Convention, which meets at Elon College in annual session next Wednesday, Sept. 24.

—Rev. W. L. Wells, Columbus, Ga., has accepted the call tendered him to become pastor of our Durham church. There is no more devout man and consecrated pastor in all our brotherhood than W. L. Wells, and Durham is fortunate to secure his services. His work will begin in Durham early in November.

—Mayor Gaynor of New York died very suddenly on board ship to Liverpool last Wednesday. He was seated in his steamer chair and those nearest to him did not know he was dead until his son spoke to him and he failed to reply. "Be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh."

—Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Cardenas, N. C., was a welcome visitor Tuesday. He handed in a list of SUN subscriptions and ordered a Bible for one of his church pulpits. If all our ministers were as faithful and true to THE SUN as Bro. Johnson we would have the thousand new subscribers, that we must have, in a short while.

—We heard a man, very well educated, too, or supposed to be, recently say, "I haven't saw him today." He meant, "I haven't seen him today." Later our grammarian said, "I seen a fellow awhile ago," when he meant, "I saw a fellow, etc." We wonder what effect that would have had upon Judge Clark of the erudite Statesville Landmark.

—Editor Moore, of The Biblical Recorder, quoting approvingly Prof. A. T. Robertson, gives the following recipe for making Baptists: "Given an open Bible, an open mind, and a conscience in good working order, and we will have a Baptist." In which case said Baptist will certainly be a good Christian, and should be so taken and accepted among brothers and fellows even to the extent of communing at the Lord's table with all that vast throng who have had the open Bible, an open mind, and a conscience in good working order, and have used all three to the very best advantage.

—Mr. Carl B. Riddle, ministerial student in Elon College, proposes to collect from a hundred men, in different colleges, the story of "How they are making their way through College by their own labor" and print same in book form. The Raleigh Evening Times announces that it will first print the stories from these men as they are written and the collection for the volume will be made from The Times print. We wish Mr. Riddle well in his interesting and worthy undertaking. Such a volume ought to prove very helpful to others who are working their way through college.

—A very capable, efficient, and beloved minister of broad scholarship and wide reading, not a member of our Christian Church, sends this ray of sunshine to our sanctum: "Enclosed my check for $1.50 in payment for a year's subscription to THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Of all the religious papers I read there is none that I value more highly than THE SUN. It is healthful, inspiring, uplifting, and one cannot read it constantly without receiving something of an uplift from its tone and spirit." We wish a few score of our pastors would say that or something like that to the thousand who do not get THE SUN but should have it.

—This from the Nashville Christian Advocate: "The Christian Observer claims to be the only weekly newspaper which has completed one hundred years of continuous publication. This claim is challenged by the Herald of Gospel Liberty, a paper of the Christian Church published at Dayton, Ohio, which claims to be the oldest religious newspaper in America. We do not essay to act as umpire in this contest." No umpire is needed, beloved. Just send for a copy of The Herald of Gospel Liberty published in 1908 celebrating in that year its hundredth anniversary and giving a fac simile reproduction of its first copy issued in 1808, whereas The Christian Observer is just now, in 1913—five years later—celebrating its centennial. It does not take an umpire nor a scholarly editor to say that 1908 is further back in history than 1913, does it? A boy in a free school just learning his first "figers" can tell you that.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

The Home Mission Board of the Southern Christian Convention is called to meet at Elon College, Y. M. C. A. Hall, Wednesday, Sept. 24th, 10 o'clock A. M. This is the regular annual session of the Board and those having matters to present in person or by petition will please take notice.

J. E. WEST, Chairman,
Suffolk, Va.

J. O. ATKINSON, Secretary,
Elon College, N. C.

NEWS AND VIEWS.

—The curious and the morbid can't get enough of Thaw, the murderer and degenerate, by reading column after column about him in the daily papers, so the moving picture men have taken him and are reeling him off at so much per night. Thousands flock to the movies to see pictures of this mad man. What strange stuff we mortals are made of.

—Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas, all great corn growing states, will make less than half their usual crop of hay and corn it is declared, on account of the awful drought that has obtained there throughout the Summer. It is predicted that corn will bring $1.25 per bushel next Spring. Our Southern States with excellent crops should take warning and harvest well their feed stuffs and at least not have to buy at exorbitant prices.

Papers report that a Rev. "Sleepy Tom" Clark, Bristol, Va., is getting more or less notoriety by predicting that the world is near an end and that he will shortly tell just when the end of time will be. Strange that fanaticism will persist along one line so very determinedly. History is full of freaks and fancies of just this sort, but they keep on. When any mortal being tells you the world is about to end, say to him that he doesn't know anything about it, neither do the angels in glory.

—"Big Tim" Sullivan, once master of Tammany, hailing from the East side, born in poverty and reared in ignorance, rising to Congressman and being worth $2,000,000 at one time, made from politics, was run over by a train and killed last Saturday A. M. near his home in New York. He had been mentally deranged and escaped from his nurse for a walk. He made money from politics, gambling houses and race horses—and died a suicide. "What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Poor Tim!

Opineth the Statesville Landmark: "There is one thing that can be said for the Charlotte papers—they called a spade a spade in denouncing the murder (lynching) in that town." We have been hearing that old saw phrase these many weary years and never cease to wonder what it means, calling "a spade a spade." And in all these years we have never heard a spade called anything else than a spade. If the Charlotte papers were going to use spades in connection with their denunciations we do not see what else they could have called them than spades. By the way, what has become of those murderers whom the Charlotte papers were "spading" around so profusely?

—Rev. Hans Schmidt, a Roman Catholic priest, assistant rector at St. Joseph's church, New York city, was arrested last Sunday, just as he was entering the church for morning service, for the killing of Anna Aumuller several weeks ago. The priest confessed to the crime, saying that he killed her because she was so beautiful and "he loved her so dearly." He cut the body to pieces and threw it into the Hudson river in the late night. A pillow case in which parts of the body were sewed up gave the clew. The detectives went to the manufacturer whose name was on the case; the manufacturer traced out the dealer, the dealer told who had purchased it. "Be sure your sins will find you out"—in one way or another.

MINISTERS' COUNCIL.

Elon College, Tuesday, October 7, 1913, 9:30 A. M.

Devotional Exercises—by Rev. P. T. Klapp.
Theme for Consideration: THE DUTY OF THE CHURCH TO ITS NEW CONVERTS.

1. How to Reach Them for the Church—led by Dr. A. B. Kendall.
2. How to Induce Them to Take Up Their Cross Daily—led by Rev. H. E. Rountree.
3. How to Interest Them in the Work of the Church and the Kingdom—led by Rev. J. F. Morgan.
4. How to Get Them to Become Soul Winners—led by Dr. J. U. Newman.
5. Business Session. Adjournment.

THE HILLS BEYOND.

Once from the great tower that lifts itself far above the furious Niagara I looked northward to the far-off Tonawandas. While straying far into the depths of Mammoth Cave, no ray of light pierced the blackness. Silence there would reign for ages were it not that the listening ear catches the sound of trickling waters chiseling paths they expect to traverse in the ages to come. Traveling through the mighty Canon of the Colorado or passing through the great Niagara gorge, one reads the age-old history of two rivers. One marks the majestic retreat of Niagara Falls from Lake Ontario. The other is the caprice of a tumbling river whose mountain snows seek the bosom of the far-off seas. There is nothing like the view one gets from the crown of some Rocky Mountain peak. It is utterly impossible to put into words the thoughts that throng the mind as one gazes upon the distant hills. How true all this in the realm of spirit! We labor to reach the hill that lifts itself so far above the common path. No sooner have we gained the summit than from that very height we look on the distant hills piled far above us in such reckless grandeur. Thank God, some sweet day we shall reach the farthestmost granite peak! And from that last ascended hill we shall wander into Elysian fields where all our sainted spirits stray.—Rev. J. Marvin Nichols, in Nashville Christian Advocate.

FROM OUR CONTRIBUTORS

RELIGION AND MORALITY.

In Dr. George A. Gordon's "Ultimate Conceptions of Faith," the author writes: "It was the remark of an Eastern Massachusetts farmer that religion and theology are not the same thing by a great deal. The ministerial tradition, which dates from the excellent Unitarian preacher Dr. Putnam, is that the farmer's remark was still more emphatic, too emphatic altogether for literal quotation."

The friends and foes of present-day Unitarianism have often wondered why the Unitarian denomination, as a denomination, does not accomplish more; the friends wonder why it does not bring faster the kingdom of God, and its foes wonder why it does not bring faster the kingdom of the devil. Would it pass the editorial scrutiny of the Christian Register if the author of this article would suggest that the reason present-day Unitarianism is at a standstill is that the movement is not essentially a religious, but a moral movement, and, if the reader does not know the difference between morality and religion, he needs the prayers of all good Christians. Yet, without doubt, as there are folks who cannot distinguish theology from religion, there are other folks who cannot tell the difference between religion and morality.

Religion is something not alone that a man will die for. It is something he will live a fool for, which is an entirely different matter. Man will die for almost anything. He will take the chance of dying in an automobile for a joy ride; he will go up in an airship or transverse endless miles of snow to reach a north or south pole, which he leaves when he finds, and could not make any use of it if he brought it home.

A man or woman is willing to die for morality, if he or she has it in deep quantities. It is a strong force, always has been. The so-called pagan religions were full of beautiful sentiments of high morality, and men like Marcus Aurelius are splendid examples of the moral life. But these so-called religions were swept into the dust-bin of historical narrative by the vital religion of Christianity, which said of the adulteress: "I do not condemn thee. Go and sin no more." The half-gods had to go when the gods of full stature arrived.

My plea is not that these terms are mutually exclusive, but that the connotation of each is distinct, and a lack of this truth understood retards progress. This truth understood would serve to solve many vexing problems.

A priest of the Protestant Episcopal Church and myself were enjoying the spectacle of the members of the American Unitarian Association at its last meeting getting very much excited concerning the manner of voting. The commonest statements of facts were listened to with a breathless anxiety that might have been touching. The desire to vote two or three times, the reiteration of the manner of voting by a learned judge, whose labors were rewarded by being misunderstood, the dramatic ruling of tellers, and the general note of earnest misconception of a respectable minority showed the emphasis of the emotions upon the little things of life. My friend could not help being amused at the intense feeling betrayed by the assembly, and called attention to the fact that a small part of his denomination (of course he did not call it a denomination) gave more to foreign missions during the past year than the whole of the Unitarian denomination gave to the American Unitarian Association. That is, he felt that his people gave because they were moved with emotion about religion and religious business. The Unitarians were moved with emotion about morality.

Probably among the many poor people of the Protestant Episcopal Church, in the section mentioned, who made a good contribution to foreign missions, there was quite a number who did not live the high moral life or the respectable life of the Unitarians, but they certainly gave much to their religion, in prayer, faithful church attendance, and sacrifice. Does any one doubt that they got back a good deal? Does any one doubt the expanding power of a universal missionary concept?

What I am trying to suggest to the conventional liberal is that, when he thinks he has left the superstitious religions by the wayside and finds his habitat only in the clear air of morality, that his airship will some day have to come down to earth for provisions, and he is liable to capture such partial provisions as political socialism, or social service, or woman suffrage, or peace, or charity, instead of being the priest and prophet of humanity. He is likely to be the university professor, the doctrinaire, instead of the Salvation Army captain. But the Salvation Army captain may be a priest of humanity, and the university professor may be a priest of bugs. It is true each calling may be equally honorable; but, for the sake of sane thinking, let us distinguish the difference.

The men who are religionists today need to beware of the great preponderance of the university conception, as it is permeating the religious concepts. Religion has a distinct field. It is a hilarious, aggressive, loving, uncalculating sunshine of divine laughter, filling the hearts of its votaries. It welcomes back the prodigal son, it forgives the repentant sinner, it takes men as they are, not as they have been. It is agnostic concerning the infinite possibilities of the human soul. It bears all manner of fruits which are for the healing of the nations. It is positive, while morality is negative. Each has its place. But the true church is the great dispenser of religion: morality is a by-product.—Rev. Carlyle Summerbell, D. D., in Christian Register.

HIS EYES OPENED.

"And Elisha prayed, and said, Jehovah, I pray thee open his eyes that he may see. And Jehovah opened the eyes of the young man."—2 Kings 6:17.

Help was at hand and God's power was manifest, but the young man, Elisha's servant, did not see either. Elisha did not pray that help might come, or that power should be shown, but that the young man might just see conditions as they really were.

The darker vision usually precedes the brighter, and it is well enough to bear in mind both visions, the dark and the bright.

Look at the dark side of our missionary situation. In 1810 the average given to missions by the members of all churches was two cents per member. In 1850 the average was 19 cents per member. In 1880 it was 26 cents; in 1900, 31 cents; in 1910, 50 cents. The members of the Christian Church gave last year 15 cents per member, the average for members of all churches in 1840; making our people more than seventy years behind the average in giving for missions. But members of the Virginia Valley Central Conference gave only 3½ cents per member, the average for members of all churches in 1820, making this Conference 90 years behind in giving for Christian missions.

What the church needs is more active preachers. There are now in the Christian church 235 vacant pulpits. In 1873 we had 1,236 preachers. In 1913 we have 1,318—an increase of 82 in 40 years, or about an increase of two ministers per year.

Another great need is more interested laymen. Thousands of our laymen are not interested to go to Conference, take their church paper, or assist in building up their church enterprises.

We are not investing enough money in soul-saving. We only give a pittance for missions and our mission debt increases all the while. We are not sending out any missionaries, and many that we have had out are returning.

Yet our responsibility is great. There are 166,000,000 Christians in the world. The world's total population is 1,500,000,000, about one in every nine persons in the world being Christian. The Christian Church is responsible for 1,000,000 souls. This Conference is responsible for 16,865 souls. Yet we only had 110 converts last year at home and only gave $64.56 for foreign missions. It will take us over a hundred years to do our part of foreign mission work, even if there were no increase in the souls of heathendom during that time.

Our possibilities are unlimited. As measured by the depths from which we have come there are marks of real progress and there is a brighter vision. We formerly had an uneducated ministry; and we have only been in the foreign missionary field a few years. Our conference work is progressing. In 1905 we only gave 86 cents per member. In 1913 we gave $2.38 per member, an increase of 177 per cent. for the eight years. In 1905 we had 1474 members; in 1912 our Conference reports show 1885, a gain of 28 per cent. for the eight years.

There is an awakening of interest among the young people, and much is being done to ally them to the church.

We have certainly got as good principles as any church can have, and if we do not advance upon them the fault is our own. Our five cardinal principles are of divine origin, and cannot be improved upon. But we need also to see the invisible. The hosts of heaven were nearby Elisha's servant, but he simply did not see them. The hosts of heaven are near us; but they are invisible. We need to keep the Captain of our salvation ever before our eyes. He has conquered. He is enthroned. And if we follow Him we too shall conquer and finally be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is.—Outline of annual sermon by Rev. A. W. Andes before Virginia Valley Central Conference, Winchester, Va., Aug 14, 1913.

THE NEXT AND FINAL STEP.

The Headquarters Committee by the approval of the Board of Trustees of the Anti-Saloon League of America, have authorized the following declaration as the future policy of the organization:

The policy of the Anti-Saloon League since its inception has been to go just as fast and just as far as public sentiment would justify. It confines its efforts to law enforcement and sentiment building where that is the only policy public sentiment will sustain. It is for local Prohibition where that policy meets the requirements of the most advanced public demand. It always has favored the adoption of state and national Prohibition just as quickly as an enlightened public conscience warrants. We believe the time is fully ripe for the launching of a campaign for national Prohibition—not by any party, or parties, but by the people. This does not mean that we are to relax our efforts one iota for law enforcement, local Prohibition and Prohibition by states, but it is a recognition of the fact that the task begun more than a hundred years ago should speedily be completed.

The Character of the Traffic.

Every defense the liquor traffic has erected has been battered down except the defenseless appeal to greed and appetite. It no longer has advocates; it must depend for its existence upon partisans. It is united with the white slave traffic. The offspring of this unholy union are robbery, bribery, cruelty, debauchery and murder. The martyred Senator Carmack but uttered an accepted truth when he said, "The liquor traffic would rather die than obey law." It is an enemy to everything that is good in private and public life. It is the friend of everything that is bad. In the name of decent civil government and for the sake of humankind the manufacture and sale of this despoiler of the race should be abolished.

The Peril We Face.

The vices of the cities have been the undoing of past empires and civilizations. It has been at the point where the urban population outnumbers the rural people that wrecked republics have gone down. There the vices have centered and eaten out the heart of the patriotism of the people, making them the easy victims of every enemy. The peril of this republic likewise is now clearly seen to be in her cities. There is no greater menace to democratic institutions than the great segregation of an element which gathers its ideas of patriotism and citizenship from the low grog shop and which has proved its enmity to organized civil government. Already some of our cities are well-nigh submerged with this unpatriotic element, which is manipulated by the still baser element engaged in the un-American drink traffic and by the kind of politician the saloon creates. The saloon stands for the worst in political life. All who stand for the best must be aggressively against it. If our republic is to be saved the liquor traffic must be destroyed.

What Has Been Accomplished?

More than half the counties of the republic, multitudes of incorporated villages and cities and nine entire states containing upwards of forty-six millions of people—fifty per cent. of the population—embracing above two-thirds of the entire territorial area of the country have outlawed the saloon. The traffic has been driven from the army and navy, from immigrant stations and from the national capitol; but the greatest triumph of the temperance forces of the nation was the passage of the Webb-Kenyon bill over President Taft's veto, not only for the service it will render the cause of law enforcement, but for the demonstrated fact that Congress is responsive to the organized, expressed will of the people on this as on other important moral issues.

National Prohibition—How Secured.

National Prohibition can be secured through the adoption of constitutional amendment by Congress and ratification of the same by the necessary three-fourths—thirty-six—states. A state once having ratified the amendment cannot rescind its action, but a state failing in its effort to ratify may do so at any future time.

The Opportune Time.

The time for a nation-wide movement to outlaw the drink traffic is auspicious. Organization is now established and in operation in all parts of the country. The forces that definitely oppose the traffic are in accord as at no time in the past. The moral, scientific and commercial aspects of the problem are being more intelligently put before the public than heretofore. The narrow, acrimonious and emotional appeal is giving way to a rational, determined conviction that the traffic being the source of so much evil and economic waste and the enemy of so much good has no rightful place in our modern civilization.

Abraham reluctantly consented to the levying of an internal revenue tax as a war measure only when assured by members of his cabinet and leaders in Congress that it would be repealed at the close of the war. When the war ended and the broken fortunes of the republic were manifest, the liquor traffic, with that serpent-like wisdom for which it is noted, was the first to urge the continuation of this tax knowing the force of a bribe upon the public conscience. From that time to the present the chief cry against national Prohibition has been that the government must have the revenue. The adoption of the Income Tax amendment to the federal constitution furnishes an answer to the revenue problem.

We appeal to every church, to all organized philanthropies and to every individual, of every race and color, who loves his country and his kind, to join in this crusade for a saloonless nation. We depend for success upon the same Leader who commanded Moses to "speak to the Children of Israel that they go forward."

THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE OF AMERICA.

By Purley A. Baker, General Superintendent.

WAKEFIELD NOTES.

To be silent does not always mean stagnation or death, either with man or nation. So I wish to say to SUN readers that my long silence does not indicate there is stagnation or death in my field of labor. I have five churches and three school house appointments, and all of them are progressing very well. The hot Summer weather for my long Sunday drives to the several appointments has oftentimes made me feel that death would have been a comfortable change, but "Life is real, life is earnest, and the grave is not its goal!"

But for the kind friends and the cheering words that one must have, this life would be a dreary existence. The many kind words and deeds shown me in this field have cheered and comforted me more than words can express. Brother Eddie Cotten, now at Elon College, while at home during his vacation gave my buggy a beautiful suit of paint as a token of his friendship and esteem of my work among his people. Brother Cotten is a promising young ministerial student and a most excellent gentleman, and we feel that his character, as a brush, with the paint of the love of God, will cheer and comfort all those with whom he meets. Brother W. L. Anderson is another friend who has stood by us more than a brother in his kindness and thoughtfulness of our needs. He and his good family shall ever be remembered and loved by all of us. There are many others we might mention who have been kind and thoughtful of us and the work, and we feel very grateful to them and shall kindly remember them. It was my pleasure to be with Brother P. T. Klapp at Mt. Bethel in Rockingham county, N. C., week after third Sunday in August. The week's work there was hard, but very pleasant. The brother has some very loyal and faithful members, and I feel that our work there together was helpful. We had a very good meeting and I came home feeling that I did my duty. Bro. Klapp is a hard worker and one whom I believe to be a most excellent man, and the most spirit-filled brother I have ever worked with. Any church or churches who would like to have a good man as their pastor would do well to have our dear brother Klapp.

C. C. JONES.

GOD'S WILL AND MAN'S WILLFULNESS.

Selfishness is moral disease. There is no sin but is based in part or in whole upon selfishness. Undue attention to self, with a purpose to benefit self at the expense of others, contains the germ of every spiritual and moral sickness.

Strange how God turns decay into sustenance of life, and disease into a support, and the workshop of decay into a hospital of life! Passing strange!

Street dirt and filth contain the germs of practically every physical disease which is reducible to the germ, including lockjaw and tuberculosis. These germs are calculated to destroy, not to build up. They spell death, not life. Somehow they are compelled to contribute to life by the very laws of nature.

Plant the lily in a pot of such filth. The lily grows and thrives and blooms with surpassing beauty, but the beauty is no more remarkable than the purity. Defile the lily by planting it in the compost heap? Not if the lily knows itself. It overcomes the forces which make for the physical death of man and turns them into nourishment for itself. There is a certain law of life and growth in its being, and the very life must be destroyed to make it prove untrue to its nature.

As long as men work in harmony with God there is no thwarting of the divine will, no defaulting in its purpose. But suppose that man disposes when God proposes. Suppose that man says "No" when God commands—the free moral agency of the creation asserting itself in the presence of the Creator. How, then, will the purpose of heaven be carried out, inasmuch as that implies the co-operation of the human?

Our Sunday school lessons have been yielding truth of this character. Moses had the sentence of death pronounced upon him before he was born. That very condemnation was the means of getting the child into the royal household, where he learned the things from the Egyptian side absolutely essential to leadership of the children of Israel out of bondage. Many hold that deception is never right; but deception brought the mother of the child into the natural position of nurse and teacher, resulting in knowledge of the history of Israel—past history and future history through the promises—resulting also in sympathy for the kindred with which he later determined to associate at the cost of near-royal prerogatives. Moses killed the Egyptian whom he found abusing a fellow Hebrew. He was righteously indignant at the cruelty, but went far and away beyond the law of punishment which God promulgated through him a few years later, embodied in the condensed statement: "An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth." Then Pharaoh had an intense natural anger against Moses, and attempted to kill him, which impulse was wrong and which will was wrong entirely.

But the good purposes of God run deeper than the ill purposes of man. God is profound; man is shallow. Man can block God's path, but he cannot prevent God's going around some other way. God is sovereign if man is free. Man's will may hinder his personal salvation against all the powers of heaven, but his will is not omnipotent when it affects the happiness and welfare of a million other men. God finds some way around.

Moses needed training in the Egyptian court circles, yet must have sympathetic knowledge of his own flesh and blood. Moses needed experience in the wilderness, yet must not get out of line with the country he had left behind and the country toward which he was anxious to turn his face. God saw that all these necessities were supplied, although they did not grow naturally out of the conditions and circumstances. God accomplishes his purpose in spite of circumstances rather than with their help.

How can all this be? Let the reader tell. No, we will give him an easier task, perhaps. Let the reader tell how the lily can build up life out of the decay of the street, and the writer will explain how God builds up life out of the decay of moral purposes and moral character on the part of men. As the lily roots down into filth and death and nourishes its own life thereby, so the purposes of God seem to root down into spiritual filth and death and thrive therefrom.—Religious Telescope.

BETTER THAN BASEBALL.

A surrender to Christ may call for giving up not merely evil or doubtful things, but things perfectly good in themselves. An athletic young fellow of eighteen, with an enthusiasm and talent for baseball, recently gave his life completely over to Christ's ownership. Soon after he had taken this step, a friend met him and asked him about his baseball team. "Oh, I had to give the game up. I found I was liking it so much it prevented me from giving the right attention to other things, so I cut it out." And it was not hard to give up baseball because this healthy young giant, bubbling over with life, had found something more thrilling than baseball—the joy of representing his new Friend and Master, Jesus Christ. Giving a thing up for Christ always means cutting away an obstruction so that his riches may have wider space and freer channel to flow into our lives, and out into others' lives.—S. S. Times.

Send in your subscription now.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

My ink has been too thin during August to write the "Suffolk Letter"; but my thoughts have been thinner than my ink. My thoughts are like sorghum, growing thin and sour in the heated term; but it thickens and sugars up in cold weather. You see atmospheric conditions and environment effect my whole being and especially after a full year of mental and heart strain.

Besides this, the "Suffolk church" kindly gave me the month of August for rest, and they prefer that I use that month in mental rest and recuperation. Well, I spent most of the time in manual work. I did not even go fishing. It is true I preached six times for Rev. W. G. Clements in his good meeting at Oak Level; but he praises you so much you can't help doing what he wants you to do. By this I learn that praise is better than blame.

By previous engagement I was with Rev. R. H. Peel and his good people at Ivor, Va., on the third Sunday in August, when their new $2,500 church was dedicated. They had paid $1250 and we raised easily that day the balance of $1250, which made the members and friends who subscribed feel good. They had a great dinner, a half a hundred big water melons, ice-water, a big congregation, fine music under the leadership of Mrs. Varner, and a day of rejoicing. The town is growing, the church is growing, and the outlook is brighter than it has been for many years. The good pastor feels repaid for personal labors in what seemed at one time a declining church.

The intermediate time I spent in mending fences, sowing clover seed, making hay, and building a much needed barn. We tore down the old log barn that had stood for forty-six years, laid concrete foundation for the new one, and then reared the frame of a new one. Brother Burwell Riddick, Jr., a young architect of Suffolk, drew the plan for the barn, and his plan works out well. My wife's sister said she had only one objection to the new barn, and that was I would have a better house for the mules than I had for the family; but I have written so much about the mistreatment of mules that I was forced to prepare a good place for them. Last year I repaired the cow-barn; this year I am building the mules a new one, and it will be finished before the winter.

I did hoe turnips, gather grapes, shell peas and butter-beans, draw water, and run the pigs and calves out of the barn and help the women folks a little; but I have such smart women in my home that one feels like he is intruding to offer to help. Of course they will show you where the walk needs fixing, and the gates need repairs, and the weeds ought to be cut, and the cows brought up, and some wood put in shape for the stove; but in the main women will let you rest.

All the family was at home for two weeks: Bessie, her husband, and William Staley; Willie and her husband; Annie without her husband; wife, and mother-in-law. I think one of the problems in a home is family prayers. Of course it sounds important, easy, and splendid when you hear the preachers discourse on "Family Prayer"; but I am talking about the everyday practice. If you wait till after supper, some one will get sleepy; if you use the dining room at the close of supper, some one will be called out just when you open the Bible. To bring a whole family to quiet and come to your prayers is easier said than done; but it can be done and it pays to do it. You can there confess to God what you knew you ought to confess to one another. You can close the day with the Lord's prayer together, and go to your rest in peace. Like every other good thing, the family prayers should be kept up in the family, even if you miss some nights when a storm calls some one out to get in the clothes and some other to shut up the chickens.

On the first Sunday in September I was with Rev. Stanley C. Harrell and his good congregation for the re-dedication of their remodeled church at Isle of Wight Court House. I preached in Suffolk in the morning and brother A. T. Holland's car, driven by brother Jesse D. McClenny, carried these, J. C. Felton, H. Woodward and myself to the Court House for the service at 3 P. M. The cost of the improvement has been $1,500 and no appeal was made for money; that part of it had been provided for before the day. Rev. Daniel A. Keys of South Norfolk who had come to assist pastor Harrell in a meeting took part in the Dedication Services. The music was good throughout and was enriched by a fine solo by George Whitley, a promising young lawyer of Smithfield, and whose father is a leading member of the Court House church and where he holds his own membership.

During this week I have been with Dr. J. W. Johnson in a fine meeting at Liberty Spring. The congregations were fine, the music was excellent, the hospitality was liberal; twenty-four professed faith in Christ and eighteen united with the church at the close of the meeting. More will join. This is a large congregation, made up of small farmers who till their lands well, use paint and white-wash, love their church and their pastor and want him for two Sundays in the month next year.

W. W. STALEY.

FIRST CHURCH, NORFOLK.

We have etered upon our work in this excellent field. Our church here has splendid location and is well kept. It is free from debt. To a stranger the outlook is hopeful. The people are kind and very generous towards the new pastor and his family. The members of the church speak in highest terms of the faithful pastors who have served the church during its history. I frequently hear the names of Scholz, Cox, Bryant and Roberts, all of whom are held in high esteem. I also hear many kind words of the preachers who have served as supply during the past two years. The people here think well of preachers. I have not heard one word of adverse criticism on their lives or their work. I know a great deal is expected of me as pastor. I shall endeavor to live up to the expectation. I shall try to do my best at any rate. I have no doubt that I will make many mistakes; will no doubt fail in some respects to meet the highest expectation of some. I think, however, that my people have religion and common sense enough to forgive many errors and to look over any weakness I may display before them. I have the utmost confidence in the membership. I believe in their ability to do things. They can be trusted to stand by the church they love.

The Sunday school, with Bro. J. O. Wiggs superintendent, is doing a grand work. The attendance is good. The teachers are efficient and willing. The prayer meeting is interesting, with good attendance, about fifty being present at our first meeting. The Ladies' Aid Society and Young People's Auxiliary will begin work in earnest about the first of October. We hope to be able to give SUN readers much important news of our success and progress in the coming months.

L. F. JOHNSON.

Berkley, Va.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

Rev. J. O. Cox, Durham, N. C., was a visitor Tuesday on business.

The enrollment to date (Tuesday noon) is 299, and several others are expected soon.

President Harper has been confined to his room three or four days with La Grippe, but is convalescing, we are glad to say.

Prof. J. S. Lincoln, of the Charlotte C. H. (Va.) High School, was here Sunday and Monday. He enters Johns Hopkins Medical School in October.

Prof. J. T. Cobb, Class of '99, and who has been elected Superintendent of the Enfield Schools for this year, was a visitor in the village Tuesday.

Miss Blanche Teague, of the Pleasant Hill section, was called home Saturday afternoon on account of the death of her grandmother, Mrs. William Teague.

Mr. A. L. Lincoln, Class of '10, who spent the Summer here at his old post of duty as stenographer for the President, returned last week to Johns Hopkins' University to continue his medical course.

Miss Annie Williams, Greensboro, N. C., has accepted a position with the College as Stewardess in the Dining Hall. Miss Williams is a most estimable Christian woman and there is much pleasure at her coming to the College.

Mr. R. D. Thompson, Jr., a member of Pleasant Grove (Va.) Christian church, was here Saturday and Sunday, considering a proposition to become manager of the Orphanage farm. Mr. Thompson was much taken with Elon's rapid development. Whether he will accept a position at the Orphanage is not yet determined.

NOT HOMES, NOT WAGES, BUT WHISKEY.

We are heart and soul in for all reasonable adjustments whereby the masses who toil may have the least number of hours and the highest possible wages. But the slogan, "More money and less work," is not enough to redeem the world of toil. We must first ask how is it that men spend the wages they are earning as it is. And we ought then to ask where is it that these men spend the leisure that they have already. Really it is not reassuring to have statistics tell us that laborers spend more than one-fourth of their wages in the saloon. The money spent in the saloon is greater than the amount spent for education, woolen goods, boots and shoes and bread.—Central Christian Advocate.

A HAPPY RECONCILIATION.

Two young women, members of the same church and Sunday school, became estranged over some trifling affair, and for months did not speak when they met. Of course this was very embarrassing to friends and acquaintances of both. One Sunday morning it so happened that these two young women, although coming from different parts of the church, met and knelt side by side at the communion altar. The pastor noticed this, and took advantage of the situation. As they arose to leave the altar, he took each by the right hand, placing their two hands together, and softly said, "God bless you both." They at once threw their arms around each other in a warm embrace of love and forgiveness, to the joy and satisfaction of all who witnessed the scene.—Charles MacCulloch.

CHURCH NEWS.

CHAPEL HILL.

The Christian church here has been marking time two or three months for want of money. But the forward command has been given. As soon as laborers can be found, the work will commence again. All bills have been paid, flooring and ceiling in the house, ready to be put up. Let those who have made pledges, and have not paid, send in the cash as soon as possible. We will need it in a few days. The ladies are organizing their forces to help push the work forward. The town is on a boom, and we want to strike while the iron is hot.

W. G. CLEMENTS.

SAREM.

On Monday following the fourth Sunday in August we began a revival meeting at Sarem. Rev. H. H. Butler came on Wednesday morning and did the preaching until the close of the meeting. Bro. Butler, always a consecrated man and an able revivalist, was at his best this week. The attendance was good and interest keen throughout the meeting. There were about twenty conversions, and sixteen were received into the church.

This church is weak in numbers, but there are some as faithful workers as can be found. If an able, working pastor can be found for it next year it can do a great work.

C. J. FELTON.

WADLEY, ALABAMA, LETTER.

We are just about through with our meetings, and are getting ready for Conference, which is just a little more than a month off.

I have held some of the best meetings in my field that I have ever had the privilege of attending. I have one more to hold, at Lagrange, embracing the third Sunday in this month. Rev. J. D. Dollar has promised to assist me at this place.

I have already conducted four revival meetings with but very little ministerial assistance. My work has been heavy this year, but by the help of the Lord I shall be able, I think, to pull through. Have had six regular appointments, serving five churches, and have done quite a lot of other work. I can feel the strain more now than in former years; and I feel that in justice to myself and those I love, that I shall be compelled to leave off some of my work for another year. I feel a deep interest in my Church, and also in the ministry of my church, and trust that it will be the Father's will to call other young men into this great work. The laborers indeed are few, the work is great and increasing in greatness, and may we appreciate this fact and do our duty.

I feel that every member of the Christian church ought to love the church better than ever before. Our church is growing in influence and power in this country as never before. And though seemingly we are facing a crisis, on account of the scarcity of laborers, yet I feel that we are also facing an era of unprecedented progress.

I am sure that, with our work properly distributed among our preachers, within a few years we can add several churches to our Conference roll. There are many places which need strengthening and new points which can be developed, by a united and systematic effort put forth by our ministry.

Brethren, we do not understand each other as thoroughly as we should. We need in our Conference a Ministers' Institute, or something of that nature, to meet, say, three times during the year for counsel and the discussion of such topics as will be of interest to our church. I suggest that the Committee on Education recommend such a move to our annual Conference and especially to our ministry.

Brethren, think about this, and come to Conference prepared to stay until all work is finished in decency and in order. We are going to have the best Conference in our history, and the interest demands our careful and prayerful thought. God bless you all.

I am,

Your servant,

G. D. HUNT.

RICHLAND, GEORGIA, LETTER.

I am just through with seven weeks of revivals, in seven different fields; four in Georgia and three in North Carolina. The first three weeks were in my own field of labor. We began at Enigma and had a great meeting. Rev. J. V. Knight, of Elon College, did the preaching, and did it well. Seventeen additions to the church.

We next went to Kite, Ga., for a week. Here we had a splendid meeting, with eight additions. Bro. Knight did most of the preaching here, and endeared himself to the people.

Our next field was at Oak Grove. Brother Knight was with me here for five days, and did good preaching, which resulted in a great revival with seventeen additions.

From here I went to Apple's Chapel, N. C., to assist Rev. L. I. Cox. Bro. Cox assisted me in the Spring at two of my churches. It was a great feast to me to be with him in his work. We had a great meeting there with twenty-two additions. The congregations there were large, and a great revival was the result. I shall ever remember this meeting as one of the richest of my life.

Next, I joined Bro. Knight for ten days at Berea. This was in some respects the greatest meeting of the series. We had here 67 professions and 42 additions. This meeting means much to Berea church. They have some fine workers here, and the working force was greatly increased. This church has a great future to it, if wisely handled.

Next I went to Shallow Ford church, where I assisted Rev. A. S. Iseley 25 years ago. In the Summer of 1888 I spent a week there in a great meeting. It was a source of great joy to be there again in a good revival. A great many who were there twenty-five years ago have joined the forces on the other side, and I missed their presence. Many were there who were there 25 years ago, and it was a delight to meet them again. This was a great meeting. Thirteen made profession, and eight joined the church. It was a source of inspiration to have Bros. Cox and Knight with me in the work that is dear to my heart. It was equally enjoyable to be with them in their work. They are consecrated men of God. To have their association for weeks means much for one's Christian experience.

From Shallow Ford I came back to dear old Georgia and held a week's meeting at Randall's Crossing, with four additions. We had some other confessions during the meeting, and we hope mean much for the church and the Sunday school.

I am just back from my regular appointment at Enigma; received two valuable members there. One hundred and twenty members received and about 200 professions.

H. W. ELDER.

The New York Evening Post says that at the entrance of a certain large church the following line is posted so that all can see and read: "On account of the respect due to the house of God ladies worshipping in this church must be decently clothed." That does not need any comment.

God employs no hired men; His work is done by His sons.—Old Proverb.

THE CHALLENGE OF THE BABY.

Letter No. 1.

DEAR CRADLE ROLL SUPERINTENDENTS:—

You will see by last week's SUN how generous our Editor has been to us. I asked him for a column once (or twice) in a while, and he has kindly offered us a column once a week, if we will use it. Now, you surely don't expect me to fill it all alone, so you will have to help me with suggestions, information, and hints as to why and how and where your Cradle Roll is going, or if not, why not. Then we can have a Round Table of our own, and a very helpful one, I am sure. I already have a couple of letters with some very interesting suggestions which I am planning to use in the near future, but first, we want to start our Cradle Roll Department just as we would start a real Cradle Roll in our Sunday school. I am sure there are many who do not understand how easily and delightfully this work may be accomplished, or we would have a Cradle Roll in every Sunday school, so for their benefit we are going to discuss each step on the road to a successful Home Department.

What is the first thing necessary to a successful Cradle Roll? Now, I know some of you will say at once "the Baby," and others will say equally loudly "the Superintendent." But if we had a world full of splendid superintendents and no babies we could not have a Cradle Roll, could we? So, then the very first step is the baby. Wait a minute, I want to write that over again. The first thing is the BABY.

There, that looks better, doesn't it? And besides, that is the way we speak of them and think of them, when first they come into our lives. How very unspeakably dear and precious they are, and how our hearts reach out for them in a yearning too deep for words. Don't you remember how your throat filled up, and your heart pounded against your ribs, and you could not express one-half the thoughts which came to you, when you put out your finger to the little sweetsmelling bundle and that little hand came out and caught hold of your finger, and hung on, so tight, oh, so tight. Too frail to break a spider's web, and yet the mightiest bridge between earth and Heaven that God has ever sent to draw us close to Him. Why, even the Father, I think, feels the drawing power of those tiny hands, for you know, we are told, "Their angels do always behold the face of the Father."

So, when the little stranger comes here, we give him a welcome in the home, in our hearts, and most certainly we ought to give him a welcome in the Sunday school, not that he needs to be taught just yet, but because he can teach us, and because we never want to lose sight of him. It is far easier to have and to hold, than to lose and to find. Let us go, then, to Baby's home, welcome the new arrival, get his name, with mother's consent, and have a new member of God's family on earth as well as of the human family to which he has come.

The next thing we need is that someone to go and get that name, to bring it in to the Sunday school, and to see that it is properly enrolled. But we will talk of that person in our next article. We cannot afford to have our Editor refuse us another week because we don't know when to stop. But before next week's paper comes, if you have no Cradle Roll in your Sunday school, you who read this letter, won't you take your pencil and paper, and jot down the names of the babies in your community, and then ask yourself the question, "Can we, and can our Sunday school, afford to be without these little ones another day? If they can't, what am I going to do about it?"

Cordially, your Cradle Roll Supt.,

MRS. F. BULLOCK.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

FOR THE S. S. SUPERINTENDENT.

Some Thoughts on the International Lesson for Next Sunday.

Subject.—"The Golden Calf."—Ex. 32:15-20, and 30-35.

Time.—A few weeks after the giving of the Law.

Place.—Mt. Sinai.

Persons.—Moses, Aaron, Israelites.

Golden Text.—My little children, guard yourselves from idols.—1 John 5:21.

Leading Thought.—Whatever comes between us and God is an idol.

The Israelites were on a plain at the foot of a mountain in the Sinai range. Moses was absent, being with God on the top of the mountain, receiving revelations of the laws that were to govern the people. Joshua was with him, though probably not admitted to equally close communion with the Most High. They were in the mount forty days, and during their absence the people persuaded Aaron to make a golden idol in the form of a calf, an animal worshipped in Egypt. This idol was to represent Jehovah, though God had forbidden any idolatrous representation of Himself. The image was made of gold jewelry melted up and cast in the form of plates, which were fastened to a wooden form. This god the Israelites worshipped, with dances, music, and feasting, after the heathen fashion.

The pulverizing of the golden image, so that people drank its dust in their drinking-water, would have been impossible with pure gold, but it was probably made of gold alloyed with tin, which rendered it brittle.

The significant dash in verse 32 may be filled in as we think most likely. It shows that Moses was filled with strong emotion, that checked his utterance. The thought of the people's sin, and the possibility that God would not be able to forgive them, was too much for him.

Illustration.

A GOLD RING.—How did this gold happen to be in the shape of a ring? It did not happen. It was shaped like a ring by a goldsmith who purposed to make a ring when he began. Today's lesson tells of Aaron and the people of Israel making a golden image to worship because they yielded to a foolish and wrong fear. The image did not happen to be a calf. It took that form because the foolish faith in such an idol was in the hearts of the people. The wrong outward acts we commit do not happen. They result from something wrong hidden in our hearts.

Question Review.

Probably you have heard it as a conundrum or puzzle, "Who broke all the Ten Commandments at once?"

1. What answer did you give to this?
2. When Moses broke the slabs of stone on which they were inscribed, did he really break the Commandments?
3. Who had, in heart and deed, broken them?
4. Which of the Ten Commandments had Israel broken?
5. What, instead of God, were they worshipping?
6. What does a New Testament writer urge us to beware of? (G. T.)
7. What is to our people much like idolatry was to the ancients? (Intemperance.)
8. What is the only sure way of keeping ourselves from this form of idolatry? (Golden Text of last Sunday.)—Leonard.

Lesson Announcement.

Next Sunday will be review day—one of the most interesting lessons of the quarter. Each Sunday we emphasize some one story. Next Sunday we will look back over the story of Moses' life from his birth to the time when he received the law from God on Mt. Sinai. We have had the story of God's people, beginning with one man who chose God as his friend, Abraham, then a family, the children of Israel, and then a family growing into a nation. See this week if you can think of reasons why people so full of faults as these people were should be chosen by God to be his special help. It will help you to understand all the story of the children of Israel better if you will.

COUNTRY ORGANIZED CLASSES.

The idea still lingers with some that the modern organized Bible class is more adapted to the city and town than to the country. Never was a bigger mistake made. Exactly the opposite is true. There are so many organizations in the cities that they do not have the attraction for people that they do in the country. The organized class is more effective in the city than the unorganized class, but in the country this effectiveness is even more appreciable.

The rural field for the organized class is as yet almost untouched, but great results are soon to come from the work in rural churches. Many country churches are lamentably weak in adult classes and membership, but this only strengthens the argument that organization is needed.

The country Bible class may be an extensive social center. In most villages and communities there is no organization for social service. When one is sick, nobody visits him as a representative of the church or Sunday school, nobody sends flowers, no one ascertains if the family is in need.

There should be more gatherings in the country under the auspices of the church. It does not hurt the church and Sunday school to have meetings under its auspices if they are properly conducted and it helps the individuals. No one can study the Bible without coming to the conclusion that Christ's work was to carry religion into every day life.

Finally, adult classes will help the Sunday school and church. They do it everywhere they have been organized. The biggest asset a church can have is organized classes for men and women, boys and girls.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR LESSON: SEPT. 28.

Topic: "Missionary Essentials at Home and Abroad. III. Giving."—2 Cor. 9:6-15.

This will be a meeting for the promotion of the Tenth Legion in the society. Time should be given some one to explain the Tenth Legion and make an effort to enroll new members. If there are any members of the Tenth Legion in the church or society, let them take the lead. The leader will explain the Tenth Legion and others will amplify the subject.

The Tenth Legion is an organization under the auspices of the United Society which enrolls all who make a practice of giving one-tenth or more of their income to the Lord's work, whether members of the society or not. Each is to be a judge of what is religious work and for what purposes he will give. The name is derived from Caesar's invincible Tenth Legion. The income is to be tithed, whether it comes in regularly or irregularly. Tithing is directed by the Bible. No Christian can excuse himself from this service to the satisfaction of God, however he may satisfy himself.

Someone has said: "Money is consolidated life; when we give money we give life." We work for money, we put our lives into making it, it represents that part of our life that it took to earn it. When we give what we have earned for three days in every month we have given three days of the month to the cause for which the money is given.

Says another: "When we give to Missions we always receive in return much more; wider outlook, deeper interest, nobler inspiration, more abundant satisfaction."

Read this and think over it: "Many think they are giving liberally that would be speedily convicted of stinginess if they would keep an account of their giving on one page and of their income on the opposite page, and compare the two totals every month."

The mission field at home is still in great want. The field is ripe unto the harvest indeed. What shall we do about more laborers? They are needed in rural communities, in the great Catholic West, the slums of the cities, among the negro population of our Southern towns, and, in fact, in almost every place we turn.

Beaconsfield put his finger on our weak spot when he said to us: "They cannot govern their cities." Democracy is not yet the grand and glorious success that Fourth of July orators tell us it is. We must solve many questions of morals and civic life before we can call it a success.

We spend more for chewing gum than we do for foreign missions. England spends more for gold balls than it does for the cause of missions abroad. Are we liberal? The amount the United States and England spend for liquors and tobacco as compared with what they give for missions of all kinds is enough to make the heart sick.

The immigrant people are always a source of trouble for our churches and for those who are interested in social welfare. Shall we turn these over to a few illy-paid men and deacons?

ENDEAVOR PRISON WORK.

About twelve years ago a Christian Endeavor society was organized in the North Carolina state prison at Raleigh by Miss Bays, as a result of enthusiasm she had gained from the Detroit convention. This organization has been continued largely on account of efforts of the society in the Raleigh Christian church until this time. The amount of good it has done is incalculable. Prisoners are usually penitent and ready to receive the gospel.

At first the meetings were held in an old workshop, as the prison had no chapel. At the last state convention held in Raleigh many delegates attended a service in the little chapel. There are two societies there now.

This is but a sample of the prison work all over the country. From the first it has been a success. This should encourage others in like work. Christian Endeavorers will do well to hold services in the county prisons, houses of correction, as well as county homes for the aged and infirm.

For Daily Reading.

Monday—Bible rule Deut. 16:17
Tuesday—Give secretly Matt. 6:1-4
Wednesday—Give systematically 1 Cor. 16:1, 2
Thursday—Give liberally 2 Cor. 9:1-12
Fri.—According to ability. Acts 11:29; 2 Cor. 8:12-15
Saturday—Money and time Exod. 35:4-10
Sunday, Sept. 28.—Topic.

It is never foolish to do a thing because we want to do it. The folly lies in doing a thing because other people think we ought to want to do it, and we do not.—Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Secty. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

HOME MISSIONS IN THE EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA CHRISTIAN CONVENTION.

The Eastern N. C. Christian Conference should bow in gratitude to God for the success it has had, in its short existence, along the line of Home Missions. Churches have been organized and houses of worship built at Sanford, Henderson and Chapel Hill, and many weak ones much strengthened by means of mission funds given by the Conference.

For two years no church that had a pastor has failed to send up the full amount asked for by the Conference; and only one has been without a pastor. We should be working and praying that every church will send up the full amount this year.

Many places are calling for Christian churches in the bounds of the Eastern N. C. Conference. But they cannot be occupied on account of a want of means.

HOME MISSIONS IN THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION.

The full amount of Home Missions asked for in the Southern Convention has never been sent up, but enough to do great good. Some how or other, some of our people have reached the conclusion that this fund is not necessary because it is not required to make a banner church. This is quite a mistake. It is as needful as the conference Home Missions. Had it not been for this fund, we would have had no Portsmouth church, no Winchester, no Chapel Hill church and several others whose names I do not recollect. Let every church in the Eastern N. C. Christian Conference see that every cent asked for on Convention missions is sent up. All the church enterprises are important and should be aided with the amounts for which they have been asked. But, if the home churches fail, the foreign churches grow weaker.

W. G. CLEMENTS,
Chmn. E. N. C. C. C.

AN APPEAL FOR PRAYER FOR THE UNITED MISSIONARY CAMPAIGN.

The Home and Foreign Missionary leaders of the United States and Canada have decided to engage this Winter in the most extensive and important piece of co-operative work which they have ever undertaken. The object in view is to enlist a far larger number of church members as intelligent missionary workers, supporters and intercessors. Of the more than twenty millions of Protestant church members in North America, less than one-half of them are doing anything or giving anything to meet the missionary needs either at home or abroad.

In addition to aggressive educational plans to be carried forward within the various denominations, there will be several hundred two-day Missionary Conferences held throughout the United States and Canada. More than twenty teams of experienced speakers are already organized for the efficient conduct of these Conferences.

This extensive campaign is planned to lead up to a simultaneous personal canvass in March, 1914, for all missionary purposes, on the part of all the churches of all denominations, so far as they will undertake it. More than two hundred speakers will participate in the Conferences. Probably hundreds of thousands of men will assist in the simultaneous canvass for missionary subscriptions. The entire effort should mean a marked quickening of the spiritual life of many thousands of churches, resulting in greatly increased Christian activity and liberality.

In view of the vast issues involved, the Executive Committee of the United Missionary Campaign appeals to Christian people everywhere to join in frequent prayer for God's clear guidance and manifested presence and power in connection with this entire undertaking. In private prayer, at the family altars, in the stated church services, and in many other meetings called especially for the purpose, it is most earnestly urged that unceasing prayer be offered for a mighty spiritual quickening that will enable the church to strengthen and enlarge its work so as to meet worthily the present critical and stupendous opportunities both at home and abroad. Nothing less than a general and profound spiritual quickening among the churches will meet the present emergency. This quickening will come, and can only come, when fervent prayer is offered unceasingly to God to this end. "In any land a revival will come when enough people desire it enough—that is, above everything."

"Ye have not because ye ask not."
"The harvest is great, . . . therefore pray ye."
"Concerning the work of my hands, command ye me."

Executive Committee of the United Missionary Campaign:

S. EARL TAYLOR, Chairman,
GEORGE INNES,
WILLIAM B. MILLAR,
General Secretaries.

SOME MISSIONARY MOTTOES.

"Unless Jesus Christ is Lord of all, He is not Lord at all."

"It is the mission of the Church to give the whole Gospel to the whole world."

"We cannot serve God and mammon, but we can serve God with mammon."

"This is a lost world to be saved, and not simply an ignorant world to be educated."

"The Gospel of Jesus Christ is not only a Gospel for all men, but it is a Gospel for the whole man."

"The man who does not believe in foreign missions had better burn up his New Testament, for it is a record of foreign missions."

"Missionary history is a mystery until it is read as His story."

"We have given the Orient warships and telephones, steam cars and sewing-machines, and silk hats, but its inhabitants are none the better for these, and except the old man be changed within, all these adventitious trappings will make him a more potent force for evil."

"If we have not enough in our religion to drive us to share it with all the world, it is doomed here at home."

"Love never asks, how much must I do? but how much can I do?"

"You might as well try to cure small-pox by scenery, as to try to save the world by improvement of environment."

"The question is not, How much of my money will I give to God? but, How much of God's money will I keep for myself?"

"Doing nothing for others is the undoing of one's self."

"With God go over the sea; without Him not over the threshold."

"What I spent I had—what I kept I lost—what I gave I have."—Missionary Review.

ZURICH'S MISSIONARY VISION.

Each World's Sunday School Convention, with its continuing theme "the Sunday school and the Great Commission," lays fresh emphasis upon the vital truth that the missionary enterprise is not a department of church work, but is the real business of the church. On the closing day of the World's Seventh Sunday School Convention at Zurich, this conviction found expression in a resolution to send an official communication to the Mission Boards of Protestant churches throughout the world. This "Address to Mission Boards," unanimously approved by the delegates, set forth the thrilling appeal of present conditions in mission lands and the significant opportunity of today for co-operation with Sunday school forces. The native Christian of the mission church with his need of Bible teaching, the child of mission lands born into the blighting atmosphere of heathenism, the growing secular education under godless auspices, the ever-widening need of evangelistic extension of the native churches' sphere of influence,—all these make a clear call to the Sunday school as the effective and prepared agency for the church to use. These factors were earnestly presented in the address to the Mission Boards, which also conveyed the greetings of the Convention and appreciation of the great work the Boards were doing in the common service of taking Christ to the world. This action of the Convention emphasizes the significant word of Dr. Bailey in his President's Message: "The two-fold aim of the World's Sunday School Association is to promote a missionary spirit in the Sunday school in the home field, and a Sunday school spirit in mission fields." The unmistakable call to each Sunday school worker is to put missions—the preachings of Christ—first in his own life and in his Sunday school activities, and then will the Sunday school become a great and growing factor in Foreign Missions.—S. S. Times.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE MISSION BOARD OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The Mission Board of the Christian Church will meet in annual session Thursday, October 9, 1913, at 10 o'clock A. M., in the chapel of the Christian Publishing Association Building, corner Fifth and Ludlow streets, Dayton, Ohio. All persons having business with the Board will please govern themselves accordingly.

WARREN H. DENISON,
Secretary of the Board.

712 Cooke Ave., Norfolk, Va., Sept. 13, 1913.

WHAT ONE CAMPAIGN DID.

The Endeavorers of Eastern Tennessee under the leadership of John M. Gore and an efficient committee conducted an increase campaign during the first five months of this year. The results are in new societies organized: Young People's, 26; Intermediate, 6; Junior, 12; Total, 44. Increases in membership, 1,523. Receipts from campaign were $205.20, expenditures $42.29, leaving balance of $162.91.

What was done in Eastern Tennessee can be duplicated anywhere else in the South if an efficient committee will get on the job. Why not in some of our conferences?

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

MENDELSSOHN.

Who knows who Mendelssohn was? He was a great German musician who composed many oratorios and other pieces of music. He lived a great deal in England, and here some of his work was first produced. One of his oratorios was on the subject of Elijah. Do you remember about Elijah, and Ahab, and the widow's son, and the ravens and the chariot? If not, get mother to read aloud to you about him out of the Bible. It will take quite a time to read all, but you will be much interested. Mendelssohn's oratorio of "Elijah" was first produced at Birmingham; and when he was there superintending the rehearsal he one day came across a boy chorister who was striving to play the music of his own part on a piano.

When people who were trying to render Mendelssohn's music were idle or careless, he often spoke to them harshly; and once he told some musicians who were not doing their best that they were making a noise like cats. But Mendelssohn noticed that though the boy chorister was not doing especially well, yet he was doing the very best he could. So he went up and spoke to him. The boy was quite frightened to have the great composer by his side. But his fright gave way to pleasure when Mendelssohn said, "Let me sit on the stool, my boy, and show you how the music should be rendered." The chorister at once gave up his place, and Mendelssohn sat down and played over the music and quickly taught the delighted boy how to make the best of his part.

You may be sure that there was a proud choir boy in Birmingham that day. Do you really understand why Mendelssohn helped him? It was because he saw that he was really doing his best. Do you have music lessons? If so, you have to do a great deal of practicing. Do you practice carefully or carelessly? If you want ever to be a really good musician, you must not only practice regularly, you must think what you are doing, and do your best all the time you are at the piano. I cannot promise you that even when you are playing over a piece of Mendelssohn the composer himself will come to you, but I can tell you of something that is much better. Whether it is music or lessons or work for mother, if boys and girls really do their best, even though they are not particularly successful, Jesus Christ draws near, and because they are doing their best he helps them to do better still. Try hard and do your very best, and see whether this is not so.—Christian World.

POTATOES AND PIANOS.

You wouldn't think that there is anything in common between potatoes and pianos, would you? But there is. For example, the Mayor of Indianapolis, Ind., found that the produce dealers were forcing the people of his city to pay about three times as much for potatoes as they cost on the farm. They were simply fleecing the public. As the poor people of his city almost live on potatoes he decided to stop it. He went to the farmers and bought potatoes in carload lots, shipped them to the city and sold them from wagons on the streets. He saved the citizens thousands of dollars and yet the farmers got just as much for their potatoes as before. The Mayor became very popular with the people, but not with the produce dealers.

It is the same way with pianos, for the Christian Sun Piano Club works on identically the same principle. Instead of going to the farm for carload lots of potatoes we go to the factory for eight carload lots (100) of pianos. If you see the point write for your copy of the Club catalogue, which explains how you can join with ninety-nine other subscribers and benefit by the big wholesale transaction. The Club will save you over one hundred dollars on your piano or self-player piano and give you better quality, stronger guarantees and easier terms. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Adv.

Mrs. Russell Sage a few days ago celebrated her 86th birthday and incidental to the occasion made out two checks and tore them from her book. One was in favor of the Syracuse Young Men's Christian Association and one was for the Young Women's Christian Association of the same place, and each was for $5,000. It is entirely in order to hope for Mrs. Sage many happy returns of the day.—Charlotte Observer.

THE HORSE'S
TEN COMMANDMENTS.

Thou shalt give me plenty of pure water to drink.

Thou shalt supply me with plenty of wholesome food.

Thou shalt keep me clean and well-groomed, for though a beast of burden, I am not without pride.

Thou shalt provide me with a straw bed, that I may rest well at night after my arduous labor of the day.

Thou shalt not over-load or over-drive me, for there is a limit to my strength and endurance.

Thou shalt not covet above thy horse, thy automobile, thy motorcycle, or anything else which is around thy place, for thy horse is a jealous animal.

Thou shalt look carefully after my health and welfare, that my days may be many and useful in thy service.

Thou shalt not use me for mere pleasure on Sunday after my strenuous week's work, for verily, thy horse needs rest.

Thou shalt not inflict any punishment upon me that thou wouldst not be willing to bear thyself, for God made me as well as you sensitive to the feeling of punishment.

Thou shalt not mix bitter medicine with my feed when I am run down in health, destroying my already weakened appetite, but O merciful master place BLACKMAN'S MEDICATED SALT BRICK, in my feed-box where I may lick it as nature directs and my system requires, that I may be made well and enabled to serve thee with every particle of my strength.

6lb Pair of Pillows Free!

We again make our unparalleled offer of free pillows with your order enclosing $10 for our famous 36-lb. feather bed. All made of new sanitary feathers; best picking and equipped with sanitary ventilators. Freight prepaid. Delivery guaranteed. Money back if not satisfied. Agents make big money. Turner & Cornwell, Box 43, Memphis, Tenn., or CHARLOTTE, N. C.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLE

LARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10 1/4 x 12 1/4 in.

Contains in addition to the Authorized Old and New Testaments, all the Sayings of Christ in Red; The Temple Library at Nippur; Names and Order of the Books of the Bible; Maps of Bible Lands; Pronouncing Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names; Comparative Systems of Scripture Chronology; History of the Period from the Close of the Sacred Canon of the Old Testament until the Times of the New Testament; Illuminated Marriage Certificate and Family Record; Chronological Index to the Bible; Concordance; Full-Page Dore Pictures, Half-Tones and in Colors, etc.

No. 820 P. R. L. Bound in IMITATION OF LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Gilt Titles, Marbled Edges. (Weight, 12 lbs.) $2.10

No. 822 P. R. L. Bound in SEMBLE LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Full Gilt Sides and Back, Gilt Edges. (Weight, 13 lbs.) 2.85

No. 823 P. R. L. Bound in AMERICAN MOROCCO, Padded Sides, Rounded Corners on Cover, Gold Side & Back Titles, Gold Edges. (Weight, 15 lbs.) 5.00

HOLMAN RED LETTER
SELF-PRONOUNCING
TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5 1/4 x 7 3/4 inches.

THE TYPE.

23 The Bāb-ŷ-lō' nī-ang, and all the Chāl-dē-ang, 'Pē' kōd, and Shō'a, and Kō'a, and all the Ās-ŷŷ'r-ī-ang with

No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges $2.50

No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges 3.00

Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENT
SELF-PRONOUNCING

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Daintiest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2 5/8 x 4 1/4 inches.

THE TYPE.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Je'us is the

No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges50

No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms75

Postage, 3 Cents.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

OXFORD
TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's Icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf.

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly.

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD
REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

"TO KNOW GOD."

Knowledge of God is not a mental expertness in the unlocking and understanding of mysteries. It is not a wealth of discovery made by the implements of logic. Logic may help to give a man a theology. It will never give him a religion. Mental conclusions and spiritual experiences are quite two different things. Reason may gather piles of knowledge concerning the historic Jesus, but reason alone will give me nothing about the risen Christ. I want to know the Jesus of history, but I want to have communion with the Christ of faith. Such knowledge of the Lord comes to us through the act and attitude of faith. Faith is more than a mental decision; it is a surrender of the will. It is more than a verdict; it is the execution of the verdict. It is of momentous importance to remember that the very core of faith is motion—a movement of the will toward the holy Lord. The act of faith, the yielding of the personal life to the God who is revealed to us in Jesus Christ our Lord. And the life of faith is the constant repetition of that act of surrender until the repeated acts become an attitude and every choice and will in life is stamped with the pleasure and fear of God.—J. H. Jowett.

DREAD OF AN OPERATION.

N. Manchester, Ind.—Mrs. Eva Bashore, of this place, says, "I suffered female misery of every description. Two doctors attended me, and advised an operation. I lost weight until I weighed only ninety pounds. I dreaded an operation, and, instead, began to take Cardui. In a short time, I gained 25 pounds, and feel as well as I ever did. Cardui, I am sure, saved my life." Cardui is today used in thousands of homes, where it relieves pain and brings back strength and ambition. It is a woman's medicine, for women's ailments, and you are urged to try it for your troubles. Ask your druggist. He will tell you about Cardui. Advt.

FARM FOR SALE

Known as the Cobb place, situated from a mile to two miles north of Elon College, surrounding a graded school and Christian church, containing 200 acres, well watered and well timbered, along and near to macadamized road. Offered as a whole; or in three sections, to-wit: home place, with two-story dwelling and outhouses, 70 acres; section along macadamized road 50 acres, 40 of which are in timber; third section on South side containing 80 acres, ten acres meadow. Prefer to sell privately. Terms to suit purchaser. One wishing to inspect place see W. H. McLean, Whitsett, N. C.

For prices and particulars address JOHN T. COBB, 38-4t.*Advt. Enfield, N. C.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

Save 40% to 60%

Reduce the cost of High-Grade Home Furnishings Through Factory Purchases

No. 906 Settee.
Made of Quarter-Sawn White Oak, finished Golden, Weathered, Fumed or Early English. Upholstered in Brown, Green or Red Genuine Spanish Leather or Black Genuine Leather. Good casters. Width, 70 in. balance description same as No. 904 Rocker. Listed Price, $53.20. Net Factory-to-You Price, $23.95.

THE "QUALITY" WAY PUTS LUXURIOUS FURNISHINGS IN YOUR HOME AT AFFORDABLE PRICES

Home Lovers of limited means have found themselves denied the pleasure and satisfaction of possessing real high quality furniture owing to the prohibitive prices charged by dealers. While unfortunate, these high prices are absolutely necessary in this expensive method of selling furniture through retail channels. The wholesaler must cover his expenses and make his profit. The retailer must not only cover his heavy selling expenses and make his profit, but must protect himself against bad debts and breakage by adding this percentage to the cost of each article. In short, this method just about doubles the cost to the purchaser.

QUALITY FURNITURE

DIRECT TO YOU

Here's the position we took. We believed that if we sold Quality Furniture direct from the factory to the home, cutting out the middlemen entirely and giving this big saving of fully one-half to the home owner, we could still make our usual manufacturer's profit, but sell ten times as much furniture. We felt sure that the intelligent home owner would be quick to grasp the opportunity to obtain for his home at such low cost, a grade of furniture theretofore entirely beyond his pocketbook. We were right—our rapidly increasing business and thousands of satisfied customers have proved the course a wise one.

WHAT CAN YOU BUY?

Beautiful Colonial Bedroom Suites in Mahogany, Circassian Walnut, Bird's Eye Maple and Quarter-Sawn Oak in all the popular finishes. Elegant and artistic styles such as Louis XVI, Sheraton, Adam and Mission. Parlor furniture, hall furnishings, and library furniture, dining room furniture, brass and iron beds, mattress, springs, refrigerators, kitchen cabinets, leather furniture of every description, Qualex Fibre furniture for the porch, Den or Club, also office furniture of every character. And on all You get the Manufacturer's Special Discount of 50 Per Cent.—the difference which usually goes to the middlemen.

OUR MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

We ship on approval. If after the most severe inspection, any article purchased of us does not prove exactly as represented, and the best value obtainable at the price, it is your unreserved privilege to return the goods at our expense and we will promptly refund your money in full. The very highest quality is essential to warrant such terms.

May we send you our Arts & Crafts Catalog?

You will incur no obligations to buy, we simply wish to show you in a more complete way the vast saving you can effect by purchasing Quality Furniture direct from our factory. Write at once—today!

QUALITY FURNITURE CO.

No. 1116 Quality Building, Grand Rapids, Mich.
(Formerly Grand Rapids Furniture Manufacturing Co.)

No. 904 Rocker.
Same general description as No. 906 Settee.
Sizes: Seat, 19-1/2 x 18-1/2 in.; Height, 38 in.; Height of back from seat, 21 in.; Width 29 in.; Rails, 5 in.; Posts, 2-1/4 in.; 4-1/2 in. wide flat arms.
Listed Price, $25.20. Net Factory-to-You Price, $11.35.

No. 905 Chair.
Same general description as No. 906 Settee.
Sizes: Seat, 19-1/2 x 18-1/2 in.; Height, 38 in.; Height of back from seat, 21 in.; Width, 29 in.; Rails, 5 in.; Posts, 2-1/4 in.; 4-1/2 in. wide flat arms.
Listed Price, $25.20. Net Factory-to-You Price, $11.35.

Cancer Cured at the Kellam Hospital

The record of the Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having cured to stay cured permanently, without the use of the Knife, Acids or X Ray, over 90 per cent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from Cancer which it has treated during the past eighteen years. We have been endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. Physicians treated free. KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St. Richmond, Va. Write for Literature.

Help your church paper by getting a friend to subscribe for The Christian Sun.

ECZEMA BOOK FREE.

The National Skin Hospital, located at 121 Main Street, St. Joseph, Mo., who treat skin diseases, only, have published a book of more than sixty pages which they are mailing free to anyone writing for it. It has many colored plates showing the different forms of skin diseases and tells how they can be treated at home. Anyone interested should write for it at once, enclosing 4c stamp for postage. Adv.

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days, usually gives entire relief in 15 to 45 days and effects cure 30 to 60 days. Write for trial treatment free. DR. H. B. GREEN'S SONS, Box 4, ATLANTA, GA.

A LEADING BOARDING SCHOOL

for 250 Students. Established 1884. Prepares for College, Business, Teaching, or for Life. Health, Character and Scholarship. Wide patronage. VERY REASONABLE RATES Each Student receives personal attention. School highly endorsed. (Location is near Greensboro, N. C.) For Beautiful Catalogue, Views, etc., address the President.

W. T. WHITSETT, PH. D.
WHITSETT, NORTH CAROLINA

The Christian Orphanage

REV. E. M. CARTER, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

E. M. Carter, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amount brought forward$2,350.69

DUES.

John Newman Denton ..$.10
S. E. Denton, Jr.10
Joseph Rabb Denton10

MONTHLY S. S. OFFERING.

Haw River$1.35
Rock Springs, Ala. 1.34
Greensboro, 1st 2.84
Catawba Springs 3.30
Lanett, Ala. 3.24
Durham 5.46
Timber Ridge, Va. 1.15
Henderson 2.75
Hines Chapel 1.00

SPECIAL.

Bethel, Va.$2.00
Tyler Bolling, work 2.00
Sale of hide 1.50
W. J. Lee 5.00 33.23

$2,383.92

Here it is, in a very few words, what the Orphanage is and the work we are endeavoring to do:

On a farm containing 114 acres, and on the North Carolina division of the Southern Railway, seventeen miles east of Greensboro and sixty-four miles west of Raleigh; across the railroad from Elon College and in less than a quarter of a mile of the Graded School. The authorities give free tuition.

Christian men and women engaged in this work have learned from the Bible that the care of the orphans and the dependent ones is "pure and undefiled religion," and that it is the duty of the church to look after and care for this very class. As to how this is best done, to the satisfaction of those who have planned and demonstrated the work in every conceivable form, is believed that much of it can be more satisfactorily done by organized effort than any other way.

The first task in the making of an Orphanage is to make a home for the homeless and to fill as nearly as possible the office of parenthood to the fatherless. Surely it is the Father's will for His church to more thoroughly understand His will, and then it shall be ready to do His will and every orphan child in its tender years shall have protection from an evil world. And surely it is the Father's will that the orphan child, destitute of estate, shall be educated and trained for citizenship and for the high purposes of Heaven.

"First the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear" bespeaks the growth and development of the child in physical, intellectual, moral and spiritual culture. If you would promote the growth of corn you must destroy all weeds and grass that would crowd it, shade it, and absorb the strength of the soil. Then you must protect it, too, from the careless tread of the animal and of the insect that would tramp it down and feed upon it. This is the purpose of each worker in trying to fill the offices of our institution. And, in all their work they are seeking the guidance of Heaven and the illuminating and strengthening presence of the Holy Spirit, for the children's religious life, their personal salvation, and the lofty ideals of honor and truth.

The Orphanage farm is an important feature of our institutional life. It helps to cheapen the cost of living, and gives the boys training in the essentials of farm life and is a choice place for the making of a man. To this we attribute the fact of our expense, in the support per child, being less than any institution of its kind in the Tri-State Convention. It is not being run on extensive scale but as nearly as we can, with the equipment we have, it is conducted in the latest and best methods.

As we all know, it is altogether a charitable institution. All the children have, comes by Free-will Offerings, which we receive from three sources: Thanksgiving, Monthly Sunday School Offering, and Personal Donations. To either of these I call your special attention. Do what you can in your school to supply the needs of these dependent ones.

Now, the fact of my having mailed a folder with these same words to all the Sunday schools is the reason for my copying it here. We are very anxious that our people become informed relative to the work and for them to be ready for the Thanksgiving Offering. What do you think of this? I want to reach the "two-thousand dollar" mark for the Thanksgiving this time. We received last year $1,151.23. I think we can get two thousand very easily.

All hands are busy this week, putting up the silo-corn. You know it must be a very busy time, when they have the superintendent hitched in, but he likes it all right.

Mr. G. Lawrence Cameron, of Lee County, is managing the farm for a while. He is taking on to the work nicely, and I think will fill the place very satisfactorily.

Rev. C. A. Boone was a very pleasant caller at our place this week, and presented to us one dozen cans of fruit. Thank you very much.

I wish you would look and see how the collections are falling off for the past three or four weeks. And look here; is your school among those who contribute monthly to aid in this work? If not, why not? I feel that it is a deserving cause and we can ill afford not to give our support.

E. M. CARTER, Supt.

McRae, Ga., Aug. 30, 1913.
Dear Uncle Emory: It is nearly time for school to begin. Two of us are going this year, and Joseph Rabb wants to go. He says he'll help mama work. Watermelons are almost gone. We have had some nice ones this year. We certainly enjoy "the good old summer time."

Here are our dimes, with much love for the dear boys and girls and you all at the Orphanage.

Fondly,
JOHN NEWMAN DENTON,
SIDNEY E. DENTON, JR.,
JOSEPH RABB DENTON.

I am glad you have had such a pleasant vacation, and wish for you a very prosperous year in school.

Now is a good time to subscribe.

FOURTH ANNUAL EXCURSION FROM ALL NORTH CAROLINA AND VIRGINIA POINTS ON SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

To Jacksonville and Tampa, Florida,
September 23, 1913.

Tickets will be on sale from all points on Seaboard Air Line Railway in North Carolina and Virginia September 23rd. Tickets returning will be limited to return so as to reach starting point by midnight of September 30th.

Regular train service should be used to Hamlet, from which point special train will start as section of No. 3, at 9:00 P. M. Vestibule coaches, electrically lighted Pullman sleeping cars.

Round Trip Rates

From	To Jacksonville	To Tampa
Richmond	$9.50	$11.50
Petersburg	9.00	11.50
Norlina	8.25	10.25
Portsmouth	9.75	11.75
Boykins	9.25	11.25
Weldon	8.50	10.50
Durham via Apex	7.50	9.50
Oxford	8.00	10.00
Raleigh	7.50	9.50
Wilmington to Laurinburg inclusive	7.50	9.50
Monroe to Hamlet inc.	7.50	9.50
Clio, S. C., to McColl inc.	7.50	9.00

Those desiring Pullman reservations on special from Hamlet should write at once to the undersigned. Any further information will be cheerfully furnished upon application to any Agent, or

M. LEVIN,
Traveling Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.
JOHN T. WEST,
Division Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

NATIONAL CONSERVATION EXPOSITION

Knoxville, Tenn., September 1st to
November 1st, 1913.

Southern Railway announces the sale of very low round trip tickets for the above occasion. Tickets will be on sale daily up to November 1st, 1913.

Ask your agent, or write the undersigned for complete information, Pullman reservations, etc.

J. O. JONES,
Traveling Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.
Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81	4:35 a. m.
No. 29	Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41	4:10 p. m.
No. 43	6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH.

No. 84	12:48 a. m.
No. 38	11:35 a. m.
No. 66	12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

YUM
FOR HEADACHE
"HASN'T FAILED YET"

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads,
Bill Heads,
Statements,
Envelopes
Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

The Southern Christian Publishing Company,

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

SPEND YOUR SUMMER

In The Glorious Mountains of Western North Carolina.

"The Land of the Sky"
"The Sapphire Country"

Where there is Health in Every Breath. The Climate is perfect the Year Round. In Spring and Summer the Region is Ideal.

Reached By

SOUTHERN RAILWAY

Solid Through Train, Including Parlor Car, between Goldsboro, Asheville and Waynesville Via Raleigh, Greensboro, Salisbury.

Other Convenient Through Car Arrangements.

SUMMER TOURIST TICKETS ON SALE UNTIL SEPTEMBER
30, 1913.

For complete information apply,
J. H. WOOD, D. P. A.,
Asheville, N. C.
R. H. DeBUTTS, D. P. A.,
Charlotte, N. C.
J. O. JONES, T. P. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

HOW TO OFFER A HELPFUL PUBLIC PRAYER.

Vivid to my memory is my first attempt at public prayer. It was in a little country school-house, where the good people of the hamlet had come together for a mid-week service. What I said, I could never afterwards recall. I only knew that I stammered out a few sentences, then grew speechless, and soon sat down in disgrace. My chagrin was the greater because I was the new school-teacher.

Did I resolve to give up then and there? Not for a moment. Nothing like that could so quickly silence me. My determination grew apace through the remainder of the meeting. Had the meeting lasted five minutes more, I would have been on my feet for a second attempt. Failing of that opportunity, I tried it again the next week, this time with little better success. And the week following, and the week after that, until at last I could get through without my mind's taking leave of me or my tongue's refusing to do duty.

I.

My first recommendation to others grows out of that painful experience. It is this: Begin public prayer, whatever the odds, and persist in the effort till that greatest barrier to all public speaking has been completely surmounted—self-consciousness. It is all a battle with self; and, when self has been mastered, the task is comparatively an easy one. Determination and practice are the best weapons for beginners to use in this warfare, and help one to win surprising victories. Unless you are willing to follow the age-long injunction, and "try, try again," there is nothing but defeat ahead of you.

II.

But there is one essential that has precedence over both these two conditions. The man who would pray to others' edification must first cultivate the divine acquaintance, have frequent and intimate conversation with "Him who sitteth upon the throne."

Many break down because it is a strange and disconcerting thing to find themselves talking to God. Once learn the secret of His presence, and you are not apt under any circumstances to lose it. It is like a road you have felled through the forest; when necessity is upon you, you will always take to that. Unless you know God, and are in the habit of talking to Him, you will make poor work of praying in public. It will be a speaking into the air, and your own words as they come back to you will be terrifying.

III.

If forgetting self be one of the primal requisites of public speech, forgetting others is a chief condition of public prayer. You must pray for God to hear rather than for man to overhear. Therefore let your inmost soul set itself to address Him. Put your heart in command, not your mind; and let your lips breathe only that which rises up within you there. Spurgeon's prayers were as wonderful as any I ever heard. They were unmistakably the outgoings of a soul in the presence of its God.

IV.

The wisdom of my next suggestion all will recognize. Aim to be both natural and simple. Don't try to form fine sentences, or to hunt within for great and glowing petitions. Pray for your ordinary needs; give thanks for the common mercies; implore the basal gifts of the Spirit,—at least when you first begin public prayer. Let your spirit soar as it will; but keep your feet or knees, as the case may be, upon the ground. Beware of prayer-tones, and, as far as possible, of glib phrases. Be yourself, your own sincere, simple, unaffected, undisguised self.

V.

Now as to the immediate aids to public prayer. Should a prayer be written out beforehand?

Not to be used as you have written it; for unless you are an exceptional person you will be sure to forget it, and thus make a worse bungle than otherwise; or you will drop into a constrained manner that will be easily detected, and will produce everything but a wholesome effect. Few can offer a committed prayer with any profit either to themselves or to others.

But by all means write out a prayer now and then for the sake of practice. It will school you in the art of addressing the Throne, and will do much to save you from the conventional and perfunctory. Were more to do this, they would never fall into the unfortunate habit so many have of repeating their name for God with every other petition, or indulge in so many repetitions and set phrases in their prayers.

VI.

Again, study the prayers of others. Buy a good book of prayers, and carry it around with you. It will enrich your spiritual life and at the same time tend to develop your power in prayer.

Of course, the best handbook on prayer is the Bible. Study its prayers. Saturate your minds with the language of the Psalms. Read Christ's high-priestly prayer recorded in St. John 17 into your very hearts. Then, when you go to utter your own soul, memory and experience will both serve you in good stead and help to prompt both the spirit and language of prayer.

VII.

And, last of all, make the sequel of every public prayer what it should be. Have you done poorly? Don't surrender to self-mortification. Put self out of it at once. As Gladstone used to say to people who were being criticised when they were doing their best, "Count it as discipline," and lift your thought to something else.

BUY A PIANO FOR YOUR HOME

Even those who think they can not own a piano may own one at a very low cost. As a boy, I longed for music, but had to forego that pleasure because of the high prices charged for pianos. My boyhood home would have been complete had there been a piano in it.

I can sell you a high grade piano with a 10 years guarantee by the Manufacturer, with high grade workmanship and finish for $150.00.

If the piano is not satisfactory after 30 days trial, money will be refunded.

S. L. ROSE, Goldsboro, North Carolina

This Mill Is Built to Grind More Meal and Grind It Better Than Any Other Mill Made

FROM the strong, rigid frame to the genuine pebble stone grit buhrs, every detail shows superiority in design and workmanship, and great care to secure a mill that will always be a money maker to its owner and never a disappointment. It is the

Live
Local Agents
Wanted

Williams Portable Mill

Service is the prime idea. The automatic cleaning device, the oil trap, patent buhr protector, new sifter, modern type ball bearings, and latest and best feeding device, all mean long and perfect service. The best mill in the world, the mill for you. Sold with absolute satisfaction or money back guarantee.

Ask your dealer or write us at once for illustrated catalogue and full particulars. Don't wait.

WILLIAMS MILL MANUFACTURING CO.,
41 Main Street. Ronda, North Carolina.

HIGH PRICES FOR HOGS

Hogs are selling at a high price, and will continue to do so in the future. Dead hogs bring no money to the farmer.

Do not let your hogs die. Cure them of Cholera, keep the worms out of them, keep their blood in good condition, and make them thrifty by the use of the Remedy manufactured by The Snoddy Remedy Company, of Alton, Ill. A $5.00 case cures 50 hogs. We want to tell you how to do it. Send for our Free Booklet of incalculable value to the farmer. Free for the asking. We want agents everywhere.

SNODDY REMEDY COMPANY, 121 Alby Street, Alton, Ill.

MEDICAL COLLEGE OF THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA CHARLESTON, S. C.

Owned and Controlled by the State.
Medicine and Pharmacy.

Session opens October 1st, 1913, ends June 4th, 1914. Unsurpassed clinical advantages offered by the new Roper Hospital, one of the largest and best equipped hospitals in the South. Extensive outdoor and Dispensary service under control of Faculty. Ten appointments each year for graduates in medicine for hospital and Dispensary.

service. Medical and Pharmaceutical Laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped. Department of Physiology and Embryology in affiliation with the Charleston Museum. Practical work for medical and pharmaceutical students a special feature. Eight full-time teachers in the laboratory branches.

For Catalogue Address

OSCAR W. SCHLEETER, Registrar,
Corner Queen and Franklin Streets, CHARLESTON, S. C.

On the other hand, have you done well? Beware of pride and self-congratulation, which will rob you of all sense of the sanctity of prayer, and make you less capable of offering public prayer than if yours had been an inglorious failure.

And in any case seek your knees at the earliest convenience, and commit the effort, failure or success, to God, confessing its shortcomings of spirit and form, asking God to accept and answer its petitions and bless its use to the spiritual good of all who overheard it, and lifting the disciples' petition so consciously appropriate to all who seek the divine favor, "Lord, teach us to pray." Mazzini was right when he bade his

NEW FEATHER BEDS ONLY $6.50. Full weight 36 pounds. New, clean and odorless. 6-pound Pillows $1.08 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for FREE catalogue. Address SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 71, Greensboro, N. C.

A BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY.

The Mint Cola Co. offers splendid opportunities for you to go into the Bottling Business. A chance to earn Two or Three Thousand Dollars per year on small capital. Write MINT COLA CO., Salisbury, N. C. Adv

STOPS TOBACCO HABIT.

Elders' Sanitarium, located at 1017 Main St., St. Joseph, Mo., has published a book showing the deadly effect of the tobacco habit, and how it can be stopped in three to five days.

As they are distributing this book free, anyone wanting a copy should send their names and address at once.

soldiers dread the morrow of battle more than its eve.—Rev. John Balcom Shaw, D. D., in Christian Endeavor World.

HOW EDITORS GET RICH.

A grat many persons have wondered how editors all get rich so quickly and with such small efforts. One of them who has grown rich has at last told the secret of it. He outlines it as follows:

"A nursery firm will send us a 25-cent rose bush for only $5 worth of advertising.

"For running a six-inch advertisement for one year, we can get a gross of pills.

"About one dozen firms are wanting to give us shares in gold mines for advertising.

"For $40 worth of advertising and $25 cash we can own a bicycle. The wheel sells at just $12.

"A fellow out west wants us to run a lot of advertising for him for nothing, and if it brings results he may become a customer.

"For running $12 worth of locals we can get two tickets admitting us to a circus in the city and pay our own fare on the railroad.

"A gun firm wants us to run $19 worth of advertising and then send $10 in exchange for a shotgun. Such a gun would retail at about $6.

"By running $50 worth of advertising and sending $25 to an Atlantic City firm we will be given a deed to a lot. When the tide is in, the lot stands six feet under water.

"When a man dies, the undertaker gets from $75 to $150 to bury him, and the editor gets nothing for publishing his obituary. —Richmond Times Dispatch.

YOU CAN WRITE LETTERS LIKE THESE.

The following will give you a good idea of what kind of a letter you will be able to write after you have secured your piano or self-player piano through the Christian Sun Piano Club:

Charlotte, N. C., Dec. 28, 1912.

"We are all delighted with the piano. It is beautifully finished and has such a sweet tone. All of our friends, including a musician, pronounce it a most splendid piano. I am very much pleased with the Club Plan, because it enables people of moderate means to obtain a fine piano at a small cost each month."

MARY ELLIOTT.

Blythewood, S. C., May 2, 1912.

"The lovely piano came yesterday. Am just delighted with it: so are my musical friends. The tone is so full and sweet, and the case is lovely."

MRS. MAY W. FARMER.

Waycross, Georgia.

"The Ludden & Bates Piano that I purchased of you continues to give entire satisfaction. Its tones are exceedingly sweet and do not give way under the changes of season and climate, but preserve the same roundness and fullness as at first."

W. E. DEMPSTER.

Leesburg, Florida.

"I am pleased with the Club Plan and more than pleased with my piano. Its tone is the sweetest and construction perfect. I would advise anyone desiring a piano to join the Club and get the best. I cannot say enough in regard to the Club Plan and piano."

MRS. T. F. TODD.

Gaylesville, Alabama.

"Club piano received in good order. We are well pleased with it. Better and nicer than pianos sold here for from three hundred and fifty to five hundred dollars. Our little town is pretty well stocked with pianos of different makes, and it is considered that we have the best piano in town. We thank you for your selection and prompt shipment."

J. R. WILLIAMS.

Vaiden, Mississippi.

"I am perfectly delighted with my piano. I think the Club Plan a capital idea."

MRS. RUFUS B. SMITH.

Letters like the above are received by the Club every day. They come from all parts of the South. Everybody is delighted with the Club and not a single complaint has occurred, in fact the Club is so organized that

Elon College

For Both Men and Women

Elon College, North Carolina

For a quarter century Elon College has rendered the best families of the South a paragon service in providing young men and young women with the best mental, moral and physical training under positive Christian influences, tho entirely free from sectarianism.

Karl Lehman, of Boston, testifies that "of all the Colleges I have visited as International Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor during six years, the spirit of Elon College appeals to me as most genuinely Christian." Elon College is situated in the delightful hill country, a section unsurpassed for beauty, with a climate far-famed for its healthfulness. There is no medical fee, for there is no necessity for it. Its campus, comprising twenty-five acres of native oak and hickory, shrubbery, winding walks and driveways, is one of the most beautiful in the South and, with its two unsurpassed gymnasias, provides abundant opportunity for recreation and relaxation.

The splendid equipment of Elon College was only made possible through liberal endowment. It maintains seven elegant new buildings, especially designed and appointed for college work. These are furnished with every known convenience; steam heat, electric lights, running water, baths and sewerage. The College plant is conservatively valued at $300,000.00.

Elon College is distinctly a high-grade institution, though its charges are moderate. Its graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great universities without examination. Its literary and scientific courses are arranged in various departments which lead to the degrees of Master of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Pedagogy, and a three-years' course leading to the degree of Licentiate of Instruction, designed especially for teachers. This institution affords special opportunities for training in Piano, Voice, Expression, Fine Arts, Normal Training, Physical Culture and Commercial Practice.

The Faculty consists of twenty-one specialists: men and women selected not only for their superior teaching ability, but also for their exemplary character and manners.

The student body numbers nearly four hundred and comes from thirteen states.

The lowest Rates in the South, only $131 to $191 per College session of ten months. Fall Term always opens the first Wednesday in September. For full descriptive catalogue and view-book, address

President W. A. Harper, LL. D.,

Elon College, N. C.

Box 88

DR. J. H. BROOKS,

Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

you can not possibly be dissatisfied.

Write for your copy of the Club catalogue today. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Adv.

WINTERSMITH'S
CHILL TONIC
 Makes You Immune From Malaria
 in all its forms. Contains no arsenic or opiates; pleasant to take and harmless, for children as well as adults. Sold and guaranteed by your druggist.
OLDEST AND BEST Arthur Peter & Co., Louisville, Ky., General Agents.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun. $1.50.

PUBLICITY IN THE TEMPERANCE CAUSE.

A means of pushing the temperance campaign that has proved its effectiveness in France is the poster. It has already been adopted in some places in the United States, but it deserves much wider use than has yet been made.

There is temperance literature to be had by those that are interested and honest enough to seek it or to read it when it is put within their reach. But the newspapers, with their columns open to the misstatements of the liquor trade's press-agents, are generally too crowded for anything in favor of the cause of temperance which can offer no bribes in the shape of full-page advertisements. The money that floods the bar makes it easy to affront the traveller on the electric car with invitations to intoxication, and to disfigure the country with bill-boards flaunting the names of all brands of liquors. Publicity is not hard to get when it brings an income measured by the billion; it is a different matter when what is sought is not the dollars of men, but their welfare.

The success of the present campaign for temperance turns largely on pressing the facts home on the indifferent. Much may be learned from the enemy; and ingenious, striking, and attractive posters widely distributed may do great service in keeping before the people some of the most telling truths.—Burgess, in C. E. World.

MIGHT BE DEAD TODAY.

Garden City, Kans.—In a letter from Mrs. James Hamner, of this city, she says, "I firmly believe that I would not be alive today, if it were not for Cardui. I had been a sufferer from womanly troubles all my life, until I found that great remedy. I feel that I can't praise it too highly." Are you a woman, suffering from some of the troubles to which a woman is peculiarly liable? If so, why not try Cardui, the woman's tonic? You can rely on Cardui. It is purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and acts gently but surely, without bad after-effects. 'Twill help you. Ask your druggist. ad

One of the stories around town concerns a man who caught a heavy cold during the changeable weather and concluded to take a spell in bed. His wife came into the room and said:

"Jim, there's a visitor for you."
"I'm too sick to see anybody," Jim growled.
"But it's our pastor."
"Thunder! I ain't sick enough to see him."—Newark Star.

—We are just 70 years behind the average, we of the Christian church are, in giving to Christian missions. We wonder who is responsible for this unpardonable condition. See "His Eyes Opened" by Rev. A. W. Andes on another page in this week's Sun.

No End of Good Reasons

UNLESS you buy carelessly, these are a few of the features that will lead you to the I H C line when you buy a hay press. I H C presses are provided with self-feeders, eliminating dangerous foot-feeding and increasing capacity by even operation; the bale chamber is of just the right height to permit convenient tying of the bales; the bale tension and roller tucker make for uniform, compact and attractive bales, the toggle joint plunger is the most powerful and simple compressing device ever used on a hay press—though producing greatest pressure, they require least power to operate. I H C presses bale more hay with less power in a given length of time than any other press of equal size.

I H C Hay Presses

Motor and Horse Power

cannot be surpassed in convenience, durability, simplicity, and economy of operation. They will put your loose hay into neat, compact bundles, occupying but one-fifth the former space, increasing your available barn room, and making it possible to sell your hay in distant localities at the highest market prices.

You will find three sizes, 14 x 18, 16 x 18, and 17 x 22-inch bale chamber, in the I H C hay press line, baling at a most conservative estimate, from six to sixteen tons per day. If your choice is a horse power press, you will be interested by its special features, the pull power principle, compound leverage, and the low step-over. If you desire a motor press, study the durable power jack. Remember, too, that this is an all year round machine, for the engine may be detached and used as a regular portable power plant to run saw, pump, cream separator, churn, feed grinder, electric light plant, repair shop, etc.

Have your local dealer show you the line of I H C hay presses and explain their many features to you. Get catalogues from him, or, write the

International Harvester Company of America
(Incorporated) U S A

Chicago

MALARIA DRIVEN OUT

Chills and Fever quickly cured and the entire system built up, restored appetite, clear brain, good digestion, renewed energy if you take

JOHNSON'S TONIC

The warranted remedy, contains no alcohol or harmful ingredients. Liquid 25c and 50c, Chocolate Coated Tablets 25c at dealers or direct. Address "Johnson's Tonic," Savannah, Ga.

"Where There's a Will There's a Way"

LAW

STUDY AT HOME

Hundreds of Dixie's Future Lawyers and Expert Legal Men Will Be Trained By Mail.

Many young Southern men cannot afford to attend a resident law school or give up their work to gain a law education. There are hundreds of these ambitious young men today—some farming, some clerking and some in business for themselves—who in the privacy of their own homes during leisure hours, are taking a course in law, upon which the greatest resident school in the world could not improve. If you have not had a chance to go to school, learn about the famous

LA SALLE HOME STUDY LAW COURSE

Let us tell you how to utilize your spare moments in preparing yourself for a great profession—how to stand and pass the bar examinations in your state—how the greatest course in law procedure ever prepared will fit you for the Bar and make you a success in business life.

VALUABLE LAW GUIDE FREE

Our big 112 page prospectus shows what we have done for thousands of others and what we can do for you. It is a complete guide in law study, and tells everything about it in clear, simple terms. Write for it, and take the first step toward securing a diploma and the degree of LL. B. Write at once.

La Salle Extension University
Dept. 84, Chicago, Ill.

SAVE YOUR CLOTHING

We can help you. Thousands of dollars worth of Women's and Men's clothing is every year thrown away for no fault except stain, or streak, or spot that would readily yield to our Dry Cleaning process and at a merely nominal expense.

WE DRY CLEAN AND DYE SUCCESSFULLY

GENTLEMEN'S	- Suits - Overcoats - Vests - Trousers - Coats - Ties - Hats (Cleaned)	LADIES'	- Coat Suits - Skirts - Waists - Dresses - Sweaters - Gowns, Evening and Reception - Wrappers
-------------	--	---------	---

We Clean and Dye household Draperies, Plumes, Gloves. We clean Automobile Coats, Furs, Rugs and Corsets in a superior manner. We use the genuine French method of Dry Cleaning. We are responsible and experienced. We refer to any Bank or citizen of Greensboro.

COLUMBIA LAUNDRY CO.
106 Fayetteville Street
GREENSBORO, N. C.

INCREASE YOUR GRAIN YIELD.

Agricultural experts tell us that the quantity of grain grown per acre depends primarily upon an even stand of seed in planting. It is, therefore, of the greatest importance to use a thoroughly dependable seeder.

In the Farquhar Pennsylvania we offer a Drill especially adapted to Southern conditions. This machine sows all kinds of grain including rust-proof oats with absolute regularity. The grass seeder can be used either in front or behind the boots. Fertilizer attachments of the positive force feed variety. Light of draft, durable—an implement that can be profitably employed on every farm.

Big new Catalog describing the Pennsylvania seeder mailed free on request. A postal will bring you copy of this instructive book along with full particulars of our special introductory proposition.

For your own good, write us to-day.
A. B. FARQUHAR CO., Ltd.,
Box 306 York, Pa.

MORPHINE WHISKEY and TOBACCO

HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARCROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

FEVERISHNESS AND RHEUMATISM
Suffer from Malarious conditions, Chills, fevers, try HICK'S SAPHORIN. It cures the fever and relieves the aching. Liquid—10, 25 and 50 cents per Dose. Success

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Ingredients: Sulphur, Glycerin, Quinin, Sodium Chloride, Capsicum, Sage, Alcohol, Water, Perfume. All skillfully combined. Falling hair ceases, dandruff disappears, hair growth promoted. Does not color.

J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Lancaster.

Near Salem Chapel, Forsythe county, N. C., Sept. 11, 1913, Sarah J. Lancaster, in the seventy-fifth year of her age. She had been a worthy member of Salem Chapel Christian church about forty years. She was kind and loving to all, and will be missed by all who knew her. Funeral and burial services at Bethlehem M. E. church, conducted by Rev. J. W. Holt.

J. W. HOLT.

Haizlip.

Near Salem Chapel, Forsyth County, N. C., Sept. 11, 1913, Hardin Haizlip, aged 89 years and 7 days. He was married to Christina Dalton Dec. 22, 1857. To them were born twelve children, 50 grand children and eight great grandchildren. He was a member of Salem Chapel Christian church for 53 years. Truly a good man, at a ripe old age, has fallen on sleep. He expressed perfect willingness to go when ever the Master should call. Funeral and burial services conducted by Rev. J. W. Holt.

J. W. HOLT.

McCauley.

Near Union Ridge, N. C., Sept. 10, 1913, Levi H. McCauley, in the sixty-eighth year of his age. He was married to Eliza A. Fonville Feb. 5, 1874. His wife, three sons, two daughters, four brothers, two sisters and four grandchildren are left to mourn his death. He was a member of Union Christian church about 49 years. He served in the Civil War, Co. C, 40th regiment N. C. troops. He was an honest, industrious and worthy citizen, and will be greatly missed in his community. Funeral and interment at Union church conducted by Revs. T. W. Strowd and Rev. J. W. Holt.

J. W. HOLT.

Dewell.

Timothy R. Dewell was born Oct. 11, 1849, and died Aug. 31, 1913, aged 63 years, ten months and 20 days. He was born and lived in Surry County until his death. He married Miss Mary Bain Nov. 5, 1877, and to this union two children were born; one died when quite young, the other, an afflicted son, lives with his mother. The deceased suffered from consumption for a short time and soon yielded to its destructive power.

He was buried at Union Christian church, Surry Co., Va., Sept. 1, 1913, by the writer. The community extend sympathy to the bereaved widow and afflicted son.

JAS. L. FOSTER.

McCauley.

A good man has gone, another veteran has fallen.

L. H. McCauley, of Union Ridge, N. C., was born May 8, 1846, and died Sept. 10, 1913, aged 67 years, 4 months and 2 days. Bro. McCauley joined Union church in 1863 and remained a member to his death. He was for some time secretary and treasurer of the church and filled the office well.

There was never a truer man to his convictions than Bro. McCauley. He always spoke his honest convictions. He was a true soldier.

He leaves a wife, two daughters, three sons, two sisters, four brothers, many relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Funeral services by Rev. J. W. Holt and the writer in the presence of a large congregation. The body was laid to rest in Union cemetery Sept. 11, 1913. May God bless and comfort the sorrowing ones and help them to meet him in heaven.

THOS. W. STROWD.

Tatum.

Mr. Allen Tatum was born May 13, 1845, and died Aug. 27, 1913, aged 68 years, 3 months and 14 days. He had lived for a long time near Disputanta, Va., and was buried at the family burying ground on the Tatum farm Aug. 2, 1913, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. He had been a member of Newville Baptist church for about 15 years and was a deacon in same. He was one of a family of seven children, three of whom are dead and three survive him. His wife died nine years ago. He leaves the following children to mourn their loss: W. A. Tatum, E. N. Tatum, Mrs. Mollie Wood, Mrs. George W. Bain, Mrs. J. F. Davis, Mrs. D. S. Hinnaman, Mrs. W. L. Hall, David A. Tatum, Harvey Tatum and Thomas Tatum.

His was a quiet life. The messenger of death came suddenly, as he lived only about 20 minutes after the first stroke of paralysis. The friends of the large family extend sympathy. Burial services by the writer.

JAS. L. FOSTER.

Drewry.

Martha Elizabeth Drewry was born August 28, 1873, and died August 28, 1913, being forty years old. She leaves to mourn their loss her father, Augustus G. Drewry, (her mother, Martha L. Drewry, died Jun., 1913), brothers and sisters, Emmette T. Drewry, Mrs. Annie Sue Cooper, Miss Fannie May Drewry, Jas. A. Drewry, William H. Drewry; also many relatives and friends join in sorrow in the loss of this good woman. She professed religion and joined Spring Hill church when quite young and remained a faithful, loyal member till death.

She was a member of the Fellowship Class in Spring Hill Sunday school and Treasurer of the Ladies' Aid Society. Her life was one of humble service to others. She was loved by all who knew her and her influence was uplifting wherever felt. In the departure of this splendid Christian woman, the family, the church and community have a heavy loss. The handsome flowers at the grave spoke words of the highest esteem and love of relatives and friends. She was buried in Spring Hill cemetery in the presence of a large number of people who had come to pay their last tribute of respect, Aug. 30, 1913. May the Lord sustain those who hearts are heavy.

JAS. L. FOSTER.

Gunter.

Mrs. M. A. Gunter, wife of J. M. Gunter, died July 20, 1912, at the home of her son, I. M. Gunter, near Broadway, N. C., aged about 73 years. She joined the M. E. Church when quite young, and later joined the Christian church at Shallow Well, with her husband, of which she lived a consistent member until death. She was married to J. M. Gunter about forty years ago.

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work.
We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.
Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles,
Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

— HIGH CLASS —

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

She leaves five children to mourn their loss, as follows: Mrs. B. J. McFarland, of Jonesboro; Mrs. A. T. McFarland, of Aberdeen; Miss Myrtie Gunter, Messrs. J. W. and I. M. Gunter, of Broadway, N. C. She was a kind and loving mother and never tired in doing for the comfort and pleasure of her children. She was a kind neighbor, always ready to lend a helping hand to anyone in time of need. She loved her church paper, The Christian Sun, and had been a subscriber ever since the first copy was published.

In the absence of her pastor, Rev. J. B. Willis conducted the funeral service at Shallow Well church, after which she was tenderly carried to the cemetery by a body of Odd Fellows, which order she especially loved. She will be missed in her community, but not as in the home. We shall indeed miss our dear mother, and shall seek to meet her in that better land.

Her daughter, Janie McFarland.
Jonesboro, N. C.

Drewry.

On August 28th, 1913, Martha E. Drewry was called from her earthly home to an eternal home, after an extreme illness of about four weeks. And the twilight shades were deepening, and the daylight of her birthday faded away. "God's finger touched her, and she slept," to awaken and celebrate the birthday in heaven. What a glorious birthday it must have been, that first day in heaven, with Jesus and mother.

She was the eldest daughter of Mr. A. G. Drewry, of Sussex county, Va.,

CANCER FREE TREATISE
The Leach Sanatorium, Indianapolis, Ind., has published a booklet which gives interesting facts about the cause of Cancer, also tells what to do for pain, bleeding, odor, etc. Write for it today, mentioning this paper.

and was the stay and comfort of a home, consisting of a father and several brothers and sisters who mourn their loss as only those who know and love can mourn. Her willing hand and gentle step are missed, her seat at the table is vacant, and the home is sad and lonely.

Mattie Drewry lived to do good and minister to others, and truly her life was a sacrifice. Having an afflicted mother, for eleven years she readily gave up her entire young life and girlhood, and tenderly and lovingly nursed her until her death, something over one year ago. The devoted and loyal child never ceased to grieve and pine for the dear mother, and the great sorrow she bore weighed her down, and her decline has been rapid. She has gone from our midst to be with mother.

Mattie Drewry had been a member of Spring Hill Christian church since her childhood and was a faithful and useful Christian. She was one of the truest and most faithful friends, a patient, modest Christian. The large congregation of sorrowing friends at her burial gave evidence of the high esteem in which she was held, and as I gazed upon the beautiful flowers placed by loving hands upon her sleeping form, I thought how typical of the pure and beautiful life she had lived.

One Who Loved Her.

The Christian Sun

State Library

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., SEPTEMBER 24, 1913

NO. 39

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

With All the Heart.

When a man professes to love God with all his heart and keeps his pocket-book closed to the calls of God's work, put that man down as a deceiver, or as one deluded. The love of God that can't penetrate the purse is certainly not strong enough to say, "I love God with all my heart."

Saving the Waste.

Thomas A. Edison, electrician and inventor, is reported as saying that within the next decade non-carbonized inks will be used in printing—inks that will bleach—and papers that are run through the press and printed upon can, by a bleaching process, be used several times. Only inks that can bleach will be used. After being printed upon and read, papers will be returned to the print shop, made white again by chemicals, used again and so on through a long period of time. This may be possible, for the progress of civilization is measured by the amount of saving the people of any age are capable of effecting. But if much of the paper does not receive better print than at present, this invention would prove a curse and not a blessing.

The Yoke.

The yoke, though an emblem of burden-bearing, is made to lighten the load and make it possible, not to increase and make it unbearable. The yoke then becomes an emblem of ease, not of torture. The yoke helps to arrange and place the burden so that it may be borne. If the burden that the ox draws by means of the yoke were placed on his back it would crush and kill him. Just so. And if the burdens of this life, the loads that we mortals are to carry, were placed upon our backs, they would crush and kill us. But the Master says put on the yoke, not to make matters hard, but to make them easy. "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; * * * for my yoke is easy, and my burden is light." The happiest, freest, cheeriest people on earth are those who are yoked with Christ. Such a yoke is not a token of bondage, but of freedom, liberty, life. We heartily indorse this teaching from The Outlook: "No children are so unfortunate as those who are victims of unintelligent affection: whose wills are never trained, whose purposes are never crossed, who never bear the yoke of discipline, and who are allowed to grow into men and women without self-control, or the ability to concentrate and direct their own powers. This evasion of the authority imposed on fathers and mothers is a prolific source of crime, disorder and misery."

Tears.

Tears have been the tokens of deep emotion, anguish, pain, pleasure. All through the Bible they are spoken of as expressions of these emotions. Three thousand years ago, antiquarians tell us, it was fashionable for women, on their social calls, or attending religious gatherings, to carry along their "tear bottles." The Psalmist speaks of these (Psalm 56:8): "Put thou my tears into thy bottle." David speaks of tears more often than any other biblical writer, declaring in one place (Psalm 42:3): "My tears have been my meat day and night." David lived amid an emotional people, and in a time of intense feeling. But it is becoming fashionable now not to shed tears on any occasion, as being too silly, simple, senseless. In many places it is deemed out of place and unbecoming to shed tears even at the funeral, or over the dead body, of a dear, beloved one. But emotionalism is not a sign of weakness. Tears are not the tokens of childishness. It would be difficult to find a stronger, stouter, bolder man than David, "whose tears had been his meat day and night." That will be a hard-hearted day, and an indifferent and stubborn people, when we shall no longer have the tear that flows from deep emotions expressed.

Two Governors.

"Governor Craig's Sunday school class numbered sixty-five last Sunday. The boys say they are going to make it one hundred." So read a news note in a Raleigh paper the other day. When one reads in contrast to this the blasphemous utterances of Governor Cole Blease of South Carolina, and his railery against the churches, "that he used to go to church until he found out their hypocrisy," and such, one is made to wonder why this wide difference and infinite contrast between the choice of the people of two adjoining States. Governor Craig is a man of chaste language, dignified bearing, irreproachable moral habits and blameless Christian conduct. South Carolina's governor does not seem to hesitate to use, even in public address, profane language, his bearing seems to be that of the swaggerer and the bully, and if he has any aggressive attitude toward the moral and religious questions and issues of his State he is not so reputed. The contrast brings to thought the words of the proverb: "When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice: but when the wicked beareth rule, the people mourn" (Prov. 29:2). All North Carolinians have a right to rejoice in the splendid life, the high moral tone, the exalted character of their governor. We have never yet met a South Carolinian who was not heartily ashamed and sorely humiliated at the character and conduct of their chief executive.

High Cost of Living.

Congress has investigated, economists have written, and politicians have talked, but the high cost of living is just as high as ever, and keeps on going higher. Of course. It is to go higher yet. The secret has been found all right, but the disease has not been remedied. The high cost of living is the cost of high living. The comforts of yesterday are the actual necessities of today, and the luxuries of yesterday are the comforts of the present. "A chimney to a man's house, and a shirt on a man's back," historians tell us, were regarded as luxuries in the Middle Ages. We have advanced some since then. The question of the high cost of living is neither political, social, or civil: it is individual. It is a question of how far and how fast we mortals will go in the hunger-craze. "The gold hunger, the land hunger, and the love of adventure have had their devotees." Have them yet. Men's minds as well as their bodies hunger. When we Americans become willing to advance moderately, live in a modest way, deny ourselves of luxuries we cannot afford to pay for, lay by some small savings for the time of pinch and the rainy day that will come, make simple piety a part of all our pleasure and pursuits, we shall settle the question of the cost of living high. The cost of living high without being able to live high is that from which we suffer most. There never was as good a time for a man to live and make and save as now.

More Spiritual.

The Protestant Episcopal Church is much stirred over a proposed change of name. Factions have sprung up in the church and there are being said some wise, and then some very unwise words about the change. The claim is that the "High Church" element is anxious to adopt a name that will lead the church nearer to the Catholics so that there shall be union between Protestants and Catholics. That charming Virginia writer, Thomas Nelson Page, speaks to the point, himself a representative of the Episcopal Church, in this wise: "We should apply our hearts to the wisdom of making the Church, by whatever name it may be known, more alive, more spiritual—broader, deeper, higher, nearer to man and nearer to God. While the flock is perishing the shepherds are tinkering at the tag over the gate. * * * All this tinkering with the name of the Church is an assault upon Protestantism. I simply want to say that I am a Protestant, and I propose, please God, to remain Protestant. The people of this Church are Protestants, and we say to the clergy solemnly that though they may vote a change of names, they can not take the people with them. They will simply split the Church." "Rome has no sister. She only thinks of herself as a mother." What the church needs today is to become more spiritual, more aggressive in matters that pertain to deepening and broadening the spiritual life. In this Dr. Page is preeminently correct. And if the church is to be this, as all history, ancient and modern, as all reason of men and angels would declare, the church must be Protestant and not Roman Catholic.

Let us continue to preach Christ and him crucified. Let those preachers who have an inclination to discuss side issues leave these alone for a while and let all bend every energy toward spiritual development. It is of no great moment or benefit what one's views may be on the millennium or the mysteries of revelation. The salvation of souls is of moment and benefit.

EDITORIAL

GYPSY SMITH.

It was our pleasure to hear Gypsy Smith preach three times last week. The trip was made to Danville, a distance of sixty-five miles by rail, for that purpose only. We found that others had journeyed as far, many very much farther, on the same account.

It was worth being there. The trip was not in vain. Gypsy Smith is all that is claimed for him, and more.

First of all here is a man of deep and thorough and abiding devotion, consecration, spirituality. He lives close to God, and gets his inspiration direct and first hand. His heart is in his work, and he depends on God. His faith is as strong, and as simple, as a child's. Religion is a matter of serious concern to him and he regards God as a real Father, dealing lovingly and mercifully, but firmly and justly, with His children. Gypsy Smith takes his religion straight and believes with all his heart in Father, Son and Holy Ghost. If you are looking for a man of the Bible, and conservatively orthodox, you will find him here.

But there is much besides all this to make the Gypsy interesting. All the elements of nature are combined in him to make an orator. First of all he has the musical voice. You would rather hear him talk than hear other people sing; there is more melody in it. Every word he utters is musical. He can talk but a little above a whisper and be heard easily by three thousand people. There is a certain plaintive melody of his voice that is irresistible.

He has the orator's eye. It looks everywhere. It sees everything. It penetrates while it persuades and catches while it charms. It has the twinkle of wit one moment and flashes unquenchable fire the next.

He has the orator's face, well formed, shapely, powerful and purposeful in every lineament. And he has the orator's hand. An artist never painted a more perfect hand, small, spare, tapering gracefully to the finger tips, and intelligent in every outline.

Here then is an orator, a modern Demosthenes delivering philippics against sin and evil and shame; a Cicero pointing out the weak spots in human society and the rebels in social life. He knows his mother tongue. His enunciation is perfect, his language is classic. His methods appeal to the sane, the sober, the refined, the cultured, the thinking.

Here then is a man for whom nature has done much. God sought him and found him out. And from that day the Gypsy has been doing his best to improve his gifts and do his best for Christ and the Kingdom. He has consecrated all his powers of body, mind, heart, soul to the service of God, and God has made of him a mighty power for righteousness in the world. Thousands of people, limited only by the capacity of his audience room, hang upon his words as he tells the simple story of the gospel; a story that has been told for these two thousand years, but the story that is the most interesting in the telling and in the hearing that man's voice ever uttered or man's ear ever heard. People are not tired of the gospel story. They want more of it, and told from consecrated lips.

THE NEW ORPHANAGE SUPERINTENDENT.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees called for the purpose last Friday, September 19th, Rev. J. O. Cox, of Durham, was unanimously elected to succeed Rev. E. M. Carter as Superintendent. Bro. Carter had previously tendered his resignation to the Board and at his earnest solicitation the same had been accepted. His year is out December 1st, but he will continue in charge as he himself and the incoming Superintendent may be able to arrange. Bro. Carter has made an honest, conscientious, faithful official and retires from the position with the esteem of the Board and management, and upon his own preferment. His desire is to return to the active pastorate from which work he came to the Orphanage.

Rev. J. O. Cox is well known among the brotherhood, and besides being a man of great personal piety is held in high repute as a safe and sound financier. He not only handles funds with economy but is an adept in securing funds to handle for a good cause. The Board was led to believe that Bro. Cox could and would handle the institution with great safety, security and success, and would carry forward this work of worthy charity for the church. He has had the institution at heart from the beginning, and no man has been more interested in its welfare than he.

The manager of the farm closed his work with the institution some two weeks ago, and Superintendent Cox will nominate and the Board elect his successor. Mr. Woodward made an efficient and very capable farmer, greatly developing and improving farm and team and dairy and it will be no easy matter to find a man as energetic and efficient as he.

There are more inmates of the Home now than ever before, and the work there goes well. We need more room, and at an early date must have it. Three applications had to be declined at the last Board meeting on the ground that we had not now the place to keep and care for them.

This is a charity in which the whole church is interested, and as the years go it must grow into an institution of inestimable blessing and benefit to those who care for it, and those whose orphaned condition require its help.

PREPARING FOR THE BENCH.

Governor Locke Craig has very wisely and becomingly appointed our good friend and college class mate, W. A. Devin, Oxford, N. C., to be Judge in the Superior Court of this State. Nothing but high commendation has been made, through the press or elsewhere seen or heard, of this good choice on the part of our Governor. Those who know Judge Devin will understand why this universal approval. He is a fit, a meritorious, a worthy man, well qualified by disposition, character and training for this high office.

What interests us here and now is not the appointment, however, but the chief reason, assigned by the able and esteemed Charlotte Evening Chronicle for this appointment. We quote: "He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina. He made honors there playing both baseball and football and was a member of the latter team that defeated Virginia 26 to 0, which is certainly one asset decidedly in his favor." Fact is Devin was far more brilliant in the class room with Latin and Greek roots than on the diamond with bat or pig-skin. But let that pass.

Since when did it become fact, and true, that playing ball was better preparation for a lad in training for a judgeship than proper application to text-books and class work? Since when did it become a higher asset for usefulness in a student's career to learn how to use his feet and hands better than to use well his head and heart? Devin is praised greatly as an athlete, but the matter of his mind and morals is passed over with a line.

The base ball and the foot ball are all right as agencies in forming a sound body for a sound mind, but that they are the chief asset in preparing a man for the Bench, or for any other high position of great usefulness, we deny.

It will be an evil day for our colleges indeed when we make athletics the leading feature of an academic career.

AN EXPLANATION THAT EXPLAINS.

We wrote an editorial recently setting forth that the number of saloons had greatly decreased, and the area in which liquor was either manufactured or sold had greatly decreased also. Yet, according to statistics, more liquor was being consumed than formerly. We have a very satisfactory explanation of this paradoxical situation in the following, to which we invite special attention:

Regarding your Editorial recently entitled "A Happy Decrease," let me just call to your attention the fact that the amount of liquor shown as "consumed" by the Government report is not necessarily drunken at all. Liquor can only be carried in bond for eight years, and all not then sold must be withdrawn and stored in private warehouses. We learn from the official liquor journal that there has been a large overproduction for the last few years, and they are urging a reduction in the amount made until "the large supply on hand is materially decreased." Is it too much to believe that a large part of this officially "consumed" liquor is still in warehouses owned by the brewers? Let me quote you a few words from the last "Union Signal," the official W. C. T. U. organ, on this subject: "If it could be proved that whiskey and beer drinking has been really increased, the question would be who drinks it? From the Year Book of the U. S. Brewers' Association we get the information that the average amount consumed per capita in license States is 25.23 gallons, in prohibition States 1.35 gallons. Nine States are dry. . . 36 of remaining 39 are under some form of local option. In the last five years the no-license population has increased over 10,000,000. Since 1868 the population of the country has doubled, while the inhabitants of 'dry' territory have increased thirteen fold. We think that, in view of these facts, there are more total abstainers and more prohibitionists than ever before, and—granting for the sake of argument the increasing consumption—that drinkers are drinking more than ever."

PARAGRAPHS.

If the pastors will kindly send us the names of those in their fields who do not take the paper, but should do so, we will do our best to secure such as permanent subscribers.

The Greeks seized an American mission school at Kiritza, in Albania, Sept. 22nd. The school was under control of the Congregational church and had received harsh treatment at the hands of the Turks, but had not heretofore been molested by the Greeks.

The North Carolina Legislature meets in special session today to consider freight rate adjustment and a proposed new constitution. Everybody is hoping the body will attend to these two subjects only and then adjourn and go home. The State is not looking for any more laws, rules and regulations than it now has.

There is a business men's club in Oregon which is seeking to abolish the State Senate and House of Representatives and have a commission manage the affairs of the State. There is one reason why the plan will not carry: It abolishes too many offices, public positions. Politicians will never allow a thing of that sort.

"As good and remarkable a man as Mayor Gaynor was it may be observed he died at an excellent time for his fame," quoth the Charlotte Observer. Ever notice how often the same thing happens with good and great men? We have often heard the same remarked of Senator Zeb Vance, the beloved Ex-Governor Aycock and others.

The notorious Harry K. Thaw is now in New Hampshire with eleven hired attorneys to do their utmost to keep him there. If they succeed and keep Thaw out of the public print, and out of the minds of sentimental idiots, they will earn their pay and the gratitude of a long-suffering public. The papers have printed, and the people have talked, enough about Thaw.

In all directions over this State we hear reports of good crops, and good prices for them. Everything the farmer has to sell goes quickly and at a humming price, when put on the market. If the farmers are not satisfied with this year's yield so far, we don't see how they can ever be. Surely have they a right to thank God, take courage, be happy and press forward. This is the farmer's year in North Carolina.

All the good and honest folks are not yet dead. One of the true blue and pure blood sort has been found down in honest Alabama. The Roanoke Leader tells editorially of him: "A subscriber came in last week and paid up his back dues on his paper and ten cents interest on the deferred payment." If all SUN readers now in arrears will do that we guarantee our creditors that they shall be satisfied before another Saturday night.

Pass one over, fellow citizens, to Elon's kindly and considerate merchants, than whom no town ever had a more gracious and generous set. Of their own election they close their stores, except on Saturdays, at 7:30 p. m., to give the students of Elon College the opportunity to stay in their rooms and study, and to withdraw from them the temptation to hang around and loaf and loiter at night. If any College town can show a more generous spirit than that, tell us of it.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Two new subscribers from Rev. S. B. Klapp, Greensboro. Brother Klapp is among the number who care, and who realize that the church paper helps his people, and that his people help the paper.

—Rev. W. H. Denison, D. D., Norfolk, has been assisting Rev. D. A. Keys, pastor, in a series of meetings at Rosemont Christian church the past ten days. Congregations have been large and results gratifying.

—The North Carolina Anti-Saloon League has made arrangements to have an exhibit at the State Fair at Raleigh, also at the Greensboro Fair, that will show at a glance the effect of alcohol on mind and body. The exhibit is prepared by the Temperance Federation of Boston and is thoroughly authentic and reliable.

—Rev. R. F. Brown, student in Elon College from Roanoke, Ala., who was recently called home by a telegram stating, "Mother is dying," writes, under recent date, saying that his mother has rallied and is improving. "My daily prayer is that she may soon be well again and that I may be able, the Lord willing, to return to Elon."

—Rev. J. S. Carden, pastor, Pleasant Ridge church, Guilford, baptized twenty converts last Sunday, the great majority by immersion. Bro. Carden baptized four converts at Christian Chapel last Sunday. Bro. Carden reports good meetings at all his churches, and many accessions. He is a man of consecration and devotion to his work, and the work goes well in his hands.

—Rev. J. Lee Johnson has sent us in about 25 new paid up subscribers since we enlarged THE SUN. We can easily name 25 pastors with as fruitful and large field as Bro. Johnson's who have not sent in over one new name during the whole time. There is a reason. Bro. Johnson cares and has made an honest effort. Many have made no effort whatsoever. Brethren, give your church paper and your church enterprises a square deal. It pays in every way.

—Some one sent along that other student and then threw in four or five more for good measure, so the 300 mark has been passed in the enrollment at Elon already and now they are looking toward 400. There never were as many students, by several, at this time of year at Elon College as at present, and the number grows. That is all right. Let them come on. There is plenty of room this time, and accommodations that cannot be surpassed.

..Raleigh Christian Advocate: "Mr. C. B. Riddle, now a student at Elon College, is furnishing a series of articles to the Raleigh Times on "Why and How I am Working my Way Through College." These articles are stories true to life, written by young men who are really doing the thing, and are therefore of the highest practical value. Rev. C. B. Riddle is gathering them, and will later publish them in a book and offer them for sale. It will be a valuable book for young men."

—We send along hearty congratulations to Editor O. H. Stevenson of the Roanoke, Alabama, Leader. His delightful paper celebrated its 25th anniversary last Wednesday. If all our secular weeklies were as clean morally and as honest editorially as the Leader there would be more virtue and less vice and crime throughout the land. We cherish the wish with Editor Stevenson that the Leader may live to celebrate its 100th anniversary, if it remains as courageous and manly as at present.

That Which Is Not Bread.

In the light of modern events we need to read, and consider, the prophet's query and injunction (Isaiah 55:2): "Wherefore do ye spend your money for that which is not bread? and your labor for that which satisfieth not? hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness." If we would act in the light of that teaching the people of the United States would not next year, as they did the past year, consume 143,220,000 gallons of whiskey, 65,246,000 barrels of beer, 14,276,771,000 cigarettes, 7,699,038,000 cigars, 404,363,000 pounds of chewing and smoking tobacco, 32,209,000 pounds of snuff, 32,764,155 packs of playing cards. None of these things are necessary to the health or soundness of mind or body, and satisfy no want of man, save a want artificially or abnormally created, neither can be classed as a necessity to sustain body, mind or soul.

CARNEGIE AND CHURCH SCHOOLS.

Mr. Carnegie has expressed the opinion that the Church ought not to have anything to do with education. Mr. Carnegie is an expert neither in the domain of education nor in that of religion.

If he were not backing his views with five hundred millions of dollars, they might be dismissed as the vagaries of an ill-informed doctrinaire. But whilst Mr. Carnegie himself is harmless, Mr. Carnegie plus five hundred millions of dollars is a great menace to free institutions in America. With an enthusiasm worthy of a better cause this authority on steel and armor-plate is doing his utmost to thoroughly and completely secularize our schools.

That his course advertises his ignorance of the history of institutions in the United States does not in the least abash him. Education is a child of the church, born into the arms of the church, protected and fostered by the church, and if religion should withdraw its divine support, it is very much to be doubted whether education would persist. Harvard University, William and Mary Colleges, Yale University, and all the pioneer institutions of our land, were established by the church, and were intended to foster and propagate the religion of Christ. The church school preceded both the State institution and the private foundation.

The reason alleged for Mr. Carnegie's opposition to church schools is, that in a spirit of narrowness they will fetter free investigation. This assumption is not borne out by the history of our institutions. In fact, they have been much broader and more catholic in spirit than Mr. Carnegie himself. Theology is a branch of human knowledge, and is of the supremest importance. So narrow is Mr. Carnegie that he will not place on his Foundation an institution that has a school of theology. His reason for not giving aid to one of our needy Southern institutions was, that there were too many young men who were studying for the ministry. In proscription this iron monger has shown more narrowness than the narrowest sect in the world.

As a matter of fact, there is more liberty of thought today in our church schools than anywhere else. State schools, and institutions privately endowed, frequently dismiss professors because of their teachings, but this seldom happens in an institution owned by the church. Prof. E. A. Ross was dismissed from his professorship because of his views on Oriental immigration, but it was from "Leland Stanford" that he got his walking papers. Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews taught Mr. Bryan's views on money at Brown University, and he lost his position because the trustees deemed him economically unsound. Prof. Bemis was dismissed from Chicago University because he taught government ownership of natural monopolies, especially the ownership of gas and electric light plants. State Universities are notoriously hampered and restrained.

If the State schools dared to teach the history of St. Bartholomew's massacre, or of the Spanish Inquisition, the Roman Catholic patrons would seriously object. Our State institutions are constantly in commotion because of new administrations that insist upon teachers being in accord with prevailing economic views. The schools upon the private foundations have no more freedom. The teacher of economics in Chicago University, when he begins to discuss Mr. Rockefeller, and his part in our industrial development, is apt to put his foot on the soft pedal. Public sentiment in the institution, were there no other compelling force, would not allow him to criticize the methods of the man, whilst profiting by those methods.

Jesus Christ taught men to reverence the Truth. He said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall set you free." In the best colleges of the church you will find greater reverence for the truth and a more eager desire to know it, and more freedom in its utterance when found, than in all other institutions, whether supported by the State or private benefactions. The masses do not fear the freedom of education under Christian auspices, but they fear the demoralizing and seductive influences of Mammon on educational ideals.

Mr. Carnegie is the greatest menace to educational freedom that we have today.—New Orleans Christian Advocate.

How mankind defers from day to day the best it can do, and the most beautiful things it can enjoy, without thinking that every day may be the last one!—Max Muller.

"Don't water the seeds of sorrow. They thrive on your tears. Root them out of the garden of memory and give hope a chance to grow in their place."

FROM OUR CONTRIBUTORS

PREPARING FOR CONFERENCE.

The Eastern N. C. Christian Conference will convene with Mt. Auburn church, Warren Co., N. C., Thursday before the second Sunday in November. Notice will appear in THE SUN later, giving directions to delegates and visitors about getting there.

We hope to make this the best session in the history of the Conference. Be sure that each church elects delegates and have them attend. Send up a full report and a special offering for foreign missions. Every church that has not organized a Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society please do so and report to Mrs. A. F. Smith, Cardenas, N. C., with at least a collection of one month's dues. And all societies that have neglected sending to Mrs. Smith their membership fees and other offerings quarterly will do so before Conference.

Let every church take at least one membership in the Laymen's Missionary Association and send the annual fee of $5.00 to the treasurer, W. B. Mann, Raleigh, N. C., or to the annual conference. The chairman of each committee should carefully prepare his report and be prepared to make an address on the same, if necessary. We expect to have a number of visitors from other conferences and representatives of our general enterprises present to deliver addresses and help enliven the Conference.

C. E. NEWMAN, Pres.

THE UNITED MISSIONARY CAMPAIGN.

There is being begun this month in the United States and Canada an undertaking which has for its objective the enlistment of the entire church membership of these nations in systematic and adequate giving to all the benevolent work of the Church.

This enterprise is called the "United Missionary Campaign." It was set on foot by the two great bodies, the Conference of Foreign Mission Boards of North America and the Home Missions Council of the United States.

It is international and interdenominational, and has for its aim the enlargement of all the advance work of the Church at home and abroad.

Its appeal is to every man who loves the Kingdom. Its field is for the present all cities having 5,000 or more population. Its method is to hold a conference of two evenings and the intervening day in these cities, endeavoring to bring the churches to better methods of missionary finance and more systematic missionary education, and to lead as many churches as will undertake it to the making of an every-member canvass for benevolences in the month of March, 1914.

There will be very little expense attached to each one of these conferences. Each city is asked to pay the expense of travel and entertainment of the speakers on the program, and whatever slight local expense there may be in properly preparing for the Conference.

Rev. D. Clay Lilly, D. D., has been called from the Grace Street Presbyterian Church, of Richmond, Va., to act as one of the Field Secretaries. He is now actively at work in the preparatory work of the campaign, with headquarters at 1026 17th Ave., S., Nashville, Tenn.

Dr. R. E. Gaines has been called from the Chair of Mathematics of Richmond College, Richmond, Va., as another Field Secretary, and is well under way with the preparatory work for the campaign. His office is at 211 Vine street, Richmond, Va. These two field secretaries will have charge of the work for the Southern States.

Conferences have been arranged already in many cities of Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Alabama, and North Mississippi. The campaign will move southward and cover the South Atlantic and Gulf states later in the season.

This is perhaps the largest piece of co-operative work ever attempted by the churches of America. It is being heartily endorsed by Mission Boards and all organized agencies of Church work. It should powerfully affect the life of the church in these two great nations.

D. CLAY LILLY.

A DIRECTING SPIRIT.

I suspect that very many Christian people do not really appreciate the truth that the Holy Spirit is a wonderfully directing Spirit. Although believing that there is such a Spirit, they do not let Him have a controlling influence in their lives. It was not so in the lives of the apostles and many of the early disciples. In reading the New Testament history of them, we see that they depended constantly upon the Spirit to direct them in their work and movements. When it was not God's will that they should go to a certain section of country, the Spirit indicated to them that fact. It is said of Paul and Timothy that "they went through the region of Phrygia and Galatia, having been forbidden of the Holy Spirit to speak the word in Asia." It is further said, "When they were come over against Nysia, they assayed to go into Bithynia, and the Spirit of Jesus suffered them not." We thus see that the Holy Spirit expressly and particularly directed both Paul and Timothy in their preaching tour. The Spirit held them back from going where they had purposed to go. Their ways would have been quite different if they had depended upon their own judgment. Suppose that Paul had said: "God has endowed us with good sense; let us use it in doing our work; our own judgment is sufficient to govern us in this matter." This is the way that many Christian people talk in these days. But Paul did not have such a conceit of himself. He never set up his judgment against the wisdom of God, the Holy Spirit. But you may ask, "How did Paul and Timothy know that it was the Holy Spirit who signified to them that they should not go where they intended to go?" I believe that the Spirit made such an impression upon their minds as to convince them that He was speaking to them. There was a constraint which they could not misunderstand; and they followed such a leading. We may be similarly directed. It is a great privilege.

C. H. WETHERBE.

RELIGION IN COLLEGE LIFE.

A Remarkable Book by Dr. Martyn Summerbell.

"I am thinking," declared Dr. Martyn Summerbell, in his baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class, Maine Central Institute, June 5, 1892, which sermon is given fourth place in the author's recent book entitled, Religion in College Life, "I am thinking of the student in College who has made profession of the faith. He too has his opportunity. If he makes his faith vital, he may not only go with Christ for himself, but he may be the Master's agent for leading many sons to glory."

Dr. Summerbell kept "the student in college" in his mind in every discourse of the eleven matchless deliverances which make up this most refreshing volume, refreshing mentally and refreshing spiritually. Himself a college and an university man—Dr. Summerbell knows the inner student life sympathetically and his long and eventful career as an educator has yielded him an experience and an insight into the heart of the young man's educational problems enjoyed by few men. And, therefore, like Solomon of old, he is able to address the college student as "My son," for which affectionate salutation he offers the following justification on page 127 of his book: "But we observe that Solomon wrote 'My son.' This carries with it the right spirit of the life that is, toward that which is to be; of the generation which holds the field of activity toward the generation which, educationally speaking, is learning the tactics and buckling on the armor in school and college. All authority which is exercised over young men is most efficient when it is tempered with affection." It is this spirit which renders Dr. Summerbell so acceptable a lecturer to college students and gives him such a hold on their affections. Would that all of us educators had that spirit in full measure!

The publishers of the volume, Fleming H. Revell Co., give a very complimentary notice of it and among other things use these fine words: "A volume of sermons and addresses—on various college occasions—models of their kind. Dr. Summerbell makes a very direct appeal to the mind and heart of the young student through argument, phraseology, illustration, and methods drawn from logic, philosophy, science, and history." A reading of the books leaves you impressed that every word of this fine compliment is deserved, and more. It is packed full of learning, but the learning is never paraded for learning's sake; it always fits in with perfect deftness and could not be omitted without marring a work of exquisite art. There is argument, but always on a high judicial plane, in which the false position is stated with perfect fairness and then demolished with convincing gentleness.

The illustrations are many of them based on the author's own observation and so are fresh and invigorating. They never fail to clinch their point. Let one quotation suffice: "Life is power. Down at the beaches I have seen walks laid of tar concrete on the sands. In such places there are tough and wiry grasses, firm of fibre and luxuriant in strength. And here and there I have seen spears of those grasses pushing their way up and through that solid concrete; life reaching upward toward the light, in spite of obstructions that seemed impenetrable. Yes, life is energy." I have never seen those grasses, but I hope to, because of the valuable lessons they teach.

Dr. Summerbell is ever the master of a liquid style, clear, forceful, thrilling. His phrases, like those of Horace, stick. And his analyses of difficult situations in thought become wonderfully convincing and penetrating because of his stylistic gifts coupled with his piercing mental insight. We all have read that unequalled encomium of love in the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians and delight to quote its concluding verse: "Now abideth faith, hope, love." I have heard many sermons on that text. This book contains one, delivered at Defiance College, June 8, 1913, in which an elucidation of these three graces is given that surpasses anything on them known to me. "And so, illustrating these graces in their progressive series," as we read on page 94: "We may say of faith, that it is apprehensive, for it reaches out and lays hold on God and the sure promises of His word; of hope, that it is possessive, for it appropriates the promises and makes them its very own; but of love, that it is comprehensive, for it gathers in all that faith and hope severally bring within its range, and adds to the rest the lovingness of God in Christ, and so it grows to be Godlike in love.

"Or, speaking in another manner, we may say of faith, that it assimilates the beauty of Christian character in all its forms; of hope that it cultivates them into large beauty; but of love, that it dominates them all, so that they combine harmoniously into character moulded in the sweet image of our Saviour." For real insight into these progressive forces of the Christian life, as Dr. Summerbell regards them, I know no passage excelling this piece of elegant diction as well as of trenchant thought.

But Dr. Summerbell is first and always a faithful servant of his Master. He is learned in history, in logic, in philosophy, in language, in the college, but is sure that it must be Christ the gift of God in Christ Jesus he sets before and above every other knowledge. He believes in the college, but is sure that it must be Christian to do its best service. He believes in scholarship, but its star should be the Star of Bethlehem, which always leads to the Savior. He believes in science and the scientific method, but he knows their limitations. From the first address of this volume delivered June 5, 1892, to the latest delivered June 8, 1913, this is evident, but nowhere more strikingly stated than on pages 65f., where this very question is under discussion, and where the following will be found: "It is well known that physical and chemical science in the last generation have been advancing with giant strides. In consideration of this fact you might request some scientific friend of yours, who is eminent in his special branch, to slip into his laboratory and make you a rose. It is but a trifle that you are asking of him, only a rose; just that, a tender little plant, with a bud that will soon blush into beauty. But the task is too great.

"Then try him with a microbe. A microbe is a small affair . . . But he shrinks from the effort . . .

"Let him make you some protoplasm. This is simpler than what you have asked before. You do not require form, for protoplasm is formless. He has samples enough, for it exists in all animals and plants, in everything that has life, for it is the basis of life. And he knows its composition; just water, ammonia, and carbon dioxide,—plus life. But it is the life part that plagues him, and he makes you no protoplasm . . .

"It is right at this point, where human learning and skill must confess their impotence, that revelation enters with its response to all these queries. It declares, as science so frequently reiterates, that life must come from life, and that the life of all living creatures on the earth was the gift of God."

This thought-provoking book is worthy to be written on at much greater length, but the best thing for each reader to do is to write for a copy of it, enclosing a dollar for its 215 pages full of excellent things, and read it for himself. I must close this imperfect sketch by citing a beautiful passage from one of his masterful addresses at Elon—five of the eleven addresses were delivered here—in which he describes the remedy for spiritual poverty as realizing God, in the words: "The remedy for all current looseness and extravagance of conduct is in realizing God; in comprehending something of His majesty and His intimate connection with all things that exist; in knowing that all our acts and even our most secret thoughts come under His scrutiny, and perceiving with all this that only as our thoughts and acts are shaped into conformity with His holy laws, can our individual peace, or the prosperity of the community be assured." And this is the spirit that pervades the entire volume.

No College teacher, no College student, no sincere Christian, no unconverted person even can read this delightful collection of addresses, all centering around the religious life of the young, without being greatly benefited and uplifted spiritually.

W. A. HARPER.

WHEN A CHURCH REALLY STUDIES THE BIBLE.

There is nothing else that contributes more to the life, strength, and growth of the individual believer, and of the church as organized body of believers, than real, intelligent, systematic Bible study. There is nothing else that contributes as much except real, intelligent, Bible-guided, Spirit-filled prayer. If we could get the entire congregation in any church (every man, woman, and child who attends the church), not only the saved people but the unsaved as well, to really studying the Bible, the results would be amazing; and we can do it, and we ought to do it.

The churches that come the nearest to the full attainment of this ideal of any church I know on either side of the water is the Moody Church in Chicago,—the church of which it was my privilege to be pastor for twelve years, and which I have just visited again.

There are few people attending this church with any degree of regularity who are not studying the Bible, and studying it not merely in a haphazard way, but according to a well-defined and skilfully directed plan. They are not all studying it according to the same plan, for there are varying needs to be met; but they are studying it according to some plan, and under skilled direction. There are classes for all types of men and minds, and for all conditions and ages. The teachers and officers of the classes (for there are officers as well as teachers, and many a man makes a fine officer who would be absolutely worthless as a teacher, are ever on the alert for new faces in the congregation that they may secure new members for their classes, and the man or woman or child who succeeds for any great length of time in keeping out of a class for Bible study must be well skilled in the art of refusing.

Classes for All Kinds of People.

Furthermore, the search for men, women and children to enrol for systematic Bible study is not by any means confined to the congregation. It is pursued at the place of business, on the cars, on the street, in the parks, everywhere. The Moody Church believes in Bible study, and not a few seem to believe that the chief end of man is to get people into classes for the systematic study of the Word of God.

It may be interesting and suggestive to some to speak more specifically of some of the classes. Of course, there are the usual graded classes in the Sunday-school from the Cradle-Roll up. The teachers of these have their own very thorough organization, and cultivate a spirit of fellowship and mutual helpfulness in many ways that cannot be here described. In addition to this, on one evening a week the International lesson is taught in the church to a great throng of people by some master in the art of Bible teaching, always the same man throughout the entire season. But beside all this there are special classes.

There is a Young Man's Class, very large, very enthusiastic,—and not as enthusiastic about athletics, or about its brass band, or about anything else, as it is about Bible study and soul-winning by open-air work and other aggressive methods. This class is taught by a man who makes the teaching of the class a very important part of his work for Christ. A number of the faithful and efficient officers of the church have come from this class, and a number have gone into Christian work at home or abroad.

There is the Young Women's Class, taught by a very talented and devoted young woman, who gives a very large share of her time and of her life to the class, following the young women into their week-day life, and gathering many of them into a home over which she presides. But the home grew out of the class, and not the class out of the home. Almost everything at the Moody Church has grown out of a Bible class,—in fact, the church itself is the outgrowth of Bible classes.

The Friendly Bible Class is a mixed class of men, women, and young people of pretty much all ages, conditions, nationalities, and ranks of life. Oftentimes there will be a millionaire and a pauper, a saintly woman and an outcast, a lawyer and a criminal, sitting side by side in this class. But they study the Bible, carefully, thoroughly, systematically, taking the International lessons or some book in the Bible, and from the beginning of the lesson to the end it is one rapid-fire of question and answer. There have been many infidels and agnostics in this class, and they are permitted to ask and answer questions with the rest; and some of them have been converted. Of course the lesson is given an evangelistic turn before they get through, and there have been, I suppose, thousands of conversions in this class.

The Young Married People's Class arose in this way: We found that, when our young men and women married and the babies began to come, the father or the mother, or both, began to drop out of the Sunday-school, and thus we were losing to systematic Bible study some of the brightest and most promising young people we had in our congregation. One of the officers of the church, a middle-aged married man, whom God had given no children of his own but who was very happy in his own married life, conceived the idea of fathering these young married people. A building adjoining the church was purchased, and the second floor on Sunday afternoons was devoted to this class. Husband and wife both come, bringing the babies (who are cared for in one of the rooms), the lesson is studied, a social time is enjoyed after the lesson, they eat supper together, stay to the Yoke-Fellows' meeting and the open-air meeting following that, and the evangelistic night meeting in the church, and then go home feeling that they have spent the Lord's Day in a way worth while.

Crowning all the other classes, there is a series of classes Saturday afternoon and night, from 4 P. M. to 9 P. M. From 7 to 8 the International lesson of the following day is taught; in the 8 to 9 period the class is taken right through the Bible from Genesis to Revelation, about ten chapters being taken in a lesson, and the whole class having read the ten chapters repeatedly during the week. There are about two thousand in attendance from 7 to 8, and from 8 to 9.

Winning Converts Every Week.

What are the results of a whole church thus really studying the Bible? There is a body of trained workers competent to cope with any situation or any opportunity that may come up in the church. While the church has had many seasons of special evangelistic effort, it is always carrying on definite evangelistic work. Every Sunday evening there is a definite and expectant and never disappointed effort to bring men and women to a definite acceptance of the Lord Jesus. Scattered all over the church, in seats definitely assigned to them, and under the eye of skilled superintendents, are hundreds of men and women who have been trained in classes organized for that

(Continued on Page 10.)

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

At the Sunday School Convention of the Eastern Virginia Christian Convention, held in Suffolk, July 23-25, a Committee, composed of S. M. Smith, W. H. Denison, R. B. Odum, I. A. Luke, W. J. Lee, and W. W. Staley, was appointed to arrange for a Seaside Chautauqua at Virginia Beach, in July, 1914; and the Sunday School Convention decided to meet at the same time and place, provided that the Chautauqua was established.

It was understood that a large General Executive Committee should be appointed from our entire constituency, both north and south, and that such publicity should be given to the Chautauqua as to induce the attendance of many of our ministers, church and Sunday school workers, young people, and those of our people who want a vacation under most favorable conditions by the sea.

The Baptists have erected a large Auditorium at Virginia Beach, and offer to let us use their equipment on reasonable terms. Hotels, cottages, and tents will furnish ample accommodations at rates to suit all purses and all tastes.

There will be courses of lectures on many phases of church and Sunday school work, Missions and Christian Endeavor, and popular lectures by eminent speakers. It will probably last six days. Visitors to the Chautauqua and delegates to the Convention will pay their own expenses; but every effort will be made to help the people in the way of economy while at the Beach.

The General Executive Committee will probably consist of forty members representing all parts of our Zion, while the Central Executive Committee is composed of the six members chosen by the Sunday School Convention and named above in this letter. This Committee held its first meeting in the Central Y. M. C. A., Norfolk, Va., Sept. 18th, with all the members present. Rev. W. H. Denison, D. D., was chosen President; Prof. S. M. Smith, General Secretary; and Dr. J. W. Manning, Treasurer. Other officers will be announced later. This Committee will hold another meeting at an early day, when the General Executive Committee will be completed, plans adopted, and the work put in shape to present to the public.

The Central Executive Committee will take it as a great kindness, if conference officials this Fall will call attention to this movement each day in their conference sessions. The conferences composing the Southern Christian Convention can do very much to increase the attendance, and the people who attend will be greatly benefitted. Daily conferences and lectures on many phases of church activity will put new spirit, new methods, and new efficiency into our churches. The popular lectures will amuse, instruct, and inspire the people who hear them; while the ocean will send a thrill of new physical life into all visitors.

The Central Executive Committee has undertaken the herculean task of making this Chautauqua a success; and we want the people to rally to this undertaking with an enthusiasm never known before among the people of the Christian church.

When the organization is completed and the names of the General Committee published, you will see a group of names that will make all proud of our men and our cause.

Keep your eyes and ears open, and you will find all the plans and purposes of this great Chautauqua next summer by the sea.

W. W. STALEY.

WINCHESTER LETTER.

It was the privilege of Mrs. Walters and myself to attend the Rays Hill and Southern Pennsylvania Conference, which met at Fairview church, Fulton county, Pennsylvania, August 27-31. The attendance was large, more people being there the most of the time than the beautiful and commodious church would accommodate. The Conference was presided over by Rev. J. W. Hoffman, who is a good presiding officer and keeps things moving. The sessions were pleasant and harmonious. The most important work of the conference was the raising of the debt on the Everett church. There was $300.41. It was raised by Rev. J. W. McManiman, of New Jersey.

One of the most important reports adopted by the Conference was the revision of the constitution. A movement was started to raise an endowment fund for the benefit of aged ministers. There are a number of ministers in the Conference who have built up the work of the Conference and held it together at a sacrifice. It rejoiced the writer to see that the laymen were interested in providing for them in their old age. A. C. Peck was elected president for the coming year. There are a number of intelligent and useful laymen in the conference, who add much to the work and interest of the sessions.

Among the sermons preached at the conference, two were especially interesting to the writer. One was preached by Rev. J. S. Kegg, a young minister who was representing Defiance College, the other was the Sunday morning sermon by Rev. J. W. McManiman, of New Jersey. This was a strong sermon. Owing to sickness, the writer failed to reach the Conference in time to hear the annual sermon, preached by that old veteran of the Cross, Rev. J. H. Barney. The sermon was highly spoken of by every one.

It is always a pleasure to be with our Pennsylvania brethren. They extend a cordial welcome and make you feel at home.

W. T. WALTERS.

POPULARIZING THE AUTOMOBILE.

There was a time when the horseless carriage was the luxury of the very rich. Today the automobile rivals the one-time popularity of the bicycle. The automobile industry, though but two decades old, is equalled in volume and importance only by the industries producing raw materials, such as coal and steel.

There are, according to an investigation, 990,738 cars in use today in the United States. In California, one person in twenty-eight owns an automobile. In Maine the proportion is one to thirty. New York is fairly representative of the country at large, one out of ninety inhabitants being credited with a horseless carriage. Kentucky stands at the tail end of the list, with one in six hundred and two. No distinction is drawn, in compiling the figures, between commercial vehicles and pleasure-cars.

Prices, too, have undergone considerable modification. In 1907 the average price per automobile was a little over two thousand dollars. Today the average price is only a little over one thousand dollars. The threatened revision of the tariff may open the market to still cheaper cars from abroad. Five or six hundred dollars will already buy a respectable car. "What is home without an automobile?" may soon be the leit-motif of the average American household.—Current Opinion.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

FOSTER'S STORY OF THE BIBLE

From Genesis to Revelation. Told in Simple Language.

ADAPTED TO ALL AGES, BUT ESPECIALLY TO THE YOUNG

By CHARLES FOSTER

Size, 6½ x 9 in.; 704 Pages; 300 Illustrations.

BEAUTIFUL COLORED PICTURES
THE BEST EASY-READING VERSION OF THE WHOLE BIBLE

It adheres most closely to the Scriptures, retaining much of their force, dignity and distinction of style, with the pure and simple wording of the English Bible, without comment or doctrinal discussion.

MOST GENERALLY USED—750,000 SOLD

Approved by eminent men of various religious denominations
Valued in thousands of homes.

FINE CLOTH, with beautiful design in three colors (shown above), $1.50

SEND US YOUR ORDERS.

Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Children's Missionary Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions For Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDREN

The
Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

See Us about Job Printing

WHEN YOU WANT GOOD WORK.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

CHURCH NEWS.

HOLLAND.

The protracted meeting at the Christian church, Holland, Va., was held the week following 5th Sunday in September. Dr. I. W. Johnson, of Suffolk, Va., conducted the meeting. Bro. Johnson is one of our best preachers—clear, pointed, and spiritual, and is happy in revival work. The crowds were large, interest good, and there were about fifteen professions and ten accessions to the church. Ten were baptized in Holland's pond on the 8th inst. Another was received and baptized later.

HOLY NECK.

The meeting at Holy Neck was held the week following first Sunday in September. Dr. J. W. Harrell, of Portsmouth, Va., conducted the meeting, and preached and labored with great earnestness and spiritual power, emphasizing the love of God as we have rarely heard it. Large congregations attended and the meeting was much enjoyed by the Christian people. There were about twenty professions and fourteen accessions to the church. Twelve were baptized in Norfleet's pond second Sunday afternoon. Two had been baptized previously. Our people enjoyed Brother Harrell's ministry. He is a strong preacher and hard worker.

N. G. NEWMAN.

EUFAULA, ALABAMA.

We have had a very interesting meeting here. SUN readers would no doubt like to hear something of it.

About the first of August we secured permission from the "Holy Baptist" people to use their church for the purpose of a revival to be conducted by Rev. B. F. Young, of Columbus, Ga. Brother Young appointed August 25th as the date on which to begin the meeting and was on hand promptly. He preached in the power of the Holy Ghost, and exposed sin without fear or favor. A great many found God in the pardon of sins, among the number a minister of the gospel who left the ministry several years ago, but has re-entered the ministry and says he expects to devote the remainder of his life to the salvation of the lost.

One of the most interesting incidents of the meeting, perhaps, was the rescue of a poor, fallen girl from a life of sin, after the ministers of two of the churches of the town had refused to go and pray in the home. Brother Young, in company with the writer and a few others, went to the home and prayed for the girl. She later came out to the meetings and got saved. It was indeed touching to hear her try to tell, with the light of heaven on her face and a heart too full for utterance, what the Lord had done for her.

Brother Young preached his farewell sermon on the night of the first Sunday to one of the largest congregations of the meeting, many not being able to gain admittance to the church. At the conclusion of the sermon there was hardly a dry eye in the vast audience as they pressed forward to grasp the preacher by the hand to bid them good-bye.

We have secured a building to hold services in, and expect to organize a Sunday school soon. We hope before another year passes away to have a Christian church here in Eufaula. Brother Young has promised to preach for us again the first Sunday in October.

We ask every member of the SUN family to pray for the work here in Eufaula. We believe there is a great future for the cause of Christ and the Christian church in this part of the State of Alabama.

H. G. ABRAMS.

PLEASANT GROVE (RANDOLPH), N. C.

We began our revival in the new house of worship at Pleasant Grove fifth Sunday in August. This was a great revival. There were twenty-one professions, a number of reclamations, and fourteen accessions to the church. Rev. H. A. Albright was with me most of the time and did good preaching. Bro. Albright has served this church longer than any living minister, and is held in high esteem by these good people. Rev. W. H. Strickland, Baptist, of Greensboro, preached one good sermon. The pastor did most of the preaching, delivering the first sermon in the new house at 11:00 A. M. fifth Sunday in August to the largest congregation, old people say, that ever assembled at this place, estimated at from 1500 to 2000 people. The house seated 500. It is a good house. It is six feet longer than the old one, with good proportions in every way, vaulted ceiling, and steeple on the front. This new house stands a few feet south from where the old one was. It has not been painted yet, nor have the new seats been put in. When finished it will be one of the best country churches in Randolph county.

Bro. J. F. Craven was the foreman on the building, working from 65 hands down, and not one piece of timber was miscut or misplaced in all the building. Everything went on like clock-work; so that in sixteen and one-fourth days the house was erected to the service and honor of God, from pillar to steeple, and everything paid for with money in the treasury and more in sight for painting and pews.

Somehow, the good Lord gave me the way into the confidence of these good people, and after looking into their real needs and seeing their ability to do this work, and going at it in a most persuasive way, the church came together as a unit, and I have never seen any people more interested as a church than these were. I am told by Bro. Lee Brady and others that there never was a better day in the history of this church, as to the spirit of unity, spirituality, finance and size of congregation. To God be all the praise for putting it into the hearts of these people to do this work. I heard some of that church say that they would be glad for the next session of Conference to come there and see some of their work, with a good new house of worship, a good church organ, a good choir, and the open door of welcome. This is a good church with great possibilities. God bless them abundantly.

S. B. KLAPP, Pastor.

GOING ON WITH THE SERMON.

When the preacher gives the gospel message, the old, old story is likely to be more effective with young and old than the embellishments that are often supposed to brighten its interest. A little boy thus confided his experience to his mother after a church service: "Why, mother, when the minister was telling about Calvary, I could just see Jesus going up there, and the cross, and the people; and just when I was most interested, the minister stopped,—and went on with the sermon." May it not be true that some of us as preachers or teachers rest too lightly upon the unadorned Gospel narrative, in our eagerness to find devices that will create interest in the story? It may be that some to whom we are seeking to carry the gospel lose interest when we "go on with the sermon."—S. S. Times.

Governor Sulzer of New York is being tried before a court of impeachment for high crimes and misdemeanors in office. It is a bitter fight by Tammany Hall to remove the Governor from office and deprive him of citizenship.

THE POSSIBILITIES OF THE CRADLE.

The Cradle Roll is the true Infant Class of the S. S. Its purpose is to place the little ones under the care of the church and the watchfulness of the S. S. even before they are old enough to attend the service. To plant little seeds of love for Christ and service for His church into their little minds and hearts so that when they are old enough to realize even their own existence, the S. S. and church will be a part of them. Something must develop in their minds, even from their birth, then why not the one thing that can mean most to them as long as they live and even through eternity itself. Their little minds are like the soil. If you do not nurture it and care for it, soon it will be full of weeds and thorns, a place disgusting in itself, but with a little care and the right seeds to work with, it can be a thing of beauty. Thus at the earliest possible moment the child receives the benefit of the school, and the school secures the co-operation of the home. The babies and children too young to attend the S. S. are its members, and should continue as members until old enough to be brought to S. S. regularly. When a child can attend with regularity he should be transferred from the Cradle Roll to the Beginners' Class of the S. S.

The first step necessary in getting it started is to discover the homes where these babies live and then secure the consent of the mother to place the name of the little one on the roll. Secure the co-operation of the Home Department visitors in extending the movement. Some one person must be placed in charge of this department. This may be the teacher of the Primary Class or any one appointed by the S. S. A visit should be paid to the home as soon as the child is enrolled and frequent visitation should be the rule, as the object is to link the home and child early to the interests of the S. S. If the names are added to the roll merely to add to the membership, nothing will come of it; but if the church, through its pastor and S. S. workers, regard this Cradle Roll as an unusual opportunity for personal contact with home life, then its possibilities are limitless, especially if the homes represented are without any church connection, which is often the case.

There are many good results from the keeping up of an interesting cradle roll. Children are brought into the S. S. much earlier by being members. They will have more interest in the school because from their earliest recollection they have been a part of it. They belong to the school and it belongs to them. Then we will find a deepened interest in the homes and in the church for the spiritual life.

A Closer Union of Home and Church.—Then another result is frequently the mother is influenced to join the Home Department, when it is impossible for her to attend the regular services, and Mothers' Classes are more easily maintained.

The first Cradle Roll of which we have record was organized in Elizabeth, N. J., in 1877. The second was that of a Reformed church in Philadelphia in 1893. In 1896 Mr. W. C. Hall of Indianapolis formed a Cradle Roll, and issued certificates. From these beginnings the work has grown until it has become a permanent feature of S. S. work in this and all other countries where organized S. S. work is known. It is now considered an essential in the work, and is a part of the standard of excellence for the individual school. As the Cradle Roll work does not depend upon the equipment of a school it is applicable to a city or country. Every school can have one.

"Let us never forget that our God loves to pardon, and never refuses those who are sincere, whatever their records may be."

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

NOTES ON SUNDAY SCHOOL REVIEW: SEPT. 28.

This is rally day and review Sunday. Efforts should have previously been made to have a record-breaking attendance for this day. A program should be arranged that will be altogether appropriate. It would be well that the program include at least the following things: 1. A review of the quarter's lessons by some one who is prepared. 2. A talk about the Sunday school and modern methods, and encouraging the local school. 3. A comparison of attendance on this Sunday and the same Sunday for several years back, as well as others. Let it be shown what is the largest attendance the school has ever had and how far above or below the mark you are this day.

Subject of the Year's Study.—Old Testament History.

The Quarter's Topic.—A Patient Heavenly Father.

Reading Lesson.—Neh. 9:9-21 (see Acts 7:30-44).

Golden Text.—Thou art a God ready to pardon, gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and abundant in lovingkindness.—Nehemiah 9:17.

Teaching.—God is merciful and just.

Book.—Exodus.

Object-Lesson.

Yeast.—Yeast in a great pan of dough does not change the whole mass at once. How does it work? Just by changing the particles next to it, and these changing the next, and so on. This is the way God's kingdom works in the world. The story of this quarter's lessons began with one man who had a vision of God. Through all the ups and downs he kept his vision of the true God and helped pass it on to a whole nation of people. God was trying to change a nation so that through them as leaven he could change the world.

Question Review.

1. In what Bible book have we studied this Quarter?
2. What is the meaning of its name—Exodus?
3. Whose exodus does it record?
4. From what land did Israel go forth?
5. Who was Israel's human leader?
6. From what was Moses saved when a baby?
7. Where and by whom was he taught about God and of the hopes of his people?
8. What education did his foster mother give Moses?
9. Where, and for how long, did God specially train him?
10. What did God call Moses to do?
11. How were Israelites weaned from Egypt?
12. How was Pharaoh prevailed upon to let Israel go?
13. With what ordinance was Israel's rescue from Egypt commemorated?
14. How did Israelites cross the end of the Red Sea?
15. How did God feed Israel in the wilderness?
16. For what purpose was Israel taken to the region of Mt. Sinai?
17. What do we call the law God gave there?
18. For whom, besides Israelites, did God give his law?
19. Why did God give mankind his law? (Golden Text).—Leonard.

EFFECT ON THE CHURCH.

There is one significant fact which must strike anyone who has investigated the matter of adult Bible classes, and that is that the classes in the Sunday school are comparatively dead. On the other hand, when you come to a community which is up and doing, enthusiastic, energetic, joyous, you may safely conclude that within it the people are coming together for the study of God's word.

This is no speculation or theory: it is a fact. And such a state of things gives rise to two questions: first, can any church be really alive where people are neglecting the study of the Bible? and second, can anything hold back the church which puts the Bible first?

There is not the least use in trying to push a flagging community. It may go along for a while, but directly the pressure is taken away it will stand still again. The motive power must come from within and it will never be generated if the people only hear God's word read. They must know it, and there never was yet knowledge without study. John Bunyan said, "Pray and read, read and pray, for a little from God is better than a great deal from men."

THE ELEMENTARY SUPERINTENDENT.

This officer is one of the latest in the modern school. We have had the individual department superintendents, Cradle Roll, Beginners, Primary and Junior. This new office includes the oversight of all these departments. It correlates their work and makes for the utmost efficiency of each.

The ideal elementary superintendent visits each department for a few minutes at almost every session. She talks over the work and the problems with each teacher. She calls occasional meetings of superintendents and teachers that together they may plan for the religious education of the child from its birth to adolescence or until promotion to another department. She helps plan the activities of each department so they will not overlap.

In this way the teaching force may be readjusted without any hurt feelings. Having the methods of all in mind, the superintendent can transfer teachers from one class to another. A junior teacher who cannot control her class of boys might succeed admirably with a class of girls. The schools who have tried it say the elementary superintendent doubles the efficiency of the several classes.

The Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention has undertaken the work of organizing the schools with this superintendent in charge. Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, of Wakefield, Va., is superintendent for the convention and she promises to make an active, vigorous campaign for the establishment of this work in our schools. Officers will do well to communicate with her.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR LESSON: OCTOBER 5.

Topic: "The Ideal Christian. X. His Co-operation With Others."—Col. 4:1-18. (Consecration Meeting).

This is to be a committee conference meeting. It is an educational meeting in Christian Endeavor methods and practices. Committee work is the Endeavorer's opportunity for training in co-operation. This is the time of the year when committees should be ready for active, aggressive work.

As soon as the opening exercises have been held, the leader, who should be the president, will explain the plan of the meeting and announce the time allotted to each committee. He will then generally discuss the topic. Let each chairman conduct his own conference, each conference being held in separate places, and after about 20 minutes let all reassemble.

This meeting and plan presupposes that all members have been assigned places on some committee. If this has not already been done, let it be done a week in advance of this meeting. There should be suggestions for new work from almost every member.

Leader's Talk.

The leader should speak of the society's broad plan of work, its comprehensive program. The society is: 1. A Christian organization for the purpose of uniting people of nearly the same ages in a working company. There are three branches of the society: Young People's, Intermediate and Junior. 2. The society has a weekly prayer and devotional service, this under the lead of the prayer meeting committee. 3. It constantly strives to bring others into the service of the Master, this the work of the Look-out committee. 4. Wholesome entertainment for its members is desired, this to be provided by the social committee. 5. To help in the spread of the gospel and in acquainting home folks with what missionaries are doing abroad, this for the mission committee. 5. To assist in the great work of social service, this by the information, flower, good literature, temperance and good citizenship committees. 6. Other committees and their work.

Suggested Program.

Song, scripture reading, prayer and another song.

Announcements and Leader's talk.

Committees go to class room or separate parts of the building for their meetings.

Society reassembles, one verse of song.

Reports of committee chairmen of work planned for the winter.

A chain of prayers for the society and committees.

Roll Call (only those who did not take any part in committee meetings need take part now).

Song. Mizpah benediction.

For Daily Reading.

Monday.—Co-operation in prayer ... Exod. 17:8-16
Tuesday.—Organized to fight Neh. 4:7-14
Wednesday.—Committee of help Mark 2:1-5
Thursday.—Fellowship in evangelism .. Mark 6:7-13
Friday.—One spirit Phil. 1:27-30
Sat.—Working with all good men ... Mark 9:38-42
Sunday, October 5.—Topic.

OLD MAIDS.

In refuting the charge that old maids do nothing for the world, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat offers this list of twelve famous maids of history:

Queen Elizabeth, in whose reign England reached her golden age.

Florence Nightingale, angel of mercy in the Crimean War and establisher of organized nursing in war times.

Dorothea Dix, pioneer of reform in prison and reformatory methods.

Frances E. Willard, founder of the temperance movement.

Rosa Bonheur, who opened new artistic fields in the representation of animal life.

Clara Barton, founder of the Red Cross Society and savior of thousands from death and suffering.

Joan of Arc, one of the important factors in French history.

Susan B. Anthony, pioneer in efforts to procure more equal rights for women.

Charlotte Bronte, whose novels are among the best in English literature (She married at the age of thirty-eight.)

Jane Austen, whose pen pictures of English village life promise to be immortal.

Jane Addams, first citizen of Chicago and head of the Hull House.

Julia Lathrop, chosen from among the women of America to lead in preserving child life and happiness throughout the country.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Sec'y. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

OCTOBER PROGRAM.

Christian Giving.

Song: All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name.
Prayer.

2 Cor. 9:6-15, read by leader.

Let the leader make a talk on the necessity of systematic giving.

Song: All to Christ I Owe.

Round Table, conducted by leader:

1. What is generous giving?
2. For what are Christian gifts needed?
3. Why is generous giving a Christian duty?
4. What are some false excuses for not giving to missionary causes?
5. How may we increase our society gifts to missions?

Song: I Surrender All.

Business meeting.

Adjournment.

A LETTER FROM MRS. FRY.

(Written in response to a request for something concerning her work.—Mrs. C. H. R.)

Utsunomiya, Japan, Aug. 19, 1913.

Dear Sister in Christ:—One evening when Dr. Morrill was visiting in our home, we were talking about our brethren of the "Sunny South." I remarked: "They must be about the same kind of crank that I am." "Just the same kind, all off of the same piece," the Doctor replied. Two or three days later, when your kind letter came asking me to write, the F. F. V. blood in my veins pulsated with a "birds of a feather flock together," shall-be-delighted-to-do-so, response.

However, my home; Japanese baby; the girls' high school, with its thirty Christian students; the kindergarten, with its thirty-four pupils; five Sunday schools, with their total enrollment of over seven hundred boys and girls; the W. C. T. U., with its greatly needed work; and a number of smaller duties, delay most of my writing until the summer vacation.

Since we came to the sea shore, July twenty-third, Miss Nakai and Miss Shoji, two graduates of our school, and I have been conducting Sunday schools in Hanabuchi village, on Sunday, and in Hobuta village, on Thursday. The Hanabuchi people asked for meetings on Sunday night, so one night Mr. Fry got Dr. Noss to go over with us and preach. Mrs. Noss also went and helped with the singing. The next Sunday, the two girls and I went and held a song service, at which I spoke for a short time. Last Saturday night Bro. McCord went with husband and me and held a magic lantern meeting. On Sunday, Dr. Cary preached. Large and attentive audiences each time filled the house and yard.

This is the thirteenth summer I have had a Sunday school in the fishing village of Hanabuchi. The first year, the Bible woman and I held it every day it did not rain. Five years ago there were about a dozen boys of from eighteen to twenty and as many of from twelve to fourteen who professed faith in Christ, read their Bibles and prayed to the living God daily, though not one was allowed to receive baptism because of opposition of the elders.

Because I was not allowed to reap what I had sown, three years ago I told the people that I would not have the Sunday school there, but would go to Hobuta and open one. For two years I did this, with good success at Shobuta. In the meantime the father of the leader of the band of younger boys died, leaving him the head of his house, a most important post in Japan. Last fall this brave young man showed his independence by being baptized, so when I came this year and planned to have Sunday schools in each village, I met a most hearty welcome.

Knowing that the Hanabuchi young men had for years been saving money to build a building for their meetings, I came with the idea of giving them a contribution towards it and having it answer for a church and free of rent Sunday school rooms. They heartily agreed to all of my propositions, sent all their officers to thank me and to attend the Japanese church services held on our hill for the missionary servants and other Japanese here. Yesterday one hundred young men took a day off from farming and fishing in order to plant trees and beautify the grounds for the new building, which is to be raised tomorrow.

These are humble village people, yet with the love of Christ in their hearts, a night school, in their new building, Bibles to read and hymn books to sing praises from, they will make greater progress than the very noticeable strides they have made since I opened the Sunday school there, sixteen years ago. Pray that they may have the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

SUSIE V. FRY.

DISCERNING THE SIGNS.

The Remarkable Advance in Missionary Education.

Missionary Education is the slogan for the whole church in these days. It is marvelous what a multiplication of missionary magazines, biography, study texts, descriptive books, encyclopedias, and other literature, all bearing on the great theme of the world's evangelization, there has been in the past few years. It is no less marvelous how the methods of imparting information in societies, Sunday-schools, and study classes are being developed, and what pedagogical helps, devices appealing to the eye as well as the ear, are coming into the field. The upshot of the whole matter is that we are awakening to the fact that education and educational methods must be applied in the church, if she is to accomplish her mission in the world, and fit her membership for an immediate effort toward the accomplishment of that mission.

Somebody has made a distinction between imparting missionary information and effecting missionary education. The latter is the desideratum. We need training and power to act, Christian training for Christian action. And this missionary enterprise is largely a matter of education, in this day of the world. The administrators of mission board work are expert men chosen for their positions. The missionaries are as finely trained and educated a body of men and women as the Christian world can boast. The leaders in the departments of missionary activity in the home churches and home land are eminent for fitness and executive ability. And the specialization is being carried to such an extent that even leaders for the little groups meeting here and there all over the land for mission study must have good qualifications. Now the ultimate aim in this educational work is to produce whole churches trained to act and do for the world's evangelization. We want everybody interested, informed, and doing something for the cause. It is not merely the absorption of knowledge about missions that we need, but the disgorging of money that is hoarded away from the Lord, and the disengaging of effort that belongs to the Lord also. This will be a matter of Christian missionary education.

DON'T LEAVE OUT THE PASTOR.

Minister, preacher, pastor, evangelist, whatever name you wear, you must have missionary education. It was remarked of a certain minister some months ago: "He thinks that he is quite a missionary man." That is, he has some information, he preaches missionary sermons (once in a while), and urges missionary offerings; but really he is not grounded in missionary work, his heart is not in the cause, he does not yet realize that the chief business of his people is to extend the gospel sway. A few days ago there came to the Mission Rooms an interesting letter with these passages: "But it has pained me very much that we can raise so little money for missions in this locality. I am wondering what the preachers have been doing in the past." "I think that the voice that the prophet heard on Mt. Horeb ought to be ringing in the ears of all the pastors: 'What doest thou here, Elijah?' * * * May the Lord ask that question of the church until it gets awake to the responsibility of its mission in the world." Surely the pastor is the starting point in this missionary education. Missions is a subject now taught in theological seminaries and colleges, and we who did not get the benefit of such training (for it was quite recently introduced) will have to gain it otherwise.

THEN THE MEN.

Yes, within two years a special work has been begun for the men of our churches. A special literature, such as might appeal to men, is being published. Thousands of men are getting awake, but we are under the impression that they have not fairly begun to study missions. Let us enlist them, too.

MORE WOMEN.

For several years special courses have been prepared and studied by the women of the denominations. Some of our own women are enrolled in study classes; but there is chance for enlisting thousands more. We are rather backward in this respect. Sisters, gather the women for mission study, and let them work side by side with the women of other denominations. The United Study courses and books are of genuine worth, and very informing.

AND THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

One of the most important of recent developments in the missionary world is the splendid way the young people are responding to the challenge for world-evangelization. The special movement known as the Young People's Missionary Movement, with headquarters at New York, is very successful in discovering leaders for the young people, in gathering them for conferences and special preparation, and in publishing text-books for study purposes. Tens of thousands of young people, and others, are yearly pursuing courses in missions with the aid of the excellent books published by the Movement. Probably not a tenth of our young people are yet pursuing systematic study of missions. Here is a great field for telling work, and we trust that readers of this magazine may have it laid onto their hearts by the Lord to gather, here and there, all over the land, our young people to imbibe the inspiration of as noble men and women as ever lived, missionaries to all the world; to get the further inspiration of the present-day conquests in missionary lands; to learn Christian history in the making; and finally to receive quickened impulse to push along the missionary work.

THE BOYS AND GIRLS.

A few years ago who had thought to write a missionary book especially for boys? Who had attempted the publication of a line of books to use in teaching the boys and girls about the disappearing darkness in heathen lands, and what they can do to help bring in the bright light of the gospel? Who had then invented missionary object lessons, by which the boys and girls of other lands could be made as real to our boys and girls as are the young folks of the neighborhood? There is a plenty of literature, and whole libraries, now available for use in juvenile societies and mission bands.

IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The different denominations are laying special stress on missionary education for the Sunday school. Missionary days and concert exercises, missionary comments in the Sunday school quarterlies, missionary object lessons in the class, missionary books in the libraries—these are common methods. Churches are assuming support of the Sunday school, and leaving the members of the school free to contribute every Sunday for benevolent purposes. Here is the crux of the situation, and essential part of the education—training people to give, to love to give, to render the Lord what belongs to Him, and use the remainder as His stewards.

IN THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY.

The devotional meeting has proved a good place for planting missionary seed and for sowing missionary information; but there is still room for more definite and systematic study. The peculiar bond that unites the members of the Society is just the bond likely to hold the young people together in the mission study class. In the Society is a good place to find young men and women for the class. Let this field be brought under cultivation also.

The whole church educated to help evangelize the whole world. It is a possibility, and a glorious one. Are you going to do anything by way of missionary education the coming fall and winter to develop an efficient church for an effective missionary campaign?—The Christian Missionary.

START.

There's art in a start.

Every good thing has waited for years, perhaps for ages, and only for a starter.

The good things in our life have waited in the same way, perhaps are still waiting.

The art of a start is this: Just begin!

Don't wait to feel like it, for you won't.

Don't wait for circumstances to compel you, for they won't.

Don't wait till it is easier, for it never will be.

If the thing ought to be done, start it, and start it now.

Begin today that long-deferred task; enter upon that spiritual undertaking; assume that responsibility from which you have shrunk; launch out upon that far journey from which you have held back.

That is half of the art of life: start.—C. E. World.

"The shortness of life is bound up with its fullness. It is to him who is most active, always thinking, feeling, working, caring for people and for things, that life seems short. Strip a life empty, and it will seem long enough."

WHEN A CHURCH REALLY STUDIES THE BIBLE.

(Continued from Page 5.)

purpose to use their Bibles in leading men to Christ. It doesn't make so much difference in the Moody church who preaches, or how well or how poorly he preaches; for, whether the preacher does his duty or not, the personal workers will do theirs, and souls will be saved.

The church constantly prospers and grows. I was pastor of the church for twelve years. During the last four years of those twelve I was absent the entire time except one month, yet the church went on prospering and growing just as when I was at home. Indeed, when I was in this country I was absent from my pulpit five months each year. For the last two or three years the church has had no pastor, and has depended on supplies for preaching; yet I found on my recent visit that the congregations were filling the great auditorium morning and evening, and that, too, in sweltering weather, and that the membership had increased from the 2,000 with which I left it to 2,700.

A third result is the large and live prayer-meetings. The prayer-meeting of the Moody is an almost unique meeting, and this very largely because it is a Bible-studying church. It is not necessary for the leader to urge the people to take part: it keeps him busy to hold them in check, and that in spite of the fact that there are no long speeches.

There are constant and numerous and thoroughgoing conversions. During the eight years that I was actively pastor of the church there was not one Sunday on which there were not conversions. A great many of the conversions are of transients passing through the city, or of visitors from other congregations in the city, who very properly after their conversion go back and unite with their own churches; and yet the smallest number that I received into that church in any one year was about 250, and in those eight years I gave the right hand of fellowship to more than 2,000 new members.

There is large giving to the church and to foreign missions. It could easily be proved that Bible study has been the direct cause of much of the remarkable giving of this church. I have had a housemaid step up to me and hand me fifty dollars for foreign missions. I have known a janitor to withdraw his entire bank account and hand it to me for foreign missions. A few weeks ago the church felt that it ought to open a rescue mission a few blocks from the church. They appointed a Sunday to take up a collection for that purpose. They asked for $5,000. They got $7,000.

How it Paid One Man.

Many ministers of the gospel and many foreign missionaries have gone out from the church since they got to studying the Bible in this way. There are numerous representatives in China and Africa, and others in India and Japan and other lands. I noticed in the Christian Endeavor room the other day a long roll of those who had gone out from that one organization. Mr. William Borden was one of the latest gifts of the church to foreign missions; and he being dead yet speaketh, not only by his munificent gifts to foreign missions, but far more by his personal consecration, holy life, and self-sacrifice. It was beyond a question the systematic Bible study that drew Mrs. Borden to the Moody church, and her son with her.

There have been marked results in individual lives. I have space for but one illustration. There was in the church when I first went to it a young man, an officer in my Bible class, utterly discouraged and doubting his own salvation. I had the privilege of leading him into assurance of his acceptance before God, but he was not even then an important factor in the life of the church or the community. He worked for a commission house down on South Water Street for $12.50 a week. On that meager salary he married and had children. One Sunday morning I preached a sermon on the importance of regular and systematic Bible study. It went straight home to this man's heart. He had to get up at two or three o'clock in the morning to go down to South Water Street to buy for the house for which he worked. He made up his mind that Sunday morning that he would arise an hour earlier every morning, that he might have an hour each morning for solid, systematic Bible study. Everything about him seemed to expand under the stimulus of Bible study. Within a year he went into business for himself. The first year he sprang from $12.50 a week to $5,000 for the year. The next he doubled that. What his income is now I do not venture to say, but I know that in one year he has given $6,000 to our own church, besides generous gifts to foreign missions and other causes. But his development in character and Christian service has been the chief thing. I was holding a series of meetings at the church during the pastorate of Dr. Dixon, and a prominent man from South Water Street came up to Dr. Dixon, and said, "I want the kind of religion —'s got" (mentioning this man). He was a leader in the Gypsy Smith movement, in the Chapman-Alexander campaign, and in everything aggressive and truly evangelical that has come to Chicago in recent years.

Can what has been done in the Moody church be done in other churches, especially small churches? It can, all that is essential and vital in it.

1. Let the pastor (or some energetic layman) be thoroughly convinced that the most important thing (except prayer) in individual Christian lives, and in the life of the church as a whole, is systematic Bible study.

2. Preach, and preach often, and preach intelligently, on the importance of systematic Bible study. Keep everlastingly hammering away on that theme. On two of the four Sunday mornings that I recently spent with the Moody church I spoke on the "Importance and Results of Bible study" (Text: Psa. 1:1-3), and "How to Study the Bible" (Text: Acts 17:11). I had often spoken on those subjects before, but I did it again, lest they forget.

3. Organize classes for Bible study that will meet the peculiar needs of every member of your congregation and every member of the community. Do not try to organize them all in one day. Make a thorough success of one, then organize another to succeed along with it. But do not be content with merely organizing them. See that they go after they are organized. I know men that can beat the world at organizing things, but as soon as they are organized they leave them to perish.

4. Careful and prayerful selection of teachers is a big factor. If you haven't the right kind of men and women, develop them. It takes time, patience, and hard work, but it pays.

5. Advertise the work. Anything that is worth while is worth advertising. There isn't time to tell how we advertised.

6. Do it all with prayer. I have put that last of all, because it is the most important of all. The Bible study work of the Moody church is steeped in prayer. For years the writer of this article, with others who had the Bible study work most at heart, spent the late hours of every Saturday night and the early hours of every Sunday morning on his knees or on his face before God in prayer, and therein on the human side lay the secret of the success of those Bible classes.—Rev. R. A. Torrey, D. D., in The Sunday School Times.

"What do the Suffragettes want, anyhow?"

"We want to sweep the country, Dad."

"Well, do not despise small beginnings. Suppose you make a start with the dining room, my dear."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SPEECHLESS FOR THANKS.

Mena, Ark.—"I find Cardui to be all you represent," writes Mrs. H. B. York, of this city. "I suffered from womanly ailments for nearly two years, before I tried Cardui. I have been so relieved since taking it. I cannot say enough in its praise. It has done me a world of good, and I recommend Cardui to all women." Cardui is over 50 years old, and the demand is greater today than ever. Cardui is the standard, tonic medicine, for women of every age. Would you like to be well and strong? Then take Cardui. Its record shows that it will help you. Begin today. Why wait? Adv

SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

Schedule of the trains leaving Elon College:

N. B.—The following schedule figures are published only as information and are not guaranteed.

No. 21—11:28 A. M. Through Train for Asheville with Chair Car for Waynesville. Connects at Asheville with Carolina Special for Cincinnati and Chicago, also for Chattanooga, Memphis and all Eastern points. Connects at Greensboro with Through Train for Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, also with local train for points South.

No. 139—6:32 P. M. For Greensboro. Handles through Pullman Sleeping Car for Atlanta. Makes connections for all points North, East, South and West, New Orleans, Texas and California points.

No. 131—9:27 P. M. For Greensboro. Makes direct connection with Train No. 38, Solid Sleeping Car Train for Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, makes connection for Boston, Pittsburgh, Chicago, and all Eastern and Northern points. Connects with Through Tourist Sleeping Car for New Orleans, El Paso, Los Angeles, and San Francisco.

No. 111—5:44 A. M. For Greensboro, with Sleeping Car for Winston-Salem. Connects with No. 37, Through Train for Atlanta, New Orleans, connects also for Asheville, St. Louis, Memphis, Birmingham and all Western and Southern points. Also with local train for Danville, Lynchburg and Washington.

No. 22—4:48 P. M. Raleigh and Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern and S. A. L. Rwy., also at Selma with A. C. L. Rwy. And at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 144—10:08 A. M. For Raleigh and Goldsboro. Makes connections at Selma with A. C. L. Rwy., for points North and South, and at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 108—8:00 A. M. Local Train for Raleigh, Selma and Goldsboro. Makes connection with S. A. L. Rwy. at Raleigh and A. C. L. Rwy. at Selma and Goldsboro.

No. 112—1:27 A. M. For Raleigh, Selma, Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern, S. A. L. and R. C. & S. Railway, at Selma with A. C. L. Rwy., at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

For detailed information, also for information concerning special round trip rates account various special occasions and Pullman Sleeping Car reservations, ask any Southern Railway Agent or communicate with the undersigned.

J. O. JONES.

Traveling Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books; Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

HIGH PRICES FOR HOGS

Hogs are selling at a high price, and will continue to do so in the future. Dead hogs bring no money to the farmer.

Do not let your hogs die. Cure them of Cholera, keep the worms out of them, keep their blood in good condition, and make them thrifty by the use of the Remedy manufactured by The Snoddy Remedy Company, of Alton, Ill. A $5.00 case cures 50 hogs. We want to tell you how to do it. Send for our Free Booklet of incalculable value to the farmer. Free for the asking. We want agents everywhere.

SNODDY REMEDY COMPANY,

121 Alby Street, Alton, Ill.

Join the CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 15.

GOD'S WORD IN SONG

OUR SONG BOOKS TEACH THE GOSPEL AS FULLY IN
SONG AS OUR PREACHERS DO IN SERMON

"The Gospel Message in Song"—revised and enlarged—contains 205 of the sweetest and most soul-stirring songs. Words and music of the highest class. The thought of a reformation in song book making prompted its compilation. No other song book like it before it had been published. In it the Gospel is taught as fully in song as loyal disciples endeavor to teach in sermon. Published in round and shaped notes. Out Five years and over 60,000 copies sold. Endorsed by leading men and women in the Christian Church. Beautifully bound and printed. Prices: 30c a copy prepaid; $3 per doz. not prepaid; $3.50 per doz. prepaid; $20 per hundred not prepaid; 50 at the hundred rate.

"Redemption's Way in Song"—by S. H. Hall, Flavil Hall and F. L. Rowe—especially suited to Evangelistic and Gospel Tent Work. Prices: 15c a copy prepaid; $1.40 per doz. not prepaid; $1.60 a doz. prepaid; $10 per hundred, not prepaid; 50 at hundred rate. Send all orders to

S. H. HALL, - - - 81 Ashby St., Atlanta, Ga.

Flavil Hall F. L. Rowe S.H. Hall

INCREASE YOUR GRAIN YIELD.
Agricultural experts tell us that the quantity of grain grown per acre depends primarily upon an even stand of seed in planting. It is, therefore, of the greatest importance to use a thoroughly dependable seeder.

In the Farquhar Pennsylvania we offer a Drill especially adapted to Southern conditions. This machine sows all kinds of grain including rust-proof oats with absolute regularity. The grass seeder can be used either in front or behind the boots. Fertilizer attachments of the positive force feed variety. Light of draft, durable—an implement that can be profitably employed on every farm.

Big new Catalog describing the Pennsylvania seeder mailed free on request. A postal will bring you copy of this instructive book along with full particulars of our special introductory proposition. For your own good, write us to-day.

A. B. FARQUHAR CO., Ltd.,
Box 306 York, Pa.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLE

LARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10½ x 12¼ in.

HOLMAN RED LETTER SELF-PRONOUNCING TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches.

THE TYPE.
23 The Bāb-ŷ-lō'ni-an, and all the Chāl-dē'an, 'Pē'kōd, and Shō'a, and Kō'a, and all the Ās-sūr'i-an with

No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges. $2.50
No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges. 3.00
Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENT SELF-PRONOUNCING

No. 013 R. L.

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Daintiest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2½ x 4¼ inches.

THE TYPE.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Je'sus is the

No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges.50
No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms.75
Postage, 3 Cents.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. E. M. CARTER, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

E. M. Carter, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amount brought forward$2,409.25

MONTHLY S. S. OFFERING.

Oak Grove, N. C.	$.50
Antioch, Isle of Wight ..	1.79
New Hope, Va.	.52
Mt. Bethel	2.00
Shallow Ford	.62
Howard Chapel	.86
New Lebanon	1.29
Berea, Nansmond	5.55
Portersville, Eaton, Ill. .	4.20

SPECIAL.

Mrs. H. Clay King	1.00
Marion, N. Y., S. S.	4.00
Tyler Bolling, work	2.00
Baraca C., New Lebanon 1.00	25.33

$2,409.25

The time of the year has come for us to have fall clothing for the children. Think of it! a suit for all our children. We would appreciate sweaters for the boys; and girls too. Now, I think it would be a fine work for your school or society to provide something of this kind for us. And, if you will just look what an offering we have this week you will see how much we are able to buy; and keep other things we need.

At another place, under the heading, "If not the pastors, then who?" you will find some real good thoughts; read it and think it over. These same conditions we are having to meet in our institution, only we care for our children with less expense than does Bro. Reynolds: our expense is 16c. per day, or $4.80 per month.

We succeeded in getting about 55 tons of silage into the silo. This is an extra feed for the cows, and will feed them about six months.

We received a very valuable package from Mrs. M. F. Cook, Cor. Sec. of L. A. S., Pleasant Grove, Va. These good people have the work at heart and are standing by it with their means. The package contained all new goods, and valuable to us. Thank you, one and all, who made it possible.

Miss Sudie McCauley, our teacher and matron, is spending a few days at her home near Chapel Hill this week.

Our school will begin the 29th. We are working hard to get ready to send all the children the first day.

E. M. CARTER,
Superintendent.

IF NOT THE PASTORS, THEN WHO?

All during the summer we have made appeals under the Calendar Plan to the churches that were designated to contribute to the Orphanage for the various months. Some few of these brethren have placed the matter before their churches and the churches have responded. We sincerely thank these brethren. But we know in many instances we have never been able to get the pastors to so much as speak of it to their churches. Some of them complain of too many appeals, and so the church never hears of our need. Brethren, stop a moment and think—if we can't get the ear of the churches through you, how can it be done? You are the leader, and if you don't think enough of the Orphanage to present its needs to your church, who will do it? We can't send these letters direct to your people—that's not possible, neither is it desirable. Well, what does all of this mean? Simply this: During the month of August the churches, Sunday schools and individuals sent us the sum of just $310.00 or at the rate of $10.00 per day, and mind you we are expected to care for 140 children with this sum of money, amounting to about 7 cents per day for each child. The State of Alabama allows the sum of 30 cents per day for feeding prisoners. Just feeding them, mind you, while we must do everything for the child. We often hear it said "the Orphanage is in good shape," and it is, but pastors, brethren, can we make brick without straw? Surely, surely, you are not willing for this great institution to suffer just from neglect. Our Orphanage is now by far the largest in the State. Brother pastors, it needs your support, your sympathy and your prayers. In round figures it takes about $10.00 per month to care for a child; this means about $1,500.00 per month, so you see we were short about $1,200.00 of the sum necessary to pay our bills for August. No wonder we are getting in debt, but who is to blame? We need a contribution from every one of our churches as soon as possible. Don't you think so?—M. C. Reynolds, G. M. of "Our Children."

FOR CONSCIENCE SAKE.

Mr. Stephen Girard, the infidel millionaire of Philadelphia, one Saturday bade his clerks come next day and unload a vessel which had just arrived.

One young man stepped up to the desk and said, as he turned pale: "Mr. Girard, I cannot work tomorrow."

"Well, sir, if you cannot do as I wish, we can separate."

"I know that, sir," said the hero, "and I also know that I have a widowed mother to care for, but I cannot work on Sunday."

"Very well, sir," said the proprietor, "go to the cashier's desk and he will settle with you."

For three weeks the young man tramped the streets of Philadelphia looking for work.

One day a bank president asked Mr. Girard to name a suitable person for cashier of a new bank about to be started. After reflection, Mr. Girard named this young man.

"But I thought you discharged him."

"I did," was the answer, "because he would not work on Sunday; and the man who will lose his situation from principle is the man to whom you can intrust your money."—Exchange.

—And They'll Even Make A Blind Man See—

Of course, I don't mean one blind from birth or disease—but near-blind and weak-eyed on account of old age.

Now it makes no difference if you're as near-blind and weak-eyed as the old gentleman shown in the above picture, I'm going to send you a handsome pair of 10-karat SOLID GOLD "Perfect Vision" spectacles without a cent of money, and if you like to go out hunting occasionally, you'll find that you can shoulder your gun and drop the smallest squirrel off the tallest tree top at the very first shot sure, with the help of these wonderful "Perfect Vision" spectacles of mine. And in the evening, when the shadows are gathering in the dusk, they'll easily enable you to distinguish a horse from a cow out in the pasture at the greatest distance and as far as your eye can reach.

Write me today for a pair of these wonderful "Perfect Vision" spectacles of mine, and as soon as you get them I want you to put them on your eyes, no matter how weak they may be; sit down in front of the open hearth one of these cold wintry nights, and you'll be agreeably surprised to discover that you can again read the very finest print in your bible with them on, even by the dim firelight; you'll find that you can again thread the smallest-eyed needle you can lay your hands on, and do the finest kind of embroidery and crocheting with them on, and do it all night long if you like without any headaches or eye-pains and with as much ease and comfort as you ever did in your life.

Now Don't Take My Word For It but send for a pair at once and try them out yourself for reading, sewing, hunting, driving, indoors, outdoors, anywhere and everywhere, anyway and every way. Then after a thorough try-out, if you find that every word I have said about them is as honest and as true as gospel, and if they really have restored to you the absolute perfect eyesight of your early youth, you can keep the lenses forever without one cent of pay, and by showing them around to your friends and neighbors, and speak a good word for them whenever you have the chance. If you want to do me this favor just write your name, address and age on the below $3.50 certificate at once, and this will entitle you to a pair of my famous "Perfect Vision" lenses absolutely free of charge as an advertisement.

Just Do Me A Good Turn

350
350

DR. HAUX SPECTACLE CO.—Room 75 ST. LOUIS, MO.

Please send me on 7-days' free trial a handsome pair of 10-karat SOLID GOLD spectacles, set complete with your famous "Perfect Vision" lenses, all ready for use, also a fine leatherette plush-lined German-silver-tipped gold-lettered pocketbook spectacle-case, and if I find that the 10-karat SOLID GOLD frame is really overlaid and stiffened with genuine 10-karat pure gold, and will positively stand the 10-karat solid gold acid test without the slightest discoloration (so that I will be proud to wear them in company and to church on Sundays) then and then only will I pay you your special reduced advertising price of $1.50, if in my opinion they are really worth $5, the price you have them stamped in the nosepiece, as shown in the above picture. If, however, I don't want to keep the spectacle-frames for any reason whatever, I am positively going to remove the lenses and put them into my own frames without paying you one single solitary cent for them, as you have agreed in the above announcement to accept this certificate in full and complete payment of a pair of your famous "Perfect Vision" lenses as an advertisement, and I am certainly going to make you stick to that contract.

MY AGE IS.....

NAME

POSTOFFICE

RURAL ROUTE AND BOX No.....STATE.....

350
350

IMPORTANT—Fill out this certificate right now and mail it to me at once without a cent of money.

A LEADING BOARDING SCHOOL

for 250 Students. Established 1884. Prepares for College, Business, Teaching, or for Life. Health, Character and Scholarship. Wide patronage. VERY REASONABLE. Each student receives personal attention. School highly endorsed. (Location is near Greensboro, N. C.) For Beautiful Catalogue, Views, etc., address the President.

W. T. WHITSETT, PH. D.
WHITSETT, NORTH CAROLINA

RAILWAYS AND SHIPPERS.

Healthy business conditions throughout the Southeast during the Fall and Winter are indicated by the action of the railways of this section in calling upon shippers to aid them in maintaining an adequate car supply during the crop moving season. Anticipating a heavy demand for cars, the railways are themselves doing everything possible to increase their car supply. Shops are being run at full capacity to put every available car in repair and car builders are being urged to turn out new equipment as rapidly as possible. Steps are also being taken to provide for the most expeditious handling of cars at terminals and transfer points.

While the railways are making these preparations for the rush of heavy business, it is recognized that shippers can render assistance of the greatest importance by loading and unloading cars as promptly as possible, thus avoiding unnecessary detention of cars, and by loading cars to their full capacity. As an adequate car supply is as important to shippers and the general public as it is to the railways, an appeal is being made to shippers individually and through trade and commercial bodies to aid the railways in their effort to secure the maximum efficiency in the use of cars.

SCHOOL DAYS.

Watch out for little Willie and Katie as you send them to school these days. Send them only in first class shape. Nine chances out of ten they need more than watching. It is a four-to-five shot that they need to have their teeth attended to, if you intend them to have a lifelong blessing of good teeth. There is only one time to attend to teeth, and that is right now. Six months or a year may mean the permanent loss of one or more permanent teeth, and you doom your children to a lifelong handicap of bad teeth, such as you yourself have had. If there is any lesson parents should learn from hard experience, it is that neglecting teeth does not pay. If children are taught early the habit of using tooth brushes daily or twice a day, and if defects are attended to at once, 95 per cent of our tooth troubles would disappear.

Willie's and Katie's eyes should be watched these days, too. If they have to hold a book closer than nine inches or farther than twenty-four inches from the eyes, or if they complain of headaches, or find that their vision is blurred in one or both eyes, take them to your family physician, or better still, to a specialist on eye, ear, nose and throat diseases. Never take them to a street peddler who sells "spectacles" or "eyeglasses." Remember that your child has but two eyes for life, and you can't take many chances with only two. Properly fitted glasses will prevent or cure nine-tenths of the eye troubles of children, but improperly fitted glasses make bad matters worse.

Join the CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 15.

Make sure that little Willie and Katie hear well out of both ears, that they are not mouth breathers, and that they keep in good physical trim while they are in school, and you will be proud of the progress and record of your boy and girl at the end of the school year.

—N. C. State Board of Health.

NATIONAL CONSERVATION EXPOSITION

Knoxville, Tenn., September 1st to November 1st, 1913.

Southern Railway announces the sale of very low round trip tickets for the above occasion. Tickets will be on sale daily up to November 1st, 1913.

Ask your agent, or write the undersigned for complete information, Pullman reservations, etc.

J. O. JONES,
Traveling Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads,
Bill Heads,
Statements,
Envelopes
Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

The Southern Christian Publishing Company,

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Oldest Jewelry Mail Order House in America
Established 1855

C 25 $5.00
Solid Gold Pend., 7 Baroque Pearl, 1 Coral Cameo.

C 27 $14.25
Fine White Dia. in 14k Tiffany Mtg.

C 29 $2.50
Solid Gold Cuff Buttons, Roman Finish.

C 31 Individual Communion Set
Made of highly polished pure Aluminum. Every cup hole is cushioned on three sides making it noiseless, complete with Cover, one Tray and 25 Glasses..... $7.50
C-32—Complete with 36 Glasses..... $7.50
C-33—Extra Tray with 25 Glasses..... 4.75
C-34—Extra Tray with 36 Glasses..... 5.50
We carry a complete line of silver plated and aluminum communion sets, bread-trays and collection plates; also automatic filters, glasses, etc.

C 26 $3.50
Solid Gold Pendant, 2 Topaz, 1 Pearl and 2 Baroque Pearl Drops.

C 28 $3.50
Solid Gold Signet Ring polished and Rose Finish.

C 30 $1.25
Solid Gold Scarf Pin, Roman Finish.

E. V. Roddin & Co., Chicago, Ill.
809-10-11 Heyworth Bldg., 29 E. Madison St.
Just write your name and address below, cut the coupon and mail now. You will receive our 160 page jewelry catalog by return mail.

Name.....
Street.....
City.....State.....

SAVE YOUR CLOTHING

We can help you. Thousands of dollars worth of Women's and Men's clothing is every year thrown away for no fault except stain, or streak, or spot that would readily yield to our Dry Cleaning process and at a merely nominal expense.

WE DRY CLEAN AND DYE SUCCESSFULLY

GENTLEMEN'S	Suits	LADIES'	Coat Suits
	Overcoats		Skirts
	Vests		Waists
	Trousers		Dresses
	Coats		Sweaters
	Ties		Gowns, Evening and Reception
	Hats (Cleaned)		Wrappers

We Clean and Dye household Draperies, Plumes, Gloves. We clean Automobile Coats, Furs, Rugs and Corsets in a superior manner. We use the genuine French method of Dry Cleaning. We are responsible and experienced. We refer to any Bank or citizen of Greensboro.

COLUMBIA LAUNDRY CO.

106 Fayetteville Street
GREENSBORO, N. C.

FARM FOR SALE

Known as the Cobb place, situated from a mile to two miles north of Elon College, surrounding a graded school and Christian church, containing 200 acres, well watered and well timbered, along and near to macadamized road. Offered as a whole; or in three sections, to-wit: home place, with two-story dwelling and outhouses, 70 acres; section along macadamized road 50 acres, 40 of which are in timber; third section on South side containing 80 acres, ten acres meadow. Prefer to sell privately. Terms to suit purchaser. One wishing to inspect place see W. H. McLean, Whitsett, N. C.

For prices and particulars address
JOHN T. COBB,
38-4t-Adv Enfield, N. C.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.
Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81	4:35 a. m.
No. 29	Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41	4:10 p. m.
No. 43	6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH.

No. 84	12:48 a. m.
No. 38	11:35 a. m.
No. 66	12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

CANCER

FREE TREATISE
The Leach Sanatorium, Indianapolis, Ind., has published a booklet which gives interesting facts about the cause of Cancer, also tells what to do for pain, bleeding, odor, etc. Write for it today, mentioning this paper.

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days. usually gives entire relief in 15 to 45 days and effects cure 20 to 60 days. Write for trial treatment FREE.
Dr. B. H. GREEN'S SOUS, Box H, 20 64.

JUST FOR FUN.

It has to be confessed that the minister was rather long-winded. During the "fifthly" a young wife in the congregation remembered that she had left the Sunday dinner in the gas-range without regulating the flame. She hastily wrote a note and slipped it to her husband, who was an usher.

He, thinking it was intended for the minister, calmly walked up and laid it on the pulpit.

The minister paused, took the note with a smile, which changed into a terrific frown as he read:

"Please hurry home and shut off the gas."—Presbyterian Witness.

Patron (to very slow waiter)—
"Bring me some salad, please. And you might send me a post card every now and then while you're away."—Judge.

ARE YOU A WOMAN?

Baltimore, Md.—Mrs. W. H. Ison, at 1419 East Madison street, writes, "For several years, I suffered, off and on, from female troubles, until finally I was taken down and could do nothing. The pains I experienced, I shall never forget. I lost weight till I was only skin and bones. I believe I would have been in my grave, if I had not tried Cardui. I shall praise it as long as I live." Many women, like Mrs. Ison, are weak and discouraged, on account of some painful ailment. Are you one of these sufferers? Cardui will help you. Try it today. Any druggist. Adv.

"I suppose your family will go away for the summer?"

"Yes," replied the man in the alpaca coat.

"And you?"

"Oh, I'll have a nice time, too. I'm the one who will sit quietly at home and look at the pretty pictures on the postcards."—Ex.

THIS WILL INTEREST MANY.

F. W. Parkhurst, the Boston publisher, says that if anyone afflicted with rheumatism in any form, neuralgia or kidney trouble, will send their address to him at 701 Carney Building, Boston, Mass., he will direct them to a perfect cure. He has nothing to sell or give; only tells you how he was cured after search for relief. Hundreds have tested it with success. Adv.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

We desire to correspond with persons who have BOXWOOD TREES OR HEDGES with a view of purchasing the sprays for shipment to be made in November. In replying please state the number of trees or feet of hedge and their height, from which you can cut these sprays. Also mail sample. Reference gladly exchanged.

PITTSBURGH CUT FLOWER COMPANY,
No. 121 7th St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

NEW FEATHER BEDS ONLY $6.50.
Full weight 36 pounds. New, clean and odorless. 6-pound Pillows $1.08 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for FREE catalogue. Address SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 71, Greensboro, N. C.

Help your church paper by getting a friend to subscribe for The Christian Sun.

WEST DORMITORY
Elon College Campus View, Looking North-East From the Depot.

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING
The Administration Building, Looking North West, Showing the West Dormitory in the Distance.

EAST DORMITORY
West Dormitory, View, Showing Rear Porch and Annex, Containing College Dining Hall, Women's Gymnasium and Art Studio.

Elon College

For Both Men and Women

Elon College, North Carolina

For a quarter century Elon College has rendered the best families of the South a paragon service in providing young men and young women with the best mental, moral and physical training under positive Christian influences, tho entirely free from sectarianism.

Karl Lehman, of Boston, testifies that "of all the Colleges I have visited as International Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor during six years, the spirit of Elon College appeals to me as most genuinely Christian." Elon College is situated in the delightful hill country, a section unsurpassed for beauty, with a climate far-famed for its healthfulness. There is no medical fee, for there is no necessity for it. Its campus, comprising twenty-five acres of native oak and hickory, shrubbery, winding walks and driveways, is one of the most beautiful in the South and, with its two unsurpassed gymnasia, provides abundant opportunity for recreation and relaxation.

The splendid equipment of Elon College was only made possible through liberal endowment. It maintains seven elegant new buildings, especially designed and appointed for college work. These are furnished with every known convenience; steam heat, electric lights, running water, baths and sewerage. The College plant is conservatively valued at $300,000.00.

Elon College is distinctly a high-grade institution, though its charges are moderate. Its graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great universities without examination. Its literary and scientific courses are arranged in various departments which lead to the degrees of Master of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Pedagogy, and a three-years' course leading to the degree of Licentiate of Instruction, designed especially for teachers. This institution affords special opportunities for training in Piano, Voice, Expression, Fine Arts, Normal Training, Physical Culture and Commercial Practice.

The Faculty consists of twenty-one specialists; men and women selected not only for their superior teaching ability, but also for their exemplary character and manners.

The student body numbers nearly four hundred and comes from thirteen states.

The lowest Rates in the South, only $131 to $191 per College session of ten months. Fall Term always opens the first Wednesday in September. For full descriptive catalogue and view-book, address

President W. A. Harper, LL. D.,
Elon College, N. C.
Box 88

Elon College, N. C. The Old College Well, now a Campus Lounging House, but Sacred in Elon History.

Elon College, N. C. The Gym. Room of the Alumni Building, one of the largest floors of polished maple in the South.

DR. J. H. BROOKS,

Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C

MORPHINE WHISKEY
and TOBACCO
HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARCROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

HARD COLD?

You could not please us better than to ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for hard colds, coughs, bronchitis. Thousands of families always keep it in the house.

J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun. $1.50.

GET YOUR PIANO THROUGH THE Christian Sun Piano Club AND SAVE ONE-THIRD THE COST.

No matter where you live, nor what style of piano or player-piano you want, the Club will save you at least one-third the cost. By "bunching" our orders in a club of one hundred buyers each of us gets the rock-bottom factory price and saves from one to two hundred dollars according to the style of instrument selected.

But the big saving in price is only one, and by no means the most important, of the many attractive features of the Club. Read the following brief outline, then write for catalogue giving full explanation and particulars.

FEATURES OF THE CLUB

1. A clear saving of one-third the cost.
2. Nothing to pay unless, after a thorough trial of the instrument in your own home, you find it perfectly satisfactory and decide to keep it.
3. If, after the free trial, you are delighted with the superior quality of the instrument, the attractive price, the liberal and convenient terms, the protective guarantees and the Club as a whole, then you accept it. But if, for any reason, you are not pleased, you simply notify the Club and upon receipt of their shipping instructions return the instrument, freight collect. The trial costs you nothing, puts you under no obligations and is the only perfect protection against every possibility of dissatisfaction.
4. Freight prepaid, safe delivery guaranteed.
5. Easy and convenient terms of payment and a clear receipt to your family in the event of your death before the instrument is fully paid for, provided, of course, you have complied with the printed regulations of the Club.
6. Every instrument is fully guaranteed against all imperfections of workmanship and materials.
7. Liberal allowances for old pianos and organs in exchange for new pianos and new player-pianos.
8. Each purchaser is responsible only for his own order and yet benefits by the combined action of the one hundred buyers.
9. You have a complete line of the best pianos and player-pianos to select from and will find no difficulty in getting an instrument that suits you exactly.
10. Even a child who knows nothing about business is perfectly safe in purchasing through the Club, for there are no tricks, no misrepresentations, no exaggerations, no falsifying, no special prices to special buyers, no imposition, no annoyance by insulting letters, no begging you to keep the instrument, etc., etc.
11. You get an instrument of the highest quality, of the sweetest tone, of rare artistic beauty, of the greatest durability, of the strongest endorsement, and of the most approved reputation and standing.
12. You deal with people of the highest standing, of unquestioned reliability, of greatest experience and efficiency, of clean and honorable reputation, people who would not cheat you if they had the opportunity.
13. Every statement and representation made by the Club is guaranteed both by the Advertising Manager of THE CHRISTIAN SUN and by Ludden & Bates, one of the oldest, largest and most responsible piano firms in America.

Absolutely No Risk in Purchasing Through the Club

The Club assumes all of the responsibility of proving to your entire satisfaction that you are getting an instrument of the highest quality at the lowest possible price. You are the judge and the Club leaves the decision entirely to you. When you have tried the piano or the player-piano we know what your decision will be, for we know what hundreds of other people think of the instruments and the prices. If you would like to see the letters of those who have purchased through the Club we will gladly send you a booklet containing them.

If you would like to save a hundred dollars or more on your instrument and be absolutely sure of perfect and lasting satisfaction, write for your copy of the Club catalogue today. Address

Ludden & Bates CHRISTIAN SUN
PIANO CLUB DEPT., Atlanta, Ga.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Rowland.

Walter Perry Rowland, the infant son of Bro. and Sister C. H. Rowland, of Henderson, N. C., was born Feb. 23, 1913, died Sept. 14, 1913, aged 6 months and 19 days. Little Walter was sick all his life. Loving hands and skilled physicians did all possible for his recovery. The funeral was conducted from the home on Monday, Sept. 15th, by the writer and Rev. A. F. Banks, and the burial was at Liberty Christian Church. Loved ones are sad, but they take comfort in the promises of the Savior and the hope of seeing the little one again.

C. E. NEWMAN.

Willis.

Beulah Willis was born Feb. 22, 1895, and died Sept. 2, 1913, aged 18 years, six months and ten days. She was a member of the Burlington Christian church and deeply interested in its welfare.

Her Sunday school class attended the funeral services, which were conducted from the home, and they placed a beautiful floral tribute, among others, upon her grave, with the word "Peace."

A young woman of noble ambition and high ideals has been called from earth to the home beyond. She thought to enter College this Fall, but she fell asleep. Her many friends and loved ones deeply mourn her death. May the God of consolation comfort them and give them peace. Not now, but in the coming years we will understand.

A FRIEND.

"You never hear of a wealthy bachelor being run over by an auto."

"That's so. I wonder why it is?"

"To a man who is used to dodging mothers with marriageable daughters dodging automobiles is merely child's play."—Houston Post.

If you will go with us you must go against wind and tide; you must also own Religion in his rags, as well as when in his silver slippers; and stand by him, too, when bound in irons, as well as when he walketh the streets with applause.—Pilgrim's Progress.

OUT IN KANSAS.

Word comes from Kansas that during the first six years of prohibition in that State, insanity has decreased slightly over 16 per cent., or about one in six, as a direct result of the greatly decreased use of alcohol in all forms. General increased efficiency is claimed all along the line, but it is very hard to determine exactly the amount creditable to prohibition. Good for Kansas. Our own statistical experience satisfies us that Kansas is not faking on us. Othre states will continue to "get wise" and "get on the water wagon" from time to time, and alcoholism, like yellow fever and plague, will become largely a matter of record.—N. C. State Board of Health.

Persevere a little longer. Hot summer weather will not endure many weeks. At least the nights will soon be more bearable. Don't forget your tub bath, or at least your cold rub down night and morning. Keep your windows open wide all fall and winter. They are made to keep out rain and snow, not the fresh air.—N. C. State Board of Health.

A man who had been troubled with bronchitis for a long time called on a rather noted doctor. After a few questions the doctor told him he had a very common ailment that would readily yield to treatment.

"You're sure you can cure my bronchitis," said the man, "you must have had great experience with it."

"Why, my dear sir," confided the doctor, "I've had it myself for over twenty years!"—San Francisco Argonaut.

Mr. Rooter (as Grady takes a long slide to second)—He's safe. He's safe. He's safe.

Miss Newton (her first game)—O, I'm so glad. I was sure he must be killed.—Puck.

The Imperator recently carried to New York more than 4,500 persons, a larger number than ever before crossed the Atlantic in a single vessel; and she did it in 5 days, 19 hours, and 8 minutes. All the world is now a dooryard.

A BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY.

The Mint Cola Co. offers splendid opportunities for you to go into the Bottling Business. A chance to earn Two or Three Thousand Dollars per year on small capital. Write MINT COLA CO., Salisbury, N. C. Adv

24 BULBS FOR 10c.

and Complete Treatise on Bulb Culture, indoors and out, and beautiful Catalogue—ALL FOR 10 CENTS.

These 24 Bulbs, 8 each of 8 different kinds, Tulips, Jonquills, G. Hyacinths, Iris, Freesias, &c., will make beautiful pot flowers for winter or lovely early spring flowers for the garden. Plant now. Our Catalogue of Hyacinths, Tulips, Narcissus, Lilies, Hardy Plants and rare winter-blooming plants FREE TO ALL.

John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y.

FOR FEVERISHNESS AND ACHING
Whether from Malarious conditions, Colds or overheating, try Hicks' CAPUDINE. It reduces the fever and relieves the aching. It's liquid—10, 25 and 50 cents at Drug Stores

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.

Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles, Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

—HIGH CLASS—

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's Icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf.

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly.

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., OCTOBER 1, 1913

NO. 40

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

The Deepening Process.

"Higher criticism," the "liberal theology," and "the broad viewpoint," all have one defect—they are each and all wide enough, but not deep enough. It was a sage who said: "To widen our life without deepening it is only to weaken it." The spiritual life of our day is already broad enough; it needs deepening.

"Man Failure."

In rendering their verdict relative to the killing of twenty-one passengers, and injuring thirty-five more, in a wreck on the New Haven railroad September 2nd, the Interstate Commerce Commission says "Man failure" was the cause. There was inefficiency, says the Commission, from officials and directors down to and including trainmen. And so the innocent and the dependent had to die for the misdeeds and short comings of the guilty. It is ever and even so. When great calamities and sad catastrophes come, write down the cause, "man failure."

Diamonds and Rubies.

Envy is a low, and a base passion. Happy is he who can enjoy seeing the beautiful and the good things others possess, and have no feeling of jealousy, envy, or dislike. "I would rather be able to appreciate things I cannot have, than to have things I am not able to appreciate," said a generous observer. The riches, the jewelry, and the noble things around us, though belonging to others, are for our enjoyment, if we may look upon them for their intrinsic beauty and not from an eye of envy. All the world belongs to him who has an eye and ear for the beautiful and the good, but envieth not.

Wherein Is Greatness?

We need not strive for the noble things to do, with the expectation that doing these will make us noble or good or great. He is the greatest and most noble who knows how, and will do, with infinite pains and capacity, the small things, the insignificant things. Our Savior never showed Himself more worthy of being Master of all than when, with a towel girded about Him, He deigned to stoop and humbly wash His disciples' feet. "Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God; He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself. After that he poureth water into a basin, and began to wash the disciple's feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded" (Jno. 13:3-5).

Figures Reversed.

According to figures compiled by the American Contractor in 1906 architects of this country had in their hands plans for enlarging, or building, breweries and distilleries to the sum of $14,578,000; for churches $5,632,731. In the year of grace 1912, just six years intervening, the figures stand, for breweries and distilleries $2,937,783, for churches $14,870,506. The figures are more than reversed. No wonder liquor dealers throughout the land are raising an awful howl. The cause of temperance, sobriety, morality, sweeps on.

An Heir.

A rag-picker who has spent forty years of his life in humble and unceasing toil has amassed a comfortable fortune by his frugality. He is now to spend a large part of his fortune, he declares, in proving that he is a lineal descendant of a noble family in Italy and that royal blood courses through his veins. Suppose all who have spent years in honest toil were as desirous as this Italian to prove that they were heirs of the King and were to have a title. They might do so and still retain their fortunes, for "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. 3:29).

An American Industry?

A missionary in the heart of China organized a temperance society among the boys and girls. China was busy suppressing the opium habit; the missionary thought it a good time to help suppress the liquor habit. Imagine the missionary's surprise in receiving a note from the American consul saying he was instituting a boycott against "a great American industry," and that he would better let temperance alone and keep to his preaching. This order, mark you, was not from a Chinaman, but from an American. Is the liquor business more of an American industry than the church business, God's business in seeking to save youths from drunkenness and debauchery? We think not.

Thaw's Mother.

In all the dark and disgraceful conduct connected with the unspeakable Harry Thaw, there stands out one character unscathed and unquestioned. This is the profligate and wayward man's mother. From first to last and all the time she has been his guardian angel. Her interest in her son has never waned; her concern for his comfort and release has never abated. It takes the dark night to bring out the bright stars. The lowering cloud furnishes the canvas for painting the rainbow. Who can fathom the depths of the mother's love, or understand the might and main and majesty of the mother's heart? Poets have sung it, artists have painted it, sculptors have carved it, but no mortal has done it justice. If there is any love on this earth that has a semblance of God's love about it, it is mother's love, the unquenchable, inseparable love of a mother for her son, her daughter, the issue of her body and her blood. When you have said and done your best mother-love is that which cannot be described, and cannot be measured. It is the best that the human heart is capable of.

Grateful.

The plea of Miss Olivia May Wilson that the Santa Claus of the poor children be given the free use of the United States mails has one fatal objection, worthy and benevolent as her plea is; namely, we have never yet found anybody who would admit that he was rich—except some fellow who was half-drunk and was not rich. There are two things we never expect to see in this world,—men who are rich and admit that they are, and farmers who will not declare that "there is a short crop—not over half a crop or two-thirds at best." You may point back now to 1900 or 1890 as a great crop year, but I will aver that the people that year would not admit it. The Lord has lavished so abundantly upon us Americans, that we do not keep our sense of gratitude sufficiently keen. We need to cultivate that best of graces, gratitude to our Father for His rich gifts to each and all.

Men and Measures.

The Bible deals with men, not with theories and definitions and speculation. The only definition that comes to one's mind from the Bible is Paul's attempted one of "Faith." And even this one is illustrated by a whole category of faithful men. If you want to know what is the meaning of patience, of hope, of virtue, of chastity, of devotion, you will have to go to your lexicon. But if you want to see how these graces and virtues operate upon men and women you will go to your Bible. And that is what counts, virtues put into practice. Charles H. Spurgeon caught the true Bible spirit when he said: "Read the Bible, and it brings you into the association of the best people that ever lived. You stand beside Moses, and learn his meekness; beside Job, and learn his patience; beside Abraham, and learn his faith; beside Daniel, and learn his courage; beside Isaiah, and learn his fiery indignation toward evil doers; beside Paul, and catch something of his enthusiasm; beside Christ, and you feel His love."

For Good Roads.

Wednesday and Thursday, November 5th and 6th, have been appointed by a proclamation of the Governor, "Good Roads Days" in North Carolina. News papers, school teachers, county commissioners, officials, ministers of the gospel, are all called upon to observe the days themselves and to urge the people to observe them. The State is said to be paying a tribute of twelve million dollars a year to mud. That is enough. It is, indeed, far too much. For twelve million dollars we could build good roads, and this is only the cost of bad roads one year. People fear bonds and dread taxes, but no bonds are as pinching and no taxes are as exacting as those of mud. Bad roads are ten fold more expensive than good roads.

There is absolutely no line of industry not affected by bad roads, and greatly helped by good roads. This applies to farms, factories, schools and churches. If our farms are to come to their best values, our factories develop to their full capacity, our schools have their full attendance and our churches attain their highest efficiency, we must have good roads. We commend the Governor for his proclamation.

EDITORIAL

SOUND THE MISSIONARY NOTE.

One of our annual Conferences has already had its session. Others will convene shortly. Naturally the minds of many SUN readers turn to church matters, and plans for the future. If the power belonged to us we would lodge in the heart and mind of every minister, layman, and visitor who attends these Conferences a desire and a concern for Missions. We could wish that every prayer offered would include a petition for missions, every public address a plea for missions, every paper presented some idea or thought of missions. The SUN's editor believes with all his strength that the time has come, has been long since, when if we as a Christian people really mean business in the religious world we must make the theme of missions our shibboleth and our slogan.

Home missions and foreign missions both alike need our prayers, our efforts, our sacrifices and our abiding interest.

Missions are not a burden to any people. They are a benefit and a blessing. Our heavenly Father has graciously given us poor mortals a hand in helping to carry and to send the sweet and blessed message of the Cross, not because He needed us to help Him do His work, but because He knew we needed to help in this holy work for our own good and our own safety, that we as co-laborers with Him might be and become more like Him. Our Father has at His control legions of angels whom He could send to proclaim His love and preach His truth. But He out of care and compassion for us reserved the noble task for mortals. In this He was better to men than He was to the angels. Missions do not burden a people, in the sense of hurting or hindering them in other good ways and deeds; they are a blessing conferred by the Father upon children who sorely needed the blessing. The Christian world is richer today, richer in experience, richer in character, richer in heart and mind and purse because of the efforts put forth to spread the gospel, build churches in destitute places where churches are needed, and send the gospel to those who are perishing without it.

We ministers of the Conferences are not giving the churches a chance, and we parents are not giving our children a chance. The matter of missions is not being kept before the minds, nor in the hearts of the people, young and old, as it deserves. We are not preaching missions enough; we are not praying for missions enough, and we certainly are not giving to missions enough.

Let us, as we assemble for Conference, resolve one and all, to sound the missionary note. We shall have to do so before we get or enjoy the benefits and the blessings the Father has in store for us.

God can not prosper a non-missionary people and keep His word. The sooner we learn the source of our weakness, and our failure to measure up in advancement and progress with other churches, the better for us. And every right minded person knows well the reason why we, as a denomination, are not advancing as we might and is our privilege. We are not missionary. We are not preaching and teaching and praying missions as are the churches about us whose work is growing and whose borders are extending.

We shall never, we can never come into our own until we become missionary. So let our shibboleth and our slogan be—missions, missions, missions. For then there will come an awakening amongst us such as our eyes have never beheld.

THE NEW PLAN.

Many oppose new plans, and new methods, in church work, not because of any inherent wrong, but because they are new. Not so Rev. A. D. McClure, Pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Wilmington, N. C. Dr. McClure had a church of 724 members which was contributing $517 for all purposes. The old system of giving haphazard was in vogue. The doctor decided that the old system, which in so many churches means no system, could be improved upon. He adopted the new system, used the duplex envelope, and called upon his people to contribute systematically and regularly. The result was amazing. The first year, 1911, the contributions jumped from $517 to $22,009, an increase of $21,592 or 4176 per cent. Practically the same people did the giving, no one was strained, and all were happier and richer for the experiment. The gift of $22,009, did not hurt the church, it helped in every way.

So many pastors fear the people, or themselves or their God, when it comes to raising money for the Lord's work. Hence a lack of system, method, plan in raising church and Conference funds.

We are going to learn how to give somewhere in future. We haven't learned yet. And when we learn it will be found that the Bible was right, and that the amount there enjoined is right, namely, one-tenth of all our increase.

Maybe a new plan is yet to lead us back to the oldest plan of all, the plan of laying by in store the first fruits and the best, as an offering for our Lord's cause.

MOSES AND MEDITATION.

When Moses had finished his forty years of study, research and mental preparation at the Court of Pharaoh he thought himself quite ready to begin his life's work as liberator of his enslaved people. And well he might have thought so. He had been industrious, studious, eager; he had the ablest and best teachers of his day as instructors, and he had had access to the best books and most elaborate library of his time. He was trained as a prince in the very best learning of his day. Having such advantages, and the association at court of the statesmen and diplomats of his time, no wonder Moses thought at the end of forty years that he was prepared for his life's work.

So he goes forth to begin when, lo, the very first problem that confronts him is too much for him. He loses his temper, flies into a fret, —and commits murder. Moses is not yet prepared for his life's work. He thinks he is, but his judgment is at fault.

Then there begins an enforced, but necessary preparation. Moses must needs spend as much time in meditation, in spiritual pursuits, in prayer and moral development as he had spent in mental research and investigation. So for forty years more Moses is making preparation for his life's work. This indeed was a long period of preparation. But even with all these years spent in this manner Moses accomplished more, possibly, than any mortal man since his day. He gathered together a scattered band of slaves and made them into a nation. And he gave them a system of laws that all the world since his day has not been able to improve upon.

This life teaches that moral and spiritual preparation are as necessary as mental preparation.

When Moses had finished this part of his preparation he did not then think he was ready to undertake his great life's work. This preparation had made him humble, meek, lowly, submissive. It brought him to think of himself as incapable, inefficient, unworthy.

At the end of forty years when Moses thought he was prepared he was not. At the end of eighty years when Moses thought he was not prepared he was prepared.

Much of the education of our day makes one think one is ready. This is the reason why there are so many failures in life.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS OF SCHOOLS.

Charity and Children remarks that: "We were astonished the other day to hear that the school board in one of our most enlightened counties have reelected from year to year a superintendent of education who is a notorious drunkard. In all other respects he is a capable man, but if this is not a good reason for turning him down there can be no reason at all."

The real fact of the matter is that in many counties of the State the Superintendent's position in former years went begging. There was poor pay and less dignity attached. As a result inefficient lawyers with a scarcity of clients, physicians whom people that knew them didn't want in sickness, school teachers who could not teach school, and others in similar circumstances greatly needing "a side line" were called into requisition and "by the powers that be" were given Superintendent's place. It is too well known what sort of superintending the schools received under such a system.

But the system was and is more to blame than the man. Take the case Charity and Children refers to. It is highly probable this Superintendent is a wire-pulling politician. Maybe he is chairman of the Executive Committee of his party in his county. In that case all he has to do to stay in office as Superintendent of Schools is to see that his representative in the Legislature has appointed three men, in his county, on the school board, at least two of whom will vote for him—and the work is done. As long as your County Superintendent will control, or stay in touch with, the representative in the Legislature, he is all right, it makes no difference what his defects, deficiencies and delinquencies are.

We reassert, therefore, that the system of choosing or electing county superintendents in North Carolina is far more to blame than are the men themselves who hold the office. The system of choosing the men will have to be changed, before the best results accrue.

Imagine a broken down politician, or that which is equally as bad, a one horse lawyer, maybe a drunkard at that, Superintendent of Schools for a whole county. That is a reflection on intelligence and a fling at decency.

NOTICE.

To Ministers and Other Friends:—

We are anxious to secure the names and address of all families represented in the Christian Church within the bounds of the Southern Christian Convention in particular, who should take THE CHRISTIAN SUN, but do not. To this end we addressed a letter, with ample blanks and stamped envelope for reply, to all our pastors last week, requesting that they send us names of persons in their pastorates, who should take THE SUN, but do not. Will not any and all who read this notice kindly send us such names, as we desire to interest them in their church paper. Don't fear that too many names will be sent. In reply to our request, the following pastors have already responded, with long lists, which we appreciate, and urge others to do likewise at earliest possible date: Rev. H. W. Elder, Rev. I. W. Johnson, Rev. J. D. Wicker, Rev. W. H. Denison, Rev. H. E. Rountree, Rev. J. F. Morgan.

CONFERENCE CALENDAR.

Conferences, other than the Virginia Valley Central, which met at Winchester, Va., August 14, will convene at the following times and places:

Alabama.

Noon Day Church, Tuesday, October 21. Rev. G. D. Hunt, Wadley, President; Rev. G. O. Lankford, Secretary, Wadley.

Georgia and Alabama.

Rose Hill, Columbus, Ga., Tuesday, October 28, 10 o'clock A. M. Rev. H. W. Elder, President, Richland, Ga.; Edwin E. Hill, Secretary, Box 64, Phoenix, Ala.

Eastern Virginia.

Mt. Carmel church, Walters, Va., Tuesday, October 28, Rev. C. H. Rowland, D. D., President, Franklin; Rev. I. W. Johnson, D. D., Secretary, Suffolk.

Eastern North Carolina.

Mt. Auburn church, Warren Co., Thursday, November 6, 10 o'clock A. M. Rev. C. E. Newman, President, Henderson; Rev. W. C. Wicker, D. D., Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

Western North Carolina.

Ramseur, Tuesday, November 11, one o'clock P. M. Rev. L. I. Cox, President, Elon College, N. C.; Rev. J. W. Patton, Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

North Carolina and Virginia.

Lebanon church, Semora, N. C., Tuesday, November 18, 10 o'clock A. M. Rev. J. W. Holt, President, Burlington, N. C.; Prof. W. P. Lawrence, Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

PARAGRAPHS.

We are in receipt of No. I. Vol. 1, Creedmoor News, published at Creedmoor, N. C. We wish the News all prosperity and extend to it the right hand of fellowship into the fraternity of North Carolina quill drivers.

Funerals have become so elaborate and so costly that people are now discussing, not the high cost of living, but the high cost of dying, many shrinking from death because they fear their families will not have the wherewith to afford a funeral in keeping with other funerals of the same social set.

The Herald of Gospel Liberty carried last week a "cut" of Rev. and Mrs. D. P. Barrett and the five living children (one was lost by drowning some years ago), now home on furlough from Ponce, Porto Rico. The face of Bro. Barrett in particular looks familiar to us of Elon College, where he graduated some years ago, and here is hoping "Pallie" will come this way during his stay in the States.

The papers say that the largest income tax to be paid by any individual in Oklahoma will be that by a ten-year-old negro girl whose annual income is $112,000. She happened to own the land on which is located one of the largest oil-producing wells of the middle West, and receives as her share from the "gusher" one-eighth, this fraction amounting to the sum given above.

The Congregationalist reports: "Our Baptist friends are nothing if not ingenious. They recently drafted the tank of the Kansas state penitentiary to immerse twenty-three converts among the prisoners." We heard a leading Baptist in this State relate that he told a great congregation in a Kansas church, during a recent drought out there, that he did not think there could be many Baptists in Kansas, "for there was not enough water there to make a real good Baptist." We are glad to learn that the State is improving, even if tanks are drafted.

"Cherries and milk," reports the Methodist Protestant Herald, "made a combination that proved fatal to two sons of Joseph Leveille of Bellefourche, S. D." The boys ate a basket of cherries and in a few minutes drank heavily of sweet milk. Death resulted shortly after from a fatal acid formed by the combination of the two in the stomach, physicians say. Would not have to go to South Dakota to find boys killed from drinking sweet milk and eating cherries, neighbor. We were taught in early childhood that the combination was fatal, especially if taken in quantities.

The initial number of the Elon College Weekly for the present school year came from the press of the Southern Christian Publishing Co. here last week and, like all other print the Company sends out, was a delight to the eye and measured up to the best of the printer's art. The Weekly this year is under the following management: E. L. Daughtry, Editor, A. L. Hook, Business Manager, with Associate Editors, Miss Ethel Barrett, Psiphelian Society; M. S. Revell, Philologist Society; C. B. Riddle, Clio Society. SUN readers and friends of Elon will find it well worth their 50 cents a year to subscribe for the Weekly. It is an excellent exponent of college life at Elon.

It falls within the province of a church paper to ask a question of sanity and morals, hence the following: The Alamance Gleaner, of Graham, our county seat, gave out from the tax list last week that there were in the county returned for taxes 2,499 dogs, of which number white people own 1,798, colored people 701, and The Gleaner intimates that this is by no means the full number of dogs in the county. Now, will The Gleaner tell us how many sheep are returned for taxation in the county, and in the same answer tell us why one of the counties best adapted to sheep raising of any in the State has so few sheep and so many dogs? There is no animal more agreeable to manage, more wholesome to associate with, more profitable to raise, and more palatable for food, than the sheep. And yet people in thousands prefer the useless, mongrel, common cur instead. It is not the thoroughbred or well kept or valuable dog that is the enemy of the sheep, but the worthless, mongrel type so common throughout the county.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Suffolk Letter is a classic this week, and Dr. Staley's pen is a paint brush in the hand of a master.

—Governor Craig of this good State has issued a proclamation calling upon the people of this State to observe November 5th and 6th as "Goods Roads Days." We print elsewhere a portion of the proclamation. Look it up, read and act upon it.

—We acknowledge receipt of the following: "Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harrell announce the marriage of their daughter, Katherine, to Mr. Emmett H. Rawls, on Tuesday, Sept. 23rd, 1913, St. James Ave., Suffolk, Va." Our best wishes are extended these delightful friends.

—Mr. and Mrs. William Holt Anderson, Haw River, N. C., announce the approaching marriage of their sister, Miss Katie Lee Banks, to Doctor Samuel Dace McPherson, of Durham, on Tuesday, Oct. 14. We congratulate Dr. McPherson and extend our best wishes to the happy pair.

—Revs. J. L. Foster, Waverly, Va., and J. Lee Johnson, Cardenas, N. C., send each, by today's mail, four new subscribers and two renewals. Singular that each letter brought same number of renewals and new subscribers by same mail. Now is the time, brother Pastor, to get THE SUN into your homes. Thanks, thanks.

—Our people at Liberty, N. C., rejoice in their success at church building, and well they may. A new brick building has been erected the past year at a cost of $2,500 all of which except $550.00 has been paid. This is a manifestation of loyalty and liberality to be commended.

—Rev. N. G. Newman, D. D., and family, arrived safely at Defiance, Ohio, Wednesday, the 18th inst., after being 29 hours on cars. A kindly and cordial reception was given by college and community. The college opened well and Bro. Newman thinks to enjoy his work.

—If engraved or printed wedding invitations are desired by SUN readers, the Southern Christian Publishing Company, Elon College, N. C., will be pleased to supply same on demand or submit prices. Remember our Company when making orders, and it will be greatly appreciated.

—Our thanks are expressed for the following, and congratulations to the happy pair are extended: "Mrs. E. A. Floyd gives in marriage her daughter, Winnie Davis, to Mr. James William Melton, on Wednesday P. M., Oct. 1, 1913, at 7:30 o'clock, at Home Abanda, Alabama. The honor of your presence is requested."

—Does your church needs the new and revised Christian Hymnary? or The Gospel Hymns in any binding? or a pulpit Bible? or does your Sunday school need singing books of any kind, or Bibles of any price, print or binding? If so, send your order to the Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College. Best prices and prompt service.

—Rev. Chas. Butler and wife are assisting Pastor H. E. Rountree in a meeting at Greensboro. See Bro. Rountree's notice elsewhere.

—Pastor W. T. Walters, of Winchester, Va., is rearing a congregation from the young people of the town. He has a church membership of fifty, but a Sunday school membership of 198. He has received sixteen members during the year.

—We have an obituary post marked from Summerfield, N. C., of a person reported to have been a member of Howard's Chapel, and later of Mt. Bethel, and signed by "A Friend." As very likely the deceased had more than one friend, and not knowing which particular one wrote the article in question, we cannot publish of course. Papers cannot publish articles unless the name of the writer accompanies.

—"In a circular sent out by the lecture syndicate featuring Doctor Cook, that great man is pronounced 'second only to Secretary of State Bryan as a drawing card.' But we have no idea that these two supreme attractions will ever merge."—Charlotte Observer. Right you are, for the one has been proven a gigantic fraud, the other a man of unquestionable integrity and unimpeachable character. And such do not merge in this earth.

—Secretary J. O. Cox, Durham, has issued the call and completed the program for the Ministerial Council of the ministers of the N. C. and Va. Conference and those having work within the bounds of said Conference. The meeting place is the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Elon College, N. C., time Tuesday, Oct. 7, beginning at 9:30 A. M. This is the last meeting of the Conference year and every member is urged to be present. The theme of the Council will be The Duty of the Church to its New Converts. Those on the program to lead discussions are, Revs. P. T. Klapp, A. B. Kendall,

(Continued on Page 10.)

FROM OUR CONTRIBUTORS

A SKEPTICAL TEACHER.

Developments during recent years have shown that there are many skeptical teachers in the theological seminaries of this country and Europe. By professing to be Christians, they are far greater enemies of the gospel of Christ than openly avowed infidels are. One such teacher is Professor George Jackson, of England. The following words are quoted from his new book: "No modern theologian would dream of fortifying his conclusions by heaping together a number of proof texts in the fashion that we find, for example, in Rom. 3:10-18. St. Paul sometimes quotes the Old Testament with entire disregard for the original context, and even puts into its words a meaning exactly opposite to that which they originally possessed. Only a preacher with a bad exegetical conscience would take St. Paul for his example." What a brazen assumption that is! Observe the immense conceit of this teacher of the Bible! Of course, he is entirely free from having "a bad exegetical conscience"! He evidently wants to substitute his own "example" as a theological teacher and guide for the example of the inspired Paul. He speaks of the apostle as being a "saint." What a deceptive and dangerous "saint" Paul must have been, if it were true that he made such a wicked use of the Old Testament as this crass critic says that he did. He would have it appear that Paul was a most reckless and incompetent teacher of the ancient Bible. He charges him with having an "entire disregard" of the true relationship of parts of those Scriptures to one another. What sort of a regard does this pretentious professor have for Paul as an inspired teacher in behalf of God? He seeks to break down the authority of the divinely ordained apostle. He does not hesitate to brand Paul as a false interpreter of the Old Testament. And this man, professing to be a Christian, teaches his scholars to despise the Word of God, as presented through Paul. His own "conscience" must be deeply seared, blinding him to the greatness of his sinning. And yet many reputed Christians are upholding him!

C. H. WETHERBE.

EYES OPENED.

BY REV. A. W. ANDES.

(The annual address delivered before the Virginia Valley Central Conference, at Winchester, Va., August 14, 1913.)

And Elisha prayed, and said, Jehovah, I pray thee, open his eyes, that he may see. And Jehovah opened the eyes of the young man; and he saw: and behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha.—2 Kings 6:17.

The servant of Elisha, going out in the early morning, saw what was an actual fact—the Syrian army, a great host, surrounding the city. Doubtless he guessed at once the purpose of their coming—to take Elisha. In his dismay he cried out to his master, "Alas, my master! how shall we do?" Elisha's prayer following immediately, solved the problem. No cause for fear or alarm now.

As in this case, so is it often with us. We see the dark, dangerous, and discouraging side of the vision first, and are then all the better prepared for the brighter side. Some of you may remember quite vividly the deep darkness that hung over you for a while preceding your conversion. But when, in answer to prayer, your spiritual eyes were opened, how bright and glorious the vision! No darkness, no fear now. Oh, that such a vision might burst upon us as a denomination and as a conference! It can, but we must first get our eyes wide open to the facts as they really are. We must see the visible before we can expect to see the invisible.

To all who are concerned about our work, there is, I think, no doubt but that we need to have our eyes opened. It is my purpose now to help us all to see a few things at least. In getting our eyes opened there are some sights that will be right dark and discouraging. But we ought to see them, nevertheless.

In the first place, let us see our position as to mission giving in comparison with all denominations as a whole. In 1810 the average per church member (all denominations) was 2 cents. In 1850 the average was 19 cents per member. In 1880 the average was 26 cents. In 1900 it was 31 cents, and in 1910, 50 cents. In 1912 the average per member for the Christian Church was 15 cents. That would put us at about the year 1840. In other words the church we love and represent, the Christian Church, is just about seventy years behind time in its gifts to foreign missions! And yet there are doubtless some in our ranks who say we are giving entirely too much to foreign missions!

In 1912 the Virginia Valley Central Conference paid 3½ cents per member for foreign missions. That would bring us as a conference about up to the year 1820. In other words our conference is about ninety years behind in its gifts to foreign missions. Think of it. The whole Christian denomination giving 15 cents a member, and the conference giving 3½ cents a member in 1912, and the average for all denominations in 1910, 50 cents a member. The Christian Church seventy years behind time, and the conference ninety!

In the second place, I wish our eyes might be opened to our needs. We need more active preachers. We have in the church now about 235 vacant pulpits, and at the present rate of increase there is little reason to expect that these shall be filled in the near future. In 1873 we had 1,236 ministers. In 1912 we had 1,318—an increase of 82 in forty years, or about two a year. As to why more young men do not enter the ministry I shall attempt no answer now further than to say that perhaps God does lay it upon the hearts of some who listen to the calls of the world until God's call dies out in the heart. Young man, there is not such an opportunity to be found anywhere as that offered by the gospel ministry. I hope God may lay it upon some of you here today to enter the ministry, and that you will attend to the call, cherish it, and not be disobedient to the heavenly vision.

We need more active laymen. It is not possible, neither is it intended, that laymen shall do it all. Very much of the advancement of the kingdom on earth depends upon the laymen. In the Laymen's Missionary Movement, the Men and Religion Forward Movement, and kindred organizations we have some evidence of the awakening of the laymen to their duty.

We need more money invested in souls, and less in the reckless extravagances of the present day. We, as a nation, are chewing gum at the rate of $25,000,000 a year. This sounds to me like a big sum of money, but nobody complains much about their chewing gum bill. Careful estimates place the cost of winning souls on the foreign field at about $2 per soul. Hence if the chewing gum chewers of our land (and a great many of them are in the church) would stop chewing gum, and send their chewing gum money to the foreign field it would mean the conversion of 12,500,000 souls in a year. We spend $290,000,000 for confectionery, and that would mean the conversion of 145,000,000 souls. We spend on the moving picture shows $319,000,000—the price of 159,500,000 souls. And who thinks for a moment that the sights seen in the movies will ever brighten our vision of the New Jerusalem? We spend $415,000,000 for soda fountain beverages, and that is the price of 207,500,000 souls. For tobacco we spend $700,000,000. We chew up, smoke up, and dip up this amazing sum of money, while, as a result, 350,000,000 souls go without a saving knowledge of Christ, that might otherwise shout the praises of a newly-found Savior. The tobacco user asks earnestly, "Will there be any stars in my crown?" Well, using tobacco will not add any stars to his crown, to say the least of it, though it may add some to shirt front. We spend for jewelry and plate, $900,000,000 a year, and let 450,000,000 souls grope in darkness and sin as a result. $1,800,000,000 goes for strong drink—the price of 900,000,000 souls, to say nothing of the souls of those who use the accursed stuff. While this vast sum of $5,149,000,000 is worse than wasted, we (all denominations) spend for church work at home $290,000,000, and for church work abroad, $11,600,000—a total for all church work of $301,600,000. In other words, while we spend $1 for church work at home and abroad we spend $17 for the unnecessary and harmful things named above. And yet nobody complains about the $17; but oh, my! how about the $1? Now it is but fair to say that a large part of the above amounts for luxuries is paid by non-church members. Yet, is it not a fact that a great many church members are keeping up the ratio of $17 to $1, and complaining mightily about the $1, but saying not a word about the $17? While these big sums are wasted mission boards are in debt, and mission points languish for want of support.

We need a more widespread adoption of the Bible method of giving. One-tenth of the profit of our business is the divine requirement. I am firmly of the opinion that God is withholding many blessings from us because we have disregarded this law. It was so in Malachi's time. If a true prophet should arise in our time I verily believe he could address many of us with language similar to that used by Malachi in 3:7-9. Oh, that the eyes of every one of us might be opened upon Malachi 3:10, and that our hearts might be opened to accept the challenge God offers there. What blessings might flow to us as individuals and as a church!

We need to have our eyes opened to our responsibility. There are in the world (all religious denominations) about 166,000,000 Christian people. The population of the world is about 1,500,000,000. That means that for every Christian there are nine sinners, and every Christian ought to consider himself responsible for his nine. The Christian Church is responsible for 1,000,000 souls. Our conference is responsible for 16,965. When shall our part of the task be done? At our present rate if there were no births and deaths it would take us about one hundred years. But births and deaths will occur in that time. Think of the multitudes that will perish while we wait! May not some of them be our accusers at the Judgment Bar?

I wish we might see our possibilities. We should measure these not so much by the heights to which we have attained as by the depths from which we have come. We started mostly with an uneducated ministry, and that has been more or less of a handicap to us all along, although many of our pioneer men were fired with a holy zeal that in a large measure atoned for their lack along educational lines. We were a non-foreign missionary people for about ninety years after our birth as a church. Ninety years of inactivity along this line is a drawback too serious to be overcome in twenty-five or thirty years. However, in spite of the fact that we are seventy years behind the average church in our gifts to foreign missions, we are coming up from the low ground at no insignificant pace. In 1900 we gave to foreign missions 6½ cents a member. In 1910, the year of the large gifts at the Troy Convention, we averaged 19½ cents a member; making an increase, therefore, for the decade of 189 per cent. That is not bad. Rather, I should say, that is fine. The average increase for all denominations in that period was only 61 per cent. But in 1912 we dropped back to 15 cents a member. Our increase, therefore, from 1900 to 1912 is 130 per cent. Even this is far above the average increase for all other denominations. It does appear that we are waking up, but it doth not yet appear what we shall be.

Let us look at our own conference under this head. In 1905 our gifts for all purposes averaged 86 cents per member. In 1912 they averaged $2.38 per member—an increase for the eight years of 177 per cent. In 1905 we numbered 1,474 members. In 1912, 1885 members—a gain of 28 per cent. in membership. This is above the average for the whole denomination.

While we cannot boast so much of what we have done as a church we ought to see bright possibilities before us as measured by the platform on which we stand. With Christ as our leader, Christian as our name, the Bible as our creed, the right of private judgment, and the liberty of conscience as our right and privilege, and the union of the followers of Christ as our aim, should we not put spurs to our sluggish spirits and look with pride and encouragement to the possibilities before us?

Our possibilities will depend very much upon the sacrifice we are willing to make, and the loyalty with which we stand by our principles. The Mormon church, although younger than we by about thirty years, and standing upon a platform of falsehood and immorality, outnumber us nearly four to one. What has done it? Is their platform better than ours? No, a thousand times, no. Is God more willing to prosper them than to prosper us? Surely not. What then? Their sacrifice and loyalty has done it. The same is true of the great strength of the Catholic church in our land today. Take sacrifice and loyalty out of it and it would fall to pieces in a day. My dear friends, we have a platform worth standing upon, and worth defending, and worth contending earnestly for.

May the Lord open our eyes that we may see this, and see the invisible as well as the visible, that we may see the sin and misery about us, and Christ as the great remedy, and after awhile, the kingdom of heaven as our home, and all those who have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb, as our companions forever.

Harrisonburg, Va.

The things that men do come out of their lives as plants come out of the soil into which the seed is dropped; and even as the dead and decaying plant goes back into the earth from which it came to enrich and renew the ground, so man's work, that comes out of his life, is re-absorbed again into his life, to enrich and renew it.—Carlyle.

If you see a fault in others, think of two in yourself, and do not add a third one by your hasty judgment.—Flamner.

THE CRADLE ROLL.

Dear Cradle Roll Superintendents:—

I often wonder if any of you pray for the work, not only in your own church and Sunday school, but for other Sunday schools, where we are trying, but unsuccessfully so far, to establish Cradle Rolls? I visited a Sunday school the other week, where the officers have become very much discouraged; it seems as if everything has been against them lately, and they have about lost heart. However, they have promised me to try again, and also to attempt to start a Cradle Roll. Won't you please remind our Father of this little school, and ask Him in a very special manner to bring a reconsecrating and burning desire for the work into the hearts of these people, to give a very clear sense of His presence to the leaders, and above all, to bless and bring into the fold the babies of that neighborhood, and to put it into the heart of someone to undertake this part of His work there?

I told you last week that this week we would talk about the "Someone" who should go to the homes, and bring in the names of the babies for the Cradle Roll. Who shall she be? It will be a girl or woman, of course, who will take up this work, and many times, especially where our workers, and choice of workers, is very limited, it will be a girl, perhaps even a very young girl. Don't think, in starting a Cradle Roll, that we must look for a grandmother or even a mother in Israel; sometimes the daughters do the best work. I once had a class of girls of from fourteen to seventeen, and I found the best thing I ever attempted for them was to make their teacher Cradle Roll Superintendent, and give them the role of visitors. They reported to their teacher every Sunday, and one would hear the most excited scraps of conversation about "the cutest" or "sweetest" or "cunningest" baby, and rivalry often waxed high concerning the rival merits of "my babies," as seen by the individual girls. If the school is in a city, this is a very good plan, often for giving that troublesome class of girls a definite work, a womanly work, a wholesome work, which may be the means of keeping them in the Kingdom as well as bringing in the babies.

In the country districts, I believe it is often more easy to secure a young girl as visitor and superintendent as well (for often one person assumes all the duties in a small school) than it is an older person. Mothers are busy and kept at home more than in the city where there are cars to be taken or paved streets on which to walk, and girls will drive out in weather in which mother would not venture, or walk when mother could not, and take a heart interest in the little ones under her care. Then, too, as they come into the Sunday school, what more natural than for the Cradle Roll superintendent or visitor to teach the beginners' class? She knows them, you see, they naturally gravitate to her, and lo, you have made a step toward grading your school a little better, and you have also started the training of another teaching, all in the simple, natural way which is the best way in the world.

One thing I would not do; I would not pick a lazy girl, nor a selfish or meanspirited girl, but almost any happy-minded girl or woman will willingly take up this work, if she can possibly make the time anywhere, after she has been shown the need of the work, and the way in which to take hold of it.

The tools with which the work is to be done are the next thing to be discussed, and we will talk of them in our next letter. In the meantime, won't you read this letter yourself, or bring it to the attention of some other, who will say, "Lord, here am I, send me"?

Cordially, Your Cradle Roll Supt.,
MRS. F. BULLOCK.

FROM THE BALL-ROOM TO HELL.

The above is the name of a little book by T. A. Faulkner, an ex-dancing master. Many say that a preacher knows nothing of dancing by experience, but the writer of this book certainly has been in a position to know. He speaks in plain but chaste language, and tells some very serious things that he knows as evil results of dancing. His statements ought to make every parent to carefully guard his daughter against the possibility of such degradation as he tells of, ought not the sons also to be warned, according to the single standard, the true standard of moral purity. Even if a daughter should not fall, can a father or mother feel easy knowing that this loved one is often taking a dreadful risk, sporting on the edge of a moral precipice?

More than I have ever known before, the secular papers are reporting the indulgence in new and extremely immoral forms of dancing by fashionable people, and these secular papers themselves are condemning the immoral tendency of these new dances. As it has been thought that a man might indulge in intoxicating drink if he only controlled himself within the limits of moderation—but experience has shown that this is an almost sure highway to drunkenness—so it is with the fascinations of the dance. Moderate indulgence almost surely leads to excess. Safety is found in abstaining altogether from the dance, just as total abstinence is the safeguard against drunkenness.

But the tendency to immodesty and immorality is not the only danger connected with dancing. There is waste of time, indulgence in vanity and frivolity, and wasteful expenditure of money. And yet a more serious feature is the tendency of dapeing to cause neglect of religion. The dancing church member almost surely loses interest in the work of the church, or if he keeps up a show of Christian work, yet his influence is weakened, and he virtually becomes a stumbling-block, to keep men out of Christ's kingdom. Can we afford to sacrifice our highest and eternal interests to gratify ourselves in a pleasure so dangerous?

I find the little book named above commended by many Christian ministers and others. It costs only twenty-five cents in paper covers, fifty cents in cloth binding. It is well worth reading, and I commend it to all who will thoughtfully consider the question in the full light of moral principles. The book can be ordered from our Presbyterian Publication Committee, at Richmond, Va. It would be well for every minister to supply himself with some copies of this book to be loaned to church members and others. This widespread opposition to Christianity is fashionable and popular, and is not likely to cure itself by a let-alone policy. It must be resisted by God's truth. "Resist the devil and he will flee from you."—Presbyterian Standard.

(Book can be had of Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C., at price named above.—Ed.)

IT IS CURRENTLY REPORTED—

That the heavenly choir has no soloist.

That some of our youngest ministers are over sixty.

That religion and pessimism are not on speaking terms.

That a sermon with many heads should have a large heart.

That a man often becomes crooked by following his own bent.

That theatre advertisements are distributed most numerous in saloons.

That it is always a good thing to talk as little as possible about yourself.—Selected.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Burwell Butler Riddick was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Burwell Riddick, Jr., and the only grandson of Rev. H. H. Butler. He was born January 18, 1913, and died July 19, 1913. His lifespan was six months and one day. The moral taint of a ruined world never touched his unstained life. He was the joy of parental hearts and the pride of their sweet home. "Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Childlife is a study and a charge. It challenges the intelligence of mankind and the faith and affection of the human heart. They come into being so marvelously, and touch human affection so deeply, and permanently, that heaven and earth kiss each other over infants that join two worlds. No king in all his glory has filled the world so completely as the babe of Bethlehem. Angels, shepherds, and wise men all seem equally moved by the manger scene. In every Christian home, where flannel and linen enfold an infant too tender for rude hands, new affection, new hopes, and new plans are born. The birth of a child is the birth of a family of feelings and thoughts as new as the child.

Then, when such a darling dies, the home is a cemetery for buried hopes and plans. The child is not buried alone. As ancient queens were buried with their jewels or Indians with their bows and arrows, children are buried with the jewels of tears, kisses, and loves that warm their cold still faces with hands folded over hearts that will never beat again. But dreams and visions see beyond graves a new world peopled with love's lost ones and hope spans the chasm that divides this world of sorrow from that world of bliss. Beyond the night of bereavement and billows of grief a morning dawns without clouds, revealing a home where reunion gives us back our own. Hope, religious hope, is the "anchor of the soul, entering into that within the vale." This world would be barren without graves. They are the flower-beds of broken hearts. They are the urns for love's tears. They are the signboards pointing weary souls to heaven. They are the mounds where dust is more valued than gold. They are the marks of human affection. They are the reminders of mortality, of angel visitors, of resurrection. They are silences that whisper to us of happy days gone and happier days to come. What would we do without graves?

What are all these sad experiences, anyway, but God's own manner of touching our hearts, speaking to our consciences, moving us to pray, to love, to think, to yield to Him? Before we know it, the babe we loved makes us think of God, of heaven, of purity, of hope in Christ. The wind that met us filled our sails and drove us onward, when it seemed it would drive us backward to despair.

Some readers will not enter into this letter; but a thousand mothers will read it and weep tears pure enough to wet the flowers on an angel's grave. It is written for those who weep over empty cradles, and look into space and see nothing but a little grave. Burwell Butler is far beyond that cold tomb, "safe in the arms of Jesus." Your darling was the sweetest of all babes to you; but he is now a jewel in the heavenly home.

W. W. STALEY.

WINCHESTER LETTER.

The past year has been a good year with us. The churches seem interested and the work as a whole has made progress. I have preached at three points during the year; viz., Winchester, Timber Ridge, and Timber Mountain.

Winchester.

Starting at the first of the year with thirty-six members we had fifty-two at its close, a gain of 44 per cent. We have a Christian Endeavor Society, a Ladies' Aid Society that is very active in raising church funds, an Ever Ready Society composed of young girls who are helping pay for the church. The former subscribed $1250 at the dedication and the latter $250. We also have a Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society, and a Band of Willing Workers.

Our people are interested and faithful. The attendance at all our services is good considering the size of our membership. The crowning event of the year was the dedicating of our church August 17th. We look for more interest and a larger increase in membership following the dedication.

Timber Ridge.

This is probably the oldest and is the strongest church in our conference. It has a large and influential membership. It has been the pleasure of the writer to labor with this church for six years. I have never served a kinder or more hospitable congregation.

A good Sunday school and a live Christian Endeavor is kept up all the year. During the year four new members were added to the church. The church has recently put in a new carpet, built a concrete walk and concrete steps and the outside of the house and the roof are receiving a new coat of paint. All of these things show progress and add very much to the appearance of the place of worship. This church has contributed over $1500 to the building of the Winchester church, though it is about 20 miles distant. The congregations are large and attentive, making it an easy congregation to preach to.

Timber Mountain.

The work is handicapped at this place by the lack of a house in which to hold services. We have been using a school house in the winter and a grove in summer. The membership is small, but has some faithful workers.

The congregations are very good considering the circumstances. The church meets all its financial obligations.

All my churches came up to Conference as banner churches. We are hoping and praying for better things in our field this year.

W. T. WALTERS.

Sept. 26, 1913.

NOTICE.

The Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will meet at Mt. Carmel Christian Church on Tuesday before the first Sunday in November, 1913, October 28th. We hope that all of the delegates will come to remain until the close of the Conference on Friday, October 31st. We desire all who can do so to come on their own conveyance. All coming by rail will come on the Va. R. R. to Walters, Va. The church is only a short distance from the station, a few hundred yards. All who expect to attend the Conference will please drop a postal to R. H. Bailey, Zuni, Va., R. F. D.

We may be able to get reduced rates for all who come on the Virginian Railroad. Our beloved friend and brother, M. W. Joyner, in whose honor the station was named, is now looking after that matter and will announce it through the paper as soon as he can hear from the R. R. officials.

H. H. BUTLER, Pastor.

GOOD MEETINGS

At Damascus, Oak Grove, Cypress Chapel, Mt. Carmel and Antioch.

Rev. C. C. Ryan did the preaching at Damascus. Many were reclaimed and converted, and twenty united with the church.

Rev. R. H. Peel did the preaching at Oak Grove. It was a gracious meeting, and several united with the church.

At Cypress Chapel one of her boys, Rev. H. E. Rountree, did the preaching, and all enjoyed it. There were about thirty-six converted and reclaimed, twenty-three united with the church.

At Mt. Carmel Rev. R. H. Peel did the preaching. Twenty-five or thirty were converted and reclaimed, sixteen united with the church.

At Antioch Rev. I. W. Johnson did the preaching, and it was good to be there. About thirty were converted and reclaimed, fifteen united with the church.

H. H. B., Pastor.

ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS AS A LAWYER.

In his own profession of the law, Alexander H. Stephens' fine intellectual sincerity stands out fully, and well proves that success requires neither dishonesty nor shuffling. "What business do you follow, Alex?" said his uncle to him in the early days. "I am a lawyer." After an ominous silence the uncle spoke again. "Alex, don't you have to tell lies?" Alex did not have to tell lies. Hear what he says, reviewing his career in old age: "No advocate should ever assert as matter of fact in his client's case what he knows is not such; any code of morals justifying him in this does not deserve the name." And again, more personally, "my rule from the time I was admitted to the bar was: first, to investigate a case submitted to me to inquire into the facts and the law applicable to it; then, if I did not believe the party entitled to success before the court, I told him so, and declined to appear."—Gambriel Brandford, Jr., in The Atlantic.

On September 8 the House of Representatives accepted a provision in the urgent deficiency appropriation bill which provides for the abolition of the United States Court of Commerce on December 31, this year.

If at any time this life of ours grows feeble, or low, or lonely, I know no other remedy than to return to its Eternal Source, to God Himself; and through Him all the means of grace become again living and true; and through Him His creatures become again near and dear and accessible.—Elizabeth Rundle Charles.

Representative Sydney Anderson, of Minnesota, Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, resigned from the committee on September 11 because he found that the prevailing system of legislation gives the members no effective voice in framing measures. The following day he introduced into the House a resolution calling for a commission to investigate legislative methods and practices.

Christ waits at the door of the heart for entrance. Many refuse to let Him in. Many "pile up such mountains of rubbish against the door that it cannot be opened, but it was they that put them there; and they are responsible if the hinges are so rusty that they will not move, or the doorway is so clogged that there is no room for it to open. Jesus Christ knocks, but Jesus Christ cannot break the door open. It lies in your hands to decide whether you will take or reject that which He brings."—Maclaren.

CHURCH NEWS.

GREENSBORO.

A telegram from Rev. Chas. U. Butler Saturday said that he would not go to Europe and would fill his engagement with us as prearranged. He will arrive with his family on the 30th from Jackson, Miss. I began the series of meetings yesterday and expect to continue them for two weeks. Our congregation is looking forward to the meetings with keen anticipation. The pastor is expected to do the preaching and the Butlers the singing.

H. E. ROUNTREE.

September 29, 1913.

LA GRANGE, GEORGIA.

Dear Bro. Editor:—I am at LaGrange, Ga., this week up to my heart in one of the best meetings I have ever held in this church. We had a glorious time yesterday at 11 o'clock, and also at night. Rev. Frank Malone of Macon, Ga., preached for us last night. His sermon was delivered with power. I trust we may have a great meeting. I am expecting Rev. J. D. Dollar to assist me.

This little band is struggling hard to finish paying the church out of debt. If our people only knew how hard this faithful few were striving to get out from under this burden, it seems to me that they would help us just a little now. We have a nice little church house in a convenient and beautiful location. And we would so much appreciate being free from encumbrance. One thing we sorely need just now is a bell. I hereby earnestly ask all who are willing to help me buy a bell to send me a contribution for that purpose, and I will preserve your name and receipt for the same through THE SUN. Should you see fit to do this you will be remembered every time the bell rings, and then we can truly say, "Only remembered by what I have done."

In my humble judgment, there is not a community within the bounds of the Ga. and Ala. Conference that means quite so much to the denomination as the location here in La Grange. Therefore I trust the Lord may burden the whole church with this matter enough to enable them to make a contribution for this great cause. What say you brethren?

Yours in Christ,

G. D. HUNT.

Wadley, Ala.

HOLLAND.

I have served Holland church for seven years in a joint pastorate with Holy Neck. The statistics are not in mind, but I think growth has been a larger per cent. than at Holy Neck. This church grew rapidly under the eight years ministry of Dr. I. W. Johnson and continues. The Sunday school has trebled in seven years, the church membership has grown to 325, and the contributions to all purposes increased at least 100 per cent. It maintains a regular prayer meeting, General Missionary Society, Ladies' Aid Society, and Woman's Missionary Society which is keeping up a regular course of study in missions. Holland church has a large number of the very best people in the community—men and women who are loyal, progressive and liberal. Under proper guidance and with united effort this church will probably be some day the strongest church of any denomination in Southeastern Virginia.

Both Holland and Holy Neck, at their last quarterly conferences, appointed a committee to report at next conference on a new church building. This is greatly needed, especially on account of the development of the Sunday school. The congregations are abundantly able and will be willing to do something handsome in this line.

Now a closing word in this last article I may ever write from these churches: The kindness and loyalty to me as pastor and to my family so abundantly manifested by the churches, as well as the respect and honor of the other denominations, has won and will ever hold our highest love and esteem, and we here record our profoundest appreciation and gratitude to each and to all. Our sympathy, love and prayers will always be with the dear, good people of Holland and Holy Neck churches.

N. G. NEWMAN.

Defiance, Ohio.

HOLY NECK.

The baptizing in Norfleet's pond the second Sunday afternoon closed my long and delightful ministry with this church. I became pastor of Holy Neck twenty-one years ago and, with an interim of six years, have served it ever since. Thirty families have gone out of existence by death and the present congregation is composed largely of children whose parents I married. The work has become more pleasant and interesting with the passing years. The membership of the church has grown from 460 to 540, despite the constant drain by the towns and cities, the Sunday school from 72 to 240, while the contributions of the church have more than doubled and those of the S. S. increased fourfold. But what is far better, the moral and religious tone is stronger and the church harmonious and progressive. This is one of the best churches in the South and has a great opportunity for the future. There are more people in the community—more families have come in by marriage than have gone out by death, more wealth, more intelligence and refinement, greater liberality and religious spirit.

HENDERSON LETTER.

I have assisted the following brethren in revival meetings this season: Rev. C. E. Newman at Fullers, Rev. T. W. Strowd at Mt. Zion; Rev. H. Scholz at Antioch, Warren Co.; Rev. J. V. Knight at Monticello; Rev. J. F. Morgan at Ether, and Rev. J. S. Carden at Hanks.

All these meetings were good and I enjoyed laboring with all these brethren.

Mt. Carmel.

We began our meeting here the first Sunday in August. Rev. J. S. Carden assisted in the meeting here and did good preaching. There were nine professions and three united with the church. The church was much revived and I trust some permanent good accomplished. The congregations are large at all appointments. We need a new house to worship in. The house is small and in bad condition. We hope to build a new church next year.

Damascus.

We began our meeting here the third Sunday in August with Rev. J. C. Stuart to assist in the preaching. Brother Stuart is a young man of promise and did good preaching here. The meeting was deeply spiritual. There were only three not professing Christianity who attended the meeting any the whole week, that I could learn of. About all the material has been utilized in this community. Last year we took in twenty-two members, a bountiful harvest.

The church is moving forward. We have money in hand and the paint with which to paint the church. We have an excellent Sunday school. The singing at both church and Sunday school is fine. The Baraca and Philathea Classes are doing fine work.

The Baraca Class has the painting of the church in charge. If you want things done in your church get a live Baraca or Philathea class to work at it and it will be done in proper order. I have been called to serve this church the third year with a raise in salary. There isn't a better people to be found anywhere than at Damascus.

Henderson.

We will hold our meeting here in November. The work here is moving forward nicely. We have the progressive spirit here. There is no more loyal membership anywhere than we have here.

We have begun to put improvements in the church. Last week we installed nice curved oak pews at a cost of $500.00. We have raised $250 of this amount, among the few members. The Ladies' Aid Society is undertaking to carpet the entire church. They have $90 in the treasury. The C. E. Society is raising money to purchase a pulpit set of chairs. They have about $25 for this in hand.

We need heating apparatus installed. We will have a meetnig of the board of officers tonight to decide what to do about that. We need some Sunday school class rooms.

We have organized an Improvement Society with the following officers: Rev. A. T. Banks, Pastor; O. W. Mayo, President; R. Rum, Secretary; C. D. Horton, Treasurer; D. I. Langston, W. A. Newman and Edgar Vickers Finance Committee.

We have set our standard to raise $2,500 for the improvements we are so much in need of. We are doing all we can. Will you help us to help ourselves? When we get all our new furniture in we will have the second handsomest furnished church in the city. We will have a church that will be an honor and credit to the denomination and one that you will be proud of. Make an investment in an enterprise that is worthy of your support, by sending us a check of the largest amount you feel that you can spare.

The following have contributed to this so much needed and worthy cause:

D. I. Langston	$ 25.00
C. D. Horton	25.00
O. W. Mayo	25.00
C. V. Singleton	1.00
Mrs. C. L. Bickom	2.50
Mrs. W. C. Height	5.00
S. R. Carter	10.00
Miss Dina Ayscue	10.00
Friend	.50
Miss Ida Ayscue	10.00
Miss Lula Ayscue	5.00
Miss Pearl Horton	10.00
Mr. McInulty	1.00
Charlie Newman	1.00
A Friend	.50
L. F. Boyd	1.00
Clarence Kerney	2.50
B. H. Nelson and Wife	10.00
Farmers' and Merchants' Bank	1.00
R. Rum	15.00
C. D. Newman	5.00
J. B. Clements	1.00
Friend	.10
P. P. Height	.50
J. E. Harward	5.00
J. F. Rum	10.00
J. L. Burchett	.50
A. T. Banks	10.00
Mrs. S. O. Spruel	2.00
W. W. Langston	2.50
F. S. Page	1.00
S. T. Peace	2.50
Mrs. Tommie Ham	10.00
Sale of chairs	30.00

Total$250.10

Please give, and thank you.

A. T. BANKS.

Henderson, N. C., Sept. 29, 1913.

"It saddened me to see how short my arrow fell, but I counted it no mistake that I had aimed high."

"Let us never forget that our God loves to pardon, and never refuses those who are sincere, whatever their records may be."

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: OCTOBER 5.

Subject: "Moses' Cry for Help"—Numbers 11: 10-18; 24-25.

Time.—1490 B. C. (Ussher), 1275 (Sayce).

Place.—In the Wilderness of Paran, three days from Sinai.

Persons.—Moses, elders, Israelites, a mixed multitude.

Golden Text.—The supplication of a righteous man availeth much in its working.—Jas. 5:16.

Leading Thought.—The Lord hears and answers prayer.

Our lesson is a strange chapter in the history of the relations of a Divine father of infinite love, and multitude of needy, ignorant, spasmodic, distrustful men and women.

The Israelites spent a year at Sinai, during which time the nation was consolidated and trained under the wise leadership of Moses.

Very soon the people began to complain, worn out by the unaccustomed hardships of the journey. Fire flamed forth (probably from the ark) and consumed the complainers. The place where this happened was called Taberah, a Hebrew word that means "burning."

Proceeding a little farther, the general crowd (not the leaders) again began to complain, this time of the food, which consisted of the miraculously supplied manna. This manna was like the white seeds of the coriander plant, still growing wild in Arabia. Egypt produced an abundance of fruits and vegetables and the people longed for them.

The seventy elders appointed to aid Moses as his council became in later ages the model for the highest Hebrew tribunal, the Sanhedrin with its 70 members.

Immense flocks of quail are sometimes to this day blown into the wilderness by winds from the eastern arm of the Red Sea. Ten homers, the least gathered by any one person, was 360 pecks. No wonder they sickened of eating quails. The name given the place means in English, "Graves of Greediness."

Question Review.

The day when there was weeping and wailing in the Israelite camp, were the children doing the crying?

What were these grown men crying about?

The people's crying set what other person to crying and to whom did he cry?

Which party was the wiser?

How did the Lord answer Moses' cry?

How did the Lord answer the people's cry for meat?

What do we consider the choicest meat to be found in this day and time? (Quail on Toast).

Lesson Announcement.

We had several lessons last quarter about the Israelites in camp at Sinai. During their stay at Sinai they built the tabernacle and began holding services in it, and the cloud which was their guide rested over the tabernacle to show God's presence with them there.

Next Sunday's lesson tells of God speaking to Miriam and Aaron from this cloud about a great wrong they were committing. It tells how Miriam became a leper as an outward sign of this evil, and how she was cursed.

Try to find out this week what special race prejudice is most common in this community and why. Also try to find out whether it helps or hinders God's work.—Bertha D. Hageman.

DOING AND TALKING.

"Have you ever thought what can be done while you are talking about it?" asked a speaker at a recent class meeting. When he said this he gave voice to an arresting question.

How often have we heard people talk about organizing a class, a Christian Endeavor society or doing some other good work and it never amounted to anything more than talk. "Talk is cheap" has been often and well said. What is needed is action. Aaron was a great talker but Moses was ten times more serviceable, for he did things.

The Sunday school superintendent who quietly plans programs and methods is infinitely more successful than the one who worries the life out of pupils by talk in the opening and closing exercises. Let's have less talking and more doing.

AS TO THE DEPARTMENTS.

At the last session of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, department secretaries were elected and standing committees abolished. It was expected that these secretaries would do a definite work, with the assistance of the field secretary.

Stationery for the secretaries has been prepared and soon copies of the Hand Book will be placed in their hands so they will have material with which to work. It is believed that the secretaries appointed will do their part. They are: Christian Endeavor, Dr. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C.; Teacher Training, Rev. H. E. Rountree, Greensboro, N. C.; Home Department, D. R. Fonville, Burlington, N. C.; Cradle Roll, Mrs. J. L. Foster, Waverly, Va.; Elementary Grades, Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Wakefield, Va.; Organized Classes, Charles A. Hines, Greensboro, N. C.

CONTESTS COME TO STAY.

Say what you will about class contests for membership and attendance, they have come to stay. They furnish a plan that has been proven successful for creating enthusiasm, spirit and enlarging the classes, and will be used until something better has been found by friends or critics.

There used to be fear on the part of some that there was danger in the contest plan because it upheld false motives for attendance. This has been found to be without foundation. Is not the enthusiasm and interest created by a contest a better motive for the ones brought in than to allow them to stay away from Sunday school for an even more inexcusable motive? Let's get those who are not interested in the Sunday school by personal work and enthusiasm, then try to keep them because of right motives, if the motive for which they first come is wrong.

NOTES ON C. E. LESSON FOR OCTOBER 12.

Topic: "Favorite Verses. V. In the Epistles."—1 Cor. 13:1-13.

This is to be an honorary members' meeting. See or write to all honorary members and have them present. Plan a campaign for honorary members the week before and increase the number. Tell them that they are specially wanted at the meeting. Have them sit in chairs facing the society. Let testimonials of honorary members be sandwiched in with other testimonials. Give the verses below to young members. Let older ones select for themselves.

The leader's talk should be concerning the life and work of Paul and his ability as a letter writer. Any good general encyclopedia will give a brief account of Paul's life which may be amplified from the study of his works.

Have some good speaker commit to memory one of the finest passages in Paul's letters, such as 1 Cor. 15, and recite it before the society. The speaker will come to the front and give the selection readily and fervently.

Have a reading from one of the choicest chapters of Paul's writings. The version in the Twentieth Century New Testament is suggested as the best. Take a passage in which many changes have been made, yet one so well known that the changes will be recognized.

Questions for Comment.

What is it to be dead with Christ? Rom. 6:8.

Is Paul an example to us in his ministry to all men? 1 Cor. 9:22.

What is likely to make the Christian boastful? Eph. 2:9.

How can we tell whether our affections are set on earthly things or not? Col. 3:2.

Does God make us love one another? I Thes. 3:12.

What is the snare of money love? 1 Tim. 6:9.

How can we make ourselves patterns of good works? Tit. 2:7.

In what sense must everyone bear his own burden? Gal. 6:2, 5.

Why does the peace of God pass all understanding? Phil. 4:7.

Why should we expect Christ's second coming? Tit. 2:13.

What are some of the weights that hinder us in the race of life? Heb. 12:1.

"BIBLE CHAINS" FOR JUNIORS.

Amos R. Wells has just had published a new book entitled "Bible Chains" designed for those who teach children or lead Junior C. E. Societies. It is a selection of more than 300 of the most helpful Bible verses, arranged under 33 topics for memorizing. The cost is only five cents each or fifty cents a dozen and may be had of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, Boston, Mass.

THE LARGER LIFE.

To talk with God before I talk with man. To do my daily work with sunshine in my face and honey on my tongue. To be strong in the presence of temptation; alert in the presence of opportunity; open-eared to the call of conscience for service or conscience; open-minded to views of truth which differ from mine. To make duty a joy and joy a duty. To work and not worry; to be energetic and not fussy. To be true to myself, and false to no man; diligent to make a living, and earnest to make a life. To cherish friendships and guard confidences. To be loyal to principle at the cost of popularity. To make no promises I cannot keep, and to keep no foolish promises. To be faithful to every honest obligation. To be sweet-tempered under criticism, charitable in my judgments, discriminating in my adjectives. To honor no one, simply because he is rich. To despise no one, simply because he is poor. To be respectful, not cringing, to the great; sympathetic with the sorrowing; gentle to the weak; helpful to the fallen; courteous to all. To be simple in my tastes; quiet in my dress; pure in my speech; temperate in my pastimes. To companion with great books; cherish inspiring thoughts; and to keep my body on friendly terms with water and fresh air. To fear nothing but sin; hate nothing but hypocrisy; envy nothing but a clean life; covet nothing but character. And at last to leave the world a little better for my stay; to face death without a tremor, with faith in Christ who tunneled the grave that I might walk into the larger and perfect life.—D. H. Martin.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Sec'y. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

MITE BOX NOTES.

The third Sunday in September was observed at Holy Neck as a Sunday school and Missionary Rally day. In the morning Mr. Kendrick, from Suffolk, made an address on the Sunday school. In the afternoon there was a business meeting of the Missionary Society of the church, which meets quarterly, and the funds of which are used for the Conference assessments for missions. Something more than twelve dollars was collected.

After this the writer spoke on the Reflex Benefits of Missionary Endeavor, and told of the purposes and plans of the organized work of our women in our So. C. C. for missions. The Mite Box plan was explained, a Supt., Mrs. Willie Gatling, was appointed and thirty mite boxes were distributed. They plan to have an opening of these boxes quarterly, on the Sundays that the church missionary society has its meeting. Holy Neck is a church of a large membership and the possibilities are large for a great and effective work for missions among the members.

Mrs. W. T. Walters reports a number of mite boxes distributed among the women of Timber Ridge. The prospects are encouraging for the work in this church. Wherever it has been possible for some one interested in the work to go before the women and explain the needs and possibilities of the work, there is always an encouraging response. This brings out again the great need of an organizer. Let us bear this need upon our hearts and in our prayers that God may supply our need.

Mrs. J. W. Harrell, of Portsmouth, Va., the newly-appointed Literature and Mite Box Superintendent of the E. Va. Conference, reports encouraging responses to her efforts to place Mite Boxes in the Societies of the Conference and in the country churches where there is no organization. Let pastors and leaders give her hearty support.

Mrs. J. B. Gay was appointed by the Franklin Society their Supt. of Literature and Mite Boxes. The interests of this department in this church are in capable hands.

The Suffolk Society uses the Mite Boxes to raise local expenses and for the special work of the Society. Last year they raised a considerable amount in this way for the pulpit furniture of the Ponce church.

Mrs. C. H. R.

THE DAWN IN THE EAST.

So rapidly do events follow each other in the Christian movement in China that it is with difficulty one can overtake them in a chronique of missions. An important Y. M. C. A. Council was held in the beginning of the year in Peking, attended by 440 delegates from 15 provinces. When the question of the evangelical basis of the Association came up, one of the Chinese delegates rose and said, "The presence of that test in the constitution makes the same difference to the Association as that which exists between a live man and a dead one," and the assembly concurred. Professor Robertson showed to the convention the flying machine which had been added to his scientific lecture outfit, and announcement was made of the appointment of two new members on the Association national staff, Dr. David Yui of Columbia, who will tour Chinese cities, lecturing on "Citizenship and Economics," and Dr. David Han of Cornell, who will lecture on the "Conservation and Development of National Resources." The convention closed in a perfect hail of spontaneous speeches and with the singing of "God Be with You till We Meet Again."

The Mott-Eddy meetings followed. They were prepared for by Professor Robertson, who sets the Chinese a-thinking by using scientific demonstrations to call attention to spiritual laws; also by continuous prayer meetings among one hundred Association men. A large theater in Canton was crowded when Doctor Mott spoke, and 750 inquirers—largely among students—signed cards, pledging themselves to study the Scriptures and to pray for leading towards Christ. In Peking the government opened all the colleges of the metropolis, and even went so far as to arrange for the meetings themselves. Among the colleges where meetings were held was the Ching Hua—built with America's returned indemnity money and standing in the palace grounds which, during Boxer days, reeked with Christian blood. A large mat shed, seating 3000, was erected for the Mott meetings and filled with the cream of the Chinese studying youth. Mr. Mott relentlessly attacked men's sins and was interrupted again and again by the applauding students. Six hundred and eighty-three signed the cards in Peking. At Tsinanfu the Provincial Assembly Building—in which no outsider has hitherto ever spoken, save Dr. Sun Yat Sen—was the scene of similar remarkable meetings.

Those which followed in Japan are described in the Japan Evangelist as "unequaled in the history of the Christian movement in that country." In Tokyo 1415 students registered their purpose to seek and follow Christ through prayer and Bible study. Of these 76 were Koreans, 380 Chinese and 960 Japanese. The total number rose, after the meetings at Osaka, Kobe, Kyoto and elsewhere, to 2655. The two meetings at the Hongo Tabernacle, which stands close by the Imperial University, were of especially convicting power—440 men having become inquirers in them. Such meetings and such responsiveness could hardly have been conceived of as possible a decade ago. It is interesting to recall that they took place in the anniversary year of the 1813 Chinese edict:

"Of such Europeans as shall print books and establish preachers to pervert the people, the chief one shall be executed."

"HE CANNOT DENY HIMSELF."

The annual report of the China Inland Mission gives the detail of its financial trials and mercies during the year past. The total income received was more than $60,000 less than the year previous; that portion coming from Great Britain being the lowest received for sixteen years. This falling away was accentuated by the fact that an unfavorable rate of exchange with China meant $20,500 less than would have been realized if the 1912 rate had been as high as in 1911. All this has necessitated greater self-denial on the part of the missionaries, the postponement of furloughs and delays in extension of the work. The pressure was such that China's Millions could quote George Muller's words:

"The natural appearance now is that the work cannot be carried on. But I believe that the Lord will help and that the work shall not need to be given up. I am fully expecting help, and have written this to the glory of God that it may be recorded hereafter for the encouragement of His children. We expect that we shall not be confounded, though for seven years we have not been so poor."

The China Inland Mission has not been confounded. A gift of $50,000 brought the long-desired help.—Record of Christian Work.

THE OLDEST MISSIONARY IN THE WORLD.

Mrs. William Butler, probably the oldest missionary in the world, passed away on September 12, at Newton Centre, Mass. She was ninety-three years of age. In 1856 she and her husband, Rev. William Butler, sailed for India to establish a mission for the Methodist Episcopal Church. This mission is now the second largest in that country. Dr. and Mrs. Butler were in India at the time of the Sepoy rebellion, and were chased from place to place until the fall of Lucknow brought peace. In 1873 Dr. and Mrs. Butler were sent to Mexico, where they established the first mission of their denomination in that country.

THE YOUNG MINISTER AND THE GREEK LANGUAGE.

In this day of rapid work, most men who prepare to enter the ministry, do so as quickly as possible. The one end seems to be to get out into the field and into active work. We appreciate the desire, but doubt its wisdom. A house which is built too rapidly will most likely quickly show signs of weakness. Great cracks will appear in the walls, due to a poor foundation, and after these are once seen, no one feels very safe in that house. They do not know how soon the signs of weakness may develop into a great crash and bring destruction. It is much that way with the education of the young minister. If he hurry through, not giving sufficient time for maturing his work, he will soon be classed with the house that was built too rapidly—there will appear in his life and work signs of weakness which will tend to awaken doubt and uncertainty as to his ability to do the full work of a brave and faithful minister of the gospel, and from the time that he so impresses the public, from that day he will find himself handicapped and hindered in his life work. Better take double the time and have your work of preparation well done, for then you not only have the assurance that you, by God's help, can fill your place well, but other people, your congregation, the people to whom you may minister, will have an abiding confidence in your ability to do the work in hand, and that is always a help to the minister. Of course, nothing can take the place of the power of God in the life and work of the minister, but it is still true, at least in most cases, that the man who is well prepared for his work by proper spiritual and intellectual training, is the man upon whom the power of God can be most visibly seen.

One of the essential qualifications of a young minister is the mastery of the Greek language. A few young ministers begin the study of the Greek, but do not follow it to graduation, or if they do, they do not keep it up after they enter the regular work of the ministry. That is always to be regretted as a most serious loss.

We remember well the day when for the sake of getting to work in the active ministry, we tried to convince our own judgment that we could do quite as well as a minister of the gospel without the help of a knowledge of the Greek, as we could do with it. We have lived to learn better, and now we see the mistake of that day. If we had then seen as we now see, we should have been possibly a hundred-fold more useful, as we believe, in preaching the gospel. Alas, that no one then volunteered to do for us what we now seek to do for other young ministers by persuading them by all means to acquaint themselves with the languages in which the Scriptures were originally written. Not to do so is the mistake of one's school days, and that is a mistake from the injury of which one rarely ever recovers entirely. The man who is to preach the teachings of the New Testament ought, no matter what it costs him within the limit of possibility, to master the Greek language, certainly to the point of being able to read easily the New Testament Greek. The man who does not do so will never know what he has lost, nor will he ever know what the Church has lost through his failure to master the Greek.

No man unacquainted with the Greek can by his own efforts ever give the true interpretation of such passages as John 12:26, or of 1 Cor. 5:14, or of Rom. 9:15, or of 1 John 1:7; 3:9; Rev. 3:15, and many other passages, too numerous to name here.

We have a proposition to make to the young man who thinks he can get along well in the exposition of the meaning of the Scriptures without the help of Hebrew and Greek. Take any passage we have mentioned in this article, or the one of last week on the value of Hebrew, and give us an exposition of the same, and in doing so present the true interpretation of any one or all of these passages, making your exposition wholly from such help as you can get from the English language, having no recourse to either the Hebrew or Greek, directly or indirectly, through yourself or another, and send the name to The Herald office, and for every one sending a correct expositoin, or interpretation of one of these passages, under the solemn affirmation that he has not received any help from any source, book or person, other than what he got through the use of the English language, we will publish the same in The Herald as an example of how a young minister can get at the proper meaning of the Scriptures with no knowledge of the languages in which the Scriptures were originally written. It will be published under the full name of the writer of such exposition, thus giving him full credit for the achievement.

Now the young minister who believes he can do just as well without a knowledge of Hebrew and Greek as he can with it, has an opportunity to put himself to the test, so proving whether The Herald editor is right or wrong. Our only purpose in making this proposition is to awaken the young men who are preparing for the Christian ministry to the importance of knowing these languages, as a preparation for the best work, under the blessings of God in the office of a Christian minister. May God bless our young men and convince them of the importance of thorough preparation for the work to which they are expecting to dedicate their lives. Remember, dear young brother, if your work has half the importance attached to it, with which it is usually accredited, then you can never make preparation more than will be needed, provided it be the right kind of preparation. God help you to do the right thing and so equip yourself for your life's great work.—Dr. J. P. Barrett, in Herald of Gospel Liberty.

Two men were killed when a Zeppelin dirigible was torn from the grasp of 150 soldiers by a sudden gust of wind during military manœuvres at Leipzig, Germany, on September 11. The air-ship, however, was not damaged.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

(Continued from Page 3.)

D. D., H. E. Rountree, J. F. Morgan, and J. U. Newman, D. D.

—The local Clifton Forge, Va., paper of Sept. 4 has this kindly word of Rev. B. F. Black:

"Rev. B. F. Black, who has been secretary of the local Y. M. C. A. for the past two years, tendered his resignation last night to take effect on either the first of October or the first of November, whichever best suited the board of directors.

"Mr. Black will go from here to take charge of the pastorate of the churches at Holland and Holy Neck at Holland, Va., two of the best pastorates of the Christian churches in eastern Virginia. Mr. Black has for many years been a member of the Christian church, (the one not known as Disciples). He has been active for years in church work. Since he came here he found he had no church of his particular denomination and has attended services mostly in the Presbyterian Church.

"Mr. Black has made quite a mark as secretary of the local Y. M. C. A. His management of the financial end has been particularly good and since he has taken charge there is no trouble for anyone to tell at a glance the financial condition of the local association.

"Mr. Black has made many friends while he has been serving as secretary here, who will regret to learn that he is to leave the city."

NEWS AND VIEWS.

—Ex-President Diaz has been summoned back to Mexico to engage in military service. Diaz was living in voluntary exile in France.

—There are now on the pension list at Washington 820,200 names, a decrease of 40,094 during the past twelve months. Of these there were 36,064 deaths among Civil War pensioners.

—Rev. James Orr, the noted Scotch theologian, author of "The Problem of the Old Testament," "The Virgin Birth," and other notable books, died Sept. 6th, aged sixty-nine years.

—It is estimated that the income tax measure in the bill now before Congress will produce $115,000,000 in revenue to the government the first year, $82,066,000 from individuals and $33,000,000 from corporations.

—The impeachment court before whom Governor Sulzer of New York, is being tried for high crimes and misdemeanors in office, consists of forty seven Senators and nine judges of the Court of Appeals. It will require a two-thirds vote of that number to convict.

—Col. Theodore Roosevelt announces that he will go to South America on a hunting trip for three months this Winter. He and party will go out under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History, collecting birds, animals, skins, etc. for the National Museum at Washington.

—A check of $2,500,000 from the attorneys was sent as transfer tax on the estate of the late J. Pierpont Morgan last Saturday to the State of N. Y. This is on a basis of the estate's being worth $65,000,000, exclusive of art treasures valued at $50,000,000, on which transfer (or inheritance) tax was not paid.

—The City Council of St. Louis has passed an act prohibiting tipping in that city. And to make the law effectual police officers are to be given rewards for arrests and conviction of those who give or receive tips. Good for St. Louis. Tipping is a species of bribery, and the sooner prevented the better both for receiver and giver.

—Here is a worthy example, printed by the Continent: "Boyle Heights Presbyterian Church carries on a continuous campaign of education in missions and benevolence by putting a church paper into every home represented in the congregation and also into the hands of members of the congregation who haven't homes of their own."

—The new tariff bill, with which Congress has grappled all Summer, has been agreed upon by the conferees from House and Senate, and returned for its final adoption. It is believed now that it will be ready for and receive the President's signature this week. Congress will then give final attention to the new currency measure.

—Two mulatto boys, crazed with drugs, caused a panic and a reign of terror, in Harrison, Miss., last Sunday, which resulted in the killing of three white men, four negro men, and a negro woman, several wounded, and the two boys lynched. The national guard nearby had to be called out to quell the riot. The shooting began about 2 o'clock Sunday A. M., and was not stopped until the boys were killed, in a cotton barn where they had barricaded themselves, about one o'clock in the day.

—The Southern Railway Company is now installing an automatic electric block signal system on the main line between Seminary, Va., and Orange, Va., a distance of 80 miles, all double track. This system will be similar to the type which has given splendid results on the double track stretches between Denim, N. C., and Charlotte, N. C., and between Monroe, Va., through Lynchburg to Montview, Va., and when completed will provide continuous automatic signal protection for trains from Orange into the Washington Terminal Station, giving in all a total of 198 miles of double track protected by this system on important stretches of the Washington-Atlanta main line.

Children's Missionary Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions For Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDREN

The
Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

See Us about Job Printing

WHEN YOU WANT GOOD WORK.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

THE PRESIDENT AND HIS MOTHER.

I wonder what you would be thinking about if tomorrow you were to be made President of the United States. I am going to tell you a story of one of our great Presidents, and what he thought about just before he was inaugurated.

He lived near Cleveland, and a few days before the great ceremony, he wrote to his old mother and said: "I want you to go to Washington with me." She was very much surprised, and after thinking it all over, wrote to her son, of whom she was very proud, and said: "I cannot go to Washington. I would be quite out of place there among the great people whom you will meet. I'll stay at home and pray for you." He quickly sent the answer, "I'll not go without you," and so together they traveled to the capital city. They went to the same hotel, and when the time came for the ceremony they went out together, his mother leaning on his arm. They entered the carriage and drove to the Capitol, where a great crowd of over 100,000 people were waiting. It was a gala occasion—the high platform and all the celebrated men from all over the country, governors, judges, and ministers, and the great sea of white faces that were all turned to the one central place, where he was. The people noticed that instead of taking the chair that was provided for him, he gave it to his mother. Then he delivered his inaugural address, and after he had taken the oath to be true to his high office, and before he sat down, he turned and put his arms around his mother and kissed her.

I wonder if you know who he was? He was one of our martyred Presidents. His name was James A. Garfield. I think that was one of the most beautiful things he ever did, and I think all that great crowd of waiting people, after the din was over and they had gone to their own homes, thought so, too. You know our mothers do for us far more than we can ever repay, and they are more interested in our success than perhaps we are ourselves. I hope none of you will ever get too big, or too old, or go too far away to forget your mother or to make her happy in your own happiness. I think it would be worth while to live, in order to do just that.—From Children's Story Sermons.

NOT A DAY IN BED.

Grambling, S. C.—In a letter from Grambling, Mrs. Lula Walden says: "I was so weak before I began taking Cardui, that it tired me to walk just a little. Since taking it, I do all the housework for my family of nine, and have not been in bed a day. Cardui is the greatest remedy for women on earth." Weak women need Cardui. It is the ideal woman's tonic, because it is especially adapted for

Join the CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 15.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood

Oratory that Made Men Famous in a Day

The brightest thoughts of the world's most famous orators—the wittiest sayings of the wittiest men of the Nineteenth Century—epoch making speeches that moved not only audiences but Nations. They are all here just as they were delivered by these distinguished speakers, and gathered in such form as to instruct and entertain you where and when you will.

Modern Eloquence

Consists of Ten Beautiful, Richly Bound Volumes elaborately indexed, beautifully illustrated with over 80 photogravures on Japanese vellum; paper, presswork and bindings of very highest quality.

A Wonderful Bargain

Send us the attached coupon at once, and we will tell you how to get the Library on Easy Monthly Payments, and with our terms we will also mail you Henry W. Grady's Great Lecture, "The Race Problem," FREE. Reprinted from the work itself. Champ Clark says—"The most famous after-dinner speech within the memory of any living man." Sending the coupon places you under no obligation to buy. If you are interested tear it off and send in NOW. Don't wait. The offer is limited.

Are YOU ever asked to respond to a Toast, to Write an Address, or to Make a Speech? If so you will find these volumes the greatest help imaginable, because they contain nearly every variety of good pattern for the various classes of oratory. And many an inexperienced banquet chairman, toastmaster or honored guest, casting helplessly about him for a good story or appropriate remarks, has found here just the inspiration he needed.

From the Great Commoner

Hon. Wm. J. Bryan says: "In commending your work, MODERN ELOQUENCE, which I do most heartily, I feel that I am doing a favor, not so much to you as publishers, as to those who may be led to purchase and read the work. It is a valuable addition to any library."

300 After Dinner Speeches

by Joseph H. Choate, Benjamin Disraeli, James G. Blaine, Wm. M. Evarts, John Hay, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Sir Henry Irving, Chauncey M. Depew, Henry Ward Beecher, Mark Twain, Henry W. Grady, Joseph Jefferson, Robt. G. Ingersoll, Seth Low, Albert J. Beveridge, Woodrow Wilson, etc.

150 Great Addresses

by Lyman Abbot, Charles Dudley Warner, William Cullen Bryant, Rufus Choate, Theodore Roosevelt, Arthur J. Balfour, Jonathan P. Dolliver, Edward Eggleston, William E. Gladstone, Charles Francis Adams, John L. Spalding, Joseph Chamberlain, Grover Cleveland, Fisher Ames, Lawrence Barrett, Henry Drummond, James A. Garfield, Hamilton Wright Mabie, William J. Bryan, etc.

60 Classic and Popular Lectures

by Charles A. Dana, Robt. J. Burdette, Russell H. Conwell, Canon Farrar, John B. Gough, Andrew Lang, Wendell Phillips, Josh Billings, John Tyndall, Geo. William Curtis, Artemus Ward, Paul DuChailu, John B. Gordon, Newell Dwight Hillis, John Morley, John Ruskin, Henry M. Stanley, Wu Ting Fang, etc.

2000 Short Stories and Anecdotes
by Mark Twain, Chauncey M. Depew, Horace Porter, Champ Clark, Joseph H. Choate, John M. Allen, etc.

Each Speech, Lecture or Address is COMPLETE.

Everything is of proved value and interest, and is printed in its entirety. Speeches that have been flashed around the world, lectures that have been repeated again and again to never-tiring audiences, "occasional" addresses that have made men famous in a day, masterly orations that have molded public opinion and directed the march of progress—these are brought together for the first time in this remarkable library.

Mail This Coupon for FREE Lecture

J. R. L. 10-13
GEO. L. SHUMAN & CO., Ohio Building, Chicago

Please send me free lecture and full description of Modern Eloquence with special prices and terms.

Name _____

Address _____

women's needs. It relieves back-ache, headache, dragging feelings, and other female misery. Try Cardui. A few doses will show you what it can do for you. It may be just what you want. Adv.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Elon College, N. C.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books: Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

MEDICAL COLLEGE
OF THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA
CHARLESTON, S. C.

Owned and Controlled by the State.
Medicine and Pharmacy.

Session opens October 1st, 1913, ends June 4th, 1914. Unsurpassed clinical advantages offered by the new Roper Hospital, one of the largest and best equipped hospitals in the South. Extensive outdoor and Dispensary service under control of Faculty. Ten appointments each year for graduates in medicine for hospital and Dispensary service. Medical and Pharmaceutical Laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped. Department of Physiology and Embryology in affiliation with the Charleston Museum. Practical work for medical and pharmaceutical students a special feature. Eight full-time teachers in the laboratory branches.

For Catalogue Address

OSCAR W. SCHLETER, Registrar,
Corner Queen and Franklin Streets, CHARLESTON, S. C.

NATIONAL CONSERVATION EXPOSITION

Knoxville, Tenn., September 1st to
November 1st, 1913.

Southern Railway announces the sale of very low round trip tickets for the above occasion. Tickets will be on sale daily up to November 1st, 1913.

Ask your agent, or write the undersigned for complete information, Pullman reservations, etc.

J. O. JONES,
Traveling Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

Dessert Book FREE

The Knox Recipe Book—and enough Gelatine to make one pint—enough to try most any one of our desserts, puddings, salads or jellies, also ice cream, ices, candies, etc.

Recipe book free for your grocer's name—pint sample for a 2-cent stamp.

KNOX GELATINE
201 Knox Avenue
Johnstown, N. Y.

Now is a good time to subscribe.

MARRIAGES

Gerringer-Pritchard.

At the residence of Riley Sutton in Morton's township, Alamance Co., N. C., Sept 20, 1913, Mr. Dover Gerringer and Miss Lillian Pritchard were united in marriage by the writer.

REV. J. W. HOLT.

Garrett-Ellis.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Ellis, of Franklin, Va., was the scene of a quiet but pretty marriage on last Saturday when Miss Sadie George Webb, a niece of Mr. Ellis, became the bride of Mr. Ben Lyle Garrett, of Bowling Green, Va. The house was tastefully decorated in palms and ferns—the color scheme being green and white. The bridal party entered the room to Mendelssohn's Wedding March which was rendered by Miss Harriette Ellis at the piano, accompanied by Miss Pattie Ellis with the violin. Just as the groom, attended by his best man, stopped before the altar, the bride, attired in an attractive traveling suit of blue chiffon broadcloth with hat and gloves to match, and carrying bride's roses, entered accompanied by her sister, Miss Nancy Webb, who wore white chiffon draped over yellow messaline and carried yellow flowers. The ceremony was performed by Dr. C. H. Rowland, of Franklin, Va., to the soft, sweet, strains of the violin. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Garrett left to spend their honeymoon among the mountains, accompanied by the best wishes of their friends. X.

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

State of North Carolina,
Executive Department,
Raleigh.

Whereas the modern highway is essential to material prosperity, and to the advancement of the social life of every community; every people that aspires to join the forward procession and that hopes for the opportunities of our time is beginning to realize the necessity of improved roads; all sections and all progressive citizens are demanding them and determined to have them; the whole country has awakened to their importance; everywhere there is a generous rivalry to have the best, and everywhere enthusiasm for them is apparent, and increasing; and

Whereas the people of North Carolina are losing, according to reliable estimate, twelve million dollars annually on account of bad roads—this vast sum paid as a tribute to mud;

Now, therefore, recognizing the universal sentiment for road improvement, and realizing the benefits which must result therefrom to all the people, I, Locke Craig, Governor of North Carolina, do set apart Wednesday, the 5th day of November, and Thursday, the 6th of November, 1913, as GOOD ROADS DAYS, and do appoint these days as holidays and days of festival throughout the State, to celebrate the beginning of an era wherein improved highways shall be built in every neighborhood, that all the people of farm and city may enjoy the opportunities which they bring.

I call upon all patriotic people throughout the State to work upon

Join the CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 15.

Condense Your Hay

LOOSE hay is one of the hardest things in the world to manage. There's no getting around that. The wind plays havoc with it. It slips and slides off poorly loaded wagons. In barn and yard much of it is wasted. It is too bulky to haul or ship far. In mow and on wagon it takes five times the space that baled hay does.

Handling hay is a problem, and right here is the answer—in the baling. An I H C hay press puts your hay in convenient shape for handling and economical feeding; no need to build outdoor stacks exposed to all weather, for lack of barn space. You can ship the bales to cities and distant places where the hay market and prices are good. Large cities, where storage space is costly, require hay to be baled, and top prices are paid. Shredded corn fodder makes a good feeding substitute for all the hay you may ship to the city.

I H C Hay Presses Motor and Horse Power

are the only kind you will consider in buying, when you have made a comparison, studied the construction, the durability, the features, and the possibilities of the I H C hay presses. You will find both styles made in three sizes, 14 x 18, 16 x 18, and 17 x 22-inch bale chamber, baling from six to sixteen tons per day.

The efficiency of the I H C features, the self feeder, toggle joint plunger, bale tension, and spring roller tucker, proves their worth on demonstration. The self-feeder eliminates dangerous foot-feeding and increases capacity by even operation; the bale tension and roller tucker make for uniform, compact and attractive bales; the toggle joint plunger is the most powerful and simple compressing device ever used on a hay press. The bale chamber is of just the right height to permit convenient tying of the bales. If your choice is a motor power press, you will have a year-round machine, for the engine is always ready to do farm jobs for you, pumping, sawing, grinding, running the repair shop, electric light plant, etc. In the horse power press, study the pull power principle, compound leverage, and the low step-over. It will bale more hay for you with less strain on the horses than any other press made.

Drop in on your local dealer and look over the I H C hay press line. Get catalogues from him, or, write the

International Harvester Company of America

CHICAGO

(Incorporated)

U S A

Own a Williams Corn Mill

Costs No More--But Pays More

It will more than repay its cost in a short while, whether you grind simply for yourself or grind for the public.

There is no other mill made to compare with it. The only one with pebble stone grit buhrs, which produces the finest quality table and bread meal and the most nutritious feed meal; so adjusted that hard substances cause no injury. Patent device prevents buhrs from running or drifting together when grain runs out. Grain is cleaned before it reaches the buhrs by automatic cleaning fans. Equipped with new, simple feed, sifter, and modern type ball-bearings. Heavy frame, rigidly bolted. The Williams is the one mill that will never disappoint you. Sold on absolute satisfaction or money back guarantee. Ask your dealer or write us at once for free catalog and full particulars.

WILLIAMS MILL MANUFACTURING CO.,
41 Main Street. Ronda, North Carolina.

CHILLS AND FEVER
OR ANY FEVER

QUICKLY YIELD IF
TREATED WITH
30 YEARS OF SUCCESS
IN CURING FOLKS

JOHNSON'S
TONIC

FARM FOR SALE

Known as the Cobb place, situated from a mile to two miles north of Elon College, surrounding a graded school and Christian church, containing 200 acres, well watered and well timbered, along and near to macadamized road. Offered as a whole; or in three sections, to-wit: home place, with two-story dwelling and outhouses, 70 acres; section along macadamized road 50 acres, 40 of which are in timber; third section on South side containing 80 acres, ten acres meadow. Prefer to sell privately. Terms to suit purchaser. One wishing to inspect place see W. H. McLean, Whitsett, N. C.

For prices and particulars address
JOHN T. COBB,
38-4t.*Adv Enfield, N. C.

CANCER

FREE TREATISE
The Leach Sanatorium, Indianapolis, Ind., has published a booklet which gives interesting facts about the cause of Cancer, also tells what to do for pain, bleeding, odor, etc. Write for it today, mentioning this paper.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.
Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81	4:35 a. m.
No. 29	Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41	4:10 p. m.
No. 43	6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84	12:48 a. m.
No. 38	11:35 a. m.
No. 66	12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days, usually gives entire relief in 15 to 45 days and effects a cure 20 to 60 days. Write for trial treatment free.
Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box H, ATLANTA, GA.

STOPS TOBACCO HABIT.

Elder's Sanitarium, located at 1017 Main St., St. Joseph, Mo., has published a book showing the deadly effect of the tobacco habit, and how it can be stopped in three to five days.

As they are distributing this book free, anyone wanting a copy should send their names and address at once.

CATHOLIC DOMINATION.

Our daily newspapers are afraid of the Catholics. This fear comes from the fact that the Catholics control the Associated Press, which is the life-blood of the daily paper. The editors of these journals are not in sympathy with Catholicism, but they dare not speak their honest sentiments in their columns. There is no excuse for the weekly papers to be silent for they are in no way, shape or form dependent on the Associated Press, but many of these papers echo the sentiments of the dailies, and desire to appear broad minded, however narrow and hidebound they may really be. It is a pity the principle purveyors of the life and thought of our time are thus muzzled by any particular sect or organization. This is no Catholic country. The vast circulation of the Menace, an extremely bitter sheet, shows how strong an anti-Catholic sentiment is among the rank and file of our people. The furor that was raised over the action of the Charlotte School Board, recently, because it saw fit not to employ two Catholic young ladies to teach, and the profound silence of the press, except those papers that censured the board, shows how well the Catholics manage to manipulate public sentiment in their favor in a State almost anti-Catholic. This thing of refusing to elect teachers because they are Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians and Episcopalians is done every year. Some school boards, being all members of one church, sometimes elect only teachers that belong to their own denomination, and no lawyers ever appear in anybody's behalf and no screaming headlines tell the story to the waiting world. But let a Catholic be touched and the cry of persecution is immediately raised and the dailies and their sycophants read solemn lectures to the men who dare discriminate against a great denomination. Perhaps the Catholic Church is not strengthened by such tactics, but it is tiresome to see newspapers appoint themselves the defenders of the faith, and deliver their preaching in favor of liberty of speech and action, the eternal separation of Church and State, and other ancient axioms. The Catholics have our newspapers, that is our daily papers, nailed down hard and fast, but they are not winning any new recruits among the people.—Charity and Children.

ROSY AS A GIRL.

Summit, N. C.—In a letter received from this place, Mr. J. W. Church, the notary public, says: "My wife had been ailing for nearly 12 years, from female ailments, and at times, was unable to leave the house. She suffered agony with her side and back. We tried physicians for years, without relief. After these treatments all failed, she took Cardui, and gained in weight at once. Now she is red and rosy as a school girl." Cardui, as a tonic for women, has brought remarkable results. It relieves pain and misery and is the ideal tonic for young and old. Try it. At druggists. Adv.

God blesses the home where the family altar is maintained; and if the altar has never been set up or has been neglected for a season, it is not too late to get into the path of blessing.—Southern Churchman.

Never, never do great thoughts come to a man while he is discontented or fretful. There must be quiet in the temple of his soul before the windows of it will open for him to see out of them into the infinite. Quiet is what heavenly powers move in. It is in silence that the stars move on, and it is in quiet our souls are visited from on high.—Mountford.

ECZEMA BOOK FREE.

The National Skin Hospital, located at 121 Main Street, St. Joseph, Mo., who treat skin diseases, only, have published a book of more than sixty pages which they are mailing free to anyone writing for it. It has many colored plates showing the different forms of skin diseases and tells how they can be treated at home. Anyone interested should write for it at once, enclosing 4c stamp for postage. Adv.

Cancer Cured at the Kellam Hospital

The record of the Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having cured to stay cured permanently, without the use of the Knife, Acids or X Ray, over 90 per cent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from Cancer which it has treated during the past eighteen years. We have been endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. Physicians treated free. KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St. Richmond, Va. Write for Literature.

NEW FEATHER BEDS ONLY $6.50.

Full weight 36 pounds. New, clean and odorless. 6-pound Pillows $1.08 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for FREE catalogue. Address SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 71, Greensboro, N. C. PILLOW CO., Dept. 1005, Greensboro, N. C.

FISH

Let us tell you how to catch them where you think there are none. We make the famous Double Muzzle Wire Fish Basket. Greatly improved this year. Write EUREKA FISH NET CO., Griffin, Georgia

A BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY.

The Mint Cola Co. offers splendid opportunities for you to go into the Bottling Business. A chance to earn Two or Three Thousand Dollars per year on small capital. Write MINT COLA CO., Salisbury, N. C. Adv

MORPHINE WHISKY and TOBACCO

HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARHOFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

FOR FEVERISHNESS AND ACHING Whether from Malarious conditions, Colds or overheating, try HICKS' CAPSULES. It reduces the fever and relieves the aching. It's Liquid—10, 25 and 50 cents at Drug Stores

WANTED

Several honest industrious people to distribute religious literature. Write Prof. Nichols Box 42, Naperville, Ill. Salary $60 A MONTH

AGENTS A BRAND NEW LIGHTER Novel watch-shaped lighter. Operated with one hand; gives an instantaneous light every time. No electricity, no battery, no wires, non-explosive; does away with matches. Lights your pipe, cigar, cigarette, gas jet, etc. Dandy thing for the end of your chain. Tremendous seller. Write quick for wholesale terms and prices. B.W. Brandt Lighter Co., 148 Duane St., N.Y.

DITCHER

Best and Only Practicable Machine on the market for farm ditching, either for open drainage or for tilling, terracing, hillside ditching, etc. 1,200 yds. of 2 ft. ditch in one day with two horses. Unequaled as a street or road grader. Descriptive literature free for the asking. OWENSBORO DITCHER AND GRADER COMPANY 215 LEWIS STREET OWENSBORO, KY

Your Boy

First, ask your doctor about Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a tonic for the young. Then use it or not, as he says. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Ask your doctor how often he prescribes an alcoholic stimulant for children. He will probably say, "Very, very rarely." Ask him how often he prescribes a tonic for them. He will probably answer, "Very, very frequently." Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a strong tonic, entirely free from alcohol.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of higher education fostered by the Southern Christian Convention.

MODERN IN EQUIPMENT, Steam Heat, Electric Lights, Baths, Sewerage, Elegant New Buildings.

A HIGH GRADE INSTITUTION whose graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great American Universities without examination.

MAINTAINS EXCELLENT MUSIC, Art, Elocution, Normal, and Preparatory Departments.

A FACULTY OF SEVENTEEN SPECIALISTS, with a successful record of twenty-three years behind it.

HAS ALL THE ADVANTAGES of city life with none of its disadvantages. Situated in the delightful hill country of North Carolina, famed for its healthfulness, pure water, and high moral tone.

ELON COLLEGE HAS DONE MORE to build up the Christian Church than any institution ever yet commissioned by our people.

TERMS VERY MODERATE. $141 to $191 per session of ten school months.

For catalogue or other information, address,

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, Elon College, N. C.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLE

LARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10 1/2 x 12 1/2 in.

Contains in addition to the Authorized Old and New Testaments, all the Sayings of Christ in Red; The Temple Library at Nippur; Names and Order of the Books of the Bible; Maps of Bible Lands; Pronouncing Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names; Comparative Systems of Scripture Chronology; History of the Period from the Close of the Sacred Canon of the Old Testament until the Times of the New Testament; Illuminated Marriage Certificate and Family Record; Chronological Index to the Bible; Concordance; Full-Page Dore Pictures, Half-Tones and in Colors, etc.

No. 820 P. R. L. Bound in IMITATION OF LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Gilt Titles, Marbled Edges. (Weight, 12 lbs.) $2.10

No. 822 P. R. L. Bound in SEMBLER LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Full Gilt Sides and Back, Gilt Edges. (Weight, 13 lbs.) 2.85

No. 823 P. R. L. Bound in AMERICAN MOROCCO, Padded Sides, Rounded Corners on Cover, Gold Side & Back Titles, Gold Edges. (Weight, 15 lbs.) 5.00

HOLMAN RED LETTER

SELF-PRONOUNCING

TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5 1/2 x 7 1/2 inches.

THE TYPE.

23 The Báb-y-ló ní-an, and all the Chál-dé-an, 'Pé'kód, and Shó'a, and Kó'a, and all the Ás-sýr'y-an with

No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges $2.50

No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges 3.00

Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENT

SELF-PRONOUNCING

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Daintiest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2 1/4 x 4 1/4 inches.

THE TYPE.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Je'sus is the

No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges. .50

No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms. .75

Postage, 3 Cents.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Christian Sun Piano Club

BEATS FACTORY PRICES

The most economical, safe and satisfactory way to obtain a good piano or self-player piano is to purchase it "Direct from the Factory." There is no doubt about that. But the trouble is that every factory makes several different prices, according to the number of instruments you buy. The highest factory price applies on an order for one instrument, the next highest is based on ten instruments, the next on fifty. The lowest, rock bottom factory price is given only on an order for one hundred instruments or more. That is why the Club of one hundred members gets a lower factory price than any one of the members could have gotten independently.

By placing your order through the Club you save the difference between the highest factory price and the lowest factory price and yet you are responsible only for your own order. This big saving in price enables Club members to secure pianos and self-player pianos of the highest standard of quality and of life-time durability at prices ordinarily demanded for instruments of inferior grade which hardly deserve to be called pianos.

Do Not Misunderstand the Club

The object of the Club is not simply to provide the lowest possible prices. If that were our sole object we could offer pianos at less than one hundred dollars each. But such instruments are worse than none at all, for they not only pervert the musical taste and dwarf the accomplishment of their owner, but in the long run are dear at any price, for they rarely last longer than four or five years. The real object of the Club is to enable its members to secure instruments of the highest quality and durability at the lowest possible factory prices.

The Attractive Features of the Club Are

1. The great saving in price which results from the big factory order for one hundred instruments.
2. The guarantee of perfect satisfaction which is accompanied by having each Club member try the piano or player piano in his own home before assuming any expense or obligation to keep it.
3. A lifetime guarantee of the quality and durability of your instrument by one of the oldest, largest and most responsible music houses in the country. This gives you absolute protection against all defects in workmanship and material, and if such should ever arise Ludden & Bates agree to make it good or replace with another instrument.
4. An easy payment system based on the lowest net cash price. This represents a tremendous saving as compared with the customary installment prices, which are usually 20 per cent. higher than the cash prices.
5. Protection to his family in the event of the death of a Club member before the instrument is fully paid for. If the regulations of the Club have been complied with the unpaid balance is cancelled and the family is given a receipt in full.
6. The privilege of trading in your old piano or organ at its real valuation, for a new piano or player piano.

Write for your copy of the Club's Catalog Today

You will be delighted with every feature of the Club, for it affords, without question, the greatest piano opportunity ever presented. Hundreds of members from all parts of the country have given it their most enthusiastic indorsement and praise. Address the Managers

Write for handsomely illustrated catalog showing the latest styles of cases in Pianos and Self-Player Pianos.

Ludden & Bates CHRISTIAN SUN
PIANO CLUB DEPT., Atlanta, Ga.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Sutton.

At Altamahaw, N. C., Sept. 23, 1913, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Sutton, aged 56 years, 10 months and 11 days. She leaves one daughter and three grandchildren. She has been a worthy member of Bethlehem Christian church since early life. Funeral and interment at Bethlehem, conducted by Rev. J. W. Holt. May God comfort the bereaved ones. J. W. HOLT.

Highfill.

Louis Crumpton Highfill, infant son of S. M. Highfill, of Greensboro, died Sept. 19, 1913, aged two years and seven days.

He was the youngest of seven children, two others having preceded him to Heaven. The funeral was conducted by the pastor from the residence, No. 740 Dick St., and the remains were interred in the cemetery of Zion M. E. Church outside the city.

H. E. ROUNTREE, Pastor.

Darden.

Charles W., the youngest child of Bro. C. W. Darden and wife, Franklin, Va., died Sept. 19, 1913, aged twelve months. He was the joy of his parents' hearts. It was hard for them to give him up, but the Master called him to Himself. They have the sympathy of their many friends. God bless and comfort them. The burial services were conducted at the grave. The interment was in the Holy Neck burying ground. C. H. ROWLAND.

Holt.

It hath pleased Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, to take from us Mary Elizabeth Holt, beloved wife of Rev. J. W. Holt, and a former member of the Ladies' Aid Society of Bethlehem church. She fell on sleep June 19, 1913.

Be it resolved: First, That we bow in humble submission to the will of our Father, who is too wise to err, and who "doeth all things well." Second, that we as a society have lost a faithful friend whom we all loved. Third, That we commend her faithfulness and high Christian character to all, for truly she was patient, gentle and loving, through years of affliction as in health. Fourth, That we send a copy of these resolutions to the bereaved husband, to our church and county papers for publication, and a copy be kept in the minutes of our society.

MRS. ISABELLE SMITH,
MRS. H. O. KECK,
MRS. A. T. GILLIAM,
MRS. J. H. GILLIAM.

Simpson.

Whereas, we are left to mourn the loss of Elizabeth Simpson, wife of William Simpson, and a member of Bethlehem Christian church, who died August 19, 1913, therefore, be it resolved:

First—That while we mourn our loss, yet we must bow in submission, for "He doeth all things well."

Second—That we have lost a faithful friend and a devoted wife and mother.

Third—That we commend her Christian character to all about us, and strive to enter into that rest with her, prepared for the finally faithful.

Fourth—That we send a copy of these resolutions to the bereaved family and to our church and county papers for publication.

MRS. ISABELLE SMITH,
MRS. H. O. KECK,
MRS. A. T. GILLIAM,
MRS. J. H. GILLIAM.

Magee.

On Sept. 15, 1913, at her home in Franklin, Va., Mrs. Annie Magee, wife of Bro. C. Magee, passed away. She was 55 years, 11 months and three days old. She professed faith in Christ in early life, and united with Mt. Carmel Baptist church, near Seaboard, N. C., and was faithful to her Church and lived up to her profession.

There were eleven children born into the home, but six of them in infancy preceded the mother to the grave, while five survive her: Miss Lydia, Romulus, Barnes, John Joseph, and Ira.

She was in the garden gathering vegetables and was bitten by an insect, and only lived a few days. She was a great sufferer, and knew that the end was coming; but she was resigned to go and be with the Lord. A good woman is gone.

The remains were taken to Seaboard, N. C., for interment in the family burying ground. The family had only lived here about two years, but they had made many friends. The burial service was conducted by Bro. J. T. Flythe, in the absence of her pastor. May the Lord comfort the bereaved ones. C. H. ROWLAND.

Keen.

L. O. Keen was born July 18, 1842, and died Sept. 15, 1913, at the age of 71 years, one month and 28 days. In 1863 he was married to Virginia Ann Arrington, and to them were born 8 children, three boys and five girls. Two of these, one boy and one girl, preceded him to the Spirit land. He leaves behind to mourn his departure two sons and four daughters and a beloved wife, also one sister and fourteen grand children.

The deceased confessed Christ as his Savior and united with Hebron church in early life and remained a consistent member until removed by death, and served as deacon for about ten years, being ordained to that office by Rev. W. C. Wicker.

He served in the Civil War and was a prisoner at Point Lookout at the time of the surrender.

As a husband he was loving, as a father indulgent, as a neighbor kind and helpful, as a church member and follower of Christ, faithful.

The funeral, conducted by this writer, was attended by a large number of sorrowing friends. He will be greatly missed in the home, church and community. God's blessings upon the bereaved.

C. C. PEEL.

EVERY DEMAND SUCCESSFULLY MET.

The world demanded shorter time across the ocean and it got the Imperator; it demanded faster speed on railroads, and it got the limited express; it demanded greater versatility and it got the typewriter; it demanded a better stock remedy and it got BLACKMAN'S MEDICATED SALT BRICK.

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.
American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.
Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles,
Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

HIGH CLASS

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf.

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly.

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., OCTOBER 8, 1913

NO. 41

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

A Wholesome Increase.

The Laymen's Missionary Movement has proven its worth of being. It was born (originated) Nov. 15, 1906. In that year the total offering in North America to foreign missions was $8,980,448. For 1912 the total was $15,590,533, an increase in annual gifts of more than six million dollars. The Laymen's Movement was not the sole cause of this increase, but no one will deny that it had a large hand in the increase. And the career of the Movement only six years old, let us believe, has just begun.

A Man of Mark.

A New York paper tells of a man, only twenty-five, who during the last ten years has been on the table for twenty-four separate surgical operations, is still living, and at last accounts was doing well. He has had a hand amputated, his appendix removed, an eye taken out, a portion of his liver abstracted, several bones of an arm taken away, and various fragments of his anatomy extracted. We are not advised but presume this man is following literally the Scriptural injunction, "If thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out."

The Greatest Army.

It must have been a magnificent scene, one full of divine inspiration, at the recent World's Sunday School Convention in Zurich, Switzerland, when there appeared before its 2,600 registered delegates, from seventy countries, native Japanese Christians pleading with the Convention to hold its next triennial session in Tokyo, Japan. These men of Japan, delivering their plea in chaste and select English, gave good reasons why the Convention should go next to Japan, and in the name of the Christ whom they were serving, held up the need of the childhood of Japan for the influence Sunday school workers would exert upon them. They won their cause, and so the World's Sunday School Convention is to meet in Tokyo, Japan, in 1913. And so the inspired words came in evidence again, "And a little child shall lead them." There is now an army, in the Protestant Sunday schools of the world, of 28,701,489, which army, through its accredited delegates and representatives, will invade the capital of Japan under the banner of the Cross and there do battle for Christ and the Church. There is not an army on earth as imposing, as powerful, as invincible, as the army of the Sunday school, which Sabbath after Sabbath quietly wends its way to the place of prayer, study, and recitation in the name of the Captain of our salvation.

Greetings to the Immigrant.

To the 836,473 immigrants who landed at Ellis Island the past year, the New York Bible Society gave 109,000 volumes of our Scriptures, printed in more than thirty languages. The Society undertakes to put a copy of the Bible, printed in the language he speaks, into the hands of every immigrant coming to our shores. This indeed is a good greeting for a Christian people to give to those from pagan lands who come to settle and to live amongst us.

The Every Member Canvass.

In 1910 the first Laymen's Missionary Movement Convention was held in Greensboro. The year previous, 1909, twenty-three churches with a membership of 6,089, had given $7,304 for foreign missions. Under the inspiration and persuasion of the Laymen's Convention, the churches of the city entered into an "every member campaign" for missions. The results more than justified the undertaking. Last year twenty-five churches of the city with a total membership of 6,546, gave to foreign missions $16,097—an increase in the number of givers of 457; increase in gifts of $8,793, or 120 per cent. Has your church tried the every member canvass for foreign missions?

Why He Fell.

A professing Christian, one who had been widely used in the Christian ministry as a missionary, and who later fell into sin, gave the following reasons for his fall: (1) Neglect of the Bible and private prayer; (2) taking glory to himself for success; (3) harboring thoughts dishonoring God. We presume that nine-tenths of those who go back to sin and wickedness would give one or the other, or all three of these selfsame reasons. And the order is correct, no doubt. If he had not neglected his Bible and private prayer it is exceedingly doubtful if either of the other evils had followed in the man's life. It is a dangerous thing indeed for a Christian, be he in pulpit or in pew, when he begins to neglect his Bible reading, or his private prayer.

"Catch My Pal."

There is now visiting this country, and lecturing in the West, Rev. R. J. Patterson of Ireland, who four years ago started a movement that has already carried his name to many households. This man was preacher in an Irish town and was instrumental in reaching and reclaiming a half-dozen drunkards. These six men he formed into a society with the pledge and the promise that each was to go out and get at least one other man. He put the responsibility of saving the drunkard upon the drunkard who had been saved. Within four years the society, appropriately designated "Catch My Pal," has increased from six members to 150,000. Each member, when he has been reclaimed, and has become a total abstainer, takes the simple pledge that he will go out after another, and look till he catches him. If all church members were to adopt the simple pledge of the "Catch My Pal" Society, and carry out the pledge as faithfully as these men do, the whole world would be won for Christ within the next generation.

Here Then Is a Hero.

All the fearless souls who have served Christ to the death, literally followed Him to the garden, and all the way through, are not yet departed. Verily the saints do not all sleep in the cemetery. Read what follows and you shall know of one. A man went to work as a missionary among that most pitiful of all peoples, the Lepers. This missionary contracted the dread disease, and after a brave struggle to overcome it, finds the fight for health an unequal one, and has gone into a Leper's Settlement to die. Does he regret the career that brought him to his present pitiable condition? Read his brave words, which he writes an editor of a certain periodical, and judge for yourself: "My health, no doubt, is gone, as far as this world is concerned; my wife has been called away, and I have had to leave my home and children; I am nearly blind, and I have lost my voice so that I can only speak in whispers and I suffer considerable pain. Nevertheless, I am joyful and I am full of hope: hope for the world, because Christ liveth, and He is doing wonderful things." There, indeed, is a Christian hero—one who has given up home and children and health and all, and yet, wasted with a most loathsome disease, and looking slow and sure death square in the face, "is joyful and full of hope." There is indeed reality in the religion of our Lord and Savior.

Blocking Legislation.

If there are any depths of crime, sin, shame or debauchery to which whiskey dealers and saloon men will not go they have not yet been found. The latest evidence was the disgrace and the humiliation which the hoodlums of the saloon brought last week upon the State of Tennessee. That State is under a prohibition law, but one which is not being enforced. The Senate of its legislature had passed three measures intended to help enforce the prohibition law already on the statute books. When these measures went over to the House for discussion and probable adoption there the saloon element determined they should not pass. With various weapons and fire arms they thronged, in an intimidating manner the corridors and galleries to such an extent that the Speaker refused to allow legislation to proceed. The House adjourned in a riot and a row. For two days the saloon men kept up their filibustering and their threatening attitude, until the hour arrived when the House, by constitutional limitation, had to adjourn. Thus the expressed will of the people of a great State was thwarted and defied, even in their legislative halls, by a few saloon men and their henchmen. The Governor has courageously called the Legislature to reassemble in extraordinary session, being determined that the State shall not be estopped from its plain duty by these violators of the law. Such methods may endure for a night, but cannot abide. One day the people of the United States will rise up in the sense and strength of their might and outlaw this monster which in a thousand ways has proven itself the everlasting foe of man and enemy of all decency, law and order. But think of the millions of men, women and boys who will go through the open door of the saloon into a yawning, hungry hell before we do our duty!

EDITORIAL

CONFERENCE CLAIMS.

The apportionments which the various Conferences make among their churches are all absolutely necessary, if the work is to go forward as planned and purposed. If any church fails to raise the full amount requested, the enterprise for which it was intended suffers to that extent. Pity it is that all the churches cannot or do not fully appreciate this. The apportionment requested of a church is not a tax on that church, it is a plea to that church to do that much in helping carry forward the Lord's work. Or, better, it is a privilege presented to any church to do good in the world and to help carry forward the work of winning souls to Christ and enlisting them under the banner of the Cross.

A further fact to be borne in mind is that these apportionments are not the maximum that Conference needs and could use to great advantage, but the minimum. Conference requests, not the greatest amount that should be given, but the smallest amount in keeping with the actual demands of the interests and enterprises to be sustained. Every church should, in all good faith and reason then, bend every honest effort to raise in full its apportionment. This done, the apportionments will be raised, for they are within reach and very reasonable.

As a rule the trouble comes when no system has been used, no effort put forth, no plan thought out or wrought out for the raising of these apportionments till the very last meeting of the year. Many churches, many church members, go almost the whole year through and not give a dime for the Lord's work. Then being called upon to give at the close of the year, if the amount expected of them is any larger than that they might have given, and should have given, every month in the year, they object and cry out, "Our apportionment is too high." Of course it is. They have not practiced the habit of giving through the year, and now at its close any single sum seems too much. The people who give with most ease and willingness are those who cultivate the habit of giving. Nine times out of ten Conference apportionments are too high, only when, and because, they have been put off too long, and no distribution whatever was made in collecting them. Ten dollars may look like a large sum if given at one time, and that in the Fall of the year when money is so much needed for debts and accounts, but a dollar a month does not seem large, and would have been given without a murmur or protest if a method or plan had been instituted whereby that amount would have been requested and expected. If individuals are appealed to intelligently, and a sane and safe plan used, Conference apportionments are easy and helpful. Every church should regard these apportionments not as burdens, but as privileges, for such they are.

With proper precaution, persistence and wisdom, every penny requested of every church can be had for the Conferences, and no church or individual will be hurt or pinched, even, in the least.

THE OLD COLORED MAN'S EXAMPLE.

Rev. J. W. Goodman, of Mebane, relates an incident in the Presbyterian Standard that is interesting and remarkable.

Three or four years ago one of the elders in his church went, early one morning, to see one of his tenants, an old colored man. The elder knocked on the door and received no response. Soon he knocked again, rather impatiently. Then the old colored tenant came to the door, Bible in hand, and humbly apologized, stating that he was at family prayer. This taught the landlord, who was the elder, a lesson which he related at the next meeting day. By that incident the whole session was so impressed that every member went home resolved to establish family prayer. Soon some of them were studying the tithe law as a result of which the majority of the session adopted that method of giving. Others fell in line and in a little while gifts had increased in the church more than seven-fold. Says the pastor, "One man, and he just a farmer and by no means a capitalist, now subscribes $100 a year, where four years ago he gave one dollar per month and thought that rather high for him." All this, says, Mr. Goodman, came about because an old, plain, ignorant colored man, who was trying to have family prayers in his humble cabin, by his example gave a quiet rebuke to the elder in the church who, though owning broad acres, had, like many others that you may find, no time for family prayers.

And the old colored man in his cabin, with his family gathered around about him in the early morning for prayer, was happier, and wiser in at least one salient particular, than the man who owned the house and found no time for such simple and humble service.

OF DOUBTFUL INTERPRETATION.

They were discussing before a committee of the North Carolina Legislature the question of having the Bible read in the public schools of the State. Several speakers addressed the Committee, and among them, as being opposed to the proposed act, was Rev. R. T. Vann, D. D., President of Meredith College (Baptist), of Raleigh, who is quoted as saying: "When I find that the success of my God's kingdom is dependent upon an act of the North Carolina legislature, I shall hunt me up a new God before breakfast." We wondered, when we read the above, if it would not be more in keeping with the true Christian spirit to be willing to change one's own mind about God, rather than to cast God aside altogether and follow some false or idol god. One is impressed that if the infinite One is not just such a God as President Vann has decided He should be, then He is not the true God at all.

The whole statement appeals to us as puerile and rather unbecoming a preacher of righteousness. By that same logic the legislature of this State, nor that of any other State, need seek, care or enquire about the will of God in any matter whatsoever. If God's kingdom is going to sweep right on to achievement, success and glory, independently of the acts, character and conduct of men, why should men seek to know or to care anything whatever about that kingdom? Sunday closing laws, prohibition laws, anti-gambling laws all fall under the ban, by this logic, and the legislatures were in poor plight when they were passed.

We have been taught through the years that God's kingdom will come, and that ultimately His will shall be done in all the earth. But we have been taught, too, that we should, even as mortals, pray for the coming of that kingdom, and then in keeping with our prayers seek to do our small part in helping to bring that kingdom to pass.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Until pastor-elect, Rev. C. E. Newman, moves to Raleigh from Henderson in November, Rev. J. U. Newman, D. D., Elon College, is supplying the Raleigh church pulpit.

—Dr. J. U. Newman, of the Chair of Greek and Biblical Literature in Elon College, has been elected pastor for the coming year of Virginia, Va., Christian church and has accepted.

—Rev. C. C. Peel is to attend the sessions of the Alabama and the Georgia and Alabama Conferences and visit the churches thereof in behalf of THE SUN and our Publishing House. His appointments at the churches will appear in THE SUN of next week.

—Mrs. W. H. Dick, of Suffolk, writes: "Our Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society is doing fine work. We have for our special work two Sunday schools in Japan. Bethlehem church is using the Mite Box plan and at their first opening had $23.43."

—Prof. Jno. T. Cobb, for some years teacher in Elon College, is now principal of Enfield High School, Enfield, N. C., and writes: "I am liking my work here and have the largest school in the history of Enfield." Prof. Cobb is an excellent teacher and succeeds in the class room.

—Revs. G. R. Underwood and J. D. Wicker, Sanford, N. C., were delightful visitors at Elon College last week and both made addresses at the morning chapel service Wednesday which were very much appreciated and enjoyed by all present. These are two of our young brethren, of mature years and experience, who are deeply interested in all lines of Christian service and activity.

—Among those sending new subscribers to THE SUN since last week are Dr. W. W. Staley, two; Rev. W. G. Clements, one; Rev. W. D. Harward, one. Thank you, beloved. It is easy to secure new subscribers now if just the right sort of effort is put forth. We must have one thousand new paying subscribers on our list if we are to keep THE SUN at its present size and efficiency. Will not other pastors and friends bestir themselves now in behalf of THE SUN?

—His many friends will learn with pleasure that Bro. Frank O. Moring, of Hillsboro St. Church, Raleigh, who has been in poor health for quite a while and who some time ago went to Canada in search of better health, has returned to his home in Raleigh very much improved and is very hopeful of complete recovery. Bro. Moring has for years been one of the strong and abiding factors in our Raleigh church and was a member of the Provisional Board that located Elon College at its present site.

—Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Cardenas, sends us this week five new paid up subscribers. This makes thirty-five new subscribers for Brother Johnson, and his field is no more fruitful than scores of others. If other pastors with similar fields will do as well as Brother J. Lee, our 1,000 new subscribers will be on the books and receiving their church paper before January 1st. Will not other ministers and members join us in this crusade for a thousand new subscribers? It is a necessity, and can be achieved with proper effort, and will mean untold good in the homes of our constituents.

—Ten thousand men (and women) waited in line all night Monday to be in position Tuesday a. m. to secure seats to the ball ground in New York where the world's series is being played this week in baseball. Forty thousand people saw the first game Tuesday. Over a million dollars was wagered between midnight and the opening of the game, it was estimated, one man betting between fifty and one hundred thousand dollars on the Athletics, his favorite team. By 10:30 o'clock a. m. the line of those pressing to get to the ticket office and gates stretched thirteen blocks away.

—In sending a list of names to whom we are to send sample copies of THE SUN for a while and then seek to induce them to become permanent subscribers, Dr. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., writes: "I shall appeal in person to those whose names I have sent, and will make an appeal next Sunday from the pulpit. Many of my members are young men and they say they do not have time to read." Thanks, dear Doctor, and we would love to know really how much those young men really read in the course of a month—many volumes, all added together, we have no doubt. All of us read. It is only a question of what we shall read.

—We learn with deep regret of the death of Sister W. B. Mann, Raleigh, about which sad event Rev. W. G. Clements writes in our obituary columns. This was one of our best, kindest and most amiable Christian women. Her home was indeed the preacher's home, and to it those who were interested in Christian service were always welcome. A loyal and loving soul has gone to God. Our deepest sympathy goes out to our dear Brother Mann and his only daughter, whose lives have been saddened indeed by this sore bereavement. This earth becomes poorer and this life more barren indeed by the going away of such rare and exalted spirits as that of Sister Mann. May God comfort those who weep.

NOTICE.

To Ministers and Other Friends:—

We are anxious to secure the names and address of all families represented in the Christian Church within the bounds of the Southern Christian Convention in particular, who should take THE CHRISTIAN SUN, but do not. To this end we addressed a letter, with ample blanks and stamped envelope for reply, to all our pastors last week, requesting that they send us names of persons in their pastorates, who should take THE SUN, but do not. Will not any and all who read this notice kindly send us such names, as we desire to interest them in their church paper. Don't fear that too many names will be sent. In reply to our request, the following pastors have already responded, with long lists, which we appreciate, and urge others to do likewise at earliest possible date: Rev. H. W. Elder, Rev. I. W. Johnson, Rev. J. D. Wicker, Rev. W. H. Denison, Rev. H. E. Rountree, Rev. J. F. Morgan, Rev. A. W. Andes, Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Rev. A. N. McAbee, Rev. E. D. Short, Rev. P. T. Klapp, Rev. W. T. Walters, Rev. J. H. Hughes, Rev. A. F. Iseley, Rev. C. H. Rowland, Rev. W. D. Harvard, Rev. R. H. Peel, Rev. L. I. Cox.

NOTICE.

The Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will meet at Mt. Carmel Christian Church on Tuesday before the first Sunday in November, 1913, October 28th. We hope that all of the delegates will come to remain until the close of the Conference on Friday, October 31st. We desire all who can do so to come on their own conveyance. All coming by rail will come on the Va. R. R. to Walters, Va. The church is only a short distance from the station, a few hundred yards. All who expect to attend the Conference will please drop a postal to R. L. Bailey, Zuni, Va., R. F. D.

We may be able to get reduced rates for all who come on the Virginian Railroad. Our beloved friend and brother, M. W. Joyner, in whose honor the station was named, is now looking after that matter and will announce it through the paper as soon as he can hear from the R. R. officials.

H. H. BUTLER, Pastor.

CONFERENCE CALENDAR.

Conferences, other than the Virginia Valley Central, which met at Winchester, Va., August 14, will convene at the following times and places:

Alabama.

Noon Day Church, Tuesday, October 21.

Rev. G. D. Hunt, Wadley, President; Rev. G. O. Lankford, Secretary, Wadley.
Georgia and Alabama.

Rose Hill, Columbus, Ga., Tuesday, October 28, 10 o'clock A. M. Rev. H. W. Elder, President, Richland, Ga.; Edwin E. Hill, Secretary, Box 64, Phoenix, Ala.

Eastern Virginia.

Mt. Carmel church, Walters, Va., Tuesday, October 28, Rev. C. H. Rowland, D. D., President, Franklin; Rev. I. W. Johnson, D. D., Secretary, Suffolk.

Eastern North Carolina.

Mt. Auburn church, Warren Co., Thursday, November 6, 10 o'clock A. M. Rev. C. E. Newman, President, Henderson; Rev. W. C. Wicker, D. D., Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

Western North Carolina.

Ramseur, Tuesday, November 11, one o'clock P. M. Rev. L. I. Cox, President, Elon College, N. C.; Rev. J. W. Patton, Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

North Carolina and Virginia.

Lebanon church, Semora, N. C., Tuesday, November 18, 10 o'clock A. M. Rev. J. W. Holt, President, Burlington, N. C.; Prof. W. P. Lawrence, Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

ETHEL'S LESSON.

"Mother," said Ethel, "why do you always clean that lamp chimney first? I thought you said it was the hardest one of all to clean."

"It is the hardest," said mother, with a smile, "and that is the very reason why I always try to clean it first."

"But," began Ethel, and then she stopped and thought.

She was sitting beside the kitchen table dressing a doll and watching mother at the same time. She liked to see dim, sometimes smoky-looking chimneys become clear and shining as they were rubbed with soft, crumpled paper.

Mother waited for Ethel to finish her sentence, but, as she did not, mother said at length: "You see, this chimney is so tall and slender that it is hard to get my hand inside or to rub it its full length, and, if I should do all the easy chimneys first, I might spend the whole time I was cleaning those in dreading the harder chimney. You know they say 'dreading is often worse than doing,' so just think how much worse it would be to put it off."

Mother's eyes were smiling while she talked, and Ethel knew very well of what she was thinking. It had been only a few minutes before that she had said to her mother: "Oh, dear! I do so dread to study that arithmetic lesson! I'll study my spelling first." After the spelling had been studied she had put off the arithmetic lesson a little longer, while she dressed her doll.

She put Evangeline's cap on very carefully and slowly as mother finished speaking; but, when she began tying her cap string, she did it with quick little jerks. "Evangeline," she said, holding the doll up before her, "I am going straight off to study my arithmetic lesson, and don't you dare to call me away from it."—Morning Star.

What we call our fortunes, good or ill, are but the wise dealings and distributions of a wisdom higher, and a kindness greater, than our own. I suppose that their meaning is that we should learn, by the uncertainties of our life, even the smallest, how to be brave and steady and temperate and hopeful, whatever comes, because we believe that behind it all there lies a purpose of good, and over it all there watches a Providence of blessing.—Ex.

CHURCH NEWS

HOWARD'S CHAPEL.

We had a good day at Howard's Chapel the second Sunday in this month. The congregation was not large, but as large as usual, and to my mind, our beloved pastor, Rev. L. I. Cox, preached the most forceful sermon I ever heard him preach. The church unanimously called Brother Cox to preach for us next year.

I enjoyed reading what the Editor said about Gypsy Smith's meeting in Danville, for it was my privilege and pleasure, in company with Mrs. T. M. Lambeth of Reidsville and my wife, to hear him preach three sermons last week. The Gypsy is a wonder. It was a beautiful sight to see something like 150 men and women go up and shake his hand, after he had requested all who wanted to be prayed for and wanted to get right with God to come forward.

W. B. MADISON.

ROSEMONT.

Rosemont church has been very fortunate in securing the services of Rev. Dr. Denison for ten days for a series of revival services. He preached in the demonstration of the Spirit and with power. The sermons were the sweet and tender presentation of the gospel, and we shall never forget his visit to us at Rosemont. We had five accessions yesterday and expect others to join later. We trust we shall be able to secure his services again.

DANIEL A. KEYS, Pastor.

LA GRANGE, GA.

Our meeting at La Grange came to a close Friday night, Sept. 26th. In many respects this was one of the best meetings I have held this Summer. There were no new members added to the roll, but I have never seen a church more thoroughly revived. It seemed that the Lord was in every service, in Spirit and in power, and the Lord's children rejoiced together. This has been a year of sacrifice and toil on the part of these faithful few, and the Lord came among them and filled their souls to overflowing. At the close of the meeting we raised all of our conference assessments, in just a few minutes, and not all the members present. I think we will swell the amount to at least five dollars more, and "we all felt so good."

The work at La Grange is in better condition than at any time since I became pastor of the church. I do pray that the heart of the brotherhood may be opened to the need of our struggling little church here, and that the way may be opened for us to make a contribution to the work. The Lord grant that it may be so.

G. D. HUNT.

Wadley, Ala.

LEE'S CHAPEL.

On Monday after the third Sunday in September we organized this church with thirty-six charter members, and the brethren think the membership will run to fifty by the close of the year. Immediately after the organization we baptized fifteen, ten by immersion, and five by sprinkling. They have a building and soliciting committee appointed, and they are at work; they have a right flattering subscription secured and most of the building material in sight. This church is on Cape Fear River, in Lee county. The brethren aim to put their house up immediately after crops are gathered.

All praise be unto Whom it belongeth.

P. T. KLAPP.

CHRISTIAN LIGHT.

We held our revival services here week following. (Continued on Page 11.)

FROM OUR CONTRIBUTORS

PROGRAM

Thirteenth Annual Session Alabama Christian Conference.

The thirteenth annual session of the Alabama Christian Conference will convene with the church at Noon Day, Randolph Co., Ala., October 21st, 1913. The following is the program:

FIRST DAY.

- 10:00 A. M.—Called to Order by the President of last session. Enrollment of ministers and delegates. Election of officers.
 10:30 A. M.—Reception of Fraternal Visitors.
 11:00 A. M.—Introductory Sermon by Rev. E. M. Carter.
 Refreshments.
 1:30 P. M.—Called to order, prayer by Rev. J. H. Hughes.
 1:45.—Reading Ministerial and Church reports.
 2:30.—Report of Executive Committee.
 2:45.—Report of Committee on Standing of Churches—Rev. J. D. Dollar.
 3 P. M.—Moral Reform—Rev. E. M. Carter, Chair.
 4:30.—Miscellaneous Business.
 4:00.—Adjournment.
 7:00 P. M.—Report of Committee on Christian Endeavor—by Rev. G. O. Lankford.

SECOND DAY.

- 8:30 A. M.—Call to order. Devotional service, conducted by Rev. J. D. Dollar.
 9:00.—Report of Committee on Sunday Schools—by J. J. Carter, Chairman.
 9:45.—Report of Committee on Education, by Rev. G. O. Lankford.
 10:30.—Payment of dues to Missionary Association.
 11:00.—Preaching.
 12:00.—Refreshments.
 1:30 P. M.—Devotional exercises, by Rev. T. W. Gray.
 2:00.—Report of Committee on Foreign Missions—Rev. J. H. Hughes, Chairman.
 2:45.—Report of Home Mission Board—G. D. Hunt, Chairman.
 3:30.—Miscellaneous.
 4:00.—Adjournment.
 Preaching at Night.

THIRD DAY.

- 8:30 A. M.—Opening service, conducted by Rev. T. H. Elder.
 9:00 A. M.—Report of Woman's Board of Home and Foreign Missions, by Mrs. Rosa Clack.
 9:45.—Report of Committee on Religious Literature, by Rev. E. M. Carter.
 10:30.—Committee on Apportionments—Rev. C. M. Dollar, Chairman.
 11:00 A. M.—Preaching.
 12:00.—Adjournment.

Brethren, we should all pray for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit on us while we wait before God in a Conference capacity. We are expecting a great meeting; let every delegate come to stay until the work is finished.

Yours to serve,

G. D. HUNT, President.

Roanoke Leader please copy.

GOSPEL RESULTS.

The gospel of Christ must be of heavenly origin, else the results of preaching it would not be so wonderful as they are, and have been ever since it was introduced into this world. Wherever it has been proclaimed by the true servants of God, its transforming effects have been apparent, even to unbelievers. Evangelist J. Wilbur Chapman, in a recent account of the labors of himself and his assistant, Charles W. Alexander, in various parts of Australia, says: "The converts of Dr. Torrey's work, eleven years ago, were some of our best workers. One of our most interesting meetings in 1909 was with a great crowd of street car men. Several hundred of them were converted. They formed themselves into two bands of Christian workers, and on our return in 1913, it was stated publicly that they had won not less than 3,000 others to Christ, as they had conducted services in the various churches and mission halls. Two men who had led criminal lives and spent years in prison, were converted in 1909. Today they are, both of them, ministers of the gospel, one of them a very remarkable man."

This is only a mere fraction of the whole story of salvation, as related to that country; but it demonstrates the fact that the Calvary Gospel, when preached by men who depend upon the Holy Spirit, is as resultful as it was in the best apostolic days. Many of the most hardened sinners in that land were brought into the Kingdom of God, and then became zealous evangelists of the same gospel, leading large numbers into spiritual light and liberty. It is absurd for anyone to say that such results would follow from preaching any other kind of a gospel. The heart of the true one is the Cross of Christ. Be wholly true to it.

C. H. WETHERBE.

AUTUMN LETTER.

The Parsonage, Autumn, 1913.

To the Members of the First Christian Church and Parish. Dear Friends:—

The autumn with all its glory of color, which is so beautiful in our old New England, is again here, and Nature in a thousand different ways sings of its Creator and praises the Maker of us all. This is a "bonnie" world, and there are multitudes of good people in it. And not only does the earth declare the glory of God, but his children are manifesting his spirit, in the home as the mother makes it homelike, in the world as the father makes it Godlike, in the school as the children learn to think along the thoroughfare of the footstool of Him in whom we live and move and have our being.

It becomes my duty as your pastor and servant to remind you of the fundamental fact of all reality, the existence of God, and to ask your loyal allegiance and cheerful support for the institution whose purpose is to call men's thoughts to the highest and best in life. Many of the best of you have sadly neglected to use this institution for yourself and the world. You have given all sorts of excuses to yourselves and others why you have done so. But we are here in this world for so short a time, and our influence at best is so little when we do not let God rule and reign in our hearts, that I believe I can say with reason, that all of us need the church, in order that we shall learn how to worship, in order that we shall learn how to worship with others, in order that we may learn the lessons of giving to others, and receiving from others, in order that we may have our souls disciplined by working in harmony with others who do not see things in all particulars as we do, in order that we may give freely, not expecting back a material recompense, in order that we may know how to live fully, lovingly and Christlike, increasingly.

I hope this autumn you will make the First Christian Church worthy of its name. Your ancestors and mine paid a great price for our free American citizenship. We will lose it for our descendants unless we in our day and generation shall be ever vigilant for Christian liberty. Signs are not wanting that history will repeat itself in America unless the present generation of Free Christians does more than criticize and keep itself unspotted from the world. We need to support our churches not alone with money, but with sympathy, and love, and attendance, and our sincere prayers. Let us turn again to our real duty, and with humility seek the throne of Grace, and God will perchance again manifest his approval of our endeavors to serve Him.

CARLYLE SUMMERBELL.

THE CRADLE ROLL.

Dear Cradle Roll Superintendents:

I wonder if any of you read these letters, and I especially wonder if any of those who have no Cradle Roll in their Sunday schools are reading them? If you are, won't you tell me what you think of them, are they answering the questions you want answered? Are they meeting any of the needs of your Cradle Roll? If not, won't you tell me what it is you would like to know, or what is the specific problem that is bothering you.

One dear friend writes: "Your letter is fine," and if you knew how much such words encourage one to try and try again, I am sure you would all help all you can. You know I cannot carry on this department if you don't help. It is not "My" Department; it is, and must be, "Ours," or it will do no good whatever. Won't you help me in this work of helping the "little children" to come unto Him who loved them so?

I said last week we would talk of the tools of the Cradle Roll this week, but first there is another "party of the third part," as they say in those long confusing legal documents, to whom we have not given sufficient attention yet. We have talked about the Baby, the Superintendent, and we want to consider the Baby's Parents. Mostly we have to do with the Mother of the Baby, but through her, and because of that dear little "Party of the third part," we must meet and deal with the Father, too. So we will talk of the Parents.

Many times, when we go after the Cradle Roll Baby, we find parents who are spelling the name all in capital letters, like this: PARENTS; and we know at once, we have come to see that marvel of all the ages, the First-born. How more than necessary at such a time, that we make the parent feel that "the firstborn belongeth to the Lord." I have never yet been able to understand how any person, or two persons, dared to undertake the task of raising a child, of bringing knowledge and understanding to that pure little mind, of training the eyes to see, and the ears to hear aright, without the guiding hand of the great and loving Father of us all. Instinctively we feel sorry for the orphan babe, left without parents to direct and love it, but how many grown people are orphans of their own free will, without the loving hand of the Father holding them, teaching them to walk, talk and think rightly. No wonder so many little ones go astray, when their parents have failed so sadly in the first requisites of bringing up the child, the proper Guide.

So, many times we find the Cradle Roll and the Home Department work overlapping one another. Many times, we can help to bring out the parents to the church and the Sunday school, through bringing home to them their need, and their own inability to meet that need. Many times a pastor has found an entrance into a hitherto godless home through the open door of the Cradle Roll. And as the babies multiply, and mother's hands get fuller and fuller, sometimes those who have aforetime been happy members of the Sunday school have been lost track of, and have lost their place and right in the Sunday school. To such, the Cradle Roll is like a hand extended from the home of their love, showing them they are not forgotten, and the tear will start, and the tender thoughts will rise, because the dear Baby, and through it the parent, has been remembered by the Sunday school. "Verily, a little child shall lead them."

Can we afford to neglect this "Open Door" of influence in the home life?

Cordially, your Cradle Roll Superintendent,

MRS. F. BULLOCK.

R. F. D. 3, Waverly, Va.

THE DISAPPEARING HOME.

The title has been suggested to me as the result of a conversation. At first I was inclined to rebel against its suggestion and to refuse to discuss the subject. Even now I write of it remembering the many homes on both sides of the Atlantic whose generous hospitality I have shared, and with thankfulness that many such remain; for they surely are the very fortresses of national strength, apart from which navies and armies, parliaments and policies, are of no avail to prevent degeneration and disaster.

That the home is largely disappearing is, I fear, a fact which cannot be denied. Houses are multiplying, but homes are vanishing. The home in all its highest forms is a peculiarly Christian institution. In the Christian atmosphere it has come to its highest development.

A generation ago the home was a most sacred place. Its sanctity was acknowledged; its fellowship was of the closest nature; its secrets were zealously guarded; its power was supreme in the thought of its members, however far they were compelled to wander from it. With what strange and moving feeling of tenderness do many of us remember the old homestead and all the life which was associated therewith! And, as we do so, we know that the secret of the love we bear the old spot is not that of its structure, locality, or furnishing, but that rather of the relationships which existed therein, of that comradeship in joy and sorrow, in work and play, in prosperity and adversity, which bound us all to one another, so that our common dwelling-place became the most sacred spot on earth to our hearts.

The Love of Home Is Passing Away.

Today this love for the home is passing away, and that because the home itself in the old sense is passing away. The old song, "Home, Sweet Home," while still necessarily and naturally popular, does not produce the same effect upon a multitude, especially of young people, as it did thirty years ago. We still applaud the execution of the soloist, but largely fail to understand the profoundest values of the song.

Separated Interests and Outside Friendships.

Thousands of houses are rented and inhabited by parents and children which are little better than hotels in which these members of the family eat and sleep. There is a certain economy in this, or in all probability even this habit would be abandoned.

There are many residences today—a much poorer word than homes, by the way—in which some of the sacramental symbols of the old old homes are "missing, because the things which they represent no longer exist. The unification of morning worship is absent, because the sense of the divine pleasure in family life is lost. The habit of taking counsel together about the welfare of each has ceased, because each goes his or her own way, finding friendship and comradeship outside. The joy of meal-time as a perpetually recurring season of reunion has passed away, because separated interests have made such reunions unnecessary. The healing and reconciling influence of the recreative evening, in which music, reading and games played so large a part, is missing, because evenings are spent more pleasantly in a score of ways away from home.

All this must give concern to those who believe that the family is the first circle of society in the divine economy, and the pattern of all the rest, and that the home, therefore, is the first, and indeed the first unit, toward the complete realization of the kingdom of God.

Henry Drummond declared that "sacred and happy homes are the surest guaranties for the moral progress of a nation," and truer words he never wrote. Homes, as the places where families, according to the Christian ideal, dwell, are the very bulwarks of national strength. Therein love is the atmosphere, faith, the guardian, and hope the perpetual inspiration, of strong endeavor.

Why, then, is the home disappearing? Perhaps the question is too large to be answered in a brief article. There are many influences at work tending to this sad end. There are some which have impressed themselves on me, and these I shall attempt to state with all bluntness.

I believe that one tendency destructive of home life is the growing one of disassociating marriage from its religious sanction and significance. In the Roman Church it is counted among the sacraments. Now, whatever that may mean, it is certain that the conception of marriage as civil merely, and an arrangement depending upon human love, and too often upon convenience only, is bound to affect the atmosphere of the home in which those so married dwell, both because of the nature of the relationship between husband and wife, and because of the consequent conception on the part of father and mother as to their obligations concerning their children. When the foundations of the home are earthly, of clay, the home cannot stand in all strength and beauty. Its only true foundation is marriage within the divine sanction, and consequently divinely blessed.

The Responsibility of Fathers.

Another element tending towards the break-up of home life is the failure on the part of fathers to realize their full responsibility for their children.

There are multitudes of fathers today who are members of Christian churches, and without doubt Christian men, who seem to think that their responsibility ends when they have provided for the physical needs of their children, given them a good education, provided a certain amount of recreation, and occasionally acted as moral policemen and executioners. Such a conception is as pernicious as it is false. Under the Hebrew economy, which was divine and the foundation of the Christian, fathers were responsible for the religious training of their children.

No man can neglect this responsibility without the running of grave risks. Moreover, when it is recognized and fulfilled, a man is compelled to give time and attention to every side of the being of his children. This means also living very near to the actual life of the child, gaining its confidence by being interested in all that interests it.

I am perfectly familiar with the fact that there are fathers who take a certain kind of religious interest in their children which drives the children away from God. This is, indeed, another cause for the break-up of home. Where the father is himself living in closest fellowship with God, and loves his children first and last and all the time with the love which is shed abroad in his own heart from such fellowship, and enters into all their lives with the pure and tender sympathy which develops and fulfills all the highest things in their lives, wherever this is so, home remains strong, and abides through all the years the most blessed and potent factor for good in the lives of the children.

Again, I fear that the disappearing home is partly due to certain false elements which obtain in the movement of our times toward the emancipation of women. With certain aspects of that movement I am personally in profoundest sympathy, but I cannot escape from the conviction that what Mr. Richard Le Gallienne described long ago as "the revolt of the daughters" is in danger of being not merely revolt from disabilities which prevent them from fulfilling all the possibilities of their nature, but also from some of the most sacred functions of that nature. The fact that many women look upon motherhood with contempt, and avoid it, or accept it as an evil to be tolerated with more or less of patience, is a terrible menace to the home.

A mother who neglects her children is an unnatural monster. It may be said that this goes without saying, and that it is never done by women who have the slightest respect for themselves. I have only to say, alas! that it is too often done by women who do not seem at all conscious that they are doing it. The woman who, having children, takes more interest in public affairs, social obligations, or church-work than in them is guilty of this very thing. If the father is the house-band, the mother is the home-maker; and, where she finds other things of greater importance than her home, that home is violated and ruined.

Of course, also, the drift of life away from the simple to the complex is a prolific source of the destruction of home. Today, interests outside the home are allowed to encroach upon the time to such an extent that there is no time for the home, and the result is that the taste for all the home offers is lost, and the love of home ends. There are all sorts of societies, mental, humanitarian, social, clamoring for the help of men and women, young and old, and their clamor is allowed to drown the call of home.

The church itself has contributed to this same disaster. Without any hesitation I declare that if either the home or the church is to go, I should unhesitatingly say that the home must be maintained and the church abandoned.

We are not driven, however, to any such alternative. Both home and church are divine, and, indeed, they are mutually dependent. Let us not forget that church-decline and home-decline are coincident, notwithstanding our multiplied organizations. The church cannot be strengthened by the destruction of the home. Rightly apportioned, there are enough workers in any church to man all her organizations without the neglect of the home. If not, then we should lessen the number of the organizations and so strengthen both church and home.

The Root of All the Trouble.

At the root of all the trouble is the deterioration of religion. A true revival of religion will do more to strengthen and restore the home than anything else. Only it must be religion, and not weak and base imitations thereof. A revival of religion is a return to God and the readjustment of all life according to His standards; and where this happens, one of the first places to feel the effect is the home.

Let it be counted the most sacred and important thing on the part of all those who love their native land to save the home and to make it strong, for by so doing we serve at once our nation and the kingdom of God.—Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, D. D., in C. E. World.

The Navy Department has accepted a bid from an English firm for turbine drums for a battle-ship. The British bid was $57,436; the lowest American bid was $160,272—about three times as much.

The Lincoln Highway Association, which has already collected $5,000,000 toward the proposed $10,000,000 Lincoln trans-continental highway from New York to San Francisco, has mapped out a route which will include thirteen States: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, and California. The road will pass many places of historical interest.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Netum Rathbun, Agent of the Christian Publishing Association, Dayton, Ohio, will visit the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, the Eastern North Carolina Conference, the Western N. Carolina Conference, and the N. C. and Va. Conference, this fall. All of these Conferences patronize the C. P. A. for Sunday school literature, and some subscribers are found to the Herald of Gospel Liberty. Brother Rathbun will no doubt receive a hearty welcome at these Conferences and, if opportunity is given, will add helpful addresses on Publishing interests. He and Dr. Atkinson, Editor of the CHRISTIAN SUN, and who has made a great reputation as a speaker on "The Press," will add to the interest of these conferences and bring messages of great import to the people. Dr. J. P. Barrett, Editor of the Herald of Gospel Liberty, Dayton, O., will attend his old conference, the E. Va., at Mt. Carmel. The personnel of the Conferences has improved very much in recent years, the intellectual atmosphere has cleared greatly, and the real activity of the churches has brought into the Conferences a business-like way of doing things, a liberal spirit toward church enterprises and one another, that fills the days of Conference with a deep sense of doing business for the Lord. We have not come up to the full measure of our strength in any department of Christian enterprise; but progress enough has been made to reveal the ability to do creditable work. When capacity is once discovered, it increases the obligation to develop it. That is our task for the years that lie before us.

The function of Christianity is not only to save men, but to develop men into their largest usefulness. There are many Christians who are saved, but not developed; and they are like photographs: if they are not developed, they fade beyond recognition. There are many Christians who "shall be saved; yet so as by fire"; but their "work shall be burned." You may have seen a residence burned to ashes. The first started in the night when the family was asleep. The alarm reached them in time to escape in their night clothes. They were saved; but their "work"—their house—was burned. You pitied them in their salvation. When Christians build on a false foundation or fail to care for their spiritual activities they may be saved; but they will bring no sheaves; and one may ask, "Will there be any stars in their crown?"

It is the Christian's privilege to "lay up treasure in heaven where moth and rust do not corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal"; but salvation alone will not do this. There are people who do barely enough to earn subsistence; there are others who labor diligently and live well and lay up something for a "rainy day." Compare these two classes and you will see the difference between the inactive and active Christian.

W. W. STALEY.

MEMORIAL TEMPLE, NORFOLK.

You will be interested in knowing, perhaps, that the work of the Memorial Christian Temple is opening nicely this Fall. We closed our church year last evening with a splendid meeting and full reports, and election of officers.

Seventy-seven persons have been received into fellowship during the year. Sunday school average attendance was 215; all expenses of the church have been paid and the last $225 note on the parsonage has been paid. The church has paid out $650 for foreign missions, and over $300 for home mission purposes, making fully $1,000 for benevolent purposes this year. We elected two additional deacons, use the International Graded lessons in the Sunday school, have a large Cradle Roll and Home Department, use a mission study book in the missionary society, have the every Sunday memorial flower plan, use the duplex envelope system and thus raise all our conference benevolence apportionment in the red side of same without any public appeal. We are now making the every member canvass for church expenses for the new year. Twenty men have been making the canvass by twos. There is life and growth in all the departments of the church.

I go Tuesday to attend the annual meeting of the Mission Board at Dayton, Ohio, and from there to Defiance, Ohio, to the Christian Biblical Institute for addresses on "Church and Pastoral Methods."

WARREN H. DENISON.

WINCHESTER LETTER.

We are busy now trying to increase the interest in our services. It is hard to hold the average attendance during the Summer. We hope to build up a good congregation during the Fall and Winter. We expect to hold our revival service during November. Dr. C. H. Rowland, of Franklin, Va., is to be with us. The revival services at Timber Ridge will begin October 12th. Rev. J. W. McManiman, of Hancock, Md., will do most of the preaching. We are praying for great blessings in these meetings.

All who have made subscriptions to the Winchester Church Fund are hereby requested to send in the annual payment on or before Oct. 15th. All subscriptions were made with this understanding. Prompt payment of these subscriptions will mean a great saving to the church in interest.

Financial statement:

Reported	$6,948.18
Extension Fund (Conference)	75.00
Mrs. Thomas R. Bishop	.75
Miss Blanche Smith	1.00
E. B. Eshelman	1.00
Denton Peck	1.00
Rev. J. H. Barney	7.00
Rev. B. F. Black	3.00
Willing Workers (Winchester)	1.00
Dr. J. L. Whitlock	5.00
Rev. E. M. Carter	5.00
J. A. Spaid	1.00
Mrs. E. W. Cather	5.00
C. L. Rhodes	3.00
Miss May Capper	2.00

Total$7,059.93

We are grateful for all these contributions and feel that the Lord will bless every contributor to this worthy enterprise. If there are others who feel like they want to help the cause, the conference has stood for $2500 of the indebtedness and will appreciate any help you may give them on it.

W. T. WALTERS.

Oct. 2, 1913.

AT DEFIANCE (OHIO).

A twenty-eight hour run from Newport News, Va., lands us safely at Defiance, O., on the evening of Sept. 17th. President McReynolds' magnificent home is thrown wide open to us with all of its comforts and conveniences. The Doctor is a model of generous hospitality that rivals the best product of old Virginia. The people are kind and make us feel at home. The work is pleasant and Defiance College beyond our expectation. The faculty, composed of about twenty-five, is a fine body of intelligent Christian men and women, loyal to the interests of the students and the institution. The course of study is strong and thorough. The moral standard is high—higher than even the Christian ministry is living. Drinking, dancing, card and pool playing and tobacco in all forms strictly prohibited. This costs the College heavily in students, but the management stands firm and will finally win. Heavy emphasis is laid upon the religious life. The church organization is fostered by the faculty with all the loyalty shown to the College. President McReynolds is perhaps the most enthusiastic member—his heart in and hand upon every interest of the church. He is a real pastor and had great success in the pastorate before becoming College President.

I attended the Northwestern Ohio Conference this week and felt at home, hearing practically the same enterprises and problems discussed as in my own conference. The speeches were good, a spirit of harmony prevailed, and progress was the watchword. The reports showed progress along the various lines of conference activity. Good old country hospitality, reminding us of the South, was in evidence. Defiance Day was enthusiastic and inspiring, but the Women's Missionary meeting was the most impressive part of the entire program. With united and progressive effort this Conference can become a strong factor in Northwestern Ohio.

N. G. NEWMAN.

Defiance, Ohio, October 3, 1913.

GREENSBORO LETTER.

The special revival services at the First Christian Church of this place continue with interest. The services were held all last week without any special manifestation of interest or of the Holy Spirit. On yesterday (Sunday) more than eleven hundred people attended the services, the house being packed each service.

In the afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock, Rev. Chas. Butler, who is with us, after a most interesting song service of old songs, such as, "Amazing Grace," "I Will Arise and Go to Jesus," "How Tedious Are the Hours," "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing," (the old tune), and other popular choruses, delivered a most powerful sermon on "The Home," in which he declared and proved by the Word of God that the Home is the only institution that is the home of the nation, and a home is not a home if it has not a father and mother and God, and that the authority of parents over their children should be a positive factor in the home. He showed us where it is a sin and a direct violation of God's Word for a Christian girl to marry an unbelieving man, or a Christian man to marry an unbelieving girl. He showed the very wicked results that have come from such unions, anything but wickedness being the exception. His last appeal was, "What shall I have in my home?" The answer is, "Prayer."

God says, "Children should be keepers at home." Eg. In a certain city in this country a young woman died. She was unknown. She was placed in the morgue and advertised, perchance some one might claim her. During the few days that followed, hundreds of fathers and mothers came, passed and looked in on the body, perchance they might find their own girl. What does all this mean? That there are thousands of fathers and mothers who know not where their girls are.

Who are these girls daily and nightly thronging the streets wearing "I see you" waists, hobble, slit and transparent skirts? They are not from homes of prayer. You can judge a home these days by the clothes the members thereof wear. Would our grand-parents have allowed their children in such dress? They would have seen them to the reformatory first. In these days of prayerless homes, fashion and worldly amusement the power of evil is undermining the constitution of the kingdom of God in the hearts of men.

It was a wonderful appeal. After speaking forty-five minutes, the people wondered why he had stopped so soon. Notwithstanding the wonderful singing and the preaching of the Word, no one has repented yet. We are still praying for the blessing and expect it this week.

Yours earnestly,
H. E. ROUNTREE.

QUESTION OF HISTORY IN RELIGIOUS JOURNALISM.

We have received a copy of the centennial number of The Christian Observer, which we have found quite interesting. That paper was one hundred years old September 4, 1913. One hundred years old! Only one other religious paper in the world can show a greater age, and that is The Herald of Gospel Liberty, which entered its one hundred and sixth year September 1, 1913. By the way, the centennial number of The Christian Observer gives The Herald of Gospel Liberty attention to the extent of nearly two columns, seeking to show that The Herald is not the oldest religious newspaper "on this planet."

The Observer's claim rests on two points of evidence:

1. That our Herald was not started as a weekly, but as a bi-weekly. For this reason it is denied being the oldest weekly religious newspaper, since The Observer was started as a weekly, as if a weekly paper is more a religious paper than a bi-weekly. A bi-weekly may be as truly the first religious newspaper as a weekly, especially when the bi-weekly is five years older, having been introduced to the world when such a thing as a religious newspaper was unknown to man. The question is not which is the oldest religious weekly, but which is the oldest religious newspaper? In other words, who gave the religious newspaper idea to the world—was it the Christian Church, or was it the Presbyterian Church? That is the issue which our brother cannot obscure by the word weekly. The fact that a paper is a weekly, a bi-weekly, a monthly, or a quarterly, has nothing to do with its character as a religious newspaper. The issue then is clearly, Which was the first religious newspaper ever published? The answer to that question is undeniably, so far as we have information, The Herald of Gospel Liberty, first printed at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, on September 1, 1808.

2. The second point of evidence upon which The Observer counts, to prove that The Herald is not entitled to this honor, is the fact that it has not been continuously published through a hundred years. He declares that two or three times in its history The Herald of Gospel Liberty has suspended publication. We do not deny that its continuous publication was broken on two or three occasions in its early days by the stress of circumstance, but only for a short time. Once Elias Smith is said to have given it up entirely, but Robert Foster went right on with it with but little interruption. This is no argument against the seniority of our Herald, for the same is true of The Christian Observer, the paper which is contending for this honor. In the centennial number of that paper the editor says:

The only breaks in the weekly publication of this paper (The Observer) were due to a delay of one week, when Rev. Amasa Converse removed from Richmond to Philadelphia in 1839. But there was no intentional break in its publication; and the other breaks were at the beginning and close of the Civil War. In the first case the paper was suppressed in Philadelphia by order of President Lincoln, but appeared three weeks later in Richmond. In the latter case when Richmond was burned it was physically impossible to issue the paper for some weeks. But there was no break in the continuity of its publication.

Isn't that wonderful? Breaks in the publication of The Christian Observer do not stop its continuity of publication, but similar breaks in The Herald of Gospel Liberty do stop the continuity of its publication! Isn't that marvelous? Who could think that a beloved brother in the gospel ministry could make such an inconsistent claim?

We have even offered to pay all expenses of a commission to make investigation of the facts involved, so that the public might have the matter settled. We made the offer to pay all expenses of the commission on the condition that it should be shown that The Herald of Gospel Liberty is not the oldest religious newspaper on this planet, and if this was not shown, then the party contesting our claim should pay all expenses. To this proposition no reply is made.

Study the claims made and you will easily see that this is the most daring and excuseless effort to grab from the Christian Church the honor of giving to the world the religious newspaper idea, and all that it may be given to the Presbyterian Church, among whose people the idea certainly did not originate, as the facts abundantly show. Beyond all question the Christian Church did first introduce to the world the idea of the religious newspaper. We challenge The Christian Observer to disprove that statement. Do it, and we will surrender the claim at once, but if The Observer cannot so disprove our claim, then let him abandon it, as a matter of right, in our favor.

As to the two or three breaks in the continuous publication of our Herald, that cannot destroy its standing as the oldest religious newspaper "on this planet." If two or three such breaks in our record destroy our claim, as such, then what about The Christian Observer, when it had at least three breaks in its publication? The causes for the breaks in neither case can possibly debar one or the other—it is as fair for one as it is for the other. The Christian Observer had quite as many breaks in its continuous publication as The Herald of Gospel Liberty had, and yet in the face of these admissions, the editor of The Observer seeks to grasp the honor of giving the religious newspaper idea to the world to the Presbyterian Church. It is hard to believe that a beloved minister of the gospel would deliberately seek to wear such an honor when the evidence shows beyond any doubt that the honor justly belongs to another. If it were a question of the frequency of publication which determines this matter, then it might be said of The New York Witness that it was the first daily religious newspaper ever published, but that could by no means make it the originator of the religious newspaper idea, neither does the fact that The Christian Observer was the first weekly ever published, give to it the honor of having originated the idea of the religious newspaper. A bi-weekly is as truly a religious newspaper as a weekly.

The mailing list and good-will of the original Herald of Gospel Liberty have never disappeared. We now have its files, showing its publication began September 1, 1808. It was then a bi-weekly, but it became a weekly early in its history and was not suppressed during the war. If a break in its publication destroyed its continuous history, then it must be true that a break in the publication of The Christian Observer must have done the same thing for that paper, which was begun as The Religious Remembrancer September 4, 1813. Our paper was begun as The Herald of Gospel Liberty, and while there was one or two changes in the name later, it has for many years been known by its original name.

That The Observer's claim is unjust we believe impartial judges will affirm. Just as one of the great denominational weeklies has of late expressed its thought touching this matter. We refer to the Christian Advocate (Nashville) which in a recent issue delivered its opinion as follows:

"The Christian Observer claims to be the only weekly newspaper which has completed one hundred years of continuous publication. This claim is challenged by The Herald of Gospel Liberty, a paper of the Christian Church, published at Dayton, Ohio, which claims to be the oldest religious newspaper in America. We do not essay to act as umpire in this contest." No umpire is needed, beloved. Just send for a copy of The Herald of Gospel Liberty published in 1908, celebrating in that year its hundredth anniversary and giving a fac simile reproduction of its first copy issued in 1808, whereas The Christian Observer is just now, in 1913—five years later—celebrating its centennial. It does not take an umpire nor a scholarly editor to say that 1908 is further back in history than 1913, does it? A boy in a free school, just learning his first 'figers' can tell you that.

Thank you, Bro. Advocate! It is refreshing to see a man who is big enough to accord to others what truly belongs to them. We regret that any Christian newspaper covets laurels which do not by any means belong to it. We regret it for its own sake and for the sake of the cause of Christ. If The Herald of Gospel Liberty is claiming anything in this, or any other matter, to which it is not entitled, show us the facts, make it plain, and we will instantly quit the claim.

We submit the case to the public as an impartial jury. All we ask is simple and straight justice—that and nothing more.

J. PRESSLEY BARRETT.

WHO EDITS THE MAGAZINES?

During a recent discussion of the old question, college verses no-college, one of the contestants remarked that the substantial monthly magazines were not edited by college graduates. The man who made the remark was promptly confronted with the following record: The Century, edited by Robert Sterling Yard, Princeton, '83; Scribner's, edited by Edward L. Burlingame, Harvard, '69; Harper's, edited by Henry M. Alden, Williams, '57; Atlantic Monthly, edited by Ellery Sedgwick, Harvard, '94; Review of Reviews, edited by Albert Shaw, Grinnell, '79; and World's Work, edited by Arthur W. Page, Harvard, '05.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

The aviator is on the wing, and his feats, when not fatal, continue to smash records and startle mankind. Recently a Frenchman flew, in a monoplane, entirely across the Mediterranean Sea, a distance of 558 miles, in a flying time of seven hours and forty-five minutes. This is the longest over sea flight yet accomplished. Thousands are risking their lives, and hundreds are perishing, to make sure the conquest of the air. Progress seems, like the remission of sins, only to come through the shedding of blood.

—The Emperor recently brought 4,981 persons across the Atlantic—the largest human cargo ever carried by any sea-going vessel. They ate 5,500 pounds of sauerkraut and drank 6,000 gallons and 3,000 bottles of beer.

He knows not his own strength that hath not met adversity. Heaven prepares good men with crosses, but no ill can happen to a good man.—Ben Jonson.

Hopefulness, like the nightingale, sings its sweetest song in the darkest hour and hides away in silence when the sun shines.—Florida Christian Advocate.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: OCTOBER 12.

Subject: "Jealousy and Envy Punished."—Numbers, 12th Chapter.

Time.—A few days later than the date of Lesson 1.
Place.—Hazereth.

Persons.—Moses and his wife, Miriam, Aaron, the people.

Golden Text.—Love envieth not; love vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, does not behave itself unseemly.—1 Cor. 13:4, 5.

Leading Thought.—Love envieth not.

In last Sunday's lesson we saw Moses distressed by the lamentation and unjust complaints of the people at large; in this lesson he is still more distressed because of an unwarranted attack by his sister and brother. Moses loved the whole race of Israel and he keenly felt their woes and wailings. When Israel besieged him he was quick to give vent to his feelings in a loud cry for help to Jehovah; when his brother and sister attack him he is silent.

The Israelites were on their way from Sinai northward through the Wilderness of Paran to Canaan. This is ordinarily a journey of eleven days, but there were so many of the Israelites and they were so encumbered that it probably took a month or two months for them to get through.

Moses' wife was as the revised version has it, a "Cushite Woman." Since "Cushite" is a term sometimes applied to the Midianite district of Arabia, from which came Moses' wife, Zipporah, it is probable that she is meant. She may not have joined the Israelites until this point. Some think that Zipporah was dead and Moses had married again. Miriam and Aaron objected because Moses had married a heathen woman and not a Hebrew. They also objected to the authority exhibited by Moses, because he was a younger brother.

Moses was declared by Jehovah to be superior to any prophet or prophetess, such as Aaron or Miriam with whom he might speak in a dream, but with Moses alone God spoke face to face. Miriam seems to have stirred up her weaker brother, Aaron, into this rebellion. Therefore, the rebellion came on her alone. The implication is that she was healed at once when Moses prayed, but she was kept outside the camp seven days according to custom.

Question Review.

1. With what terrible disease was the sister of Moses smitten?
2. How was she healed?
3. What diseases of heart in Miriam and Aaron were the reason for the affliction with leprosy? (Title.)
4. What does our Golden Text name as the cure for jealousy and envy?
5. What restrained Moses from "talking back" when the brother and sister showed envy?
6. How did they soon acknowledge that Moses' love had cured them of envy? (Spoke to him as "my lord" and asked him to pray for them.)
7. Do you believe that jealousy which makes one boy or girl speak against another today, can be overcome by love?
8. How many of you will give this a fair trial, and see if by love you can avenge yourself upon those who speak against you?—Leonard.

THE POWER HOUSE.

The Westminster Presbyterian Sunday school, of Greensburg, Pa., convenes promptly every Sunday morning at ten o'clock. At 9:50 the pastor, superintendents and teachers meet in the library for five minutes prayer and conference. They are precious moments. The minds of the teachers are directed to the salient points of the lesson, earnest prayer is offered, and as a result there are a few who go into the session as leaders already filled with the Spirit of the Master and the purpose of the lesson. It is indeed a power house.

A BARACA ON THE BENCH.

Judge W. A. Devin, the newly appointed judge of the superior court for the district in which THE CHRISTIAN SUN is published, is a most enthusiastic and active Endeavorer. His address at the last State Baraca-Philathea Convention at Charlotte was considered the feature of the Convention.

This reminds us of many other prominent men active in Sunday school work. Judge West, of Waverly, Va., is another judge who is also a Bible Class teacher. The Governor of North Carolina was teaching a Baraca Class in Asheville when he was elected to his high office. These men are in company with such men as William McKinley, President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and others, who have been Bible Class teachers.

RAISING MISSION FUNDS.

The time for Conferences is at hand and all Sunday schools are asked to bring up five cents a member for home missions. This brings up the question of school finances. Many of the schools do not have this money when conference comes. We give below the experiences of some schools in raising mission money.

In one school the whole amount obtained one Sunday in the month is given to missions and the expenses of the school are obtained from other Sunday's collection. We believe in our conference one Sunday's collection each month should be given to missions, one to the orphanage, and the school's expenses raised during the other twenty-eight Sundays of the year.

We have read of a school that gives all of its regular collections to causes outside of the school. Money for supplies and music is raised in other ways. The Cradle Roll and Home Department are self-sustaining, the organized classes are asked to purchase their own literature from their special offerings, and other classes by birthday offerings and other ways raise money for their running expenses.

Other Sunday schools do these things, why cannot we?

The first teacher training class in Wisconsin was in the country where the school and class did not even have a church building in which to meet. It was a cross-roads school house Sunday school. There was a man who had vision and faith, and he injected into others his enthusiasm and purpose. The six members graduated with high honors, and now the superintendent has another class of twenty taking the course. And yet there are thriving country churches that do not believe they can have a teacher training class. They never will as long as they believe that.

The Prince of Monaco, in which tiny kingdom the famous gambling casino at Monte Carlo is situated, says that he is opposed to gambling. His opposition does not extend to the tainted money of gamblers, however, for he accepts his chief income from the casino.

NOTES ON C. E. TOPIC FOR OCTOBER 19.

How to Make This the Best Year in Our Society's History.—Phil. 3:7-15.

LED BY PASTOR OR PRESIDENT.

The leader should begin in time if he wants to make this meeting the splendid success it should be. It is suggested that the leader get a number of telegram blanks and have members of the society write in a 12-word telegram one thought or plan of making the society better. These should be read at the meeting by the writers. Or they may be handed to the leader in advance and he will read them, after each one the writer making such comment as he feels is appropriate.

The prayer meeting committee should for this and all other meetings offer their assistance and help in passing out telegram blanks, greeting telegrams and filling in pauses. There should always be eight or ten members of a society pledged to fill in embarrassing pauses in the meeting so that it will not get dull.

Let the leader discuss the three things necessary to success, which are: 1. Machinery or organization. 2. Inspiration or enthusiasm to run the machinery or organization. 3. Ideas, without which neither machinery nor enthusiasm is worth anything.

Thoughts on the Topic.

There are three lines of work the society may find necessary to improve—the prayer meetings, the social work, the general organization. Unless you have better prayer meetings the society will soon die of itself. If you do not have interesting social gatherings young people will find no attraction in the society. If you fail to keep the officers and committees at work the organization will soon lose its power and decline.

There are many things you can start that will keep people interested, but there must be some definite work going on all the time. Note some of the things societies do: one entered on a house cleaning campaign, the church was painted, the church lawn was put into neat condition, shrubs and flowers were planted.

In rural districts cottage meetings are great help. Endeavorers can pray, sing and read the Bible at such places. One society tried a street car Bible class. Each promised to carry a Testament and read it on the street car. Members can agree to attend the church services more regularly and can aid the pastor in his work.

The Sunday school affords the greatest opportunity for endeavorers. Organize a band that will agree to be teachers when other teachers are absent. There is nothing that gives a superintendent more trouble than supplying teachers. Never let him have to beg for a supply.

Appoint a committee of two each month to visit other societies and report what they have seen and heard. Have the officers get all books that are worth while on Christian Endeavor organization and get new ones as fast as they come out. Get membership committees to work, and have the committee adopt some definite plan for the year.

Let several make suggestions as to some kind of novel social the society might have. Let others suggest the names of some people that ought to be in the society.

Have some of the members get away from the helps on the lesson and make some suggestions of their own for the next year's work. Let suggestions be something practical for your own society instead of theories that are applicable in some places but not with you.

The Weather Bureau estimates that the total loss occasioned by the floods in the Ohio valley last March amounts to $163,000,000.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Sec'y. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

FOR WHOM CHRIST DIED.

I have just been reading some accounts of that wonderful World's Sunday School Convention which has recently closed in Zurich, and as I read, these words quoted from a speech made by Dr. G. W. Bailey struck me forcibly: "We believe that the advance of the Gospel is the destiny of the human race, and we therefore hold that it is the duty of the church to give the Gospel to the whole world as speedily as possible."

Still more forcibly, however, was I impressed by the remarks on that statement by the writer of the article. Let me quote them for you: "Whoever you are that in reading this declaration for even a moment resents the introduction here of foreign missions, be assured that Dr. Bailey was not speaking for himself alone. He was simply declaring the deep conviction of the leaders of the great Sunday school movement. They all rejoice in the fact that today the Sunday school army around the world numbers nearly thirty millions. But as the statistical report in the exhibit so forcibly showed, there are still millions upon millions for whom Christ died, who have never heard his gracious invitation and promise, 'Come unto me and I will give you rest.'"

Have you ever had an old thought put into a new setting and in that setting come to you with an irresistible force? It was so with me, when I read that sentence "for whom Christ died." We say that He died for all the world, but I am inclined to think that many times we believe that he died for the members of the Anglo-Saxon race residing in America, or really, the United States of America at that. Perhaps some of us make it narrower than that, and feel that our own State of Virginia, nay, even our own section of the State, is peculiarly favored and that Christ is given first and foremost to us.

"For whom Christ died." Millions and millions of boys and girls being born into this world every year who have never heard that blessed Name; who know nothing of the One altogether lovely and the chief among ten thousand. Boys and girls as precious and as dear in the Master's sight as your boy or girl, or as mine.

A certain Senator is reported to have said recently: "I have large interests in Mexico, but I am not in favor of a war with that country, because I am not prepared to go as a soldier myself, or to send any one of my sons." This man who had no sons to give to death in an evil cause would not be the one to send some other father's boys where he would not go himself. Are we as true to our belief as that? We would not have our own children lose out in the fight for right. We would lose our material investments to save our sons and our daughters from a material death. Are we as ready to spare others? They are our brothers and sisters. "One is your Master, even Christ, and all we are brethren." Our Elder Brother does not look at the color of the skin. He does not stop to see what part of the globe they inhabit. He does not ask from what branch of the human family they are descended. He died for all collectively, and for each individually. Dare we refuse the work, or the time, or the money that will send the news of the love of Christ to those across the seas "for whom Christ died"?

MRS. F. BULLOCK.

Waverly, Va.

SOCIAL LIFE IN VIRGINIA A HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

We are indebted to Little, Brown and Company, publishers, Boston, Mass., for permission to reproduce the following extracts from Mary Caroline Crawford's book entitled "Romantic Days in the Early Republic." More complete extracts from the book are given in the Christian Observer, in its centennial issue of September 3rd:

Richmond.

The story of Richmond's social life one hundred years ago is an interesting one. In 1815 Mario Mayo became the reigning belle of the city. She was a great beauty, wrote charming poetry, and sang and played on the harp. Moreover, she was so fascinating in manner that one hundred suitors are said to have been refused by her ere she married General Winfield Scott. Even he did not win her easily. She said him nay as Mr. Scott, again as Captain Scott, and still again as Colonel Scott. But when he came to her as General Scott, hero of Lundy's Lane, and begged for the honor of her hand, she capitulated and they were married at Bellville, on the evening of March 11, 1817, to the accompaniment of what a letter of the times describes as "splendid doings."

In a charming article entitled "Some Richmond Portraits," published in the "Harper's Magazine" for April, 1885, there is a little sketch of Richmond society during this period. The cravat, we are told, was an important part of a gentleman's toilet, and a Richmond exquisite "vested himself like a silk-worm in its ample folds." His valet held one end and he the other of the long thin texture, the former walking around his master till both ends met, when they were tied in a large bow. The Richmond exquisite who could not afford a valet tied one end of his cravat to the bed-post and then began the exercise with a properly swathed neck.

Washington Irving was in Richmond attending the trial for treason of Aaron Burr. Irving had no connection of any importance with this cause celebre, but the presiding judge, Chief Justice Marshall, was a Richmond man of such high qualities and delightful simplicity as must particularly have appealed to a student and writer of Irving's temperament. Judge Marshall was wont to market for himself and might often be seen, at an early hour, returning home with a pair of fowls or a basket of eggs in his hand. For many years he traveled the nearly two hundred miles between Richmond and Raleigh, where he held Federal Court, in a vehicle known as a "stick gig," with one horse and no attendant. He wrote his own epitaph in order that only the bare facts of his life should there find a place.

Another famous lawyer who should be connected with the Richmond of this era—in spite of the fact that we always associate him chiefly with Kentucky—is Henry Clay, Clay was born in Hanover county, Virginia, April 12, 1777, the son of a Baptist minister who died early.

Thus it was that the boy had a childhood marked by extreme poverty and was obliged, at fourteen, to begin life as a handy-lad in a small retail store of Richmond. The study of law early began to attract him, however, and he was soon admitted to the bar. His great success in his profession began soon after his removal to Lexington, Kentucky, which State he represented in Washington for the greater part of the half century between the winter of 1806, when he was first a senator, to the year 1852 when he died. * * *

The favorite amusement of Richmond in early Republican days was loo, and it is sad to add that the Richmond ladies played it to excess. They would meet at each other's houses of an afternoon, enjoy tea and gossip, and then play loo for stakes which often grew quite heavy as the afternoon waned. For, although the sums ventured at first were always small, the amounts in the pool were allowed to accumulate, until with forfeits, they often totalled seventy-five or one hundred dollars. "The practice of playing thus became at last a social evil; domestic duties were neglected, mothers forgot their children, wives rifled the pocket books of their husbands; gentlemen gambled away their gold vest-buttons and ladies their ear-rings and bracelets, carried away by the mad spirit of loo."

The Burning of the Richmond Theatre.

All the writers of the period credit to the burning of the Richmond Theatre, December 26, 1811, the change from these light and careless ways to the graver and more serious tone which soon characterized Richmond society. "The families seated on the hills," one of these writers says, "were a polished, refined, sociable, pleasure-loving community, gathered from the different counties because, from time immemorial, the wealth and fashion and beauty of Virginia had assembled at the capital, particularly at the time of the sessions of the General Assembly. The theatre was one and but one of their occasional amusements, and not the one of the highest refinement. An old-fashioned Virginia dining party, select in its company, unlimited in its elegant preparations, was unbounded in its refined indulgence of the appetite, and the delicate attentions of social intercourse. Here was the display of taste in dress, elegance in manners, powers of conversation and every accomplishment that adorns society. The theatre was a promiscuous gathering for a few hours, less attractive than the dining or dancing party, but one of the round of pleasures that occupied the time of the fashionable and the wealthy."

"On that fatal night (December 26, 1811) the benefit of an admired actor enlisted the feelings of the community. Mr. Smith, Governor of the State, Venable, president of the Bank of Virginia, Botts, an eminent lawyer, members of the Assembly, matronly ladies, fascinating belles, blooming girls, officers of the army and navy, men and youth from the city and country, were collected in one splendid group, such as a theatre seldom sees. Alas! that such a gathering should be for death, a most terrible death! An order was given about the light. The boy that held the strings objected—'that it would set the scenery on fire.' The order was repeated. The boy obeyed. And immediately the theatre was in flames."

Seventy-two individuals, the flower of Richmond and the State, perished in this fire, and since none of the bereaved could recognize their own dead, a common burial was held. The whole city was in mourning; and the whole city seemed, too, with one accord to acknowledge "God's providence, in the concurrence of circumstances preceding the catastrophe. The gallantry, and heroism, and blind fatality of that suffering night have never been surpassed," declares Dr. Foote, "and never perhaps has the sudden destruction of men, women and children in one overwhelming ruin produced a greater moral effect. All classes in the community bowed down before the Lord. Christians were moved to efforts of kindness and love that the Gospel might be preached abundantly in Richmod."

Up to this time, rather curiously, Richmond had no church—except the venerable and out-of-the-way St. John's—but this lack of conveniently-situated edifices for the accommodation of different faiths gave rise to the custom of using for church-worship the Hall of the House of Delegates. Here, on alternate Sundays, Parson Buchanan, an Episcopalian, and Parson Blair, a Presbyterian, presided over a pulpit which disappeared on week days. And, such was the spirit of tolerance and liberality which their fraternalism inspired, that it soon came to be the custom for the individuals of the two separate congregations to come every Sabbath! Moreover, Mr. Buchanan, being a bachelor and well-to-do, gladly shared all his fees with Mr. Blair, a married man blessed with a large family. Once an amusing joke was played on the latter by reason of this custom. Mr. Buchanan had gone thirty miles into the country to perform the marriage service and had hired a carriage for two days with which to make the journey. His fee was ten dollars. Whereupon he presented his Presbyterian brother with the following bill:

The Rev. J. D. Blair
To the Rev. J. Buchanan
To hire of a carriage two days at $5	$10
To horse feed and other expenses to and fro	$ 3

	$13
By wedding fee	$ 5

Balance due to J. Buchanan	$ 8

Presbyterians and Episcopalians now subscribed with equal eagerness and generosity to the Monumental Church which it was determined to erect on the site of the theatre, as a memorial to the fire-victims, and for some time it remained undecided to which form of worship the resulting edifice should be dedicated. Finally the majority vote was cast in the interest of the Episcopalians with the result that, in February, 1814, Dr. Moore, of New York, was elected rector of the church and became Bishop of the Diocese. But the fraternal feelings remained undisturbed, Mr. Buchanan continuing to extend to Mr. Blair's successor the generous help he insisted to be the right of a bachelor towards a brother-pastor responsible for wife and children.

Lafayette's Visit to Richmond.

Lafayette's visit to Richmond, in 1823, was a signal for great rejoicing and for very elaborate entertainment. For the ball given in his honor the quadrangle formed by the surrounding buildings and galleries of the Eagle Hotel was floored over and covered with awnings. Yet it was to quite another part of Virginia that Lafayette turned with greatest eagerness—to the home on the Potomac where, a few years previously, he had visited Washington in his retirement. The great General was now no more, but, for a few solemn moments, Lafayette stood inside the enclosure of the tomb near the river along with the ashes of his revered friend. To George Washington Lafayette, Mount Vernon has been a hospitable home during the troubled period of the French Revolution, its stately owner having then borne to him the relation of a tender guardian.

To none of the young Frenchmen, indeed, who, at this period of France's history—or earlier—came to America does Washington appear to have been indifferent. Louis Philippe and his two brothers and the Duc de Rochefoucauld-Liancourt were among the General's most welcome visitors. The latter probably particularly pleased Washington by his sturdy declaration: "In the days of my power, under the ancient regime of France, I had fifty servants to wait upon me, but yet my coat was never as well brushed as now that I do it myself." It was this nobleman, it will be remembered, who had taken to Louis XVI at Versailles news of the storming of the Bastille, and to that monarch's exclamation, "It is a revolt!" had replied tersely, "Sire, it is a revolution!"

That this young Duke had the gift of writing as well as repartee we find from his book describing his travels in America. Particularly deep were his observations and comments on Virginian home life. "The Virginians generally," he declared, "enjoy a character for hospitality which they truly deserve. They are fond of company; their hospitality is sincere, and may perhaps be the reason for their spending more than they should do; for, in general, they are not rich, especially in clear income. You find, therefore, very frequently, a table well served and covered with plate, in a room where half the windows have been broken for ten years past, and will probably remain so ten years longer. But few houses are in a tolerable state of repair and no part of their buildings is kept better than the stables, because the Virginians are fond of hunting, races, and in short of all pleasures and amusements that render it necessary to take peculiar care of horses, which are the fashion of the day."

Virginia Home Life.

Each plantation was a little kingdom of its own in the Virginia of that day, producing within its own limits, everything needed for life except groceries and fine cloths, which were brought from Richmond or some other city in the wagons that carried to market the harvest of flour and tobacco. Society here was classified, sifted and solidly classified. Everybody and everybody's family was known. Hence the F. F. V. characterization of more recent years. At the outset these Virginia families universally possessed simplicity of character, good faith, honesty of purpose, loyalty to a conviction, and they exercised liberal hospitality and spent their life in the honorable discharge of their duty as they saw it. * * *

Delightfully free from all ostentation was the hospitality which then began and which has become the tradition of Virginian life ever since. The wealth of the residents consisting as it did of land and crops, there was no imposing by false appearance and no sudden increase of expenditure was possible. "A temporary show of splendor at the cost of real inconvenience would have been regarded," one writer says, "as a kind of forgery for the purposes of an adventurer." And how free the hospitality was! Southerners traveling in their old-fashioned massive carriages drawn by two or four horses and attended by mounted servants would stop at any plantation in perfect assurance of a welcome even if equipped with no other introduction than the name of a mutual friend. Northern travelers usually took the mail coaches by the day, with relays of horses every ten miles, stopping where they pleased. This posting was called "taking the accommodation line." And men and women living upon remote plantations jolted cheerfully over miles of rough road to lend their presence at social functions. Fox-hunting was a sport much affected; but often the hunt was only an excuse for a round of visits made on the return journey, which sometimes was thus made to last a week.

To be sure, it was a provincial life. Even for purposes of education the early Republican Virginians did not stray far from home. Hard by the Washington College, of which General Lee was later president, stood the Military Institute over which Stonewall Jackson presided for eight years, and the Ann Smith Academy, to which the daughters of prominent Virginian families were sent, attended, in their own carriages and on horseback. The preservation of beauty and womanly charm shared with cultural subjects the hours devoted to study at the famous Ann Smith. Long gloves and deep sun-bonnets were constantly worn by beauty's sake, by these high-born Virginia maidens, Mrs. Ellet says, and the eating of meat and butter discouraged, as tending to fleshiness and fat.

Christmas, as might be expected, was the crowning festivity of a Virginian home. Then it was that the young people, back from school, and their elders, returned from steering the ship of state at Washington, or directing the exports of the country at Richmond, had merry times together in a fashion approximating the English Christmas Washington Irving has described. Weeks before the festival dawned jellies, cakes, puddings and pies were carefully prepared and huge casks of cider and bins of luscious apples brought home. Then slaughtered fowls and tempting meats were placed in waiting. At midnight, on Christmas eve, the darkies, to whom the festival was particularly welcome because of the gifts it brought them, would set off a big log charged with powder and blow an old ox-horn as a signal to begin the fun. The sun would scarcely be up before the visits of neighbors began, and soon there would be dancing to the tune of the fiddle, eating and drinking on the bounteously-spread tables and good stories exchanged over huge, roaring fires in the hall. Virginian home life was then at its best. For unlimited hospitality was, for the nonce, a duty as well as a pleasure.—Southern Churchman.

Children's Missionary Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions For Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDREN

The
Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

See Us about Job Printing

WHEN YOU WANT GOOD WORK.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

CHURCH NEWS.

(Continued from Page 3.)

lowing third Sunday in July and had a good meeting. The Baptist brethren helped us in the prayer meeting work, for which we were thankful. There were nine professions and five united with the church. The church has a new organ, and everything seems to be moving on nicely.

EBENEZER.

We protracted here week following fourth Sunday in July. Bro. J. F. Morgan was with us and did the preaching in a manner that not only won for him many friends, but had its desired effect. Bro. Morgan is an earnest, consecrated preacher, and God is using him. There were about twenty professions and some reclamations. Fourteen joined the church. The church is in fairly good condition, but we need a new house of worship.

PINEY PLAIN.

We were fortunate in having Bro. Morgan with us here week following second Sunday in August. We had a good revival, twenty or more professions, and fourteen uniting with the church. The church here has been improved with a recess pulpit and steeple. A coat of white paint adds much to its appearance.

CATAWBA SPRINGS.

The revival was held here week following first Sunday in August with good results. There were nine or ten professions and seven joined the church. Everything seems to be moving on nicely here and we are looking forward to greater things. Rev. Len G. Broughton of London was with us on Saturday before the third Sunday in September, and preached, to the delight of all. This is his home church, for here he first joined, but since has gone to the Baptist Church.

WAKE CHAPEL.

During the week following third Sunday in August Bro. Hemphill, of the Presbyterian church, and Bro. J. O. Cox, were with us here. But the people were not ready, it seemed, for a meeting, having their tobacco on hand. There was only one profession and one united with the church.

SIX FORKS.

Bro. Neil Rowland, of Texas, was with us here and did good preaching, to the delight of all who heard him. The church seemed to enjoy a revival, and there were about twenty or twenty-five professions, twelve uniting with the church. This is a good church to serve, but there is great need of better singing.

We held our revival at these several churches some time ago, but waited until after the baptism was administered (as there were some to be taken into the church at the water's edge) to send to you.

J. LEE JOHNSON.

HAYES' CHAPEL (GARNER)

A revival was commenced at this church 4th Sunday in Sept., and continued eight days, Rev. C. Rowland, of Texas, doing the preaching. He was at his best, which means much. It was a good meeting. There were sixteen converts, four accessions to the church. The other converts are expected to unite with other churches. Brethren and sisters of the other denominations worked with us faithfully. There are many good faithful Christian workers in the village and surrounding community.

W. G. CLEMENTS.

SHE MADE HIM BUY.

Business was in full swing at the church bazar when a young man strolled along evidently with no intention of purchasing anything. As he passed one booth the young lady seller detained him.

"Won't you buy a cigarette holder, sir?" she asked.

"No, thank you. I don't smoke," was the reply.

"Or a penwiper worked with my own hands?"

"I don't write."

"Then do have this nice box of chocolates?"

"I don't eat sweets."

The young lady's patience was exhausted.

"Sir," she said grimly, "will you buy this cake of soap?" He bought it.

THE HEATHEN WORLD.

Paint a starless sky; hang your picture with night; drape the mountains with long, far-reaching vistas of darkness; hang the curtains deep along every shore and landscape; darken all the past; let the future be draped in deeper and yet deeper night; fill the awful gloom with hungry, sad-faced men and sorrow-driven women and children—it is the heathen world, the people seen in vision by the prophet, who sit in the region and shadow of death, to whom no light has come, sitting there still through the long, long night, waiting and watching for the morning.—Bishop Foster.

Holy Bible

THE FINEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD
—FOR THE MONEY—

This Photograph represents exact size 5½ x 8¼ inches

Bound in French Morocco, absolutely flexible, with overlapping covers as shown in this photograph. Has red under gold edges.

—IT CONTAINS—

The Authorized Version of the Old Testament and New Testament

—HAS—

Self-Pronouncing Text
All the proper words being accented and divided into syllables for quick and easy pronunciation.

—IT ALSO CONTAINS—

A New Series of Helps to Bible Study

—INCLUDING—

4000 Questions and Answers
which unfold the Scriptures

31 Beautiful Illustrations
showing scenes and incidents of Bible History

12 Maps of the Bible Lands in Colors
Large Clear Type Fine Paper

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN one year,
$2.50, postpaid.
Or sent alone for $1.50, postpaid.

—ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO—
The Southern Christian Pub. Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. E. M. CARTER, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

E. M. Carter, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amount brought forward$3,452.32
DUES.

J. Newman Denton$.10
S. E. Denton, Jr.10
J. Rabb Denton10

MONTHLY S. S. OFFERING.

Wentworth 2.41
Damascus 1.44
Union, Va. 1.00
Oak Level 2.35
Hank's Chapel 2.28
3rd Church, Norfolk ... 5.65
Linville, Va. 1.37
Shallow Ford 1.49

SPECIAL.

Class Entertainment,
New Providence,
Graham 18.21
Rent, Mulholland Land. 28.00
Tyler Bolling, work 2.00
Mrs. Hattie Blanchard,
on support of child .. 3.00 69.50
$3,521.82

After several disappointments to the children, as well as to myself, we gave our entertainment at New Providence Saturday night, Sept. 27. There was a large and appreciative audience, which responded very liberally in the offering at the close of the program. It has been our purpose all the Spring and Summer to go with the class to quite a number of places, but in the first place, for the lack of a teacher, and then for sufficient help to carry on the work here while we were gone, it has been a seeming impossibility to do it. In the main this has been our trouble all the year, and is just as bad at the present. But we have tried to be courageous and look for better in the future.

At a meeting of the Board this week, Miss Dora Edwards was elected to the place of housekeeper. Miss Dora has been here before and did such excellent service that we feel very glad, indeed, to have her come to us again.

I wish all of our people would read the letter for the Corner this week. The "Denton Boys" are among the few to remain faithful and I wish so much, more of you would show your interest as they are doing.

And, too, we have a number of Mite Boxes out. I would suggest that you send in the collections you have on hand and then go to work to swell the Thanksgiving Offering. There are just lots of the boxes here yet, and I will be only too glad to supply any who may want one.

If you will notice, the collections this month are by far smaller than any month during the year. What can be the cause of it? Have you taken the matter up with your school and read to the school the letters and folders I have sent you? We can't afford to let go our hold and cause an institution of this kind to hurt.

Now I have resigned. Not because my estimation of the work has failed; the more I know of it and the further I go with it the better I love and yearn for the cause. The Executive Board and I have worked congenially together all the year. They have refused me nothing I have asked or done. The financial conditions are good, and if I could have had the support that even I began with, I would have cleared all accounts and would have owed nothing but the bill for improvements. But as it is now, bills are accumulating and no body on earth can help conditions like the churches and schools, to whom we are looking for the support of the work.

Say, did you read the selection a week or so ago, "If Not the Pastor, Then Who?" That means something. Some one has to take the initiative in every movement. Why not you? Take the matter up; the people love to hear of it; then we will have more and better results.

Respectfully,
E. M. CARTER, Supt.

McRae, Ga., Sept. 27, 1913.

Dear Uncle Emory:—
We are sad because of the loss of the letters from the Cousins that we have always loved to hear read. Much love and three dimes from

J. NEWMAN DENTON,
S. E. DENTON, JR.
JOS. RABB DENTON.

You don't know how much I appreciate your faithfulness in writing. I wish more of our parents would show their interest in work.

KANSAS WOMAN HELPLESS.

Lawrence, Kas.—Mr. J. F. Stone, of this city, says, "My wife suffered for ten years from womanly troubles, during two years of which she was totally helpless. She was examined by many physicians, some of whom gave her up to die. Finally she began to take Cardui, and since then has greatly improved in health. The tonic, strengthening, and restorative effects of Cardui, the woman's tonic, on the womanly constitution, are the most valuable qualities of this popular medicine. Cardui acts specifically on the womanly constitution. Half a century of success proves that Cardui will do all that is claimed for it. Try it for your trouble. ad.

NATIONAL CONSERVATION EXPOSITION

Knoxville, Tenn., September 1st to November 1st, 1913.

Southern Railway announces the sale of very low round trip tickets for the above occasion. Tickets will be on sale daily up to November 1st, 1913.

Ask your agent, or write the undersigned for complete information, Pullman reservations, etc.

J. O. JONES,
Traveling Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

CHILLS AND FEVER OR ANY FEVER

QUICKLY YIELD IF
TREATED WITH
30 YEARS OF SUCCESS
IN CURING FOLKS

JOHNSON'S TONIC

Add To Your Crops

By the use of the Bemis
Transplanter.

DO IT RIGHT THIS YEAR

Set out your plants with the Fuller & Johnson Bemis Transplanter and see them start growing quicker and bring you larger money returns because of better quality and larger yield.

When you thrust a stake into the ground and set the tender plant into the hole thereby formed you cramp and double up the roots and force them to make their way through a hard wall of earth. If they do it and get hold they live. If they do not, you are the loser when they die.

Besides, it is slow, backbreaking work, never well done by help and too trying for you. The Fuller & Johnson Bemis Transplanter obviates all this. It sets the plant into the ground, packs the loose earth around the stem of the plant properly, gives a supply of water right at the roots, slushing and spreading them out, then covers the roots with the loose fine earth, so that the ground does not bake and the plant does not burn. Result is, plants start quicker.

More Plants Grow when set by this Machine than when set by hand and you get a better quality crop

Actual tests show that ninety-five per cent. of the plants grow. They can be set out in any kind of weather. Think of the advantage of this. Then the labor saved is fully two-thirds. So, with the Bemis Transplanter you get Better Crops at Less Money. More Tobacco with Less Work.

The machine is built on the "Quality First" idea. Many of the Fuller & Johnson Bemis Transplanters sold twenty-five years ago are yet in use. Fully seventy-five per cent. of the Transplanters now in use in America are of this make.

This Transplanter is strongly, carefully and durably built and of the best materials obtainable.

It will last a lifetime and make its cost the first year.

Write to the Madison Plow Co., Manufacturers, Madison, Wisconsin, for descriptive matter, or see any of the following agents, who sell and warrant the Fuller & Johnson Bemis Transplanter:

H. E. Brewer & Co., Rocky Mount, N. C.

L. Harvey & Sons Co., Winston, N. C.

Hinnant-Riersob Co., Wilson, N. C.

E. C. McLamb, Keener, N. C.

Stevens F. & I. Co., Smithfield, N.

R. H. Elmore, Melfa, Va.

Dixon Brothers Mercantile Co., Snow Hill, N. C.

Hallwood Feed & Supply Co., Hallwood, Va.

Hart & Hadley, Greenville, N. C.

E. R. Johnson, Currituck C. H., N. C.

Smith Hardware Co., Goldsboro, N. C.

J. S. Wooten, La Grange, N. C.

Martin Hall, Oak Hall, Va.

J. T. Edgerton & Brother, Kenly, N. C.

Geo. M. Holley, Coleraine, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf.

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly.

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

MARRIAGES

Chapman-Maphis.

It was a very pleasant occasion that called a few friends to the home of brother and sister C. D. Maphis at Linville, Sept. 24, 1913, to witness the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ollie, to Mr. Edgar D. Chapman. The bridal party entered the parlor while the wedding march was being played by Prof. J. Owen Long, a former music teacher of the bride. Under an arch of evergreen the happy couple pledged themselves to each other for life. Immediately after the ceremony the company repaired to the dining room and partook of a sumptuous wedding dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman left on an afternoon train for a visit to Washington and other cities. Both are active and useful members of the church at Linville, and it is with gratitude we learn they are to make their home at Linville where they can continue their usefulness in the church. Both have a host of friends in the community who wish them a happy married life.

A. W. ANDES.

BIRTHPLACE OF INDIVIDUALITY.

Many great human qualities come to their best in a life of comparative isolation. A big tree, an oak or elm, standing out in an open field has a toughness of fibre, a spread of boughs, and roundness of shape that is never seen in a tree that stands in the woods.

So people get individuality by being much alone. They become self-reliant by relying on themselves. They gain clear opinions by thinking things over, and thinking them out to their necessary conclusions. They acquire inflexibility of purposes by facing obstacles and conquering them.

The pioneers of our country and the fathers of the republic were such men. The projectors of great undertakings carried through triumphantly have acquired their power in this way. The country is the natural nursery of such qualities.

People are wanted on the farms to raise corn and grow stock for the markets; but they are wanted there far more for the training of manhood and womanhood in moral worth, in religious sensibility, in all the traits of a strong, upright personality.

In the future as never heretofore, our cities with their multiplying wealth and lavish luxury are likely to need the country for that steady renewal of their better life which shall keep them from relaxing into sensuality and sinking into decay.—G. S. Dickerman, in The Atlantic.

THIS WILL INTEREST MANY.

F. W. Parkhurst, the Boston publisher, says that if anyone afflicted with rheumatism in any form, neuralgia or kidney trouble, will send their address to him at 701 Carney Building, Boston, Mass., he will direct them to a perfect cure. He has nothing to sell or give; only tells you how he was cured after search for relief. Hundreds have tested it with success.

Adv.

THE POWER OF THE PREACHER.

When a man like Rev. Dr. Chas. L. Mead leaves a community, that community, as well as his particular church, has sustained a distinct loss. The true preacher of righteousness is a power unto salvation not merely in a religious and individual sense, but as a force for higher progress in every direction. He is an influence for good that makes itself felt directly or indirectly in the entire community life, and even from a worldly point of view is an asset worth having. But he is peculiarly a source of inspiration in a period like this when high public and personal ideals are quickening the national conscience and soul, and when men in every station are responding more fervently than for many years to the call of nobler aspirations.

We talk about the tremendous influence of the press, and it is undoubtedly very great. But when the earnest religious preacher speaks face to face and man to man, he produces an effect that nothing else can equal. For he has a theme which is unequalled by any mere earthly topic, and one in which every man and woman is interested beyond any other.—Baltimore Sun.

MRS. VEST FELT LIKE CRYING.

Wallace, Va.—Mrs. Mary Vest, of this place, says: "I hadn't been very well for three years, and at last I was taken bad. I could not stand on my feet, I had such pains. I ached all over. I felt like crying all the time. Mother insisted on my trying Cardui. Now I feel well, and do nearly all my housework." No medicine for weak and ailing women, has been so successful as Cardui. It goes to the spot, relieving pain and distress, and building up womanly strength, in a way that will surely please you. Only try it once.

Adv.

Tired and Aching Feet

Quickly relieved by

MENTHOLATUM

apply at night before retiring and rub well

Sold by all Druggists

25 and 50¢
a jar

FREE OFFER

—To anyone who has not used Mentholum we will send a sample on request, or for ten cents in coin a large trial size package.

The Mentholum Co.,
153 Seneca Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

WINTERSMITH'S
Makes You Immune From
CHILL TONIC
Malaria
in all its forms. Contains no arsenic or opiates; pleasant to take and harmless, for children as well as adults. Sold and guaranteed by your druggist.
Arthur Peter & Co., Louisville, Ky., General Agents.

Oldest Jewelry Mail Order House in America
E. V. RODDIN & CO.
OUR GOODS ARE ALL GUARANTEED

C10 Coral Cameo Ring, $6.00
C11 Solid Gold Signet Ring, $3.90
C12 Solid Gold Link Buttons, including Monogram, $2.25
C13 Solid Gold Locket, full cut Diamond, $6.00
C14 Solid Gold Scarf Pin, full cut Diamond, $5.00
C16 Solid Gold Bar Pin, $2.00
C18 Solid Gold Cuff Pin, Each, $0.60
C19 Solid Gold Cuff Pin, Each, $0.50
C20 Gold Shell Locket, Solid Gold Joints, $3.00
C21 Solid Gold Pendant, Shell Cameo, $7.50
C22 Solid Gold Circle Brooch, $1.50
C23 Indestructible Pearl Necklace, Sterling Silver, White Stone Clasp, $5.00

ESTABLISHED 1855
E. V. RODDIN & CO. - Chicago, Ill.
809-810-811 Heyworth Bldg., 29 E. Madison St.
Just write your name and address below, cut the coupon and mail now. You will get our Catalog by return mail.
Name.....
Street.....
City..... State.....

LET US GIVE YOU This Booklet Free.

It tells you how we can make your old clothes look like new by scientific dyeing. It tells you how we remove by French Dry Cleaning every particle of dust, every stain, every smudge, from the daintiest or the heaviest fabrics, and restore them to you in perfect order.

PRICES ARE THE LOWEST.

For three years we have been growing into a big trade. We now have 10,000 square feet of floor space devoted to our dyeing, cleaning and laundry work. We have the latest improved machinery, the best of skilled labor. We can do what needs to be done in the right way.

All clothing cleaned or dyed by us is sterilized, freed of dust and dirt and carefully repaired. Curtains, portieres and other household articles get the best of attention.

We have the facilities and experience. You are always safe in sending work to us. Ask any bank in Greensboro as to our reliability.

Use the parcel post. Write for our free booklet, which tells what we do and gives prices. Freshen up your winter clothing now.

We want an agent in each town. Write for terms.
COLUMBIA LAUNDRY COMPANY,
106 Fayetteville Street, Greensboro, N. C.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun. $1.50.

COMPOSER OF "THE HOLY CITY" DEAD.

Michael Maybrick, an English composer who wrote some of the most popular songs, chief among which was "The Holy City," died at Buxton, England, August 26th, aged 69 years. Few people who have enjoyed this celebrated song have had any idea as to whose genius produced it. He wrote under the name of Stephen Adams, but his real name was Maybrick, he being a younger brother of James Maybrick, whose American wife, Florence, was sentenced to death in Liverpool in 1889 on a charge of poisoning him with arsenic. Many whose hearts have been stirred by his celebrated song will be glad to know to whom they are indebted for it.—Advance.

PIANO PRICES WILL GO UP.

Pianos, like everything else, vary widely in grade. A strictly high grade piano or self-player piano should last an ordinary lifetime and will maintain the purest and sweetest tone. The materials used in its construction have been gradually advancing in price for years and, on account of the scarcity, will continue to do so. The skilled labor which produces these superb instruments is constantly demanding a higher price, deserves it and gets it. Strictly high grade pianos will never be any cheaper than they are today.

But low grade instruments, made of inferior materials by cheap and unskilled labor, are simply flooding the market, so that if you shut your eyes and buy the chances are about 100 to 1 that you will get a low grade instrument. It will look fairly well and sound fairly well for a year or so, then it will develop a "rattle trap" action and a "tin-panny" tone. Your money will be wasted.

The object of the Christian Sun Piano Club is to absolutely insure the highest quality and, by forming a Club of one hundred buyers, get the lowest possible factory price for each member. Our slogan is "Better instruments for less money." You are invited to join us. Write for catalogue and full particulars. Address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

THOSE WHO CANNOT SEE.

There are always those whose eyes are holden so that they cannot see the beauty and holiness that wait in any place where men live, but must go to the ends of the earth in a vain search for that which stands at their doors. Sir Launfal leaves the Christ at his gates when he goes on the long and idle quest, and finds his Master only when he has learned that the divine is always close at hand. The illusion of the remote, complex, and obscure is the thinnest of veils to those who have once seen life face to face and passed through the process of the reality.—The Outlook.

Life is one long struggle against evil, and he may find mercy before Thee who has had courage enough not to shrink from the combat, but carry it on the best of his power.—Zschokke.

Learn Nursing at Home

We positively guarantee to train You to be a Professional Nurse and assist you to positions. Learn at home in your spare time. Write today for our very interesting literature. National School of Nursing, 331 Lake St., Elmira, N.Y.

THE PLACE OF THE FALLEN.

During his early ministry James Hannington knew almost nothing about missions, and owned that he had little interest in the subject. But, when news came that Lieutenant Smith and Mr. O'Neill had been slain at the start of their undertaking in behalf of Uganda, he was filled with the wish to take up the work. The enthusiasm that marked him after that has made the martyr bishop conspicuous among those laying down their lives for the Dark Continent.—Ex.

FARM FOR SALE

Known as the Cobb place, situated from a mile to two miles north of Elon College, surrounding a graded school and Christian church, containing 200 acres, well watered and well timbered, along and near to macadamized road. Offered as a whole; or in three sections, to-wit: home place, with two-story dwelling and outhouses, 70 acres; section along macadamized road 50 acres, 40 of which are in timber; third section on South side containing 80 acres, ten acres meadow. Prefer to sell privately. Terms to suit purchaser. One wishing to inspect place see W. H. McLean, Whitsett, N. C.

For prices and particulars address
JOHN T. COBB,
38-4t-Adv Enfield, N. C.

CANCER

FREE TREATISE The Leach Sanatorium, Indianapolis, Ind., has published a booklet which gives interesting facts about the cause of Cancer, also tells what to do for pain, bleeding, odor, etc. Write for it today, mentioning this paper.

NEW FEATHER BEDS ONLY $6.50. Full weight 36 pounds. New, clean and odorless. 6-pound Pillows $1.08 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for FREE catalogue. Address SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 71, Greensboro, N. C. PILLOW CO., Dept. 1005, Greensboro, N. C.

A BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY.

The Mint Cola Co. offers splendid opportunities for you to go into the Bottling Business. A chance to earn Two or Three Thousand Dollars per year on small capital. Write MINT COLA CO., Salisbury, N. C.

MORPHINE WHISKEY and TOBACCO HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanatorium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARCROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

CHURCH WORKERS Raise money for church purposes by forming clubs among your friends to buy Dress Fabrics direct from us. Our prices are most economical; we also give generous Club Rebate which you can donate to your church. Queen Fabrics are exclusive in design, exceptional in quality. Free samples, money-back guarantee. Write today for details of Church Club Plan. QUEEN FABRIC MFG. CO. Dept. 233 Syracuse, N.Y.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Elon College, N. C.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books; Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

The Song of the Hair

VERSE 1
Ayer's Hair Vigor promotes hair growth
VERSE 2
Ayer's Hair Vigor stops falling hair
VERSE 3
Ayer's Hair Vigor keeps the scalp healthy
VERSE 4
Ayer's Hair Vigor does not color the hair
J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of higher education fostered by the Southern Christian Convention.

MODERN IN EQUIPMENT, Steam Heat, Electric Lights, Baths, Sewerage, Elegant New Buildings.

A HIGH GRADE INSTITUTION whose graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great American Universities without examination.

MAINTAINS EXCELLENT MUSIC, Art, Elocution, Normal, and Preparatory Departments.

A FACULTY OF SEVENTEEN SPECIALISTS, with a successful record of twenty-three years behind it.

HAS ALL THE ADVANTAGES of city life with none of its disadvantages. Situated in the delightful hill country of North Carolina, famed for its healthfulness, pure water, and high moral tone.

ELON COLLEGE HAS DONE MORE to build up the Christian Church than any institution ever yet commissioned by our people.

TERMS VERY MODERATE. $141 to $191 per session of ten school months.

For catalogue or other information, address,

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, Elon College, N. C.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLE

LARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

Contains in addition to the Authorized Old and New Testaments, all the Sayings of Christ in Red; The Temple Library at Nippur; Names and Order of the Books of the Bible; Maps of Bible Lands; Pronouncing Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names; Comparative Systems of Scripture Chronology; History of the Period from the Close of the Sacred Canon of the Old Testament until the Times of the New Testament; Illuminated Marriage Certificate and Family Record; Chronological Index to the Bible; Concordance; Full-Page Dore Pictures, Half-Tones and in Colors, etc.

No. 820 P. R. L. Bound in IMITATION OF LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Gilt Titles, Marbled Edges. (Weight, 12 lbs.) $2.10

No. 822 P. R. L. Bound in SEMBLER LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Full Gilt Sides and Back, Gilt Edges. (Weight, 13 lbs.) 2.85

No. 823 P. R. L. Bound in AMERICAN MOROCCO, Padded Sides, Rounded Corners on Cover, Gold Side & Back Titles, Gold Edges. (Weight, 15 lbs.) 5.00

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10 1/2 x 12 1/2 in.

HOLMAN RED LETTER SELF-PRONOUNCING

TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5 1/2 x 7 1/2 inches.

THE TYPE.

23 The Bāb-ŷ-lō' nī-an, and all the Chāl-dē-an, 'Pē' kōd, and Shō'a, and Kō'a, and all the Ās-sūr' l-an with

No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges $2.50

No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges 3.00

Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENT

SELF-PRONOUNCING

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Daintiest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2 1/2 x 4 1/4 inches.

THE TYPE.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Je'sus is the

No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges .50

No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms .75

Postage, 3 Cents.

No. 013 R. L.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

A CHANCE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

The public schools are now open, and the laws of the State require that every child between the ages of 8 and 12 shall be in school.

There are children more than 12 years of age who stand in need of thoughtful care and who must receive this from local community activity. There are boys and girls in almost every community, 13, 14 and 15 years of age, many of whom can with difficulty read and write, who are spending their time as producers rather than as learners and growers. It makes no difference whether the child at this age is on the farm or in the mill, he ought to have this opportunity for schooling and his chance for growth.

Suppose that a man should offer to sell to a citizen of North Carolina, say 3,000 to 5,000 negro boys and girls, to be used as daily wage-earners. Our people would not entertain such a suggestion for a moment, even if it were not illegal; and yet we do have in North Carolina more than 3,000, and probably more than 5,000, white boys and girls who are hired out as wage-earners.

There are but few families in our good State that cannot live without depending upon the toil of the child. A farmer who has to work his child every day, in order that he may barely live, is not much of a farmer. A mill operative who is forced to make wage-earners of his young children, either is a very poor worker or else does not get sufficient pay for his labor. A business that has to depend upon children for success should never be boasted of. Look around you and see what the state of affairs is in your own community; and, if there are any of these 12, 13 and 14 year old boys and girls who need your help, give it to them. You will be serving the child, the family and the State in the self-same act.

W. H. SWIFT, Field Secretary,
N. C. Child Labor Committee.

PICK UP THIS $100.00.

If you want a high grade, thoroughly guaranteed piano or self-player piano, one that will merit and command admiration in any company, join the Christian Sun Piano Club. You will save upwards of $100.00 as compared with prices obtainable elsewhere. Another Club of 100 members is now being formed. You get the benefit of the combined purchasing power of the Club and yet you are responsible only for your own purchase. The instruments are sent on approval and perfect satisfaction is guaranteed.

You are invited to join us. Write for the Club catalogue giving full particulars. Address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Adv.

The same sun shines upon peasant and upon prince, and each may enjoy the treasure as he may. Spiritual power is simply the capacity to receive. Limitless force lies at each soul's threshold, waiting to make it mighty. Religious genius is simply a superior power of appropriation.—Christian World.

SHINGLE STAINS IN THE SOUTH

The Special Value of Good Shingle Stains in This Climate, and the Wastefulness of Poor Stains.

Good shingle stains are more valuable in the South than in any other part of the country. Their beautiful coloring effects, low cost and ease of application are quite as desirable here as in the North and West, while the wood-preserving properties and wearing qualities of the best stains are very much more valuable here than in other climates.

The first shingle stains were made by the late Samuel Cabot, chemist, of Boston, over twenty-five years ago, and they were scientifically compounded so as to combine as many valuable qualities as possible. In order to get clear, Residence at Anniston, Ala., of J. F. Spearman, Esq.

transparent coloring effects that would color the wood without covering it like paint, he used the strongest and finest colors that could be found, and ground them in pure linseed oil to the finest consistency possible. Instead of using the ordinary turpentine or benzine vehicle, or thinner, Mr. Cabot made his stains with a specially refined creosote, then known to a few, but now widely known (largely because of Mr. Cabot's advertising) as "the best wood preservative known" (Vide Trautwein). This made an entirely new compound, Pensacola (Fla.) Club, Ausfeld and Blount, Architects, Pensacola.

with strong durable colors that were soft and beautiful, and a liquid vehicle that penetrated the wood and thoroughly preserved it against decay or insects. One of the strong points was that every ingredient was beneficial to the wood. Another, that they contain more linseed oil to fix and bind the color than the best paint, in proportion to the amount of color. They therefore wear as long as any colors can, and in the South they actually wear better than paint, because they sink into the wood and do not form any skin or coating on the surface, so that they cannot crack or peel as paint does in our climate.

Country Club, Birmingham, Ala., Miller and Martin, Architects, Birmingham, Ala.

The tremendous success of these stains brought a host of imitations into the market, but the superior quality of the original Cabot stains has always been known to architects, dealers and builders, and they are today recognized as the one and only standard shingle stain. A prominent Northern dealer recently said, "They are as standard in their line as white lead."

They are now being used almost as much for other outside woodwork as for shingles, and this is an additional reason why they are more valuable in the South than elsewhere, because by staining all our woodwork we can get more beautiful and more durable coloring effects than in any other way, at a lower cost, both for goods and labor, than paint, and at the same time, protect it from insects or decay. It is right here that the imitations come in. They claim to be "just as good" as Cabot's and cheaper, but, like most imitations, they fall far below the original, and when analyzed they practically always prove to be just common paints thinned out with kerosene, benzine or some other cheap petroleum product that has no wood-preserving value whatever, nor any other virtue except cheapness. But the worst feature of these petroleum stains is that they are dangerously inflammable in themselves, and that they make the woodwork so inflammable that a match will start a conflagration.

Residence at Frankfort, Ky., Leo L. Oberwarth, Architect.

Cabot's stains are not only unusually non-inflammable, but they actually diminish the inflammability of wood to which they are applied, because the creosote gives off a cooling vapor under heat which retards the spread of flames.

It costs as much to apply a poor stain as a good one, and the labor item is always proportionately large, so that it is a great waste to try to save a few cents in the first cost by buying a poor stain, especially in the South, where the qualities of the standard stains are of so much more value than they are elsewhere. All the buildings shown upon these pages have been stained with Cabot's stains.

Messrs. Bonniwell & Sons, architects, of St. Petersburg, Fla., have also written to the makers of Cabot's stains (Samuel Cabot, Inc., Boston), giving an account of the great success which they have had in using them on all kinds of exterior woodwork, and this letter, which has also been published, we give below in full:

St. Petersburg, Fla., May 21, 1907.
Samuel Cabot, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir: Last fall we wrote you in reference to the use of your stains on smooth yellow pine siding. On the strength of your reply, and notwithstanding the fact that we were told it was an impossibility to obtain a good job, we specified your stains on the exterior of a small bungalow which was covered with the hardest Florida pine siding.

The result was far above our expectations, and we can truthfully say that there is no comparison between this job and one done with best quality paint.

Although on the building in question the pine was not selected, and some was heart, very hard, and some sap, yet there was absolutely no mottled or streaked appearance. By the use of stain we obtained the effect desired, namely, softness, which we could not have done with paint. Since this experience we have endeavored to use your stain wherever possible, and only last week we completed plans for a nine-room frame cottage on which there will not be used one drop of paint and our Tampa office has also turned out several jobs in a similar manner. Leaving out its advantages from an architectural point of view, we have found from actual experience that it costs less than one-third what a good job of paint work would cost. We fail to see why it has not been used more for this class of work, as there is no comparison between the results with it and paint, and we believe if introduced it will speak for itself.

BONNIWELL & SON, Architects.

In shingle stains, therefore, we have a case where the best is most emphatically the cheapest, and in the South nothing else is worth the cost of putting on. Adv.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912. Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81	4:35 a. m.
No. 29	Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41	4:10 p. m.
No. 43	6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84	12:48 a. m.
No. 38	11:35 a. m.
No. 66	12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice,
RALEIGH, N. C.

DR. J. H. BROOKS, Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

By the "Schuiling Rupture Lock," the wonderful, scientific discovery of the age, it's holding power can be regulated by yourself at will. Endorsed by leading physicians as Nature's true method. No leg straps, springs or other annoying features. It's worn with the same comfort as a pair of old suspenders. Nature's healing process never interfered with, etc. Price within reach of all and it is sent on trial.

Write our Institute today, for our free booklet, if you want to forever rid yourself of rupture.

Schuiling Rupture Institute
100 West Market Street Indianapolis, Indiana

Shirley President Suspenders

50¢

5,000,000 in use—
one pair shows why

"Satisfaction or money back"

Be sure "Shirley President" is on buckles
The C.A. Edgerton Mfg. Co., Shirley, Mass.

NEW SANITARY FEATHER BEDS $7.30 NOW ONLY

Extra weight 36-lbs. 6-lb. Pillows $1.15 per pair. Selected NEW, LIVE, CLEAN SANITARY FEATHERS. BEST FEATHER-PROOF PICKING. Guaranteed as represented or money back. DO NOT BUY feather beds or pillows from anyone at any price, until you get the "Book of Truth" our BIG NEW CATALOG—It's FREE—POSTPAID. Get your feather goods, blankets, etc. at money-saving, rock-bottom prices. Direct from America's largest factory to you. Write a postal TODAY.

AMERICAN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 10
NASHVILLE, TENN.
AGENTS WANTED Reference Broadway National Bank

FOR FEVERISHNESS AND ACHING
Whether from Malarious conditions, Colds or overheating, try Hicks' CAPUDINE. It reduces the fever and relieves the aching. It's Liquid—10, 25 and 50 cents at Drug Stores

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Pierce.

At St. Andrew's Hospital, Suffolk, Va., Sept. 23rd, Mr. Raleigh Pierce, beloved son of Mr. G. W. Pierce of Zuni, Va., aged 28 years. Leaves father, stepmother, one brother, one sister, and many friends. The funeral services were conducted at Antioch church by the pastor and his remains were laid to rest in the church cemetery. H. H. B.

Hosaflook.

Ralph Lee Hosaflook, the infant son of brother and sister Harry Hosaflook, was born Oct. 22, 1912, and died Aug. 26, 1913, aged 10 months and 4 days. Funeral services were conducted at Linville Christian church, of which the parents are members. May the Lord comfort the bereaved, and help them to look beyond this vale of tears to the gloryland where departed loved ones abide. A. W. ANDES.

Creekmore.

Mrs. Elizabeth Creekmore, the wife of John E. Creekmore of Great Bridge, Va., died August 5, 1913, aged 24 years, 7 months and 7 days. She left to mourn their loss two children, a devoted husband, and a number of relatives and friends. In the absence of the writer, the funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Payne of the M. E. Church. God bless and comfort the bereaved ones in this hour of sore loss. J. W. HARRELL.

Allen.

At Garner, N. C., Sept. 25, 1913, Miss C. E. Allen, daughter of John E. Allen and wife, about 17 years old. She was a member of the Baptist church. The funeral services were conducted by Bro. Farmer of the Baptist church, assisted by the writer.

I heard a portion of her parting message and it seemed that an angel was talking through her. I think I shall never forget her sweet words to those around her death bed.

W. G. CLEMENTS.

Griggs.

At her home, on Aug. 24th, Mrs. Eula Maggie Griggs, the beloved wife of Mr. E. L. Griggs, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Norfleet. She leaves father, mother, five sisters, two brothers, husband, two little daughters, and many friends. She was a member of Bethlehem Church and died triumphantly in Jesus. Funeral service conducted at the church by her former pastor, Rev. H. H. Butler, and her remains were laid to rest in the church cemetery. H. H. B.

Bracey.

At her home, near Zuni, Va., Aug. 2nd, Mrs. Garry Ann Bracey, beloved wife of Mr. Milles E. Bracey, aged 36 years, seven months and 25 days. She leaves mother, husband, one daughter, three brothers, one half brother, Mr. J. S. Matthews of Norfolk, Va., one half-sister, Mrs. Fannie R. Carstaphney. Funeral conducted by her pastor at her church, Antioch, and her remains were laid to rest in the old church cemetery. H. H. B.

Michael.

Mrs. Mattie J. Michael was born Aug. 17, 1847, and died Sept. 16, 1913, at the age of 66 years and 29 days. Sister Michael was left a widow by the death of her husband nearly five years ago. Since then she has made her home with a daughter, Mrs. G. W. Bruce. She is also survived by another daughter, Mrs. Chas. Ammon, and by a son, Benjamin, and by three sisters. Deceased was a member of the Christian church at Mt. Olivet (R.), having united with the church during the first revival meeting held there by Rev. C. C. Jones about eleven years ago. It was the writer's privilege for several years to be her pastor, and to be entertained occasionally in her home. She was a good Christian woman, kind and hospitable to all who knew her. Funeral services were held at the home, Sept. 18, and the body laid to rest in the cemetery at McGaheysville.

A. W. ANDES.

Cotton.

On Thursday morning, October 2, Brother D. B. Cotton was summoned to his future home. Early in life he made profession of religion and united with Buck Horn Methodist Church, near Cape Fear river. Having moved into this section of Wake he united with Wake Chapel church about twelve years ago, where he remained a faithful and loyal member until his death.

Brother Cotton leaves to mourn his loss a wife and four children: Mrs. J. C. Upchurch of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mrs. J. P. Maynard of Wade, N. C.; Miss Bertha Cotton of Holly Springs, N. C., and Mr. H. T. Cotton of Chairs, Fla.

The interment was in Wake Chapel cemetery and the burial services were conducted by the writer. May God bless and comfort the bereaved ones and bring them to himself in a better, brighter world.

J. LEE JOHNSON.

Mann.

The mortal remains of Sister W. B. Mann were committed to the tomb in the city of Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 2nd. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. E. Newman, assisted by the writer.

W. B. Mann was a school boy of mine in his young manhood, and boarded in my home. Ever since then we have been the closest friends. I became acquainted with Sister Mann soon after her marriage. Since that time, the home of W. B. Mann and his wife has been my home, whenever I chose to go. If I went at the dark hour of the night the door was opened, and I received a welcome. I don't think I ever saw a more congenial family. But in future when I go I shall miss the pleasant features of Sister Mann, though Brother Mann and his daughter Ellender Vass will be there to greet me with pleasantness. May God bless the husband and the daughter who are left on the shores of time. W. G. CLEMENTS.

LeFairve.

I was unexpectedly called to Waverly, Va., Wednesday, Sept. 24th, to conduct the funeral of a friend and brother, J. D. LeFairve, of that place.

Brother LeFairve had been a resident of Waverly for about eight years, engaged in the manufacture of staves. His untimely death was very sudden. He came home from his work on Saturday, sick, and died the following

GOD'S WORD IN SONG

OUR SONG BOOKS TEACH THE GOSPEL AS FULLY IN SONG AS OUR PREACHERS DO IN SERMON

Flavil Hall F. L. Rowe S.H.Hall

"The Gospel Message in Song"—revised and enlarged—contains 205 of the sweetest and most soul-stirring songs. Words and music of the highest class. The thought of a reformation in song book making prompted its compilation. No other song book like it before it had been published. In it the Gospel is taught as fully in song as loyal disciples endeavor to teach in sermon. Published in round and shaped notes. Out Five years and over 60,000 copies sold. Endorsed by leading men and women in the Christian Church. Beautifully bound and printed. Prices: 30c a copy prepaid; $3 per doz. not prepaid; $3.50 per doz. prepaid; $20 per hundred not prepaid; 50 at the hundred rate.

"Redemption's Way in Song"—by S. H. Hall, Flavil Hall and F. L. Rowe—especially suited to Evangelistic and Gospel Tent Work. Prices: 15c a copy prepaid; $1.40 per doz. not prepaid; $1.60 a doz. prepaid; $10 per hundred, not prepaid; 50 at hundred rate. Send all orders to

S. H. HALL, 81 Ashby St., Atlanta, Ga.

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.

Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles, Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

—HIGH CLASS—

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET.

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

Tuesday night.

Only six months, to exact date, prior to his death, his wife died in the hospital at Suffolk. He never survived his grief in this great loss. This leaves one son, twenty-one years of age, his mother and a foster child whom he had taken three years ago in infancy to rear. He had two sons in the West who could not be reached.

Brother LeFairve was a most estimable citizen, and had won the confidence and friendship of all who knew him. He was reared a Catholic, but many years ago renounced that faith and became a casual attendant at Protestant churches. He was unselfish and charitable in all of his bearings toward his fellow men and always had a help for orphaned children. He was an active Mason and as such was highly esteemed. His place in the Lodge will be hard to fill. A large concourse of friends were present at the burial and the floral offering was elaborate. H. E. ROUNTREE.

Organize a Band!

or Orchestra
Musicians—
Amateur and Professional

write for our interesting plan for organizing bands and orchestras for public entertainment, Schools, Colleges, Churches and Sunday Schools. For 37 years we have been manufacturing the famous Buescher Musical Instruments. Our "Tru-Tone" Instruments are known the world over by musicians great and small as the best that money can produce.

Your Instrument Given Free

As organizer of the band or orchestra, we will make you a present of the instrument upon which you perform, the price of this instrument to depend upon the cost and elaborateness of the band or orchestra outfit. This is a unique offer and a rare opportunity. Write at once for full particulars free. Address

BUESCHER BAND INSTRUMENT CO., Elkhart, Indiana.

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., OCTOBER 15, 1913

NO. 42

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Conscience.

Charles Doherty, the engineer who ran the train into the terrible wreck on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad in June, died recently. He died a nervous wreck, worried beyond human endurance at the part he played in the shocking tragedy. He was exonerated by the coroner at the time, and evidence was given showing that he had reported brakes inadequate, and other material defects. Still he died a wrecked and broken-hearted man. But the directors of the road, the really responsible ones, are worrying little and are enjoying good health. A keen conscience, unoffended, is a blessing, violated, is merciless.

The Same Foe.

In passing sentence upon Diggs and Caminetti, men high up in the social and political life of California, recently convicted for violating the white slave act, Judge Van Fleet said: "All through this case there is evidence that drink had its paralyzing influences upon the morals and minds of these men and the young women. The terrible, debasing influence of the saloon and the road house is too disgustingly apparent, and I make the observation here that society must pay the price for permitting the existence of these highly objectionable places." Society always has to pay and therefore has the right to protect itself against such evil agencies.

Laying Up Treasure.

Not many CHRISTIAN SUN readers, we fancy, have ever heard the name of William Mickens. Fact is he is not known to fame; and yet this man will live to good effect, and in deep gratitude, in the lives of men and women yet to be. He was ninety years old the other day, has been a Sunday school teacher continuously for sixty-eight years and has hardly missed a Sunday in all that long period. No wonder his Sunday school, Mizpah Chapel, Fifty-Seventh St., New York, gave him a loving cup on his ninetieth anniversary. His wife and two daughters have preceded him to the spirit land, and his four grand children are active Christian workers like himself. In honor, now, if left to choose, would you rather take the chances of the future, that world beyond and all eternity, with this faithful old man's record behind you, than to face that future with Carnegie's record? Yes, Carnegie has his millions and is famous in two continents; but he is a skeptic and has never owned Jesus the Christ as his Lord and Master. Carnegie has been reaping treasure here: Mickens has been laying up treasure in heaven.

The Supreme Test.

No man, preacher, priest, or potentate has the right, moral or legal, to ask of another that which he himself will not do or give. A pastor had made an able address on foreign missions and then presented a powerful plea for volunteers who would give up home and friends and native land and go to labor in Christ's name in a foreign land. His own daughter came forward and said, "I will go." The preacher's heart sank within him as he falteringly cried, "O daughter, I did not mean you." Often if our pleas and prayers and requests were granted, and they meant sacrifice to us, we would falter and complain. Riches of grace come to him who is willing to make the supreme test.

Rosh Hashonah.

The Jewish New Year began October 2 and is called Rosh Hashonah. Orthodox Jews believe that on this day all are called to an accounting by their Maker. If one has been wholly good through the year past one's name is recorded in the Book of Life. If one has been wholly bad one's name is recorded in the Book of Death (condemnation). Those who have been neither wholly bad nor wholly good are given nine days in which to get some good deeds to their credit. Then comes nine days later, as provided by the Mosaic custom, the Day of Atonement, October 11. So, a great world of intelligent men and women about us grope on in darkness because they will not accept "the Light of life."

When Blood Touched Blood.

There is little wonder that the Israelites perished as a nation and were, as a people, scattered to the four corners. Hear the words of the Lord to them through his prophet Hosea, before the evil time came when national pride and power were removed from them: "For the Lord hath a controversy with the inhabitants of the land, because there is no truth, nor mercy, nor knowledge of God in the land. By swearing, and lying, and killing, and stealing, and committing adultery, they break out, and blood toucheth blood" (Hosea 4: 1, 2). When this nation of ours shall fall to those depths of sin, then our national pride and power will depart also. It is that hideous monster, sin, that saps a people's strength and mingles blood with blood.

In Such an Hour.

Again another catastrophe at sea. Not so many lives lost as went down with the Titanic, but nearly at the same spot, and in a no less horrible manner. The Volturro, sailing from Rotterdam October 2, was bound for New York with a cargo of 656 souls. In midocean the vessel was found to be on fire, and making such headway that it was impossible to check the flames. Driven by flames, many jumped into the sea, some clinging to rafts of debris, others crowded into life-saving boats. Of the number 135 went down to a watery grave, the remainder being picked up by passing vessels summoned by wireless for help. These very sudden and all unexpected calamities serve to force into the mind the words of our Lord, "Take ye heed, watch and pray; for ye know not when the time is" (Mark 13:33).

Creed vs. Deed.

The tendency of the past decade, a tendency not yet estopped, has been more deed and less creed. The marvelous growth of Christian Endeavor emphasizes this fact. Christian Endeavor means endeavoring, in deed as well as in creed, to be a Christian; if you are a Christian in creed, prove yourself such by your deed. In the past four years the Society has gained a million members, and now flourishes vigorously in three continents. More than ten million church members have become doers of the Word as well as hearers, through Christian Endeavor, and the idea has been emphasized that to be an efficient Church member one must be active and alert for Christ and the Church.

Go or Tell.

A certain wide-awake Sunday school, one that is always crowded and is ever doing things, preparing for a Rally Day recently, sent out this request: "We will expect every member to be present unless dead, dying, or preparing to get married. If any of these causes hinder your attendance be sure to report to the pastor some way so that you may be accounted for. Tell-a-phone, tell-a-graph, tell-a-friend, or tell Uncle Sam to register for you." No wonder the Rally was realized. If a little hustle and energy and spice and preparation are injected into Sunday school and church work, the results are usually forthcoming and in a most wholesome manner. It helps every member to be requested, urged, solicited now and then to either Go or Tell.

The Greatest Event.

Last week two great baseball teams went up against each other for five successive days, in Philadelphia or in New York, to battle for the world's championship in base ball. About 40,000 people witnessed the game each day, and the gate receipts were about $70,000 a day for the five days. Millions of people in this, and in other countries, were interested in and excited over the outcome. The newspapers had special writers to do the games. This copy took precedence on first page under flaming head-lines. Electric wires flashed the news of every play and newsboys cried "Extras" on the streets of the cities when each game was ended. It was a great display. It was all on a grand scale, so much so that one was inclined to think this world series of baseball was the biggest event that transpired in this country the past week. But it was not. It was a long way from being the greatest, most potent, or most permanent event. That which surpassed it, in all that makes for greatness, progress, permanence and power was that on last Sunday a few million souls, without making any ado about it, quietly left their homes and went up to some place of preaching and of public praise and prayer and there sought to worship God and commune with Him. Here was the greatest event of the past week; it is the greatest event of any week, this going, Sabbath after Sabbath, to learn of God, and to enquire in His holy temple. We might as well bear this in mind and so keep history straight as we go along. This is that, this seeking the will and way of God on each holy Sabbath, which makes most for progress, power and permanency in the world.

EDITORIAL

APPOINTMENTS.

Rev. C. C. Peel, who goes to the Alabama and the Georgia and Alabama Conferences in behalf of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, will preach at the following times and places:

At the Alabama Conference Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, October 21, 22 and 23.

Rock Stand, Thursday night, October 23.

Mt. Zion, Friday night.

Antioch, Saturday, 11 A. M., October 25.

Pleasant Grove, Saturday night.

New Hope, Sunday, 11 A. M., October 26.

Wadley, At night.

New Harmony, Monday, 11 A. M., Oct. 27.

Beulah, Monday night.

Tuesday, Georgia and Alabama Conference at Rose Hill, Columbus, Ga. Appointments in churches of the Georgia and Alabama Conference are as follows:

Brown Springs, Friday, 11 A. M., Oct. 31.

Oak Grove, Saturday, 11 A. M., November 1.

LaGrange, Sunday, 11 A. M., November 2.

La Nett, Sunday, 7 P. M., November 2.

Langdale, Monday, 7 P. M., November 3.

Riverview, Tuesday, 7 P. M., November 4.

Richland, Wednesday, 7 P. M., November 5.

Red Hill, Thursday, 11 A. M., November 6.

Randall's Crossing, Thursday, 7 P. M., November 6.

Enigma, Friday, 7 P. M., November 7.

Kite, Sunday, 11 A. M. and 7 P. M., Nov. 9.

If SUN readers in these churches will meet Bro. Peel and renew, and will also make known these appointments, the favor will certainly be much appreciated.

A HAPPY EVENT.

Last Saturday evening the Sunday school of New Providence church, Graham, came over to the Christian Orphanage in wagons, buggies and carriages, and brought along baskets and boxes full of well prepared food. The evening meal was spread out on the lawn at the Orphanage and all the Orphanage children and employees, with a few other friends, were invited out to supper. Pastor J. F. Morgan was in charge of affairs. Superintendent Carter, just before supper, gave an address of thanks and of welcome, THE SUN's editor asked the blessing, and all shared the bountiful feast. Bushels of fragments were taken up and these were given to the Orphanage. All were then invited to inspect the institution and then assemble in the Chapel. In the Chapel Superintendent Carter, Pastor Morgan, Superintendent of the visiting Sunday school, Brother Arthur Walker, the writer, and Prof. W. P. Lawrence all made brief addresses. There were several songs, the one by the Orphanage choir being especially enjoyed. This Sunday school is wide awake and is bringing things to pass. Its Baraca Class clothes a boy, and its Philathea Class has voted to clothe a girl, at the Orphanage. These organized classes are the life of the school and are great factors in the church. But this idea of having a picnic at the Orphanage is a new one we believe, and is certainly a most wholesome and happy one.

INDIFFERENCE.

Hon. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, delivered a lecture in Durham last Sunday afternoon to more than twelve hundred men, choosing as his subject, "Indifference." This distinguished son of North Carolina showed that he was as much in touch with church life and church problems as he was with affairs of state. The claim was made that the burden of the church of the present is the stupendous indifference manifest everywhere. People may not be actively and aggressively sinful as in other times, but they certainly never were more indifferent to church life and progress than at present.

Every pastor has felt the weight of this millstone about his neck. His people are unconcerned. They are not active, not alive, not awake to the great opportunities and great privileges of the church.

You find very few people now who openly or aggressively oppose the church; but you do find hundreds and thousands who simply do not care anything about the church. Even many church members do not care. They belong, they look on, they feel comfortable in church society; but as for taking steps to actively help the church in its problems, they do not seriously consider such.

There is an alarming, even an insidious indifference to church matters and problems. Is the church to blame? Are pastors to blame? Are present methods to blame? These questions are more easily asked than answered. This we know: somebody is to blame, for the indifference certainly exists and is appalling.

Mr. Daniels struck the right note and we trust it will be sounded far and near, for there is great and growing need.

DANGERS OF CATHOLICISM.

The danger of Catholicism becomes more apparent every day, and we wonder what it is yet to come to. The Catholic World remarked recently that "Education must be controlled by Catholic authorities, even to war and bloodshed." And we of this country have not forgot Pope Pius IX's declaration that "Education outside the Catholic Church is a damnable heresy." If they could, Catholics would close every free public school in America before tomorrow night, and abolish forever this bulwark of our dearly bought liberty. If there is anything Catholics hate worse than they do Satan himself, it is our public schools. The Chicago Tablet, a Catholic organ, says, "The common schools of this country are sinks of moral pollution and nurseries of hell." And the Catholic Telegraph adds, "It will be a glorious day in this country when, under the laws, the school system will be shattered to pieces." The priest Capal opens up the intent of Rome in these words, "The time is not far away when the Roman Catholic Church of the Republic of the United States at the order of the Pope, will refuse to pay its school tax, and will send bullets to the breasts of government agents rather than pay it. It will come as quick as the click of a trigger, and will be obeyed, of course. It will be remembered papists are sworn to give allegiance first to the pope and then to the government, as coming from God Himself."

Besides their hatred of the public schools, Catholics would take the Bible out of the hands of the people, and leave it to be read to them only by priests and prelates of the church. That the people should have the Bible and read and interpret for themselves, and that they should have public schools in which the Bible is not taught by a Catholic, is more than the Catholic mind can tolerate.

And yet there are people all around you who will say they see no peril on account of Catholicism. The one greatest foe to American liberty and American free institutions is the Roman Catholic Church.

REACHING THE REACHED.

Several hundred persons, mostly young people, we presume, have, within the last three months, joined Christian churches, if our church news columns have reported correctly. It was no easy or inexpensive matter to reach these persons and get them to face about, agree to change the manner of their living, and give up old habits and associates. But the work was done and the agreement entered into.

What now has the church to offer these new members? What pledge or promise or privilege does it hold out to them that was not theirs before? Every right thinking person must admit that if the church has given these new members all it has for them its offering was poor indeed. But has it done so? We think not.

The new member has the right to expect that if the church reached him it should keep on reaching him. This it cannot do by turning a cold or indifferent shoulder to him. The church must yet do something for the new member. First of all it should recognize that he is a member. This it can do by insisting that he be present at church services, and if possible, be given something actively to do in the name of his church and his Christ.

Secondly, it should put a Bible into his possession, not merely by commending to him the Book, but by actual act and fact. It should be enquired as to whether the new member actually owns a Bible, and if he does not, some steps should be taken by the church to secure one for him and urge that he read it daily. Every church member should have a Bible of his own; and if he is not able to buy one, or is too unconcerned to secure one, the church should be able, or become concerned for him, and see that a copy is placed in his possession. No one thing will serve to keep the young church member true to his new profession and alive to his Christian duty like daily Bible reading. Let the church see to it that the new member have and read his Bible, and then the next revival will not be so difficult, and will be more fruitful. A church member ought to be ashamed not to own and not to read daily, his Bible.

Third, the church should see to it that the new member have a copy of his church Principles and Government, or Confession of Faith, or Discipline. Every church member should be able to give a reason for the faith that is in him. He should know what his church stands for, teaches, is trying to promulgate in the world. Unless one does this one is attached to one's church with a sort of blind love or superstitious belief. One ought to be able to tell why one is a member of a certain church. Every member has a right to expect that the church of his choice will do something to school him in the polity and plea of his chosen church. A member should know his church, and knowing it he will be the stronger and the better equipped for service.

Fourth, the church should see to it that every new member have in his home his church paper. Nothing can take the place of this. Let no one think that the new member is not going to read something. The new member is going to read and is going to think some, too. If that new member can have coming into his presence every week his church paper he will naturally begin to read about his church, think about his church, and so become interested in what his church is doing. Not reading their church paper, and so not knowing what their church at large is trying to do, accounts for more dead, cold, indifferent church members than any other one thing to be mentioned. It may take a little time, it may require some effort, but the church will be more than repaid for its sacrifice in seeing to it that its new members receive the church paper.

Church members are cold, callous and indifferent because they have been allowed to become so gradually. If we would keep on reaching those who have been reached for the church, we must do something to turn their minds, thoughts, hands and hearts toward the church.

If some such work as above outlined is undertaken in the name of the church the next revival will not be so difficult and will prove more fruitful.

PARAGRAPHS.

The great State Fair holds forth at Raleigh next week and thousands of visitors will pour into the capital city. Here is hoping, and believing, for it has been promised, that it will be a clean Fair, a real display of the State's best products of factory, farm, and fireside. The Fair is a great educational institution and should be so considered and conducted.

"Pouring oil on the troubled waters" is more than a mere fancy. It is one of the very finest facts of history, now. When the Volturno was burning down in midocean last Friday, and ships had come in answer to wireless messages in all directions for help, the waves were rolling so big and boisterously that life saving boats even were of no avail. They could not be launched in safety. Finally the Narrogansett, a ship with a heavy cargo of oil, arrived, and began to spray the oil around about the doomed vessel. This calmed the sea almost as if by magic, an eye witness declares, and life boats were soon busy in safely rescuing passengers.

—We are sending this week 250 sample copies of THE SUN into homes that should receive their church paper every week, and these samples are a silent invitation to subscribe. Already new subscribers are coming in from lists received from pastors two or three weeks ago. Will not pastors who have neglected to do so kindly send in at once names of those in their fields who do not take THE SUN but should do so. THE CHRISTIAN SUN should go every week into every home represented in the Christian Church. This would greatly help every benevolent interest connected with the church.

The esteemed Raleigh News and Observer, whose fine building was destroyed by fire on the night of April 24th, has built better than ever, and last Monday night moved back home. There was an old-time "House Warming," and many distinguished citizens and good friends of the "Old Reliable" were present, among them Governor Locke Craig, who made a splendid speech. It was a happy event and one fitting the occasion, for the pluck of the News and Observer, always in evidence, was never more apparent than in rising forth from the ashes to shine as a thing of beauty and of power so quickly thereafter. We congratulate our worthy contemporary and wish it full success in steering clear of all calamities and mishaps in future. We were prevented, by previous engagements, from accepting a cordial invitation to be present at the house-warming, but the courageous men who are making, and have made, the News and Observer a powerful factor for good in North Carolina have our best wishes, and heartiest congratulations in their splendid achievements.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Brother Pastor, can't you secure a few new subscribers to THE SUN as you finish the Conference year? Thank you.

—Does your church need Christian Hymnaries, or your Sunday school a new song book? We can supply you at publisher's price, and will appreciate your order.

—Elon College still rejoices in increased numbers and new students continue to come in. The number this year bids fair to be far and away the largest ever enrolled at the College.

—Rev. M. P. Julian changes his address from Vienna, N. J., to Liberty, N. C. Any churches near Liberty wishing Bro. Julian's services as pastor would do well to write him at Liberty, N. C.

—Rev. J. S. Carden, 906 Shepherd St., Durham, N. C., an earnest worker, a devout man, and a very successful pastor, is open for engagement with a church desiring a second Sunday appointment the coming Conference year.

—Rev. D. A. Keys has been persuaded by the South Norfolk church to remain as pastor another year. This is wholesome news, as Brother Keys has done a most excellent work and his services were much needed by this band of workers.

—Dr. J. P. Barrett's defense of The Herald of Gospel Liberty as the oldest religious paper on earth, as printed in last week's SUN, was able and sufficient. How any one can deny or gainsay the facts set forth so admirably by Dr. Barrett is more than we can see.

—Since a recent address in Charlotte by an ex-Priest of the Catholic Church, denouncing in bitter terms the disease and danger of Catholicism, a Catholic paper has been started in Charlotte and assumes the defensive. Catholics were never as actively defiant, nor as desperately aggressive as at present.

—Rev. J. V. Knight, now in Elon College, goes next Monday to attend the sessions of the Alabama and the Georgia and Alabama Conferences, and will look after the interests of the Elon College Special Fund. All persons in those Conferences who are indebted to the Fund are requested to meet Bro. Knight at Conference and if possible arrange for payment of same.

—Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Wakefield, Va., who recently underwent a serious operation at a Richmond hospital, and who has been a great sufferer, was resting well at last reports and there is hope of her complete recovery, writes Prof. Lincoln in a recent note. Sister Lincoln has many friends among SUN readers who will join her anxious husband and two sons in praying for her recovery.

—Pastor L. F. Johnson is in a successful revival at Berkley. The Virginian-Pilot of Sunday, 12th, said: "The revival meetings which have been conducted through the past week at the First Christian Church, Berkley, with so much success by Dr. L. F. Johnson, the new pastor, will be continued another week. The attendance through the week has been very large and at most of the services a profound impression has been made upon his hearers."

—Judge J. F. West, Waverly, Va., who has made a most enviable reputation as Circuit Court Judge, is a candidate for the Supreme Bench in his State and richly deserves the honor that the exalted position would confer. Besides being a scholar and a clear thinker, Judge West has the judicial temperament and is a Christian gentleman who will fill with great credit to his State any position to which his fellow-citizens may call him. Here is wishing Judge West success in the achievement of his worthy ambition.

—The Starkey Seminary for October, a splendid number of this always excellent publication by the way, has this to say of Rev. Frank S. Child, D. D., well known to many SUN readers: "Dr. Child returned from his trip abroad just before the last commencement, but not in season to be with us. Recently he has been recruiting at Atlantic City, and a recent note informs us that he is starting off with great promise." We trust that Dr. Child's health has been sufficiently regained as to enable him to visit Elon College this Winter, for no visitor or lecturer here is greeted with gladder hand, or heard to more pleasure and profit than is Dr. Child.

—Rev. Albert Victor Lightbourne, the son of Rev. A. W. Lightbourne, D. D., Dover, Delaware, has entered the evangelistic field and is now assisting his father in a great meeting at Dover. God is wonderfully blessing and using Bro. Lightbourne in his influence over men. Any pastor wishing help in evangelistic services should write Bro. Lightbourne at Dover, Del. We of our Southern church much need an evangelist amongst us for all time, and here is devoutly hoping that Bro. Lightbourne will prove the very man in the right place. His father, Rev. A. W. Lightbourne, in a private letter writes of him thus: "My son seems simply filled with the power and glory of the Gospel. We had a marvelous meeting here last night under his leadership."

—Rev. L. E. Smith, 23 Dickenson Street, Princeton, N. J., writes: "We are back at Princeton for another year's work. We enjoyed our Summer very well, which was with a mission church at Trenton, N. J., under the direction of the Presbyterian church, North. I like Princeton and feel that this decision is by no means hasty, since I have had the privilege of being a student here for more than a year. Of course the theology is Calvinistic and but little or no sympathy with the Armenian view, but it is free from the spasmodic taint of modern criticism. It believes and tries to teach that the whole Bible is the revealed will of God given by inspiration for the instruction of man. And I thank God for such an institution that dares to defend His truth in an age of wildest speculation." Bro. Smith is one of our men of great promise, and his hosts of friends rejoice that he has the opportunity for thorough preparation for his work as a gospel minister.

NEWS AND VIEWS.

—President Wilson goes to Mobile, Ala., October 26, to speak at the Southern Commercial Congress.

—A judge out in New Mexico sentenced a man the other day to 150 years' imprisonment. Seems to us that might be a question of jurisdiction.

—Timothy Woodruff, former Lieutenant Governor and noted politician of New York, died Sunday P. M., Oct. 12, from a stroke of apoplexy.

—Germany has very suddenly despatched a warship to Mexican waters. Other European nations have done likewise of late months. These are troublous and doubtful times in Mexico.

—President Wilson expresses the hope and expectation that the proposed currency bill will be enacted into law before December 1. The President regards this the heaviest tax upon his strength and ingenuity that he has yet had.

—House Leader Underwood predicts that the new tariff law will save to consumers $1,000,000,000 a year, the free list alone approximating $500,000,000 annually. If half of this estimate should prove true this should be a grateful people and a glad nation.

—The recent Tennessee Legislature appropriated $5,000 to a Roman Catholic institution, solely, we are told, because the Speaker happened to be a Catholic. When Catholics get in control, it makes no difference as to the public, so their own interests are looked after.

—What President Wilson and his associates did for Wall Street when it was decided to place $50,000,000 at the disposal of those who needed it in removing crops was enough. About half the amount has been taken and the Government is putting it out as needed and demanded.

(Continued on Page 10.)

FROM OUR CONTRIBUTORS

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Of the Mission Treasurer for the Month of September, as per Standing Rule of the Mission Board.

RECEIPTS
For Home Missions	$ 793.01
For Foreign Missions	1,429.32
	513.04
	$ 2,735.37
Cash Balance Sept. 1, 1913	2,339.55
	$ 5,074.92
DISBURSEMENTS
To Home Missions	$ 136.50
To Foreign Missions	1,219.72
	904.05
	$ 2,260.27
Cash Balance, Sept. 30, 1913	2,810.90
Annuity Debit transfer	3.75
	$ 5,074.92
LIABILITIES
October 1, after closing and balancing the books to and including September 30, 1913.
Bills payable	$ 6,600.00
Due accounts	5,571.07
	$12,171.07
Less Cash Balance	2,810.90
Total liabilities Oct. 1, 1913	$ 9,360.17
J. G. BISHOP, Mission Treasurer.

BETTER THAN APPEARANCE.

A large number of Christians are often greatly misjudged. They are unjustly regarded by those who know them only by outside appearances. Because these Christians do not exhibit the zeal in church affairs that some others do, they are declared to be very deficient in spiritual life. They are charged with being indifferent to the welfare of the church to which they belong, and to Christianity in general. And yet those very Christians are really more truly spiritual in heart and character than are many of those who complain against them. Daily they are in communion with God. In the sanctuary of their heart they are worshipping the Lord of their love, and are making intercession for both saints and sinners. Upon the unseen altar of their souls the holy fire is kept burning. The Bible is their constant companion, and is the source of their spiritual supply and nourishment. You may say that when you go into homes of this kind you do not see evidences of such things as I mention. This may be true. There is nothing singular about it. Modest Christians are not parading their spiritual virtues before others. They are not telling people the religious secrets of the family. Sometimes, in a humble way, they relate some of their inner experiences, and for the help of feeble saints. In this way they perform a service of much benefit to those who are struggling against their moral infirmities. A great many people would be amazed if they knew the inside history of those quiet Christians who are supposed by many to be in a cold and backslidden condition. They are far better than they appear to some people to be. They are doing for God, through their prayers, a great deal more than many are who appear to be most zealous for their church.

A person's spirituality is not to be measured mainly by his or her activity in church relations. There may be an appearance of much piety, and yet a spiritual barrenness underneath. Let us not condemn a good person, simply because he does not make a stir among Christian people. He may be the salt of the earth, to whom others owe a debt of gratitude.

C. H. WETHERBE.

SEE AND BE.

Out on the broad bosom of Lake Erie, there moves a stately fleet of vessels. Plying back and forth between the Lake Cities, carrying its passengers and commerce back and forth, no line is more favorably or more generally known than the Cleveland and Buffalo line of steamers, the "C. & B." as it is called in all the lake ports.

Recently they have added to their equipment a palatial steamer, plying between Cleveland and Buffalo, splendidly fitted for carrying a large number of passengers back and forth, with magnificent saloons, large dining halls, and finely furnished staterooms. They have named her with the name of the line, "See and Bee," and as I read of this steamer and imagined her moving out so daintily, yet so steadily from her slip in the Forest City, making ready for her all night trip to Buffalo, I wondered how many of us could be labeled with that name, "See." Yes, many of us could not claim even that part of her name. Opportunities lie all around us, home and foreign work is crying out for aid. Our own little Sunday school or church may be sadly in need of help, but do we see? Our "eyes are hidden." We envy the missionary whose name is spread in great letters across the sheet, or the teacher who has one, two or three hundred in his class at Sunday school. We think that if we had the opportunities of Such-a-one, or the fine talents of So-and-so we could do something then. We need to pray, "Lord, open thou mine eyes that I may behold." God did not put you where you are unless there was a work for you to do right there; a work that can be done by you, a work that must be done by you, or perhaps go forever undone. If, perchance, some other sees and grasps the opportunity, it may be done, but you have lost the blessing forever and forever.

And then, when we see, will we be? There are people who have the seeing eye, the hearing ear, but they lack the understanding heart. As I heard it well expressed recently, they are ready to say, "Lord, here am I, send him, or her," as the case may be. Let us be true, ready, constant, faithful, willing, ready, oh, there are a whole hive of bees waiting for us, sometimes in our churches, mission societies, and Sunday schools. It is a great thing even to be present, or to be prepared to help if called upon. It is a great thing even to be. Did you ever think how many people impress us as nonentities? And you know that word means, literally, no-being—no personality. Are you that kind? Do you stand for something, and does everyone know what that something is? Do you try to be, or do you just exist? Are you the kind that can obey the command to "having done all to stand," or are you one of those who are washed around by every wave of prejudice, your direction changed with every shift of wind?

We can read a great lesson from that majestic lake steamer. We, too, can cross the waves of life, joining together the City of Life and the New Jerusalem; we, too, can help many weary pilgrims on the way. We, too, if we will, can "See and Be."

MRS. F. BULLOCK.

Waverly, Va.

Man is his own star, and the soul that can Render an honest and a perfect man, Commands all light, all influence, all fate; Nothing to him falls early or too late. Our acts our angels are, for good or ill, Our fatal shadows, that walk by us still.

—John Fletcher, 1576-1625.

"GOING ON ALL THE TIME."

It is an easy matter for a young person to fall into what Goethe calls the "delightful habit of existing." That is to say, one can consume the present time with idle thoughts of future wealth, fame, and usefulness without considering the importance of making preparation for these things.

We sing, "Work, for the night is coming, when man works no more." If this is a song for the grown-ups, the young people ought to sing, "Work, for the day is coming—get ready for it."

Milton says, "They also serve who only stand and wait," but he is speaking of his poor old blind self waiting till God is ready for him to die. One of the worst things a youth can do is just to wait; one of the best is just to work. This does not mean, of course, that one should rush blindly into an undertaking without proper preparation. One can wait until he is ready, but he can work at getting ready while he is waiting.

Mill, the political economist, says: "To work is to move." Some young people who feel that, because of poverty or other hindrance, real or supposed, they can't do anything need to be reminded that active resistance is better than passive endurance. Remember the story of the two frogs that the man dipped into the can when he was watering milk. One passively endured, sunk to the bottom, and was drowned. The other actively resisted, kept kicking, and it is said he churned a lump of butter and took a seat on top of it.

At the Tennessee Centennial, 1897, before one of the large animal tents, a young black bear was placed on a high platform and given plenty of chain. All day long the cub walked back and forth on his platform. Above him, over the door of the big tent, was the sign, "Going on all the time." The activity of the bear illustrated the sign, drew crowds into the tent, and, what was more to the animal, the exercise was essential to its life.

It is said that all things come to those who wait, but among "all things" there must be much that is undesirable. Opportunity and health, wealth and honor, happiness and usefulness come to those who are "going on all the time."—Christian Advocate.

WHY?

We are told that for every circumstance or fact there is always a cause. Also, that every thing in the universe exists and is for a reason and a purpose. This truth may be applied rightly when we speak of the fact that certain persons are in the world of the living.

Did you ever stop to think upon the subject, "Why Am I Here," as you go about the everyday duties of life? Most assuredly, you are in the world for a purpose. Have you found what that purpose is? If not, it might be well to stop long enough to give this question a serious thought. Why?

"There is a number of us creep
Into the world to eat and sleep;
And know no reason why we're born
But only to consume the corn,
Devour the cattle, flesh, and fish,
And leave behind an empty dish.

"And if our tombstones, when we die,
Be n't taught to flatter and to lie,
There's nothing better can be said
Than that he's eat up all his bread,
Drunk up his drink and gone to bed."

There is nothing better we may say; there is often much worse that we might say. We must realize that we are not here to live the life of a parasite. We are here for service and the performance of our duty as it seems right to us. Are we rendering the service that we should?—Elon College Weekly.

CRADLE ROLL

DEAR CRADLE ROLL SUPERINTENDENTS:

I hope you have all followed these letters so far, and that those of you who are not Cradle Roll Superintendents, or members of a school which has a Cradle Roll are preparing an aggressive campaign looking to the remedying of that defect. If any school in the Conference has not received a letter from me by the time this goes to press, your turn is surely coming, for I aim to write every Sunday school as soon as possible, and see if we cannot supply the "missing link" which is cutting down our efficiency, and keeping the Sunday school and home so far apart.

Why, when you think of it, the Sunday school is the outgrowth of the Family Altar, and can no more exist and grow without that altar than the branch can exist without the root. Perhaps you never stopped to think of it in just that way, but isn't it so? Is it not at the family altar, whether it be the family assembled, or represented by Mother's knee, that the little ones get their first lessons in the love of the Father, that they first learn of the goodness of God and the love of Christ? Is it not at that some altar, if it be a true altar, fed with the fire of the love of God, and kept burning by the pure oil of heartfelt devotion, that the growing girl and boy make their first decision for God and Right? Is it not at that altar that we of older growth gather strength to live and keep on keeping on? Is not then, the Sunday school with all its branches and divisions a logical outgrowth of the family altar, nay, is it not, itself, simply an altar where the neighborhood meets as one family to worship together?

If all this be so, and I am sure you will agree with me that it is true, can we afford to lose one link binding together Home and School, or to avoid in any way adding to the sacred flame which grows and glows by the family fireside? I conceive the two greatest links, one at either end of the family, so to speak, to be, today, the Cradle Roll and the Home Department. (No, I am not trying to "steal the thunder" of the Home Department, but you see, ours is really a "Home" Department, too.) And it is for the solid welding of the link which binds the little ones to the Sunday school that we are working.

Did you ever see a blacksmith welding a piece of iron? I have watched him many times. First he has the iron which he intends to weld, then he gets the fire red hot, blowing on it, not puffily now and then, but steadily, equally, easily, until the fire is rather white hot than red hot. Into this he has thrust the iron, and as the fire gets hotter, so, too, does the iron. Out comes the iron when at just the right pitch, the two parts are placed together, sometimes a powder is scattered over the iron, a few sharp, decisive strokes on the anvil, and there, the work is finished.

We have the metal, pure gold, in the child; we must have the fire in the heart of someone to prepare the metal ready to use; that someone is the parent; so our good Cradle Roll Superintendents have to play "blacksmith", using the right tools, blowing steadily, persistently, unweariedly, until the fire has burned up to the right temperature, until the metal is ready, and then, tap, tap, tap, the deed is done, and the Baby is welded fast to the Sunday school.

Dear me, dear me, not much about tools in this, is there? Well, I fully meant to use this whole column telling you about what to use and how to use it, and now it will have to wait over until next week. Luckily our Editor is holding this column open for us. But, won't some of you get an "Anvil" and a "Bellows" and a "Hammer" this week, and begin to blow steadily, surely and persistently in the direction of a Cradle Roll in your Sunday school, if you have none, and a better and bigger Cradle Roll if you already have one, and then write and tell us about it?

MRS. F. BULLOCK.

WHAT THE COLLEGE DID FOR A FAMILY.

One Saturday evening in the spring of 1874 a Methodist preacher entered a farming community in Southern Ohio and stopped for a Sunday at a Methodist home where there were five bright children. No one now remembers the sermon which the minister preached that Sunday. During his visit in the home, however, he won the hearts of the children and talked with the parents about sending them to college. Monday morning the farmer sent his oldest son to carry the minister to the railway station. On the road the minister learned that the boy expected to remain upon the farm. He earnestly advised him to go to the Ohio Wesleyan University. The minister's words produced such an effect upon the boy that he thought much upon the conversation during the summer and at last spoke to his father upon the subject. The father and mother took counsel together and thought that by great self-denial they could start the son to college, and that fall the farmer's boy entered the university. His story of college life turned the thoughts of all the other children in the direction of the university, while the change produced in his spiritual life encouraged the parents to make greater sacrifices and to plan for the college training of the other children.

After eighteen years of self-denial the five children in that household had graduated from the university. One of the daughters went back home to teach in order that she might live with her father and mother. The other daughter is a professor in a Methodist college. One of the sons is a useful pastor in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and two of them are professors in leading Methodist universities. Financially these children earn enough each year to pay for the old farm two or three times over. Intellectually and spiritually their lives are infinitely richer than they could have been without an education. Best of all, the farmer's children have been lifted to a higher mental and spiritual plane and have helped to mold thousands of young people who are now in every part of the United States and of our globe.

Only eternity will reveal the blessings which came from that minister's talk with the farmer's boy one Monday morning in 1874 and from the sacrifices of that father and mother continued for eighteen years while educating their children. The doors of the same university still stand open; the farms and villages and cities produce the same bright, conscientious young people; the ministers have even a broader vision of the responsibilities and glories of the coming century. Are there not some thousands of young people who have the same courage in their hearts and thousands of parents who have the same devotion to their children's highest interests which characterized this Ohio family in 1874?—Bishop J. W. Bashford, in Northwestern Christian Advocate.

GOD'S GOVERNMENT.

Think what this world would be if an unjust or unholy God governed it! If you were compelled to choose between the two, would you not prefer to live in a world ruled by a just and holy God who was not loving and merciful, rather than in one ruled by a loving and merciful God who was unjust and unholy?—Western Recorder.

THREE FUNDAMENTAL CONCEPTIONS OF THE COLLEGE.

President William P. Few, in his address to the students of Trinity College, Durham, N. C., at the opening of the new session, spoke of the three fundamental conceptions of the college as stated by Dr. Jowett—a place of education, a place of society, and a place of religion. These, as he well said, are likewise the three fundamental conceptions of human life.

Of the college as a place of religion President Few said in part:

Finally and supremely, a college is a place of religion. I reiterate with all the emphasis I can command this assertion of Dr. Jowett, although I know that there are competent and conscientious educational experts in this country who deny it. Backing his judgment by high expert authority and by millions of dollars, Mr. Carnegie has lately said in effect that religion and education should have nothing to do with each other, and when they do both suffer. I do not believe there is any such dualism as is implied in this divorcement between the two fundamental conceptions of life. I am aware of the long historic conflict that has been waged through all civilizations between beauty and fullness of life without a moral meaning on the one hand and austerity and barrenness along with moral intensity on the other hand. And I realize that it is only through a fuller comprehension of the meaning of life that the synthesis of these two divergent elements can be effected. But the highest civilization still awaits this power to combine a full and beautiful living with a religion that comprehends the whole of life. And to produce this synthetic power is one of the missions of the highest kind of college. We need especially in this time of hesitancy and uncertainty in so many directions colleges that are organically and fundamentally committed to the Christian religion; that are not set to promote sectarianism (for I take it no Protestant American Church would stand for that today); that do not exist to promote denominational triumph (no college competent to do educational work could live for that), but that do avowedly make it their first business to promote the kingdom of God and his righteousness, confident in the belief that all these things shall be added unto them. That educational and social efficiency comes most surely to men and colleges that put first things first.

These words from the President of the most richly endowed college of Southern Methodism are heartening to those who still believe that the college should be the Church's strong ally and helper in the making of Christian character.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

ONLY A BOY.

When Napoleon was leading his army through the rugged fastnesses of the Alps, a drummer boy lost his footing and fell to the abyss below. An officer asked the great commander if the army should halt and attempt to rescue the boy, or at least ascertain whether the fall had resulted in death. After a moment's thought Napoleon's answer was: "No, it is only a boy." Many boys in our own country have lost their footing and many have fallen to an untimely end. But shall we say as did the heartless general, "It is only a boy"? Is not the boy the greatest asset of our country and of the Church of God? We must save the boys to the Church and make of them godly Christian men. This is the high duty and the noble privilege of God.—Sel.

Hopefulness, like the nightingale, sings its sweetest song in the darkest hour and hides away in silence when the sun shines.—Florida Christian Advocate.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

One of the first and fundamental contentions of the founders of the Christian Church was the rights of laymen. Creeds controlled the conscience and clerics controlled the church. The right of private interpretation of the Scriptures was bedrock in the foundation of the Christian Church. As builders now use concrete in place of granite, so the founders put concrete private interpretation in place of creed. In spite of this, and the claim for lay representation, the Christian Church has not developed lay-leadership in any marked degree. It must be confessed that other communions, later to see the importance of lay-leaders, have outstripped us in the very field where we first planted this banner. This is not a declaration to be argued, but a fact to be deplored.

Laymen have not exercised the rights they have enjoyed to the extent of developing leadership in the great enterprises and movements of the church. In most congregations and in most conferences and conventions, the ministers still carry the burden and lead in the work. This proves the need of educated leadership among the laity. Perhaps another adjective would better express this need. "Trained" in this connection is, no doubt, a better word than "educated;" for we have many educated laymen who are not trained laymen. Training comes by a process of doing. The athlete is trained by athletic exercise. Laymen must accept service in positions that require training, and real obligations must be pressed upon their consciences until they act willingly in doing work for the Kingdom.

We have many trained workers, but few trained leaders among the laymen. The ministerial function is interrupted by duties that belong to the laymen. Poor preaching is often the result of poor work among the laymen. Trained leaders among the laymen would not only relieve ministers, but would carry the work of the church forward so much as to require better preaching; by which is meant profounder exposition of Scripture and more spiritual daily living; but untrained leaders are invariably in the way of progress and do not care for real preaching. The pulpit that does not demand much of the church pleases non-progressive leaders; but trained leaders demand higher standards for the whole church.

Teacher training in the Sunday school illustrates this matter of trained leaders. There will always be Sunday school teachers; but trained teachers is what is needed and that toward which the schools are striving. Now, in the church there are always leaders; but the Bible speaks of the blind leading the blind. The church needs not simply leaders, but trained leaders.

W. W. STALEY.

WINCHESTER LETTER.

The many reports coming in of the good meetings held within the bounds of the Southern Convention are encouraging indeed. They indicate that the Christian Church is growing in strength in the South. Looked at from every viewpoint, our work seems to be in a prosperous condition.

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN enlarged and printed in our own publishing house, a need of the church has been met that should mean much in the enlightenment of our people and the development of our work. There should be a hearty co-operation on the part of our pastors and laymen to extend the circulation of this worthy paper. Dr. Atkinson is giving us a good paper and we should show our appreciation by a hearty support.

The splendid opening of Elon College this fall is a source of joy to all of us and shows that our school is firmly fixed as a higher institution of learning and that our people are becoming more interested in education. This is a hopeful sign and means for us a more progressive and more efficient church membership. We congratulate those in charge on what has been accomplished. We have an institution that is well worthy of the loyal support and patronage of our entire brotherhood.

The continued interest in the Christian Orphanage is an evidence of the breadth of our feeling toward others. The interest in this institution should increase on the part of our people.

The Laymen's Movement and the work of the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board is developing a missionary spirit which has been partly dormant since the organization of our church. The Conference Missionary Associations, and the Convention Mission fund, out of which has grown the Church Loan Fund, are evidences of our awakening and yet we are but beginning to learn the alphabet of mission work and mission giving. We should, and I believe we will, more than double our mission offerings within the next ten years. The life and advancement of our Church depends largely upon what we do for this great cause. Our latest move, the Chautauqua, is a long step in the right direction and will mean much to us as a people. I hope that all our pastors, Sunday school and Christian Endeavor workers will arrange to attend.

All these things mean that our church is facing an opportunity it has never had before. With abiding trust in God and a strong faith in our fellow laborers, we expect to see the Christina Church, within the bounds of the Southern Christian Convention, develop more strength and become a larger factor in the work of winning the world to Jesus Christ.

W. T. WALTERS.

GREENSBORO.

The two weeks' meetings which have been held at the First Christian church closed last night. Fifteen hundred people attended the services yesterday. Rev. Charles Butler preached in the afternoon at 3:30 and the closing sermon at night. They both were masterpieces and his audiences were spell-bound; but the meetings closed and no one came to the altar. Several services were intensely interesting, there being the evidence of God's spirit moving upon the hearts of His children. Love feasts were held in which many renewed their vows with the Lord and declared themselves to live for Christ. Other than this there was no special interest. Our consecrated and optimistic brethren believe that the church has been greatly uplifted.

Mr. Butler and family left at midnight last night for Atlanta, thence to Valdosta, Ga., where they will conduct a two weeks' meeting for a pastor.

Next Sunday evening, the Baraca and Phila-thea classes of this Sunday school will celebrate the 23rd anniversary of the Baraca movement, by Marshall A. Hudson. The services will be under the auspices of the classes. A unique program is being arranged.

H. E. ROUNTREE, Pastor.

(The following letter went astray and only came to our notice just now.—Editor Sun.)

Greensboro, N. C., Aug. 25, 1913.

My vacation is over and I am now two weeks in my work. I want to thank the church for this great kindness which proved so very profitable to me. I was away three weeks. I spent two of them with my father and mother and one with Dr. Atkinson at Pleasant Grove. I preached nineteen times, witnessed fifty-seven conversions, forty-three uniting with the church, and I gained about eight pounds.

It was a great pleasure to be home again where I could enjoy the sweet fellowship of father and mother and good corned herrings and corn-bread. Nearly every morning at breakfast I ate from two to three herrings and a hoe-cake of bread. Nobody knows just how good my "Daddy's" fish are except he has been there and tried them. I take them in preference to chicken every time. I wish I could have them here in Greensboro.

The Greensboro Church had a treat yesterday in the person of Rev. L. F. Johnson, D. D., a former pastor and much beloved. A very large congregation greeted him at each service. He preached with great spirit and power. His utterances came forth from a heart of deep piety and each and all "gathered for himself" and themselves "bread" enough to sweeten the soul with heavenly inspiration and to put upon the lips blessed testimonies of Jesus. I am living better today for having heard these sermons, and I believe all the others of the congregations are.

Yours truly,
H. E. ROUNTREE.

WINDSOR NOTES.

Meetings have been held in three of my churches recently. Johnson's Grove week following the 5th Sunday in August, Union week following the 2nd Sunday in September, and Barrett's week following the 4th Sunday in September. Rev. H. H. Butler helped me at Johnson's Grove and Union. At Johnson's Grove there were about twelve professions and four additions to the church. At Union about twenty professions and twelve additions. Rev. C. C. Jones assisted me at Barrett's. There were about twelve professions and five additions. Both these brethren did excellent work in the meetings and the churches seemed revived and strengthened.

It was my pleasure to assist Bro. Bulter in meetings at Oak Grove and Mt. Carmel. Good meetings were enjoyed at both these points, and it was a pleasure to be with the good people of these communities.

The Windsor people are moving their church to another lot away from the railroad. This work has been talked of for some time, but the work has been handicapped in some ways. Finally the church is on the move and we trust the new location will be advantageous.

R. H. PEEL.

HAW RIVER.

It was my privilege to be in a revival at Haw River week following the first Sunday in October. This was a union meeting between the Methodists and Christians, and was conducted in the Christian Church. Dr. Wicker, the pastor, was not with us all the time, owing to the fact that he was busy teaching in Elon College. Bro. Edwards was with us one night and rendered faithful service in song and prayer. Bro. Noblett and wife represented the Methodist church, and there was much interest shown toward the last of the week. On Friday I had to leave for my appointments in Lee County. Up to this time there were many requests for prayer and five professed faith in Christ.

B. J. EARP.

DEFIANCE COLLEGE (OHIO).

Sunday, the 5th instant, was a good day with the college church. Dr. Martyn Summerbell preached two great sermons to the delight of fine audiences. At the evening service three members were received by letter and four new members and thirty-nine associate members were received on profession of faith. These came from the student body, faculty, and citizens, and constitute a class of which any church should be proud. The Christian life and activity here is strong. N. G. NEWMAN, Pastor.

DR. SUMMERBELL'S LECTURE AT DEFIANCE.

The students, faculty and friends of Defiance had a rich treat this week in the lectures of Dr. Martyn Summerbell. He gave four on the Reformation in England, beginning with certain conducive influences and closing with the final break with Rome. The first was pronounced excellent and each succeeding one better. With rare insight and literary skill he has brought together the result of his studies in lectures of great interest and value. They are unique in their clearness and force, and impel the student to a renewed interest in this vital phase of history. We hope to see them in print. None of the great speakers who come to Defiance College is more highly appreciated than Dr. Summerbell. N. G. NEWMAN.

ARE THE HEATHEN LOST?

There is one question which confronts every Christian today, and that is: Are the heathen lost without the gospel? If they are not lost, why are we trying to send the gospel to them so that a large part of them will be lost in the future? If they are not lost, it would be far better if we were heathen, and we should take all of our missionaries out of the foreign field, blot all of our mission study out of existence and take their plan of living, for they are far better off than we are, with all of our civilization.

Why do so many preachers try to raise money for missions and fail? It is because they do not believe that the heathen are lost. It is from sympathy that they try to raise money and fail. And it is difficult to get them to believe that the heathen are lost:

What was Christ's mission on earth? Jesus said, "I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." What were the disciples sent into Judea for? "And there stood up one of them named Agabus, and signified by the spirit that there should be great dearths throughout all the world: which came to pass in the days of Claudius Caesar. Then the disciples every man according to his ability determined to send relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea: which also they did, and sent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabus and Saul" (Acts 11:28-30).

"Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned" (Romans 5:12). Jesus said, "Except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish" (Acts 5:12).

It would be impossible for us to believe the statement of Christ if it is possible for the heathen to be saved. "Enter ye in at the straight gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction; and many there be which go in thereat: because straight is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it" (Matt. 7:13, 14). One can not keep from denying this verse if one says the heathen are saved, because this states that but few will find the straight gate. If the heathen are saved, about three-fourths of the entire population will be saved without the gospel, in addition to those saved with the gospel.

If these references do not prove that the world is lost without the gospel, the Bible is not plain on this subject. What was Christ's mission, pray tell me, if the heathen are not lost? "And being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him" (Heb. 5:9). We see that He became the author of eternal salvation to those only who repent and obey Him. By this it can be seen that the heathen are excluded. It is shown plainly that it behooves us to carry the gospel to the heathen, so they can be obedient and have eternal salvation through Jesus Christ. "And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (Mark 16:15, 16). What made Jesus make this commission, if the heathen are saved? Was it just pleasure to his disciples to go preach and teach the great truth of the Bible? or was it to convert them that they may enjoy eternal salvation?

One surely cannot think that Jesus Christ would command his disciples to do all of this work if it was not necessary. It is certainly necessary for us to carry the gospel, and carry it as rapidly as possible. If we want to do this we must believe in God. Paul said: "But without faith it is impossible to please Him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him" (Heb. 11:6). From this quotation we see again it will be impossible for a person that does not even know the name of the Lord to receive the reward which He is offering to those who are diligently seeking Him.

So let each person do his part, and consider his part a very great part, for it is. If a person cannot give himself and all of his possessions to the cause of sending the salvation of eternal life, he can help support some one else who will. It is not intended for all to go into some heathen field, but it is intended for all to take a great part. Then this world will be as Coleridge said:

"Mankind to be one mighty family, Himself our Father, and the world our home."
D. F. PARSONS.

CATHOLICISM OUR NATIONAL PERIL.

The trouble with the Roman Catholic Church is that it seeks to be both a church and a political party. Its arrogant claims of being the only true Christian church, intolerant as they are, might be treated with indifference; but when for its head it asserts temporal power and civil authority, intruding itself by logical consequence into the political affairs of every country which it enters, a position is assumed which cannot be allowed any church whatsoever. If it must assume such a position, its members must not complain if it is met with political opposition not offered to any other church. This is why such great men as Gladstone, Bismarck, Juarez, Diaz, Garibaldi, and the ruling statesmen in France have resisted its pretensions.

Since the Spanish-American War and the acquisition by the United States of colonies where Romanism has been the established religion, it has been more aggressive than ever in our political affairs. The peril of Romanism to our institutions is not an imaginary danger, conceived by the heated brains of fanatics; it is a real and constant menace. It must be resisted in our country, as it has been resisted in England, Germany, France, Italy, Mexico, Portugal—as it has been resisted in every country where it has secured any considerable following. If it were willing to take its place as a church along with all the other churches it would be improper to meet with any other attitude than that in which we meet all the other churches; but it is not willing to be only a church. Putting itself in a class by itself by its political animus, it must take all that such an improper position makes inevitable; it can not claim the political exemptions of a church while it asserts political claims as well as churchly prerogatives.—Warren A. Chandler, Bishop M. E. Church, Atlanta, Ga.

CHURCH NEWS

CHRISTIAN CHAPEL.

We began our meeting here Saturday before the second Sunday in August, and continued till Thursday. We had a very good meeting. The church was revived and some were reclaimed. Rev. A. F. Iseley was with us here and did good preaching.

HANKS CHAPEL.

Here we began our meeting Saturday before the first Sunday in September, and closed Thursday following. We had a good meeting. There were nine professions; six joined the church. Rev. A. T. Banks was with us and did good preaching.

This church seems to be in good working order. We expect to carry all of our assessments up to Conference. This is my second year with this church, and have accepted the pastorate another year.

NEW HILL.

We began our meeting here on third Sunday in August, and closed Thursday following. This was a very rainy week, but the Lord gave us a good meeting. Two professed faith in Christ and one joined the church. This is a good congregation to serve. If it is the Lord's will I will preach for this people another year. We expect to go to Conference as a banner church.

PLEASANT RIDGE.

We began our meeting here on the third Sunday in August and continued eight days. God gave us a good meeting. About forty professed faith in Christ and twenty joined the church. Rev. J. W. Pinnix, Rev. H. E. Rountree, and Rev. Mr. Mines assisted in this meeting. This is a good people to serve. To God we give all the praise.

J. S. CARDEN.

906 Shepherd St., Durham, N. C.

NOTICE.

All who are expecting to attend the Western N. C. Conference at Ramseur, notify Rev. T. E. White, and he will see that homes are arranged for you. Trains arrive at Ramseur at 10:20 A. M. and 5:25 P. M.

NOTICE.

All ministers, delegates and visitors who expect to attend the Ga. and Ala. Conference, which meets with the Rose Hill church, Columbus, Ga., October 28th and 29th will please notify W. L. Wells, 2841 Beacon Ave., Columbus, Ga.

A GOOD RECORD.

Atlanta, Ga., is the largest dry city in America, and produces facts and figures which demonstrate that prohibition does not increase drunkenness, neither does it ruin the business of a big city. In 1907 the building permits in the city were $4,554,771, while in 1912 they were $9,978,444. The property valuations jumped from $91,840,350 in 1907 to $154,827,487 in 1912. The tax receipts have nearly doubled since 1907. Bank clearings in 1907 amounted to $254,965,800, while in 1912 they reached $691,941,254. On the other hand, the number of arrests for drunkenness in 1907 was 6,480, while in 1912 it had sunk to 3,021.—Michigan Christian Advocate.

Did you ever reflect upon the misery, squalor, vice and crime that result from preventable invalidism and mortality?—Health Bulletin.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

FOR THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Subject for Sunday, October 19: "The Report of the Spies."—Numbers 13: 1-3, 25-33.

Time.—Summer B. C. 1490 (Ussher).

Places.—Kadesh, Canaan, the Wilderness.

Persons.—Moses, spies, people.

Golden Text.—"If God is for us, who is against us?"—Rom. 8:31.

Leading Thought.—When God is with us we can go bravely forward.

The Israelites marched toilsomely through the desert of Paran (of which the desert of Zin was a part), and came to Kadesh-Barnea, an oasis at the extreme south of Canaan. The oasis contains twelve springs, and three other large fountains are near by. Here, after the events of today's lesson, the people made their headquarters for the 38 years they remained in the wilderness, and from here they set forth at last on their final march around the southern end of the Dead Sea to the Promised Land.

Deuteronomy 1 tells of God's command through Moses bidding the people to go directly up into Canaan and conquer it; but the people were afraid, and insisted that first spies should be sent to learn what obstacles would be encountered and what enemies they must face.

A leading man was chosen from each of the twelve tribes. These twelve spies seem to have divided into two companies. One, led by Caleb, went only about 100 miles, as far as Hebron and the Eschol valley a little farther north. These returned first and made the first report. The other band, led by Joshua, went clear through Palestine, 300 miles, to a pass through the Lebanon Mountains leading to Hamath, a city north of Damascus. Both parties would pass as ordinary travellers from Egypt.

The cluster of grapes they brought back is matched by clusters weighed in modern times, one of 23 pounds, another of 19. The walled cities they saw were difficult even for Egypt to conquer. The gigantic Anakim probably left specimens of their race in Goliath and his brothers. The Amalekites were a wandering tribe to the south, descendants of Esau. The Hittites were a wonderful race, whose empire extended far to the north. The Jebusites centered in Jerusalem. The Amorites were hill people, to the east, and the Canaanites were plain-dwellers, on the western seacoast. The land was, in general, an unhealthy region, as they saw it, "eating up its inhabitants." It seemed barren enough to men fresh from Egyptian fertility.

Lesson Announcement.

We have heard of Moses as the meekest man. Next Sunday's lesson tells of a time when he lost his patience with the Israelites and the punishment it brought him. Many good people who would not stoop to steal even a trifle from another will steal other people's courage, good temper, cheerfulness, faith. They do this by faultfinding and grumbling. Next Sunday's lesson is the story of the Israelites stealing from Moses and Aaron in this way.—Hageman.

SUBSCRIPTIONS BY CLASSES.

This is no experiment; it is a plan that has been carefully worked out. It is very simple and has the merit of being equally adapted to the big class and the little one. It has to do with a systematic method of raising money for the class and Sunday school.

Contributions are arranged on a five cent basis. Each member is to give some multiple of five cents a Sunday for the cause. Let the amount be five, ten, fifteen, twenty-five, fifty cents or one dollar a week. Let the plan be explained and give each member a week to think over the matter. Pledge cards may be used.

If the class is composed of primary children or beginners it can be arranged on some multiple of one cent. The teacher can tell who is able to give and who is not. If children come from homes of parents who are able to give the teacher should talk with the children one at a time and impress upon them the importance of regular, systematic giving.

At the beginning of each year let new pledges be made, so that those who can may increase their weekly offering.

HOME DEPARTMENT—WHAT IT IS.

The Home Department brings the Sunday school to those who cannot go to it, or who can go only occasionally. It, together with the Cradle Roll, is the Sunday school's extension plan and its feeder. Eventually the Sunday school without these two departments will lose out, because the progressive school with its feeders will reach the children and grown-ups before the other school will get them.

The same lessons that are used in the regular school are used in the Home Department. Members are asked to study the lesson one half an hour or more each week. Visitors carry the quarterlies to the members, collect the envelopes in which the offering is made, and these envelopes have a space in which the member can mark for each lesson he has studied.

Joining restores the Sunday school days to the man or woman who has had to drop out. To the man who stays away from Sunday school because "he has worked all week and is too tired to go," the Home Department means the awakening of his interest and eventually his being brought back into the school.

Those who join home departments are members of the school; have an incentive for Bible study; receive the best of helps; are one of millions who are studying the same lesson every week; are able to help the children in the study of their lesson; will receive at least four visits a year; will keep in touch with the church and school, will feel like a new man or woman.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR LESSON: OCTOBER 26.

Topic: "Missionary Essentials at Home and Abroad.

IV. Going." Matt. 22:1-10.

Ask for one minute—not three minutes or longer—from the speakers. Ask them to try to make their talks from 40 to 60 words only. They might write them out in advance but not read them. Let each speaker stand in front of the society. Use the roll call if members will not follow each other rapidly, but it would be well if instead of the roll call, the president would, as a speaker sits down, recognize the next by a nod. If you have a blackboard large enough, write the names of members, as they come in, on the board and let them speak in that order. Let the leader make the opening talk of about five minutes along the line suggested in the C. E. World.

It would be well if in advance of the meeting five members should be selected to talk one minute on great missionaries of the past; then five more to talk of missionaries of the present day and their work, and let them select missionaries of our own church; five others may talk of the need of more men and women in the field. Others may show the opportunity for mission work at home. "Going" may not necessarily mean to take a trip across the ocean; it means also to go just around the corner or over on the other side of the neighborhood. It may mean to serve as a member of the Cradle Roll Committee or a Home Department visitor.

For Answer in the Meeting.

Why must missionaries go forth with the gospel message?

Why is this an especially favorable time for missions?

Who should go as missionaries?

What excuses will warrant one in not going as a missionary?

What is the missionary call?

How much education is needed by a missionary?

What varieties of talents and abilities can be utilized on mission fields?

What rewards does the missionary life offer?

Why should many missionary recruits come from our Christian Endeavor societies?

What mission fields today especially need reinforcements?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR WEEK.

In February, 1914, Christian Endeavor societies will not simply celebrate Christian Endeavor day but will observe Christian Endeavor week. The purpose is to make it a time for a canvass of the fields of the societies for new members, general celebrations in the departments and revivifying of the whole work.

To make that week a success it is necessary to begin now. If your society is run down or lagging, take up the increase and efficiency campaign. From time to time special matter is being issued by the General Society which provides the plan for the work that societies need to do. Officers should keep in touch with headquarters.

FOR A SEASIDE CHAUTAUQUA.

A committee headed by Rev. Warren H. Denison and Prof. S. M. Smith, of Norfolk, Va., are planning to give to the young people of the Christian church what we have long needed—a Chautauqua for Sunday school and Christian Endeavor workers.

This movement was started at the last session of the Eastern Virginia Sunday School Convention, but really grew out of suggestions made at the General Convention in Burlington a few weeks before. That a conference has undertaken it should not prevent those of other conferences from joining in the movement.

The plan is to make the Chautauqua an annual event, to be held at Virginia Beach every Summer. Men of national reputation will be on the program. From time to time the matter will be further explained in these columns.

Members of the committees are from all conferences and include the following: Rev. W. H. Denison, Chairman; Prof. S. M. Smith, Secretary; Rev. J. F. Burnett, G. W. Truitt, Rev. A. W. Lightbourne, Charles A. Hines, Martyn Summerbell, Rev. H. E. Rountree, Hon. E. E. Holland, Pres. W. A. Harper, Rev. W. G. Sargent, Rev. M. T. Morrill, K. B. Johnson, Pres. E. A. Watkins, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Rev. W. D. Samuel, Netum Rathbun, Pres. P. W. McReynolds, Rev. W. W. Staley, Rev. A. B. Kendall, Rev. W. H. Hainer, Rev. H. W. Elder, Col. J. E. West, I. A. Luke, R. B. Odum, Rev. F. G. Coffin, Hon. O. F. Whitelock, Dr. J. W. Manning, W. J. Lee, Rev. G. O. Lankford, Prof. S. O. Albaugh, Rev. C. H. Rowland, Pres. D. B. Atkinson, Dr. E. L. Moffitt, J. A. Mills, Dr. D. A. Long, Dr. J. P. Barrett, Herman Eldridge, Rev. W. T. Walters.

For information write Prof. S. M. Smith, Central Y. M. C. A., Norfolk, Va.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Secty. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'ty.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

THE CHRISTIAN'S FAITH.

(Written by one of our Santa Isabel Christians.)

All those who think seriously of the condition of their souls should recognize the great necessity of practicing the truth that we confess. Let us ask God to increase our faith. Let us ask ourselves for a moment if we have received the true power of God. The very same moment that God calls us to perform our duties, we should say, "Here I am."

Let us say directly the foundation of our faith is in Jesus Christ. We believe in the Bible which is His Holy Word. It is our advice and guide. Therefore, being the Bible, the Book of God and the advice of Christ, why don't we study it and think of it daily?

In order to have a good knowledge of the Divine Persons, it is necessary to search the Sacred Book and use it as our only text book. It is not enough to study portions of the Bible, read papers or reviews that we should prepare. We should not ever be discouraged, when the Lord doesn't answer our prayers. It is because sometimes when we ask we don't ask wisely. Let us be sure that everything will be done, if our petitions are made according to His will.

Christ commanded His disciples to preach the Gospel to every creature, and I think we have a participation in this commandment. As soon as the light of the Gospel illumines our hearts we are able to see clearly His will. Let us remember that balsamic saliva applied in the eyes of the blind man by Jesus, and let us say with him, one thing I know, and that is, myself being blind, am able to see now. He who believes in our Lord according to the Scriptures, and deposits his trust in Him, and accepts Him as his Savior, and will be uplifted from the sinful state of the world to the throne of the Father, He said, "He who believes in me, greater works than what I do, he will later do." There are three things that ruin both our bodies and souls; that is playing cards, the saloons, and the balls. If a man puts his attention in the misery of the world, he will be in a continual darkness. Jesus is the light of the world, and let us all be illumined by Him.

JUAN VALDEJULY.

Santa Isabel, P. R., June 27, 1913.

THE MIGHT OF THE MITE BOX.

The women of Bethlehem church recently had an opening of their Mite Boxes which they had distributed in the Spring. Mrs. Upton Savage is Supt., and she has reported to Mrs. Dick, Treas. of the Conference Board, $23.43. This ought to encourage other country churches to adopt this plan. Wherever a society can be organized, with regular monthly meetings, it is urged that the organization be effected; but in some places this is hard to do. We hold that there is no church but that can distribute the mite boxes, have an opening of these, with a program of a missionary nature, and forward the amount collected to the Treasurer of the Conference Woman's Board. The beauty of the plan is its simplicity.

The women of Bethlehem have made a good beginning and what they have accomplished should be an inspiration to others.

Mrs. C. H. R.

A WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

The Woman's Board of the E. Va. Con. is planning to have a Woman's Missionary Meeting one day during the session of the Conference at Mt. Carmel church. It is expected that all societies will send representatives. Superintendents of Mite Boxes and of Y. People's and Willing Workers' Societies will represent these departments. Churches not having societies are asked to send some woman to represent them.

The Conference Board meets tomorrow (9th) to arrange a program and perfect plans. Announcement of these will be made next week. Let our women plan to be present to help and to be helped. This is something never before attempted in our Southern Conferences, but the work seems to have developed in this Conference to such a degree as to demand a time for consideration, deliberation, and consultation. No doubt this is the beginning of an annual gathering of our women in the interest of Missions.

THE SECRET DOCTRINE.

The "Secret Doctrine" notion holds a strong place in the thoughts of all cults of the theological order. They glory in having what they assume to be occult vision and knowledge of the higher mysteries of the universe, including even the spirit realms—functioning on the astral plane, they call it. With them, the initiated constitute a spiritual aristocracy, an exclusive class, a privileged caste.

"In secret have I said nothing," said Jesus Christ. He brought light into the world expressly to reveal the truth, to make it common public property, not to keep it hidden in secret lodges or confined to priestly adepts. He, in himself, was a complete revelation of God, the Father. With him ended all symbolism, ceremonies and sacrifices that foreshadowed the coming Savior. When the ideal becomes real, there is no more place for the image. Churches, societies and cults that are now indulging in the mystic mazes of symbology, ritualism and sacramental offerings are, in and by those very things, denying the gospel of Jesus Christ which clearly declares a finished work of redemption. They annul for themselves the cross of Christ, and put him to an open shame, making void his death for them.

Jesus Christ kept nothing back, but declared the entire counsel of God. Disciples were not divided into classes. There were no "degrees" in the work of the church as he founded it. All members had free and equal access to all the teaching. Pagan religions were full of "mysteries"; secret places and meetings; darkened rooms; signs, symbols and signals known only to the initiated.

Any religion, every religion, or social or ethical society that follows these lines is dominated by the spirit that rules Paganism, not by the spirit of God, who always gives light and liberty, and impels to give away the truth freely to everybody.

Pagan religions are dominated by Satan, the Deceiver. Imitation is his most effective scheme for misleading. The mysteries, the initiations, the secret doctrines, the occultism of pagan religions and of present-day cults are schemes of Satan to imitate the real truths of Christianity, making people think they are the original ways of life. Everyone who is born of God receives a new mentality whereby, being restored to the Divine nature, he perceives truth from God's point of view—he discerns and begins to comprehend spiritual things. This is a true illumination, but it is not occultism, that spectral conjuring of diseased imagination and that hypnotic bondage to deceiving spirits on the "astral plane" which is known as Oriental Theosophy. In anticipation of the Christian way of conversion and life, Satan introduced into pagan philosophy and religions the complicated systems of superstition, called "mysteries," with their secret rituals. They are still in the world to mislead and to prevent people from seeing the reality. They are largely hidden under Christian verbiage, and actually teach some truth and good conduct as a snare; for Satan never announces himself openly. He pretends to be a messenger of fuller light, of higher truth, of completer holiness, of broader charity—the special champion of evolutionary progress.—The Christian Way.

A CHILD'S UNCONSCIOUS INFLUENCE.

A pretty story of a child's unconscious influence was told by Mrs. Willoughby Cummings at a meeting at the Mansion House last week. She explained how there was in Canada a very high official, a very prominent man who did a great deal for the country, but who at one time in his career took little or no interest in missions. This gentleman had a little granddaughter who was the apple of his eye, and his chief delight was to get the child on to his knee and encourage her to talk to him of all the things that interested her. One of her great interests was missions, and in particular a hospital which was being established for Blackfoot Indians, and the grandfather drew her to tell him all about it, quite unconscious of the feat that all the while he was imbibing missionary knowledge. After a time a minister of affairs brought forward a suggestion in Parliament for making a grant for the building of a new hospital. Several people rose and opposed the measure, bringing forward old threadbare arguments against the advisability of such a venture, when suddenly to the astonishment of all concerned the official whose little granddaughter had unconsciously primed him with all the necessary information, rose to his feet and made such a stirring speech in defense of the scheme, and brought such weighty arguments to bear in its favor, that no one had a word to offer in opposition—the resolution was passed and the grant was made. The little child had led them.—The Scottish Chronicle.

PROMOTES ALL CHURCH ENTERPRISES.

Christian education produces men and women who cooperate intelligently, sympathetically, and effectively with Christian leaders. Who are the men and women who support and promote all of the benevolent and missionary enterprises of the Church, those enterprises which are essential to the upbuilding of the kingdom? Are they not the men and women who are characterized not only by consecration to Christian ideals, but by knowledge of the world's need and a clear vision of how that need is to be met by Christian service? Ignorance leads to indifference. The men and women who help a pastor work out the great task of kingdom-building are they who are both consecrated and enlightened. It is this fact which makes Christian education the basis of every effort for the establishment of the kingdom of God among men.—Presbyterian Advance.

NEWS AND VIEWS.

(Continued from Page 3.)

—President Huerta, of Mexico, has practically suspended the constitution of his country, suppressed the national Legislature, and constituted himself dictator. The New York Times says this conduct shows the wisdom of President Wilson in refusing to recognize Huerta's presidency.

—The New York Impeachment Court announces a delay in rendering a verdict as to the guilt or acquittal of Governor Sulzer.

—At a terrible mine explosion, Cardiff, Wales, Oct. 14, 1913 were entombed, about 500 of whom have been rescued, the remainder being killed, it is reported.

—Governor Hooper of Tennessee still has his nerve and means business. Recently the Legislature adjourned in an uproar, and after considerable filibuster to prevent legislation. The Governor has reconvened the body in extraordinary session and bidden it do things with decency and in order.

—The income tax feature of the new tariff bill is interesting and worth while. It is calculated to raise a revenue of $83,000,000 annually. It calls for a tax on all net incomes of unmarried persons of $3,000 per annum or upwards, and on net incomes of married persons living together, where wife or husband is dependent, of $4,000 and upwards.

—The special session of the North Carolina Legislature adjourned last Monday evening, the principal work of the session being that of providing a new constitution for the State to be submitted to a vote of the people, accepting the offer of the railroads to reduce interstate freight rates as affecting North Carolina, passing an intra-state freight rate bill, and an act to work convicts on the public roads instead of on the railroads.

—Recently the students in the high schools of Syracuse, N. Y., went on a strike because the hours of their school day were changed from four hours and twenty minutes to five hours and thirty minutes. There was a parade through the streets and a great demonstration as a protest. As a result a thousand pupils were suspended. But haven't we gone a long way from the old time school day of six and eight hours to the new time idea that five hours is too much, and that school boys and girls can go on "a strike" to demand what they want?

—Congressman Hobson and Congressman Underwood are both candidates for the United States Senate from Alabama. These are both men of great ability and of nation-wide reputation. Underwood has made an enviable reputation for himself as floor leader in the House, and for his great work on the new tariff bill, and Mr. Hobson has a great reputation as an orator and temperance advocate. We have the idea that if the two meet on the hustings for debate Leader Underwood will be no match for the hero of the Merrimac. Hobson is an orator and a master of assemblies.

—William Graham, alias William Reaves, who escaped from the penitentiary in this State three days after he had begun to serve a five years' sentence for larceny, returned voluntarily and gave himself up and began serving his sentence last Saturday evening. He had made good his escape, completely covered his identity, and was leading an exemplary life in Philadelphia, but he recently became converted, acknowledged Jesus as his Savior, and then his conscience began to work on him with the results mentioned. That is making a sacrifice for conscience's sake, at which we have no doubt many of us would balk.

—The North Carolina Legislature which adjourned Monday P. M. of this week, passed in its dying moments a very live and wholesome bill, and one that should be carried out to the letter. It was the persistent Caldwell calf bill, which makes it unlawful to sell or slaughter for veal a calf under one year old. We know not how many hundred calves, ready for the gambols, have been shipped from our village the past two years, to nearby markets. The question of beef is getting to be a momentous one in our Southern States, save for those who prefer western slaughter houses, and whatever conduces to supplying the home market with home grown cattle is wholesome and helpful.

NOTICE.

To Ministers and Other Friends:—

We are anxious to secure the names and address of all families represented in the Christian Church within the bounds of the Southern Christian Convention in particular, who should take THE CHRISTIAN SUN, but do not. To this end we addressed a letter, with ample blanks and stamped envelope for reply, to all our pastors last week, requesting that they send us names of persons in their pastorates, who should take THE SUN, but do not. Will not any and all who read this notice kindly send us such names, as we desire to interest them in their church paper. Don't fear that too many names will be sent. In reply to our request, the following pastors have already responded, with long lists, which we appreciate, and urge others to do likewise at earliest possible date: Rev. H. W. Elder, Rev. I. W. Johnson, Rev. J. D. Wicker, Rev. W. H. Denison, Rev. H. E. Rountree, Rev. J. F. Morgan, Rev. A. W. Andes, Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Rev. A. N. McAbee, Rev. E. D. Short, Rev. P. T. Klapp, Rev. W. T. Walters, Rev. J. H. Hughes, Rev. A. F. Iseley, Rev. C. H. Rowland, Rev. W. D. Harward, Rev. R. H. Peel, Rev. L. I. Cox, Harward, Rev. R. H. Peel, Rev. L. I. Cox, Rev. W. C. Wicker, Rev. J. C. Stuart, Rev. T. E. White, Rev. H. H. Butler, Rev. H. Scholz, Rev. J. W. Holt, Rev. G. O. Lankford, Rev. W. L. Wells, Rev. W. H. Garman, Rev. G. D. Hunt, Rev. R. L. Williamson.

CONFERENCE CALENDAR.

Conferences, other than the Virginia Valley Central, which met at Winchester, Va., August 14, will convene at the following times and places:

Alabama.

Noon Day Church, Tuesday, October 21. Rev. G. D. Hunt, Wadley, President; Rev. G. O. Lankford, Secretary, Wadley.

Georgia and Alabama.

Rose Hill, Columbus, Ga., Tuesday, October 28, 10 o'clock A. M. Rev. H. W. Elder, President, Richland, Ga.; Edwin E. Hill, Secretary, Box 64, Phoenix, Ala.

Eastern Virginia.

Mt. Carmel church, Walters, Va., Tuesday, October 28, Rev. C. H. Rowland, D. D., President, Franklin; Rev. I. W. Johnson, D. D., Secretary, Suffolk.

Eastern North Carolina.

Mt. Auburn church, Warren Co., Thursday, November 6, 10 o'clock A. M. Rev. C. E. Newman, President, Henderson; Rev. W. C. Wicker, D. D., Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

Western North Carolina.

Ramseur, Tuesday, November 11, one o'clock P. M. Rev. L. I. Cox, President, Elon College, N. C.; Rev. J. W. Patton, Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

North Carolina and Virginia.

Lebanon church, Semora, N. C., Tuesday, November 18, 10 o'clock A. M. Rev. J. W. Holt, President, Burlington, N. C.; Prof. W. P. Lawrence, Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

FOSTER'S
STORY OF THE BIBLE

From Genesis to Revelation. Told in Simple Language.

ADAPTED TO ALL AGES, BUT ESPECIALLY TO THE YOUNG

By CHARLES FOSTER

Size, 6½ x 9 in.; 704 Pages: 300 Illustrations.

BEAUTIFUL COLORED PICTURES
THE BEST EASY-READING VERSION OF THE WHOLE BIBLE

It adheres most closely to the Scriptures, retaining much of their force, dignity and distinction of style, with the pure and simple wording of the English Bible, without comment or doctrinal discussion.

MOST GENERALLY USED—750,000 SOLD

Approved by eminent men of various religious denominations
Valued in thousands of homes.

FINE CLOTH, with beautiful design in three colors (shown above), $1.50

SEND US YOUR ORDERS.

Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Children's Missionary
Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions For Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDRENThe
Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

See Us about Job Printing

WHEN YOU WANT GOOD WORK.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IRRITATING HABITS.

A grass burr in your shoe never produces death, but it is exceedingly disagreeable. And so it is with the nagging and fault-finding habits of some people. They never kill you outright, but they sometimes make you almost wish you were dead. How they irritate and pester you! The only good purpose they serve you is to cultivate the graces of patience and forbearance.—Texas Christian Advocate.

WHERE THE TROUBLE IS.

It is very hard for a man who has grown cold spiritually to believe that there is very much religion anywhere in the world, and very likely ere long he becomes lamentably lugubrious, even if it did originate with God himself and has all the heavenly promises back of it. The trouble is not with the promises or the plan of redemption. It is with him and his kind. They need and most egregiously grit, grace and godly gumption.—Alabama Christian Advocate.

FOOL FASHIONS, OR FASHION FOOLS, OR WHAT?

The following clipping from the pen of the gifted Kansas author and statesman, William Allen White, may lead to some profitable reflection:

That's some dress you've got on, little girl—it sure is. That delicate, clinging, crinkly stuff is the prettiest cloth on the store counters; that silk Persian sash of many colors so gracefully swathed about the center sections of your anatomy would knock the spots off Joseph's coat. You are corseted and tailored according to the most extreme models in the advance August fashion-books.

But your neck is too low and your sleeves are too short, and your skirt is far and away tighter than skirts ever were meant to be. And that graceful slit exposing your dainty left ankle shows a stocking above your pump that is almost transparent enough to read through. And you haven't any more petticoat than a rabbit—you know you haven't.

Oh, you're some swell, you are! Have you noticed how the loafers around the grove rubber after you as you trip demurely by on your way to the uplift lectures? And have you been thinking, little foolish one, that they were rubbering out of pure admiration? Ask your brother about it. If he's got any sense, he'll tell you some things that will be hard on your vanity and good for your soul. And if you've got any sense, you'll take his word for it; you'll lay that dress away and don something that is wide enough around the bottom to allow room for two petticoats and one pair of legs.

For there never was a dress designed, little girl, that is half so beautiful as a young girl's modesty.—O. B. WHITAKER, in Herald of Gospel Liberty.

THE DRIFT TOWARD FORMALISM.

There seems to be an almost inevitable drift toward formalism in religious work and worship. The singing is made artistic rather than fervent and helpful; the preaching becomes scholarly and stately rather than practical and spiritually quickening, and even the prayers are permitted to assume a cold and stereotyped form. There must be a special day for

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Statements, Envelopes Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

The Southern Christian Publishing Company,

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

FOR FEVERISHNESS AND ACHES
Whether from Malarious conditions, Colds or overheating, try Hicks' CAPUDINE. It reduces the fever and relieves the aching. It's Liquid—10, 25 and 50 cents at Drug Stores

CANCER

FREE TREATISE
The Leach Sanatorium, Indianapolis, Ind., has published a booklet which gives interesting facts about the cause of Cancer, also tells what to do for pain, bleeding, odor, etc. Write for it today, mentioning this paper.

everything, and there is an almost constant extension of the organization and machinery of the Church. Apparently the leadership of the Holy Ghost is little sought. Do we not need to meditate upon St. Paul's declaration, "Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty"? One of the most striking features of a genuine revival is the extent to which formality disappears.—New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Join the CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 15.

Tampa Yacht Club, Stained with Cabot's Creosote Stains
Bonfoey & Elliott, Architects, Tampa, Fla.

Beautify Your Buildings—Save Half Your Paint Cost

Preserve Your Woodwork—Save Half Your Labor Cost

The high cost of linseed oil and other ingredients makes the price of paint higher than ever before or the quality poorer. Cabot's Creosote Stains are better than paint, especially for the South, and they can be applied twice as fast, so that the labor cost is only half as much as painting. Anyone can put them on, with a wide flat brush that covers the surface very rapidly. They are made of the finest and strongest colors—all natural pigments that will wear as long as colors can—thoroughly ground in linseed oil. Their liquid is refined Creosote, the best wood preservative known, and this penetrates the wood and protects it against decay. Paint is a surface coating and has no real penetrating preservative quality, but the Creosote in Cabot's Stains goes into the wood and tans it like leather. The Stains form no coating over the surface and therefore cannot crack or peel off as paint does in the South so that they not only look much better, but wear much better than paint. Cabot's Stains are ideal for Southern buildings—cheap, lasting, preservative and sanitary. They are used on all kinds of wood; shingles, siding, boarding, fencing, etc. Be sure that you get the genuine Cabot's Creosote Stains. There are many worthless and inflammable imitations, made of Kerosene and cheap, crude colors.

We will send you free a package of stained wood samples, showing the colors, and catalogue giving full information. Send your address.

Samuel Cabot, Inc., Manufacturing Chemists Boston, Mass.

NORTH CAROLINA DISTRIBUTORS

B. F. WITHERS, Charlotte
PECK & HOLLOWAY, Wilmington
T. H. BRIGGS & SON, Raleigh
BUILDERS SUPPLY CO., Greensboro
CLARK HARDWARE CO., Hendersonville

CITIZENS LUMBER CO., Asheville
R. E. WILEY, Southern Pines
BROWN-ROGERS CO., Winston-Salem
PUBLIC HARDWARE CO., Durham
ROWAN HDW. & FURNITURE CO., Salisbury

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.

Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81 4:35 a. m.
No. 29 Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41 4:10 p. m.
No. 43 6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84 12:48 a. m.
No. 38 11:35 a. m.
No. 66 12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

NEW FEATHER BEDS ONLY $6.50.
Full weight 36 pounds. New, clean and odorless. 6-pound Pillows $1.08 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for FREE catalogue. Address SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 71, Greensboro, N. C.
PILLOW CO., Dept. 1005, Greensboro, N. C.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

We desire to correspond with persons who have BOXWOOD TREES OR HEDGES with a view of purchasing the sprays for shipment to be made in November. In replying please state the number of trees or feet of hedge and their height, from which you can cut these sprays. Also mail sample. Reference gladly exchanged.

PITTSBURGH CUT FLOWER COMPANY,
No. 121 7th St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

GIVE ME A CHANCE TO CURE YOUR RHEUMATISM FREE

Mr. Delano took his own medicine. It cured his rheumatism after he had suffered tortures for thirty-six years. He spent $20,000 before he discovered the remedy that cured him, but I will give you the benefit of his experience for nothing.

If you suffer from rheumatism let me send you a package of this remedy free. Don't send any money. I want to give it to you. I want you to see for yourself what it will do. The picture shows how rheumatism twists and distorts the bones. Maybe you are suffering the same way. Don't. You don't need to. I have the remedy that I believe will cure you and it's yours for the asking. Write me today. F. H. Delano, 541-B Delano Building, Syracuse, New York, and I will send you a free package the very day I get your letter.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. E. M. CARTER, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

E. M. Carter, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amount brought forward$3,521.82

MONTHLY S. S. OFFERING.

Ebenezer	$ 2.25
Mt. Auburn	4.15
U. J. Bennet, Supt., Everett, Pa.	1.00
Beulah, Ga. & Ala.	1.75
Auburn	.93
Franklin, Va.	5.26
Hines Chapel	1.14
Henderson	2.35
Haw River	1.20
Catawba Springs	5.00
1st Church, Greensboro G. F. Clem, Rosewood, Ohio	2.92
Timber Ridge	.70
	2.01

SPECIAL.

Woman's Home & Foreign Mission E. Va. Conference	3.00
Rent of Rogers Estate.	125.00
W. H. Lanham, on support of children	12.00
Mrs. Hattie Blanchard, on support of children	3.00
Tyler Bolling, work ...	2.00
G. T. Waynick	1.00
Sam Johnson, rent	2.00

$3,700.48

All those who are interested in the Orphanage and know of Miss Dora Edwards, will be glad to learn that she has come to take her former place as housekeeper. This gives us a well equipped force of workers. Miss Dora came to the Orphanage at its beginning and did faithful work for five years. With the improved conditions we have already, I feel sure that Bro. Cox will have little trouble in carrying on the work.

Rev. J. O. Cox was with us last Monday looking over and planning the work for his administration. And, since there is so much depending on the Thanksgiving offering I am anxious that we have a liberal offering this time. There are 20,835 members of the Christian Church in the Southern Convention; and wouldn't it be fine if this Thanksgiving, they would yield an average of even fifty cents per member! I have suggested that we raise only $2,000, but think of what it would mean if we had the average of fifty cents for the entire membership.

Now, look! If your school is not giving one of its regular monthly offerings, that would be a fine beginning for the Fall. Try it, and see if your school or class doesn't take on new life. Early training for the children is what counts; and if they are taught to support the enterprises of the church, better results will be realized when they are men and women.

I have two other inquiries as to our needs; that they are planning to send boxes. Now, that is business. Let's have more of that.

It is a general complaint, "nothing to boil," and that is ours, too. Our garden has given out, and of course you know what it takes to supply that.

E. M. CARTER, Supt.

THE COOKEE.

The boy or man assisting the cook in a lumber camp is called the cookee. When the meals are on the table and the men come in hungry, much of the praise goes to the cook. A good deal of the work and less than half the pay go to the cookee.

But the meal would never get on the table were it not for the cookee. He it is who cuts the wood, washes the dishes, sets the table, carries the water, peels the potatoes, etc. In short, the cookee is indispensable to the lumber camp. The work would stop without him. He has his share, and a very important share, in the big piles of boards that fill the lumber yards.

To work away faithfully and unassumingly when days are very busy and tasks are very irksome and rewards are very small is the quite brave task that the cookee accomplishes. And to do work this way is one of the really great achievements of life. Many people who are helping with things that seem small, like washing dishes or dusting a room or going errands, might be called cookees. To be a good cookee is to be a good worker, and the boy or girl who is faithful in little things is the one who will succeed in the big things.—East and West.

MRS. POWELL ALMOST DEAD.

Dry Ridge, Ky.—"I could hardly walk across the room," says Mrs. Lydia Powell, of Dry Ridge, "before I tried Cardui. I was so poorly, I was almost dead. Now, I can walk four miles and do my work with much more ease. I praise Cardui for my wonderful cure." Cardui is successful in benefiting sick women, because it is composed of ingredients, that act specifically on the womanly constitution, relieving headache, backache, irregularity, misery and distress. Only a good medicine could show such continual increase in popularity as Cardui has, for the past 50 years. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. Adv.

NATIONAL CONSERVATION EXPOSITION

Knoxville, Tenn., September 1st to November 1st, 1913.

Southern Railway announces the sale of very low round trip tickets for the above occasion. Tickets will be on sale daily up to November 1st, 1913.

Ask your agent, or write the undersigned for complete information, Pullman reservations, etc.

J. O. JONES,
Traveling Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

CHILLS AND FEVER OR ANY FEVER

QUICKLY YIELD IF
TREATED WITH
30 YEARS OF SUCCESS
IN CURING FOLKS

JOHNSON'S TONIC

MEDICAL COLLEGE OF THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA CHARLESTON, S. C.

Owned and Controlled by the State.
Medicine and Pharmacy.

Session opens October 1st, 1913, ends June 4th, 1914. Unsurpassed clinical advantages offered by the new Roper Hospital, one of the largest and best equipped hospitals in the South. Extensive outdoor and Dispensary service under control of Faculty. Ten appointments each year for graduates in medicine for hospital and Dispensary service. Medical and Pharmaceutical Laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped. Department of Physiology and Embryology in affiliation with the Charleston Museum. Practical work for medical and pharmaceutical students a special feature. Eight full-time teachers in the laboratory branches.

For Catalogue Address

OSCAR W. SCHLEETER, Registrar,
Corner Queen and Franklin Streets, CHARLESTON, S. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

FRESHEN UP, MY FRIEND!

Don't Look Like a Rag Baby.

The Columbia Laundry Company can take your old suit and hat, dry clean them by the best French process, and make them look like new. A complete cleaning plant, backed by years of experience and fully responsible, for the refreshment of clothing and household fabrics.

The latest machinery and skilled workers enable us to give universal satisfaction. We have a complete chemical laboratory to test the goods and remove the stains from them. Our efficient force puts clothing especially into perfect order.

When in Greensboro visit our plant. It is most complete and interesting. We give the best of attention to

Dry Cleaning

Perfect Dyeing

Good Laundering

Send your goods by parcel post. We will return them within a week. We refer to any bank or any citizen of Greensboro. Agents wanted in each town. Write for our booklet of prices.

COLUMBIA LAUNDRY COMPANY

106 Fayetteville Street, Greensboro, N. C.

WINTERSMITH'S The Southern Christian CHILL TONIC Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books: Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,

Elon College, N. C.

Oldest and best family tonic and remedy for

Malaria

in all its forms. Sold and guaranteed by your druggist. Arthur Peter & Co., Louisville, Ky. General Agents.

XUM FOR HEADACHE

"HASN'T FAILED YET"

WALKING ON RAILWAYS.

"He was in the habit of walking home nights along the railroad tracks," says a newspaper account of the death of a minister of the gospel who was recently killed by a freight train near a Georgia city. A college graduate, a man far above the average in intelligence, and a useful citizen, yet this man by his daily habits, formed probably because the railroad track offered smoother walking than the public road, did nothing less than invite the fate which finally overtook him.

Commenting on this dangerous practice the Atlanta Journal says editorially:

"The loss of fourteen lives in a wreck would loom forth as a national horror; yet statistics show that there is an average of fourteen deaths every day caused by the dangerous custom of walking on railroad tracks or otherwise trespassing on such property. It is estimated, indeed, that in this manner occur more than half the fatalities incident to railroads in the United States; and the majority of the persons thus killed are not tramps, but children and valued citizens.

"The time has come when the public should take serious note of this record with its grim warning to all who are accustomed to use railroad tracks as a common highway. The transportation companies are exerting themselves to end this peril and the Interstate Commerce Commission has spoken to the same purpose. After all, however, it is upon the individual that responsibility must rest; it is popular sentiment and popular judgment that must correct this evil. Five thousand lives a year is a terrible sacrifice to carelessness. It can be reduced and prevented only through individual recognition of the great risk in walking on a railroad track.

"This matter should now be of peculiar concern to the South where railway traffic is fast increasing. In Georgia and neighboring states many more trains are in operation today than ten or even five years ago and their number is continually multiplying. The danger to pedestrians who venture on the tracks is accordingly more and more serious. It is far better to stick to the muddest highway or the roughest woodland path than to take the deadly chance of following a railroad track simply because the latter affords easier walking.

"Much emphasis is now laid on the need of greater caution in the traffic of crowded cities but it is scarcely less important to remember that in rural districts and in the open country there lies a constant jeopardy of life to every one who walks on a railroad track."

POSTING THE DRUNKARDS.

It may not be generally known that the State of Washington has adopted the practice of publicly posting the names of persons who have been adjudged drunkards. The determination of the status of the posted persons lies with a county court. Saloon keepers are compelled to put the lists up in their saloons. A recent list containing twenty-eight names was accompanied with the following statement: "Each of the persons below named and listed has been adjudged an habitual drunkard by decree of the Supreme Court of Spokane, State of Washington. All persons licensed to sell by retail intoxicating liquors in said county are forbidden to sell or give any of said habitual drunkards any intoxicat-

Join the CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 15.

"Where There's a Will
There's a Way"

STUDY AT HOME

Hundreds of Dixie's Future Lawyers and Expert Legal Men Will Be Trained By Mail.

Many young Southern men cannot afford to attend a resident law school or give up their work to gain a law education. There are hundreds of these ambitious young men today—some farming, some clerking and some in business for themselves—who in the privacy of their own homes during leisure hours, are taking a course in law, upon which the greatest resident school in the world could not improve. If you have not had a chance to go to school, learn about the famous

LA SALLE HOME STUDY LAW COURSE

Let us tell you how to utilize your spare moments in preparing yourself for a great profession—how to stand and pass the bar examinations in your state—how the greatest course in law procedure ever prepared will fit you for the Bar and make you a success in business life.

VALUABLE LAW GUIDE FREE

Our big 112 page prospectus shows what we have done for thousands of others and what we can do for you. It is a complete guide in law study, and tells everything about it in clear, simple terms. Write for it, and take the first step toward securing a diploma and the degree of LL. B. Write at once.

La Salle Extension University
Dept. 84,
Chicago, Ill.

6 lb Pair of Pillows Free!

We again make our unparalleled offer of free pillows with your order enclosing $10 for our famous 36-lb. feather bed. All made of new sanitary feathers; best ticking and equipped with sanitary ventilators. Freight prepaid.

Delivery guaranteed. Money back if not satisfied. Agents make big money. Turner & Cornwell, Dep. A-O Memphis, Tenn. or Dept. A-O CHARLOTTE, N. C.

ing liquors, and are required to keep this notice and list posted in some conspicuous place in their place of business, under penalty of law." The question of prohibition is now before the people of Washington, and will be voted on November 3, 1914.—United Presbyterian.

OLD LADY'S SAGE ADVICE.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Mrs. Mamie Towe, of 102 W. Main Street, this city, says: "If you had seen me, before I began to take Cardui, you would not think I was the same person. Six doctors failed to do me good, and my friends thought I would die. I could hardly get out of bed or walk a step. At last an old lady advised me to take Cardui, and now I can go most anywhere." All ailing women need Cardui, as a gentle, refreshing tonic, especially adapted to their peculiar ailments. It is a reliable, vegetable remedy, successfully used for over 50 years. You ought to try it. Adv.

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days, usually gives entire relief in 15 to 45 days and effects cure 50 to 60 days. Write for trial treatment free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box 11, ATLANTA, GA.

The Best Mill You Can Buy

Live
Local Agents
Wanted
Write!

If you want a mill that will really pay you—one that will grind all your grain economically, quickly and without waste and bring business from your neighbors and keep it—then you will buy a

Williams Portable Mill

Cheapest because it lasts a lifetime; doesn't break down, and does more and better work than any other mill. Genuine Pebble Stone Grit. Buhrs the most durable buhr known, producing soft, fine meal. Buhrs protected from injurious substances by new spring arrangement. No attention required as patent device prevents buhrs from drifting together when grain runs out. Equipped with cleaning fan, sifter and new feeding device. Sold on absolute satisfaction or money back guarantee. Ask your dealer or write us at once for illustrated catalogue and full particulars. Let us show you.

WILLIAMS MILL MANUFACTURING CO.,
41 Main Street. Ronda, North Carolina.

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries. Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles, Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

HIGH CLASS

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET.

BURLINGTON, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf.

ENTIRELY NEW!
Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly.

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

DEVOTIONAL SCRIPTURE
READING.

A young lady, asked by her friend to explain what is meant by devotional reading of the Bible, made answer as follows: "Yesterday morning I received a letter from one to whom I have given my heart and deated my life. I freely confess to you that I have read that letter five times, not because I did not understand it at the first reading, nor because I expected to commend myself to the author by frequent reading of his epistle. It was not with me a question of duty, but simply one of pleasure. I read it because I am devoted to the one who wrote it. To read the Bible with the same motive is to read it devotedly, and to one who reads it in that spirit, it is, indeed, a love letter."—United Presbyterian.

TO HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Preserve sacredly the privacies of your own house, your married state and your heart. Let no father or mother or sister or brother ever presume to come between you or share the joys or sorrows that belong to you two alone.

With mutual help build your quiet world, not allowing your dearest earthly friends to be the confidant of aught that concerns your domestic peace. Let moments of alienation, if they occur, be healed at once. Never, no never speak of it outside; but to each other confess and all will come out right. Never let the morrow's sun still find you at variance. Renew and renew your vow. It will do you good; and thereby your minds will grow together contented in that love which is stronger than death, and your wills will be truly one.—National Magazine.

THE CREATION OF OBLIGATION.

When opportunity brings together necessity on the one hand and ability on the other, moral obligation is at once created. If the heathen man needs the gospel and the Christian man is able to give it to him, then as long as the Christian has the ability that long is the obligation upon him to supply that heathen man's need.—Western Methodist.

The old shepherd who offered prayer in a Welsh revival meeting, put it exactly right when he lamented his backsliding in these words: "Lord, I got among the thorns and briars and was scratched and torn and bleeding; but, Lord, it is only fair to say that it was not on thy ground; I had wandered out of Thy pasture." And there are many others whose scars were obtained in the devil's thickets outside the field where duty called us.—Selected.

DR. J. H. BROOKS,

Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

Look at These

An opportunity of glorious eleg-that the somet made Rapids
of the furni-to buy furniture
ance, the kind adorns hand-homes, in Grand
the home elegant ture in-No.
233

Chair 590
others of equal beauty
for like low prices.
Or this elegant rocker, No. 565, in genuine leather, for $18.90. If you prefer the plain wood, back and arms,
cool for summer, take
No. 590, for only $8.78.
Hundreds of other designs, every one as handsome as art and skill and selected materials can make it, for equally low prices.
Elegant parlor, dining room and bedroom sets, refrigerators, kitchen cabinets, hall
furniture, etc.

Chair 565

Every piece is a quality proposition, too.

A Principle to Stand On

Like knights of old, we stand for a principle and challenge all who dispute it to a trial. That principle is that
1. We send you better furniture at the price than retail houses can offer you.
2. We ask a less price for good furniture than retail houses can afford.
And we absolutely guarantee our furniture, shipping it on approval. Get our beautiful Arts and Crafts catalogue—it costs you nothing but the request, and is a compendium of house-furnishing information.

Quality Furniture Co.

No. 1116 Quality Bldg., Grand Rapids, Mich.
Formerly Grand Rapids Furniture Manufacturing Company.

DITCHER

Best and Only Practicable Machine on the market for farm ditching, either for open drainage or for tiling, terracing, hillside ditching, etc. 1200 yds. of 2 ft. ditch in one day with two horses. Unequaled as a street or road grad r.
Descriptive literature free for the asking.

OWENSBORO DITCHER
AND GRADER COMPANY
215 LEWIS STREET

OWENSBORO, KY

Free Round Trip to San Antonio and Free Ten-Acre Farm

Give us 5 to 10 weeks of your spare time and earn a round trip ticket to San Antonio, Texas, (all expenses paid) also a splendid ten-acre chicken, berry, fruit and truck farm. Write today, mentioning this paper. Jay C. Powers & Co., 102 E. Houston St., San Antonio, Texas.

Cancer Cured at the Kellam Hospital

The record of the Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having cured to stay cured permanently, without the use of the Knife, Acids or X Ray, over 90 per cent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from Cancer which it has treated during the past eighteen years. We have been endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. Physicians treated free. KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St. Richmond, Va. Write for Literature.

WANTED

Several honest industrious people to distribute religious literature.
Write Prof. Nichols
Box 42, Naperville, Ill. Salary $60 A MONTH

MORPHINE WHISKEY
and TOBACCO
HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Booklet free.
CEDARCROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

LIVER PILLS Ayer's Pills are liver pills. They increase the flow of bile, and the bile is Nature's great laxative. They also increase the flow of the digestive juices, and this brings prompt relief in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, sour stomach. Sold for over 60 years. Ask your doctor about using them. Do as he says.
J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

ELON COLLEGE
CO-EDUCATIONAL

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of higher education fostered by the Southern Christian Convention.

MODERN IN EQUIPMENT, Steam Heat, Electric Lights, Baths, Sewerage, Elegant New Buildings.

A HIGH GRADE INSTITUTION whose graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great American Universities without examination.

MAINTAINS EXCELLENT MUSIC, Art, Elocution, Normal, and Preparatory Departments.

A FACULTY OF SEVENTEEN SPECIALISTS, with a successful record of twenty-three years behind it.

HAS ALL THE ADVANTAGES of city life with none of its disadvantages. Situated in the delightful hill country of North Carolina, famed for its healthfulness, pure water, and high moral tone.

ELON COLLEGE HAS DONE MORE to build up the Christian Church than any institution ever yet commissioned by our people.

TERMS VERY MODERATE. $141 to $191 per session of ten school months.

For catalogue or other information, address,

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, Elon College, N. C.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLE

LARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

Contains in addition to the Authorized Old and New Testaments, all the Sayings of Christ in Red; The Temple Library at Nippur; Names and Order of the Books of the Bible; Maps of Bible Lands; Pronouncing Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names; Comparative Systems of Scripture Chronology; History of the Period from the Close of the Sacred Canon of the Old Testament until the Times of the New Testament; Illuminated Marriage Certificate and Family Record; Chronological Index to the Bible; Concordance; Full-Page Dore Pictures, Half-Tones and in Colors, etc.

No. 820 P. R. L. Bound in IMITATION OF LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Gilt Titles, Marbled Edges. (Weight, 12 lbs.) $2.10

No. 822 P. R. L. Bound in SEMBLE LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Full Gilt Sides and Back, Gilt Edges. (Weight, 13 lbs.) 2.85

No. 823 P. R. L. Bound in AMERICAN MOROCCO, Padded Sides, Rounded Corners on Cover, Gold Side & Back Titles, Gold Edges. (Weight, 15 lbs.) 5.00

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10½ x 12½ in.

HOLMAN RED LETTER
SELF-PRONOUNCING
TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches.

THE TYPE.
23 The Bāb-ŷ-lō-ni-ang, and all the Chāl-dē-ang, Pē-kōd, and Shō'a, and Kō'a, and all the Ās-sŷr'i-ang with

No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges $2.50
No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges 3.00

Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENT
SELF-PRONOUNCING

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Darkest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2½ x 4¼ inches.

THE TYPE.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Je'sus is the

No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges50

No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms75

Postage, 3 Cents.

No. 013 R. L.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Christian Sun Piano Club

BEATS FACTORY PRICES

The most economical, safe and satisfactory way to obtain a good piano or self-player piano is to purchase it "Direct from the Factory." There is no doubt about that. But the trouble is that every factory makes several different prices, according to the number of instruments you buy. The highest factory price applies on an order for one instrument, the next highest is based on ten instruments, the next on fifty. The lowest, rock bottom factory price is given only on an order for one hundred instruments or more. That is why the Club of one hundred members gets a lower factory price than any one of the members could have gotten independently.

By placing your order through the Club you save the difference between the highest factory price and the lowest factory price and yet you are responsible only for your own order. This big saving in price enables Club members to secure pianos and self-player pianos of the highest standard of quality and of life-time durability at prices ordinarily demanded for instruments of inferior grade which hardly deserve to be called pianos.

Do Not Misunderstand the Club

The object of the Club is not simply to provide the lowest possible prices. If that were our sole object we could offer pianos at less than one hundred dollars each. But such instruments are worse than none at all, for they not only pervert the musical taste and dwarf the accomplishment of their owner, but in the long run are dear at any price, for they rarely last longer than four or five years. The real object of the Club is to enable its members to secure instruments of the highest quality and durability at the lowest possible factory prices.

The Attractive Features of the Club Are

1. The great saving in price which results from the big factory order for one hundred instruments.
2. The guarantee of perfect satisfaction which is accompanied by having each Club member try the piano or player piano in his own home before assuming any expense or obligation to keep it.
3. A lifetime guarantee of the quality and durability of your instrument by one of the oldest, largest and most responsible music houses in the country. This gives you absolute protection against all defects in workmanship and material, and if such should ever arise Ludden & Bates agree to make it good or replace with another instrument.
4. An easy payment system based on the lowest net cash price. This represents a tremendous saving as compared with the customary installment prices, which are usually 20 per cent. higher than the cash prices.
5. Protection to his family in the event of the death of a Club member before the instrument is fully paid for. If the regulations of the Club have been complied with the unpaid balance is cancelled and the family is given a receipt in full.
6. The privilege of trading in your old piano or organ at its real valuation, for a new piano or player piano.

Write for your copy of the Club's Catalog Today

You will be delighted with every feature of the Club, for it affords, without question, the greatest piano opportunity ever presented. Hundreds of members from all parts of the country have given it their most enthusiastic indorsement and praise. Address the Managers

Write for handsomely illustrated catalog showing the latest styles of cases in Pianos and Self-Player Pianos.

Ludden & Bates CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB DEPT., Atlanta, Ga.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Welch.

Mrs. E. C. Welch was born July 7, 1833, died Sept. 8, 1913. She professed faith in Jesus when a child and lived a consistent Christian till death. She joined the Baptist church at Shady Grove near New Hill, N. C. She leaves to mourn four children and a host of friends. Funeral by the writer.

J. S. CARDEN.

Lemons.

Mrs. Hattie Lemons, wife of J. Frank Lemons, died Sept. 16, 1913, at the home of her brother, J. F. Roach, Mayodan, N. C. She was 27 years old.

At the age of fifteen she professed faith in Christ and joined the Christian church, Howard's Chapel. Later moved her membership to Mt. Bethel Christian Church, where she remained a consistent member until death.

She lived a beautiful Christian life. All who knew her loved her. Everything that skilled physicians, trained nurses and loved ones could do, was done, but our heavenly Father said, "Come home," and Hattie is gone.

Funeral services were conducted from Sardis Baptist church by Revs. Fagg and Gourley, at the close of which the Mayodan Council of the Daughters of Liberty took charge of the remains and interred them in a most impressive manner.

Besides a devoted husband, she leaves her father, Cicero Jones, a step-mother, five brothers, two sisters, and a host of friends. A FRIEND.

YES, PEOPLE ARE QUEER.

People are queer. When a man gets in debt to his groceryman and the groceryman wants his money, he is likely to fall out with him and quit trading with him and go to abusing him. When he gets behind with his rent and the landlord wants his money, he falls out with him and moves. When he is behind with his Church, he falls out with his pastor and quits coming to church and wants a new pastor. When a board of stewards gets behind with the pastor's salary, they quit the prayer meeting and, like as not, fall out with the pastor. Yes, people are queer.—Midland Methodist.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

AUCTION SALE

75-Choice Residence Lots-75

Elon College, N. C.

Friday, Oct. 31, 2:30 p.m.

This will truly be a golden opportunity, a chance of a life-time to own one of these valuable building lots almost in the shadow of Elon College.

This property will rapidly enhance in value so You had better look ahead and Prosper than to look behind and Regret.

ELON COLLEGE is one of the best as well as widely known colleges in the South and you cannot make a mistake by investing a few dollars in real estate near a school like this. If you appreciate location, conveniences and community welfare

It Will Pay You To Attend This Sale

This will be an Auction Sale in every sense of the word; every lot offered will be sold to the highest bidder, regardless of price. The sale will begin promptly Friday, October 31st, on the grounds, by Thomas Bros. Realty & Auction Co., of Greensboro.

TERMS: One-third cash, one-third in six months and balance in twelve months, with interest on deferred payments. Two per cent discount for cash on deferred payments.

One Free Lot and Several Valuable Cash Prizes

will be given to the parties present on day of sale holding the lucky card. Remember this date and don't fail to attend.

Central Loan & Trust Company

Burlington, North Carolina

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., OCTOBER 22, 1913

NO. 43

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Women and Missions.

At the Episcopal Convention in New York last week the Woman's Auxiliary of that church held a very impressive meeting, over two thousand persons, mostly women, were present, partook of the communion and made an offering of $307,500 for missions. Women are coming to realize that they have a great place in helping to evangelize the world, and right well they are filling that place. When the women shall awake to their duty and privilege in the matter of missions the kingdom will be extended as never before.

The Miracle of Miracles.

Of all miracles and marvels ever brought out, the Bible itself is the most wonderful. Each year witnesses an enormous increase in its sales and output. The British and Foreign Bible Society, in existence now 103 years, distributed the past year 7,899,562 copies of the Book, a half-million more than in the previous year, which was unprecedented. Hundreds, and some of it, thousands of years old, this wonderful Book grows in popularity and in power all the time. This is the greatest miracle of all. There can be no other explanation of it than that this is the Word of God.

Not In Order.

While the world's series of ball games was being played between the Athletics of Philadelphia and the Giants of New York, this colloquy occurred in the Congress of the United States: "A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker," cries Representative Mann, minority floor leader of the House. "State it," replies the Speaker. "I would ask," says Mr. Mann, "if it would be in order to announce that Baker of Philadelphia has just knocked a home run and that the score is 5 to 1 in favor of the Athletics." It was ruled out of order, and the House was out of order for a season of cheering and yells. Sedate and dignified men are boys and youths in order.

Morally Unfit.

The people of New York, through their legally authorized representatives, have tried their governor, William Sulzer, for high crimes and misdemeanors in office, and have declared him "morally unfit" to preside, as chief executive, over the affairs of their great State. In all the history of that State this is the first governor to bring this humiliation, this shame, upon his State. He was proven to have sworn falsely in his statements of campaign contributions, and to have used money for private speculation which was contributed for his campaign purposes, and then to have begged those who knew the truth to conceal it from the public. No one has ever questioned Sulzer's ability, his mental equipment for public place. He stands disgraced, stripped of his high office and the honor that pertained to it, not because he was mentally unfit, but because he was morally base. "Morally unfit!" Ah! the many millions before who have gone down to ruin on this very account.

Daily Prayer and Personal Work.

Because there is a great deal of hurry and worry and waste and wickedness about us, do not let us lose sight of the fact that thousands, tens of thousands of bright men and alert boys are active, vigorous, virile Christian workers. Last week the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, an organization for men and boys in the Episcopal Church, met in annual Convention in New York City. Of this order there are enrolled 15,000 members, 2,600 of whom went as delegates, from all parts of the United States, to New York, at a great personal expense. Every member of this order is pledged to "daily prayer and definite personal service." So far as we know this meeting was not unusual, nor extraordinary in any manner. Such religious assemblies, organized and working solely for the extension of Christ's kingdom, meet almost every week, and little is noted or said of them. This lack of notice or comment is because they are so numerous and commonplace, which fact argues more strongly than figures can indicate that those whose daily lives are devoted to prayer and Christian service are not dying out, nor decreasing in the world. They are multiplying ever and always.

Heart Culture.

Our schools, colleges and universities are busy now giving head culture. They are engaged in teaching youths how to think. This is well, and there is no danger that any will be taught to think too well. One must not forget, even these trainers of youth, if they be sane and sober, cannot ignore the fact that the foundation of our society, the stay of our civilization, the hope of our race, the security of the nation and the salvation of the individual is not head culture but heart culture. Educate a man whose heart is wrong and you make the case of that man, and of society, ten fold worse than it was. A man must have an acute conscience as well as comprehensive consciousness to be of worth to himself and society. Secretary of State, William Jennings Bryan, declared at a great assembly in Washington the other day, "I am inclined to believe that we have overestimated the value of mental training and underestimated the value of the heart's development. A good heart can use a very dull mind and make that mind serviceable to society, but a bad heart cannot make use of a mind however brilliant." Unless the schools can lead the youths to right heartedness, no amount of brilliant-mindedness can suffice.

Too Busy.

The late Prof. Huxley, noted biologist, expressed the wish that he had some friend upon whose judgment he might rely who would examine for him the tenets and claims of Christianity and say just what attitude he should assume toward Christ and the church; he would do this for himself, but was, he declared, so busy studying and teaching biology that he did not have the time. Prof. Huxley won fame as a scientist and was a familiar name in many lands. His mind was brilliant, his energy unlimited, his achievements great. But who cares today any thing about Huxley's biology and his vague and abstruse theories about the origin and development of life? Yet millions are finding comfort and solace and strength and life itself in seeking and trusting Him who said: "I am the way, the truth, and the life." And when the name, and all the words and works of Prof. Huxley shall have been buried and forgotten men and women will be pondering over the wise and weighty words found in Mark 8:36, "For what shall it profit a man, if she shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" We wonder if there are not others of us than Prof. Huxley who are too busy seeking to make name and fame or fortune to enquire into and look after the one thing needful. Too busy! Too busy! Too busy!

"MORE TO FOLLOW."

A benevolent person gave Mr. Rowland Hill a hundred pounds to disperse to a poor minister, and thinking it was too much to send him at once, Mr. Hill forwarded five pounds in a letter, with simply these words within the envelope, "More to follow." In a few days' time the good man received another letter by the post—and letters by the post were rarities in those days. This second messenger contained another five pounds with the same motto, "And more to follow." A day or two after came a third and a fourth, and still the same promise. The astonished minister was made familiar with the cheering words, "And more to follow." Every blessing that comes from God is sent with the self-same message, "And more to follow." "I forgive you your sins, but there's more to follow." "I justify you in the righteousness of Christ, but there's more to follow." "I adopt you into my family, but there's more to follow." "I educate you for heaven, but there's more to follow." "I give you grace upon grace, but there's more to follow." "I have helped you even to old age, but there's still more to follow." I will uphold you in the hour of death, and as you are passing into the world of spirits, my mercy shall still continue with you, and when you land in the world to come there shall still be more to follow.—C. H. Spurgeon.

Out of her half-million-dollar estate Mrs. Mary Davis McKnight, of Galesburg, Ill., has left $435,000 to religious institutions. The Moody Bible School, the American Board, American Tract Societies, and the American Missionary Association are large beneficiaries.

The New York customs authorities collected $923,374 on October 7, a record day's work, following the passing of the tariff bill. Enormous quantities of goods had been held in bond, awaiting the lower duties.

EDITORIAL

CHRISTIAN SERVICE.

"He is a loyal church member and a good church worker." Doubtless every SUN reader has heard that expression about a few of the "faithfuls," from time to time. Who is that "good church worker"? It matters not about his name or age or family. Nine times out of ten here he is: The one who was at first asked to do something in the church, or for the church, and did it. He discovered pleasure, maybe pride, in doing it; then he began to do things for his church without being asked. See the point? First he was asked to do something. Don't forget how he began—somebody, most likely the pastor, asked him if he would render some service for his church. This is the very foundation, the beginning of church work, of Christian service. Somebody who is in Christian service must take the initiative for those who are not. There are just thousands of do-nothings, drones, hangers-on in the church today who have never tasted the sweets of Christian service because no one has taken the initiative for them, no one in service, or in authority has ever asked them to do a deed, render a service, for their church.

Suppose children growing up in the home are allowed to do what they please and when they please without having the initiative given them by parents? Is it likely that they will be "good workers" in the family? Those children may be at meals and hear the blessing, they may be close by and get commands about their moral and religious life, but they will not be "good workers" in the family, for the support and upbuilding of the family life.

No more will members taken into the church, and left to serve or not serve as they elect. They may be at church and hear sermons, at Sunday school and learn the Word. But somebody must give the young church members, as parents give children, the initiative—point out duties to be done, work to be undertaken for the church.

This writer has had some experience as a pastor, but he has yet for the first time to ask a young man or young woman, not long in the church, to do something for the church and see that young person refuse the suggestion or decline to undertake the duty.

Young people do not go to work for the church because they are not given anything to do in the church.

Ours is a busy time. This is a day of energy and activity. If you want to keep anybody interested you must give that body something to do. You cannot expect interest and activity where and when there is nothing doing. If the church really wants "church workers," then the church must offer and suggest work to be done. Find, create, initiate some church job, put some fellow who has never done anything for his church on that job, seek by a little vigilance to keep him at it for a season and see what happens. You will have a "good church worker" before you know it.

There is no service on this earth more delightful, more interesting, more engaging, than Christian service. Your strong type of man and woman, your wholesome, happy type, is that which you find carrying with their own cares the cares also of the church, bearing with their own burdens the burdens of the church. Their tasks, their burdens, strange to say, are not any more irksome, not any heavier because they also carry those of the church. This, however, is in strict keeping with that strangely familiar scripture which reads: "For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Matt. 11:30).

DANCING.

Now that is a topic that this writer does not know much about. Life, to him, has been so full of real pursuits and wholesome privileges that he has not had the time, or the disposition, for the frills, fancies, tangoes and such. So he has been reading somewhat, of late. It is an amazing theme. We will let one speak who knows all about the modern dance. He ought to know. He was brought up "in the best society." He had leisure, liked the whirl and rhythm of the ball room, and so took to the dance as a duck to water. To quote his words: "I began to dance at twelve, and have spent most of my life since that time, . . . in dancing parlors and academies. For the last six years I have been a teacher of dancing, for several years held the championship . . . in fancy and round dancing. I am also the author of many of the round dances which are the popular fads of the day." So this high society man, this expert and life-long devotee on the ball room floor ought to know what he is talking about. He evidently knows, and we will let him speak out here on this topic about which he knows so much and this editor so little.

Now this man, Prof. T. A. Faulkner, has written a book whose pages are devoted to telling what he has seen and experienced in the dance. The volume is entitled, "From the Ball-room to Hell." Why did Mr. Faulkner write the book? He explains in the opening paragraph of his volume: "Since my conversion from a dancing master and a servant of the 'Evil One' to an earnest Christian and a servant of the Lord Jesus Christ, the question has been repeatedly asked me, 'Is there any harm in dancing?'" The book is an attempt to answer fairly and squarely that question. The author tells only what his own eyes saw, or his own ears heard, in or about the ball-room. But this is enough.

Prof. Faulkner says you will find "the most accomplished and most perfect dancers" not in so-called society, nor in the homes of the leisurely and the rich, but "among the abandoned women." Why? "Because they are graduates of dancing schools." "If any should wish to ascertain the truth of this let him ask the women themselves. I myself asked two hundred fallen girls, inmates of brothels, the direct cause of their downfall. Of that number, one hundred sixty-three answered frankly, 'the dance and the ball room,' (twenty said from drink given by parents). I know of one select dancing hall from whence, in a period of three months, eleven girls went to the brothel."

"Where did the majority of the drunkards take their first drink? Where did the gambler play his first card? Where did three-fourths of the women who are today living a life of shame have a man's arm clasped about them for the first time? Let me answer. The first drink of the drunkard was just a social glass. The first game of the gambler was just a social game. And three-fourths of the outcasts had a man's arm about them for the first time when they were young girls at a social dance. There are in San Francisco today 2,500 abandoned women. I can safely say that three-fourths of them were led to their downfall through the influence of dancing."

"The matron of a home for fallen women in Los Angeles says, Seven-tenths of the girls received here have fallen through dancing and its influence."

"To stop this great tide of sin we must begin at its source. To close the doors of the brothel, close first the doors of the dancing school."

"Some contend that there is no harm in parlor dancing. How many parents are able to restrict their children to parlor dancing only? Not one in ten thousand."

But space forbids our giving further of this theme even from a man who knows what he writes, and on that account writes as one having authority. We have not quoted the strongest, nor even the most salient passages, for the reason that these were too long. The volume does not contain over 75 pages and can be read in an hour or so. It is worth while, as most books are when written on authority. The Presbyterian Committee of Publication, Richmond, Va., has the book on sale, or THE SUN will secure the book to our readers at the publisher's price, 50 cents postpaid, if ordered of us.

THE RETIRING SUPERINTENDENT.

Rev. E. M. Carter, who has been Superintendent of the Christian Orphanage the past year, left last Thursday to attend his annual Conference, the Alabama, which is in session this week. Bro. Carter has arranged for his successor in office, Rev. J. O. Cox, to take charge of the Orphanage so that he may not have to return here for a brief stay, as his tenure of office was to expire shortly.

The Board of Trustees, and the people of Elon, feel a keen sense of loss in the going away of Bro. Carter. With sincere devotion, singleness of purpose, and devoutness of aim Bro. Carter gave himself to the Orphanage work in a most loyal and fraternal manner. His administration has been honorable, upright, prudential and praise-worthy. The children in the Orphanage will ever remember him as a kind, considerate, Christian man, and his godly walk will have influence upon their lives in days to come.

Bro. Carter retires from the Superintendency of his own choice to reenter the pastorate to which he is devoted and to which he feels called.

His good wife was of inestimable worth in the institution and upheld him in his good work, and assisted most loyally in every undertaking which made for the progress and development of the institution. Her going, like that of Bro. Carter's, is deplored, and like him further, carries the best wishes and sincere esteem of the children and all connected with the institution. Here is wishing for them both that meed of success and usefulness in their field of labor to which their piety and consecration entitle them.

PARAGRAPHS.

It is not often that a man makes a State-wide reputation as Superintendent of a Sunday school, and yet that is what Superintendent N. B. Broughton of the Baptist Tabernacle school of Raleigh has done, and now after a distinguished service covering a continuous period of 37 years, on his own motion lays down the work. When he began as Superintendent of his school there were 75 pupils; there are now 1,100 members, and it is known as one of the largest schools in the South. A few years ago, we happen to know, Brother Broughton was "called" to become Superintendent of a large Sunday school in Boston, Mass., on a splendid salary and for all his time. He declined, preferring his gratuitous service among his own people. He has certainly rendered valiant service as a Sunday school worker and hundreds over the State will regret to learn that the condition of his health would not longer allow him to remain as head of a great institution in which he rendered conspicuous service.

Brother Johnson, of Charity and Children, thus speaks: "A good brother writes from under a juniper tree, that he sees small hope for our denominational schools and that in fifteen years the State will command the whole educational situation. Cheer up, beloved. Your liver is slightly out of whack. There are enough Baptists with sufficient loyalty and wealth to crowd our academies and colleges with boys and girls, in spite of free scholarships and free tuition and free everything else. Bless your life, they are doing it right now, and they are going to keep right on doing it." Why of course, of course. And there are others than Baptists just as loyal and wealthy who are not going to risk their son's morals and religion at a State school, even with the bait of free scholarships and such. The State schools never were as crowded, and the Baptist College was never so full, and the Methodist institutions never had so many enrolled, and our Christian Colleges were never so taxed with numbers. So there you are. There is a whole world of ignorance to work in and to fight without the colleges pulling one another's eyes out.

We doubt if many SUN readers were aware of the fact that General Robt. E. Lee's daughter, Anne C., was buried in North Carolina. The mortal remains of the great General's daughter rest in Warren county soil, out about twelve miles from Warrenton, and on the monument that marks the spot are these words, selected by her illustrious father, "Perfected and true are all His ways whom heaven adores and earth obeys." Miss Anne, 23 years of age, was visiting White Sulphur Springs in Warren in 1862, was taken sick, died and was buried there. We are indebted to Bro. Archibald Johnson, of Charity and Children, for calling to view this historic event. It is purposed now to build the Anne C. Lee Memorial Farm Life School at the place of the young woman's death and burial.

Wonders have not ceased yet, and may not for some time. A widely read journal announces that in an early issue Prof. William H. Taft of the Yale Law School, a distinguished Unitarian and former President of the United States, will write an article on "The Growing Importance of Foreign Missions." Which shows that Foreign Missions is one of the vital topics of our time and is engaging the highest thought and best literary treatment accorded any subject of our day.

Governor Sulzer of New York was impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors in office and removed from office at noon October 17. The impeachment of a governor is a rare occurrence in this country and a course of conduct seldom resorted to by any State. Many feel that Tammany Hall was the cause of Sulzer's downfall; but the evidence against him as a man of low, not to say, base moral ideals, was very strong.

Julian Hawthorne, the distinguished son of a still more distinguished sire, and who used the United States mails to sell the influence of his name in connection with worthless mining stock and had to "serve time" in a federal prison therefor, has finished his sentence and is at liberty. Here is hoping he will now strive to live worthily of the great name bequeathed him and help redeem the honor he flung away for fortune.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

Many words of approval have come to the Board of Trustees of the Christian Orphanage on their election of Rev. J. O. Cox as Superintendent. Rev. W. T. Walters writes: "I think the Trustees made a wise choice. Bro. Cox is a good man for the place."

—Rev. W. L. Wells, Columbus, Ga.: "Our Sunday school is the largest it has ever been. We had 108 present last Sunday, 26 more than we had Sunday before. I think the work here more encouraging than I have ever seen it. The Lord is blessing our efforts here."

—Mr. and Mrs. Llisha Lee Everett announce the marriage of their daughter, Adelaide Lee, to Mr. W. Moncure Ashby Bloxton on Saturday, October 4, 1913, Norfolk, Va. The happy pair will reside at Williamsburg, Va., and have our best wishes for a long and happy life.

—President and Mrs. Harper went to Richmond, Va., last Wednesday to attend the marriage of Mrs. Harper's brother, Rev. J. M. Walker of Spray, N. C., to Miss Annie Muller English, daughter of Prof. English of the Union Theological Seminary of that place. They report a very pleasant trip.

—If you do not believe Elon is growing into a real town just read the advertisement of the "big land sale" to take place here Friday, Oct. 31 and be convinced. And this is the second sale of the sort in less than six months; we are growing all right, and real estate is worth while here.

—Rev. S. B. Klapp, Greensboro, N. C., who feels that he should decline re-election to the pastorate of Ingram church, after having served successfully for six years, is open to engagement with a church desiring services second Sunday of each month. Bro. Klapp is a faithful pastor and should be kept in the pastorate for full time.

—Dr. Samuel Dace McPherson of Durham and Miss Katie Lee Banks of Haw River were united in marriage at the bride's sister's, Mrs. W. H. Anderson, Haw River, N. C., Tuesday p. m., October 14. They will reside in Durham, where the groom is an exceedingly popular and successful practitioner. These good friends have our heartiest congratulations and best wishes.

—When writing to a person for help or information advantageous to you, but not in any manner advantageous to the person written to, why make that person pay postage for your benefit? It is the height of discourtesy to make a person pay for the privilege of doing you a favor—when to answer your questions is a sufficient tax on time and strength. Our postage bill will amount to many dollars a year answering letters in which we have no concern or benefit whatever.

—Our Woman's Missionary Department this week is not only important to all women SUN readers, but exceedingly interesting. When President Staley, of the Southern Convention, put Mrs. C. H. Rowland at the head of our woman's work, he chose better than even his great wisdom led him to hope or suspect, we fancy, and the other members of her Board are upholding her in the work. It rejoices our heart more than we can say to see the great work our women are beginning to do for missions. God speed them.

NEWS AND VIEWS.

—"There is something better than stopping to count ten when you are angry: count a hundred." Why not make it two hundred?

—Besides many who were drowned from the ill-fated Volturno in midocean week before last, eighty persons are reported to have burned to death.

—A Progressive convention has nominated William Sulzer, deposed governor of New York, as candidate for a seat in the next General Assembly of that State.

—Mrs. Pankhurst, of militant suffragette hunger strike fame in England, is on a lecturing tour in the United States. What sin has our country committed that it should be afflicted in this manner?

—The railways of the United States are appealing to the government for more pay for handling the mails, claiming that they are underpaid for this service by $15,000,000 annually, besides a great loss in transporting parcels post goods.

—A Zeppelin airship, with 27 military officials aboard, exploded in mid air and dropped a complete wreck 900 feet, instantly killing all on board, save one, near Berlin, Germany, October 17. The ship was 500 feet in length and a costly vessel, intended for use as flagship in the German air-ship fleet.

—Col. Ashley Horn, of Clayton, N. C., died early on the morning of October 22. He was a benefactor not only of his town and county, but of his State. He was a candidate for Governor six years ago but was defeated. Nevertheless he went on serving his State with loyalty and fidelity. This year he gave $5,000 for the purpose of erecting at the capital a monument to the North Carolina women of the Confederacy. He was a man of affairs, a splendid citizen and above all a devout Christian.

—The Charlotte Observer says that one of the New York Giants who received $2,161.62 as his share of the gate receipts of the world's championship games is Bun Hearne, a North Carolinian and a resident of Chapel Hill. While we wish Bun Hearne had remained at Elon College and finished his course pursued in the College here as a very popular student, we note with pride his success. He was at the College the other day bidding good-bye to his many friends, for six months or more, as he goes on a tour of Europe with his team this Winter.

—President R. T. Vann's very puerile, not to say silly and sacrilegious declaration before the committee of the North Carolina legislature has called forth not a little surprised comment. The Statesville Landmark says: "Talking before a legislative committee in Raleigh, in opposition to the constitutional amendment concerning Bible reading in the public schools, Rev. R. T. Vann, D. D., president Meredith (Baptist) College, Raleigh, said: 'When I find that the success of my God's kingdom is dependent upon an act of the North Carolina Legislature, I shall hunt me up a new God before breakfast.' We don't know about Dr. Vann, but most of us have heard preachers at times advocate the passage of laws with a zeal that indicated that they believed the laws were necessary to the success of God's kingdom."

—Col. H. B. Varner, who is doing more for good roads than any man in the State, and who is getting out the finest practical publication on good roads we know anything about, has associated with him in the editorial work on Southern Good Roads, Mr. C. B. Scott, of Lynchburg, Va., Miss H. M. Berry, of Chapel Hill, N. C., and Prof. F. Horton Colcock of the University of South Carolina. Meanwhile his splendid magazine has become the official publication of the Virginia Road Builders' Association, the North Carolina Good Roads Association, and the South Carolina Good Roads Association. Varner is really building up a great, and a very readable magazine, which he is selling at 10 cents the copy, $1.00 the year, Lexington, N. C., and deserves the best wishes and hearty support of all who have good road building at heart and desire mud replaced by macadam.

—Governor O'Neal of Alabama gives out an interview in which he says if the people of his State choose Hobson as United States Senator

(Continued on Page 6.)

FROM OUR CONTRIBUTORS

WHY A NATION-WIDE CANVASS FOR MISSIONS IN 1914?

BY J. CAMPBELL WHITE, GENERAL SECRETARY,
LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT.

What has led the leaders of all the Protestant churches of America to plan for a simultaneous canvass for all Missions and Benevolences next March? And what are some of the results that may reasonably be expected from this great combined effort?

One of the most powerful arguments for the simultaneous canvass on the part of all churches is undoubtedly the marked success that has attended this plan in three different denominations. The first denomination to try out the plan was the United Presbyterian Church. By a simultaneous canvass of that whole body, with 1,000 congregations and 142,000 members, during the month of March, 1912, they made an unprecedented advance of about 30 per cent. in a single year in their total missionary receipts, even though they were already at the top of the list of the denominations in their per member gifts to these objects. Of course they did a great deal of educational work in preparation for their simultaneous canvass. Missionary conferences, lasting through the most of two days, were held at all of the leading centers of the denomination, some sixty conferences in all. There was also ceaseless agitation by the church papers, and a vast amount of literature sent out by a special committee in charge of the campaign. But all of this effort was far more than justified by the splendid results.

Briefly summarized, the canvass increased the regular income of the various Mission Boards of the Church from $580,169 in 1912 to $739,452 in 1913, or a gain of $1.12 per member for the whole denomination in a single year.

This increase of $1.12 is more than many denominations now average as their total contribution for Missionary purposes, appalling though this fact is. But to appreciate fully the achievement of this one denomination, there must be added to the above figures a large amount contributed by their Women's Missionary Society, and bringing up the total of their Missionary giving to $853,569 for 1912-13, or an average of $6.11 per member for their entire constituency. The nearest approach to this that has yet been discovered is the Baptist Church of Ontario and Quebec, with 55,000 members, who this past year gave $220,000 to all Missionary purposes, an average of $4.00 per member. This has been increased from $103,000 since 1908. Very few denominations average over $3.00 per member, and the Protestant Churches of America as a whole, only average about $2.00 per member per year to all Missionary purposes.

It is also worthy of note that while the United Presbyterian Church added $1.12 per member for Missionary purposes, they also added $1.07 per member for other purposes, clearly proving that Missionary giving enlarges rather than decreases all other Church offerings. The average per member to all purposes in this Church is now $20.97, which is the highest we have yet discovered for a whole communion.

The other two denominations that made a similar simultaneous canvass in 1913, were the Reformed Church in the United States and the Southern Presbyterian, both of which made unprecedented increases in the amounts subscribed and in the number of churches actually making the canvass. Even during the year of the agitation for this simultaneous canvass, however, the Reformed Church increased its Foreign Missionary offerings from $107,900 to $146,020, while those of the Southern Presbyterian Church increased from $501,412 to $631,069. This is an increase from $276,263 in 1907, or a gain of 129 per cent. in six years. Offerings for Home causes increased in about the same proportion.

In view of the manifest success of the simultaneous canvass plan in these three denominations, it was very natural for the leaders of the Home and Foreign Missionary Boards of America to decide upon carrying the co-operative principle still further and ask the Protestant Churches of the whole nation to register their practical interest in Missions during the same month. March was fixed upon as being most acceptable to the majority of the Boards involved. Being late in the Winter season, it affords time to prepare for such a canvass by thorough educational processes.

Each denomination is doing its best to reach its own constituency through all regular channels, but in addition to this, several hundred interdenominational Missionary Conferences are being held. Over twenty teams of speakers have been organized, making it possible to hold twenty or more conferences in different cities simultaneously, for at least a part of the season. All of these conferences aim to present the conditions and needs both at home and abroad which call for a great Missionary advance. They also show clearly the great advantages of proper Missionary Education and of the organized personal canvass for subscriptions. There are about 23 millions of Protestant church members in America. To get them to act together, and to act simultaneously, on anything, is a great undertaking. But the responses coming in from many parts of the country indicate general interest and sympathy on the part of Pastors and other Church leaders in this United Missionary Campaign.

At the present time, about forty million dollars annually are being contributed by American Churches to Home and Foreign Missionary work of all kinds, over 60 per cent. of this amount being for Mission work at home. By this simultaneous canvass, it is hoped that some millions of dollars annually will be added to the income of the various Missionary agencies of the Churches. It is also perfectly evident that the Churches can all do their best work by close co-operation, rather than in isolation from each other. "Comprehension is half way to sympathy," and it comes only by contact.

There is in reality a great fundamental spiritual unity among all Protestant Churches, which is only revealed as these bodies act jointly in a great common enterprise.

A TERRIBLE TOTAL.

Frank Fayant, in the October number of Munsey's magazine, presents a startling array of figures and facts concerning our annual expenditure for liquor and tobacco. He says:

"Since the time when Columbus braved the unknown seas in search of the treasures of the Indies, man has dug out of the earth fifteen hundred million dollars worth of gold. Since the panic of 1907 the American people have spent for alcohol and tobacco just fifteen thousand million dollars. Or to put these two statements in the form of a mathematical equation, the product of four hundred and twenty years of human toil, sacrifice and bloodshed, of daring discovery and exploration, of cruel wars of aggression and conquest of wonderful engineering triumphs, in the never ending search for the precious metal, equals six years of easy going expenditure of the American people for the weed that soothes and the cup that cheers. This is not an attack on the Demon Rum, or on the Tobacco Trust that was. It is not even an expression of opinion. It is just a plain statement of fact.

"If the reader finds that these facts throw some light on the high cost of living, or the cost of high living, the writer has no quarrel with him. The text of this article is the fact that our smoke and drink bill now reaches the enormous total of twenty-seven hundred millions of dollars a year. From this text the reader may make his own sermon. The writer has no sermon to preach."

Of this vast sum, $1,170,000,000 goes for beer, $700,000,000 for whiskey, brandy, gin, rum and other "strong drinks," and $130,000,000 for wines; $446,000,000 for cigars and little cigars, $73,000,000 for cigarettes, $157,000,000 for smoking and chewing tobaccos, and $24,000,000 for snuff.

Our total amount of money now in circulation amounts to just about $38.00 for every man, woman and child, says Mr. Fayant, while our tobacco and drink bill reaches the proportion of $28.00 for every man, woman and child.

"If all the nickels, dimes and dollars spent for the product of breweries, distilleries, wineries and tobacco factories were hoarded as fast as received by the retailers, all the money in the United States, including every dollar in the National Treasury, would be swallowed up in the short space of sixteen months.

What becomes of the money thus spent? Mr. Fayant puts it tersely thus:

"The two-cent tax on a glass of whiskey is too small to give concern to the man who pays it, but the government collects enough in this two-cent tax on spirits to pay the entire cost of the United States Army. The internal revenue tax on cigars brings in enough money to pay the interest on the national debt, while the import duty on tobacco provides for sufficient funds for the building of all our new battleships. The snufftakers contribute enough to pay all the bills of the White House and Senate. The duties on wine are more than the millions spent by the public printer. In all the national taxes paid by the smokers and drinkers of the U. S. amount to $330,000,000 a year. To this must be added the $120,000,000 paid to State and local governments. The excise taxes levied throughout the "wet" districts bring in $80,000,000, while the property taxes on breweries, distilleries, etc., add $40,000,000 more. The total tax is about $450,000,000 a year. This is one-sixth of the total smoke and drink bill. In other words, one dollar out of six spent over bars and cigar counters goes to defray the cost of government. What becomes of all the rest of the twenty-seven hundred millions of dollars that Americans spend in a year for tobacco and alcohol? In the last analysis it all goes up in smoke and down in drink."

This is only a few excerpts from this remarkable article. It is well worth reading and studying in its entirety.

MRS. F. BULLOCK.

Prof. Le Coutre, of Switzerland, claims that the inhabitants of Mars are signaling the earth with a system of blue lights. One cannot help wondering what the Martians want with us, and how we could tell it to them if we knew. Blue, however, is a harmless color and we presume there is no danger. We are so glad that they are not using red.

On October 11, its 135th birthday, Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., celebrated Founders' Day for the first time in its history. Former President Taft and ex-Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson were the speakers.

CHRISTIAN PRINCIPLES—WHAT ARE THEY?

Our principles are plain and easily understood: not as ours only, but read and known of all men as the generally received principles of the Christian world, in which all denominations are agreed, and which have also been partially adopted since by other bodies seeking union in Christ on Bible truth.

Every good man desires the triumph of the truth: for the triumph of the truth is the triumph of God, of righteousness, charity and union.

What is the truth? God's word is truth (John 17:17). There are certain unquestioned principles in the Christian world, read and known of all men as truth, which no sect denies, such as faith in one Supreme God, the "divinity" of Christ, the word of God, the Holy Spirit, repentance, regeneration, prayer, pardon, faith, hope, holiness—as a means to these, God's love, Christ's death;—the Spirit's work, preaching, communion, obedience, goodness, resurrection, judgment, heaven and eternal blessedness.

These constitute an epitome of the truths of the Christian religion, as generally received, by all confessed; and these are the Christian principles—general, "catholic," Biblical, unquestioned. God has set His seal on these as truth, in that He has made them generally received by the whole Church. What God establishes must remain. It is truth. God spake and it was done. He commanded and it stood fast.

Scripture Statement.—Christian churches being founded on the Bible, they receive the Scripture statement of doctrine in the exactness of verbal accuracy, and regard all deviations from the "thus saith the Lord" as speculation. They fellowship all who profess faith in Christ and exhibit a corresponding life. The Christian Church of America was not in the work of the sect, but arose by a spontaneous impulse of truth, and was organized by ministers from all the leading sects, as union churches, where all true Christians might find a home.

Among the things commonly preached by the Christians are the following:

Great faith in God and His fatherly character; inexpressible and unlimited in the Son of God, and His all-sufficiency as our Savior; in the work of the Spirit, the all-sufficiency of the Scriptures, in repentance, conversion, obedience, prayer, baptism, holiness, union, charity, the resurrection, judgment and life everlasting.

In justification of our course, we contend that any Christians, of any nation or creed, have an inalienable right to organize on the New Testament basis regardless of private opinions, and that churches organized on this Bible basis are Scriptural, "orthodox," and identical with the original churches which Jesus founded (Matt. 16:18, and 18:17, 18, 19), and have the right to appoint their own officers and manage their own affairs, independent of any ecclesiastical authority whatever.

We take the name of our Divine Savior, not invidiously, as a sect name; but fraternally, as a name of union, which alone embraces in one general brotherhood the whole family of God; and we esteem as Christians, all who sincerely follow the Lord Jesus Christ and obey His word, and welcome them to our fellowship, baptism, or communion, without requiring them to give up their own, or adopt our opinions, being confident that our general principles are in accord with the teaching of Christ, and will bring all to that evangelical faith which existed at first and has alone ever been received by the general church.

We enjoy and love this union in Christ on the Bible, and the freedom which it brings—"freedom to worship God." We invite all to organize New Testament Churches and share our freedom with us, being assured that the New Testament form of the Church is most pleasing to its founder, and that where love prevails no bonds of men can be stronger or more acceptable to God. We also invite other churches, conferences, families, or individuals, to unite and labor with us in this great Bible movement to bring Christians into union on the New Testament. But whether you walk with us or others, we commend all faithful workers to God, and invite you to our communion as co-workers with us for Christ and for the world's salvation. Come and share our freedom with us."—The Late Rev. N. Sumnerbell, D. D., in Christian Vanguard.

EACH DAY'S RATION.

Let these my words . . . be nigh unto Jehovah our God day and night, that he maintain the cause of his servant, and the cause of his people Israel, as every day shall require (Hebrew, "the thing of a day in its day"—margin.) 1 Kings 8:59). In these concluding words of his dedication prayer, Solomon touches upon a principle of God's dealings and of man's happiness. The fears and anxieties and gloomy forebodings of failure that trouble the heart are all based upon a wrong view of the future. It is not sufficient to most of us that all is well today; we want security for tomorrow, and the next day and the next, and for years to come, and for old age; and not rarely do the blessings of the day go by unnoticed and unappreciated because of the heart's preoccupation and cares concerning days to come. And in the spiritual life, likewise, there are those who cannot have a day's joy and peace and clear hope because of the ever-present fear that in the course of the days to come they may become unfaithful or careless and drift away. Now it is legitimate to recognize that danger, and to forestall it today and on each day for the day by cleaving to the Lord with purpose of heart. But it is not to God's mind that we should view the Christian's warfare on the bird's-eye fashion, taking in the years of temptation and difficulty at a single glance, as if it all were a task that must be met with present resources. This is not all discouraging, but it is unbelief, an ignoring of God's constant, faithful care and help, and of His promise of grace for every emergency. (Isa. 43:1-3; 2 Cor. 12:9.) God wants to deal with us day by day and give us the day's portion in its day. This is hard on the flesh, for it likes to see beforehand, and a long way ahead; but it is good for the soul, for it keeps us close to God in constant dependence upon Him. If it be said that an assurance for the future is essential to our peace, we have such assurance. But it does not consist in a reserve store of things and blessings laid up, but in God Himself, whose promise fails not, and whose goodness and power is equal to any emergency. It was a happy assurance in the blessing of Asher that as his days, so should his strength be. (Deut. 33:25.) No doubt many of us would feel more comfortable in the flesh if we should go to the Father and attain the portion of our inheritance in a lump; and if we received it so, we should feel our independence and depart from the Source of our blessings to live as the flesh prompts, in the far country. For great is our weakness, and it is only in constant touch with God that we are able to stand.—Gospel Advocate.

After the recent gale in Alaska, not a house was left in the town of Solomon, every one being blown away. The three hundred inhabitants escaped with their lives.

THE BRAVEST BATTLE.

The bravest battle that ever was fought,
Shall I tell you where and when?
On the maps of the world you will find it not;
'Twas fought by the mothers of men.

Nay, not with cannon or battle shot,
With sword or nobler pen;
Nay, not with eloquent word or thought,
From mouths of wonderful men.

But deep in a walled-up woman's heart—
Of woman that would not yield,
But bravely, silently, bore her part—
Lo, there is that battle field!

No marshaling troops, no bivouac song;
No banners to gleam and wave!
But O! these battles they last so long—
From babyhood to the grave!

Yet faithful still as a bridge of stars
She fights in her walled-up town—
Fights on, and on, in the endless wars,
Then silent, unseen, goes down!

O! ye with banners and battle shot,
And soldiers to shout and praise,
I tell you the kingliest victories fought
Are fought in these silent ways!

O, spotless woman in a world of shame,
With splendid and silent scorn,
Go back to God as white as you came,
The kingliest warrior born.

—JOAQUIN MILLER.

"I MUST CUT OUT CIGARETTES."

It was at an amateur athletic meet. A young fellow, entered for the 100-yard dash, the 220-yard hurdles and the quarter-mile, came to chat with a group of friends in the grandstand.

He pointed out the stars, and told who would be likely to win some of the events in which he was not a competitor. Then came the call for the first heat of the 100-yard dash, and he, with four other men, went up the track to the starting line.

He wasn't "placed." As the flying men passed that little bunch of his friends in the stand, he was seen to lose his stride, to weaken for a moment, and in that moment the race was lost.

"What was the matter with you when you went by here?" It was one of his friends speaking, as the athlete came slowly toward them, five minutes later.

And this was his answer. "Cigarettes," he said. "By the time I had gone fifty yards I knew my lungs couldn't do it. I could feel the cigarette 'goneness.' And I lost ground because my wind was bad. I've got to cut out cigarettes."

To many a boy that incident should preach its own sermon. It is true on the track and the diamond, on the gridiron and in the river, in the gym and on the courts—the young man who would succeed athletically must cut out cigarettes.

And that is only the beginning. Success in athletics is a great thing, but there are other contests, other tests of stamina and strength. No young fellow can meet them with confidence unless he will cut out cigarettes.

There are arguments a-plenty of nobler sort against cigarettes, arguments that appeal to manhood and a manly self-respect. But, even reckoning only low-level motives, and desire to win, the longing for applause, and rewards of prowess, there are no two opinions possible.—Epworth Herald.

On October 11 Angelo Sylvanestro, an Italian, was arrested in New York in a crusade against Black Handers and bomb-users. Twenty other prisoners are in the police net, and it is said that several have confessed, clearing up nearly one hundred bomb outrages. Two days later a bomb exploded in New York, shattering the windows in a city block. No one was injured.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Mrs. W. J. Crocker, who was the daughter of the late John F. Lotzia, who was the half-brother of the Rev. J. F. Whitley, D. D., pastor of the Methodist church in Williamsburg, Va., was taken suddenly ill at 9:30 P. M., October 15, 1913, and passed away at 1:00 A. M. the following morning. Her mother and sister, Mrs. C. B. Leet, were in Washington City. Her brother, John F. Lotzia, Jr., was in Suffolk. She was only 36, had been married some seventeen years, had been the mother of six children, three of whom are still living: Bernice, Lotzia, and William, who is about two years old.

The funeral was conducted from the Christian church, of which she had been a member from early childhood, and she had been a member of the choir. The floral offerings were many and very beautiful. The family gathered from far and near and sympathy flowed like a river.

Such sudden shocks challenge the faith and loyalty of the family and the church. Why one who seemed in health should be taken without warning no doctor or minister can tell. Yet we know that "whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth," and that "His grace is sufficient." But again, our hearts enquire, why should mother be taken at a time when her service and training are most needed? Who can fathom the depth of such a providence? Who can find in it a mark of love?

It all comes to this: that death is an enemy and that enemies do not respect human relations nor human necessities. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." "When father and mother forsake, then the Lord will take us up." But what is home without a mother? It is a body without a soul. It is a fountain dried up. It is a sun gone out. It is the echo of a dying joy. It is the chamber of broken hearts. It is a temple without an altar. It is a fragment of a wreck floating on troubled waters, over which dark night and fierce storms rage in fury. But "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

In Rome the great Coliseum has furnished material for the building of many churches. It was once the glory of that mighty city. As churches have been built out of stone taken from that great building, so earthly homes are broken up to build the home in heaven. There would be no heavenly home, if earthly homes were not torn down to furnish the "lively stones" out of which God is building the "City of our God."

We have cut down the forests and torn up the granite and marble beds to build the cities and great homes of this Republic. God is building on a scale vastly larger and more enduring; and every Christian is a polished stone for that eternal home. Washington lives in this Republic, in Washington City, in the hearts of his countrymen; but God makes His children kings and priests in His kingdom. The very thought of entering into His temple as a precious stone honors the home from which mother is taken. We ask again, "What is home without mother?" But we ask the larger question, "What would home be without heaven?" It would be only an earthly home. But when these homes furnish the souls for the heavenly home, it lifts the Christian home up to God. He can no more do without us than we can do without Him; and that is why He gave His Son to save us.

"So, in the midst of griefs that crush us, and sorrows that overwhelm us, we say, 'though He slay me, yet will I trust Him'; and at the grave of dear ones we say "farewell" in tones that almost break the heart of by-standers. The flowers can cover the mound of earth above our loved ones, but no flowers are sweet enough to hide the bitterness of bereavement. To go back home and look into the chamber where mother was will break the heart unless like the Marys at the empty tomb we see angels.

W. W. STALEY.

WINCHESTER LETTER.

"Hands up!" It was only a little boy talking to his playmate as he raised his toy gun, but it set me to thinking. This is an age when much is said and written about peace. We conduct peace services in our churches, hold peace meetings in our cities, and peace congresses for the nations. We employ men to travel and speak on peace and to write articles for our magazines and books for our libraries. In other words a great effort is being made to create a peace atmosphere, and already we are beginning to look forward to the time when the dove of peace shall hover over all nations, and no one doubts the wisdom of the movement, for it is striving toward a desired end; but after all, while we are endeavoring to encourage the spirit of peace, are we not at the same time giving our young people a training in the other direction? The above is a concrete illustration of it. We give the child his toy pistol, and when he is a little older the air rifle, and later a real gun. We dress him in an Indian suit and furnish him with a tent or wigwag; we supplement this with stories of Indian prowess and American bravery.

When he begins to study history in the public or private school, the most of the illustrations are of war and war heroes; the most minute descriptions are of battles and the most honored men are those who have won their glory on the battlefield. As he walks through cemeteries, city parks or city streets, or around the capitol buildings of the state or nation, and sees the monuments that have been erected to the honored men of the country, he finds that with few exceptions, they have been placed there for the soldier hero. In order that this education may be carried further, we inaugurate our presidents and sometimes our governors with a military escort; we have our military schools and organize our military companies. We have these to march and drill on special occasions. These are the influences and this is the teaching we give the boy, and then when he becomes a man we expect him to forget all this and be an advocate of peace.

I would not take from the soldier one particle of honor that belongs to him, for his work was great and it had its place; but I would put along by the side of it the work of the man of peace. Not all great men, nor all men who have served their country, have been soldiers. Much of the best work for the interests of the country has been done by those who have labored for the financial, educational and moral uplift of the nation. If these could be given a more prominent place alongside of their military contemporaries and held up before the youth as models to imitate, and thus create a different atmosphere in which to train men the world's peace would be nearer in sight. We need to get our theory and practice closer together and train the boy for what we want the man to be.

W. T. WALTERS.

On October 6 McGill University granted the degree of LL. D. to Sir Gilbert Parker, the Canadian novelist.

NEWS AND VIEWS.

(Continued from Page 3.)

ator he will seriously doubt if the people are capable of choosing their officials. Of course, of course. People outside of Alabama have felt ever since O'Neal was made governor that the people of that State, if capable, certainly had not exercised discretion or wisdom in choosing their chief executive. And, by the way, the Richmond Times-Dispatch, a whiskey advocate once, ever and always, thinks that the people of Alabama should as early as possible send O'Neal to the Senate, a sentiment that will certainly meet the approval of saloon keepers and distillers generally. The way the saloon men and whiskey advocates stick together is a caution. We had not thought so much about it, but about the best reason we have seen why Congressman Hobson should go to the Senate is because Governor O'Neal is so bitterly opposed to his going there.

NOTICE.

To Ministers and Other Friends:—

We are anxious to secure the names and address of all families represented in the Christian Church within the bounds of the Southern Christian Convention in particular, who should take THE CHRISTIAN SUN, but do not. To this end we addressed a letter, with ample blanks and stamped envelope for reply, to all our pastors last week, requesting that they send us names of persons in their pastorates, who should take THE SUN, but do not. Will not any and all who read this notice kindly send us such names, as we desire to interest them in their church paper. Don't fear that too many names will be sent. In reply to our request, the following pastors have already responded with long lists, which we appreciate, and urge others to do likewise at earliest possible date: Rev. H. W. Elder, Rev. I. W. Johnson, Rev. J. D. Wicker, Rev. W. H. Denison, Rev. H. E. Rountree, Rev. J. F. Morgan, Rev. A. W. Andes, Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Rev. A. N. McAbee, Rev. E. D. Short, Rev. P. T. Klapp, Rev. W. T. Walters, Rev. J. H. Hughes, Rev. A. F. Iseley, Rev. C. H. Rowland, Rev. W. D. Harward, Rev. R. H. Peel, Rev. L. I. Cox, Rev. W. C. Wicker, Rev. J. C. Stuart, Rev. T. E. White, Rev. H. H. Butler, Rev. H. Scholz, Rev. J. W. Holt, Rev. G. O. Lankford, Rev. W. L. Wells, Rev. W. H. Garman, Rev. G. D. Hunt, Rev. R. L. Williamson, Rev. J. D. Dollar, Rev. C. M. Dollar, Rev. S. B. Klapp, Rev. J. V. Knight, Rev. Thos. W. Strowd, Rev. A. T. Banks, Rev. B. J. Earp, Rev. C. E. Newman.

PROGRAM

Christian Missionary Association Western N. C. Conference, Thursday, November 13, 1913, 2 P. M.

- Call to order.
- 2:10—Roll call and reading of Minutes.
- 2:15—Purpose of this Association—Rev. T. E. White.
- 2:25—Is This Association Worth While—Rev. J. W. Patton.
- 2:35—The Need of a Larger Membership—Rev. L. I. Cox.
- 2:45—Business Session. Report of Treasurer. Election of Officers, etc.
- 3:00—Adjournment.

J. F. MORGAN, President.

NOTICE.

The Educational Committee of the Eastern N. C. Christian Conference will meet Wednesday, November 5, 1913, at 3 p. m. at the home of Bro. Allie Hayes, near Norlina, N. C. All persons having business with the Committee will please present same to me by correspondence or meet the Committee in person.

C. E. NEWMAN, Chairman.

CHURCH NEWS

SANFORD.

Dear Bro. Atkinson:

I am just finishing up my year's work with my churches. I hope to go to Conference in good shape. I have held three memorial services and two Children's Day services in my field this year which were largely attended, and I think great good was accomplished.

Bro. C. C. Peel helped me in all my meetings this year, commencing with the first Sunday in August at Zion. We had a good meeting. Eight united with the church. Bro. Peel did all the preaching and did it well.

Second Sunday in August we commenced the meeting at Center Grove. Two united with the church. Bro. Peel did all the preaching, to the delight of the church and congregation.

Third Sunday in August the meeting began at New Elam. Bro. Peel did all the preaching during this meeting, to the joy of his many friends. Seven united with the church.

Our meeting commenced at Sanford fourth Sunday in August and continued until Friday night. There were several professions, and two united with the church. Bro. Peel did all the preaching in this meeting.

Bro. Peel is a strong, logical preacher and should have full work, and any church in need of a pastor would do well to write him at Elon College, N. C.

G. R. UNDERWOOD.

Sanford, N. C.

FIRST CHURCH, NORFOLK.

We have started our work here under most favorable circumstances. The weather has been fine. The people have been well and in good humor. Our congregations have increased from Sabbath to Sabbath as the weather grows cooler. There seems to be fellowship and good will among us. The interest in our church and the cause of Christ is on the increase. The church has bought a handsome little parsonage near the church building and will house the pastor and his family in a few days. The church was quite fortunate in selecting a home at a first rate bargain. We all feel proud of it and will do our utmost to pay for it in short order. Our revival has been in progress for nearly two weeks with several conversions and accessions to the church. Meetings close next Sunday night with a special sermon to the navy men. Next Wednesday night we hold church conference to transact business and elect delegates to the Annual Conference. Our church will be prepared to meet every obligation to Conference. We feel proud of our opportunity here and for the hopeful outlook of a larger and more efficient church in the future.

L. F. JOHNSON, Pastor.

Berkley, Va.

INGRAM, VA.

We had a good day at Ingram last Sunday. The congregations are not as large as usual owing to a revival going on nearby. Our services were spiritually interesting, having one of the most attentive congregations and one of the most pleasant churches to serve. I had previously resigned the pastoral charge of this church, hoping to get some pastor to locate in reach of this church by private conveyance, as it is so far from the railroad. It seems to me that for the sake of the cause Pleasant Grove, Ingram and Liberty might do well to form a pastorate and locate a pastor in their midst to do the much needed work there. I find this to be one of the great hindrances in our church. I hope to see the Christian church as a denomination laid off into pastorates, and a pastor located in each to meet the real needs of the work. Until this is done some churches must suffer as well as some pastors. I have served this church for the last six years and I will say that I never served a church with more ease, co-operation and brotherly kindness; there not being the least jar during all these years. This makes it hard to resign such a pleasant church, but they need a pastor in their midst. God bless this church and give them a good pastor.

KEYSER.

We began our revival in Keyser fourth Sunday in September and closed Thursday evening. This was a good revival in the church, a spiritual uplift. There were but two or three persons there but what are members of some church. I have been preaching there for seven years, and I have found the Baptists and the Presbyterians as faithful and true to the work in the Christian church there as our own members. In fact, they both worship and work all as one in Christ. If it had not been for the co-operation of these sister denominations we could not have held our own these seven years. I feel sure we have some as pure and true Christian people in all these sister churches as you will find anywhere. The pastor did all the preaching, with the faithful co-operation of Christian people. God bless this little band of workers.

PLEASANT GROVE, N. C.

We held our last quarterly meeting at this place the first Saturday in October. There was an unusually large congregation present and the business of the church was done in brotherly love. The work here this year has been done with great satisfaction. The church came together as a perfect unit in work and worship. Getting into the confidence of this large church of 254 members, getting them together in the building of this nice house of worship in the most magic way without a dissenting voice, the real good revival, this church going up to Conference with apportionments all raised, and having the largest congregation in the history of the church, is very interesting. The pastor has been unanimously called for 1914 with an increased salary. This is a good church and an easy congregation to serve. There have been twenty accessions this year. To God be all the praise.

S. B. KLAPP.

LIBERTY (VANCE).

Rev. J. Lee Johnson was with me in a meeting at this place week following third Sunday in September. The weather was ideal, Bro. Johnson at his best, and the people stood by loyally. There were more than twenty professions. Ten united with the church and were baptized, and a number have joined other churches. This is one of our best churches, strong in numbers and many devoted workers. I have served this people for seven years, and I retire with their confidence and they with mine. Rev. J. R. Stuart succeeds me.

C. E. NEWMAN.

DEFIANCE, OHIO.

Defiance College and the Christian Biblical Institute had a delightful visit on the 16th and 17th instant from Dr. Warren H. Denison, of Norfolk, Va. He made a very strong Christian appeal to the student body at chapel service, and delivered two very helpful lectures to the ministerial students on practical problems of church work. Dr. Denison's success as a pastor imparts special weight to his counsel.

Sunday, the 19th, was observed by the Christian church here as "Defiance College Day," and an offering of $185 was taken. This will probably be made $200.

N. G. NEWMAN.

ANTIOCH (C.).

We are ready for Conference at Antioch. Pastor's salary paid in full, apportionments ready. Our last business meeting was held Saturday, when we elected our delegates to Conference and church officers for next year. We have taken in ten members at this church this year, and as soon as we can conveniently do so, we are going to build a vestibule and paint the entire building. Next Fall we want Conference to meet with us, as it has been many years since it convened at Antioch.

All the churches I serve this year have called their same pastor for the next year. I have also accepted the call to go to Christian Chapel.

B. J. EARP.

BETHEL.

This is a small church in Wake county, with twenty-one members. It has been my privilege to serve as pastor most of the year. We have received one member, and the congregation has improved. We are going to paint the church before Conference, and are coming up with the apportionments in full. The people are kind and ready to do their part.

GRACE'S CHAPEL.

Our last quarterly conference has been held at Grace's Chapel. This has been a pleasant year with us. We have placed an organ in the church, put carpet on the floor, and supplied the pulpit platform with nice mahogany leather bottom chairs. Seven members have been added to our church roll and we are ready to go to conference a banner church.

POPLAR BRANCH.

The past year we have enjoyed serving the church at Poplar Branch. The Sunday school has been fine with Bro. Nicholson as Superintendent. We now have twenty-seven members on our church roll, three having been added this year. The congregation has improved and the deacon's report showed progress.

LAW AGAINST CIGARETTES.

Talking about the violations of the law prohibiting the selling of cigarettes and cigarette materials to boys under seventeen, the Salisbury Post says: "No good man is going to violate this law in order to take in a few more pennies in the course of a day's business, but a good many violations have been found, due almost entirely to a lack of knowledge of the law." The Post's faith and charity are broad. About every newspaper in the State has published the law, since it was strengthened by the Legislature last winter. Some of them have published it over and over again and commented on it. In the face of this the "good men" who violate it and claim they didn't know must not read the newspapers. The Landmark is disposed to question this plea of ignorance.—Statesville Landmark.

NOTICE.

All elders, delegates or visitors who expect to attend the Eastern North Carolina Christian Conference at Mt. Auburn, Warren Co., will please notify me at once, so that our committee can arrange suitable homes for all.

Those coming from the east and north will arrive at Manson on S. A. L. train No. 11 at 2:2 p. m.; those coming from the south and west will arrive on train No. 12 at 1:28 p. m., on Wednesday, November 5. All persons will there change cars for Drewry, where they will arrive at 2:30 p. m. and be met by the church delegation.

Mt. Auburn and its people open their doors and extend a welcome to all. Please notify me at once.

J. BYRD ELLINGTON, Chair.,

43-2t

R. F. D. 1, Manson, N. C.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

PHILATHEA NATIONAL HYMN.

Tune: "Maryland, My Maryland."

We hail the day that gave Thee birth,
And welcomed Thee from heaven to earth,
That we might know Thy royal worth,
Hail to Thee, Philathea.

Chorus:

We sing of Thee, Philathea,
May "Love of Truth," Thy guiding star,
With light serene still shine afar,
Shine afar, Philathea.

Whate'er the coming days may bring,
The sons of praise to Thee shall ring,
And loyal lips shall ever sing,
Sing of Thee, Philathea.

Shine through the gloom till night is gone,
A beacon light across the storm,
Seek out the lost and those that mourn,
Shine afar, Philathea.

Shine forth the truth, the work is thine,
To speed the dawn, Thy gift divine,
Then with Thy Lord forever shine,
Ever shine, Philathea.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: OCTOBER 26.

Subject: "The Sin of Moses and Aaron," or A Preacher Recalled.

Scripture.—Numbers 20:1-13.

Time.—B. C. 1452 (Ussher), 1238 (Other Scholars).
Place.—Kadesh.

Persons.—Moses, Aaron, Miriam, Israelites.

Golden Text.—Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight,
O Jehovah, my rock, and my redeemer.—Ps. 19:14.

Leading Thought.—It is well to control tongue and temper.

The Israelites, who were scattered for 38 years as wandering shepherd bands through the wilderness, but centering in Kadesh-Barnea, were called together in Kadesh at the end of that period. It was April, the beginning of the Hebrew year, Passover time (our Easter).

Miriam died at about the age of 130.

The rod with which Moses drew water from the rock was Aaron's rod with which the plagues had been brought in Egypt. The Jews had a tradition that this rock had followed the Israelites through their wanderings, and this tradition is used by Paul (1 Cor. 10:4) in his comparison of the rock to Christ, the source of the water of life.

Moses' sin seems to have been his fretful assumption of the sovereignty and authority of Jehovah: "Must we fetch you water out of this rock?" He gave no credit to God for the miracle.

"Meribah" means "Strife."

From Kadesh the Israelites set forth north-eastward, intending to go around the southern end of the Dead Sea. Half-way to the Dead Sea, at Mt. Hor, Aaron died and his son Eleazer was made high priest.

The refusal of the Edomites to allow the Israelites to pass through their country compelled them to turn southward and go through an inhospitable desert, where serpents assailed them, and where the brazen serpent was made which became to fit a symbol of Jesus Christ.

Question Review.

A friend of mine kept for many years what is known as a Century Cactus. At last she grew tired of caring for it and gave it away. The next year it bloomed. Oh, how she lamented, "If only I had kept it one year longer!"

I knew a girl who went through all the grades of school, and to high-school for three years, then dropped out, one year short of graduating.

A boy who had waited half an hour in a doctor's office said, "I've got to stay now till he comes, else I will have lost all the time I have waited."

1. How many years had Moses worked and waited in bringing Israel to Canaan?

2. What did God say to him in v. 12 of our lesson?

3. What, in Moses, had failed just when the Israelites were really going to enter Canaan? (Patience.)

4. What hard names did he call the people?

5. What did he do instead of speaking to the rock?

6. How did he take to himself honor that belonged to God?

Through the sin of his heart expressed by his lips, Moses failed.

7. What good prayer for even the best of men to offer, does our Golden Text give? (Repeat G. T.).—Leonard.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC: NOVEMBER 2.

Subject: "The Ideal Christian. XI. His Heavenly Helper."—Heb. 13:5-15.

This meeting should be made the sweetest, most consecrated, as well as the most interesting of the season, for it concerns the relation of the Endeavor to his Creator and God. The scripture lesson should be read by some one who reads well and commented on by the leader. The leader's talk should be brief but he should outline the evening's discussion.

How God Helps.

God is helping you by His Spirit in your soul. What a wonderful guest! What a mighty friend! Do you value His presence? Do you make use of His aid?

God is helping you through your helpful friends. Every noble Christian in your church, and especially your pastor, may be God's messenger of helpfulness.

You cannot please God better than just by letting Him help you. That is God's great joy.

It pays us to look back in the search for evidences of God's help. Such proofs are worth more than the biggest gold nuggets.

Often, when God was helping us the most, we were quite unconscious of His help. Looking back, we recognize it with profound gratitude.

Do you recall your prayers of a decade ago? How much that you eagerly begged for would have proved hurtful to you! Thank God now for His help in refusing you that help!

In looking back over your life, you will see many approaches of God that you rejected. Count these also in forming your proofs of God's help.

Know that God is always ready to do more for you than He has been allowed to do in the past, and remember that your future may grow constantly happier and better.

Never be afraid to pray definitely for just the things you think you need, but always add, "Thy will be done." After all, the only thing you need is for God's will to be done in your life.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR ADVANCE.

Following hard upon the heels of a campaign for efficiency comes a definite turning of the members' attention to temperance work, trained social-service ministry, and specialized activity in the church herself.

There is more to this than lies on the surface. It strikes deeply into present problems, political, social, and religious. For if these ardent young people are going to dedicate themselves definitely to public and Christian service, there will be such an infusion of new life into the day's trained leadership that many present perplexities will be advanced toward a solution. Granted the entrance of the Endeavorers into the acute temperance fight,—and they have sounded the slogan, "A saloonless nation by 1920,"—and the consequences are likely to be direct and important.

For a Methodist General Conference or a Presbyterian General Assembly to adopt resolutions upon public questions is one thing. The members of these bodies are mature men, already engrossed with cares; and ecclesiastical resolutions are notoriously perfunctory and ineffective. But for these young men and women, full of zest for life and effort, and still in the glow of chivalrous ambition, to pledge themselves definitely to make it their like-work to serve the church and the country is really serious business. A percentage of these covenanting young warriors is sure to be heard from in actual fighting and service.

All great wars are won by mere boys. Christian Endeavor has seized upon a great principle in securing the pledged allegiance of youth to definite public activity. When the knightly passions of youth are enlisted, some dragons are bound to be slain.—Philadelphia North American.

"FATHER" HUDSON.

It was the writer's privilege to hear Mr. Marshall A. Hudson speak while in North Carolina recently. He came to visit the principal cities of the State and arouse added enthusiasm among Baraca-Philathea workers. Mr. Hudson can hardly be said to be an orator, yet he has a splendid and captivating style of address, is sincere, fluent and easy to follow.

"Father" Hudson, as he is generally called, organized the first Baraca Class in existence in Syracuse, New York, where he still lives, twenty-three years ago. Out of his effort has developed the Baraca-Philathea movement and the organized class under other names. He says in an organized class there are three things to consider, and these are the three sides of a young man's character: the social life, the business life, and the spiritual life. No class needs to consider more and none should consider less if it is to succeed.

It is the ambition of Mr. Hudson to die a millionaire—not in dollars, but in men and women whom he has led to Christ. It is believed that before the end of 1914 he will have the pleasure of knowing that more than a million men and women have enlisted under the banner of Baraca-Philathea and kindred movements which are the result of the class he first organized.

The life of the man is unique. He was not converted until after he had been a traveling salesman for many years. Later he went into business in Syracuse and had started on the work of establishing a chain of crockery stores from New York to Chicago. When he had three prosperous stores he saw that he must either give up his work for money or his work for men. He gave up the former and has been happy ever since that he did. When some worthy biographer writes of the man's life it will be an interesting story.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Secty. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'ty.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

ALL PROTESTANT CHURCHES ACTING TOGETHER.

This season is witnessing an unusual illustration of the fundamental unity among Protestant Christians of all denominations. The leaders of nearly fifty of these denominations, including all of the larger ones, have entered upon a combined effort to enlist millions more of the rank and file of church members to do something to propagate the Christian religion, in addition to going to church themselves and helping to pay the local church expenses. The campaign is to head up next March in a simultaneous nation-wide canvass for all missions and benevolences on the part of all churches of all denominations. The men who have been studying the returns say that only about one-third of Protestant church members have yet begun to give anything to plant new churches in the needy places in America and among the non-Christian nations of the world. This leaves probably fourteen or fifteen millions of church members yet to be enlisted as givers. The organized personal canvass is the method proving most successful in getting many thousands of these people to be regular subscribers and givers.

The promoters of this effort, which goes under the name of the "United Missionary Campaign," points out the fact that scarcely one-half of the adult population of America are members of any church. The Protestant churches have about 23 millions of members in the aggregate, and the Roman Catholic Church reports about 13 millions including all baptized children. This leaves about 35 millions of people over 10 years of age who are not members of any church. Included in this unchurched population are multitudes of foreign speaking people, speaking scores of different languages. There is therefore plenty of room for aggressive Home Missionary work on the part of all the churches.

It is also a time of unusual opportunity to propagate Christianity among non-Christian nations. The foreign missionary work carried on for the past hundred years has been one of the principal causes of the great changes now taking place in Turkey, Persia, India, China and other countries.

The foreign missionary enterprise has grown until it is a tremendous world-wide business, in which over 24,000 men and women missionaries are engaged, and for which the Protestant churches of Christendom contribute over 30 million dollars annually. Of this total, fully one half comes from the United States, which has come to be recognized as the most important single factor in the world-wide extension of the Christian faith.

A native church of nearly three millions of communicant members has been built up, with four millions more of adherents. About six thousand of these natives have been prepared by long courses of training for the Christian ministry and are now ordained pastors of their own people. But from every field there are calls for great advances. The missionaries abroad believe that their total force should probably be doubled in order to meet worthily the present opportunity. Nearly 200,000 persons per year are now being received into church membership from these fields, but this could probably be doubled if there were workers enough.

In view of these great needs the Home and Foreign Missionary leaders of the United States and Canada are engaging this year in a great combined effort to interest and enlist all churches more generally and more fully in this missionary business. They have requested and secured the Laymen's Missionary Movement to take general charge of the organization of the field campaign. The Missionary Education Movement has prepared an exhibit of literature which will be used at all of the conferences. The plan is to hold interdenominational conferences, lasting two days each, in as many cities and towns as possible. Already twenty-four teams of speakers have been organized for the United States alone, in addition to several teams in Canada. Some of these teams will conduct as many as forty different conferences. Several teams have already begun the holding of conferences, and preliminary arrangements for others are going forward in nearly all sections of the country. The total number of conferences held will reach well over five hundred. All of them are for the one purpose of informing church people of the crying need of a great advance in mission work both at home and abroad, together with an exploitation of those methods that have proved most effective in enabling churches and whole cities and denominations to multiply their missionary output. It is also found that the churches that do most for others are the best off themselves. The churches that are self-centered are apt to decline. It seems to be a normal and necessary fact that "the light that shines farthest, shines brightest nearest home."—[Prepared and sent out by the Laymen's Missionary Movement, 1 Madison Ave., New York.

MITE BOX OPENING AND MISSIONARY RALLY.

The Missionary Society of the Burlington Christian Church had their Mite box opening at the home of Mrs. D. E. Sellars on the afternoon of Oct. 6th. This is reported as being a most pleasant occasion. Refreshments were served,—sandwiches, Cogiee and home-made candy. Misses Clements, Barnes, and Davidson, three of the lady teachers from the College, were present, and added much to the occasion. The amount obtained from the Mite boxes was $15.75, which goes to the support of a girl in Mrs. Fry's school in Japan. One girl, whom this society has been helping for three years, graduated recently.

The following is the program rendered:

Scripture Lesson.
Prayer by Pastor.
Solo by Miss Edith Carroll.
Missionary Events of the Year.
Reading: Miss Dorothy Entertains the Minister.—Miss Clements.
Chinese Hymns.
Vocal Duet, Misses Barnes and Clements.
Reading, Miss Clements.
Opening of the Mite Boxes.
Vocal Duet: "Hark! Hark! My Soul."—Misses Barnes and Clements.
Benediction.

MISSION STUDY CLASSES.

As the Winter days and evenings are approaching, along with the reading and studying you are planning to do, give some plan to mission study books. In the Missionary Society, a book or books should be decided on now, and plans made for the study thereof. The new book gotten out by the Central Committee on foreign work is The King's Business. It is written by Mrs. Paul Raymond of Colorado. It not only tells of the King's business, but also gives methods of carrying it on. There are six chapters, as follows:

Chapter I. The King's Business.
Chapter II. Campaigning for the King.
Chapter III. Resources of the King's Forces.
Chapter IV. Drilling of the King's Army.
Chapter V. The King's Treasury.
Chapter VI. The Unity of the Kingdom.

"In some respects this is the most important volume published in the thirteen years of united study. Mrs. Raymond has made crystal-clear what the business is, and the best methods of carrying it on and increasing it. The book includes fifty new and original programs prepared by experts."

Then there is for Home Mission study The New America, by Mary Clark Barnes and Lemuel Coll Barnes. This volume is prepared under the direction of the Council of Women for Home Missions and is a study in immigration.

The Junior text book is Comrades from Other Lands. It is a study of foreign-born boys and girls, in coal-mining, market-gardening, and canning. Its author is Miss Lila Allen Dimock.

All of these books can be ordered from the Southern Christian Pub. Co., Elon College, who will supply them at publishers' prices, and for leaders a supplement can be had on each book, with suggestions for teaching. If our societies will use these books, new inspiration will be gained and our efficiency greatly increased.

WOMAN'S BOARD MEETING.

The Woman's Missionary Board of the Eastern Virginia Conference met in Franklin, Oct. 9th, with Mrs. Dick, Miss Brickhouse and Mrs. Rowland present. The year's work has been encouraging. There are now twelve societies in the Conference, four churches, using the mite boxes, and having missionary exercises, at least, twice a year, one Young Girls' Society, four Willing Workers' Societies, and two Cradle Rolls. While not all the societies had sent in reports for the last quarter, yet the Treasurer's books show that there has been a decided increase over the amount received last year.

The most important thing engaging the attention of the Board was the arranging a program for a Woman's Missionary Conference to be held during the sitting of the Annual Conference.

This will be on Wednesday, October 29, in a Hall near Mount Carmel church. Societies are asked to send representatives. Superintendents of Mite Boxes, Superintendents of Young People's Societies and of Cradle Rolls will represent those organizations. It is hoped that many of our women will plan to attend on this day, in order to become more acquainted and more deeply interested in the work. It is the desire of the Board to get the women in every church to doing something for missions.

The following is the program arranged:

1. Call to order by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, President of Woman's Board for Home and Foreign Missions.
2. Devotional services by Mrs. I. W. Johnson, Suffolk, Va.

3. Calling the roll of Societies, and Enrollment of delegates.
4. Appointment of Committees.
5. Report of Woman's Board, by Mrs. W. H. Dick, Treasurer, Suffolk, Va.
Address: Our Work, The Outlook—Mrs. C. H. Rowland.
6. Reports from Societies and Mite Box Superintendents. Discussion.
7. Report of Conference Superintendents:
 1. Literature and Mite Boxes, by Mrs. J. W. Harrell, Portsmouth, Va.
Address: The Importance of Mission Study.
 2. Young People's Work, Miss Mamie Holland, Suffolk, Va.
Address: Our Young People of Porto Rico, by Mrs. D. P. Barriett, Ponce, P. R.
8. Report of Treasurer, Mrs. W. H. Dick.
"What Our Funds Are Used For," Mrs. C. H. Rowland.
9. Miscellaneous Business.
10. Adjournment.

2:00 P. M.

1. Call to Order. Devotional services.
2. Reports of Committees.
3. Address: "The Sendai Field," as seen by our Mission Secretary, Rev. M. T. Morrill, Dayton, Ohio.
4. Round Table, conducted by Mrs. W. H. Denison, Norfolk, Va.
5. Address: The Work of Our Church in Porto Rico, by Mrs. D. P. Barrett.
6. Miscellaneous Business.
7. Adjournment, with Devotional Services.

We believe that this meeting will be helpful if our women will only attend and support it. Let us all pull together to make our Conference strong in missionary work and in service along this line of endeavor.

A GIGANTIC TASK.

The emergence of Japan as a world force, the awakening of China, the ferment of social and political ideas in India, the quickening of national consciousness in Persia and the remarkable political and religious readjustment taking place in Moslem lands, from the island of Sumatra on the east to Constantinople on the west, are conditions which will tax to the utmost the wisdom and faith of the Christian statesman who prays and plans for the extension of the kingdom of God in all the earth.

The task of evangelizing the world is one of gigantic proportions. To furnish one missionary to every 25,000 heathen the American churches must increase their force from 4,000 to 20,000 missionaries and their gifts from $9,500,000 to $40,000,000 annually. This is assuming that the Christians of America are responsible for 500,000,000 of the unevangelized. This, large as it seems, is less than one-fifth of what it spent on the churches at home, less than a street car fare a week per church member.

Of these unevangelized millions assigned to one denomination alone, 20,000,000 are in China, within that Gibraltar of missions at whose unyielding front missionaries have been pounding for more than half a century.

In an appeal to the people of this denomination, one of the secretaries says:

"In the Sunrise Kingdom of Japan there are 7,000,000; in Korea, that land of spiritual marvels, where the revival fires never wane, there are 2,000,000 broken-hearted people; in Brazil, the rich and wonderful Land of the Southern Cross, there are 5,000,000; Mexico presents the problem and the privilege of evangelizing 5,000,000 of her population; Cuba, the Pearl of the Antilles, nestles close to our shores and there 1,000,000 people await the glad tidings."

This constitutes an army equal to one-half the whole population of the United States. As one writer has said: "They come from the East and the West, all open and friendly to us, vexed with vague unrest and full of unvoiced questionings. We are their hope, we hold their destiny in our hands. Shall we fail them?"—Exchange.

NOTICE.

The Eastern N. C. Christian Conference will convene with the church at Mt. Auburn, Warren Co., N. C., Thursday, November 6, 10 a. m.

How to reach the place: Come to Manson on S. A. L. and transfer to branch road running to Drewry.

When to come: Come Wednesday p. m., November 5, 1913. Northbound train No. 12, local, arrives at Manson 1:28 p. m. Southbound, 2:2 p. m. Train due at Drewry 2:30.

Whom to notify: All delegates and visitors will be given a cordial welcome and will be well cared for. Please notify J. B. Ellington, Chariman Entertainment Committee, at Manson, N. C., R. F. D. 1, at once, if you are planning to attend.

Ample conveyances will be at Drewry at 2:30 p. m. November 5. Please come on that day as the church is some distance from the depot and it will be inconvenient to meet members of the Conference later.

Conference will close over Sunday. Come to stay till the close. Many of our representative men from other conferences will be present among them Drs. Staley, Harper, Atkinson, Morrill, and Netum Rathbun.

C. E. NEWMAN, President.

NOTICE.

To the Members of the Christian Missionary Association of the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference. Dear Brethren, Churches and Sunday Schools:—

I wish to call attention of each member of this Association to the fact that we will need all the money possible by Conference to carry on the work in Reidsville. Your Association took up this work at its last session in Greensboro. The church in Reidsville has been organized and it should be sustained by the Association and Conference till it becomes self-supporting. I am asking each member of this Association, either person, church or Sunday school, to please look after this matter at once, and send the dues, $5.00, to our next session, which meets with the Annual Conference at Lebanon church in November.

S. B. KLAPP, President.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD GOES ON RECORD.

At the meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina last week in this city, the members of that body placed the Presbyterian church in North Carolina on record as follows:

"Resolved, that the Presbyterian Church of North Carolina does hereby, through its Synod, place itself on record as favoring the reading of the Bible in the State's educational system."

We are glad to note that this great and influential body of Christians understand fully, not only where the foundation of their hope as a Church lies, but fully appreciate the fact that the Bible is the bulwark of our civil institutions. The great majority—we should say ten to one—of the members of all Protestant denominations in North Carolina would throw the doors of our schools wide open to the Bible if they had an opportunity to express themselves. Those who led in the movement to defeat the amendment will have no occasion to celebrate their victory. We shall not be surprised if it plagues them in the future.—N. C. Christian Advocate.

FOSTER'S STORY OF THE BIBLE

From Genesis to Revelation. Told in Simple Language.

ADAPTED TO ALL AGES, BUT ESPECIALLY TO THE YOUNG

By CHARLES FOSTER

Size, 6½ x 9 in.; 704 Pages; 300 Illustrations.

BEAUTIFUL COLORED PICTURES
THE BEST EASY-READING VERSION OF THE WHOLE BIBLE

It adheres most closely to the Scriptures, retaining much of their force, dignity and distinction of style, with the pure and simple wording of the English Bible, without comment or doctrinal discussion.

MOST GENERALLY USED—750,000 SOLD

Approved by eminent men of various religious denominations
Valued in thousands of homes.

FINE CLOTH, with beautiful design in three colors (shown above), $1.50

SEND US YOUR ORDERS.

Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Children's Missionary Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions For Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDREN

The
Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

See Us about Job Printing

WHEN YOU WANT GOOD WORK.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

CRADLE ROLL

OUR CRADLE ROLL.

DEAR CRADLE ROLL SUPERINTENDENTS:

I have written a large number of letters to individual Superintendents, but as yet have not received a single reply. I have been hoping to hear from some of the friends so that I might tell you somewhat of the things which are actually being accomplished.

I suppose we ought to apologize for using all this space for our Eastern Virginia Conference when there are so many others, but perhaps some of the others will read this column, as well and maybe get some help from it, too. If there are any such and they would care to write me, whether for advice, or giving advice, I shall be very glad to do anything I can for them.

Do you remember the simile that I used of the blacksmith's forge, in which I likened the child to the metal, for which the parents must provide the heating fire, and the Cradle Roll Superintendent can take the part of bellows, fanning the flame, and helping to direct it in the right way, using the Cradle Roll as the hammer to mold the child into the shape of a Sunday school scholar? In talking of this with Rev. H. E. Rountree, he said, "And don't forget that there is also a psychological moment at which to strike, when the iron is just right, and the fire just hot enough."

This is a good point and not to be forgotten. Such moments come when Baby is sick, when its birthday comes, or when there is trouble its birthday comes, or when there is trouble or joy in the family. It is at the time of emotional stress that the Cradle Roll Superintendent finds many times the open door for which she would otherwise have sought in vain. It is impossible in the country for the Superintendent to visit the baby and the home as often as it could be done in town, nor is it necessary to do so. She is not expected to do it. But the birthdays surely should be remembered. If it is absolutely impossible to make a visit then, let a pretty card with appropriate verse be sent. There are a number of dainty designs intended for the first, second and third birthdays, and these should be kept on hand, to be sent, but not to take the place of a visit when it is humanly possible to make this visit.

Then when baby is sick, do not forget the sorrowing mothers, perhaps even baby has learned to look for you by now, and may miss you if you do not go. One very large and growing Primary Department of which I know collects a penny a week from its members as a Flower Fund. This offering is not compulsory, and I am told seldom averages more than a penny a month from each child, but it is taken every Sunday and laid aside. Then when a Primary child or a Cradle Roll baby is sick, a small bouquet is sent to the home for the little sufferer. Another Superintendent I know sends a flower by some one of the Primary children to the home of the newest Cradle Roll baby; that is, when the child's name is presented this white flower is used in a very pretty exercise of which I will tell you some other time, then given to some child to carry to the baby. Often, the Superintendent tells me, she finds the flower is pressed and laid away with the Certificate as a souvenir for baby by and by.

And then sometimes our Cradle Roll baby is "promoted," and leaves our Primary grades here to enter God's great school over there. We can do no more for the little one, but let us remember the sorrowing family by showing that baby is not forgotten by the Sunday school where his name was enrolled. Go to the home, comfort the sorrowing parents, leave a bouquet of flowers to rest on the little white casket. It may be the moment when the fire burns white hot to mould the parents into the "likeness of God," and you may reap a reward which the world cannot give, neither can it take away. Be always ready to strike, and then the crucial moment will not find you unprepared.

Cordially your Cradle Roll Superintendent,
MRS. F. BULLOCK.
R. F. D. 3, Waverly, Va.

UNOSTENTATIOUS GIVING.
In these days of spectacular giving, when dollars are exchanged for praise, it is good to think of a certain young physician who with his bride left his little New Hampshire village and went to the great Western city where he amassed a fortune, nearly all of which, $5,000,000 in all, he distributed among nearly half a hundred small Christian colleges and a number of hospitals. His millions have caused the deserts of the educational world to rejoice. Not less enduring than his native hills is the character which he wrought out in his own life, and which now breathes and glows in the institutions which he found bleeding by the roadside and left exulting in new strength.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

Holy Bible

THE FINEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD

FOR THE MONEY

This Photograph represents exact size 5½ x 8½ inches

Bound in French Morocco, absolutely flexible, with overlapping covers as shown in this photograph. Has red under gold edges.

—IT CONTAINS—

The Authorized Version of the Old Testament and New Testament

—HAS—

Self-Pronouncing Text

All the proper words being accented and divided into syllables for quick and easy pronunciation.

—IT ALSO CONTAINS—

A New Series of Helps to Bible Study

—INCLUDING—

4000 Questions and Answers
which unfold the Scriptures

31 Beautiful Illustrations
showing scenes and incidents of Bible History

12 Maps of the Bible Lands in Colors

Large Clear Type Fine Paper

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN one year,
$2.50, postpaid.
Or sent alone for $1.50, postpaid.

—ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO—
The Southern Christian Pub. Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. E. M. CARTER, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

E. M. Carter, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson Chairman Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amount brought forward$3,700.48

MONTHLY S. S. OFFERING.

Berea (Norfolk)	$ 1.93
Waverly, Va.	10.00
Shallow Ford	.84
Antioch, Claremont, Ill. ..	7.00
Norfolk, Mem. Temple..	7.26
Wentworth	3.76
Ingram	6.00
Berea (Nansemond) ...	6.29
Suffolk	25.00

SPECIAL.

A Friend	1.00
Sale of calf	3.00
Langdale, Ala.	7.45
Tyler Bolling, work ...	2.00
Work, for horse	1.25
	82.78
	$3,783.26

Last Monday afternoon some representatives of the Graham church and Ladies' Aid Society drove up to our door and unloaded one dozen caps for boys, three dozen stockings and 43 yards of goods for waists and blouses. This is indeed very gratefully received, and we trust that the Lord's richest blessings may attend all those who had any part in giving.

One of the greatest treats we have ever had came to us last Saturday (October 11) when the Sunday school of New Providence (Graham) came on the Orphanage grounds for a picnic. Along with that crowd of big-hearted folks there were brought a number of baskets and boxes, well filled with something good to eat. Shortly after they came—as the rain kept them away till late—these provisions were spread, and when the children had been lined up on each side of the table, a few words of welcome by the Orphanage Superintendent, and the blessing asked by Dr. J. O. Atkinson, all proceeded to do justice to the occasion.

Now, I am sure you have heard of the "fragments" being gathered up, and there were "twelve baskets full." Well, they gave us the privilege of the fragments, and we had enough biscuit for breakfast, thirty-five loaves of bread, and cake enough for Sunday dinner.

From supper we went into the chapel, sang a few songs and were entertained by remarks from Rev. J. F. Morgan, pastor, Bro. Walker, Supt. of the school, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Dr. W. P. Lawrence, Treasurer.

This was by no means the least part of the picnic, for it was thoroughly enjoyed. At the close of the exercise I introduced little Mattie Lee McKenny to the members of the Philathea Class, who assumed the obligation of clothing her. The Baraca Class of this school is clothing one of our large boys.

There was another package of good articles sent to one of our little girls, by her mother and aunt. A gift here and there by those who feel an interest in the work may not mean so much in dollars and cents to the giver, but when they are all counted up here, it means much.

Now, if we can only get the people to look at it that way in getting up the Thanksgiving offering; and I would not forget to mention the monthly Sunday offering.

We are in a position to show a much better side of the work. Quite a number of the people have the impression that I began the work with the institution out of debt. Well, I must say it lacked a lot of it. The first of December last, there was in indebtedness, of bills and accounts, to the amount of $1,881.84; of this amount, to the first of June, I had paid $1,739.09. There is yet due, on these accounts, $119.50. Then while I have been trying to pay these bills, there have accumulated accounts of $740.63; this includes the $119.50. Thus you can see the amount due on bill to November 15. We have borrowed, this year, $725.00 for improvements. Then there was a note due the Jesse Winborn Estate of $300, making a total indebtedness of $1,765.63.

I have collected, since the first of December, $5,530.06; and paid out $4,523.28; then, if I had begun with the institution out of debt, I could have more than paid our expense account. Now, give Brother Cox, the new Superintendent, your hearty support. This is an important work, and needs the assistance of all.

What I have mentioned above does not count it all. The farm is in good condition. We have four horses, ten milch cows; and all the farming implements we began with are here, and some new ones added.

I regret to leave the work, I love it; but I saw the collections were falling off, with all I knew to do; so I thought, not considering my own pleasure, it best to try another man.

I want to express, in these few words, my appreciation for the support of those who have stood by the work with their means; and the merchants, wholesale and retail men, who have so generously and patiently aided me.

Please address all communications to Rev. J. O. Cox, Supt., this will not cause any delay.

Yours for greater success,

E. M. CARTER.

Help your church paper by getting a friend to subscribe for The Christian Sun.

CHILLS AND FEVER
OR ANY FEVER

QUICKLY YIELD IF
TREATED WITH
30 YEARS OF SUCCESS
IN CURING FOLKS

JOHNSON'S
TONIC

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

"Just Like New"

That is what they all say about the ladies' and gentlemen's wearing apparel, the most delicate fabrics, household draperies, portieres, blankets, etc., that are cleaned by our French process.

Moreover, there is nothing to excel our skillful dyeing. We secure uniformity of color and good finish and match colors. The process of dyeing we use does not injure the daintiest fabrics.

We Dye the Most Delicate Shades.

Write to us and get our booklet. It costs you nothing, and it shows the short cut to economy, real money saving. Send a postcard with your name on it, and we will send the book.

COLUMBIA LAUNDRY COMPANY,

106 Fayetteville Street, Greensboro, North Carolina

WINTERSMITH'S
Makes You Immune From
CHILL Malaria
in all its forms. Contains no arsenic or opiates; pleasant to take and harmless, for children as well as adults. Sold and guaranteed by your druggist.
OLDEST AND BEST Arthur Peter & Co., Louisville, Ky., General Agents.

Organize a Band!

or Orchestra

Musicians—
Amateur and Professional

write for our interesting plan for organizing bands and orchestras for public entertainment, Schools, Colleges, Churches and Sunday Schools.

For 37 years we have been manufacturing the famous Buescher Musical Instruments. Our "Tru-Tone" Instruments are known the world over by musicians great and small as the best that money can produce.

Your Instrument Given Free

As organizer of the band or orchestra, we will make you a present of the instrument upon which you perform, the price of this instrument to depend upon the cost and elaborateness of the band or orchestra outfit. This is a unique offer and a rare opportunity. Write at once for full particulars free. Address

BUESCHER BAND INSTRUMENT CO.,
Elkhart, Indiana.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books; Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

Address

Free Round Trip to San Antonio and Free Ten-Acre Farm

Give us 5 to 10 weeks of your spare time and earn a round trip ticket to San Antonio, Texas, (all expenses paid) also a splendid ten-acre chicken, berry, fruit and truck farm. Write today, mentioning this paper. Jay C. Powers & Co., 102 E. Houston St., San Antonio, Texas.

Now is a good time to subscribe.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

Learn Nursing at Home

We positively guarantee to train you to be a Professional Nurse and assist you to positions. Learn at home in your spare time. Write today for our very interesting literature.
National School of Nursing, 331 Lake St., Elmira, N.Y.

NIGHT AIR FALLACY.

The interiors of many homes are breeding places for disease because of the difficulties in the way of and the objection to admitting fresh air. Foul air full of poisonous gases exhaled from the lungs of the inmates is frequently the atmosphere of the home, and it cannot be otherwise when our houses are built to be closed as tightly as possible.

Fresh air today is a recognized remedy for pneumonia and tuberculosis, and it is also known to be a preventive of diseases generally. For this reason it is necessary to make arrangements for obtaining it in every inclosed space used as a shelter. Buildings should be ventilated so that it will be impossible for those who occupy them to rebreathe the air that has been expelled from their lungs.

There seems to be three causes which have contributed to the shut in existence of the human family: Need for warmth and comfort in the winter; fear of night air; necessity during ages past of building a home to withstand attacks of enemies.

Protection against cold has been gained by excluding fresh air. Even in this day, with all our inventions, we cannot produce proper ventilation without losing a large percentage of heat. So the poor, trying to save fuel, making their living rooms as nearly air tight as possible.

In malarial countries millions of people still believe that night air is the carrier of deadly diseases, and they use every means to keep it out of their houses, closing doors and windows as soon as the sun disappears in the west.

Of course the discovery that the mosquito, and not innocent night air, is the carrier of tropical fevers should banish this prejudice. Today it may be stated with authority that man may breathe fresh night air with impunity if he protects himself from insects. Out-door air is much purer in a given locality at night than it is during the day.

Fresh, cold air stimulates and tones up the body and induces healthy sleep, which is normally followed by renewed strength and fresh mental outlook upon life.—Exchange.

THIS WILL INTEREST MANY.

F. W. Parkhurst, the Boston publisher, says that if anyone afflicted with rheumatism in any form, neuralgia or kidney trouble, will send their address to him at 701 Carney Building, Boston, Mass., he will direct them to a perfect cure. He has nothing to sell or give; only tells you how he was cured after search for relief. Hundreds have tested it with success.

Adv.

STOPS TOBACCO HABIT.

Elder's Sanitarium, located at 1017 Main St., St. Joseph, Mo., has published a book showing the deadly effect of the tobacco habit, and how it can be stopped in three to five days.

As they are distributing this book free, anyone wanting a copy should send their names and address at once.

AGENTS WANTED
in every town to sell
Iron Fence

Easy, profitable work for spare time. No capital required. Write for Agency and Free Selling Outfit.
Home Fence Co. 818 MAIN ST., Cincinnati, O.

DR. J. H. BROOKS,
Dentist
Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

NEW SANITARY FEATHER BEDS $7.30 NOW ONLY

Extra weight 36-lbs. 6-lb. Pillows $1.15 per pair. Selected NEW, LIVE, CLEAN SANITARY FEATHERS. BEST FEATHER-PROOF TICKING. Guaranteed as represented or money back. DO NOT BUY feather beds or pillows from any one at any price, until you get the "Book of Truth" our BIG NEW CATALOG—It's FREE—POSTPAID. Get your feather goods, blankets, etc. at money-saving, rock-bottom prices. Direct from America's largest factory to you. Write a postal TODAY.

AMERICAN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 10 NASHVILLE, TENN.
AGENTS WANTED Reference: Broadway National Bank

MORPHINE WHISKEY and TOBACCO
HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARCROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

NEW FEATHER BEDS ONLY $6.50.
Full weight 36 pounds. New, clean and odorless. 6-pound Pillows $1.08 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for FREE catalogue. Address SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 71, Greensboro, N. C. PILLOW CO., Dept. 1005, Greensboro, N. C.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
We desire to correspond with persons who have BOXWOOD TREES OR HEDGES with a view of purchasing the sprays for shipment to be made in November. In replying please state the number of trees or feet of hedge and their height, from which you can cut these sprays. Also mail sample. Reference gladly exchanged.
PITTSBURGH CUT FLOWER COMPANY, No. 121 7th St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.
Trains Leave Raleigh.
Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81	4:35 a. m.
No. 29	Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41	4:10 p. m.
No. 43	6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84	12:48 a. m.
No. 38	11:35 a. m.
No. 66	12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.
J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

NATIONAL CONSERVATION EXPOSITION

Knoxville, Tenn., September 1st to November 1st, 1913.

Southern Railway announces the sale of very low round trip tickets for the above occasion. Tickets will be on sale daily up to November 1st, 1913.

Ask your agent, or write the undersigned for complete information, Pullman reservations, etc.
J. O. JONES,
Traveling Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

GOD'S WORD IN SONG

OUR SONG BOOKS TEACH THE GOSPEL AS FULLY IN SONG AS OUR PREACHERS DO IN SERMON

Flavil Hall F. L. Rowe S.H.Hall

"The Gospel Message in Song"—revised and enlarged—contains 205 of the sweetest and most soul-stirring songs. Words and music of the highest class. The thought of a reformation in song book making prompted its compilation. No other song book like it before it had been published. In it the Gospel is taught as fully in song as loyal disciples endeavor to teach in sermon. Published in round and shaped notes. Out Five years and over 60,000 copies sold. Endorsed by leading men and women in the Christian Church. Beautifully bound and printed.

Prices: 30c a copy prepaid; $3 per doz. not prepaid; $3.50 per doz. prepaid; $20 per hundred not prepaid; 50 at the hundred rate.

"Redemption's Way in Song"—by S. H. Hall, Flavil Hall and F. L. Rowe—especially suited to Evangelistic and Gospel Tent Work. Prices: 15c a copy prepaid; $1.40 per doz. not prepaid; $1.60 a doz. prepaid; $10 per hundred, not prepaid; 50 at hundred rate. Send all orders to

S. H. HALL, 81 Ashby St., Atlanta, Ga.

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.
American Field and Lot Fence. Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries. Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles, Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS
—HIGH CLASS—
DRY GOODS
And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants
MAIN STREET, BURLINGTON, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf."

8 New Editions.
OXFORD Black Face Type Bibles
Pearl 32mo. A wonderful type in a small book.
Nonpareil 24mo. A gem of printing.
Minion 16mo. Model hand Bible.
Brevier 16mo. Large type in small compass.

"To say that a Bible is an Oxford is sufficient. Yet the Oxford keeps on improving. The New Editions will prove a delightful surprise."
—Christian Nation.

ENTIRELY NEW!
Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly."

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

The Scofield Reference Bible

"The Last Word in Bible Editing"

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by
REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.
with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun. $1.50.

WHAT THE PEW MAY DO.

We hear much of an inadequate pulpit, quite a little about abominable choirs, and somewhat now and then concerning unfortunate Church officials. All of this breeds an attitude of disparagement of the public church service which leads inevitably to its neglect and discontinuance as a vigorous institution. Now in a given community the pulpit may be faltering and weak-minded, the choir lacking in worshipful demeanor, and even the officials cold and unworthy. All of that granted, and still you have not taken from the community the possibility of reverent, dignified public worship and a preserved Sabbath. Surely this is true, for surely ultimately it is the people's worship, their service, and its dominant atmosphere theirs to create if they will. After we have talked of preachers and choirs and officials, something may be said about the prepared expectation of the pew.

Given to the individuals of any congregation a burning ideal for all that Church worship should imply, there is indeed a sense in which the service is very really their own to make it or mar it. It is not true that the people cannot acquire this ideal without the aid first of a strong pulpit and a developed Church organization. There is always the open Book, with its suggestions of the significance and value of public worship even for today. The Hebrew devotional experience was performed with many of its aspects seemingly universal in application. And, reading it, the necessity one is impelled to is not the necessity of a good preacher or of a choir of certain characteristics, but the necessity of a people's preparedness—if their impulsion to be together waiting upon God. Where that is, the service must follow, whether in spite of or merely aided and directed by preacher and choir.

There is a very definite tendency, when the preacher fails or the choir fails or the officials fail, for the people to fail also. And this is neither necessary nor right. A prepared expectation on the part of the pew may yet save many an unfortunate situation and make religion and the Sabbath a holy thing in many a community.—Christian Guardian.

We have fallen upon better times. There can be no doubt of this. One of the most interesting and largely visited booths at our Fairs this Fall was the Board of Health's exhibit, and rivaling if not surpassing this was that of the Anti-Saloon League's exhibit. The side shows, ballet dances, snake-eaters and the rest were not in the class with these for numbers of visitors and admirers. The people's tastes have changed. For that much let us be thankful and take courage.

On October 8 the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago confirmed an Indiana court ruling which prohibits the sale in Indiana of catsup and pickles that contain benzoate of soda. The court holds that a State may, if it will, prohibit the use of this ingredient in foodstuffs.

ECZEMA BOOK FREE.

The National Skin Hospital, located at 121 Main Street, St. Joseph, Mo., who treat skin diseases, only, have published a book of more than sixty pages which they are mailing free to anyone writing for it. It has many colored plates showing the different forms of skin diseases and tells how they can be treated at home. Anyone interested should write for it at once.

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads,
Bill Heads,
Statements,
Envelopes
Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

The Southern Christian Publishing Company,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

FEVERISHNESS AND ACHING
Whether from Malarious conditions, Colds or over-heating, try Hicks' CAPUDINE. It reduces the fever and relieves the aching. It's liquid—10, 25 and 50 cents at Drug Stores

CANCER

FREE TREATISE
The Leach Sanatorium, Indianapolis, Ind., has published a booklet which gives interesting facts about the cause of Cancer, also tells what to do for pain, bleeding, odor, etc. Write for it today, mentioning this paper.

COUGHS

Hard coughs, old coughs, tearing coughs, deep coughs, all kinds of coughs. Go to your doctor, he knows best, and ask him about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Sold for 75 years.

J. C. Ayer Co.,
Lowell, Mass.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of higher education fostered by the Southern Christian Convention.

MODERN IN EQUIPMENT, Steam Heat, Electric Lights, Baths, Sewerage, Elegant New Buildings.

A HIGH GRADE INSTITUTION whose graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great American Universities without examination.

MAINTAINS EXCELLENT MUSIC, Art, Elocution, Normal, and Preparatory Departments.

A FACULTY OF SEVENTEEN SPECIALISTS, with a successful record of twenty-three years behind it.

HAS ALL THE ADVANTAGES of city life with none of its disadvantages. Situated in the delightful hill country of North Carolina, famed for its healthfulness, pure water, and high moral tone.

ELON COLLEGE HAS DONE MORE to build up the Christian Church than any institution ever yet commissioned by our people.

TERMS VERY MODERATE. $141 to $191 per session of ten school months.

For catalogue or other information, address,

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, Elon College, N. C.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLE

LARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10 1/2 x 12 1/2 in.

Contains in addition to the Authorized Old and New Testaments, all the Sayings of Christ in Red; The Temple Library at Nippur; Names and Order of the Books of the Bible; Maps of Bible Lands; Pronouncing Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names; Comparative Systems of Scripture Chronology; History of the Period from the Close of the Sacred Canon of the Old Testament until the Times of the New Testament; Illuminated Marriage Certificate and Family Record; Chronological Index to the Bible; Concordance; Full-Page Dore Pictures, Half-Tones and in Colors, etc.

No. 820 P. R. L. Bound in IMITATION OF LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Gilt Titles, Marbled Edges. (Weight, 12 lbs.) $2.10

No. 822 P. R. L. Bound in SEMBLE LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Full Gilt Sides and Back, Gilt Edges. (Weight, 13 lbs.) 2.85

No. 823 P. R. L. Bound in AMERICAN MOROCCO, Padded Sides, Rounded Corners on Cover, Gold Side & Back Titles, Gold Edges. (Weight, 15 lbs.) 5.00

HOLMAN RED LETTER SELF-PRONOUNCING

TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red. New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5 1/2 x 7 3/4 inches.

THE TYPE.
23 The Bāb-ŷ-lō-ni-an, and all the Chāl-dē-an, Pē-kōd, and Shō-ā, and Kō-ā, and all the Ās-sŷr-i-an with

No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges $2.50

No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges 3.00

Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENT

SELF-PRONOUNCING

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Daintiest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2 1/2 x 4 1/4 inches.

THE TYPE.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the

No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges50

No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms75

Postage, 3 Cents.

No. 013 R. L.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

CONSIDER THIS.

A hard fight was made in a Southern state against the "whiskey devil." It resulted in a deficit of $5,000, of which we have paid $3,000. To wipe out the remaining indebtedness I am willing to donate the entire amount of $2,000 in good religious books. Do yourself a good service and help a worthy cause by ordering one or more today. Brother, I am counting on you; do not fail me.

Here is the list:

Culpepper's Sermons. Remarkable messages	$1.00
Some Women I Have Known.
Rev. J. B. Culpepper	.75
The Key to the Situation.
Rev. J. B. Culpepper	.10
The Renewed Earth. Rev. L.
L. Pickett	1.00
The Blessed Hope of His Glorious Appearing, Pickett	1.25
Leaves from the Tree of Life, Pickett	1.00
Our Choice, a fine new song book, Gabriel	.25
White Robes and Spiritual Feasts, G. D. Watson	1.00
The Heavenly Life, G. D. Watson	1.00
Steps to the Throne, G. D. Watson	1.00
Love Abounding	1.25
The Last Times, Rev. Jos. A. Seiss	1.25

These are splendid and very helpful books. Order some of them today of Rev. L. L. PICKETT, St. Augustine, Fla.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION IN 1914

Seven college presidents and a number of college instructors, including ex-President Taft, will contribute to The Youth's Companion during 1914.

Then there is Gene Stratton Porter, whose stories of Indiana woods and swamps have made her famous, and Kate Douglas Wiggin, who never wrote a dull line in her life, and Mrs. Burton Harrison, who remembers when conversation was really an art as practiced in Washington and in the manor houses of Virginia. And this is just a beginning of the list.

If you know The Companion, you have a pretty clear idea of what is in store for next year's readers. If you do not know, ask us to send you sample copies—for instance, those containing the opening chapters of Arthur Stannard Pier's fine serial—"His Father's Son." Full Announcement for 1914 will be sent with the sample copies.

For the year's subscription of $2.00 there is included The Companion Practical Home Calendar for 1914, and all the issues of the paper for the remaining weeks of 1913, dating from the time the subscription is received.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION,
144 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass.
New Subscriptions Received at this Office.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

AUCTION SALE

75-Choice Residence Lots-75

Elon College, N. C.

Friday, Oct. 31, 2:30 p.m.

This will truly be a golden opportunity, a chance of a life-time to own one of these valuable building lots almost in the shadow of Elon College.

This property will rapidly enhance in value so You had better look ahead and Prosper than to look behind and Regret.

ELON COLLEGE is one of the best as well as widely known colleges in the South and you cannot make a mistake by investing a few dollars in real estate near a school like this. If you appreciate location, conveniences and community welfare

It Will Pay You To Attend This Sale

This will be an Auction Sale in every sense of the word; every lot offered will be sold to the highest bidder, regardless of price. The sale will begin promptly Friday, October 31st, on the grounds, by Thomas Bros. Realty & Auction Co., of Greensboro.

TERMS: One-third cash, one-third in six months and balance in twelve months, with interest on deferred payments. Two per cent discount for cash on deferred payments.

One Free Lot and Several Valuable Cash Prizes

will be given to the parties present on day of sale holding the lucky card. Remember this date and don't fail to attend.

Central Loan & Trust Company

Burlington, North Carolina

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months..... .75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Cheek.

Near Long's Chapel, Alamance Co., N. C., Oct. 13, 1913, at the age of 71 years, 9 months and 25 days, Mary J. Cheek, wife of George W. Cheek. The husband, two children, three brothers and one sister are in sadness because of her death. She had been a member of Long's Chapel since its organization. Aunt Mary was loved by all who knew her, and she will be greatly missed in the community. Funeral and burial services at Long's Chapel conducted by Rev. J. W. Holt.

J. W. HOLT.

Mann.

Mrs. W. B. Mann, nee Miss Phoebe Harward, was born in Granville Co., N. C., in the year 1850 and died in Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 1, 1913, aged 63 years.

Sister Mann was an excellent Christian woman. She professed faith in Christ early in life and united with the Baptist church, but after marriage she transferred her membership to the Christian church with her husband.

The funeral services were conducted from the home, corner of Newbern avenue and Wilmington street, Raleigh, N. C., on the afternoon of October 2, 1913, and the interment was in Oakwood cemetery. The eulogy delivered by Rev. W. G. Clements, who had known Sister Mann for a quarter of a century, was beautiful. Her life was one of true service and her end triumphant. A faithful companion, a devoted mother, a charitable neighbor and an exemplary Christian has passed from her labors here to rest beyond. While the husband, the daughter and the brother and sister feel greatly their loss, they are comforted with the hope of the meeting above.

C. E. NEWMAN.

October 15, 1913.

Crocker.

Suffolk, Va., Oct. 15.—Mrs. Lottie Crocker, wife of W. Joseph Crocker, died suddenly early this morning at about 1 o'clock at her home on Franklin street, after an illness of a few hours, being in excellent health and spirits, apparently up to the time she was stricken, between 10 and 11 o'clock. All that skill of physicians or attention of loved ones could do was unavailing. Mrs. Crocker growing steadily worse until the end came a little after 1 o'clock.

She was a woman of unusually fine character and a devoted wife and mother. The news of her death today came as a shock to her friends and relatives.

A Genuine Rupture Cure Sent on Trial to Prove It Don't Wear a Truss Any Longer

After Thirty Years' Experience I Have Produced An Appliance for Men, Women and Children That Actually Cures Rupture. Ten Reasons Why

You Should Send for Brooks Rupture Appliance

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market to-day, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.
6. The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.
7. There is nothing about it to get foul, and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.
8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.
9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.
10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon to-day.

The above is C. E. Brooks, inventor of the Appliance, who cured himself and who has been curing others for over 30 years. If ruptured, write him today at Marshall, Mich.

Pennsylvania Man Thankful

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on; it just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot, no matter what position I was in.

It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers. I am, Yours very sincerely,

JAMES A. BRITTON.
80 Spring St., Bethlehem, Pa.

Confederate Veteran Cured

Commerce, Ga., R. F. D. No. 11.

Mr. C. E. Brooks,

Dear Sir:—I am glad to tell you that I am now sound and healthy and well and can plough or do any heavy work. I can say your Appliance has effected a permanent cure. Before getting your Appliance I was in a terrible condition and had given up all hope of ever being any better. If it hadn't been for your Appliance I would never have been cured. I am sixty-eight years old and served three years in Eckle's Artillery, Oglethorpe Co. I hope God will reward you for the good you are doing for suffering humanity.

Yours sincerely,

H. D. BANKS.

Others Failed but the Appliance Cured

C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—Your Appliance did all you claim for the little boy and more, for it cured him sound and well. We let him wear it for about a year in all, although it cured him three months after he had begun to wear it. We had tried several other remedies and got no relief, and I shall certainly recommend it to friends, for we surely owe it to you.

Yours respectfully,

WM. PATTERSON.
No. 717 S. Main St., Akron, O.

Cured at the Age of 76

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—I began using your Appliance for the cure of rupture (I had a pretty bad case) I think in May, 1905. On November 20, 1905, I quit using it. Since that time I have not needed or used it. I am well of rupture and rank myself among those cured by the Brooks Discovery, which considering my age, 76 years, I regard as remarkable.

Very sincerely yours,

SAM A. HOOVER.
Jamestown, N. C.

Child Cured in Four Months

21 Jansen St., Dubuque, Iowa.

Brooks Rupture Appliance Co.

Gentlemen:—The baby's rupture is altogether cured thanks to your Appliance, and we are so thankful to you. If we could only have known of it sooner our little boy would not have had to suffer near as much as he did. He wore your brace a little over four months and has not worn it now for six weeks.

Yours very truly,

ANDREW EGGENBERGER.

Remember

I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail to-day.

Free Information Coupon

C. E. Brooks, 1261B State St., Marshall, Mich.
Please send me by mail in plain wrapper your illustrated book and full information about your Appliance for the cure of rupture.

Name

City

R. F. D. State

ANOTHER ARGUMENT FOR THE CHURCH SCHOOL.

The recently elected head of the new Chair of Oriental Culture in Harvard is Professor Anesaki, of Japan, and he is a Buddhist—another conclusive argument in favor of Church schools, Mr. Carnegie to the contrary notwithstanding.

She is survived by her husband, W. Joseph Crocker; one daughter, Miss Bernice Crocker; two little sons, Lotzia and William Crocker; her mother, Mrs. E. C. Lotzia; one sister, Mrs. C. B. Leet of Washington, D. C., and one brother, John F. Lotzia of Suffolk.

Mrs. Crocker spent yesterday among her flowers, and callers yesterday afternoon and last evening found her in her usual bright spirits.

The funeral will be conducted at the Christian church Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Dr. W. W. Staley. The body will be interred in Cedar Hill cemetery.

Mrs. E. C. Lotzia, mother of Mrs. Crocker, and Mrs. C. B. Leet, her sister, and other out of town relatives arrived this afternoon. Mrs. Crocker was the daughter of the late John F. Lotzia, a brave Confederate veteran, and a native of Suffolk.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., OCTOBER 29, 1913

NO. 44

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Building from the Foundation.

The Catholics have recently completed in New York City a high school building costing $500,000. This makes forty-one such schools owned by the Catholics in that city, and 12,000 new pupils can be received and accommodated. In these schools only the Catholic Bible will be read and taught and the Catholic faith inculcated. This is the way Catholicism grows—it begins at the beginning, teaches the child—and secures the family in its faith. Protestants may well learn lessons of worth even from their Catholic foes.

Rescued.

A miner, entombed from an explosion in a Pennsylvania mine, was rescued October 4 after being buried eight days. He was little the worse for his experience, though worn from want of food and drink. A wife and four children, who had been almost frantic with grief, were rejoiced beyond measure when husband and father was returned to them in safety. It was a reunited and a grateful family. One is reminded by such incidents of the inspired words, "There is more joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth than over ninety and nine just persons who need no repentance."

Desperately Wicked.

The papers tell of a man in Taylorsport, Ky., who saved a man from drowning. Later the rescued man approached his rescuer and asked if he was the man who had saved him (the speaker). Being answered in the affirmative, the saved man drew his revolver and murdered the man who had rescued him. Desperately wicked, you say. Heartless, in very truth. Maybe the man was insane. But what about the treatment that thousands of men manifest toward Jesus Christ who even laid down His life to rescue them? They crucify Christ anew, and betray the Man who did most of all for them.

A Suicide's Confession.

A New York paper tells of a student, with a well thumbed copy of Schopenhaven's pessimistic philosophy on his table, who committed suicide after he had written this note: "I do not believe in what you call religion or in any God. I am the most radical atheist in the world and don't want any religious or charitable society to take any interest in my burial." A victim of insanity, you say? But are not all those who deny God, and refuse to believe in religion, more or less insane? Can any man with a sane and sober mind, with the power and manifestation of God all about him, deny religion and disbelieve God? We doubt it. "The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God." No one else can say it.

Women and Missions.

Everywhere the women are being awakened to their privilege in helping evangelize the world. The women of the Episcopal Church reported at the Convention in New York last week one hundred and fifty of their number, whom they are supporting, on the foreign field. Besides their regular offerings for the support of these the women made a special contribution of $307,500 at the Convention for the general work. The women of the Southern Christian Convention are becoming aroused to their opportunities, and it will not surprise us if they have on the field some of their own number in less than a decade. May God speed the event, long since due.

The Cattle of the Hills.

We do not give to church and charity because God needs either us or our gifts. We give because we need God, and we need to make the gifts. The cattle upon a thousand hills are His and these He could use if need be, to carry His message, or slay for sacrifice. The gold in a thousand mines, the silver hidden in the secret places, diamonds and gems stored in the silent, secret places are His. All these He could use—if it were good for us. But He has provided some better way for us that through us His power and righteousness might be manifest, thus making us co-workers with Him, and joint-heirs of His glory. That we may give of our means is a provision of grace and goodness.

Revising the Schedule.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad which operates two thousand trains every day of the week, after a series of appalling accidents and fatalities of late, has had to revise its schedules. The time for through trains from New York to Boston has been lengthened from six to twenty minutes. In short, this Railroad whose sole purpose has been to make time (and money) has found it necessary to make safety and security to life and limb first consideration. Many a man in business and in morals has had, not infrequently, to make similar revision. It is well enough to go fast, sometimes; but to be safe is better. Fortunate is the man who can go fast and be safe.

The Wrong Record.

It is not becoming in a Christian to boast of what he has done, or has not done. It is the part of a true Christian to look to Christ, not to himself, for safety and salvation. The papers tell us that this was found as an epitaph on an Egyptian mummy: "I have done good upon earth. I honored my mother. I loved my father. I was loved by my brothers and sisters. I was a friend to the weak. I collected corn for the poor, I gave clothes to the naked. I have not harbored prejudice. I have not said an evil word against anyone." This question is asked, "Could a modern man desire or deserve a nobler record?" If not, there would not be much desired or deserved. We do not save ourselves by our strength, good works, or kind deeds. If we are saved, it will be not because of what we have done, but because of what the Man Jesus Christ has done through us. In Him is life and light. Without Him our works are vain. We are in a world of sin, a world in which we must have the strength of Another if we are to be saved.

A CAKE NOT TURNED.

There comes to my mind while I write just such a man. He lives as utterly without God as if God were dead. He is a husband and a father; but he and his wife and children sit at their table and partake of their food, so far as gratitude is concerned, precisely as animals might eat. The name of Christ is never heard in the house except to round a joke or emphasize an oath. This man is without God and without hope. He lives for this life alone. His only god is business. The most important part of his nature is utterly neglected. The faculties which would give him kinship with angels and God lie absolutely dormant. He is defrauding himself of his possible heritage as a child of God and an heir of heaven. He is robbing his home of the sunlight of Christ's presence. He is a cake not turned. One side of his nature is scorched by the friction of the world's cares, and the other is raw dough.

The world has claims upon men of wealth among us. Great possessions involve corresponding responsibility, and the intellect that is used in acquiring ought also to be used in wisely distributing. God will not hold him guiltless who amasses great wealth for personal gratification or family aggrandizement. The wants of ten thousand needy enterprises demand recognition. Only he whose nature is symmetrically developed under the guiding influence of Christ—who came not to be ministered unto but to minister, who came to rule by serving, who came to be King by being the lowliest of all, who came to give life by his death—only as men's lives are modelled by his example can they truly live and triumphantly die.—Robert Stuart MacArthur.

Prosperity is a painted window, which shuts out much of the clear light of God, and only when the blue, and the crimson, the golden tinge are removed, is the glass restored to its full transparency. Adversity thus takes away tinge, and color, and dimness, and we see our God far better than before, if our eyes are prepared for the light.—Spurgeon.

It has been said that courtesy is to the daily intercourse of life what fragrance is to a flower. It ought to be just as steady, as unconscious, as gently pervasive as that—and it is just as certain to be noticed and appreciated as the rich perfume of a Jacqueminot or the delicious scent of a lily.—Great Thoughts.

May I hurt nobody by word or deed, but all day long be good to others, as Thou, dear Lord, hast been most kind to me.

EDITORIAL

THE NEXT REVIVAL.

If we of the Christian Church mean business, mean to do our part in saving souls and redeeming men, the next revival amongst us must be a revival of interest in religious literature. I am neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet; but I wish with all my heart that you, my readers, believed I were both, for then I feel sure you would read with patience, and heed this message. Now, are you going to let me present it again, and give heed while I present? The next revival in our Christian churches, and in the churches around us, must be a revival of interest in religious literature. I dared to say once before that what THE CHRISTIAN SUN needed was readers; that it was hungering and thirsting for readers. Let me repeat that, but in different form, and say that what you, my brethren, need, is to read THE CHRISTIAN SUN; and what other church people need, is to read their church paper; and what all of us need, is to read more religious literature and read less irreligious literature.

Now I believe in books and pamphlets and magazines and weekly papers and daily papers and county papers and city papers. Don't forget that I believe in these; but what I don't believe in is that it shall profit us anything to read these, and meditate upon them, and their contents, to the neglect of church papers and religious literature. People read all right. Most of us read quite enough, such as it is. We find time to read; we take time to read. The question with us is as to what we read while we are reading.

My claim is that we don't care particularly about religious literature any more. Not half the people even in Christian homes care any more, if they ever cared at all, about literature of a religious nature. Not half the people in Christian homes spend a half hour,—I doubt if half the people in Christian homes spend fifteen minutes a week—reading their church paper, or their Bible, or any other religious print. We don't care any more. I may be mistaken, but I say we don't care in particular either about what we read, or what others about us read.

Do preachers care? Do pastors care in particular what they read, or, what is more to the point, do they care anything about what those whose religious life they are seeking to mould, read? Since when have we preached from our pulpits about having in the home good books, Bible reading, and the church paper? And yet the lack of these is doing more to hinder and restrain us in our work than any other one thing about us.

I can prove this. We go to our pulpits Sunday morning and preach to the people about Jesus, about heaven, about righteousness. Out from the churches the people pour in lively currents to their homes. Arriving at their homes they plunge their minds, their thoughts, their meditations, not into the sermon they have heard, nor into the matter of religion at all, but most likely into their secular paper, possibly a light book, or the current happenings of the time. Do you think the thought of the sermon will remain long with the person who spends all the rest of the Sabbath day in secular pursuits, the rest of the week in reading secular papers, and reads nothing of a religious nature? I do not. We must never forget that we are living in a busy and a crowded time. This time calls for action. In order to get a man to live the religious life, do his part of the religious work, you have got to lodge in his mind the religious idea and keep it there—you have got to keep before his mind religious thoughts, thoughts of Christian activity. It is not sufficient to suggest to a person a religious thought; you have got to keep on suggesting it to him.

Secular pursuits crowd. The easiest thing in the world is to crowd the mind with events and issues that fill the world of daily activity. A murder in some awful manner is far more exciting, absorbing, interesting than an ordinary event, than the facts of sobriety, honor, justice, mercy. Murders are always different, crime is different, suicide is different, divorces are different, quarrels and fights and disgraces are always different. So you just read about these without energy, effort, or concern. And you and your children think your secular paper much better, much more to be read, much brighter and more sparkling and sprightly than your church paper. There are people in plenty amongst us who think that THE CHRISTIAN SUN is dull and dry and insipid; and that their daily paper is bright, witty and full of vivid interest and delightful detail. They are not aware of the fact that passing events of a sensual, sordid, sensational sort excite the mind without enlarging or enlightening it, and that moral and religious topics are even smooth, ordinary, commonplace. Secular pursuits crowd and occupy and engage the mind, and take the time, but moral and religious thoughts, ideas and ideals are crowded out.

I asked a man recently to subscribe for THE CHRISTIAN SUN. He was an active member of a church, his wife was. Both had been reared in Christian homes where the church paper had been a regular visitor. His reply was that he had no time in the world to read it. He was a farmer, worked hard every day; when dinner time came he was bound to read his daily paper a little to keep up with what was going on; when night came he was tired and sleepy and could not read. When I reminded him that he had his moral and religious life to look after, he replied that he tried to go to church at least once a month and tried to read his Bible some every Sunday evening. This man represents a great, and, I believe, a constantly growing class. Secular events crowd into the life and fill it; moral and religious thoughts and activities receive a minimum of time and consideration. It may have been harder fifty or a hundred years ago to win a man to Christ than now; but I believe it never was as hard as now to keep men won to Christ. Secular pursuits bombard a man every hour, almost every minute of his waking time, and then crowd and clamor for his time and energy and strength.

The point I am coming at is this: If we of the Christian church are to do our part in saving the men and women, the boys, girls and homes about us, we must seek more than we are doing to crowd their minds and hearts with moral and religious ideals, thoughts, facts, meditations. We have got not merely to announce from our pulpits on Sunday a moral and religious thought and theme, but we shall have to do more than we are doing to bombard their minds and meditations afterwards with religious thoughts and suggestions. Here are all of our benevolent interests at stake—our Christian colleges, our Orphanage, our Home and Foreign Missions. We have got to manage in some way to bombard the minds of the people with repeated thoughts and suggestions of these things. Do you want to know why people are not doing more for missions than they are? I can tell you. They are not hearing enough about missions. They are not being bombarded with the missionary idea. Before people will do for things you have got to get people to think about things. And the only way to get people to think about things in our time is to keep constantly, eternally, everlastingly before their minds the idea and the thought of the thing desired to be done. The only way on this earth to get people actively interested in any benevolent work is to get them to thinking about that work, bombard their minds with the thought, idea and suggestion of that work. What, beloved, are we doing to fill the horizon of our people with thoughts, suggestions, ideas of our benevolent enterprises? In order to beat down the rising tide of secularism, to stay the evil hand of sensual and sensational pursuits is to swing into the flood a continuous volume of moral and religious thoughts and ideas.

I want to declare then that the battle of the religious press is the battle of the church in our time, and in the time just ahead. There is not a benevolent enterprise connected with the church but that would receive new impulse and quickened life if the religious periodical could have wider circulation and closer reading. These benevolent enterprises do lag and lack and suffer today, because secular papers, secular ideas, secular reading, secular thoughts crowd our mind and time and thought. I wish I could get the ear and the heart, the sympathy and the patience of our ministry for just a brief moment. I would say to them, and I know I would be telling them the plain and everlasting truth, that the reason why their sermons are not having any more effect than they are is because those who hear them begin filling their minds and thoughts within an hour afterwards with secular literature and secular pursuits and suggestions from secular print. Let the preacher understand that the religious press is now facing the greatest crisis and the hardest fight of all its history and let the minister understand that this fight is his fight; for I say it in all candor, if the religious press can't stand the pressure the Christian pulpit will have to go down beneath the rising tide of secularism of our time. This question of the religious press is a question we have tried to shove off on the editor or publisher from time to time. Sirs, this is not an editor's fight; it is a conflict between religious thought and secular thought; between Christian activity and sensual activity; between religion and irreligion. I want to lay bear this issue in its true light. The time has come when the fight of the religious press is the fight of the Christian pulpit. If you can't get people to read religious literature you can't get them to have many religious thoughts and if you can't get people to have religious thoughts, I do well know you can't get them to religious activity.

Why are our Conference claims hard to raise? Why are our people hard to bend to religious movements? There can be but one answer. They are not thinking on these things; they are not reading about them; they are not thinking over them. Other things, secular pursuits, secular literature, secular thoughts fill their minds. The sermon last Sunday on missions was fine. They said so. They grasped the preacher by the hand just after and thanked him. But here is the real test. How much time the coming hours, weeks or months will they think about missions, read about missions, do for missions? Not much I fancy. In order to get people to move for missions you must get people to not only applaud a sermon on missions, but to read about missions and think about missions, and then they will give to and pray for missions. People will do what they think about. Unless we can get them to think more on missions they will not do more for missions.

The fundamental idea in this matter, and of our time is to get the thought of a thing in the mind of a thinker. Then comes the deed.

I declare to you that religious publication, religious literature, religious reading, is the foundation stone on which our enterprises are built. No church can rise any higher in the tide of its religious activity than is the current of its religious literature. That never was as true as it is today. Give the Christian church a better literature, send it into more homes, get more people to read it, bombard more minds with its presence and its thought, and you will see a quickened life, a redoubled activity along all lines such as you never witnessed before. The religious press is not the pulpit; but it is the right arm of the pulpit. Today that right arm is largely paralyzed because the secular press is supplanting the religious, and secular reading takes the place of religious reading, and secular thoughts crowd to take possession of our mind and heart.

Secular literature is crowding to death the religious press, and I declare to you that the ministers and Christian laity stand by in silent, not to say stubborn, indifference while the deadly work goes on. What are we going to do about it? Shall we not have a care? Shall not some steps be taken to get our people to care more for religious literature, their church paper, the Bible, good books?

The time is upon us, and is ripe. If the church is to win out in this conflict, it must now fight the battle of the religious press, bombard the minds of a busy people with thoughts of salvation, evangelization, truth, peace and righteousness. We repeat, the next revival must be a revival of interest in religious literature.

CROWDING GOD OUT.

There is no other way to put it—they are crowding God out. The Bible lies on the book stand, or on a shelf under the table, but it is dust-covered and seldom read. The family gathers at the table three times a day and partakes of God's bounty and blessings, but not a member thereof lifts his heart or voice to the Giver of gifts to thank Him for His blessing. The members of the family eat breakfast in a hurry, go to their work in a hurry, come to dinner in a hurry, back to their business in a hurry, again home in a hurry, worn and weary, or off for an evening of pleasure-seeking.

Such people act as if God were not, and as if this life were all, and that they would not have to appear before Him in the judgment.

How short-sighted, how blind, how simple such people act. God lives and is in His world; He rules and reigns and governs and gives. From Him cometh every good gift and perfect. And yet there are thousands who act as if He were asleep or were dead or did not exist. This is not only ingratitude, it is sin; it is not only indifference, it is folly. We may and do forget God and act as if He did not exist, but He never forgets us and ever cares for us.

Life may be very full and duties may multiply, but when we crowd God out we do so to our own hurt, and to the danger of our own souls. Don't get so busy as to crowd God out. You can't afford it.

The heavens declare the glory of God, and so does the earth. Hence it is the business of His messengers to link his message through His word to His message through the world. The heavens, the Book, the world, all have a message for us and we should keep our minds and hearts open ready to receive it.

There is enough religion in the world, but so much of it is the wrong sort. What the world needs is the religion of Christ, the religion of love and sympathy and suffering and fellowship. It is not religion we need as much as it is Christianity.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Dr. N. G. Newman is delighted with the kindness of the people and the congenial atmosphere at Defiance. He is to write for THE SUN from time to time, to the delight of the editor and readers generally.

—Elon College church is to try the duplex envelope system of collections for missions and current expenses of the church the coming conference year, and a pastor has been engaged to occupy the college pulpit every Sunday.

—The Sunday school at Elon College is no small factor in the moral and religious life of the school and the village; and we doubt if any school has a more efficient, earnest, and wide-awake Superintendent than is Dr. Amick.

—Rev. J. P. Barrett, D. D., Editor Herald of Gospel Liberty, Dayton, Ohio, has been a pleasant and welcome visitor at Elon College the past few days on his way to the Eastern Virginia Conference. The Doctor is in fine health, his friends are glad to know.

—Secretary Denison sends us an abstract of the proceedings of the Mission Board meeting recently held at Dayton. Our readers who desire to know the transactions and policy of the Board should read carefully the abstract which is printed elsewhere this issue.

—The Christian Endeavor World has enrolled 29,974 in its "Tenth Legion"—those who have pledged themselves to give a tenth of their incomes to the extension of the kingdom. We wonder how many readers of THE SUN are members of this "Tenth Legion."

—"Aunt" Helen Winborne, widow of the late lamented Jesse Winborne, and a friend of Elon College and the Orphanage, has been a pleasant and welcome visitor at the College for a week. Her hosts of friends are glad to greet her here. Like her lamented husband, she takes a deep interest in all church enterprises.

—Have you considered the matter of tithing the coming Conference year—giving one-tenth of all you make to the support of the gospel, the extension of the kingdom and the salvation of men? If you have not, are you living up to your privilege as a Christian, and are you doing your duty as clearly taught in the Bible? It is worth considering.

—Rev. A. B. Kendall, D. D., in beginning his two weeks' evangelistic services at Burlington week before last, issued attractive leaflets and scattered them among the people by way of reminder and invitation. The reading was: Wanted! We want you to know that you, and every other person in Burlington, have a special invitation to attend the revival services at the Christian Church, beginning Sunday evening, October 12th, and continuing every evening at 7:30, with the exception of Saturday evening, for two weeks." On the outside of the folded leaflet were the words, What shall it profit a man to gain the whole world and lose his own soul? It was, withal, an attractive advertisement, and we have no doubt did good.

—We sometimes wish they would teach spelling in the colleges and universities. There is need somewhere. We received, not a hundred years since, a brief letter from a college graduate, and for "privilege" we found it spelled "privilidge"; for "coming" we found it "comming"; for "meeting" it was "meetting." Ever think how much ink, space and time were lost in poor spelling? Misspelled words are almost always spelled in some longer and more difficult way. We recently heard of a speller who had "coffee" strung out in this fashion, "kaughphy"—thereby leaving out every correct letter in the word. It detracts from the power, as it does from the purity, of any word to miss-spell it. Dictionaries are plentiful and cheap.

NEWS AND VIEWS.

—Between 230 and 280 miners were entombed in a mine, from explosion, near Dawson, N. M., October 22.

—Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks, wife of former Vice-President Fairbanks, died at her home in Indianapolis, of pneumonia, October 24.

—Governor Felker of New Hampshire has not yet given up the notorious Harry Thaw that he may be returned to Matteawan insane asylum.

—The United States government has sent a note to the other governments of the world warning them to keep hands off of Mexico in her present difficulties.

—The barracks of the Horner Military school at Oxford, N. C., were burned to the ground in the night of October 23. The loss was heavy, and there is widespread sympathy for Principal Horner at his great loss.

—Polk Miller, for years the inimitable entertainer with negro songs, jokes and the banjo, is dead. He was exceedingly popular in all parts of the country, and his unexpected going away is lamented. Richmond, Va., was his home, and he was 69 years of age.

—Delegates from thirty foreign countries and from all over this country attended last week and this, the triennial world's convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at New York. Congressman Hobson of Alabama was the principal speaker at a great Temperance Rally in Brooklyn Sunday p. m.

—The National Council of Congregational Churches in session at Kansas City, Mo., the past week went on record in favor of an amendment to the Constitution prohibiting the manufacture, sale, importation or exportation of intoxicating liquors. The vote was 517 for, 14 against, Governor Baldwin of Connecticut leading the opposition. That the United States should have, and will have, this amendment seems to be a growing sentiment.

NOTICE.

To Ministers and Other Friends:—

We are anxious to secure the names and address of all families represented in the Christian Church within the bounds of the Southern Christian Convention in particular, who should take THE CHRISTIAN SUN, but do not. To this end we addressed a letter, with ample blanks and stamped envelope for reply, to all our pastors last week, requesting that they send us names of persons in their pastorates, who should take THE SUN, but do not. Will not any and all who read this notice kindly send us such names, as we desire to interest them in their church paper. Don't fear that too many names will be sent. In reply to our request, the following pastors have already responded with long lists, which we appreciate, and urge others to do likewise at earliest possible date: Rev. H. W. Elder, Rev. I. W. Johnson, Rev. J. D. Wicker, Rev. W. H. Denison, Rev. H. E. Rountree, Rev. J. F. Morgan, Rev. A. W. Andes, Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Rev. A. N. McAbee, Rev. E. D. Short, Rev. P. T. Klapp, Rev. W. T. Walters, Rev. J. H. Hughes, Rev. A. F. Iseley, Rev. C. H. Rowland, Rev. W. D. Harward, Rev. R. H. Peel, Rev. L. I. Cox, Rev. W. C. Wicker, Rev. J. C. Stuart, Rev. T. E. White, Rev. H. H. Butler, Rev. H. Scholz, Rev. J. W. Holt, Rev. G. O. Lankford, Rev. W. L. Wells, Rev. W. H. Garman, Rev. G. D. Hunt, Rev. R. L. Williamson, Rev. J. D. Dollar, Rev. C. M. Dollar, Rev. S. B. Klapp, Rev. J. V. Knight, Rev. Thos. W. Strowd, Rev. A. T. Banks, Rev. B. J. Earp, Rev. C. E. Newman.

FROM OUR CONTRIBUTORS

ANNUAL MISSION BOARD PROCEEDINGS.

BY REV. W. H. DENISON, SECRETARY, NORFOLK, VA.

The Mission Board of the Christian Church met in its annual session in the C. P. A. Chapel, Dayton, Ohio, Thursday, October 9th, 1913, and closed its session Wednesday evening, October 15, 1913.

All members of the Board were present almost throughout the entire session. The following persons were present at times during the session: Rev. Clarke P. Garman, Missionary to Japan; Rev. D. P. Barrett, Missionary to Porto Rico; Rev. J. P. Barrett, D. D., Rev. Emily K. Bishop, Rev. S. Q. Helfenstein, D. D., Rev. McD. Howsare, Mr. Netum Rathbun, Reverend and Mrs. William Williams, Mrs. O. W. Powers, Miss Lu Emma Hess.

The minutes of the Mission Council proceedings and the correspondence votes were read and approved.

It was voted that the brethren of the C. P. A. Building and of the brotherhood be invited to attend the sessions of the Board as opportunity may offer.

The Treasurer, Foreign Secretary, Home Secretary, Publisher of the Christian Missionary, Auditors, Superintendent of Book and Literature Department, and Publisher of History of Our Missions made their reports and recommendations and they were referred to their proper committees. Communications from Japan and Porto Rico Missions, conferences, churches, individuals, appeals from new fields, statements of missionaries were read and referred to proper committees. The missionaries were heard concerning the work in various fields.

Appropriate committees were appointed.

The following officers were elected:

President—J. G. Bishop, D. D.

Recording Secretary—Warren H. Denison, D. D.

Treasurer—J. G. Bishop, D. D.

Mission Council—Bishop, Powers, Morrill, Denison, Mrs. Howsare, Harris. (Recording Secretary was excused from attending ordinary meetings of the Council.)

Editors Christian Missionary—M. T. Morrill, D. D., and O. W. Powers, D. D.

Publisher Christian Missionary—M. T. Morrill, D. D.

Manager of Book and Literature Department—O. W. Powers, D. D.

The Board accepted the invitation of Foreign Secretary Morrill to assemble at his home, Friday evening, to see Stereopticon views of our Church properties in our foreign fields.

Dr. S. S. Hough, Foreign Secretary of the United Brethren Church, called upon the Board and extended greetings and gave an instructive and inspirational address on the United Missionary Campaign.

As to finances the following actions were taken:

We would express the appreciation of the Board for the hearty co-operation of the many faithful workers, whose sacrifice and effort during the past year have made possible the work which is being done for the furtherance of the Gospel.

We believe that the "Budget Plan" has demonstrated its value under favorable conditions during the past year and we recommend its continuance and urge hearty co-operation and increased effort by all in making it effective.

We urge all of our people to observe Home Mission Week, November 16-23, and to join heartily in the United Missionary Campaign, planning to make them eventuate in an every member canvass for regular and increased financial support for both Home and Foreign Missions.

That it be the positive policy of this Board to conduct the business of the coming year without increasing our outside indebtedness, but at the same time we feel that for the sake of the Kingdom and our Church, the work must not be curtailed, and in order to do this that five hundred men be secured to guarantee an equal pro rata to make this possible; said amount not to exceed a maximum of ten dollars each.

That the Foreign Secretary be instructed to encourage individuals, churches, societies and conferences to assume financial responsibility for the support of students, Bible women, native workers, missionaries and stations, and to facilitate a close relationship between the donor and the foreign representative. All money for such purposes to pass through the mission treasury.

That the appropriation for Japan for the coming year be $10,500; for Porto Rico, $3,200, with full-lough expenses additional; and for the Home fields, $7,600.

That, inasmuch as there has been much discussion of the missionary policy of our denomination and a constant pressure of financial problems for some time, that this Board appoint a committee to carefully study our denominational policies in the interest of greater efficiency and more perfect co-operation, and that their conclusions and recommendations be reported at the next session of the American Christian Convention.

That we adopt the financial reports of the officers.

That the treasurer's bond for $10,000 be renewed, and that we appropriate thirty dollars for that purpose; also $10 for the clerical work of the Recording Secretary.

That a sufficient sum be appropriated to pay the expenses of this Board meeting and for the Mission Council meetings during the year.

That the salaries of the Mission officers be continued the same as last year.

That all minor accounts be closed into the general accounts before the closing of the books for the year. Also that the account of the Boston note be made to show its proper credits.

That the report of the auditors be adopted and the payment of twenty dollars for their services.

Dayton, Ohio, October 11, 1913.

To the Mission Board:—We have audited the books of the Mission Treasurer, at stated times throughout the year, as recorded in his books, and find all moneys and securities properly accounted for as shown by his books and vouchers.

We have also examined the records of the Home and Foreign Mission Secretaries, and find all money received by them properly accounted for as shown by their vouchers and books.

(Signed)

S. O. ALBAUGH,

A. F. CHASE,

Auditors.

That the medical bills of the Garmans and McCords, amounting to $62.95 and $13.50 respectively, be approved.

That the plan suggested by Brother Campbell for raising the indebtedness of the foreign account, be adopted; namely, that ten people be secured who will each be responsible for the raising of $1,000 during the coming year.

That we endorse the plan of publishing monthly statements of the condition of the mission treasury.

A Home and Foreign Mission Budget was adopted as follows:

Foreign Missions.

For Japan	$10,500.00
For Porto Rico	3,500.00
For Administration	2,000.00
For Foreign Mission Deficit	9,000.00
Total	$25,000.00

Home Missions.

Home Mission Appropriation	$ 8,000.00
Administration	2,000.00
Advance and Building Fund	5,000.00
Total	$15,000.00
Grand Total	$40,000.00

That the Treasurer's monthly statement be of the form of September, 1913, as shown by the books at the close of the month's business.

That the appropriation for "cuts" for the new History of Missions by Dr. Bishop, be left in the hands of the Publication Committee to determine both the number to be used and the amount to be paid.

That the Foreign Secretary be allowed to negotiate for a new typewriter and that $19.00 be appropriated from the treasury to cover the transaction, the remainder to be paid by turning in the old typewriter and advertising in the Christian Missionary, title to the machine to remain in the Board.

That the Home Secretary be allowed to purchase a new typewriter, paying the cash difference himself, and using the advertising columns of the Christian Missionary to the extent of $18.00. The typewriter to belong to him when purchased.

That $12.50 be appropriated to pay for the purchase of a filing cabinet for the Home Mission office.

That $20.00 be appropriated for the purchase of a Roto-speed for the Mission Offices.

HOME MISSIONS.

The following actions were taken:

That we rejoice that the receipts for Home Missions have increased the past year over $600, and also that we have been able to invest more in this great work. We are also glad to know that Columbus, Ohio, Lebanon, Indiana, and Third Church, Norfolk, Va., three of the churches that have been aided by this Board, have met with progress so as to make it unnecessary for them to ask help of this Board.

That we recommend that the action of the Mission Council in calling Rev. G. A. Conibear to the Boston work be confirmed.

That the administration of the Boston property be placed in the hands of Rev. G. A. Conibear, and that he be instructed to apply the net revenue from the Boston Church building, first to lift the $600 note given by the Mission Board, and thereafter on his salary of $1,000.

It is the sense of this Board that the present Boston property be sold as soon as advantageously may be, and a part of the net proceeds be used for the carrying on of immigration work, and the remainder be used as soon as opportunity offers, for establishing our cause in some other part of the city, and in the meantime that Brother Conibear investigate likely locations.

That we further recommend that the Home Mission Secretary be made responsible for carrying out the policy of the Board with respect to the Boston property and work.

That C. E. Newman, R. S. Stephens, Fred Cooper, H. R. Clem, Arthur E. Cobb and Rev. Horace Mann be approved as missionary pastors.

That Rev. Edwin Flory be approved as Home Missionary to Western Washington.

That inasmuch as it seems impossible to resume work at Marshall, Michigan, and we are informed that it is inadvisable to make the attempt, that the property be sold and the proceeds held as a nucleus for a Church Extension Building Fund.

That the Defiance, Ohio, church, inasmuch as they are now meeting in Weston Hall, be permitted to sell the former church building and the proceeds therefrom invested until such time as they are able to build a new church, and that meantime they be allowed to use the interest for current expenses.

That Rev. Arthur Brotherston be paid for his services in Bangor, Maine, for 1913, at the rate of the appropriation for the previous year.

That the appropriation for the Toronto, Canada, church be paid for the full quarter ending July 1st.

That from last year's appropriation one quarter's salary additional be paid Rev. W. L. Wells, Columbus, Ga.

In view of the isolated condition of the Rifle, Colorado, church we recommend that we resume further work in Colorado as soon as conveniently may be.

Appropriations were made for the following fields: Portsmouth, Va.; Winchester, Va.; South Norfolk, Va.; Columbus, Ga.; Lynn, Mass.; Portland, Ind.; Eastport, Me.; Romeo, Mich.; Toronto, Ont.; Western Washington; Albany, Mo.; Coshocton, Ohio; Lake City, Iowa; Louisville, Ill.; N. Y. E. Conference; Olney, Ill.; Wyoming Conference; Walnut Hills, Dayton; Manchester, N. H.; Franklinton, Christian College, Delmarva Conference; Boston, Mass.; Oronoque, Kansas; Springfield, Ohio Missions; Muncie, Ind.

The following points were referred to the Mission Council: Lewiston, Ill.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Chapel Hill, N. C.; Raleigh, N. C.

That the Mission Council be authorized to increase any Home Mission appropriation, or to transfer any unused appropriation, or to make new appropriations providing for emergencies in the Home Field, provided that the expenditure for the year shall not exceed the limit adopted by the Board.

LITERATURE AND PUBLICITY.

The following actions were adopted:

That the cash basis for the Christian Missionary be the best and recommend its continuance.

That we urge the superintendents of literature in our Missionary societies to make a special effort to place the Christian Missionary in every home, and where there is no society we urge the pastor to appoint solicitors for subscribers.

That we regard the Christian Missionary as an invaluable means of spreading missionary information, and maintaining communication between the brotherhood and missionaries and administrative officers; and we recommend that the editors feel at liberty to incur such expense as will make it effective for its purpose.

That as much as possible be done by letter, leaflet, public print and platform addresses by our administrative officers, members of the Mission Board and other available workers, to forward the great Missionary movements of the day, Student Volunteer, Laymen's United Missionary Campaign, Missionary Education; and we earnestly call the attention of our brotherhood to the Missionary Conventions and Summer Schools and Conferences which are proving so helpful to people of all denominations.

That an effort be made to secure representation from all our schools and colleges at the Student Volunteer Convention which will convene December 31st, 1913, at Kansas City, Kansas.

That we rejoice that the History of our Missions by Dr. J. G. Bishop, is now in the hands of the printer, and will soon be on sale at the Mission Rooms and the Book Room of the Christian Publishing Association.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The following actions were taken:

That our Foreign Secretary's visitation to our Japan field to attend the Quarter Century Celebration and to inspect the work there has been most valuable to the work and workers there and to the Board and brotherhood here. We hope that a number of our brethren will plan to attend the World's Sunday School Convention in Tokio in 1916, and inspect our work there. We thank all the donors who helped to make the Foreign Secretary's trip possible.

That we are appreciative of the visits of Rev. J. F. Burnett, D. D., Secretary of the American Christian Convention, and Mrs. Burnett, Corresponding Secretary of the Woman's Board for Home Missions, to our Porto Rico field, and for the good they did on the field and the splendid messages they are giving the brotherhood of the needs and opportunities of our people there.

That we rejoice in the splendid work our missionaries and workers are doing in Japan and Porto Rico, and we wish to make it clearly known that they are greatly hampered by a lack of funds and that even an amount of $1,000 additional to each field would in far larger proportion increase their efficiency and the development of the work.

That we request Miss Alice True to defer her furlough until October, 1914.

That we direct that Missionary D. P. Barrett, now on furlough, plan to return to Porto Rico in the Spring; and that Missionary C. P. Garman, now on furlough, plan to return to Japan immediately after the next session of the American Christian Convention, and that meantime they do field work under the direction of the Foreign Secretary.

We most earnestly urge that two or more individuals or churches richly blessed with means given them by God, be sought for to assume the continuous support of missionary families for Japan and Porto Rico, especially that a new family may be sent to the latter country. We invite all persons interested to unite in prayer that the above may quickly come to pass.

That in view of the high cost of living in Japan, the salaries of missionary families there be $1,000 per annum with an allowance of $75.00 for each child, and house rent.

That furlough salaries of both Japan and Porto Rico missionary families be $800 per annum, and an allowance of $50 for each child.

That we rejoice at the completion and dedication of the new church building in the city of Ponce, Porto Rico, so much needed to make our work there permanent; also for the ready responses to our appeals for funds which made it possible to reconstruct the chapel at Aruz, Porto Rico, which was wrecked by floods.

We recommend that the funds for a chapel in Porto Rico, raised by the efforts of Dr. J. F. Burnett, and the funds raised by Iowa laymen for a chapel in Descalabrado, Porto Rico, be combined and applied to the erection of a suitable building in Descalabrado, or some other equally promising point in that field.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved: That we heartily approve the United Missionary Campaign now in progress, and urge our pastors and people to attend some one of the two-day conventions to be held in nearly every city. We ask our Mission Secretaries to lay great stress upon this nation-wide movement, and we ask our pastors and workers to make every possible effort to co-operate with the Board and its officers in this campaign. We urge all our churches to co-operate in the every-member canvass for Home and Foreign Missions to be made by all the denominations in 1914; and recommend, in view of the fact that our foreign offering is in March, that our canvass be made in January, 1914; and we ask our churches to have representatives and pastors present in the two-day conventions. We believe it very vital to our missionary interests that our people give special attention to this campaign and canvass.

Resolved: That we rejoice that more and more the Conferences are appointing persons known as Mission Secretaries and Standing Committee who have the definite responsibility of the Mission work within the bounds of the Conference, and we call upon all such officers to enter into the heartiest co-operation with the plans of the mission department and seek to reach the last person of the farthest church of the Christians with missionary information and zeal. That this closing year of the quadrennium may be the best of our history. That the members of this Board join with his many friends in offering congratulations to our worthy President, Dr. J. G. Bishop, on his having passed the 80th anniversary of his birth, hale and hearty and still busily engaged in the Master's vineyard. We express the hope that the Master may continue to use him for many years.

Resolved: That we express our hearty appreciation to the friends of the Board living in Dayton, who have shown so much genuine hospitality in throwing open their homes to our comfort during the session of the Board.

Resolved: That we rejoice in the Seaside Chautauqua of the Christian Church to be held next July at Virginia Beach, near Norfolk, Va., in the interests of Church and Sunday school work and methods, and express our appreciation that definite missionary instruction is being planned for that Summer Conference.

DENOMINATIONAL MISSIONARY POLITY.

To the American Christian Convention.

Dear Brethren:—Since the majority of the Mission Board of the Christian Church have for a series of years been interested and actually engaged in the missionary work of our denomination, and have become intimately acquainted with the polity of the Mission Department in all its relations, we beg leave to submit for your consideration the following items:

1. We believe that the present organization of the Department, namely, two general secretaries and a board of nine persons, is as nearly ideal as we can have with the present status of our missionary work, and preferable to the one secretary or the two boards idea, as regards economy and ease of administration. Yes—six; no—three.

2. We believe that the present system would be more efficient if greater authority and responsibility were given to the Mission Board, so that it might open new fields or drop those already occupied, determine its financial policies, and do similar acts on its own initiative, receiving from the American Christian Convention only general direction, while rendering detailed account of its stewardship. Unanimous.

3. We believe that in the interest of efficiency and uniformity the Woman's Board for Foreign Missions and the Woman's Board for Home Missions might be auxiliary to the Mission Board instead of to the Convention. Unanimous.

4. We believe that the Mission Department should have a periodical publication under its full control, as at present, as a medium of communication. Unanimous.

5. We believe that both Japan and Porto Rico should be continued as our mission fields. Carried; one absent.

6. We believe that the Mission Board should be given liberty to cultivate, for missionary fruits, our Sunday schools and Christian Endeavor Societies, in harmony with the respective departments, creating any necessary special agency for that purpose. Carried; one absent.

7. We believe that the budget plan should be adopted, from the American Christian Convention down to the individual church; and that a budget including all our general benevolent enterprises should be formulated year by year for the benefit of our general work. Carried; one absent.

8. We believe that the Mission Board should have authority to appoint, form and finance an effective Laymen's Missionary Committee for denominational activity. Carried; one absent.

Thus believing, we feel bound to express our convictions, and to appeal to the Convention to give due weight to the matters herein mentioned when the missionary interests of the denomination are under consideration.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Upon request from the Woman's Board for Foreign Missions for advice concerning the kind of building to be erected at Ichinosekt as a Weston Memorial, it was voted to be the sense of this Board that they should build a church of the native type, combining a room for church purposes and dwelling for pastor, but to have some distinctly church feature.

The revised Manual was adopted.

It was voted to donate the tract case to the Woman's Board for a tract depository.

A. F. Chase and S. O. Albaugh were re-elected auditors.

All unfinished business was referred to the Mission Council.

After voting to meet on the day preceding the next session of the Quadrennial Convention, or at the call of the Mission Council, the Board adjourned.

WARREN H. DENISON, Secretary.

THE POST CARD.

Have you, Mr. Reader, ever considered the post card? ever thought that those three and a half by five and a half inch scenes sold at every corner in every city and town had any merits? You have received them and you have sent them, but have you known that this memento, this picture card sent by acquaintances and friends, has a history worthy to be read; that its life makes a goodly business possible; and that this business is one of the most educative of businesses?

Only a few years since, the post card industry was in its infancy. The first cards that we remember were not scenes, but were shabby paper cards with cheap vulgarisms or colloquialisms printed on them. This kind still exists—and only exists.

But there has evolved from this lower species, from the cheap card, the picture card, elegant in its workmanship and beautiful in its representation of scenes. It is this card with the pictures of local interest that has made the post card business phenomenal in its educational values.

Say there are one hundred million people in the United States; say that thirty million send one post card per year each; and, with such a small estimate, you have a business worth $300,000. But what of the educational value growing out of this exchange of thirty million lessons in geography?

There have passed this year two great meetings—two friendly meetings of the Blue and the Gray—reunions whose significance poets alone could truly value. We will use the second of these, the reunion of the veterans at Chattanooga, to bring home the story of the post card. To this center of many war scenes, to this city of Tennessee beautiful with its bending river, with its broad sweep of level to the north and its hills to the south; to this southern town and to genuine southern hospitality came the Blue at the invitation of the Gray. Let us say there were only twenty thousand visitors; let us say that each one sent upon an average of ten cards,—and you have a total of two hundred thousand cards sent. A small business for the dealers: but what of the educational value. Any good in two hundred thousand scenes of Southern lands, of our cities and hills, of our peach orchards and valleys of corn, scenes of our broad fields of tobacco and broader fields of cotton? Any virtue in such scenes sent into thousands of homes north and west and seen by more than three hundred thousand people who doubtless knew not of our beauties and of our industries? Let pass the kindly feeling of brotherhood and the deeper respect engendered by this reunion at Chattanooga, there yet remains the worthy advertisement of North and South, and the closer binding of the country as a whole through a greater appreciation of this section's scenes—her beauties in mountains and in fields—which the simple post card represents.

By such means many a boy of the North has been told the story of the cotton patch and of the Negro and of our congenial climes; and many a Southern boy has thus learned of gigantic business, of splendor in nature and in stone as is found beyond the limits of his own

(Continued on Page 10.)

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Optimism and pessimism are ever in conflict and optimists and pessimists will debate questions of human interest to the end of time. I may not be an optimist, but I lean to that side so far as the present may be compared with the past. The good is growing better and the bad is growing worse; but the good must finally win in the struggle, unless wrong is stronger than right. Conflicts between principles cannot be determined by single battles nor by short periods. The day of the crucifixion seemed to demonstrate the failure of the new gospel; but resurrection morning turned the tide toward final success.

If one were disposed to argue the matter, it would be easy to prove from profane history that the religion of Babylon was worse than the dives of New York; but the period is too long and the history too far away to settle the question of whether the world is growing better or worse today.

The Inquisition which started in the fourth century and extended over France, Italy, Germany, Spain and Portugal, and was not suppressed fully till 1834, was more cruel and heartless than present day strikes, mobs, lynching, and all the evils that remain in civilized society; yet the Inquisition was conducted by a court called "The Holy Office," and was a church movement. Civil courts are far more humane and juster in these days than church courts two centuries ago.

The men of wealth and high position in these days study the welfare of society and contribute to human necessity far more liberally than the public believes. The qualities of mind that qualify men for great enterprises are those qualities that embrace large questions of human interests. The provision for safety, health, and comfort made by great corporations for employees, testify to the concern of managers for those employed. There are exceptions, of course, but they may prove the rule.

So far as personal observation goes the facts are just as convincing as history to my mind. Samples of Christian citizens who do not sacrifice church obligations for personal or state duties are multiplying all the time. The Suffolk church can furnish two examples that illustrate this position. Col. J. E. West is a member of the Virginia Senate; yet he is a member of two important church committees, the Missionary Society, and a faithful Sunday school teacher. He is chairman of the Home Mission Committee of the Eastern Virginia Conference, and head of the Home Mission Board of the Convention. Col. E. E. Holland is a member of Congress from the Second District of Virginia, which is the most important congressional district in the State, if not of the whole South. Two great shipyards, Fortress Monroe, several important cities, great agricultural resources, fish and oyster industries, and great shipping business, domestic and foreign, in his District; yet Col. Holland is on two important church committees, the Executive Committee of the Southern Convention, and holds the position of Sunday school teacher in his church. They are both worthy men, interested in the state and nation, but losing no interest in the Kingdom of God. The civic conscience is becoming more sensitive year by year and the church is gaining every year in the application of the gospel to real life.

Religion is no longer an occasional outburst of spiritual joy, a periodic expression of convictions and feelings; but it is coming to be a settled exercise of the will, a consecration of abilities and service to the furtherance of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Feeling is not ignored or eliminated, but systematic support of the institutions of Christianity marks progress in Christian life. The world is growing better and the church is making gain among men. As there is a more sanitary condition in soil and atmosphere, so there is a more enlightened and cleaner atmosphere in which character is developed. Perfect health of body and perfect health of soul are far in the future; but the present is better than the past.

W. W. STALEY.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

The 1913 session of the Alabama Conference is now a matter of history, and doubtless every member is rejoicing over the good work done and the progress made during the conference year. I have no doubt but what the past year has been the most successful the Conference has ever had. But we are looking forward to even a better and more prosperous one during the year 1914.

Nearly all the churches in the conference were well represented, and nearly all came up with their conference apportionments, which speaks well for the church. Here is hoping that next year everyone will be represented, with every cent of the requirements raised. If every church in the Southern Convention would raise this amount, there would be no need of our missionaries coming home from the field for the lack of means to prosecute the work.

It seems that the work of this Conference grows steadily, but possibly this is better than for it to rise by leaps and bounds. One new church and one other minister were added to the Conference. The new church was organized last second Sunday by Rev. J. H. Hughes near Linville, Ala., with fourteen charter members, but it seems that Brother Hughes is one of those men who does things without saying very much about it. However, I trust he will write something of the new church later.

The greatest need of this conference is more ministers who will devote all their time to the gospel ministry and build more churches. It seems to me that this is the most important point for our home mission work just now. We need more men who will go into the towns and build churches. If we could get one or two churches, say in Roanoke and Linville, it would add greatly to the strength of this conference. Who will undertake the work?

Our brethren are becoming more and more awakened on the question of missions at home and abroad. A gradual raise is being made every year in hope that some day we may be able to extend our beloved church throughout the State. Let every church realize now that one of the greatest needs of our conference is more and better churches, and begin now to raise every cent the conference asks for next year and your church will be better by so doing.

A good many new resolutions were passed, among which, one in connection with the Orphanage work. By motion of Rev. G. D. Hunt, Friday, June 28, was set aside as "Labor Day," the proceeds of this day's work throughout the Conference, whether it be 50c. or $5.00, to go to the Christian Orphanage at Elon College. This means something for this institution, since we have no assessment on any of our churches to support this institution.

It seems that every phase of the work is in a prosperous condition, and the church at large is looking forward to a better and higher place in bringing about the kingdom of God on earth.

I'm now in Roanoke, Alabama, on my way to the Georgia and Alabama Conference, hoping that we may have a great session there.

J. V. KNIGHT.

THE EVERY-MEMBER CANVASS.

After studying the "every-member canvass" plan as set forth by the Laymen's Missionary Movement, I determined to try it in my work, and for five years I have used it with most satisfactory results. I believe it to be the best plan for all churches. Experience and observation have fully convinced me of its value. It is practical for small and large churches, as well as city and rural churches.

A church should make an estimated budget of its current local expenses; and another budget for its home missions (conference, and all benevolence purposes to be used in America); and another for foreign missions (all missions abroad). These budgets should be set before the congregation and explained in detail, and they should be worthy budgets, something worth working for, and worth while.

The every-member canvass means for a church committee to go to each member of the church and secure his pledge of so much per week for each of these three purposes, payable as often as church services are held (weekly, bi-weekly, monthly). It is not to solicit for lump sums for the year.

Usually, but not always, the canvass for current local expenses of the church should be made at one time; and, the canvass for the others, home and foreign missions, should be made together at another time. The planning of the canvass is practically the same for both canvasses. The canvassers may or may not be the same persons in both instances. Some persons may be splendid canvassers for the local church work but poor canvassers for missions. Generally speaking, both canvasses should be made by the men of the church.

HOW TO MAKE THE CANVASS.

The church should keep in mind that every member should give for each of these three purposes; the budgets should be made, fully explained before the congregation at a time announced, and the time of the canvass announced. The time should not exceed a week or ten days for making the canvass, the shorter the better. My own practice is to have the canvass made from Monday to Friday; some churches are making it in one afternoon, some Sunday afternoon, and all the members are asked to be on the lookout for the canvassers during the time set. The canvassers should always go in "teams" of two, and never alone; the membership of the church and its close friends should be divided among the teams. Fifty names is sufficient for any team, a less number is better.

After the canvassers are named they should have a meeting and should receive such instructions as these: keep sweet, no matter what happens, and wear the smile that won't come off; always go by twos; take plenty of subscription cards and see that address is correct as well as signed properly; explain your budget; do not agree for postponement of decision, for they know what they will do; not only get their subscription, but win their interest to the church and the cause of missions; take time to talk over the work in a hopeful tone; insist on a pledge, kindly but firmly; pray as you go to solicit each; get subscriptions from each one in the family, the children too, for they need to be trained up in the way they should go and your church will need trained givers in future years; show that this is an efficient method, approved by the most successful churches, fair, natural, economical, scriptural, business-like; explain that envelopes will be furnished them prepared for that purpose and that one end is for their mission pledge and one end for their current expenses; write all the absent members; report frequently at a set time and place; remember that you are not beggars but are doing the work of the Lord; do not leave your subscription cards, you are not distributing cards, but getting subscriptions, doing business for your Lord.

After a vigorous missionary campaign of informations and sermons lasting some weeks, and on the Sunday preceding the canvass at the close of the service the canvassers should be called forward and they should receive a charge from the pastor as they go out to the work just as the Master gave specific instructions to the twelve as he sent them out by twos to do certain work and which are recorded in Mark 6th chapter; and as when he sent the seventy out by twos to do another specific work and the full instructions are recorded in Luke 10th chapter.

It is important to follow up every member. Some may be away from home, or some such matter may prevent them from being solicited, but follow such up at a later date. Let the mid-week prayer service be in interest of the canvassers and the special work.

Do not forget that the weekly missionary offering is scriptural, educational, equitable, promotes prayer for missions, enlists larger numbers, makes it easier to give more, and provides continuous support, and thus helps mission boards to avoid borrowing.

"Upon the first day of the week (systematically) let each one of you (individually) lay by him in store, as he may prosper (proportionately), that no collections be made when I come." 1 Cor. 16:2.

The United Missionary Campaign is now holding more than seven hundred two-day conventions in the United States. This campaign is in the interest of the entire missionary work of the church and aims at the enlistment of every member of every church. These conventions will culminate in a nation-wide every member canvass for home and foreign missions and all regular benevolences in March on the part of as many churches and denominations as can be led to undertake it. If not in March then as near that as can be arranged for any church or denomination whose necessity demands that it be held at another date.

The Mission Board of the Christian Church has set January as the time for the canvass by our brotherhood and we ask all churches to enter into it heartily and see what our people can do.

WARREN H. DENISON.

712 Cooke Ave., Norfolk, Va.

NOTICE.

All elders, delegates or visitors who expect to attend the Eastern North Carolina Christian Conference at Mt. Auburn, Warren Co., will please notify me at once, so that our committee can arrange suitable homes for all.

Those coming from the east and north will arrive at Manson on S. A. L. train No. 11 at 2:2 p. m.; those coming from the south and west will arrive on train No. 12 at 1:28 p. m., on Wednesday, November 5. All persons will there change cars for Drewry, where they will arrive at 2:30 p. m. and be met by the church delegation.

Mt. Auburn and its people open their doors and extend a welcome to all. Please notify me at once. J. BYRD ELLINGTON, Chair.,
43-2t R. F. D. 1, Manson, N. C.

There is a sunlight so high and strong that the clouds of this world cannot reach it.—G. R. Alden.

CHURCH NEWS

GREENSBORO, N. C.

The special service of the First Christian church last night, under the auspices of the Baraca-Philathea classes of the Sunday school, was a complete success. A very large and appreciative audience was present, and participated very enthusiastically in the service. Baraca and Philathea hymns were used. The service was opened with "Stand Up For Jesus," and closed with "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Mr. F. L. Atkinson, teacher of the Junior Philatheas, spoke on the origin and purpose of the movement in which he mentioned the eighteen men who, in an old, unfinished, dirty house, formed the first class, and took for their motto, "The men of the world for Christ."

Mr. Charles A. Hines, Superintendent of the school, spoke fluently of the spirit of the movement, it being the same that called Abraham out of Ur, protected Moses in the bulrushes, shielded David in youth, Livingstone in Africa, Francis Willard in Temperance and Joseph E. Clark in Christian Endeavor, and its growth had reached around the world.

Mr. J. R. Foster, teacher of the Baracas, spoke of the responsibilities and opportunities before us; it being to teach the Word and cause it to be known;—a welcoming force;—an organization of brotherly helpfulness demonstrated in Mr. Hudson's sacrifice of a career of a millionaire to be heir of a million souls.

Mr. W. B. Truit, teacher of the Philathea class, spoke on "The Heart Throb" of the class; it being spiritual life;—winning souls;—the name Baraca no reason for wearing it. A true Baraca grows into companionship with God. The secret service work is its vital strength.

Mesdames Faulkner and Brannon and Messrs. Beacham and Long rendered a most excellent quartette, "Come, Holy Spirit." The service was decidedly inspiring.

LEBANON.

On October 18 was held the last quarterly conference of Lebanon church for the present conference year. It was a splendid meeting. The church is in fine shape for the annual conference, commencing November 18, prox.

The following officers were elected: Miss Geta Taylor, Organist; Miss Swannie Taylor, Assistant; Mrs. Maude Taylor Scoote, Choir Directress; Mr. T. Jones Earp, Supt. of Sunday school, with Mr. Ellis Wells Assistant, and Miss Cora Foster, Secretary of church. They have the same pastor for another year. It is a pleasure to serve Lebanon church. The house of worship always presents an attractive appearance; but it could not be otherwise, with Sister Jno. Yarbrough to superintend the cleaning and dusting, arranging of flowers for the pulpit, etc. Nor are these things the only reasons why it is a pleasure to serve this congregation. The manifest increasing interest by many for the church, for each other's good, the deepening of spiritual life among the members and the ease it is to preach the gospel to this people, make it a delight when the third Sabbath in each month comes around.

Not simply an assent to the fundamental doctrine that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, not simply a handshake with the preacher at his request, as a manifest proof of a spiritual birth; but a poverty of soul realized, a thorough turning away from sin with a broken heart that mourns at the altar of God's grace, can, ever has, or ever will, bring us into that sublime beatitude and produce that mysterious birth that Nicodemus did not know, though he a master of Israel.

J. W. PATTON.

THE STUDENT AND THE COLLEGE.

Every student who has placed his name on the register of some college this fall is a part of that institution where he has enrolled. Colleges are more than buildings, more than spacious lawns and beautiful groves, more than massive structures of masonry and woodwork, which have taken form and beauty under the guidance of the architect's skill and are made possible by the workman's honest labor. Yes, colleges are even more than the courses of study which are given such a prominent place in the catalogs of the various institutions.

A college is made of men and women, not of material things; it is composed of things of life, not of things inanimate; it is the embodiment of the lives of its officers, its teachers, and its student body, and is made or marred by their conduct. If you are a student, or if you have registered your name on some college roll, your life is a part of that institution, and that institution is good or bad according as you help to make it so. The lives of all connected with the college make it what it is. Your life—conduct—plays its proportionate part. If you are bad, the college is worse because of your connection with it; if you are honest and true, the college is better by and through the influence you have and the element of good which you add to the sum total of a real college.

Therefore, it behooves each of us to think on these things. Do you lend a helping hand or do you denounce and stab your school at every chance? Do you enter gladly into every project to promote the interest of your college or do you refuse to unite your efforts with those who are seeking the betterment of present conditions? Do you tell strangers about all the errors and the evils or do you find on your tongue words of praise for the things that are true and good?

Remember, you may be giving a portrayal of your own self when you are speaking of your college. You may be stating things as you see them, but you see them thus or so according to what you are. If bad, you perhaps see the bad; if true and loyal, you undoubtedly see the good. In either case, you are speaking of yourself when you speak of your college. It is a part of you; you are a part of it. If you see and speak only of the bad, it is because you are bad. You are telling the story of what you have contributed towards the development of a true college; you are simply exposing to view the leaf which you have written in the book of college life. Think of that and endeavor to be loyal and true.—Elon College Weekly.

A PSALM OF THE GOOD TEACHER.

The Lord is my Teacher:

I shall not lose the way to wisdom.

He leadeth me in the lowly path of learning,

He prepareth a lesson for me every day:

He findeth the clear fountains of instruction,

Little by little He showeth me the beauty of the truth.

The world is a great book that He hath written,
He turneth the leaves for me slowly:

They are all inscribed with images and letters,
His face poureth light on the pictures and the words.

Then am I glad when I perceive His meaning,

He taketh me by the hand to the hill-top of vision:

In the valley also He walketh beside me,
And in the dark places He whispereth to my heart.

Yea, though my lesson be hard it is not hopeless,
For the Lord is very patient with His slow scholar;

He will wait awhile for my weakness,

He will help me to read the truth through tears.

Surely Thou wilt enlighten me daily by joy and by sorrow:

And lead me at last, O Lord, to the perfect knowledge of Thee.

—HENRY VAN DYKE.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: NOVEMBER 2.

Subject: "Balak and Balaam;" Text: Numbers 22:2-6; 24:10-19.

Time.—B. C. 1451 (Ussher), 1407 (Toffteen), 1237 (Some scholars). Still other dates by other scholars.

Places.—Banks of the Jordan, and banks of the Euphrates.

Persons.—Israelites, Balak, Balaam, Amorites, Moabites, Edomites.

Golden Text.—A doubleminded man, unstable in all his ways.—Jas. 1:8.

Leading Thought.—God's children should be true, honest and strong.

The route of the Israelites after they left Mt. Hor was southward to the eastern arm of the Red Sea, and then northward, thus traveling around the mountainous region known as Mt. Seir. They were allowed to pass through the country of the Moabites, and came to the plains of Moab on the east of the Jordan opposite Jericho. They asked permission from the Amorites to go through their country east of the Jordan to the fords of the Jordan north of the Sea of Galilee, that they might cross. The Amorites refused, but were defeated. The Israelites also conquered Og, king of Bashan, a country north-east of the Amorites, and thus they won the region east of the Jordan.

Aroused by this proof of the strength of the Israelites, the Moabites were afraid and turned for help to their southern neighbors, the Midianites, among whom Moses had lived. They decided to send eastward four hundred miles to the Euphrates and bring thence a famous prophet, Balaam, that he might lay a curse on the Israelites.

At first forbidden by God to go, Balaam was at length allowed, though on the way an angel stopped the ass on which he was riding; and when Balaam upbraided the animal, it spoke, reproving its master.

Balaam's prophecies, which the Moabites expected to blast the Israelites, became in spite of him great prophecies of blessing. They are among the most wonderful poems in the Bible, full of beauty and truth, and they are especially worth studying because they contain foregleams of the Messiah.

Question Review.

1. What two names beginning with the same letter have you learned in this lesson?
2. Who was Balak?
3. Who and what was Balaam?
4. What did Balak want Balaam to do to help him?
5. Why was Balaam very anxious to do what Balak asked? (He wanted the pay.)
6. Who held Balaam back from doing what Balak asked?
7. Instead of cursings, what were his words about Israel?
8. Of whom beside Israel did Balaam prophecy? (The coming Christ.)

Lesson Announcement.

Next Sunday will be World's Temperance Day. One of the greatest things even a little child has to learn is to will to do without the things that will hurt him. When we get older we have to learn a higher lesson—that is, to do without things we want for fear of harming others. Next Sunday's lesson is about our duty toward others in regard to Temperance.

I wish the boys of this school would think of reasons why each Sunday school ought to observe World's Temperance day. Also what influence a Christian boy ought to have in his school or the place he works in regard to smoking, swearing and drinking.

I wish the girls would be ready to tell some reasons why it is impossible for us to live our lives by ourselves without affecting others. If possible, find one magazine or newspaper clipping, either about the gains of the temperance cause or the harm done by intemperance to some person or family.—Bertha D. Hageman.

GIVING THE AVERAGES.

Nothing is more discouraging to a small class, doing its best, than to hear read from Sunday to Sunday, the names of much larger classes as having the largest collections. Reading the average per member of the classes doing best in each department, obviates the difficulty by showing that the important thing is, not to have the largest class collection, but to have every individual in the school doing his or her best. Giving names of classes having highest average in the several departments also contributes to the same desirable result, as it makes clear that senior classes are measured with seniors, juniors with juniors, and adults with adults.—Caroline Sheldon.

HAVE A ROUSING WELCOME SONG.

The first-time attendant who has no desire to attend again, is farther away than he was at first. The welcome is the thing. Make a feature of it.

Have appropriate and ringing music for such circumstances. The superintendent may remark that he notices new faces, and then call for the welcoming song.

Many such selections are found in the books, but it is well to have one as the official song of welcome, so that the school will always put its full enthusiasm into it. In order to give such a song directness and intimate appeal, it is a good plan to have it written for that special purpose. It is not difficult to write words to familiar music. In a school average size, there ought to be more than one with this gift.

"CHRISTIAN HOME LIFE."

The Christian Endeavor Topic for November 9, Based on 2 Tim. 1:1-5.

This meeting should be held in the home of some member of the society. If too large to have all of the society in one room, have two or three simultaneous meetings in different rooms. If possible, have the opening and closing exercises together. Have the meeting where you can have a piano or organ. Sing, "Home, Sweet Home," and other such songs.

A week in advance the leader should hand out questions to members to be answered in the meeting. Just before the meeting other questions can be handed out to be asked by those holding them if interest begins to lag. Let everything be on the topic. Avoid the common sin of letting discussions run away from the topic.

The Leader's Talk.

Let the leader touch lightly on different aspects of the topic: the value of a home, the loss that the homeless suffer, the duties of the members of the family, parents toward children, children toward parents, brothers and sisters toward one another, and so on. Let him speak of the members of the family as home-builders, so that a home becomes just what they make it. Then let him sketch in a few words the Christian home where love and harmony reign, where Christ is constant guest, where every member co-operates with the others, where God is worshipped so that home becomes a temple. Some are better Christians abroad and among strangers than they are at home. Urge patience, kindness, long-suffering, forbearance, in all home relations, for the home is the place where weaknesses are revealed.

Home-Life Thoughts.

Fielding says, "Bare walls make a gadding housewife." It is a part of Christianity to make home attractive.

"Is she that way at home?" sneered a man who was listening to the testimony of a Salvation Army lassie. "There's mother in the front seat; ask her," said the girl. The mother replied, "She is at home just what she says here." What a splendid testimony!

Obedience should characterize the relation between children and parents—cheerful obedience! Slow and grumbling obedience shows an undisciplined spirit. In the Christian home the child should find its joy in doing at once and with a smile what it is asked to do.

A little boy was asked by a neighbor, as his father was leaving the house one morning, who that gentleman was. He replied, "That's the man who stays here nights." In the Christian home the entire family should have the same social interests and hold together.

Our home life must never be neglected. It is possible, as Beecher says, to cut so many grafts from the top of the tree that no top will be left with which to bear fruit. So we may be so earnest workers outside that we neglect our duties at home.

The Christian's home life should be luminous, like the Christian himself. "Ye are lights in the world." Are we luminous with happiness, with good will, with kindness, with eagerness to make every one comfortable?

Christian home life is a discipline. In the Christian home the rights of every member will be respected; we shall learn to work and pull together. It is a bad thing for a person never to have to consider the wants and wishes of others.—C. E. World.

A CONVERTED THIEF'S OFFERING.

Rev. Charles L. Walworth, D. D., of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., recently received a letter from a writer who styled himself a "Converted Crook," and enclosed $5.20 for the "conscience fund." He stated that the money represented the amount he had stolen from his mother when a boy, and she had entrusted to him her weekly contribution envelope for the Sunday school of the church. He wrote: "Some years ago I was a member of Trinity Sunday school. I had a good mother who sent me there, and as she was unable to go she used to send the envelope containing ten cents each week with me. Quite a few times the envelope never was received by the church. It has been nothing short of a miracle that I have kept out of prison since then. But God knew best. While walking on one of the streets of Poughkeepsie, my home city, God spoke to me, and like unto St. Paul I asked the question, 'Father, what wilt thou have me to do?' One thing God wants me to do is to return the stolen ten-cent pieces to Trinity Church, and I am enclosing $5.20, or 52 ten-cent pieces, for that year. I did not take that many, but can't remember the exact number, so will sent the fifty-two to be sure. It matters not who this is who is writing, as God knows all about me, and that is enough for me. This example of a stricken conscience may do others good. A guilty soul has no rest until the guilt has been righted and God has given forgiveness."—Christian Herald.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Sec'y. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

A PRAYER FOR THE NATION

O Lord, our God, thy mighty hand
Hath made our country free;
From all her broad and happy land
May worship rise to thee;
Fulfill the promise of her youth,
Her liberty defend;
By law and order, love and truth,
America befriend.

The strength of every state increase
In Union's golden chain;
Her thousand cities fill with peace,
Her million fields with grain;
The virtues of her mingled blood
In one new people blend;
By unity and brotherhood,
America befriend.

Through all the waiting land proclaim
The gospel of good-will;
And may the joy of Jesus' name
In every bosom thrill.
O'er hill and vale, from sea to sea,
Thy holy reign extend;
By faith and hope and charity,
America befriend.

—HENRY VAN DYKE, 1912.

A PREVIOUS ENGAGEMENT.

Mrs. Blake had been appointed to plan and to conduct the next missionary meeting in Jefferson Street Church. It was her first attempt in that line; but what she lacked in experience she made up in enthusiasm and sanguineness.

"I think I shall ask quite a number of ladies to take part in the exercises," she confided to the President. "That will make more variety; besides, it will give us a chance to get hold of some who do not always attend the meetings."

"A good idea," the President commented.

"I shall ask Miss Tuckerman to give us a synopsis of the new study book; she would do that beautifully. Then Mrs. Foster has the pen of a good writer; I shall ask her for a short paper on the subject of the month, which we can afterwards discuss. Mrs. Conway is pretty good on current events; I'll get her to look up items of missionary intelligence and give them to several ladies to read. Won't that make a fine meeting?"

The President heartily approved of the scheme, though she was somewhat dubious about the success of the open discussion.

"And O!" Mrs. Blake pursued, "it has just occurred to me; I shall ask the Charlton girls to sing one of their lovely sacred duets. That will add so much to the interest of the meeting."

Things went smoothly at first. After just the proper amount of urging and putting aside suggestions about "asking somebody else," every one consented to do as requested. So Mrs. Blake carefully arranged for the devotional exercises and then settled down to writing pretty post cards and dainty notes of invitation.

But "the best-laid schemes of mice and men," to say nothing of women, "gang aft agley," and so it was in this case. Thursday evening Mrs. Blake received the following note from Miss Charlton:

My Dear Mrs. Blake: When sister and I agreed to sing at the missionary meeting, we altogether forgot that Friday was the day, and we had arranged to go to the Symphony Concert. We shall be happy to sing some other time. Hoping you may have a good meeting,
Sincerely yours,
FLORENCE CHARLTON.

"Forgot Friday was the day! It's always on Friday. They know that well enough," exclaimed Mrs. Blake petulantly.

Friday morning's mail brought Mrs. Foster's paper with a note stating that she could not possibly attend the meeting, as some suburban friends had 'phoned that they were coming in to shop and they wished her to go with them. "You can easily get some one to read the paper. With best wishes for a good meeting," etc.

"She promised us before she did the suburban shoppers," sighed Mrs. Blake. "Well, I shall get Mrs. Sterling to read the paper. She is always at the meeting."

When Mrs. Blake set forth on her way to the church, she decided to go round by the avenue and pick up Miss Tuckerman so as to make sure of her. That lady, however, in unmistakable house dress, was waiting for her on the front steps.

"O Mrs. Blake," she began in a cautious undertone, "I was so hoping you'd come this way! Here is your book. I'm so sorry I can't go to the meeting. Cousin Becky is here spending the day with me."

"Bring her along," suggested Mrs. Blake.

"I don't believe she would go."

"Go and ask her or else excuse yourself for an hour. You can easily do that with such an intimate relative."

"I'm afraid it wouldn't do. Besides, I haven't time now to get ready. I mustn't keep you. I know you'll have a good meeting without me."

It was almost three o'clock, and Mrs. Blake in the leader's chair was anxiously watching the door for the "current event" lady. She did not appear, but presently in tiptoed her daughter with a small package. Approaching the table, she announced in a stage whisper that "mamma sent this, and she's sorry she can't come, because she had an invitation to take an automobile ride."

The last straw!

"Did she say she hoped we'd have a good meeting?" asked Mrs. Blake with a weary smile.

"Yes'm—no'm," murmured the bewildered innocent.

With the collapsed program on her hands, Mrs. Blake opened the meeting in a rather depressed state of mind; but the old faithfuls were all there, and so heartily did they sustain her that, after all, it was a very satisfactory meeting. They all felt that it was good to be there, and only regretted that so many others had deprived themselves of this benefit.

A few days after this one of the ladies of the congregation had an "at home," and the Jeffersonians were there in force. A little group which included Mrs. Blake, Mrs. Sterling, and the President of the Missionary Society were chatting together when Miss Havens came over and accosted the latter with: "I was so sorry the other day not to get to your meeting—O, I beg pardon! I know you don't like that; I mean our meeting—but I had the dressmaker that day, so of course I could not go."

"I did not get there either," chimed in another lady. "Some friends came in, and they stayed a little too long."

"When I received Mrs. Blake's post card," said another, "I fully intended to go; but something or other, I can't just remember what it was, occurred to prevent. So many things do get in the way of those meetings! I can't imagine how you manage, Mrs. Sterling. You have so many demands on your time, yet I am told you are always there; and you are not an officer, either. How is it?"

"I manage by simply making a regular engagement of it and not allowing things to get in the way," Mrs. Sterling replied.

"But what if you have the dressmaker?" said Miss Havens.

"I do not engage her for that day."

"But what if you are invited to something especially nice or friends send you word they are coming to see you?"

"I plead a previous engagement. I don't allow personal affairs or anything I can control to stand in the way. There are enough things to keep us women from doing all we wish, such as sickness in the family or one's own physical condition. Then in some households there are little children or aged persons whose claims come before anything else. But it seems to me that those of us who are fairly well and comparatively free-footed, even though leading busy lives, can and should contrive to attend a missionary meeting once a month."

"But sometimes isn't it hard to give up something that may not come along again very soon for a missionary meeting that, like Tenyson's brook, goes on forever?"

"She knows how to practice a little self-denial," observed Mrs. Blake.

"I don't look at it in that way," said Mrs. Sterling quickly. "To me it would be more self-denial to give up missionary meetings. I find stimulus and uplift in the smallest and poorest of them. Just think what a little Church meeting stands for! It is a part, a necessary and a most important part, of a splendid organization that is doing a glorious work for the Master. The mottoes of our women's societies tell the whole story: 'Our Land for Christ,' 'The World for Christ.' I am proud and glad to be enrolled in this mighty army, and I want to keep up with the procession."

No one spoke for a moment, and then Miss Havens remarked thoughtfully: "That is a grand way of looking at the subject; and if keeping up with the procession involves regular attendance on our local society, we certainly should consider our missionary meeting a previous engagement."—Emma L. Burnett, in Home Mission Monthly.

SOME MISSIONARY MOTTOES.

"Unless Jesus Christ is Lord of all, He is not Lord at all."

"It is the mission of the Church to give the whole Gospel to the whole world."

"We cannot serve God and mammon, but we can serve God with mammon."

"This is a lost world to be saved, and not simply an ignorant world to be educated."

"The Gospel of Jesus Christ is not only a Gospel for all men, but it is a Gospel for the whole man."

"The man who does not believe in Foreign Missions had better burn up his New Testament, for it is a record of Foreign Missions."

"Missionary history is a mystery until it is read as His story."

"We have given the Orient warships and telephones, steam cars and sewing machines, and silk hats, but its inhabitants are none the better for these, and except the old man be changed within, all these adventitious trappings will make him a more potent force for evil."

"If we have not enough in our religion to drive us to share it with all the church, it is doomed here at home."

"Love never asks, how much must I do? but, how much can I do?"

"You might as well try to cure small-pox by scenery, as to save the world by improvement of environment."

"The question is not, How much of my money will I give to God? but, how much of God's money will I keep for myself?"

"Doing nothing for others is the undoing of one's self."

"With God go over the sea; without Him not over the threshold."

"What I spent I had—what I kept I lost—what I gave I have."—Exchange.

NOTICE TO DELEGATES.

All delegates aiming to attend the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference at Lebanon, Nov. 18th, are requested to notify Mr. T. J. Earp, Milton, N. C., R. F. D. No. 2. Kindly state if you will be on private conveyance or go by rail. This will greatly aid the Committee on Entertainment. Please do not disregard this request.

The members of Conference who go by Greensboro, should leave Greensboro Monday, November 17, on train No. 14 at 1 p. m., or No. 36 at 1:35 p. m., for Danville, Va., and leave there on No. 6, at 4:50 p. m., Semora, N. C., where they will be met, if notified, conveyed to good homes for the night, and be ready for Conference Tuesday, November 18. Delegates from Durham and that way should go Tuesday morning, November 18, on the Norfolk and Western, to Denniston Junction, thence via Southern to Semora, arriving there at 10:07 a. m. for Conference.

J. W. PATTON, P. C.

If we would be much like Christ, we must be much with Him. If we would become transformed into His image, thoroughly made over so as to be hardly recognizable for the same, we must "with unveiled face" and unclosed eye and untiring mind and uncorrupted will tarry in His presence and look long at His glory. There is no other method. We come thus to take His point of vision in our perception of things; we acquire His habit of mind; we catch his tone; we reflect His views; we adopt His policy; we unconsciously imitate His ways. His words sing into our soul; His plans take possession of us; His very glance inspires us; His inmost purposes become our own; and, scarcely conscious of the process, without knowing when or how, we find ourselves merged into His being, copies of His character. It is somewhat thus that a devoted wife comes in time closely to resemble her husband even in face, a son the revered father, a student the adored instructor. It is not a process that can be very much hurried. Some plates are more sensitive than others to such impression. Our part is to cultivate the sensitiveness and see that there is no intermission in the exposure. Given time enough, together with steadfast resolution and a vigorous use of every available means, and the results are both sure and amazing.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

"A man is known by the company his mind keeps. To live continually with noble books, with high erected thoughts seated in the heart of courtesy, teaches the soul good manners."

I pack my troubles in as little compass as I can for myself and never let them annoy others.—Southey.

THE POST CARD.

(Continued from Page 5.)

South. The post card has helped to bring the West east, the South north, and all sections together. And more, it has crossed all the seas and made not a few acquainted with other lands and peoples.

By no means, then, should the postcard venders be ashamed of their business, nor the public ashamed of the post card habit. Rather should city and town have pride in its card scenes, whether those scenes are monuments to heroes and other persons or a team of mules pulling a load of tobacco; for there is advertisement in it, and there is business in it, and, more than all, there is education in it.

ALONZO C. HALL.

1339 Second Ave., Columbus, Ga.

SUBJECTS FOR SERMONS.

There are preachers who say that it is frequently difficult for them to get subjects for their sermons. They say that they often spend considerable time in getting such texts as suit them. Some preachers say that they gather material for a sermon by going out among their people and learning their conditions and their needs. Some prominent preachers advise others to make a practice of pastoral visitation, so that they may study the particular wants of the people, and then produce sermons which will meet those wants. I will not wholly oppose such a course, but it has never appealed to me strongly. I think that the better way is to seek for subjects in the Bible. The main business of a minister is to preach Bible truth. The Bible is the greatest book in the world for producing subjects to preach upon. I have read and studied the Bible from my youth to this day, and I am increasingly convinced that it furnishes more than enough subjects for one to preach on than he could use if he were to spend a hundred years in the work. I have written many thousands of articles for religious papers, and a large number of my subjects have come from the Bible. What a minister greatly needs to do is to daily study the Bible. He needs to depend upon the Holy Spirit to enable him to rightly see the great meanings of inspired truth. Such dependence will bring surprising results. Familiar truths will flash out unsuspected meanings. Texts for sermons will freely present themselves. Prove it! Ask the Holy Spirit to draw you to such subjects as He wants you to use, and, if you be a true preacher, He will answer your asking. He will direct you to just such texts and subjects as your people will feel the need of. Just surrender yourself to the Spirit's leadings and instructions, and you will not fail to prepare sermons which will satisfy the longings of your hearers. At the same time, make the study of the Bible your delight. Fill your soul with its truths and lessons. Thus you will be a growing preacher.

C. H. WETHERBE.

WHY I KNEW.

It was early twilight as I walked by a cottage door. A light was dimly burning on the mantel while the father and mother of that home sat under its rays looking upon the wall where a picture was hanging. That picture was that of their babe who had been transplanted as their inheritance upon the shores of a heavenly land. Then I knew why I had heard sweet music in that home and heard of its Christian influence. They were preparing to meet their treasure in that celestial city and learning how to join the heavenly choir in praise over the meeting.

C. B. RIDDLE.

Chide not with the past, but feel the present.—M. Arnold.

FOSTER'S STORY OF THE BIBLE

From Genesis to Revelation. Told in Simple Language.

ADAPTED TO ALL AGES, BUT ESPECIALLY TO THE YOUNG

By CHARLES FOSTER

Size, 6½ x 9 in.; 704 Pages; 300 Illustrations.

BEAUTIFUL COLORED PICTURES
THE BEST EASY-READING VERSION OF THE WHOLE BIBLE

It adheres most closely to the Scriptures, retaining much of their force, dignity and distinction of style, with the pure and simple wording of the English Bible, without comment or doctrinal discussion.

MOST GENERALLY USED—750,000 SOLD

Approved by eminent men of various religious denominations
Valued in thousands of homes.

FINE CLOTH, with beautiful design in three colors (shown above), $1.50

SEND US YOUR ORDERS.

Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Children's Missionary Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions For Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDREN

The
Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

See Us about Job Printing
WHEN YOU WANT GOOD WORK.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

CRADLE ROLL

DEAR CRADLE ROLL SUPERINTENDENTS:

In my last letter I mentioned to you one of the tools with which to work; i. e., the birthday cards, but before that there are many other helps in the shape of application cards, etc., that make it easy for us to secure the names of Cradle Roll scholars. I know a Sunday school which offers a reward for the name of each new scholar to the Sunday school, each new Home Department member and each new Cradle Roll baby. The marking of scholars is done on a system of merit marks, being present each Sunday counts only one point, being present on time counts three, each new Cradle Roll baby counts three, each new Home Department member counts three and each new member of the Main school counts five. At the end of the month, the marks are counted, the percentage secured, and the class making the highest number of points is declared the banner class for the month. The members of those classes carry around with them all the time application cards for Home Department and Cradle Roll members as well as invitation cards for members of the main school. One of the members of the Men's Bible class told me that last month it had resulted in a gain of forty members to their Home Department. He did not remember how many to the Cradle Roll, but a goodly number, and he laughed as he told me he had gone to the home of some people who had just moved into the locality to secure the man who was a railroader as a member of the Home Department, when to his astonishment he discovered that a New Baby had been left at the home, just about two hours before. "Before I left," said he, "I had the name of the man as a member of the Home Department and the name of the baby for the Cradle Roll."

So let us have application cards and plenty of them; whenever we hear of a new baby, send the card by some one if you find it impossible to go your self. We all like to have our children remembered, and the "early bird gets the worm" is as true in this case as in others. Then there are delightful little cards, telling the mother that her baby has been accepted as a member of the Cradle Roll of — Sunday school and there is a dear little Certificate, bearing the name of the baby, the Cradle Roll Superintendent and the Pastor. It can be rolled up and laid away for baby to keep, or it is pretty enough to frame and hang on the wall as a reminder to the parents that baby "belongs."

Then there are the birthday cards of which I spoke last week, graded for the three birthdays before baby is old enough to join the Beginners' Class, and then, for that time there is the Promotion Certificate stating that little Miss or Master is now a full fledged member of the main body of the Sunday school, officially enrolled in the Beginners' Class and will be expected to be there on Sunday to take his place in their ranks.

Here we see the need of a separate room and class for the Beginners and Primary. Our wee Beginners are babies yet after all, and our little boys and girls of six years and over are "most as big as mama." The lesson that the little ones must have is too "babyfied" to suit the Primary, nor can we expect the little Beginner to understand as much about sitting still and "behaving" as the Primary has learned. I would suggest for this period the Cradle Roll Superintendent as teacher. They know her and gravitate to her naturally, and she can care for them. Sometime we will talk more fully of the Beginners' work, even if it is not absolutely Cradle Roll work, that is, unless the Primary Superintendent gets ahead of us, and talks of it first, in which case it will be all right and we will stick to our own work.

There is still another very necessary part of the equipment, and that is the Wall Roll to hang in the Sunday school room, but our column is full, and we will talk of that some other time.

Cordially, your Cradle Roll Superintendent,
Mrs. F. BULLOCK.
R. F. D. 3, Waverly, Va.

The Southern Missionary News Bureau has been established, with headquarters at Nashville, Tenn., for the purpose of furnishing to the secular press of the South the latest news from the foreign field. This Bureau represents, and is authorized by, the M. E. Church, South, the Southern Baptist Convention and the Presbyterian Church in the United States. This Bureau is to furnish regular weekly service, free of cost, to the secular press, with the hope of increasing interest in missions.

There is a power in the peace God giveth of which the men who are rushing along the broad and dusty highway can form no idea. The meadows on which the soul refreshes itself are ever green.

Holy Bible

THE FINEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD
—FOR THE MONEY—

This Photograph represents exact size 5½ x 8½ inches

Bound in French Morocco, absolutely flexible, with overlapping covers as shown in this photograph. Has red under gold edges.

—IT CONTAINS—

The Authorized Version of the Old Testament and New Testament

—HAS—

Self-Pronouncing Text

All the proper words being accented and divided into syllables for quick and easy pronunciation.

—IT ALSO CONTAINS—

A New Series of Helps to Bible Study

—INCLUDING—

4000 Questions and Answers
which unfold the Scriptures

31 Beautiful Illustrations
showing scenes and incidents of Bible History

12 Maps of the Bible Lands in Colors

Large Clear Type Fine Paper

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN one year.
$2.50, postpaid.
Or sent alone for $1.50, postpaid.

—ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO—
The Southern Christian Pub. Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. E. M. CARTER, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

E. M. Carter, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson Chairman Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amount brought forward$3,783.26

Monthly S. S. Offering.

Sweet Valley S. S., Hanlock Creek, Pa.$1.50
B. E. Stephens, Roanoke, Ala. 1.62
Dendron, Va., S. S. 1.60
Lambert's Point Va., S. S. 2.80
New Lebanon Baraca Cls. 1.05
New Lebanon S. S.69
Wake Chapel 3.98
Wadley, Ala., S. S. 1.15
New Hope Valley, Va.76
Pleasant Grove, Va. 1.00
Rose Hill, Columbus, Ga. .82
Oak Grove, N. C.50
First Church, Norfolk ... 1.85
Special.
Mrs. Bettie Cates 2.00 21.32

$3,804.58

Dear Children of the Band of Cousins:—Where are you all this week? Not a single letter to greet "Uncle Jim," and bid him welcome to the "Corner." But perhaps you did not know he was coming this week; or did not quite understand how to address him. So he will excuse you this time if you will promise to do better in the future.

We want 100 cousins to write each month. That will give us twenty-five nice, bright letters each week, and an income of $10 per month. Then we would have a cheerful, sunny "Corner," and enough money to undertake some needed improvements of our own. I have a number of things to suggest that are badly needed. If you would like for the Band of Cousins to undertake some specific work write me and I will suggest some things that you will delight in doing for our orphanage family.

With love for each "Cousin," and an appreciative interest in your work in behalf of the Orphanage I am

Your new "Uncle Jim."

JUST A WORD TO THE CHURCH.

I am undertaking for you the difficult and responsible task of superintending your Orphanage. In this capacity I promise to serve faithfully to the best of my ability, and do all in my power to promote the interest of the institution and each child committed to its care. To do this I shall need your prayers, sympathy, and co-operation. It is a more difficult task, perhaps, than many have yet realized, to feed, clothe and educate—mentally, morally and spiritually—fifty-nine children. We shall endeavor to train their minds, develop the characters, and prepare them for places of usefulness in the church and state. We have a most excellent teacher whose heart is in the work, and she is doing everything in her power to properly train the mind and develop the character of each girl and boy in the institution.

I have been so very busy in getting moved and located that I have not yet familiarized myself with every detail of the work. I trust you will bear patiently with me until I shall have opportunity to learn the work better. A number of valuable packages have been received, for which we are very thankful. We will report them next week. We are too busy to write more at this time. Thanking you in advance for the loyal support and hearty co-operation that I expect to receive, I beg to be

Your humble servant,

J. O. Cox, Superintendent.

MRS JOHN DREW BETTER.

McLeansboro, Ill.—"About five years ago," says Mrs. John L. Drew, of this place, "I was afflicted with pains and irregularity every month. I suffered continually, was weak and despondent, and unable to do my housework. I took Cardui, and in one month, I felt like a new woman and worked hard all summer. I am now in perfect health, and recommend Cardui to all suffering women." Every day, during the past 50 years, Cardui has been steadily forging ahead as a result of its proven value in female troubles. It relieves headache, backache, womanly misery and puts fresh strength into weary bodies. Try it.

Adv.

WINTERSMITH'S
NO CURE
NO PAY
CHILL TONIC
FOR Malaria
In All Its Forms

and for the most obstinate cases of chills. Wards off fevers and liver troubles by keeping the system toned up and vitalized. Oldest and best for family use. Contains no arsenic or opiates. Pleasant to take. Harmless for children. Sold and guaranteed by your druggist.

General Tonic

Arthur Peter & Company,
Louisville, Kentucky

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days, usually gives entire relief 15 to 45 days and effects cure 30 to 60 days. Write for trial treatment free.
Dr. E. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box 11, ATLANTA, GA.

CHILLS AND FEVER OR ANY FEVER

QUICKLY YIELD IF
TREATED WITH
30 YEARS OF SUCCESS
IN CURING FOLKS

JOHNSON'S TONIC

SAVE YOUR CLOTHING

We can help you. Thousands of dollars worth of Women's and Men's clothing is every year thrown away for no fault except stain, or streak, or spot that would readily yield to our Dry Cleaning process and at a merely nominal expense :-:-:-

WE DRY CLEAN AND DYE SUCCESSFULLY

GENTLEMEN'S	Suits	LADIES'	Coat Suits
	Overcoats		Skirts
	Vests		Waists
	Trousers		Dresses
	Coats		Sweaters
	Ties		Gowns, Evening and Reception Wrappers
	Hats (Cleaned)

We Clean and Dye household Draperies, Plumes, Gloves. We clean Automobile Coats, Furs, Rugs and Corsets in a superior manner. We use the genuine French method of Dry Cleaning. We are responsible and experienced. We refer to any Bank or citizen of Greensboro :-:-:-

COLUMBIA LAUNDRY CO.

106 Fayetteville Street
GREENSBORO, N. C.

Look at These

An opportunity of glorious elegance, the kind that the somest made Rapids of the furniture industry, and shipped to you direct, without a cent of profit to the dealer or the wholesaler, or loss from bad accounts or damaged goods, or cost of store rooms and warehouses. When you buy of us remember you are buying furniture, nothing more. Thus you get the greatest values. For instance, the elegant table above, in handiwork design and finish, best quartered oak, is shipped to you for $33.75. It is an ornament to any home. Many others of equal beauty for like low prices.

No. 293

Chair 590

Or this elegant rocker, No. 565, in genuine leather, for $18.90. If you prefer the plain wood, back and arms, No. 590, for only $8.75. Hundreds of other designs, every one as handsome as art and skill and selected materials can make it, for equally low prices. Elegant parlor, dining room and bedroom sets, refrigerators, kitchen cabinets, hall furniture, etc.

Chair 565

Every piece is a quality proposition, too.

A Principle to Stand On

Like knights of old, we stand for a principle and challenge all who dispute it to a trial. That principle is that

1. We send you better furniture at the price than retail houses can offer you.

2. We ask a less price for good furniture than retail houses can afford.

And we absolutely guarantee our furniture, shipping it on approval. Get our beautiful Arts and Crafts catalogue—it costs you nothing but the request, and is a compendium of house-furnishing information.

Quality Furniture Co.

No. 1116 Quality Bldg., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Formerly Grand Rapids Furniture Manufacturing Company.

STOMACH SUFFERERS Gallstone Victims

If you have pains in Right Side, Back, Under Shoulders, Pit of Stomach, Colic, Gas, Stomach Trouble, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Dizzy Spells, Nervousness, Bad Color, Blues, Costiveness, Yellow Jaundice, Torpid Liver, Appendicitis or Gallstones, send today for our LIVER-GALL BOOK FREE

Gallstone Remedy Co., Dept. 610, 219 S. Dearborn St., Chicago

"Where There's a Will There's a Way"

STUDY AT HOME

Hundreds of Dixie's Future Lawyers and Expert Legal Men Will Be Trained By Mail.

Many young Southern men cannot afford to attend a resident law school or give up their work to gain a law education. There are hundreds of these ambitious young men today,—some farming, some clerking and some in business for themselves—who in the privacy of their own homes during leisure hours, are taking a course in law, upon which the greatest resident school in the world could not improve. If you have not had a chance to go to school, learn about the famous

LA SALLE HOME STUDY LAW COURSE

Let us tell you how to utilize your spare moments in preparing yourself for a great profession—how to stand and pass the bar examinations in your state—how the greatest course in law procedure ever prepared will fit you for the Bar and make you a success in business life.

VALUABLE LAW GUIDE FREE

Our big 112 page prospectus shows what we have done for thousands of others and what we can do for you. It is a complete guide in law study, and tells everything about it in clear, simple terms. Write for it, and take the first step toward securing a diploma and the degree of LL. B. Write at once.

La Salle Extension University
Dept. 84, Chicago, Ill.

This Is the IRON
Such a Comfort for YOU!

No more to fuss over, no wires or tubing to bother with, no tiresome steps and aching back. A penny's worth of gasoline is enough for the family ironing with a

Sun
SELF-HEATING IRON

Alcohol or Gasoline—Full Nickel Square Back and Double Pointed Styles. Irons better and saves your time. Always ready for use indoors or out. Saves its cost in fuel alone over and over again. Lasts a life time. Sold on Trial and Guaranteed. If your dealer does not sell "SUN IRONS" write us for DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULAR AND OUR SPECIAL FIRST ORDER TRIAL OFFER. Agents Wanted MODERN SPECIALTIES MFG. CO. 129 High St., South Bend, Ind.

NEW FEATHER BEDS ONLY $6.50. Full weight 36 pounds. New, clean and odorless. 6-pound Pillows $1.08 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for FREE catalogue. Address SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 1005, Greensboro, N. C.

THE ISSUE.

It is Catholic Politics—the mad desire of the Roman Hierarchy to dominate the civil governments of the world, and especially that of the United States of America—that is drawing our fire so vigorously on Romanism. Notwithstanding that Catholic leaders try to mask their batteries and create the impression that Protestantism and patriotic non-Catholics are fighting Roman Catholicism solely because of the innate devil that possesses them, the masses are waking up to the truth that papal politics is the issue between the Roman hierarchy and every champion of religious Liberty. Everybody including all Catholics who are conversant with the history of their church, are aware that the Catholic church is a vast, soulless political machine. Everybody that has read the impartial chronicles of the events of the past knows that it has ever been the merciless policy of the Catholic church to crush to death everything that disputes its progress, ecclesiastically and temporally. The annals of the centuries are an indisputable witness against it as a murderer of individuals and a wrecker of governments. The bones of those it has put to death through religious persecution and to sate its greed for political power would bleach the whole face of Europe. And it is one of the Catholic hierarchy's proud boasts that the church of Rome never changes—that it has been the same since organization, and will be the same on to the end of the world. Then the only thing that prevents it from establishing again its murderous Inquisition in all the countries of the world is its lack of political power. Political power—that is what Rome craves and worships! If the Roman Catholic hierarchy had the political power what would it not do? Would your life and ours be safe? Go to history for your answer. Go ask the millions Catholicism has slain in the name of religion to make its political policy supreme upon earth. Great God, deliver the United States of America from ever coming completely into the clutches of the Roman Beast!—Red Light.

RAILROAD TRAVEL.

Interesting illustrations of the great degree of safety attending travel on American railways are given by a prominent newspaper in an article based on Interstate Commerce Commission figures which show that during the six year period, 1905-1911, only one passenger out of every 74,736 received injury of any kind and only one out of every 2,275,123 was killed.

Commenting upon these figures this paper says:

"A typical journey for all roads in the country is now 34 miles, and there are taken on the average 2,275,122 such journeys in safety to each journey which results fatally. If a man were to ride out these 2,275,122 safe journeys at two per day for each business day in the year, it would take him 3,792 years. To have begun in time to meet his death in 1914, he would have had to start in the year 1778 B. C., 458 years before Moses led the Children of Israel through the Red Sea. By 750 B. C., when Romulus was "regulating" Reigns by modern methods, the commuter would have ridden 21,000,000 miles, and have had 56,300,000 yet to go. When Phidias, in 460 B. C., was carving the Olympian Zeus, our wayfarer would have been but one-third of the way toward his death; and even in the year 890 A. D., when Alfred the Great was letting the griddle cakes burn, this traveler would have spent the equivalent of 207 years on the trains running at 30 miles an hour, and would have had 87 years more of actual travel to spend before meeting his fatal accident."

DR. J. H. BROOKS,Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

LOW CO. LIGHT for YOU

No Smoke, No Dirt, No Odor—A convenient lamp for every purpose. For the Home, Office or Store. Costs 1-3 cents a hour—200 candle-power—a fit yet brilliant light. Agents make money—men or women—quick, easy, sure. All year business—Experience Not Necessary. They buy on sight. Every home a prospect. Write today for free description and agents' proposition.

ACORN BRASS MFG. CO., Dept. 29, Aurora, Ill.
Mfrs. Gasoline Lights—every description, for every purpose.

MORPHINE WHISKEY and TOBACCO

HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanatorium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARCROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

SEABOARD AIR LINE BY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.
Trains Leave Raleigh.
Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81	4:35 a. m.
No. 29	Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41	4:10 p. m.
No. 43	6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH.

No. 84	12:48 a. m.
No. 38	11:35 a. m.
No. 66	12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

NATIONAL CONSERVATION EXPOSITION

Knoxville, Tenn., September 1st to November 1st, 1913.

Southern Railway announces the sale of very low round trip tickets for the above occasion. Tickets will be on sale daily up to November 1st, 1913.

Ask your agent, or write the undersigned for complete information, Pullman reservations, etc.

J. O. JONES,
Traveling Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work.
We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.
Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles,
Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

—HIGH CLASS—

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET.

BURLINGTON, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf.

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly.

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

CHURCH RECEPTION FOR MISSIONARIES.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Honor Guests at Christian Temple, Norfolk.

On Monday evening the members of the Memorial Christian Temple tendered a reception in honor of Rev. and Mrs. D. P. Barrett of Ponce, Porto Rico. The lecture room and reception hall of the church were tastefully decorated for the occasion with the national colors, potted plants and flowers. Those receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Barrett were Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Denison, Dr. M. T. Morrill and Mr. N. Rathbun of Dayton, Ohio; Mrs. J. W. White and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Pitt.

The program for the evening was as follows:

Opening prayer—Rev. J. W. Harrell, D. D.

Vocal duet (in Spanish)—Misses Alice and Olyn Barrett.

Address—Rev. M. T. Morrill, D. D.

Piano Solo—Miss Lucile Bowden.

Address—Rev. D. P. Barrett.

Presentation of flowers to Mrs. Barrett—Mrs. J. W. White, president Missionary Society.

Address and presentation of purse—Rev. W. H. Denison, D. D.

At the close of the program refreshments were served.

Among those present were Rev. M. T. Morrill, D. D., of Dayton, Ohio, who has just returned from a trip to Japan in the interest of the Christian foreign mission work; Mr. N. Rathbun, of Dayton, Ohio; Rev. G. D. Eastee, of Sublett, Ill.; Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Harrell, of Portsmouth, Va.; Rev. D. A. Keys, pastor of South Norfolk Christian church; Rev. W. H.

Garman, pastor of Lamberts Point Christian church, and quite a number from the Third Christian church, Park Place, Norfolk, Va.

No man has come to true greatness who has not felt in some degree that his life belongs to his race, and that what God gives him, he gives him for mankind.—Philips Brooks.

$150.00 SALARY For 60 days' work distributing religious literature. No experience or investment necessary. Promotion to broader field for those who show ability. Spare time work if you prefer.

J. S. ZIEGLER CO., 801 Como Block, Chicago

ECZEMA BOOK FREE.

The National Skin Hospital, located at 121 Main Street, St. Joseph, Mo., who treat skin diseases, only, have published a book of more than sixty pages which they are mailing free to anyone writing for it. It has many colored plates showing the different forms of skin diseases and tells how they can be treated at home. Anyone interested should write for it at once.

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

THE BEST Sunday School Help

If you are a Sunday school teacher or pupil you should desire the best possible help. This you will find in one volume, Peloubet's Select Notes on the International Lessons for 1914. Send in your order now. Up to January 1 you can get a copy for $1.00, after that time, $1.25. The publishers' price is $1.25, but we save you 25 cents by ordering from us. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

The Southern Christian Publishing Company,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Builds Up

Go to your doctor first. Secure his approval. Then follow his advice. Take no medicine the doctors will not approve.

J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a tonic. It does not stimulate. It does not make you feel better one day, then as bad as ever, or even worse, the next day. There is not a drop of alcohol in it. You have the steady, even gain that comes from a strong tonic. Sold for sixty years.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of higher education fostered by the Southern Christian Convention.

MODERN IN EQUIPMENT, Steam Heat, Electric Lights, Baths, Sewerage, Elegant New Buildings.

A HIGH GRADE INSTITUTION whose graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great American Universities without examination.

MAINTAINS EXCELLENT MUSIC, Art, Elocution, Normal, and Preparatory Departments.

A FACULTY OF SEVENTEEN SPECIALISTS, with a successful record of twenty-three years behind it.

HAS ALL THE ADVANTAGES of city life with none of its disadvantages. Situated in the delightful hill country of North Carolina, famed for its healthfulness, pure water, and high moral tone.

ELON COLLEGE HAS DONE MORE to build up the Christian Church than any institution ever yet commissioned by our people.

TERMS VERY MODERATE. $141 to $191 per session of ten school months.

For catalogue or other information, address,

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, Elon College, N. C.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLE

LARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10 1/2 x 12 1/2 in.

Contains in addition to the Authorized Old and New Testaments, all the Sayings of Christ in Red; The Temple Library at Nippur; Names and Order of the Books of the Bible; Maps of Bible Lands; Pronouncing Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names; Comparative Systems of Scripture Chronology; History of the Period from the Close of the Sacred Canon of the Old Testament until the Times of the New Testament; Illuminated Marriage Certificate and Family Record; Chronological Index to the Bible; Concordance; Full-Page Dore Pictures, Half-Tones and in Colors, etc.

No. 820 P. R. L. Bound in IMITATION OF LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Gilt Titles, Marbled Edges. (Weight, 12 lbs.) $2.10

No. 822 P. R. L. Bound in SEMBLE LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Full Gilt Sides and Back, Gilt Edges. (Weight, 13 lbs.) 2.85

No. 823 P. R. L. Bound in AMERICAN MOROCCO, Padded Sides, Rounded Corners on Cover, Gold Side & Back Titles, Gold Edges. (Weight, 15 lbs.) 5.00

HOLMAN RED LETTER SELF-PRONOUNCING

TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5 1/2 x 7 3/4 inches.

THE TYPE.
23 The Bāb-ŷ-lō' nī-anḡ, and all the Chāl-dē-anḡ, 'Pē-kōd, and Shō'a, and Kō'a, and all the Ās-sŷr'l-anḡ with

No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges $2.50

No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges 3.00

Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENT

SELF-PRONOUNCING

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Daintiest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2 3/4 x 4 1/4 inches.

THE TYPE.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Je'sus is the

No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges. .50

No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms. .75

Postage, 3 Cents.

No. 013 R. L.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

A STORY A DAY.

A story a day for the 365 days of 1914—that is part of what you get by subscribing $2.00 for The Youth's Companion's new volume. The fifty-two weekly issues of The Companion will contain at least 365 stories, and all the other kinds of good reading that can be crowded between two covers—the best advice on athletics for boys, articles on dress and recreations for girls, contributions by famous men and women, suggestions for the care of the health, etc.

For the year's subscription there is included a copy of The Companion Practical Home Calendar for 1914, and all the issues for the remaining weeks of this year, dating from the time the subscription is received.

If you want to know more about The Companion before subscribing, send for sample copies containing the opening chapters of Arthur Stanwood Pier's fine serial of life in a boys' school—"His Father's Son." With them we will send the full Announcement for 1914.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION,
144 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass.
New Subscriptions Received at this Office.

"Learn as if to live forever; live as if to die tomorrow." It is a motto that no young man can take without lifting his life to a higher level of thought and action.

FARADAY'S GREATEST DISCOVERY.

Michael Faraday, pioneer scientist and originator of wonderful magnetic apparatus, discovered a principle in health restoration that is worth more to the world than all his other discoveries, great as they may be. It is simply this: That the body itself burns out all impurities when the supply of oxygen is sufficient, and that the supply of oxygen may be augmented by a device of the proper kind.

As to the first principle, practically all who know anything about the aeration of the blood admit that the amount of oxygen consumed has a direct relation upon the health, the elimination of waste matter and bodily impurities through this method being the surest safeguard for health, and, further, that this elimination is accomplished as much by the skin as by the lungs. Both are essential to proper use of oxygen, and the failure of either to work properly results in a clogged system that eventually spells disaster.

On the second principle the wonderful effects of an appliance that so regulates the polarity of the body as to permit the absorption of as great quantity of oxygen as needed are rapidly becoming known to all, and eminent scientists gladly admit that Nature has been enabled by this appliance to overcome nearly all diseases. This treatment is so superior to drugs that any sufferer who hopes for a cure ought to investigate its merits. A specially prepared booklet that tells of its workings will be sent free to any inquirer. This book has pointed the way to health to thousands of sufferers, and is certainly worthy your investigation. Write to the Carolina Oxypathor Company, Raleigh, N. C., and learn of this way to health. It costs you nothing to find out, and there certainly is a wonderful record of success in its history in hundreds of cases of sufferers cured, right in North Carolina, and not one instance of harm can be induced. Adv.

Burn Out the Waste

If you would have that abounding health, that vigor that acclaims every hour a joy and every action a pleasure, that keen physical trim that makes your brain the sharpest instrument known and your thought alive with power—if in simple words, you would be well, with all that that term implies,

Study Nature's Way

What is it? Nature burns the waste products of your body, and to the extent to which this literal fire cleans away all waste and impurity are you well. If you can aid Nature so that she can burn out all impurity, you will have perfect health. It is the effete matter, the waste product of the various bodily processes, that poisons you and makes you ill. Eliminate it, and health is yours.

There is only one way to get it out of your system. Drugs cannot do it. Food regulation cannot do it. Bodily hygiene cannot do it, though it helps. You must

Supply The System With More Fuel

What is that fuel? Any physician will tell you it is Oxygen. Therefore increase the supply of Oxygen available, and it will burn out the impurities and leave your body clean and well, as it is intended to be.

The only method that is known to increase the supply of Oxygen for the body is by the use of the OXYPATHOR

There is no guesswork about this. Proper and persistent use of this wondrous discovery will restore health to nearly any one, and is sure to aid any recent illness. Don't wait until you are a wreck, but help Nature now to clean up the premises and burn the refuse. It is your best and least expensive way to health.

Let us send you further particulars of this wonderful health restorer and builder. It costs you nothing to know, and thousands cured rejoice every day over the fact that they inquired.

We have a booklet to give you that proves the truth of what we say. Take nothing for granted. Clinch every fact by real testimony. Get the book and then yourself study out the reason why and get well. Write the CAROLINA OXYPATHOR CO., Raleigh, N. C.

Note that it does not matter what your illness is. This remedy does not treat illnesses. It aids Nature to throw them off entirely.

Responsible men and women of character and ability are wanted in every community to represent us. A high class, congenial and remunerative proposition for the right man or woman.

Pellagra Is Corrected.

Send for booklet that tells how to recover from this dread disease, with testimonials of those aided.

Infantile Paralysis.
Child was helpless—now she can walk.
C. H. Smith, Raleigh, North Carolina.

Rheumatism Cured.
It has made a new man of me.—M. M. Ketchie, China Grove North Carolina.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books: Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Eaton College, N. C.

Cancer Cured at the Kellam Hospital

The record of the Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having cured to stay cured permanently, without the use of the Knife, Acids or X Ray, over 90 per cent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from Cancer which it has treated during the past eighteen years. We have been endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. Physicians treated free. KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St. Richmond, Va. Write for Literature.

JOHN R. FOSTER S. A. CAVENESS
BILL PAYABLE FIRST OF EVERY WEEK
Greensboro, N. C. 9/22/1913
Catterson Bros Inc
Greensboro, N. C.
BOUGHT OF
FOSTER AND CAVENESS

FRUITS & PRODUCE

WHOLESALE GROCERIES

PHONES 751 AND 752

All Claims for Deduction must be made on Receipt of Goods.

One Barrel of Apples $6.00

That is what good nursery stock plus good care gets for a man right at home.

What he has done you can do as well. If you want to know how to make your land yield a good income, send for the Fruit and Ornamental book No. 207, published by the J. Van Lindley Nursery Company, Pomona, N. C. With the Piedmont grown nursery stock they have to sell, any man of average judgment can raise money-bearing fruit trees.

CANCER

FREE TREATISE
The Leach Sanatorium, Indianapolis, Ind., has published a booklet which gives interesting facts about the cause of Cancer, also tells what to do for pain, bleeding, odor, etc. Write for it today, mentioning this paper.

FOR FEVERISHNESS AND ACHING

whether from Malarious conditions, Colds or overheating, try Hicks' CAPUDINE. It reduces the fever and relieves the aching. It's Liquid—10, 25 and 50 cents at Drug Stores

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Beaird.

Ellen Beaird was born July 24, 1845, and died Sept. 11, 1913. She leaves to mourn their loss, husband and five children. Also many relatives and friends join in sorrow over the loss of this good woman.

She professed religion when quite young, and remained a loyal member of the church till death. Her life was one of humble service to others, and she was loved by all who knew her. In the departure of this Christian woman, the family, the church, and community sustain a heavy loss.

The beautiful flowers at the grave told the high esteem and love of relatives and friends. She was buried in Bethel Cemetery at Welsh, in the presence of a large number of people who had come to pay their last tribute of respect, September 12, 1913. May the Lord sustain those whose hearts are heavy.

NANNIE CARDEN.

Roanoke, Alabama.

Albright.

Near Siler City, Chatham county, N. C., October 22, 1913, Mrs. Barbara Ann Albright, widow of Easton Albright, to whom she was married December 24, 1850, aged 81 years, 11 months and 16 days. Deceased was a sister of W. H. Trolinger of Haw River, N. C., and the last except him of a family of eleven children. She was an aunt of J. C. Holt and Jas. G. Holt of Burlington, and John Trolinger of Haw River, N. C. She had been an invalid more than twenty years. She put her faith in God many years ago, and was ready and willing to depart in peace. Two daughters and many friends are bereaved by her death. Funeral and interment at Pleasant Hill Christian church conducted by Rev. J. W. Holt.

J. W. HOLT.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas: Our faithful and beloved brother, Deacon L. O'Keen, has by the Providence of an all-wise Ruler been removed from our midst to his reward, therefore we, the Deacons of Hebron Christian Church, submit these resolutions:

First—That while we shall miss the example, devotion, faithfulness and wise council we have to the all-wise Ruler of one being, and recognize that this dispensation of Providence is for the infinite good of our departed brother.

Second—That we strive to imitate his devotion to his church and his duty and keep the good influences of his life alive in our midst.

Third—That a copy of these resolutions be spread on our minutes, one sent to the bereaved family, and one sent to The Christian Sun for publication.

P. A. BOYD,
R. C. OVERBEY,
J. J. WILLIAMSON,
Deacons.

MARRIAGES

Bloxton-Everett.

On Saturday, October 4, 1913, Mr. William M. Ashby Bloxton and Miss Adelaide Lee Everett were united in marriage at the parsonage of the Memorial Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va., by the writer. Miss Everett is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Everett and is a member of the Berea, Nansemond, Christian Church. Prof. Bloxton is a member of the faculty of William and Mary College, and they will make their home in Williamsburg, Va. We wish for them happy, useful lives.

WARREN H. DENISON.

A CALL TO ARMS.

Montesquieu says: "If a Republic be small it is destroyed by a foreign force; if it be large it is ruined by internal imperfection."

Whereas: the liquor traffic is responsible for most of the want, misery and degradation in the world, and it exists in our land by legislative enactment. We hereby highly resolve that we will vote for no man or party who does not publicly pledge himself to the enactment and enforcement of laws for the suppression of the saloon and its attendant evils. Being confident that the citizens of our beloved land, who believe in the high ideals of Washington and Lincoln and the compatriots, can stand on this resolution; and standing so, can demand recognition in the party platforms and line up at the ballot box and settle it right, in State and Nation as well as in hamlet and town. What say you? Does this appeal to you? Are you for or against such a line-up?—
L. F. Gumhart.

SHE WAS SMOTHERING.

Rockford, Ala.—Mrs. M. C. Paschal, of this place, says: "I was taken with nervous prostration, and had headache, backache, pains in my right side, and smothering spells. I called in physicians to treat my case, but without relief. Finally, I tried Cardui, and it gave perfect satisfaction. I recommend it to every sick woman." Are you weak, tired, worn-out? Do you suffer from any of the pains peculiar to weak women? Cardui has a record of over fifty years in relieving such troubles, and will certainly benefit you. It prevents those frequent headaches, and keeps you up, out of bed, feeling fresh and happy. Try Cardui. ad

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair. 50c and $1.00 at Druggists.

Save 50% of Your Painting Cost

You can do this and at the same time get richer, handsomer, and more lasting colors and thorough preservation of the wood by using the ideal Southern colorings. These Stains are made of the strongest and finest natural pigments mixed into a liquid vehicle of refined creosote, "the best wood preservative known." Paint now costs more than ever before, but this Stain costs less than half as much and can be put on twice as fast, using a wide, flat brush or even a spraying machine. This saves you half the cost of both material and labor and gives you much more beautiful coloring effects. The colors sink into the wood, forming no painty skin or coating over the surface and therefore cannot crack or peel off as paint does in the South. The Creosote in Cabot's Stains penetrates deeply and preserves the wood against decay and insects. These Stains are used for all kinds of woodwork, on houses, bungalows, barns, fences, etc., and are the cheapest, most artistic, and most durable colorings for Southern use. Be sure that you get the genuine Cabot's Creosote Stains.

Cabot's Creosote Stains

Stained with Cabot's Creosote Stains
Bonjoe & Elliott, Architects, Tampa, Fla.

Stained with Cabot's Creosote Stains
William Leslie Wellon, Architect, Birmingham, Ala.

Send for samples and full information

Samuel Cabot, Inc., Manufacturing Chemists Boston, Mass.

NORTH CAROLINA DISTRIBUTORS

B. F. WITHERS, Charlotte
PECK & HOLLOWAY, Wilmington
T. H. BRIGGS & SON, Raleigh
BUILDERS SUPPLY CO., Greensboro
CLARK HARDWARE CO., Hendersonville

CITIZENS LUMBER CO., Asheville
R. E. WILEY, Southern Pines
BROWN-ROGERS CO., Winston-Salem
PUBLIC HARDWARE CO., Durham
ROWAN HDW. & FURNITURE CO., Salisbury

MEDICAL COLLEGE OF THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA CHARLESTON, S. C.

Owned and Controlled by the State.
Medicine and Pharmacy.

Session opens October 1st, 1913, ends June 4th, 1914. Unsurpassed clinical advantages offered by the new Roper Hospital, one of the largest and best equipped hospitals in the South. Extensive outdoor and Dispensary service under control of Faculty. Ten appointments each year for graduates in medicine for hospital and Dispensary service. Medical and Pharmaceutical Laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped. Department of Physiology and Embryology in affiliation with the Charleston Museum. Practical work for medical and pharmaceutical students a special feature. Eight full-time teachers in the laboratory branches.

For Catalogue Address

OSCAR W. SCHLEETER, Registrar,
Corner Queen and Franklin Streets, CHARLESTON, S. C.

THE WILLIAMS PORTABLE MILL CORN

The Most Perfect Bread Meal and Feed Mill in the World

Handsome
Offer to Dealers

HUNDREDS of Williams Mills have been sold on an iron clad guarantee to perform absolutely as we claim, or mill taken back and money refunded. To date, we have not a single dissatisfied customer.

If you want the finest, softest, round sweet meal for yourself, or wish to make the most money by public grinding, get a Williams. The pebble stone grit burrs will outgrind and outwear any other burr. No other mill has patent device to prevent hard substances from injuring burrs. So constructed that burrs cannot run together when grain gives out—an exclusive feature. Equipped with cleaning fans, new feeding device and sifter. Strong and durable as steel. Low first cost. Ask your dealer or write us at once for free catalog and full particulars.

WILLIAMS MILL MANUFACTURING CO.,
41 Main Street, Ronda, North Carolina.

WANTED Several honest industrious people to distribute religious literature.
Write Prof. Nichols
Box 42, Naperville, Ill.
Salary $60 A MONTH

YUM FOR HEADACHE
"HASN'T FAILED YET"

6 lb Pair of Pillows Free!

We again make our unparalleled offer of free pillows with your order enclosing $10 for our famous 36-lb. feather bed. All made of new sanitary feathers; best ticking and equipped with sanitary ventilators. Freight prepaid. Delivery guaranteed. Money back if not satisfied. Agents make big money. Turner & Corwell, Dep. A-O Memphis, Tenn. or Dept. A-O CHARLOTTE, N. C.

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., NOVEMBER 5, 1913

NO. 45

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Carelessness.

Suppose the wealth absolutely wasted by carelessness were saved and invested in extending the kingdom of righteousness, in carrying the message of the Cross to those who have never heard it, what would happen? Treasuries could not contain it. In the month of September fire losses in Canada and the United States amounted to $17,919,300. Multiply that by twelve and you have a property loss by fire that can not be comprehended, and much of this loss, the greater portion of it we are assured, is from sheer carelessness. This is indeed a costly indulgence, and one that might be remedied to a degree. If we don't want to increase the world's great waste let us resolve to be less careless and less slovenly. There is economy in carefulness.

Silent Voices.

Who had thought the air about us was pregnant with speech and vibrant with the energy of human utterance? When the Volturno was burning and sinking at sea, with her vast cargo of human beings, the powers of the vibrant air were called into requisition through the instrumentality of Marconi's wireless telegraphy, and the nearest ship to the ill-fated craft, seventy miles away, caught up the notes of distress that had been sounded far and wide and sent them with new and redoubled emphasis to all the rovers of the sea within reach or range. In a few hours ample help was alongside the sinking ship, and not a life was lost after the first rescuing ship arrived. But for this wireless equipment the Volturno with her human cargo had gone down to her watery grave, and the world would never have known even whither and how it went. Among the inestimable blessings and benefits to man conferred in our day and time must be counted wireless telegraphy.

A Holiday.

Here is a proposed holiday that is worth while. Winston Churchill, first Lord of the British Admiralty, speaking for all England, the queen of the seas, makes this proposition to Germany, her greatest rival and to the world: "Next year we are to build four great ships to Germany's two. Now in all sincerity and friendship to our great neighbor we offer: If you will put off beginning to build your two ships for twelve months we will put off in absolute good faith the building of our four ships for exactly the same period. This will mean a complete holiday for a year so far as big ships are concerned, and by this spread of the appropriations Germany would save nearly $30,000,000 and Great Britain $60,000,000, and the relative strength of the two countries at the end of three years would be absolutely unchanged." A New York paper declares this to be "the most momentous declaration of the new century emanating from a member of a responsible government." Our government, through Secretary Bryan, has declared again and again for "peace," and it seems that the responsible nations want peace, but danger lurks, and nations will not yet trust each other. This holiday of a year, entailing as it does the saving of millions of money, seems a most sane and seasonable thing, and surely it will be agreed upon.

Catholics and Children.

If Protestants understood as do Catholics, the worth of children, and in like measure emphasized this worth, Protestantism would be gaining in numbers, prestige and power more rapidly than it is. It may not be generally known, amongst Protestants, that by a decree of the Pope in recent years, no marriage between a Catholic and a Protestant is legal unless a prenuptial contract is entered into to the effect that if there be children from such a marriage they shall be brought up solely in the Catholic faith. Recently all bishops have been required to report for their dioceses the number of mixed marriages in the last ten years and the effect on the faith of the parties married and the education of their children. Much has been done in recent years to emphasize childhood, and the importance of training children, but not yet enough in Protestant families. Be it remembered that the child is father to the man. Our Savior recognized the worth of children and said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of heaven" (Mark 10:14). All our Christian churches need to comprehend, as they have not done, the weight and the worth of childhood—the most important period of all earthly existence.

Magazines and Profanity.

The New York Christian Advocate, in a recent issue, calls attention to the alarming and altogether unpardonable increase in the use of profanity in the magazines. In a recent magazine article of twenty-one pages, written by a woman, a magazine of the supposedly highest type, in price, print and quality, the editor counted thirty profane expressions, besides a long list of ordinary by-words, vulgar and slang phrases. The writer then adds: "Swearing men, who lay claim to respectability, suppress their oaths or choose their auditors, and swearing women, we trust, are few and far between. But a swearing magazine insinuates itself into our homes and among our children under the guise of respectability, professing to be above the use of slang, and yet swearing like a gamin or a pirate. Is this literary? Is this entertaining?" It can be only to those who love indecency more than decency, and filth rather than cleanliness. A magazine that swears has no more right in an orderly and sober household than has a vulgar man who would come in before father and mother and children and wilfully utter vile oaths. A magazine, no more than a person, is above that commandment which says: "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain: for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain." If your magazine is profane, cast it from your library as you would a profane person who dared his sacrilege there.

When the Wicked Rule.

Mexico is in the throes of political upheaval and civil strife. A tyrant with a hand of iron and a heart of steel has made himself dictator. As a result the people groan and matters go from bad to worse. Huerta has usurped power by blood-shed and by violence, destroyed free speech among people and in press, has jeopardized the lives and property of foreigners, and has betrayed in every way the best interests of his country and the people over whom he was chosen to preside as President. His conduct since he has been in office has been a crime against his country and a stench in the nostrils of decency and civilization. The curse of Mexico, as every one knows, is Catholicism, and the scourge of that land is Huerta. Huerta, the tyrant, is Rome's latest gift to the government of nations, and the present fratricidal war in Mexico is a creature of Rome's own hatching. The masses of the people of fertile Mexico are intensely and stupidly ignorant. Rome made them so, knowing that her only hope of supremacy there was in keeping them so. The Mexicans are superstitious and are incapable of settling their difficulties, governing themselves or solving their political problems. The Roman Catholic Church has made them so, and is now waging a desperate warfare to keep them so. All men who read and think must know Rome and Rome alone must answer at the bar of eternal justice for every drop of blood that is shed, every vile deed done, and every life that is slain in the present struggle in Mexico. And what Catholicism has done, and is doing, in poor, bleeding, despot-ridden Mexico she would do, if she could, in every land beneath the sun. We do not deny that there are good and devout men and women in the Roman Catholic Church; and that in this faith hospitals have been built, deeds of mercy done, men snatched from death and ruin, and millions given to charity: but when all this has been said, the fact remains and cannot be eradicated, that the blackest hand ever raised for cunning and for cruelty to man was raised in the name of Rome, and the most pernicious and subtle philosophy ever thought out for the peril and the poison of the human mind was thought out and wrought out for and in the name of Rome. Not one, but ten thousand facts of history more than sustain this awful declaration. While Rome rules among the nations of the world permanent peace cannot come and men cannot be free. The logical and the inevitable outcome of Rome's philosophy is tyranny, and the result of its system and its teaching is ignorance, oppression and stupidity to the masses.

EDITORIAL

THE MISSIONARY AWAKENING.

We received today a page of printed matter, several columns, sent out by the Southern Missionary News Bureau, First National Bank Building, Nashville, Tennessee. The topics treated are such as, "Where the Unreached Millions of the World are Waiting," "Conditions of Women in the Land of the Southern Cross," "Floating Bible House in China," "Challenge to Young Men," and so forth. This service is to be furnished gratis to the daily papers, morning and evening.

If you will notice your Sunday paper closely enough—there is so much extraneous matter that you will have to notice closely if you find it—you will find a column or more each Sunday on some phase of the missionary work furnished by that well-informed journalist and traveler, W. T. Ellis. This matter is syndicated and all the papers carry it.

On the table before me now is a very neat and attractive folder with this for its topic, "The United Missionary Campaign Under the Auspices of the Home and Foreign Mission Boards of North America." Another pamphlet just in by current mail is "A Call to Prayer, for the Home Mission Period, September, October, November, 1913." Lying on a table near where I write are a half dozen volumes, attractive, inviting, well bound, ably written, thrilling in the wonderful stories they tell. They are all books on Missions, and are but recently from the press.

Now, these details are written out here to signify the fact that the world of our day is getting very busy with the missionary task. Writers and speakers and publishers, authors and scholars and critics, have caught a vision. That task is nothing less than the evangelization of the world, and that vision is the joy and the heroism involved in executing the task. The Christian world is awakening to the idea that God has conferred on man an honor withheld from the angels, that of helping in the divine work of saving the millions in pagan lands. There are millions of heathen today, not because God is too weak to save them, and not because God does not want them saved. It is not, according to the Word, His good pleasure that any should perish. But in His infinite mercy and wisdom He saw fit to allow and to invite men into a co-partnership with Him, become co-workers with Him, in saving the unsaved, reaching the unreached, and in bringing them to Christ. And the reason why there are yet millions to be saved, millions who perish for the want of light and life, is not because God has failed to do His part, but because man has failed to do his. Here is an inestimable boon Deity conferred upon humanity, even the redeemed and the reached of humanity, and that portion of humanity receiving the boon has not availed itself of the blessing. We of Christian lands have therefore stayed God's hand, by our neglect and indifference, and have not shared the joy and reaped the benefits that our Father has in store for us.

The Christian world is awakening at last to a sense of its privilege and catching a vision of the joy that God has in store for those who set their hand and heart resolutely to the task of reaching for Christ the millions that wait in darkness.

And such an awakening! He who is not reading some of the books now issuing from the press on the topic of Missions is simply missing the best that the literature of our day has to offer. The really greatest and best books of this present day, the best written, the best edited, the best printed, the most scholarly, the most interesting, the most enlightening, the most thrilling, are those published in the name and cause of this marvelous movement called missions.

And the very best public addresses being delivered, the most inviting, eloquent and powerful, are those calling to action in the field of missions. He who has not heard this call is missing the richest and the best the press and the platform of our day have to give. That there is a veritable missionary awakening no one who reads or thinks can doubt for a moment.

And, mark these words, that person is, in a few years, to be counted ignorant and stupid indeed who has not an intelligent idea and interest in missions.

A MISSIONARY'S CONTRIBUTION.

When missions are spoken of, immediately one thinks that money is meant. Nothing could be wider of the mark. Let this fact be borne in mind ever and always: The countries of Christendom have not given, in dollars and cents, as much to missions as missions have given to the countries of Christendom. America has not given to foreign missions, by a very great deal, as much as foreign missions have given to America. We have not sent a dollar across the sea, for missions, which has not more than been returned to us in trade, commerce and material advantage. Looked at purely from an economic and financial standpoint, the best money America has ever invested abroad has been that money which churches have sent out with which to do missionary work.

Consider the worth to a foreign country of a man like Judson or Carey or Livingstone. It cost the Mission Boards only a few thousand to keep those men in food, clothing and shelter all their days. But what they were worth to the countries that sent them out cannot be computed in millions.

Put it down, for instance, that Livingstone was in Africa thirty-three years. Put all the cost of his sending and his keep there at $5,000 the year. That would make a total to the London Missionary Society, and to England, of $165,000 for sending and keeping David Livingstone in Africa all his missionary period. We presume that England would now regard is a poor business indeed if it did not reap in actual dollars in trade, and in profit, a sum ten times that large every year now, forty years after Livingstone's death, as a direct result of what Livingstone, Africa's first missionary, did there. Be it remembered that Livingstone, a lone missionary, literally gave Africa, with its illimitable resources, to the world. Churches have sprung up in Africa. School houses have been built. Cities have come as if by magic. Trade is active and commerce is alert in vast stretches of the "dark continent." And Livingstone's was the first white man's eye that ever saw Africa's boundless, fertile acres, her beautiful rivers, her infinite forests, her priceless resources. Before Livingstone, the missionary, went, no nation beneath the sun thought or dreamed of Africa save as a vast, worthless jungle, and her inhabitants as wild and untamed barbarians. There was no statecraft and no diplomacy under heaven wise enough to see that Africa was by nature one of the richest soils on earth and her inhabitants, if kindly and generously dealt with, a docile and a friendly people. It took the missionary to teach the statesman that fact.

There are those today going to Africa on great salaries and receiving kind treatment, and reaping fortunes for themselves and their houses or companies; but be it known they would never have been there and their companies would never have known such place or profits had not the faithful missionary braved alone these vast solitudes, laid them bare to the world, and taught those inhabitants that we meant peace and not war. Anybody who reads or knows, if fully aware that all of Africa's vast domains were given to the civilized world, as a place of trade, planting, profit and commerce, by the missionary. But for foreign missions in Africa there would today be no trade, commerce or communication between Africa and the rest of the world.

Let this example suffice. History is full of others. Missions have given to us far more than to have given to missions. The man who cannot see and reason this out must be short-sighted indeed.

And this is only the smallest side of missions. They have given us not only dollars, but deeds, not only money but men, not only harvests but heroes, not only gold but glory.

THANKSGIVING.

President Woodrow Wilson has issued his first Thanksgiving proclamation and, like all his state papers, it is an utterance of freshness, vigor, dignity and due reverence. Among the particular items mentioned as causes of our national gratitude are peace, prosperity, calm council and the practical completion of the Panama Canal. The Proclamation then concludes:

"Righteousness exalteth a nation," and 'Peace on earth, good will toward men' furnish the only foundations upon which can be built the lasting achievement of the human spirit. The year has brought us the satisfaction of work well done and fresh visions of our duty which will make the work of the future better still.

"Now therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the 27th day of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and invite the people throughout the land to cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks to Almighty God.

"Done at the city of Washington, this 23rd day of October, in the year of our Lord 1913, and of the independence of the United States of America 138th.

WOODROW WILSON.

"By the President,
W. J. BRYAN, Secretary of State."

THE EASTERN VIRGINIA.

We doubt if the Eastern Virginia Conference ever had a more enthusiastic and fruitful session than that at Mt. Carmel last week. The church is modern, ample and comfortable. The people are prosperous, happy and hospitable. The preachers and delegates and visitors were of large numbers and in fine fellowship. The Conference work was attended to with dignity, reverence and despatch. Reports from pastors, churches and allied interests were great and showed progress in every line. The Woman's Missionary Conference on Thursday, the first the women of the Conference have undertaken, was largely attended, exceedingly inspiring, and an eminent success in every particular. Rev. C. H. Rowland, D. D., presided over the Conference and his wife who is worthy of being a D. D., or of having any other title or honor she might desire, brought together the Woman's Conference, presided over it and guided its destiny to glory and success. About the happiest day for our woman's missionary work in the South was that in which Mrs. C. H. Rowland was put at the head of it. We wish she could visit all our Conferences and stir the women thereof to their duty and their privileges along missionary lines.

But to the Conference. The most striking feature, to us, was the magnificent reports the pastors brought in of their work the past year. The pastors of this Conference have the burden of the Master's work laid on their hearts, and they are responding most nobly to the task of bearing that burden. They see to it that every church is a rival, in good works, of every other, and that all raise their Conference apportionments, and seek year by year to increase their activity and their membership.

There was wide-spread regret that Rev. C. C. Jones, a much esteemed brother pastor, elected to sever his connection with the Conference and ask for papers of transfer to the M. E. Church, South. Brother Jones is an Elon College graduate, and has done efficient service in the ministry. The Conference was glad to receive an additional minister in the person of Rev. Geo. D. Eastes, who comes from the Evangelical Church to our Christian Church and goes to the pastorate of Third Church, Norfolk. Bro. Eastes made a favorable impression upon his new acquaintances and brethren in the Conference.

All missed the familiar face and warm hand grasp of Rev. N. G. Newman, D. D., who served several years most acceptably as President of the Conference, but who is now at Defiance, Ohio.

There were some fine addresses before the Conference, inspirational, wholesome, uplifting. Drs. Barrett, Morrill, Harper, Staley, Rowland, Denison, Harrell, of those we heard, brought messages of real helpfulness and genuine worth. We are sure there were others whom we did not hear.

This Conference is making progress along all lines, and the future seems fraught with still greater achievement. The Conference was very largely attended and well cared for.

SPECIAL.

We were asked by Rev. M. T. Morrill, D. D., Foreign Mission Secretary, Dayton, Ohio, to make this issue of THE SUN a "Missionary Special," in keeping with the efforts of the United Missionary Campaign. Some copy was not received in time, other was received too early and so went in last week. Furthermore, the editor is much away now attending Conferences.

However, we lay before our readers special articles on missions, and we could wish our readers no better thing than that they read all THE SUN has this week on missions. It will, we are persuaded, prove worthy of their time and patience. Try and see if you are not more than repaid.

NOTICE.

The Educational Committee of the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference will meet in the Y. M. C. A. hall at Elon College, Friday, November 14, 7:30 p. m. All ministerial students of the Conference and others having business with the Committee will please take notice, as there will be no meeting of the Committee at Conference.

J. O. ATKINSON,
Chairman Committee.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—The Eastern Virginia Conference at Mt. Carmel last week was one of great inspiration and enthusiasm, largely attended and handsomely cared for. Dr. Staley writes about it in Suffolk Letter.

—Deacon J. R. T. Caffey, of Monticello church, Guilford county, died very suddenly at his home near Brown Summit, N. C., Sunday a. m.

Revs. L. I. Cox, J. W. Patton and P. T. Klapp conducted the funeral Monday, third inst. Brother Caffey was a familiar figure at our annual Conferences, was a devout Christian, and a faithful servant of his church.

—Rev. H. E. Rountree, Greensboro, rejoices in an overwhelming pounding. His pantry was made into a veritable store house and his heart was made glad by this expression of appreciation and esteem on the part of those whom he is seeking to serve. The Greensboro people know how to make their pastor feel good.

—Rev. D. P. Barrett, returned on furlough from Porto Rico for a season of recuperation in the States, will spend much of his vacation period visiting churches in the South in the endeavor to awaken wider interest in missions amongst us. May God speed him, for there is great need.

—Rev. M. T. Morrill, D. D., Secretary of Foreign Missions, Dayton, Ohio, is a busy man these days amongst our Southern churches. He gave three addresses at the Eastern Virginia Conference (two being by stereopticon), one at Park Place, Norfolk, Friday night, at Suffolk Sunday a. m., Memorial Temple, Norfolk, Sunday p. m., at Franklin, Monday p. m., and was to speak at Henderson, N. C., Tuesday evening.

—Dr. D. H. Albright, of the Pleasant Hill church and community, Liberty, N. C., died Monday a. m., November 3, and was buried in the Pleasant Hill cemetery Tuesday. Rev. W. S. Long, D. D., a life-long friend to the deceased, conducted the funeral services. Dr. Albright was a man of wide experience, keen observation and successful business. His devotion to the church, and all its interests and enterprises, was unstinted, and his loyalty was abiding and praiseworthy. His was a most interesting home to visit, and no one was more welcome there than the minister. He was ripe in years, and had been in declining health for some time. His several sons and daughters, who mourn their loss, have our sympathy.

—On the evening of October 27, a reception was tendered Rev. and Mrs. D. P. Barrett, missionaries to Porto Rico, in the lecture room of Memorial Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va. It was an exceedingly happy occasion, both to the returned missionaries now on furlough, and to their hosts, the good people of Memorial Temple. This program was executed: Opening prayer, Rev. J. W. Harrell, D. D.; Vocal duet (in Spanish), Misses Alice and Olyn Barrett; Address by Rev. M. T. Morrill, D. D. Vocal solo, Mr. A. L. Clark. Address, Rev. D. P. Barrett. Vocal duet, Mrs. J. W. Lewis and Mrs. D. P. Barrett. Address, Rev. W. H. Denison, D. D. After the formal program was rendered, a bag of thirty-five dollars in gold was presented Bro. Barrett. Refreshments were served, and a delightful evening was enjoyed.

—Mr. C. W. Montgomery, who has been manager of our Publishing House, leaves today for a visit to Norfolk, whence he will return in a few days to his former home at Troy, Ohio. We regret to see him go. He is a gentleman of highest integrity, genuine honesty, and unquestioned ability as printer, publisher and manager. He and Mrs. Montgomery were held in highest esteem socially at Elon College, and have made many warm friends here who regret to lose them from our midst. Mr. Montgomery did not feel that the condition of his health would justify his continuing with the work here. We count ourselves fortunate in securing as his successor Mr. E. D. Fowler, who comes to our village with his family to live, and has already taken up his duties as Manager of the Publishing House. Mr. Fowler is an experienced printer and manager, coming to us from the management of the Orphans' Friend Publishing Company, at Oxford. He comes most highly recommended as a printer, and our rapidly growing constituency may expect the same high-grade class of work which we have turned out from the beginning.

—The SUN's editor has served as preacher at Pleasant Grove, Halifax county, Virginia, once per month for the past eleven years. What a delightful service it has been. I reckon that there are no kinder or more considerate people under the sun. They vie with each other in making their preacher's task useful and light and happy. The church house, with its heavy circular oak pews, its carpeted floors, its cathedral windows, its pool for baptismal services, its separate class rooms, all handsomely furnished and steam heated, is one of the handsomest country churches in our acquaintance. The past year Conference claims were all raised early last Spring, the deep well was paid for, and last Sunday a special offering was taken for Foreign Missions. It is a large, intelligent, active congregation, in one of the Old Dominion's finest and most thrifty communities. It was indeed a sad task to sever a relationship that was so harmonious and delightful, but duty seemed to demand it. Rev. W. S. Long, D. D., has been chosen, and has accepted, as pastor the coming year. We congratulate Dr. Long on his good fortune in being called to render service amongst a people so generous and true and loyal.

NEWS AND VIEWS.

—Cuba is harvesting its biggest sugar crop, estimated at 2,429,000 tons, a half million tons, more than any previous record for a year.

—Florida has enacted a law which makes it unlawful "for white teachers to teach negroes in negro schools, and for negro teachers to teach in white schools."

—Sir Rufus Isaacs has been appointed Chief Justice of England, the first Jew to rise to the highest position in the English judiciary, a position from which all Jews were excluded fifty years ago.

—The Mexicans held their national election on Sunday, Oct. 26. A nation which wholly disregards the Sabbath and makes it a day of politics rather than one of religious worship may expect nothing else than turmoil and strife.

—Woman suffrage spreads. In 1911 Norwegian women were fully franchised. In Sweden a woman suffrage bill is a part now of the Government's program. In Denmark a bill to amend the constitution so as to allow women to vote carried by a large majority. Now, Ireland is about to obtain home rule and with it woman suffrage.

—$125 in gold was found recently in the stomach of a crocodile killed in South Africa, the supposition being that the Crocodile swallowed a man with that much money in his pocket, the man and his clothes being digested, but not the gold. Not infrequently in this world is a man's gold all that is left of him, and that goes to enrich some one who neither knew nor cared for him.

Lose this day loitering, 'twill be the same story
Tomorrow, and the next more dilatory;
True indecision brings its own delays,
And days are lost, lamenting over days.
Are you in earnest? Seize the very minute;
Boldness has genius, power and magic in it.
Only begin it, and the mind grows heated;
Begin it and the work will be completed.

—Goethe.

FROM OUR CONTRIBUTORS

DON'T GO BACK ON THIS.

At the very time when the American Christian Convention, composed of representative brethren of the Christian denomination, caught their clearest vision of their widest opportunity and responsibility, and when, with high hope and fervent devotion, they reached their maximum zeal for spreading Christainity, the following manifesto was adopted, October 25, 1910. We dare not repudiate the vision or the duty; but by divine help and grace we dare undertake to fulfil them. Are you catching the vision and doing your duty?

"Filled with a profound sense of the goodness of Almighty God to us severally and collectively, and possessed by a profound sense of our responsibility to God and man on account of His multiplied blessings and abounding grace in Jesus Christ our Lord, we, the members of the American Christian Convention, representatives of the Christian denomination gathered in quadrennial session at Troy, Ohio, humbly and reverently acknowledge His goodness and cheerfully shoulder our responsibilities. We unequivocally declare our undying loyalty to Jesus Christ our Lord and to His teachings, believing Him and them a sufficient power in the hearts and minds of devoted Christian disciples to transform the world. We emphatically assert our belief in the world-wide mission of Christianity, and in the world-embracing missionary enterprise, declaring our determination to bear an honorable part in both; and in the burning zeal of our fathers for gospel proclamation, to continue which we dedicate ourselves.

"And we severally and individually challenge every brother and sister in our whole denomination to emulate the zeal of the Apostles and early heralds of the Cross, and untiring missionaries of all Christian centuries, and our fathers of the nineteenth century, in proclaiming the Gospel and winning men and women to Christ; we challenge them to regard their possessions and their own lives as a stewardship from God to be sacredly used for Christian ends; to adopt in public worship and in private life systematic and proportionate giving for all legitimate church and benevolent work, including Home and Foreign Missions. We furthermore challenge our brethren to repeat again and again this manifesto and challenge, until it shall be burned into every hearer's mind, and shall reach the remotest member of the most sequestered church in the whole brotherhood.

"All this we do with the full determination to make every declaration and summons foregoing effective in our own lives, and with all our brethren to fulfill the Lord's will, to the intent that the whole world may come under the loving sway of God and His Anointed One."

OUR SUCCESSFUL MISSIONS.

BY M. T. MORRILL, FOREIGN SECRETARY.

Whatever may be thought or said to the contrary, or whatever may be the varying opinions held, the missionary work of the Christian denomination has been successful and a source of untold blessing. True, the rate of progress has been slow, the missionary vision has not been caught by the brotherhood as we could wish, and even now there is a hard struggle before us. But looking back a few decades, and remembering that we had to begin at the bottom, win every advance in the face of indifference or opposition, create all our missionary agencies, and then build up missions abroad which in their turn were obliged to create constituencies and call forth a church out of non-Christian civilization—when we remember all this, then we must pronounce our missionary work as a success.

Anyone who takes pains to investigate will find it true that in spite of us and before we were really conscious of it, our missions in Japan and Porto Rico had grown beyond our income. In Japan the missionaries have assiduously devoted themselves to developing a native pastoral force; under far less favorable circumstances much the same thing has occupied the missionaries in Porto Rico. That was precisely the wisest and most necessary thing to do. The real effective power of any mission is in the native workers, and not in the missionaries. A few missionaries with a large force of native workers is better than a large number of missionaries with a few native workers.

And now I hope every reader of THE SUN will get this point, namely: that at this very moment our missions in Japan and Porto Rico are better equipped for aggressive advance work than they ever have been. In Japan rents have been comparatively cheap, and that item has disturbed us but little. We have churches at the main stations, and rented houses in the outposts. We have thirteen ordained pastors, every man trained and tried. There is now a church membership of about eight hundred fifty. Recently branch railways have been constructed so that our whole field is quite easily accessible. Our missionaries reside at the main points in the field, and every one of them could superintend as much again work as he has charge of today. And then on the other hand the need is past description, and opportunities are numberless.

Hence the whole constitutes a splendid challenge for an advance.

In Porto Rico there is desperate need and great opportunity. Rents have been excessive, and some years absorbed a large per cent of the money appropriated. In view of that our policy has been to secure buildings. At eight points we now have buildings, some exceedingly cheap, but affording shelter just the same. There are several young men of promise attached to the work. Right now we are ready for advance in Porto Rico, and have an equipment that makes splendid and effective work possible.

Our missions are successful, they have been successful.

But now observe: in Tokyo, in the location of our second new church, is as fine a chance to build up a self-supporting congregation as exists in Japan; and yet to make a success there we need several thousand dollars with which to buy land and erect a chapel. This is necessary in the city. Again, we have a missionary family without a mission home, to house whom is an expense beyond what we should continue very long. Instead we should erect another mission home, and that will cost us, land and all, not less than $3,000, and then our pastors in Japan could all accomplish far more if we could give them more church furnishings, supplies and literature to use. Again, in Porto Rico we need another missionary family and must have one, and must have more funds with which to employ Porto Rican workers. So far we have but one missionary home, located where there is just now no missionary.

To follow up past success and make the best use of it, we must increase equipment, and that means more money. This is therefore an appeal for an advance, for more funds; an appeal for some individual or churches to assume support of about two missionary families; for other churches and individuals to give us the needed buildings; and for a general increase of missionary funds enabling us to make our missions effective.

The responsibility does not rest upon God, for He has wonderfully blessed us, and His promises are still good; it does not rest upon the unevangelized; it does not rest upon the missionaries who have devoted themselves to life itself; but the responsibility rests upon us, upon the churches and members. We have a thousand times as much means as we have devoted to the Lord's service. What business have we, as Christians, to withhold the means?

Let us advance our whole denomination for the cause of Christ and the evangelization of the million souls we have assumed as our share of the non-Christian world. We are well able to win a larger success.

THE UNITED STATES HOLDS THE KEY.

Mr. Joseph Ernest McAfee, in his splendid book, "Missions Striking Home," has touched a practical phase of mission work, in his chapter, "The Latest in the Immigration Business."

Mr. McAfee's contention is that every immigrant who goes back to his native country should be a missionary for the Christian religion. With the hundreds of thousands that either return for a visit or go home to stay, what a force there might be started to leaven the whole lump. These men go back and teach the gospel they have learned. It is the gospel of higher wages, more to eat, better homes and greater liberty. If they could but take as glowing an account of our religion as they can of our liberal government and material advantages, it would be the greatest force in Christendom in winning the world to Jesus Christ.

To quote Mr. McAfee's words, written in 1908, just after a stampede of foreigners for their native land on account of a financial depression in this country:

"Does your mind comprehend this fact: We have just now, during the last month or so, sent over to Europe 200,000 missionaries. How is that for missioning? That is doing the business on a scale which boards do not undertake. Just a month or so—200,000 of them. And such missionaries! missionaries to whom attaches no taint of professionalism. Nobody can throw it back at them that they are preaching their gospel for pay. They preach their gospel because they cannot help it, because their faith has found its assurance in what has been wrought in their own experience. The root of the matter is in themselves,—in their pockets? no! no! not alone in their pockets; the roots have run far deeper. What if the roots had run to the perennial depths? What if these had been given to see the best, the very best in American civilization? What if they had found a real Christian civilization? What if the Church of Christ had been equal to its task here, and the spiritual forces which she wields had run through and through, and saturated the lives of these 200,000 missionaries. What sort of missionaries would they be? What could they not achieve on this mission which they have set about?"

If we could concentrate the forces of Christianity upon our own country until it is Christianized; until the spiritual life is exemplified in every phase of political, business, social and industrial life, and thus bring every one under its benign influence; these men who return to their homes would be filled with interest in our religion and, like Noah, would be preachers of righteousness.

We hold the key that can be turned to unlock the doors of almost every nation and nearly every heart.

Our church has a great opportunity before it in Christianizing the native Americans, and a wide open door, which we have barely begun to enter, in training our foreign element for Christ and the church. I do not think we should curtail our Foreign Missionary work, (it is too small now), but I do believe that for the next ten or twenty years we should concentrate our forces in the building up of the work in the home land.

The plan is simple; requiring no machinery and no expense and yet it is far-reaching in its effects and unlimited in its possibilities. The Christianizing of America means the Christianizing of the world.

W. T. WALTERS.

Winchester, Va.

CONFIDENCE AND INFLUENCE.

I venture to say that the majority of people desire to have an influence over others. If an intellectual and self-respecting person should be told that he has no influence upon anyone in his community, he would feel badly about it, especially if he believed it to be a true statement. But everyone does have some kind of an influence, and to some extent. Is it a good influence, or a bad one? That largely depends upon the quality of one's character. He who has in his character the best moral elements, is certain to exert a good influence upon others. Those who know him well have confidence in him, and therefore they are influenced by him. It is true that many people are influenced by one who has a good reputation, but not a good character. There is a wide difference between mere reputation and real character. One main reason why many are deceived in other people is because they assume that one who has the reputation of being a good man, when in fact he is not, must be worthy of one's confidence, and hence they put their trust in him, only to be finally deceived in another person, if he really knew that one's true character. It is one thing to have confidence in a certain person's seemingly good reputation, and quite another thing to have confidence in one whose character is positively and practically good. In the former case, there is much danger of one's being deceived in confiding in him; in the latter case, there is safety in trusting in the man. The professing Christian whose word cannot be safely relied upon, has no wholesome influence upon those who know that fact. Such a man is despised much more than is an openly unconverted man, even though his habits be good. One very common reason why many members of churches are without a good influence upon unsaved ones is because their promises are worthless. O, it pays largely to have a character which throws out a blessed influence in general society!

C. H. WETHERBE.

LOOKING UNTO JESUS.

A SERMON BY BISHOP LUTHER B. WILSON,
D. D., LL. D.

Text: "Let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith."—Heb. 12: 1, 2.

In the Epistle to the Hebrews, the twelfth chapter and the first two verses, these words are written. Now, the Word to which I desire to invite your thought is in the second verse: "Looking unto Jesus." It is a wonderful chapter that, just preceding this twelfth. It is a chapter in which this inspired artist sets before us many of the mighty ones of the olden days, presenting in bold strokes their moral lineaments; suggesting unto us in perfect and accurate touches of his thought the characteristics of these saints and heroes. And in the beginning of this twelfth chapter he recalls to us what has been before our minds: that we are compassed about with a great cloud of witnesses, tier rising upon tier; witnesses seen, witnesses invisible; and he urges us that as we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses—those who have witnessed to their own faith in Christ; their faith in the great God in the olden days, and who, in a sense that perhaps we do not always appreciate, are witnesses also of our actions—"seeing that we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses," he urges us to take up the tasks of life; address ourselves to the things which God sets before us for the doing, so that "laying aside every weight," we may "run with patience the race that is set before us."

If Jesus Were Here.

And if there were nothing more in this Word than such an exaltation as that, it would be quite worth our while to tarry in the presence of it, for those whose characters have been delineated in these chapters represent the toilers in almost every field of human action. They represent the dreamers whose dreams have come true; they represent the seers who have looked out upon the broad circle of God's purpose; they represent the priests who have made sacrifices for men, and who have, many of them, made for men the sacrifice of themselves. They represent the quiet toilers and those who, in the presence of the uneasy and tempestuous world, have wrought well; and if you were privileged only to gaze upon these characters of the long ago, you ought to be the better for it; you ought to go down to your place the better qualified for the task and the trial that there awaits you. But this writer does not stop there. He urges all to get out of that vision of the life heroic all that it is possible for us to derive of inspiration and faith and patience from the sight of those characters. But then, just as again and again in this Epistle he has turned his thought toward the great Prophet of Nazareth, the divine Son, so he turns his thought again to the divine Son, and he says that we are to "run with patience the race that is set before us," and that we are to run this race "looking unto Jesus."

Now, in a very simple way, I want to ask your thought to this expression of the inspired writer this morning. You and I are going up to the tasks of life. It has seemed to many of us that we have been upon some mount of privilege here. If there had been nothing but the privilege of meeting with the saints in God, that in itself were an exalted privilege. If any old truth has appeared to us in a new setting; if out of the storehouse of God any new treasure has come for our enrichment, then we ought to be glad in God, and we ought to go back to our task mindful of the privilege and the opportunity. But if we shall go back feeling to do that which this writer in the Word which I bring to you this morning urges you to do, it is not unlikely that life shall be to us as the unfolding of some delightful dream. You have had difficulties; you have had fears, and you have had your defeats in life. If tomorrow is to be better than yesterday, we are to "run with patience the race that is set before us"; and I want that we shall think of this vision of our Lord as setting for us the great standards of life—"looking unto Jesus."

Sometimes you have said, "I wonder what Jesus would do if Jesus were to come to some of the little towns here; if Jesus were to come to some of the great cities today as he used to come to those cities a long time ago, in the land that we call the Holy Land because he came there. I wonder what ever Jesus would think of men? I wonder what Jesus would think of us if Jesus were to come into our homes and look at the pictures on the wall; if he were to come and see the bits of art that we have in the parlor; if he were to see the library from which we take the books upon which so many times we concentrate our thought; I wonder what Jesus would think? I wonder what Jesus would say if he came to our towns; if he came to our great cities and studied the problem of our political chicanery?"

What Would He Have Us Say?

I wonder what he would say if there were unfolded before him the intrigue and corruption that is not a closed book to you and me? What do you think he would say if he should come into the exchanges of the world; if he should visit our shops, our offices, our counting rooms? If we should turn over to him our books and should unfold before him the purposes that we are cherishing in our minds, I wonder what Jesus would have to say? I wonder what Jesus would say if, on next Sabbath day, when you and I go back to the place accustomed and sit down with our fellow believers in the church at home—if our Lord could walk into the Sunday school and hear what is taught to those that gather there; if he sat where we shall sit, perhaps, to hear the sermon; if he listened to the singing of the choir; if he mingled with those that gather together at the close of the service to talk it all over—I wonder what our Lord would say in that home church? What would he miss, what would he find there that ought not to be there? If he walked our streets, I wonder what our Lord would think of life in the twentieth century; I wonder what our Lord would have to say of us in Christian America in the twentieth century—I wonder what our Lord would have to say?

But you and I are to remember that it is not a dream, after all. It is not a question of what Jesus Christ would think if he came to our town. It is not a question of what our Lord would think if he entered into our homes, for he has entered into our homes, and he sees what is there, and he knows what is written under the cover of every book, and he knows the subtle influence of every picture that hangs upon the wall. It is not a question of what he would see if he came to our shop, our counting room, or our office. He has been there again and again. He comes there day after day. You do not have to put your books before him as you set your books before the bank examiner. He opens them himself, and he sees whether the commercial standard of the age is in accordance with his own divine purpose, or whether the commercial practice of today is only an evidence of savage commercialism. He knows all about it. He does walk our streets.

The Standard of Jesus for America.

Here in this twentieth century he is walking our streets, he is looking upon those who jostle one another on the way. He takes account of the moralities of life in the things that perhaps do not always impress us with moral significance. He does walk our streets; he does understand the subtle influences that pervade society. He watches while ever the lights flare and flicker; he watches. He is present behind the closed doors, and he is present when the multitude is gathered together. Oh, if Jesus, your Master and Lord, if Jesus, the fairest among the fair, and the purest among the pure, walks the streets of the village and of the town and of the city—oh, men and women of America, I plead with you that what he shall see upon the streets of our cities in Christian

(Continued on Page 10.)

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

NORFOLK LETTER.

A "Norfolk Letter" from my pen has not afflicted the readers of THE SUN for quite a while. If you will excuse me just this once, I'll promise to be good hereafter and not write often.

I miss the Norfolk Letter when it does not appear. When I could find the time to write regularly, I enjoyed that. It was a pleasure to sit down and feel as if you were writing to a large number of friends all at one time.

Bro. Garman and his people at Lamberts Point have remodeled their house of worship until it looks like a new one, and in fact, is practically new now. They have worked hard and have fine results to show for it.

Bro. Keys has decided to stay with the work at South Norfolk and Rosemont. I think this is fortunate, for Bro. Keys has been doing a good work down there.

Over at Portsmouth, Dr. Harrell and his faithful band are still paying notes as they come due on their handsome building, and going forward with the work as only a true and loyal band will do.

Dr. Johnson at the First church seems to be the man for the place, and seems to be able to inspire his people there at once, as they have bought a new parsonage, held a revival, and are doing things worth while.

At the Memorial Temple they keep something doing all the time. I continue to hear only good reports of Dr. Denison and his work.

Last Monday evening they gave a reception in honor of Rev. D. P. Barrett and wife, our missionaries to Porto Rico. They were fortunate in having with them Dr. M. T. Morrill, of Dayton, Ohio, Foreign Mission Secretary, and Mr. Netum Rathbun, Publishing Agent. The affair was a very pleasant one. The chairman of the Missionary Committee and the Sunday school superintendent, Bro. J. J. Pitt presided. The two little daughters of Brother and Sister Barrett sang a duet in Spanish. Miss Lucile Bowden, of the Third Church, rendered an instrumental solo. Dr. Morrill and Brother Barrett both made addresses. Mrs. Barrett, on behalf of the Ladies' Missionary Society, was presented with a beautiful bunch of chrysanthemums. Dr. Denison made a touching address and presented a bag containing $40.00 in gold. Refreshments were served to all who were present.

Now I come down home to the Third Church. Possibly some of you have been wondering what has become of us. I want to give assurance that we are still on the map. Prospects were never brighter, in my opinion, for a successful future than now.

We have been without a regular pastor since the first of August, but we have had the pulpit filled by different ones from time to time, and the Sunday school has kept up well, despite the fact that we lost three of our best young people this Fall: two in the persons of Miss Martin and Miss Bowden, whom doubtless Elon people are beginning to know by this time, and Ernest Porter, who is at V. M. I. Last Sunday we broke all records for a regular attendance, having present 173.

In our efforts to secure a pastor, we were especially desirous that we should be able to find just the man that we feel sure the Lord has for us somewhere. Several clues were taken up, followed out, and came to naught. All the while we were earnestly asking the Lord to direct us to His man for the work. When all of our plans failed, in a very unexpected manner we were directed to one who, it seems now, that the Lord sent to us.

Through Dr. W. D. Samuel, we were put in touch with Rev. Geo. D. Estes, of Naperville, Ill. Dr. Samuel has known him since he was a boy in school—has known him since as a pastor and as an evangelist. He gave him a very strong endorsement. We invited him to come on trial for a month. He came to us on the 17th of October and has been here since that time. I have not known any one to so please a people as he has ours. At a largely attended church meeting a unanimous and enthusiastic call was extended to him to become our pastor permanently. And he has accepted, to become effective about the middle of December. He already had engagements to hold meetings in Illinois and Iowa from which he could not get release.

He has had considerable experience as an evangelist, and has been very successful. Gypsy Smith's oldest son is quite a noted singer and Christian worker. He and Brother Estes have held quite a good many meetings together. He is a preacher of unusual spiritual power and pulpit ability. He is only twenty-three years old, but has been preaching since he was sixteen years of age. He is a member of the Evangelical Association, but has known our church all his life and likes its principles and government. He will unite with the Eastern Virginia Conference as soon as his Conference meets and he can be regularly released by them.

The Evangelical Association church is like the Methodists and he wants to get away from the powers of the Bishops. We are looking forward to larger things.

J. W. MANNING.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Eastern Virginia Christian Conference was greatly honored last week by the presence and addresses of J. O. Atkinson, D. D., editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN; J. P. Barrett, D. D., editor of Herald of Gospel Liberty; M. T. Morrill, D. D., Secretary Foreign Missions; W. A. Harper, LL. D., President Elon College; and Netum Rathbun, Agent Christian Publishing Association. Dr. L. F. Johnson and Rev. J. L. Foster, who have work in Norfolk and Waverly, were also present, as was the new pastor of Third Church, Rev. Mr. Estes. These all entered into the work of the Conference with real interest. Rev. D. P. Barrett and wife, from Porto Rico, also added to the interest of Foreign Missions by speech and song. This Conference also feels a pardonable pride in the fact that they went from this Conference to the Foreign Field.

The Woman's meeting on Thursday in a separate hall was enthusiastic and successful. The women of this Conference have raised for Missions the past year $600, and they have set as their goal for next year $1,000.

The total collection from the churches, at Conference, was $3911.20 out of an apportionment of $4,000. The Conference ordered forwarded to J. A. Mills, Convention Treasurer, $850 for Convention Missions, $700 for Foreign Missions, $820 for Elon College; and $200 for Convention Fund. Elon College and Convention Funds sent up in full according to Convention call; Foreign Mission Fund $25 more than the call and Convention Missions $85 short, making the total shortage below Convention call from this Conference $60. We hope to come up in full of Convention apportionment next year. The Convention called for $2,630 from the Eastern Virginia Conference and we sent up $2,570 or, as said above, $60 less than the Convention apportioned to this Conference. Pastor H. H. Butler and the Mount Carmel congregation gave generous hospitality to the large attendance upon the Conference; the weather was ideal throughout, and the working members, from President C. H. Rowland down, vied with one another in faithful service. The plans call for more work, more money, more souls, and more "joy in the Lord" next year when the Conference will meet at Liberty Spring church.

On Tuesday, October 28, Harry Butler Harrell was married to Miss Clara Inez Rountree, sister of Rev. H. E. Rountree. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents near Cypress Chapel, Nansemond County, Va., in the presence of a large company of relatives, neighbors and friends. The parlor was decorated with great taste and presented a scene of beauty. A great wedding dinner was served to all the guests, who enjoyed the feast. After the feast and marriage ended, the happy young couple sped away on an automobile to Suffolk, where they boarded a train for Norfolk and a Baltimore steamer for cities north. They will reside in Port Norfolk, where the groom has a position with the Southern Railway. The presents were numerous and useful, the prayers and good wishes were sincere, and the congratulations were warm and profuse.

Marriage contains all human possibilities of weal or woe. Measured in terms of continued love, it is like the blending of two streams in one; measured in terms of suspicion and jealousy it is the blending of two fires of destruction. The rains of heaven cannot put out the fires of hate and the fires of perdition cannot consume the pure gold of love. Man and woman and Jesus can make a heaven of the home; man and woman and Satan can make home a hell. It depends on who comes into the home with husband wife as to what that home will be.

Rev. Dr. M. T. Morrill, Secretary of Foreign Missions, preached for us yesterday, and Brother Netum Rathbun was with him in Suffolk. The congregation was delighted with the discourse, and eighteen gave their names on the ten dollar guarantee fund for the mission account for the coming year. This added to the 25 taken at the close of Conference makes 43 thus far from this Conference. Dr. Morrill wants 500 persons to guarantee $10 each, making $5,000 in all, to guarantee the Mission Secretary against loss or deficit for the year.

We were glad to have these brethren visit our city and church.

W. W. STALEY.

GULPH MILLS LETTER.

I have recently heard two criticisms on pastors. One was that some pastors write too much and too decidedly project themselves and their doings, while others swing to the other extreme and do not report enough from their fields. This writer possibly belongs to the latter class and deserves the criticism, for I find that it has been quite a long while since I reported anything from this section of our brotherhood. Nothing, however, has occurred this way of an unusual character since my last. Work moves forward decidedly and encouragingly. Old members who have stood by the work for many years tell me that regular church attendance was never better and possibly not as good before in many years as at present. The third Sabbath in October was given to Rally Day. Services ran about as follows: The Sunday school met at 9:30 a. m. Preaching services at 10:45 a. m. Luncheon at noon. Young People's Vocal Class at 2 p. m. Men's Bible Class at 3 p. m. And preaching at 7:30 p. m. At times the rain poured in torrents, yet the people came until our auditorium was well filled. A male quartette from Conshohocken, a mixed quartette of local talent, the Young People's Vocal Class of our church uniting with our choir under the leadership of Miss Webb, their teacher, with spirited congregational singing, were features in the various services of the day. You will not count me immodest nor misunderstand me when I say (for I do not take the credit to myself) that outside representative men influential in the community state that the occasion in point of attendance and character of services was unprecedented in this community. Our Men's Bible Class, with a membership of one hundred and forty-two and with an attendance ranging from fifty to a hundred and twenty-five, has come to be quite a feature and factor in our church and community. It includes in its membership almost every profession and social class of this section, and every shade of creed. The president, who is a prominent lawyer and communicant of the Episcopal church, recently made a public statement that we have in this Bible Class church union practically demonstrated.

The ladies have recently completed the inside improvements of walls, a new carpet, and work on floors. I failed to say that our Rally Day offerings amounted to $78. We are arranging for a Bible Conference soon, to be followed by revival services. We had a pleasant surprise recently in a visit from Rev. John Blood, president of the New Jersey Conference, who spoke most encouraging of the Franklinton work. He was looking about as young as when I first met him several years ago. Our congregation and pastor were delighted a few weeks ago to have with us in our Sunday morning service Rev. Daniel Albright Long, D. D., and wife, president of Union Christian College, Merom, Indiana. Dr. Long gave us a splendid address on education, is being our delayed educational day here. Rev. John Conrad, once pastor of the Gulph Church, for a period of twenty-three years, has been quite feeble for several months, but is slightly better now. He is far advanced in life, and is a rheumatic sufferer.

Tomorrow the Eastern Virginia Conference meets at Mt. Carmel Church, Isle of Wight County, Va., not far from the scenes of my childhood, and while my desire is to attend, I shall have to forego the pleasure. It was at the session of that Conference in 1878, held at that church, that I first went before the Educational Committee for admission into the Biblical Class of the Conference, and not one of the men who then composed the committee are living. Really I must be growing old! Yes, but really God has been gracious unto me. Of the class of four ordained in that Conference in November, 1882, I am the only one left to the church, two of them soon withdrawing from the denomination, the third going home from labor to reward. Life is swiftly passing, and in a little while we shall face the book up yonder where injustices will be righted and rewards given out, and where God's saints shall wear their crowns.

MURDOCK W. BUTLER.

WINCHESTER LETTER.

A most successful session of the Frederick County Sunday School Convention was held in our church last week. It was participated in by nearly all Protestant denominations. The attendance was many times larger than it has ever been before. These union meetings are evidences of the growing spirit of brotherly love among the different denominations.

Yesterday was a rainy day here and all churches had a small attendance. Checks are now coming in on the annual payment to the Winchester church. Our time is taken up for the next few weeks and we would appreciate it very much if the brethren would send their remittances without waiting for a reminder.

The following amounts have been received:

Reported	$7,059.93
J. C. Recher	5.00
Carl Creswell	10.00
J. A. Spaid	1.00
Mrs. Lillian Rudolph	2.50
Mrs. J. W. Davis	2.50
Jacob P. Golladay	1.00
Mrs. W. J. Muse	5.00
H. P. Hook	5.00
A. D. Larriek	5.00
J. M. Anderson	1.00
Mrs. Virginia Morris	1.00
Jno. C. Oates	1.00
Alfred S. Anderson	5.00
Mrs. J. J. Lincoln	5.00
Mrs. Emma F. Rhodes	5.00
W. T. Walters	30.00
W. C. Wampler	3.00
Miss Jessie Wampler	1.00
Mrs. Berta Argenbright	1.00
Mrs. Jno. W. Capper	15.00
Miss Blanche Johnson	10.00
Prof. R. C. Cox	1.00
E. J. Dunlap	2.00
Harry Seabright	1.00
Arthur S. Anderson	1.00
Mrs. W. T. Walters	1.00
Total	$7,180.93

We are thankful for all these contributions.
W. T. WALTERS.

Winchester, Va.

PROGRAM

Christian Missionary Association of the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference, to Meet During Session of Conference, Lebanon Christian Church, Semora, Caswell Co., N. C., November 18-20, 1913.

Call to order. Reading of Proceedings of last session.

Roll Call. Collection of Dues.

Election of Officers.

Report of Executive Committee, Rev. S. B. Klapp, Chairman.

Report of Treasurer, H. C. Simpson.

Report of work done at Reidsville, Rev. L. I. Cox, Pastor.

Our Opportunity—Work for the coming year suggested, Dr. W. P. Lawrence, Chairman Committee on Ways and Means.

Miscellaneous Business.

Adjournment.

S. B. KLAPP, President.

D. JENNINGS SIPE, Secretary.

Greensboro, N. C., October 31, 1913.

NOTICE.

To Ministers and Other Friends:—

We are anxious to secure the names and address of all families represented in the Christian Church within the bounds of the Southern Christian Convention in particular, who should take THE CHRISTIAN SUN, but do not. To this end we addressed a letter, with ample blanks and stamped envelope for reply, to all our pastors last week, requesting that they send us names of persons in their pastorates, who should take THE SUN, but do not. Will not any and all who read this notice kindly send us such names, as we desire to interest them in their church paper. Don't fear that too many names will be sent. In reply to our request, the following pastors have already responded with long lists, which we appreciate, and urge others to do likewise at earliest possible date: Rev. H. W. Elder, Rev. I. W. Johnson, Rev. J. D. Wicker, Rev. W. H. Denison, Rev. H. E. Rountree, Rev. J. F. Morgan, Rev. A. W. Andes, Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Rev. A. N. McAbee, Rev. E. D. Short, Rev. P. T. Klapp, Rev. W. T. Walters, Rev. J. H. Hughes, Rev. A. F. Iseley, Rev. C. H. Rowland, Rev. W. D.

Harward, Rev. R. H. Peel, Rev. L. I. Cox, Rev. W. C. Wicker, Rev. J. C. Stuart, Rev. T. E. White, Rev. H. H. Butler, Rev. H. Scholz, Rev. J. W. Holt, Rev. G. O. Lankford, Rev. W. L. Wells, Rev. W. H. Garman, Rev. G. D. Hunt, Rev. R. L. Williamson, Rev. J. D. Dollar, Rev. C. M. Dollar, Rev. S. B. Klapp, Rev. J. V. Knight, Rev. Thos. W. Strowd, Rev. A. T. Banks, Rev. B. J. Earp, Rev. C. E. Newman.

AN ANSWERED PRAYER.

It was a splendid home. A consecrated father and mother lived there. It was a heavenly place around their fireside; it was good to be there. One son from that home was preaching the gospel, another serving God with his means as a business man, the only daughter giving her life to the Master's work on Africa's soil. Above the door of that humble cottage a placard had been placed bearing the words, "God bless our home." Surely this had meant more than its mechanical value. It was a living prayer of the family, and had been answered.

C. B. RIDDLE.

ANTI-AMERICAN RIOTS IN JAPAN ARE DENIED.

Greentown, Ind., Oct. 26.—That there is no anti-American sentiment in Japan and that the people themselves are as anxious to avoid war as the most peace-loving American, was the assertion of the Rev. C. P. Garman in an address before the Indiana State Christian Conference in its annual session in Greentown. The Rev. Mr. Garman was a missionary in Japan for several years.

"You ask what of the reported anti-American sentiment in Japan," he said. This is the question uppermost in the minds of people wherever I go, since my return to the United States, and it plainly shows how deeply the American people are interested in the friendship of Japan. And I wish to say that the Japanese are as deeply concerned about American friendship for Japan. There is absolutely no anti-American spirit in Japan.

"There have been no anti-American riots as reported in some circles. Japan is a peace-loving country, as is ours, and if there ever should be a war between the two countries it will represent the feeling of neither country, populace nor government, but will come as a result of misunderstanding or from the agitation of demagogues.

"The Japanese never tire of speaking of the historic friendship of the United States toward Japan. They revere the names of Commodore Perry and Townsend Harris, the former of whom reopened Japan to the Western world, and the latter of whom was the first diplomatic representative of our government to that country, and an able and sympathetic adviser to Japan. The Japanese never forget the fact that the United States was the only country which remitted the indemnity demanded when, during the days of Japanese restoration, some zealots fired upon the foreign ships in Shiminoseki harbor. The Japanese appreciate the sympathy of our people, which was extended during the Japanese-Russian war.

"The Japanese, seeing in their papers the utterances of our papers of the previous day, wonder whether there has come over the American people a change of heart, and whether we are not jealous of what success they have achieved. They understand the economic problem of California, and if it be discussed as economic and not racial there need be no difficulty on that score. They want a friendly, coöperative and industrial conflict with us, but not a military struggle for the supremacy of the Pacific."—Indianapolis Star.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor.

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY.

Subject of Sunday School Lesson, November 9:
"Abstinence for the Sake of Others."

Romans 14:7-21.

Time.—A. D. 58.

Places.—The Epistle was written at Corinth and sent to Rome.

Persons.—Paul, Roman Christians.

Golden Text.—It is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth.—Rom. 14:21.

Leading Thought.—We are responsible for the effect of our example upon others.

Paul wrote his letter to the Roman Christians from Corinth, about A. D. 57. He had not then visited Rome.

One of the most important questions in the early church was its relation to the heathen world around. The relatives and friends of the Christians were idolaters. How far should the Christians associate with them? Idol-worship was involved in every meal, in every sport, and even in business transactions. Especially was it difficult to judge the right way in the matter of food, for all meat was likely to be portions of sacrifices offered to idols. In this chapter Paul counsels Christian liberality—the meat is not made unclean by being offered to idols, the uncleanness is in the idolatrous heart; and at the same time Christian unselfishness and care for others; no one should partake of such meat if his partaking might draw a weak brother back into idolatry. These principles hold good with reference to the use of alcoholic liquors, except that they are harmful in themselves, which could not be said of meat that had been offered to idols.

Question Review.

1. Why do railroad companies require their engineers to be total abstainers?
2. Why does the athletic coach require boys to cut out strong drink and cigars?
3. Why do you have to be a total abstainer from strong drink if you want to gain high scholarship?
4. Why do you have to be a total abstainer from strong drink in order to have a happy home?
5. Why do you have to be a total abstainer to succeed in any good business?
6. Why do life insurance companies refuse to insure men who drink?
7. Why do bankers hesitate to lend money to drinkers? There's a reason.

Lesson Announcement.

Since the first of last July we have been studying lessons which centered around the character of one great man—Moses. Then we had the story some weeks ago about Moses losing his patience, disobeying God and being told he could not lead the Israelites into Canaan. Next Sunday's lesson tells of his last sight of the Promised Land, of his death and where he was buried.

I wish each boy and girl would decide this week what is your favorite story about Moses and why.—Hageman.

THE WOMEN'S CLASS.

While there seems to be a larger emphasis being placed upon men in the wonderful development of the Adult Bible Class Movement, it is well to remember that this return to the Sunday school is bringing a multitude of mothers back, and is holding thousands of girls to the study of the Bible. This means much in the training of the next generation of boys and girls. For without such thorough study of the Bible as years of application to it gives, what young mother is competent to interpret the great principles of life to her little lad or lass as they grow into boyhood and girlhood, with the wondering questions of life and its problems in their hearts and eyes? The place to catch the spirit of the Master so that it drives one to a study of his life, and claims for one's self, is still at mother's knee—if mother knows the Master and his teachings. For it comes with all that trusting confidence which helps it grip until one knows in a personal way the Savior of men, Jesus Christ. So all hail to the multiplying classes for women! Their influence and value are great for what they mean to the members today. But even more—another generation will rise up and call them blessed.—Exchange.

TEMPERANCE FACTS AND FIGURES.

Topic for Christian Endeavor Lesson for Sunday,
November 6. Scripture, 1 Kings 20:1-21.

It is suggested that this be called "A fusillade meeting" and that two leaders be named. These will divide the society into two groups. One will sit one side of the room, and the other group on the other side of the room facing the first. The leaders will be in the center of the groups. Let first one side and then the other be heard from. One will ask a question and quickly someone on the other side will add something to it. One will recite and this will be answered by a scripture quotation, and so on down the line. Let there be no hesitancy.

One leader may in his opening remarks give scriptural reasons for temperance; the other may give business reasons. Let each succinctly give a line of argument that may be developed by others during the meeting.

In the meeting the questions and answers laid down below and others from the Christian Endeavor World may be used, as well as quotations and scripture references. Let someone give some figures, and another comparisons, and another the tremendous cost to society of intemperance.

Thoughts on the Topic.

Everybody's Magazine tells of a police-court magistrate who was approached by a distiller who asked him if he had ever tried his special brand of whiskey. "No," said the judge, "but I tried three men in court this morning who had tried it."

A well-known physician, Dr. T. D. Crothers, writes, "The continuous use of small quantities of alcohol has a certain cumulative action which depresses the nervous system and lowers the vitality, so that beer-drinkers do not recover from injury or sickness so quickly as others."

A judge in Chicago has had a large mirror placed in his courtroom, so that every man brought before him for intoxication may take a good look at himself. He believes that seeing themselves as they are when drunk will cure half of them.

The brewers' own figures show that prohibition does prohibit, for in license States the per capita consumption of beer is about twenty-five gallons, in prohibition States it is only one gallon.

Drinkers spend, on the average, twice as much for their intoxicants as for their food. So says The American Grocer, the organ of the grocer trade, after careful investigation.

Beer is the most popular American beverage. We drink three times as much of it as we drank forty years ago.

It has been shown that half of the railroad accidents and accidents with automobiles are due to strong drink. An investigation of 200 motor-car accidents showed that a large part were due to the use of alcohol just before the accident. In many of these cases the engineer or driver would not be considered drunk, but alcohol had affected his vision so that he could not recognize danger-signals.

Some Figures.

Last year's drink bill of this country was the stupendous sum of $1,630,000,000.

As only one-fourth of the population uses alcoholic liquor, each drinker, on the average, paid $67 for his intoxicants last year.

Against the $1,630,000,000 spent last year in this country for alcoholic liquors set off the $258,000,000 spent for non-alcoholic drinks—seven times as much for the harmful as for the harmless!

The most thorough investigation ever made of the connection between liquor and crime shows that in one-third of the cases drink was the sole or predominating cause, while it was an indirect cause in many more cases.

Charity workers in New York investigated 18,600 cases of destitution, and found that sixty per cent. were due to intemperance.

The amount paid for intoxicants in the United States last year was greater than ever before—$80,000,000 greater than the year before, and $160,000,000 greater than four years before. This would be a far greater increase even than it is if it were not for the large gains in prohibition territory.

For Answer in the Meeting.

What is one discouragement encountered in the temperance campaign?

What is one encouragement for temperance workers?

Why may we be sure that the temperance cause will finally triumph?

Where may we obtain temperance facts and figures?

What is the most impressive piece of temperance statistics you can give?

What facts regarding the saloon condemn it?

What facts make you a believer in total abstinence?

What is the attitude of the railroads towards saloons?

What do the great business houses think of the saloons?

How can this be made a saloonless nation?

What is the greatest hope of the temperance reform?

What can our society do for temperance?

PRIMARY AND ELEMENTARY GRADES.

MRS. J. J. LINCOLN.

Primary and Elementary are terms often used in a common sense meaning anything that is fundamental, but the two words as applying to our denomination S. S. work have this distinction: "Elementary" includes all grades from Cradle Roll to Intermediate—that is, Beginners, ages four or five, Primary, ages six, seven or eight, Junior, ages nine, ten, eleven and twelve;—whereas "Primary," as is seen, covers only a specific part of what is known as Elementary. Or, stated in another way: "Elementary" begins where Cradle Roll ends (close of third year), and ends where Intermediate begins (close of twelfth year), nine years inclusive, while "Primary" embraces only three of the nine years and occupies only the middle portion of the elementary period.

Of course this age standard is mere approximate and cannot be always inviolately adopted and maintained; nevertheless, it can be and should be recognized and respected as the authentic standard.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Secty. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE AT MT. CARMEL.

The women of the Eastern Virginia Conference held their first Missionary Conference in a hall near Mt. Carmel church, on Thursday during the sitting of the Annual Conference at that place. It was first planned to have the meeting on Wednesday, but we were unable to get the hall on that day, so it was postponed until Thursday. The attendance during the morning session exceeded our fondest anticipation, many standing during the session and quite a number turned away, although it had been thought that sufficient seating accommodations had been provided. In the afternoon quite a number had to leave to catch the train and some others who could not attend but one day wanted to get a taste of the Annual Conference, so the attendance was not so large as in the morning. There were reported twelve Woman's Societies, four other churches using Mite Boxes, one Girls' Society, four Willing Workers Societies, and two Cradle Rolls. Thus we have sixteen churches enlisted in the work and 23 organizations in these churches. The Treasurer reported $599.

We were very fortunate in having Dr. Morrill, Mission Secretary, present, who told of the Sendai field and of the possibilities of the work there. He also spoke of Ichinoseki, the place where the Weston Memorial is to be built. Our women are asked to make their Christmas offering for a fund for the purchasing of a lot for this building.

There was nothing quite so touching and uplifting during the meeting as the talk by Mrs. D. P. Barrett on "The Young People of Porto Rico." She took some examples of the young people she had worked among, showing how they had been persecuted because of accepting the Gospel, and closed with an appeal for a Life. She said what these young people need is some one to get in close touch with them and help them to stand firm and true. With her home duties, Mrs. Barrett is unable to do much work outside of the church services. She has faith to believe that God will send them a helper.

The reports from the Superintendents of Literature and Mite Boxes and of Young People's Work were exceptionally fine. Mrs. J. W. Harrell had a splendid paper on the Importance of Mission Study. Mrs. W. H. Denison conducted a Round Table in which there was a general exchange of ideas and methods. Mrs. Barrett spoke again of our work in Porto Rico. The President in her remarks concerning "The Work and Its Outlook" made an appeal for our Societies—Woman's and Young People's together—to strive to raise $1,000 for the coming year, and to enlist at least one-half of our churches the coming year. This will mean work and faith and prayer, but the needs are so pressing as to demand it.

The interest, the attendance, the speeches, the reports, were all highly gratifying, and we believe inspiration was gained, new interest was aroused and greater faith in the work given. With our women aroused to mission work, new life will be injected into our churches and the wheels of Zion will move forward with greater power.

LETTER FROM MISS TRUE.

Dear Mrs. Rowland:—

The last CHRISTIAN SUN's Home and Foreign Missionary Department says: "When the missionaries are worn out, you want them to let you know," etc. Well, this missionary isn't worn out, but just healthily tired from walking about 7 ri this August day. You know a ri is two miles and a half. But the roads were in splendid condition. Most of the road was on the dyke along the Kita Kami River. The latter part was under the pines on the old Government road—a turnpike we would call it in New England. The fresh breeze from the North cooled the air but threatened to destroy our parasols, so most of the way we couldn't use them. To work backwards in detailing our trip, the road under the pines led us to Omagari where the sister of one of our deceased preachers lives.

She and her husband, a tailor, teach girls sewing. While they are not Christians, they are very willing for us to have monthly meetings with the girls. This time there was an Alumni meeting at the school house, so only seven of us had a meeting together, but in September more of the girls will be free from the farm work and sewing again. I sent Mark's Gospels and Mr. Woodworth's tract, "I Am Not Ashamed of the Gospel," to the Alumni meeting. You would have been interested in this house because the closet doors are pasted with newspapers, and over the newspapers are Sunday school roll pictures—all but one Old Testament pictures. They are very striking. Having sent what was intended for the girls to the Alumni meeting, three girls were given a gospel and their attention called to Matthew 25, the parable of the Virgins. Before the meeting, I had to explain the story of Naaman to an old lady. She was interested in the picture, but she was sick and had to lie on the straw mat, asleep, all through the meeting. Mr. Irokawa talked to the girls on "The Influence a Wife Can Have Over Her Husband." I should not forget one interesting but tiny object to be seen here. Over the names of the sewing girls, pasted high up enough to be near the ceiling, had there been any to this thatched-roof house, was a notice: "July 30th the 2sc year of the Era Taisho was born Kawamura Masao." Masao, herself a seventh child, was sleeping under the mosquito net, dressed in a dark blue striped gown, and did not cry at all while we were with the family. We hope she will deserve her name of "Righteousness."

Mr. Irokawa had come from Iinogawa, where we had hoped to have large numbers because of the "O Bon" festival—a festival for the dead. But the evening was showery, so the streets were not so crowded as we expected.

We spoke in Mrs. Watanabe's house, and five young men, one elderly man, six of the older Sunday school girls and we three workers composed the audience within. But a changing crowd stood without. At first the antics of a kitten and the fact that a foreigner was within had to be commented on by the children. We discussed how often we can wisely plan for communion service here with the little group of Christians and decided to have it quarterly. Last Sunday evening we had a woman's meeting here at Iinogawa. Mrs. Watanabe estimated that about 40 listened to the talk on the Passover.

Mr. Irokawa has arranged to go to Osu, about four miles beyond Iinogawa, where one of the young men members lives, and speak to the Young Men's Society next Thursday.

I want to tell you how I got my black and grim and dusty Daikoku Sama (god of wealth) which is before me as I write. One of the Inai inquirers gave it to me from her god shelf yesterday as I stopped there on my way to Mrs. Watanabe's.

I shall mention a few things that the women are especially asked to remember in prayer:

1. That the Iinogawa Christians may assume the responsibility of part of the rent of a larger house soon to be vacant in the town, and be directed aright as to location.
2. That they may develop and keep a true and deep evangelistic spirit.
3. That one young woman who has heard much may decide definitely for Christ.
4. That a sick man now reading Christian books may be converted.

Yours gratefully,

ALICE M. TRUE.

Ichinomaki, Japan.

TRANSLATION OF MRS. WATANABE'S LETTER TO THE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF MEMORIAL CHRISTIAN TEMPLE.

To the Woman's Missionary Society:—

It has become hot here. I hope you all enjoy excellent health. For God's glory, from you, I have received many benefits, and on my part there is gratitude. Lately, in your country, there was a flood, and I suppose there was great affliction. From my heart I have sympathy for you. When I heard that Mr. Morrill's fine house was injured, I was anxious. You must be wearied with many things. I in Japan earnestly pray for you. For my small and insignificant work I receive a letter from you. Thank you. By the help of God and the grace of Christ, I pray that I shall become strong. Happily, Miss True is in Ichinomaki, and helps with my work, for which I am grateful.

Now in Iinogawa, if you look at the present conditions, there are forty-three Sunday school children who are good and earnest in attendance. There are nine Christians here, members,—seven men and two women.

Sunday morning from 9 to 10, Sunday school is held Sunday evening, a service is held. Wednesday evening is prayer meeting, from 8 to 9; and Bible Study, Friday evening. The last Sunday of the month is a woman's meeting, in which Miss True helps.

Please pray for Christ's grace on all this, that all may be successful.

To the Beloved in the Lord, from

WATANABE TAKI.

Iinogawa Preaching House, July, 1913.

"Censure and criticism never hurt anybody. If false, they cannot hurt you, unless wanting in manly character, and, if true, they show a man his weak points and forewarn him against failure and trouble."

It is a good safe rule to sojourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness, or speaking a true word, or making a friend.—John Ruskin.

Without the resurrection, we should fail of a point of contact with the universal life of which this world's experience is but a corner.—Congregationalist.

LOOKING UNTO JESUS.

(Continued from Page 5.)

America shall not make him sorry that America is called a Christian nation!

Men of America, I plead with you! Women of America, I plead with you that by your example and by your patience and by your earnest work you shall strive to lift up all the standards of virtue and of morality until the streets of our great cities shall be entirely safe places for manhood and womanhood and childhood to walk upon; and until Christian America shall represent not in its name only but in its high ethical standards the character of Him whose name we are so proud to bear. Men and women of Christian America, Jesus Christ is walking in the streets, and wherever there is an influence pernicious, demoralizing; wherever there is a subtle influence that menaces society with corruption; wherever there is a custom that tends to lessen modesty and grace and substitute for modesty that which is immodest; wherever there is aught of offense against one of God's little ones, you are to remember that the standards are to be pushed up and up and up; no sagging in the standards. Christian America, if America be really Christian, then America must represent still the Pilgrim and the Puritan. America must still represent the Word of God; America must represent that old-fashioned method of life when virtue and faith and conscience and love were everything.

The Presence of Jesus.

Looking unto Jesus—and Jesus is in that church. He was there; he is there today; he will be there next Lord's day; he will be there to hear what the Sunday school teachers are saying in their classes; he will be there to hear what the preacher is saying in his sermon; he will be there to hear what is the subject of conversation when the service is over; he will be there to hear it all. When we go back to the old home shall we remember? shall we be looking into his face to ask him whether what he sees and what he hears is really pleasing unto him?

Looking unto Jesus. Many of you here this morning are pillars of the church to which you belong. There are men and women here this morning who, if they are not ministers of the Gospel, are determining the character of the girls and the boys under their care. I beg of you let us go back to the old place, look into his face, and ask him to help us do only those things that are pleasing to him. If it were possible to bring some of the old masters of art, music, and literature to help lift up our standards, we should accept their judgment and it would be of advantage to us. I pray you get the judgment of Jesus concerning them. Look unto him! Look unto him and hear what he has to say. Look unto him, and discover what he thinks of the things that enter into your life, and according to his judgment, so let your purpose be.

A mother, while visiting her son, who was a sophomore in one of the great institutions of learning, noticed upon the walls of his study pictures of such character as he had not been accustomed to see hanging upon the walls of his home. On returning home, she mailed to her son a picture of the Christ. But when he hung the picture of the Christ upon the wall, then the incongruity of the setting of the picture became apparent to him. Then, by-and-by, when the mother came again into the study of her son, lo, the face of Christ, hanging there upon the wall of her boy's study, determined the character of all the other pictures that were hung upon the wall. Oh, brother, sister, it is a great thing to hang the picture of your Lord in the dining room and the parlor. It is a great thing, men of business, to hang his picture in the office and counting-room, in the factory and in the shop. It is a great thing to carry the picture of the Christ with you wherever you go, so that all the elements of life shall be in harmony, and all that is incongruous shall disappear.

We are not only to look unto Jesus for the ethical standards of life, but we are to look unto Jesus for the power that shall help us to realize the high standards of life. It is the great purpose of our divine Lord to help us do the thing that we know is right. It is the great purpose of our Lord that we shall keep our eye fixed upon him. The sea may be troubled, and Peter may not have very stout heart; but so long as Peter shall keep his face turned upon our Lord, Peter shall not sink. How is it that the ethical standards of our faith shall be lifted? It shall be only as we keep looking unto Jesus; looking unto Jesus. It is not so much more faith that we need, but it is more of Christ that we are needing. It is Christ with us; Christ before us; it is Christ in us that is needed for the accomplishment of the great divine purpose. Not only look unto Jesus for the standards of your life, but I invite you to trust in him; I invite you to surrender unto him; I invite you to receive him as made unto God for righteousness. Looking unto Jesus—Christ with me; Christ in me, then we shall know the blessedness of the life that is alone with God; the life victorious, the life splendid, the life heroic.

Looking unto Jesus: the nearness of that look of faith, the blessedness of that appropriating look, the earnestness of that soul-grasp that will not be satisfied with anything else, and will not be satisfied with any one else can be satisfied only with Jesus. Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith"; Jesus, the multiplier of the loaves upon the mountain-side; Jesus, the quieter of tempestuous seas; Jesus, the resurrection, there beside the little daughter of Jairus. Jesus, standing at the grave of Lazarus, and where it seems as though there could be no recall to life, speaks but the word and Lazarus comes forth from his grave in that rock-hewn sepulcher, and is given back into the arms of those that love him. Christ of the atoning sacrifice; Christ of the Pentecost; Christ of the Easter morning!

There are dangers, there are difficulties, there are besetments. Falsities oftentimes come under the guise of truth; but I want you to take this simple message, and I want you to resolve this morning that whatever happens in this world, so far as you are concerned, there shall be no turning back. Whatever shall happen, whatever the world shall say, whatever shall be the temptation to doubt and disloyalty, as the Captain and the King shall help us there shall be no turning back.

Oh, brother, sister, "seeing that we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses," let us find cleansing for our sin in the blood of the Crucified. Let us find the answer to our need in our divine Lord. Let us keep our face fixed upon him who is the Resurrection and the Life and the mighty power of God, able to do exceedingly abundantly above all that we can ask or think; and keeping our eyes fixed upon Jesus, and seeking his indwelling in our hearts, and receiving at his hand the outpouring gift of the Holy Ghost, "let us run with patience the race that is set before us," until in the kingdom of his glory we shall see him "face to face," and overcoming, we shall share with him the glory and the joy of conquest.—From The Christian Herald.

Be careful that when you rise in your own estimation, flattery is not the yeast employed.

FOSTER'S
STORY OF THE BIBLE

From Genesis to Revelation. Told in Simple Language.

ADAPTED TO ALL AGES, BUT ESPECIALLY TO THE YOUNG

By CHARLES FOSTER

Size, 6½ x 9 in.; 704 Pages: 300 Illustrations.

BEAUTIFUL COLORED PICTURES
THE BEST EASY-READING VERSION OF THE WHOLE BIBLE

It adheres most closely to the Scriptures, retaining much of their force, dignity and distinction of style, with the pure and simple wording of the English Bible, without comment or doctrinal discussion.

MOST GENERALLY USED—750,000 SOLD

Approved by eminent men of various religious denominations. Valued in thousands of homes.

FINE CLOTH, with beautiful design in three colors (shown above), $1.50

SEND US YOUR ORDERS.

Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.Children's Missionary
Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions For Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDREN

The
Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

See Us about Job Printing
WHEN YOU WANT GOOD WORK.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

A STORY FROM BASEL.

There is an old clock upon the old tower in Basel which has been running too fast for a hundred years. But the clock deserved special distinction, for it once saved the City of Basel. This clock has—How is it possible? Upon the Rhine everything is possible. Only listen: Once upon a time the city was besieged and hard pressed by the enemy. Among the inhabitants of Basel there was one traitor; he sold himself to the enemy and intended to open the gate of the city from within about midnight, after the clock struck twelve, and let the enemy enter.

At the last moment the watchman of the tower heard of the intended treachery and resolved to save the city. But how could he do it? Should he give an alarm? Should he awaken the soldiers and the Council? It was too late for that. Then there came to him a saving thought. He turned the hand of the clock quickly around and it struck one instead of twelve. The traitor, who was already on his way to the gate, heard this. "There now!" he murmured, "I have overslept myself!" and sneaked back home. The enemy waited and waited—the gate was not opened. Early next morning the mayor heard what had happened. The traitor atoned for his guilt upon the gallows and it served him right. Thy let the clock continue as it was going.

But what about the enemy? They gave up the siege and fled over the bridge across the Rhine. Now the good inhabitants of Basel were happy. In their happiness they had a second clock made, a very large one, which they hung in the tower of the bridge. Instead of a pendulum this clock has a great head which moves to and fro sixty times a minute and at every time it sticks out its tongue in mockery at the enemy, who fled so shamefully across the bridge. Whether the clock is still there today, I do not know. Go and see!

Translated from the German.

W. C. WICKER.

NOTICE TO DELEGATES.

All delegates aiming to attend the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference at Lebanon, Nov. 18th, are requested to notify Mr. T. J. Earp, Milton, N. C., R. F. D. No. 2. Kindly state if you will be on private conveyance or go by rail. This will greatly aid the Committee on Entertainment. Please do not disregard this request.

The members of Conference who go by Greensboro, should leave Greensboro Monday, November 17, on train No. 14 at 1 p. m., or No. 36 at 1:35 p. m., for Danville, Va., and leave there on No. 6, at 4:50 p. m., Semora, N. C., where they will be met, if notified, conveyed to good homes for the night, and be ready for Conference Tuesday, November 18. Delegates from Durham and that way should go Tuesday morning, November 18, on the Norfolk and Western, to Denniston Junction, thence via Southern to Semora, arriving there at 10:07 a. m. for Conference.

J. W. PATTON, P. C.

HEROISM IN DAILY LIFE.

When there is a great calamity—a fire, a shipwreck—and deeds of heroism and self-sacrifice are performed, we see that the Divine in human nature is able to triumph over the animal! we see the lower law of self-interest set aside to make room for a higher Law. And for a moment we are stirred by the thought, and then forget about it.

Why should such rare and awful occasions be necessary in order to call out the better side of our nature? Why should a man wait until the moment of his death to bring out his noble qualities, when the world is so sorely in need of them during all his life?

And surely there is need everywhere and all the time for the display of the Divine in man. If any one seeks a chance to be heroic, what better opportunity can he demand than those afforded by the situations in which he finds himself in his daily life? The kind of heroism here required is perhaps of a different kind—the slow, patient, enduring kind. Yet, if there be any truth at all in the statement that there is a nobility in man, he must be able to evoke it in any circumstances.

And does not this suggest the thought that perchance, in the ordering of things, our circumstances are given us for opportunities? At all events, we can use them as opportunities.

Courage is a quality which every man possesses in some degree, and it is not possible to imagine a situation where courage cannot be evoked and made available. The more trying the circumstances are, the greater is the opportunity and the greater the victory. No matter how frail and deluded we may be in the unsubdued part of our nature, there is always the undercurrent of strength and loyalty to the right; and if we can find this, then we have indeed learned one of the mysteries of life, and who knows what further may yet be in store for us?—The New Way.

Holy Bible

THE FINEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD
—FOR THE MONEY—

" This Photograph represents exact size 5½ x 8¼ inches
Bound in French Morocco, absolutely flexible,
with overlapping covers as shown in this photograph. Has red under gold edges.
—IT CONTAINS—
The Authorized Version of the Old Testament and New Testament
—HAS—
Self-Pronouncing Text
All the proper words being accented and divided into syllables for quick and easy pronunciation.
—IT ALSO CONTAINS—
A New Series of Helps to Bible Study
—INCLUDING—
4000 Questions and Answers
which unfold the Scriptures
31 Beautiful Illustrations
showing scenes and incidents of Bible History
12 Maps of the Bible Lands in Colors
Large Clear Type Fine Paper

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN one year,
$2.50, postpaid.
Or sent alone for $1.50, postpaid.
—ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO—
The Southern Christian Pub. Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. E. M. CARTER, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

E. M. Carter, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amount brought forward$3,804.58

Dues

R. P. Crumpler, Jr.$.10 .10

Monthly S. S. Offering

Linville, Va.$ 1.31
Morrisville 2.07
Henderson 2.97
Haw River 1.00
Hank's Chapel85
Durham 5.00
Union Memorial, Everettts, Pa. 1.00 14.20

Special

Six Forks Church$ 6.00
A. T. Holland, Suffolk.. 10.00
Mrs. Dr. Spencer, Sewls Point50
W. R. Winner (support of children) 10.00
Tyler Bolling (work) .. 2.00 28.50

Thanksgiving Offering

Mrs. Dr. W. W. Staley, Franklinton, N. C. ..$ 5.00 5.00

Total for the week$ 47.80
Grand Total$3,852.38

My Dear Children:

An almost vacant "Corner" greets us again this week. Only one lonesome letter. How many of the Cousins are willing for our Corner to retain its deserted appearance? Uncle Jim wants a bright, happy, cheerful Corner each week. How many will help to make it such. There are enough boys and girls in the Christian church for us to have at least twenty-five letters each week. I want you to help me run all those advertisements off of our page and put in their place bright, sunny letters.

We are very thankful for the faithful ones who have written so regularly each month. Let others join these faithful few and we will have a happy, cheerful "Corner" each week.

With much love for each of the Cousins and deep interest in your work, I beg to be, Your devoted,

UNCLE JIM.

(My name happens to be "Jim," which I am sure is familiar on this page to many Cousins who used to write. Yours, James O. Cox.)

In presenting our second week's report, we wish to thank every one who has a part in it; especially the seven Sunday schools who have monthly offerings in this report. If every school in the Southern Convention would only join in this great work, how much could be accomplished, both in supporting the institution, and in training the members of the schools in liberal giving. We should have near fifty schools contributing each week. May I enquire where are the other forty-three? If each of our schools would make monthly offerings in proportion to those that are now contributing, it would give us an income of over $100 per week, nearly $500 per month. Enough to care for about seventy-five children.

We are also very grateful for the special offerings. Besides those in our report this week, we have a long list of contributions secured by Brother Carter in the Alabama and Georgia Conferences, which came in too late to get in this report.

We are grateful for our first Thanksgiving Offering. Mrs. W. W. Staley has the honor of being the first to express her gratitude to God and her interest in His cause by contributing $5 to our work. We are very grateful. We trust that many individuals, and every church and Sunday school, will follow her example. The needs of the institution were never more urgent than now. I am going to do my best, and expect the same of the church and each individual of the Southern church. Then we can rejoice together and enjoy the rewards of faithful service.

J. O. Cox, Supt.

Stem, N. C., October 30, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I am very glad to send my letter to "Uncle Jim" this time. I feel that he will make another mighty good Superintendent. I hope for you and Aunt Mamie much success in your new vocation. With this letter I am sending my dime for October.

From your little nephew,

R. P. CRUMPLER, JR.

Thank you, sir. We are indeed glad to hear from you, and appreciate your good wish for our success. We are going to do our best, and want each of the Cousins to help.

A STORY AND ITS LESSON.

Miss Julia Meadows, a missionary in Wuchow, China, tells this pretty story:

"At one village a feeble old grand-mother attended the class for women for ten days. She was very ugly, very ignorant and very poor. She had charge of her blind and sick grandson of some six years of age. She had to busy herself almost constantly during lessons to keep him quiet. If only she could sit down quietly and listen, I thought, perhaps even she, seemingly the poorest and most ignorant of them all, might get some good for her poor soul.

"There seemed no hope for this, as day by day she came, giving her attention to the child. As I saw her great need and my utter helplessness, I could only again and again breathe a prayer that, somehow, our Father could convey a blessing to her.

"At the close of the class, before

MAKE YOURSELF PHYSICALLY 100 PER CENT EFFICIENT.

Throw away drugs, appliances of all kinds, pills, tonics, liniments and all sorts of foolish things that do not help you, and clear yourself of all the poisonous products that so drug and dull your brain and body so that you cannot take that place in the ranks of men and women that you ought to occupy. Be 100 per cent. efficient.

Thousands of men and women in the United States are dragging about day after day with aching heads and protesting muscles and nerves, crying aloud at the double load they are obliged to carry. Such people are being smothered by foul matter, poisoned by the failure of their bodies to throw off the waste products. They can be seen on every hand, with drawn faces, pinched by pain, with stooped shoulders and uncertain step, making a gallant fight for success against terrible odds, gamely trying to discharge the duties of life under a terrible handicap.

To all such come assurances of perfect freedom from galling bonds of disease and suffering, given by the wonderful OXYPATHOR. This is a really scientific instrument that effectually polarizes the body so that the entire system absorbs oxygen and literally burns out the refuse created by bodily processes, the effete matter that otherwise may remain in the system and degenerate into a toxin that poisons every organ, hinders every action and binds every thought. With this really scientific way of regaining bodily functions, the message of health is proclaimed to all. The process is simplicity itself. There is no electric current to frighten or burn, no unpleasant effect or exposure, nothing but to permit the device to so polarize the body as to enable skin and lungs to oxidize the waste, throw off the poisons therein contained and add the life-giving and health-restoring oxygen to the system in such quantities as to give abundant energy and strength to the sufferer.

You cannot afford to be a fifteen per cent. man, a fifty per cent. man, even an eighty per cent. man. You can be and you should be a 100 per cent. man, able to put yourself up to a strong task with full assurance that you can make it go. The world is looking for men and women who are able to do their full share, able to take up their work with zest and do it with despatch, persons who combine efficient brains and bodily vigor.

And we say it with full assurance, any one who wants to be efficient—yes, a hundred per cent. efficient—can be so by the right use of the OXYPATHOR, the health giver of the century.

Write and learn about it, learn how with it you find great opportunities to do good to yourself and others. Address the Carolina Oxyopath Company, 126 W. Martin St., Raleigh, N. C.

HE REDUCED 57 POUNDS.

New Method of Flesh Reduction Proves Astonishingly Successful.

Johnstown, Pa., Special.—Investigation has fully established that Hon. H. T. Stetler, of this city, has reduced his weight fifty-seven pounds in an incredibly short time by wearing a simple, invisible device, weighing less than an ounce. This, when worn as directed, acts as an infallible flesh reducer, dispensing entirely with dieting, medicines and exercises. Many prominent men and women have adopted this easy means of reducing superfluous flesh, and it is stated the inventor, Prof. G. X. Burns, of No. 17 West Thirty-eighth street, New York, is sending these outfits on free trial to all who write him. Ad.

Prevents Nose Rot in Sheep and Murrain in Cattle

I have given your remedy to my stock for three years, and have found it to be excellent for all kinds of diseases, and an especially effective cure and preventative of Murrain in cattle. At one time my neighborhood was infected with this disease, and many cattle died near me, while my cattle never had the least symptom of it. Your remedy is also a boon in raising sheep. I have a herd of seventy-five to one hundred that always have access to it, and none of them ever had nose rot, so common among sheep.

W. O. HAWKINS,
Chattanooga, Tenn.

BLACKMAN STOCK REMEDY COMPANY
Chattanooga, Tennessee

LET US GIVE YOU This Booklet Free.

It tells you how we can make your old clothes look like new by scientific dyeing. It tells you how we remove by French Dry Cleaning every particle of dust, every stain, every smear, from the daintiest or the heaviest fabrics, and restore them to you in perfect order.

PRICES ARE THE LOWEST.

For three years we have been growing into a big trade. We now have 10,000 square feet of floor space devoted to our dyeing, cleaning and laundry work. We have the latest improved machinery, the best of skilled labor. We can do what needs to be done in the right way.

All clothing cleaned or dyed by us is sterilized, freed of dust and dirt and carefully repaired. Curtains, portieres and other household articles get the best of attention.

We have the facilities and experience. You are always safe in sending work to us. Ask any bank in Greensboro as to our reliability.

Use the parcel post. Write for our free booklet, which tells what we do and gives prices. Freshen up your winter clothing now.

We want an agent in each town. Write for terms.

COLUMBIA LAUNDRY COMPANY,

106 Fayetteville Street, Greensboro, N. C.

leaving her village, I went alone early in the morning to her single-roomed bamboo hut to say good-bye. The room was dark from lack of light, and because of the soot from the open, smoking stove. The old women met me at the open door with a warm smile and cordial greeting, saying, 'I am glad you have come; just listen at my grandson, as he lies there singing "Jesus Loves Me." You don't know what a smart child he is; he knows every verse.'

"I stopped to listen and sure enough, his little ears had caught the melody perfectly, and from out of that darkness his voice rang clear and sweet until he had sung all four verses. Then we had a fervent prayer, realizing surely 'that God was in that place.' I stood to go and she laid her hand in mine to detain me for a moment, saying, 'Good-bye, Kooneung. I am so glad that God sent you to us. You see me now with this wrinkled face and these tattered garments, but some day you will see me clothed in white, shining with the glory of our Savior, for we shall see Him as He is.'"

"TITHING GOD'S PLAN," BUT NOT TITHING ALONE.

Editor The Christian Advocate: One reason God claims the tithe of our income is that He may be in a position to receive free-will offerings. When we withhold His own the Church loses its independence and must assume the role of a beggar. The tithe upholds the independent personality of Jehovah and is a substantial acknowledgment of human dependence. With all the tithes in the storehouse the Lord and the Church might still make a distinction between Abel's and Cain's offering, but with the treasury empty and so many urgent calls for money we must take almost any kind of a dollar secured in almost any kind of a way. By robbing the Lord of His tithe we rob Him and His Church of honor and self-respect, and they must stand by the wayside, pleading for a pittance.

The most disastrous result of forsaking the Lord's plan of "tithes and offerings" is the divorcement of God's personality from our methods of giving. We give something if we feel like it to the impersonal church, to the cause of missions, if we believe in it, to the preacher, if he suits us, to various good causes, if they happen to be presented to us acceptably when we are in the proper mood. Thus we lose sight of our personal obligation to the Lord Himself, to whom, through the Church, we should pay our tithes and present offerings in proportion to the blessings of the Lord our God.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

The law of nature is that they who do the thing shall have the power; they who do not the thing have not the power.—Emerson.

MARRIAGES

Fletcher-Triplett.

Festus N. Fletcher and Mary Triplett were united in marriage at the Winchester parsonage, by the writer, September 10. They have our best wishes for a long and happy life.

W. T. WALTERS.

TRIAL BOX FREE

Do you suffer with
Headache or Neuralgia
One trial of Megrimine is sufficient—your suffering will cease.
For over a quarter of a century

ME-GRIM-INE

Has been a Godsend to victims of all forms of headache and neuralgia. Write at once for a trial box without cost.

The Dr. Whitehall Megrimine Co.
8 N. Lafayette St., South Bend, Ind.

Organize a Band!

or Orchestra

Musicians—
Amateur and Professional

write for our interesting plan for organizing bands and orchestras for public entertainment, Schools, Colleges, Churches and Sunday Schools. For 27 years we have been manufacturing the famous Buescher Musical Instruments. Our "Tru-Tone" Instruments are known the world over by musicians great and small as the best that money can produce.

Your Instrument Given Free

As organizer of the band or orchestra, we will make you a present of the instrument upon which you perform, the price of this instrument to depend upon the cost and elaborateness of the band or orchestra outfit. This is a unique offer and a rare opportunity. Write at once for full particulars free. Address

BUESCHER BAND INSTRUMENT CO.,
Elkhart, Indiana.

DR. J. H. BROOKS,

Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

MORPHINE WHISKEY
and TOBACCO
HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARCROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.

Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81	4:35 a. m.
No. 29	Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41	4:10 p. m.
No. 43	6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84	12:48 a. m.
No. 38	11:35 a. m.
No. 66	12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.

Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles, Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

—HIGH CLASS—

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's Icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf.

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly.

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

BEAUTIFUL PORTO RICO.

Porto Rico, one of the most charming of the islands of the western tropics, is almost a foreign mission field in the home land. There are 1,200,000 inhabitants in Porto Rico, the large majority of whom live in rural districts and know little or nothing of Christ's real redemptive work.

Until fourteen years ago the doors of this beautiful island were closed except to Spain and the Roman Catholic church. Some one has said that her exclusiveness was almost equal to that of ancient Judaism; no independence of religious liberty was allowed. But the door was opened in 1898, when the island passed into the hands of the United States government, and the people seemed to be waiting for Protestant Christianity.

This seems to be the day of opportunity for the evangelization of Porto Rico and for the educational, social, moral and religious transformation of the people of that interesting island.

The United States government is doing much to develop the natural resources of the island, and to uplift and educate the people in the elements of American citizenship. Her splendid school system, including the University of Porto Rico, besides schools of domestic science, agriculture, manual training, in addition to the all-important and excellent work of the Christian missionaries, are working wonders.

There are one hundred and seventy-nine evangelical pastors on the island; one hundred and fifty assistants; one hundred and eighty-six church organizations; two hundred and eighty Bible schools, with fifteen thousand one hundred and forty-nine scholars; one hundred and thirty-two church houses and chapels, with eleven thousand three hundred and fifty-nine members in full communion. The value of the church property is $682,987.

Contributions from the women's missionary societies of a single denomination have provided a charming rest home, the Mount Hermon Cottage, situated two thousand feet above the Caribbean sea. A recent visitor to the rest home said, "It is the best and most delightful investment I ever saw for the sum of $1,000."

All of the cities of Porto Rico are open to any denomination.

WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Abingdon, Va.—Mrs. Jennie McCall, of this place, says, "I had been troubled with female complaints, for over ten years. I could not walk or stand on my feet, and had been almost confined to the house, for a long time. I began to take Cardui, the woman's tonic, and now I can walk anywhere I want to go. Cardui is worth its weight in gold." This is a high estimate on a plain, herb medicine, yet there are thousands of women who would gladly pay this price for a remedy to relieve their suffering. Cardui has helped others. Why not you? Try it. Your druggist sells it, in $1 bottles. Ad.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF Elon Banking & Trust Co. ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

at the close of business October 31, 1913

Resources

Loans and discounts	$14,759.48
Overdrafts	119.95
Banking Houses	$1,412.00
Furniture and Fixtures	1,062.76
	2,474.76
Due from Banks and Bankers	2,733.32
Cash items	1,599.13
Gold coin	230.00
Silver coin, including all minor coin currency	84.56
National bank notes and other U. S. notes	1,122.00
Total	$23,122.20

Liabilities

Capital stock paid in	$ 5,000.00
Undivided profits, less current expenses and taxes paid ..	749.74
Deposits subject to check ...	14,160.27
Demand Certificates of Deposit	3,058.24
Cashier's Checks outstanding ..	153.95
Total	$23,122.20

State of North Carolina,
County of Alamance, ss:

I, W. L. Smith, Cashier of the above-named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

W. L. SMITH, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 1st day of November, 1913.

J. C. McADAMS, Notary Public.

Correct—Attest:

T. C. AMICK,
W. C. WICKER,
J. B. GERRINGER,
Directors.

THE BEST Sunday School Help

If you are a Sunday school teacher or pupil you should desire the best possible help. This you will find in one volume, Peloubet's Select Notes on the International Lessons for 1914. Send in your order now. Up to January 1 you can get a copy for $1.00, after that time, $1.25. The publishers' price is $1.25, but we save you 25 cents by ordering from us. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Help for the Hair

Not satisfied with your hair? Too short? Falling out? Rough? Uneven? Then why not consult your doctor? Isn't your hair worth it? Ask him if he endorses Ayer's Hair Vigor for these hair troubles. Does not color the hair.

J. C. Ayer Co.,
Lowell, Mass.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of higher education fostered by the Southern Christian Convention.

MODERN IN EQUIPMENT, Steam Heat, Electric Lights, Baths, Sewerage, Elegant New Buildings.

A HIGH GRADE INSTITUTION whose graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great American Universities without examination.

MAINTAINS EXCELLENT MUSIC, Art, Elocution, Normal, and Preparatory Departments.

A FACULTY OF SEVENTEEN SPECIALISTS, with a successful record of twenty-three years behind it.

HAS ALL THE ADVANTAGES of city life with none of its disadvantages. Situated in the delightful hill country of North Carolina, famed for its healthfulness, pure water, and high moral tone.

ELON COLLEGE HAS DONE MORE to build up the Christian Church than any institution ever yet commissioned by our people.

TERMS VERY MODERATE. $141 to $191 per session of ten school months.

For catalogue or other information, address,

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, Elon College, N. C.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLE

LARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

Contains in addition to the Authorized Old and New Testaments, all the Sayings of Christ in Red; The Temple Library at Nippur; Names and Order of the Books of the Bible; Maps of Bible Lands; Pronouncing Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names; Comparative Systems of Scripture Chronology; History of the Period from the Close of the Sacred Canon of the Old Testament until the Times of the New Testament; Illuminated Marriage Certificate and Family Record; Chronological Index to the Bible; Concordance; Full-Page Dore Pictures, Half-Tones and in Colors, etc.

No. 820 P. R. L. Bound in IMITATION OF LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Gilt Titles, Marbled Edges. (Weight, 12 lbs.) $2.10

No. 822 P. R. L. Bound in SEMBLE LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Full Gilt Sides and Back, Gilt Edges. (Weight, 13 lbs.) 2.85

No. 823 P. R. L. Bound in AMERICAN MOROCCO, Padded Sides, Rounded Corners on Cover, Gold Side & Back Titles, Gold Edges. (Weight, 15 lbs.) 5.00

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10½ x 12½ in.

HOLMAN RED LETTER

SELF-PRONOUNCING TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches.

THE TYPE.
23 The Bāb-ŷ-lō-ni-ang, and all the Chāl-dē-ang, Pē-kōd, and Shō'a, and Kō'a, and all the Ās-sŷr'i-ang with

No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges $2.50

No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges 3.00

Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENT

SELF-PRONOUNCING

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Daintiest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2½ x 4¼ inches.

THE TYPE.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jēsus is the

No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges50

No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms.75

Postage, 3 Cents.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Y. M. C. A.'S WORK FOR TUBERCULOSIS DAY.

Nearly 600,000 members of the Young Men's Christian Association of the United States, including several thousand members of the allied health leagues, hundreds of physical directors and 345,000 members of the physical departments will be urged to co-operate in the Tuberculosis Day campaign during the week of December 7th, according to an announcement made today from the headquarters of this movement in New York.

Lectures and discussions on tuberculosis will be held on Sunday afternoon, December 7th, and during the week preceding or the week following that date, by many organizations connected with the Y. M. C. A. Prominent speakers in various cities of the country will address these meetings. The details of the program are being worked out by Dr. George J. Fisher, Director of the Physical Department of the International Committee of the Association.

Secretaries of the local branches of the Y. M. C. A., or members of the Association who are interested in this subject can secure literature, free of charge, from the office of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, 105 East 22nd Street, New York City.

FROM THE CONGO.

Whose heart will not respond to this brief little minor note that is sounded in the "Kasai Herald," the little paper published at a mission station in Africa:

"A missionary must have a hard heart to stand what we must stand in seeing the sickness and death around us here. Kalala, one of our evangelists; Boyamuke, the little son of our wheelman on the steamer; and several others of the mission who could have been spared for lives of usefulness, perhaps, if we could have known what to do for them, have gone to the 'Village of God.' Three of the missionaries are giving their time to this important work, the three put together hardly making one good physician, as even the counsels of the wise can not give life to the dying. What we needed more than anything else at Luebo, in the way of material equipment, was a hospital and this is already in sight; we trust that physicians will yet be found."

JAMAICAN CONVERTS IN CUBA.

The following, dated at Guantanamo, Cuba, and received by one of the mission boards recently, is of interest:

"I have one service per week for the Jamaicans. Among our membership of 97 here in Guantanamo, 37 are Jamaicans. They attend very regularly, and the congregation averages about fifty. Their contributions are larger by far

A Piano Aristocrat.

THE WEAVER PIANO

is too expensively made to appeal to the bargain seekers. You never find the Weaver Piano on any bargain counter, or advertised in any club or special bargain proposition of any kind.

It is in a class of its own and is made for the occasional discriminating buyer who wants the finest piano that it is possible to produce and is able and willing to pay the price for it. It is the Piano that has set a new high standard of quality for the 20th century. The published opinions of many of the world's leading musicians confirm this. And yet the price is not excessive. You get more real value for every dollar in the price of the Weaver Piano than in any other. Write for catalogue, price, and full particulars. Easy time payments when desired by responsible purchasers.

WEAVER ORGAN & PIANO COMPANY, MANUFACTURERS, YORK, PA.

than those from the natives. This year I have received by certificate and order of church conference, 12 Jamaicans.

"With the $265 that was given me for repairs on the church and parsonage I have put the whole property in excellent condition, and it is every bit of five hundred dollars better off. I was able to save quite a good deal by overseeing the work myself and also being one of the laborers.—W. M. Mul-len.

THE ISSUE IN JAPAN.

A well-known missionary statesman says that the issue in Japan seems to be no longer between Christianity and Buddhism, but between Christianity and nothing, as indicated by a religious census recently taken in the Imperial University in Tokyo. It classifies the more than 4,600 students by religions as follows: Shinto, 8; Buddhist, 50; Atheist, 1,500; Agnostie, 3,000. These figures reveal a condition of vast significance. They show that the educated classes of Japan have practically broken with Shintoism and Buddhism and are looking for some better basis for their ethics and faith.

THIS WILL INTEREST MANY.

F. W. Parkhurst, the Boston publisher, says that if anyone afflicted with rheumatism in any form, neuralgia or kidney trouble, will send their address to him at 701 Carney Building, Boston, Mass., he will direct them to a perfect cure. He has nothing to sell or give; only tells you how he was cured after years of search for relief. Hundreds have tested it with success. Ad.

As a special feature of the Tuberculosis Day Campaign, December 7th, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis will urge clergymen in all parts of the United States to denounce fake consumption cures from their pulpits.

Millions of dollars are spent by church members and others on valueless remedies of this character, according to the association's records. Literature showing in detail the methods of fake cure venders will be sent on request to any clergyman by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, 105 East 22nd Street, New York City.

GIVE ME A CHANCE TO CURE YOUR RHEUMATISM FREE

Mr. Delano took his own medicine. It cured his rheumatism after he had suffered tortures for thirty-six years. He spent $20,000 before he discovered the remedy that cured him, but I will give you the benefit of his experience for nothing.

If you suffer from rheumatism let me send you a package of this remedy free. Don't send any money. I want to give it to you. I want you to see for yourself what it will do. The picture shows how rheumatism twists and distorts the bones. Maybe you are suffering the same way. Don't. You don't need to. I have the remedy that I believe will cure you and it's yours for the asking. Write me today. F. H. Delano, 541-B Delano Building, Syracuse, New York, and I will send you a free package the very day I get your letter.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving; Wedding Invitations; Visiting Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All Kinds of Books; Hymn Books; Song Books; Teacher Training Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian Annual, and other publications of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

Cancer Cured at the Kellam Hospital

The record of the Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having cured to stay cured permanently, without the use of the Knife, Acids or X Ray, over 90 per cent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from Cancer which it has treated during the past eighteen years. We have been endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. Physicians treated free. KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St. Richmond, Va. Write for Literature.

CANCER

FREE TREATISE The Leach Sanatorium, Indianapolis, Ind., has published a booklet which gives interesting facts about the cause of Cancer, also tells what to do for pain, bleeding, odor, etc. Write for it today, mentioning this paper.

FISH

Let me tell you how to catch them where you think there are none. We make the famous Double Muzzle Wire Fish Basket. Greatly improved this year. Write to EUREKA FISH NET CO., Griffin, Georgia.

Byron W. King School of Oratory ELOCUTION AND SPEECH ARTS

New Building and Dormitory Courses for Teachers, Lecturers, Lyceum and Cantauqua Work, speech defects, stammering, loss of voice, sore throat positively cured. Largest school of speech arts in America. Send for prospectus. Mt. Oliver, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Lassiter.

Whereas: It has pleased almighty God to call from this life, on the 30th of August, 1913, our sister, Nettie G. Lassiter, the beloved wife of our brother, Rev. L. L. Lassiter; and

Whereas: The deceased was a faithful, consecrated member of Bethlehem Christian church and Sunday school; therefore, be it resolved:

First—That in the death of Sister Lassiter, Bethlehem church has lost a faithful, devoted member.

Second—That the church hereby extends her deepest sympathy and condolence to the bereaved husband, who is left to mourn the loss of his dear departed wife, and pray that he may not "weep as those who have no hope," and that he may be enabled to submit with pious resignation to the will of the divine Father.

Third—That a copy of these resolutions be presented to our brother, Rev. L. L. Lassiter, the husband of the deceased, a copy be sent to The Christian Sun and the Herald of Gospel Liberty for publication, and a copy be spread on the minutes of Bethlehem Christian Church.

(Miss) H. C. O. MARTZ,
(Mrs.) J. C. BRADFORD,
S. W. LINCOLN,
Committee.

TEACHERS WANTED IN PORTO RICO.

Miss Janet H. Houston, a teacher in Porto Rico, informs her board that there is an opening in Porto Rico, and also great need for Christian teachers, both men and women, in the public schools of the island. There seems to be no objection, she says, to any one who occupies a position in the public schools doing any amount of good missionary work that he or she may feel inclined to do, and there is very great need of such work in Porto Rico. Miss Houston also says that these teachers do not need to learn the Spanish language to be eligible for work, as all the textbooks used in the public schools are in English.

N. F. Shivar

Read My Guarantee of Health

If you suffer from any of the following named diseases and give Shivar Spring Water a fair test without any benefit, I will refund your money, or

If you follow my directions, as given in the guarantee below, and you are not helped, I will pay you $5.00.

The reason for this is that I have personally been cured by Shivar Spring Water after long suffering—in fact, I was a physical wreck—and I have personally known of thousands who have been helped and cured.

What a man sees with his own eyes and feels with his own nerves he is sure of.

Thus I know that the genuine Shivar Spring Water will benefit or cure 997 of every thousand who suffer from any of these diseases:

Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Gastritis, Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys or Bladder, Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism, Gall Stones, Nervous Headache, Uric Acid Poisoning or Chronic Sores due to bad blood.

Knowing of these thousands of cures, I make the following:

GUARANTEE

Send me two dollars for ten gallons, two five-gallon demijohns. Follow the directions, and if the results are not satisfactory to you I will refund the price on receipt of the two empty demijohns and your report—You to be the sole judge.

But ten gallons is not a fair test for any mineral water. Therefore I make you the following guarantee to secure a fair trial:

Order and drink twenty gallons of Shivar Spring Water, at least two quarts a day, as directed in my booklet, and if after that you feel you have received no benefit therefrom return the demijohns and I will send you ten gallons more, absolutely free of charge, and if, after using the third ten gallons, you see no benefit, I will cheerfully send you five dollars in cash, being a refund of the money you have paid me and a dollar for your trouble.

No strings to it; no fuss about it; just a simple letter to me telling the truth about your own case.

N. F. Shivar

Here's Ample Proof For You

Columbia, S. C., July 28, 1913.

I feel better than I have felt in five years. You can tell anyone using six bottles of this water without good results, I will pay for it.

E. W. REID, 711 Main St., Columbia, S. C.

Lexington, Va., Sept. 9, 1913.

I suffered with intestinal indigestion and kidney trouble, and have been relieved.

J. H. WHITMORE.

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 10, 1913.

I suffered with indigestion for twelve years and had given up hope of ever getting well. I used three bottles of Shivar Spring Water and was cured. Have never had indigestion since.

MRS. A. J. NOONAN, 548 Broughton St. E.

Lexington, S. C., August 25, 1913.

I am using your water for indigestion, and am proud to say that it is doing me more good than any medicine I ever took.

MRS. J. A. Q. MEETZE.

Bishopville, S. C., August 20, 1913.

My friends see such a change in my condition, that I am getting many inquiries from them about your water. The water has done more good than any medicine I have ever taken for rheumatism.

H. S. CUNNINGHAM.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 18, 1913.

The water did Mrs. Carter more good for the length of time she used it, than probably anything that she has ever used. Mrs. Carter had enlarged joints upon her hands, caused by rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement.

W. C. CARTER.

Hepzibah, Ga., May 21, 1913.

We gave some of this water to a poor man down in bed with his feet all swollen. After using three gallons, he could walk about, and I want ten gallons for him.

J. L. BARBER.

Note This Well—It May Mean Much To You

Since the marvelous success of this water in treating such diseases as those mentioned above has been made known to the people of the South, there have of course been imitators—people who have springs "just as good," they say. If you want to, use their water. But it seems to me no man ought to take unnecessary chances with the most precious possession he has—his health—or ought to delay in getting well. The chief merit of these other springs, their owners say, is that "they are like Shivar Spring Water." If that is the case, why should you risk a disappointment by failing to get the real article? Shivar Spring Water is guaranteed over my signature, as above. I'm not proud of my handwriting, but I am proud of this spring. So I put the handwriting on the bottles of Nature's healing product simply that you may be sure you have the real article, not an imitation.

Then When You Get The Right Water You Will Get The Benefit

SEND FOR MORE OF MY PROOF

Shivar Spring Water does not deteriorate from standing and may be shipped to any distance or to any climate. You are safe in ordering it.

N. F. SHIVAR, PROPRIETOR SHIVAR SPRING, SHELTON, S. C.

Reference—The advertising manager of this Paper is personally acquainted with Mr. Shivar and can vouch for the genuineness of his offer. You run no risk in making the deposit.

DAINTY COOK BOOK FREE.

We are mailing free, our book, "Dainty Desserts for Dainty People," to anyone mentioning the name of their grocer. This book is beautifully illustrated in colors and gives over 100 recipes for the daintiest Desserts, Jellies, Puddings, Salad, Candies, Ices, Ice Creams, etc. If you send a 2c stamp, we will also send you a full pint sample of KNOX GELATINE, or for 15c a two quart package, if your grocer does not sell it. KNOX GELATINE, 201 Knox Avenue, Johnstown, N. Y. ad

Raise Money For Your Church Society

WRITE US for our plan by which ladies can quickly earn money for their Missionary Society, Ladies' Aid, etc. Any woman wanting to earn money easily and in a dignified manner for any purpose whatever will be interested in our proposition. Modern Specialties Mfg. Co., 130 High St., South Bend, Ind.

NEW FEATHER BEDS ONLY $6.50.

Full weight 36 pounds. New, clean and odorless. 6-pound Pillows $1.08 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for FREE catalogue. Address SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 1005, Greensboro, N. C.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

DROPSY TREATED, usually gives quick relief, soon removes swelling & short breath, often gives entire relief in 15 to 25 days. Trial treatment sent free. Dr. THOMAS E. GREEN, Successor to Dr. H. H. Greens Sons, Box X, Atlanta, Ga.

AGENTS A BRAND NEW LIGHTER

Novel watch-shaped lighter. Operated with one hand; gives an instantaneous light every time. No electricity, no battery, no wires, non-explosive; does away with matches. Lights your pipe, cigar, cigarette, gas jet, etc. Dandy thing for the end of your chain. Tremendous seller. Write quick for wholesale terms and prices. E. W. Brandt Lighter Co., 148 Duane St., N. Y.

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., NOVEMBER 12, 1913

NO. 46

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Giving With Simplicity.

Recently two donors, one to the extent of half a million dollars, another to that of one hundred thousand dollars, refusing to divulge their names, remembered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Another modest giver, refusing to divulge his name, bestowed four million dollars on Cornell Medical College in New York City. Some people may give for ostentation, but not all. "And he that giveth, let him do it with simplicity."

As a Citizen.

President Woodrow Wilson has become a member of the local Young Men's Christian Association in Washington. Differ from the chief executive in political opinion as you may, no one has yet raised objection to the manner of life he leads as a citizen. He remains steadfast and immovable, abounding in excellent moral and religious example. "When the righteous are in authority, people rejoice."—Prov. 29:2.

The Abomination of Adulteration.

Our age may continue to be impure and unclean in morals and religion, but the courts are busy teaching the people that impure food is an abomination, and that adulteration is dangerous. The Supreme Court at Binghampton, New York, ordered a verdict of $16,800 entered against a milk dealer for selling 168 cans of skimmed milk, representing the same to be pure and unskimmed. One hundred dollars a can may seem to be a large amount for damages, but deceit and treachery are always dangerous and in the end are costly. Honesty is not only the best policy, but in the final, is the best paying policy, and the only safe one in any undertaking.

A Prophecy.

Before the event transpires, the writer is going to risk his reputation as seer, and prophesy that the following event will transpire: The Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Association in New York City will raise $4,000,000 within two weeks. Keep a lookout and see. On Monday, November 10, two million members of the Associations in all parts of the world were called upon to stop promptly at 9 o'clock a. m., Eastern time, and engage in a "world encircling prayer" for the success of the movement. One thousand volunteers in ten committees of one hundred each are undertaking an individual campaign, "an every-member" campaign, and results may be expected. This is the largest canvass of the kind ever undertaken. Personal work is ever and always that which counts.

This Better Day.

The words consecration, dedication, sanctification and holiness are various renderings of one Hebrew word all the way through the Old Testament, and are used of persons and things, having an identical meaning, that is, set apart for God. No inward moral quality is necessarily referred to or implied. It was an outward act or performance—save when the reference is to God himself or the holy angels. But in the New Testament it is different, and a change of the inner man is referred to, and here the will and the desire accompany the setting apart to God. So in our day he who is dedicated, consecrated, sanctified unto the Lord is set apart not only outwardly, but inwardly.

A Committee Needed.

There are 77,000,000 persons in the United States who do not attend any Sunday school. The 13,000,000 who do attend should resolve themselves into a committee of the whole to devise plans whereby to reduce this wide and deplorable difference. There is little religious training in the home, possibly not one family in a thousand that holds family worship, and so if the Sunday school fails of its work of religious teaching the situation is deplorable indeed. There is one other inalienable right of every American citizen, small and great, and that right is to attend Sunday school, the most democratic institution for moral and spiritual training and uplift ever devised by the mind of man.

In For a Swim.

Many a man, young and old, goes in for a swim, and never comes out. That is true literally and figuratively. The other day, a poor fellow, intoxicated, stumbled and fell into ten feet of water near a New Jersey ferry. Bystanders hastened with ropes and grappling hooks and a canoe, with great difficulty and at much hazard, to rescue the unfortunate fellow, fishing him from the bottom after he had gone down the last time. Being by heroic effort, after much and long endeavor, resuscitated, the man in a rage cried out, "What did you mean by pulling me out when I had just gone in for a quiet swim?" There is no depth of baseness and ingratitude to which intemperance will not carry its victim. And yet thousands upon thousands of young men and old plunge voluntarily into this destructive flood "just for a quiet swim."

The Tendency of Education.

"The tendency of modern education is toward Christian education," said Chairman W. W. Staley, of the Committee on Education before the Eastern Virginia Conference last week. When so much is being said about the pernicious effects of education without Christianity, and when we are told on every hand that Christian education is dying out because of the rapid growth of vocational schools and higher criticism in college and university, one wants to hope and believe that Chairman Staley's optimistic attitude is the true one. At any rate the question is a very vital one, and is one of no little discussion and agitation in our time. Shall we have religious education, or shall we not? A New York exchange notes the fact that the National Episcopal Convention which has been in session some weeks in that city considered this question as paramount and was thoroughly aroused as to the gravity of the situation at present—as to whether our sons and daughters shall have a chance to develop religiously and spiritually along with their opportunity for developing physically and intellectually. "This question was exhaustively discussed," goes on the report, "in joint open session, in mass-meeting and in conference, in its relation to the Sunday school, the college and the university. The leaders realized that in the absence of Bible reading and moral instruction in the public schools an increasing responsibility is thrown upon the church, and that the most pressing need of the hour is a radical reorganization of Sunday school instruction and the inauguration of a thorough system of teacher training." One wonders if this great Convention of churchmen from all over the country believes that sufficient religious instruction can be obtained for the saving of youth in any sort of Sunday school work? This is a beginning, and that only. It is as unreasonable to suppose that one can acquire enough physical strength to carry one through college, as it is that one can acquire enough religion to carry one through, even before going to college. Let us hope that Chairman Staley is right and that the tendency towards Christian education is so strong that it will be soon felt everywhere that the only true and proper education is Christian education; and that anyone anywhere who is trained only physically and intellectually is only two-thirds trained and hardly that, since the essential one-third is neglected.

The great event of the present century is the change in China from an Empire to a Republic. How did this miraculous thing take place? A Chinese statesman, fully conversant with the situation, being asked recently when the revolution really began in China, replied, "The day Robert Morrison (the Christian missionary) landed in Canton."

Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels is delivering Sunday afternoon addresses on religious topics in different parts of the country that are worth while. At Newport News last Sunday the Secretary, addressing the United Brotherhood of Men's Bible Classes, said that neglect of religion by the United States in its navy is a reproach to the republic and that he should ask Congress for more chaplains and welfare secretaries to serve much as do Y. M. C. A. Secretaries. Mr. Daniels, since going to Washington, has not forgotten his religion, nor turned his back upon the way of his bringing up—a mighty good sign that he is a man of no small caliber. Mr. Daniels is not an orator, but he is a man of sincere Christian piety, and hundreds flock to hear his Sunday afternoon lay-sermons.

EDITORIAL

EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE

Our brethren of the Eastern had an historic place at which to meet, and one made sacred by tradition and Christian zeal stretching back through many decades. Warren County is famous in history on many accounts, and Mt. Auburn is noted for Christian activity and saintly associations both in the present and in the past.

The older men of the church, Capt. S. P. Read, Deacons T. J. Haskins and Geo. W. Ellington, the Hilliards, Tuckers and Spains are an inspiration and a blessing to any church or community; and the younger men, the Kimball brothers, Allie Hayes, J. Byrd Ellington and others, are equally interested in seeing the best in church life and Christian activity go forward. If there are better men and women in any community, more honorable, more hospitable, more devoted to church, charity and all benevolences, than those of Mt. Auburn, we do not know where to find them. They have erected a handsome and commodious building just beside the old one the past year, and when properly seated and furnished will be a source of pardonable church pride to the entire community. It was a joy to THE SUN's editor to greet again the Mt. Auburn friends and be assured of their fellowship and enjoy their gracious hospitality. Rev. C. E. Newman has been their pastor the past year, and greatly endeared himself to the people. He was also president of the Conference and carried the work forward with marked ease and ability.

We were advised that the churches came to Conference with good delegations and splendid reports. We were glad to learn that a recent editorial in THE SUN bore some fruit, and that some of the delegates did not have to give their time and pay their railroad expenses too, in order to come to Conference and represent their church—the church bearing the railroad expenses. Those delegates were not only pleased, but felt under obligations to their church to be present at every session of Conference and get the most out of the sessions they could for the folks at home. One minister, Brother J. C. Stuart, was received into full connection and was granted elders orders by the laying on of hands and due ordination services.

Rev. M. T. Morrill, D. D., Foreign Mission Secretary, delighted the audiences, particularly at the evening services, with his illustrated lectures on Japan and Porto Rico. Rev. D. P. Barrett, from Porto Rico, was at the Conference, and the people heard him gladly. Bro. Netum Rathbun, Publishing Agent, Dayton, was at the Conference and besides offering for sale a valuable line of religious books, gave an illustrated lecture that was illuminating and well received. Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., of Suffolk, preached a great sermon before the Conference, which served as an inspiration to the body during the entire session. The annual sermon was exceedingly appropriate, pointed and powerful. It was by Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Cardenas, N. C., and is printed this week as the most valued item of this week's issue. Every SUN reader should go carefully through this sermon, which is presented elsewhere.

Rev. C. H. Rowland, D. D., President of the Eastern Virginia Conference, was a very welcome visitor to Conference, and delighted the many friends there with his presence and words of wisdom and Christian greeting.

The Conference was enjoyable, and impressions for good were made. It was a joy to be there and to hear discussions of plans for future church activity. The great work of this Conference now is that of building the Chapel Hill church, and to this our beloved brother, Rev. W. G. Clements, is giving his best and most consecrated Christian zeal and endeavor.

The work of the Eastern moves forward, and the brotherhood is zealous, hopeful, energetic and progressive.

CREEDS

Creeds are all right in their place. It has not been creeds that have cursed the world and divided peoples into sects and schisms. When a man forms a belief, and either utters or writes it, that is his creed. Every man who thinks for himself has a creed. A creed is a man's definite, well defined, formulated belief. No, the trouble has been, and the curse of ages has been, not in the forming of a creed, but in trying to force that creed on some one else—make some one else believe as you believe, whether he will or not. Humanity has suffered because men who thought tried to make others think as they did.

Strange indeed that men have been so concerned in making others believe as they do, as if they had a monopoly or a "corner" on light and life and truth.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who, despite the fact that he is hindered by the weight of his millions, thinks on some topics very pointedly, is reported to have said recently to his famous Bible class:

"Creeds and theologies are all right in the pulpit and in the seminaries. But they don't constitute religion.

"All these points of difference over theology have arisen since Christ's time, and some of the theologians have created them.

"Jesus Christ was much more concerned about real things, the sick, the poor. He had a social far more than a theological message. His was a life far more than a creed.

"I doubt if ever a man was kept out of heaven through honest differences of beliefs in creeds. If a man has helped to right wrongs it is that record that God will put into the balances and weigh up."

One may have a very exalted creed, and yet that creed may not be enough to stir him to Christian activity. Mr. Rockefeller is not far wrong, for, after all, it is not a matter of creed, but of deed, of love, of life. Christ's creed was service to fellowman, uplifting the masses and the classes to higher and better living.

HIS WORST ENEMY

A man who has been a real blessing to his day and generation may prove anything else than a blessing to himself. Here is a case in point. The papers announce the death, in Paris, recently, of Charles Teller. He was attended at his dying bed by an old servant only, and died in abject poverty, in a strange land, at the age of eighty-five. This same Charles Teller was the inventor of cold storage, and thus benefited mankind to the extent of untold comfort and many, many millions of dollars. The great benefactor of others was a malefactor of himself. Improvidence, possibly, or drink, or indulgence, deprived him of the comforts he would otherwise have enjoyed, and stripped him of the benefits his genius would have brought him. So, it is not always the one who serves his fellowman best and most who is safest and happiest and best—unless that fellowman includes himself. One may serve others to profit, but one's self to shame, sin and disgrace. Not infrequently a man is his own worst enemy.

NEWS AND VIEWS.

—The cold wave which fell Sunday and Monday was general, extending all the way from Florida to New England.

—It is very seldom that a woman is hanged or electrocuted in this country, but unless sentence is changed by the Governor, Mrs. Nellie Wakefield, of Connecticut, is to pay the death penalty March 4th next for the murder of her husband.

—Mexico is in a state of upheaval and civil strife, and whether our government shall take a hand or not, that country is already engaged in actual war, many having already been slain in pitched battles, and much property destroyed. Regrettable as it is, Mexico is in for blood and death till her troubles are settled, and no one can foresee when that will be.

—Michigan was the first State in the Union to offer concurrent resolutions, in both houses of its General Assembly, asking Congress to pass an amendment to the federal constitution forbidding the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage. This is an honor and badge of distinction which any State a few years hence would be proud to wear.

—The Episcopal Convention recently in session in New York passed a resolution calling for an international congress to be held at the Panama Exposition in May, 1915, "for the purpose of awakening the conscience of the American people toward the great evil of divorce and remarriage." All denominations are asked to participate in this congress in the endeavor to stay the evils of divorce. It is high time.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—Rev. E. M. Carter, former Superintendent of our Orphanage, has been called to the pastorate of the Rose Hill, Columbus, Ga., church, as successor to Rev. W. L. Wells, who has become pastor of our Durham church.

—The Education Committee of the N. C. and Va. Conference, is called to meet at Elon College, Y. M. C. A. hall, Friday p. m., November 14. The members are Revs. W. T. Hernon, T. W. Strowd, H. E. Rountree and THE SUN's editor. Several candidates are to be examined.

—Of the Eastern Virginia ministers who pledged to secure 250 new subscribers to THE SUN at an early date, at the recent annual session at Mt. Carmel, Rev. J. W. Harrell, Portsmouth, is the first to send a list of new names from his church.

—Rev. H. W. Elder, Richland, Georgia, November 6, writes: "Bro. C. C. Peel leaves us today. We had an excellent Conference at Columbus. Fine attendance. Good reports. A real good session. Our Convention Missions increased from $42.00 last year to $67.00 this. Other collections increased in proportion."

—The ministers and delegates of the Eastern N. C. Conference did the handsome thing by THE SUN in pledging 200 new subscribers, and apportioning out the same among the churches. When the brethren get in earnest about this matter, securing 1,000 new subscribers for THE SUN will be easy.

—We acknowledge the following invitation with appreciation: "Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Penny invite you to be present at the approaching marriage of their daughter, Elsie Pherabe, to Mr. Leslie Clyde Whitaker, Thursday morning, November 20, 1913, ten o'clock. At home near Garner, North Carolina." Miss Penny is a most charming Christian woman, and we wish her the happiness that her accomplishments deserve.

—Our friend and brother, W. F. Walker, Lanett, Ala., loves to have Christian people come that way who are interested in our College, our Orphanage and our CHRISTIAN SUN. "I am glad to have met Rev. C. C. Peel," he writes November 8, "who came Monday p. m., after our Conference. Bro. E. M. Carter took us by surprise Sunday morning, October 26, and gave us a good talk about the children at our Orphanage. I would love so much to pay a visit to Elon and our institutions and many friends there, and I hope to enjoy that privilege some day. I wish the brethren there God's speed in all their work."

—We are permitted to lay before an audience, we presume, of at least 5,000 this week, a sermon by Rev. J. Lee Johnson, delivered before the Eastern North Carolina Conference last Thursday. If all that audience would read carefully that sermon, eternity alone could measure the good accomplished thereby. To our mind, Brother Johnson tells the real reason why pulpits are vacant and ministers are without preaching places. Read that sermon and see whether the situation is not laid bare. It is a worth-while utterance, and we could wish nothing better for THE SUN family this week than that every member thereof stop long enough to read it through carefully.

—We pen with sadness the death of our Brother J. N. Hess, which event occurred at his home at Dayton, Ohio, November 1. Bro. Hess was for several years our Publishing Agent and was well known and highly esteemed among SUN readers. Our sympathy is extended to the bereaved family. Of Brother Hess, President D. A. Long of Union Christian College, Merom, Indiana, writes: "Bro. J. N. Hess, who died in Dayton November 1, was buried at Argos, Indiana, November 5. He had been declining physically for some time on account of Bright's disease. As he had been an honored trustee of U. C. College for so many years and attended the meetings of the Boards with such regularity, he will be greatly missed. His faithful wife and devoted daughter were with him in all his afflictions and ministered to him to the last."

THE PART OUR CONSCIENCE PLAYS IN OUR MORAL LIVES

Conscience is that still small voice which God has apportioned to every individual to control the moral life. When we say that conscience controls the moral life, we are making a statement that is too broad to be true; but we are justified in saying that when one follows the dictates of his conscience, his moral life is governed thereby.

In studying this subject it might be well for us to notice the meaning of the two words, conscience and moral.

Conscience is the moral sense of right and wrong. It is the faculty within us by which our actions are tried and influenced. For example, take the man who steals, cheats, gets drunk, lies, etc., and we are inclined to say that this man has no conscience. Such a thing is not possible because every person has a conscience whether he obeys it or not.

Don't understand me to say that one person's conscience is as keen as another's, for this, too, would be untrue. But when a man is tempted to act dishonestly, his conscience tells him that he is on the wrong road and just at this time his conscience will play a most interesting part in his moral life.

Let us picture in our minds, a youth just entering the threshold of young manhood. As this young man leaves his home just after the evening meal, he bids his mother good-bye at the door. As this robust youth walks down the main street of his town, he makes new resolutions with himself and feels that nothing can come into his life which will keep him from rising to that high standard of morality which his mother has prayed since his childhood that he might gain.

Turn your head just a moment. Do you see that crowd of boys on the corner? Why are they so excited? Why do they try to assume such an innocent attitude? Listen! They are plotting!

As our would-be strong young man approaches the crowd, the boys hail him and he is dragged off to the saloon by their enticing remarks. He seems to forget his mother's prayer; he forgets all of his good resolutions; he even forgets that his sins will have to be accounted for, and in this mad rush we fear that he will forget all, except the dazzling lights that are shining around him and the songs and witty stories that fall upon his ear!

Take one more look at this young man. He is pale and silent! A glass is set before him. His eyes waver! His hands twitch! His body is bent forward! Will he take this, his first whiskey? His hand is raised and he takes the glass reluctantly while his comrades laugh. But as he raises it to his lips, his conscience strikes him a mighty blow and he dashes the glass to the floor. In an instant he has disappeared, and the next time he is invited to take a drink, it will be easy for him to obey his conscience and say "No."

Did you ask me what part our conscience plays in our moral lives? In reply to that question, I will say that to disobey the dictates of conscience will cultivate a life without moral; but in obeying the dictates of conscience, we are acquiring a strong will power, peace in mind and heart, self reliance, honesty to ourselves and to others, a broader and a more active mind, thereby gaining, in the end, the highest of morals.—Elon College Weekly.

IF THE ROSES WERE ONLY BLUE

That seemingly insignificant word "if" is in truth one of much importance in our language. We often hear people say that they would do thus or so if certain things did not stand in the way of the realization of their plans. Sometimes, of course, the troubles in the way are real; often they are imaginary and yield readily enough when the proper will power is exercised.

However, there is one truth from which we can by no means escape; namely, we must at all times face conditions just as they are. If, by some artful or over-masterful power, we could eliminate all the "ifs" from our lives, we would then have found the long sought for Utopia and everything would be just to our liking. But would such a condition or state of affairs be an enjoyable one? Hardly, we would think, for there would be no conquests to make and no victories to win. There is a blessing in the necessity of toil; there is a need for the drudgery of everyday life; there is a reward for struggling with the difficulties that so often beset us.

Yet, in this battle with the conditions which we must needs face, we often make mistakes and blunders. If everything was as it should be, such errors would never befall us. We would ever do just the right thing at just the right time. But such is not life, and we should not expect it. Let us rather say with one of the world's best fighters, "I count not myself yet to have apprehended," rather than exclaim with the modern religionist, "I have reached the land of corn and wine." We must have courage and strive on, for remember, the goal is ever before us.

If wisdom's ways you wisely seek, five things observe with care: of whom you speak, to whom you speak, and how, and when, and where.—Proverb.

CHURCH NEWS

GOOD HOPE

We have had an enjoyable year at this place. Although weak in numbers, the sisters and brethren are rallying to the front, and have remodeled their church, but have not quite completed it. We had a very gracious revival with ten converts and two baptisms. We hope for greater blessings next year.

BEULAH

This is our second meeting, and we know that the Lord has greatly blessed our efforts at this place. Rev. Cornelius Rowland was with us in the meeting, and was a power in bringing souls to Christ. Bro. Rowland, it seemed, was on the mountain top almost, leading souls into the celestial city. There were eighty-five seekers, thirty conversions, and nineteen accessions to the church. I baptized eleven. This was a glorious revival. Beulah has made wonderful progress with God's assistance.

YOUNGSVILLE

Our meeting at this place was conducted by Dr. Charles Rowland, Franklin, Va. Brother Rowland was well received while here, and greatly endeared himself to the people of the town; also preached strong spiritual sermons to large audiences. Four accepted Christ. We all want Brother Rowland back next year. I am very grateful to the people of Youngsville for the presents received during the year. Having lost my horse, the good people of the town presented me with $50, for which I thank them. May the Lord help us to greater things next year.

MORRISVILLE

This closes my third year's work at this place. While here I have become much attached to the good people at this place. We have active workers here, and are doing noble work. They are planning to add Sunday school rooms, which will be a great help. I desire to thank the people of the town for their generous gift of $50 toward my horse. May God bless them abundantly.

NEW HOPE

Rev. Cornelius Rowland assisted in revival at this place. Bro. Rowland preached with power of God, and brought souls to repentance. We surely had a pentecostal shower. Everybody loves to hear Bro. Rowland. There were nineteen conversions, eleven accessions to the church. I baptized twelve. We expect to have Brother Rowland return next year. We are planning to remodel our church at this place. For the year's work I "praise God from Whom all blessings flow."

H. T. WOLFE, Pastor.

Youngsville, N. C.

ONLY A DOLLAR

It was only a dollar. The giver of it was a soul of deep devotion. The dollar was earned by diligent hands, and given by an honest heart for the cause of Him who gave His life for us. The value of it could not accomplish the full purpose for which it was given; yet the gift was accepted and the giver made to rejoice ten years later when he viewed the walls of a Christian College built by single earned dollars given by hearts like his.

C. B. RIDDLE.

Fifty years ago there were only thirty medical missionaries and now there are, in all parts of the world, 11,000.

The Lack of Ministers--The Cause and Remedy

A Sermon Delivered Before the Annual Session of the Eastern North Carolina Conference at Mt. Auburn, November 6, 1913

By REV. J. LEE JOHNSON, Cardenas, N. C.

TEXT: "Then saith he unto his disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few: Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest. —Matt. 9: 37, 38.

We have in our church, according to the figures given by Rev. A. W. Andes in his address before the Virginia Valley Central Conference, about two hundred and thirty-five vacant pulpits. At the Baptist State Convention of 1912, there were about one hundred and seventy-five churches reported without pastors in North Carolina. The Presbyterian Church has about one thousand and fifty vacant pulpits in the South. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, claims to have all their pulpits supplied, but many of them who supply are not ordained ministers, and are only supplying what would otherwise be vacant pulpits. I have been informed by a prominent Methodist minister, that the rate of increase in ministers was not equal to the increase of the church and its needs.

From these figures we can see that there is a great lack of ministers throughout the land, and for which lack various reasons have been given; such as, the call of the world drowning out the call of God, too poor a chance for the ambitious along literary lines, nothing to preach about since the Bible has been through the hands of the higher critics, more good can be done in other occupations (the reason which Mr. Dixon gives for leaving the pulpit to write drama), insufficient pay, etc. But the only one of these reasons of which I wish to make especial mention, is the oft repeated and much emphasized one, "too little pay." I have heard about it and read about it, until it has grown old. It has been said time and time again that the ministry should be better paid in order that others might be induced to preach the gospel. I beg to differ with such.

I know that ministers should be better paid; I know that they are the poorest paid, in proportion to the place they are expected to fill, of all professional men; I understand that the average salary of the minister throughout the United States, with the exception of five large cities, is about $525.00; but if small salaries are keeping men out of the ministry, I beg them in Christ's name to stay out forever.

Let us, for a moment, look at it from this standpoint, brethren. Who knows but that God keeps the ministry poorer in order to keep it purer? Who knows but that a preacher is given small pay in order to keep out the hireling? Why, if the salary of the ministers were high, then there would be plenty of hirelings in the ministry, and Jesus said, "The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep" (Jno. 10:13). There was Balaam, that most singular Bible character, to whom God revealed Himself and through whom God spake. In this respect he was a true prophet. He dared "not go beyond the word of the Lord," to say more or less. It was he "which heard the words of God, and knew the knowledge of the most High, which saw the vision of the Almighty." It was Balaam to whom God gave a prophet's vision, and looking down through the ages, he exclaimed, "There shall come a Star out of Jacob, and a Scepter shall rise out of Israel." Yet with all this God gives power, with all these glorious opportunities. Balaam has gone down in sacred history as the prophet "who loved the wages of unrighteousness."

Then if it becomes necessary for the minister to preach for small salaries—no, I'll not leave it like that—but rather, preach for the glory of God, and since we live on small salaries, we will bow in humiliation before God and "rejoice that we were counted worthy to suffer (want) for his name" (and it is only want, for God has promised to supply all our need: Phil. 4:19). Remember, our Savior "had not where to lay his head," and that "though he was rich, yet for (our) sake he became poor that (we) through his poverty might be rich" (2 Cor. 8:9). Couple with this the words of the Apostle Peter, "For even hereunto were (we) called, because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example that (we) should follow in his steps" 1 Peter 2:21). Must we grumble at our salaries in the light of these words? Must we claim that God is not calling men into the ministry because of poor pay, when He himself said, "A bishop must be . . . not given to filthy lucre" (Tit. 1:7).

Brethren, we have no use for the man that enters the ministry for money, and as little use for the man who stays out because of poor pay. I do not believe many stay out because of small salaries. The Presbyterian Church, I suppose, pays more, as a whole, for the support of ministers than any other denomination we have, and yet we see a large number of vacant pulpits among them. Some may not enter the ministry who feel called, but I believe it is usually the feeling of inability which makes them resist. That there are those in the ministry for money can be little doubted. I know a young lawyer who was offered a salary of $3,000 per year to become pastor of a certain city church. I am glad to say that he had enough backbone to refuse the proffered offer, but he admitted that it was a temptation.

Small salaries may be the very means of bringing us into greater usefulness if we could recognize God in it and bow submissively to it. To illustrate this point I quote from W. B. Jacobs in September number of Christian Workers' Magazine, where Jacobs thinks he witnessed a crisis in Moody's life:

"I was in partnership with Mr. B. F. Jacobs, a brother of mine, a very intimate friend of Mr. Moody's, in the commission business on South Water Street; and while, as I say, I had known Mr. Moody in a general way, and had heard him speak, I never knew his heart. I never knew him well, until that cold, cold day in the Winter of 1870-71, when he came into our commission house and spoke to my brother. I stood listening, and this is what Mr. Moody said: 'Jacobs, I do not know but I will have to give it up after all.' My brother said, 'What, Moody?' 'Oh,' Mr. Moody replied, 'this work. I left my wife and children this morning without a mouthful of food in the home, and without a dollar to purchase any. Jacobs, I would not care for myself; I would just as lief sleep in a dry-goods box on the street, and live on whatever crust of bread I could pick up. But, oh, Jacobs,—and the great form shook with agitation at the remembrance of loved ones—"it is hard for a man to leave his children without a morsel of food. I do not know, Jacobs, but I will have to give it up.' I looked at him, and his coat was almost threadbare; it was worn glossy and smooth, and he had no overcoat. In that hour I began to realize that I knew D. L. Moody."

Jacobs gave Moody supplies, and Moody kept preaching. Then, brethren, if large salaries are needed to cause men to enter the ministry, let us who have heard God's call be willing, as were Paul and Moody, to "know both how to be abased, and how to abound . . . both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to suffer need" (Phil. 4:12).

Then, if the shortage in the ministry is not caused by poor pay (I mean, of course, God-called men), I would think that none of the reasons given above, which hold only a secondary place, could be the real cause. What, then, is the real cause? To my candid opinion, it is the lack of prayer and consecration on the part of the professing church. In short, it is the lack of spirituality in the church. Dr. A. C. Dixon, in his address before the London Bible League, said, "The church itself is being caught in the undertow (of anti-Christian civilization) and in some places is gradually disappearing." Dr. Dixon gives as the cause of this undertow the "loss of faith in the Bible." Dr. Francis L. Patton, President of Princeton Theological Seminary, in a recent address before the Moody Bible Institute, said, "This is a day in which people read more about the Bible and less of it, I suppose, than any day of the world's history. We have," he continues, "been drinking the wine of material prosperity until we are so intoxicated that we have no eyes for the world of spiritual values. . . . And it is not read (the Bible) because we have an entirely new scale of values." Is not this low spiritual condition of the church in general, so wanting in real prayer, the cause of the shortage in the ministry? Is it not the indifference of the church, which Secretary Daniels spoke of in his Durham address?

The editor of the Herald of Gospel Liberty, looking at the weakness of the church as a mother to produce ministers, says, "The truth is, if we are to have a strong and courageous ministry, the mother of the ministry must be strong and active and holy and healthy." Job said as much, "Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? not one." How many of us could read Dr. G. Campbell Morgan's article, "The Disappearing Home," reprinted in THE CHRISTIAN SUN from the Christian Endeavor World, without feeling that here was one of the reasons why so many pulpits are vacant? Of the six churches to which I try to minister as pastor, they will not average one family altar to the church. If the home is disappearing, the family altar is disappearing and the shortage in the ministry is increasing.

What was the remedy which Jesus Himself suggested for the lack of ministers? It was as simple as this, "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he send forth laborers into his harvest" (Matt. 9:38). Jesus made it simple, but we make it short by praying short prayers or no prayers at all for this important thing. The October number of Men and Missions had this to say: "The need of ministers and missionaries will not be met until people pray for laborers. . . . Christ's specific command to pray for laborers is one that many Christians are not obeying." Robt. E. Speer says,

"It is the want of prayer that is disruptive and that interrupts the orderly workings of the plan of God and that fractures His plans here in the world." Yes, it hinders God's plan because we are not praying for laborers as we should. The truth of the matter is, we are not concerned enough, as a whole, to pray as Christ commanded. It was Rev. W. B. Anderson who said, "A man may pray as much as he lives, and all the rest of his attempts at prayer are mockery." How much do we care for more ministers? That is the question.

I do not believe we can confine the words of Jesus to mean only that the church should pray for her children to enter the ministry, but that parents also should pray for their children to be preachers, or dedicated to God's service in some form. Prayer should not only be made for them when they are grown, half-grown, or even babes, but even before the child is born into the world. This question is asked dental students on examination, When should a child's teeth first have attention. The answer: Six months before the child is born. Should we not pay as much attention to the child's spiritual nature as to his teeth? The law of heredity is as much God's law as it is the "law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus." One writer has said that "all history attests the fact that great men had great mothers." Another has said that "Pre-natal influence has as much to do with the character of a person as all the education that could be given thereafter." From the pen of the prophet Ezekiel we have these words, "As is the mother, so is her daughter" (Ezek. 16:44). In the light of such a truth as this, "what manner of persons ought (parents) to be in all holy living and godliness?"

There are no less than six instances in the Bible where parents prayed for their unborn children, and on each occasion these children came to fill an important place in Bible history. Let us notice two of them. See Hannah yonder in the temple upon her knees. For what is she praying? Hear her: "O Jehovah of hosts, if thou . . . wilt give unto thy handmaid a man child, then I will give him unto Jehovah all the days of his life." What was the result of that prayer? Samuel. And he became one of the greatest preachers of his age.

Now turn with me to the New Testament for an example. Look for a moment at John the Baptist, of whom Christ said, "Among them that are born of women, there hath not arisen a greater." How did John the Baptist come to be the wonderful preacher that he was, even appointed to prepare the way for the coming of our Lord? To my mind we find the answer in Luke 1:6, 13. Verse 6 speaks of his parents on this wise, "And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless." Verse 13 tells us of answered prayer, "Fear not, Zacharias, because thy supplication is heard, and thy wife Elizabeth shall bear thee a son." Righteous living then, coupled with prayer—and the two are inseparable—brought forth this wonderful preacher, John the Baptist.

Turn to our day, and you will find the same truth. If I mistake not, it was G. Campbell Morgan who said that he was called to preach before he was born into the world. His parents prayed and dedicated the unborn child to God, and today we have him as one of the greatest if not the greatest Bible expositor of this age. I am told that in Granville County a mother dedicated her unborn child to God to preach the gospel, and with faith in her prayer she named him Paul. Today, he is a ministerial student in one of the denominational colleges in the State, and says he never had any intention but to preach the gospel, since he can clearly remember.

It was my good fortune to hear Gypsy Smith preach during his revival in Danville a few weeks ago. During one of his discourses he pointed to his son Albong, who himself is a young minister, and said, "I knew he would preach if ever he gave his heart to God." Some time in the past Gypsy had given that boy to God to preach the gospel and God answered that prayer. I heard Gypsy tell of his parting with his family in July to sail for America. His father followed him to the garden gate, and then Gypsy threw his arms around his father's neck and said, "Daddy, won't you promise me that you will present me to the throne of God each day while I am gone?" "No, son," said his father, "I'll not promise you that, for I presented you there years ago when you were but a lad; but I'll promise you this, my boy, that I'll keep you there." Then Gypsy Smith added these words, which I want parents to remember, "I could be nothing but what I am with a father like that." Brethren, righteous living on the part of professing believers, with the children of the church and the child of the parents dedicated to God through intercession is the remedy, as I see it, that the Bible gives for vacant pulpits.

NOTICE

To the Pastors and Laymen of the Eastern Virginia Conference:

A tremendous nation-wide missionary campaign is on. It is called the United Missionary Campaign because it includes both home and foreign missions. Practically all the denominations are lined up in it. It is being carried out by the Laymen's Missionary Movement. Over 700 two-day institutes and conferences of laymen are planned for this fall. These institutes will be conducted by specialists who will give both inspiration and the best mission methods for all kinds of churches. These conventions last two evenings and the day between. They will be brim full of the best things.

This Conference is especially favored in that four of these conventions or institutes are held within our territory and within reach of all our churches. They will be held as follows: Newport News, November 23, 24; Norfolk, November 25, 26; Portsmouth, November 27, 28; Suffolk, November 30, December 1.

The men of our churches and the pastors cannot afford to miss these meetings. We must be sure to have a fine delegation of our men from every church in our conference present at some one of these meetings throughout.

Will you, brother pastor, and will you, reader, please see to it, and make it your personal business to see that a splendid delegation of the men of your church attend at least one of these?

WARREN H. DENISON,
Norfolk, Va. Committee.

THE GEORGIA AND ALABAMA CONFERENCE

The 1913 session of the Georgia and Alabama Christian Conference was held with the Church at Rose Hill, Columbus, Ga. I feel safe in saying that this was the most successful session the Conference has ever held. Principally all the ministers were present with splendid reports of their labors for the year. All of the churches with the exception of one or two were well represented, having met all or principally all of the Conference requirements, which speaks well for both churches and pastors.

This Conference, as well as the other Southern Conferences, is making fine progress along this line, and I predict that in a few years there will be no such thing as a church going to Conference without its apportionments raised in full. God hasten the day when all our churches both North and South will raise every cent of their assessments.

This, in many respects, was the best session of Conference I have ever attended. Sometimes I think we devote so much of our Conference meetings to business that we neglect the spiritual side of the service, but this was not the case here. Especial emphasis was laid upon the spiritual atmosphere of the assembly, and of course (as is always the case) business sessions were better. This is one meeting of the kind I have longed to attend, wherein the Spirit of God would have its way even in all business to the extent that souls would be born into the kingdom of God during the sessions. The Conference was of this character, and the influence of it will be felt in all the churches throughout the Conference. And I trust that we may have more sessions of this nature, and our work will certainly be better.

This Conference is also making progress along other lines. It is waking good along missionary lines. It like the Alabama Conference is raising its mission assessments every year and I heard of no grumbling on the part of any man about their appropriations being too much. It is also making progress along educational lines, and well it may, for it already has about five or six young men who are candidates for the ministry. And these must be educated in order to meet the demands made of them by the church. Already some of these are making their arrangements to come to Elon College in 1914, and here is hoping that more may come this way for their religious training, for they can not get it elsewhere save in a church institution, and this one deserves their consideration.

I believe our church ought to educate its ministry wherever possible in its own institutions. However, in some cases this is not possible because of the distance or some other cause. I long to see the day when the Christian Church will have an institution of its own in the bounds of the Georgia and Alabama Conferences, and I for one am ready to pledge $10.00 per year until the work is finished. Our boys and girls, very few of them, have any advantages whatever of religious training in these Conferences, and we can readily see that neglect along this line means injury to the church. I trust that some one will soon take hold of this work again, and keep pressing until the work has been completed.

J. V. KNIGHT.

Elon College, N. C., November 6, 1913.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MISSION POLICY

The Sunday School Mission Policy of the Eastern Virginia Sunday School Convention has been adopted by eight schools, and the reports that come from them are gratifying. The schools that have already adopted the policy are: Memorial Temple, Third Church, Norfolk, Lambert's Point, Berkley, South Norfolk, Berea (Nansemond), Newport News and Portsmouth. The Convention policy calls for: (1) A mission secretary; (2) a missionary program for the year; (3) a weekly missionary offering; and (4) $1200 for missions.

Berea (Nansemond) reports that their school has averaged over $2.00 per Sunday for missions since the adoption of the above policy. Newport News reports that their school has averaged over $1.50 per Sunday. Have no definite report as to what other schools are doing per Sunday.

The schools that have adopted the policy are highly pleased with it, and believe it will make the work easy. The apportionment for mis-

(Continued on Page 10.)

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

WINCHESTER LETTER

We began our meeting at Timber Ridge the 12th of October. Rev. J. W. MacManiman, of Hancock, Maryland, came on the 13th and did all the preaching from then until the close. Brother MacManiman is a strong preacher, and was well liked by our people. The congregations were good and much interest was manifested. The church was revived and eight bright young people were added to its membership. There are very few people in the community but what are members of some church.

It was the writer's privilege to attend the recent session of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference. This is the best organized and strongest of our Southern conferences and is one of the strongest in the brotherhood. The sermons and addresses are of a high order. The report of the pastors for the past year showed splendid work on their part. The most of the churches brought all apportionments up in full. A very large crowd was in attendance and everybody seemed to enjoy it. Among the visiting brethren we were glad to meet the following: Dr. J. O. Atkinson, editor THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Dr. W. A. Harper, President of Elon College, Dr. J. W. Wellons, of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference; Rev. J. L. Foster and Dr. L. F. Johnson, of the Eastern North Carolina Conference; Dr. M. T. Morrill, Foreign Mission Secretary, and Mr. Netum Rathbun, Publishing Agent of the Christian Publishing Association.

There is an inspiration in attending meetings of that character and meeting with the men who compose them. It gives a larger vision and a new impetus for our work.

My home was with Brother and Sister J. E. Beale, who made it very pleasant for me.

Dr. M. T. Morrill is to deliver an illustrated lecture on Japan in the Winchester church at 7:30 p. m. the 21st of this month.

W. T. WALTERS.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Somehow I omitted the name of Rev. W. T. Walters, President of the Virginia Valley Central Conference, as a welcome visitor to the Eastern Virginia Conference; but his work at Winchester, Va., constantly reminds SUN readers of his successful activities in that far-famed city and that growing conference.

Lest some reporter should overlook my name in writing of the Eastern North Carolina Conference at Mount Auburn last week, I will tell the readers of this letter myself that I was there and enjoyed the Conference, my stay at the good home of William and Jake Kimball, and the kindness of A. P. Hayes and wife. Dr. C. H. Rowland and Rev. J. L. Foster were my partners as the guests of the Kimballs, and Dr. R. and I returned to Virginia together.

Mount Auburn church, where the Conference met, has the distinction of having entertained the "Convention" twice in "regular session" and once in "extra session." In May, 1866, the second "regular session" of the Convention and the first after the Civil War, met with this church and reorganized the scattered fragments of the war-ridden church. It was at this session that the Government and Principles were discussed and adopted at an extra session in the same church the next year. Exactly twenty years after this the Convention held its seventh regular session with this church. Mt. Auburn is, therefore, historic ground, and the community has always been noted for its culture and refinement, its material prosperity, and its religious life. A new church building has just been erected and the Conference had a good session. Rev. C. E. Newman, who goes to Raleigh the coming year, was re-elected President; Rev. J. D. Wicker, Vice President; Rev. Dr. W. C. Wicker, Secretary; and W. J. Ballentine, Treasurer.

The churches were well represented, the collections were better than any past year, they have increased the requirements for a banner church, the business of the Conference and the activities of local churches all show marked improvement, and this Conference, now in its twenty-first year, shows signs of normal and promising development. Intelligently officered, occupying fine geographical area, the outlook for the E. N. C. Conference is not only hopeful, but promising.

The Conference will meet next year in its twenty-first session with the Henderson church of which Rev. A. T. Banks is pastor.

I understood before leaving that the Home Mission Committee would recommend the planting of a Christian church at Norlina. This, it seems to me, is a good point, as the Seaboard Railroad has determined to develop that point, and this will mean a growing community—and a growing community is always a good place to plant a church.

I was called yesterday, Sunday, in the absence of Rev. I. W. Johnson, D. D., to conduct the funeral services of Mrs. Martha E. Savage at Liberty Spring church. She was nearly 85, was a charter member of that church, the mother the two children, eleven grand children, sixteen great grand children, and one great, great grand child. She was a faithful and zealous member of the church, a good neighbor, and a kind friend, dying in the triumphs of a simple but strong faith.

W. W. STALEY.

THE MISSIONARY CALL

BY REV. C. P. GARMON,
One of Our Missionaries in Japan.

There is always much said about the "call to the ministry," and the past century has heard many discussions of "the call to go as a missionary." Of late years we are told that "the call" comes from a knowledge of the needs, and a consciousness of one's ability to meet those needs. This does not secularize the calling at all, as the great needs are spiritual, and none but a spiritual man need think of entering missionary work.

The Call of the Church

The "missionary call" of which I wish to write is the call to the church, and especially to that body of the church organized under the name "Christian" only; and I wish to treat it along the line suggested above; namely, that the call comes from a recognized ability to minister to great needs. It is true that the call to go still comes and must continue to come to individuals. One element of the call to the church consists in the fact that numbers of young men and women have felt the call and have prepared themselves as best they could for missionary service, only to be refused by Mission Boards because of lack of funds, or to be placed on the waiting list until funds were available. It is not generally known, I believe, how many applicants for foreign service our own Mission Board has had, say, in the last ten years. Nor is it known how many others have volunteered for such service, but knowing conditions, have not made application to the Board. Personally, I have known of several such persons from the South, East and Central States. Some have pushed on out under the auspices of interdenominations or other denominational Boards, feeling the foreign call to be stronger than the call of our brotherhood. Others have drifted into work at home, with the consciousness that God's will was being thwarted, but seeing no way to prevent it.

Equipment Needed

But mission work is not limited to sending American missionaries to foreign lands. That is one very essential part of it, but it is only a part. Missionaries can never be pastors of foreign churches. Men must be educated and trained for the ministry and other places of leadership. Churches must be erected, parsonages and missionary homes must be provided; until this comes to pass, rents must be paid, taxes and insurance fall due regularly, and travel bills and expenses for literature are a necessity. Does no one feel the call to provide these?

Choice Investments in Japan

Your Japan mission alone, with no thought of increasing their number of missionaries, could make a list of its immediate needs in land and buildings, to the extent of $6,000 or more in addition to a considerable increase in the annual appropriations for running expenses. In a growing suburb of Tokyo, the capital of Japan and the metropolis of the Orient, we have the beginning of a fine church. The population is resident, and not floating as in many places. The members are of the fairly well-to-do class, giving more to church work than any but one of our twelve other churches. We have the lead in this progressive suburb, and will keep it if we properly encourage our constituency and provide a suitable church property. Dr. Morrill's estimate of $1,200 for a lot seems to me entirely too low if we buy large enough to erect a parsonage as well as a church. $2,000 seems none too large even if we crowd the buildings, and unless the purchase is made soon, this will not suffice. Prices are advancing rapidly.

Missionary Home

Another missionary home has been asked for. The location and consequent cost of land will determine the necessary total expense. It was estimated by the Japan mission three years ago that it would cost not less than $3,500 at then current prices.

Oji Parsonage

A parsonage for Oji has been requested. There we have the land, and rooms at the rear of the church might be used as a part of the building. This would save a high and increasing rental and make our work more effective.

North Japan Church-Parsonage

At Wakyu we are about to lose the only available property on our side of the river (we leave the other side to the Congregationalists) because of forced sale by the present owner. $1,000 would probably provide these last two items. There are other places where our work would be more effective if we could have even an ordinary cheap dwelling house as a permanent house of worship.

Christian School Needed

The next item would necessitate an increase in our missionary force. If we are to have any part in Christian leadership in Japan we must have a boys' school, or co-operate with some other body or bodies in the maintenance of one. This would necessitate $25,000 at the start, and an increase in the annual budget of some $5,000 for maintenance were we to work alone. Were we to co-operate with others in school work, we might get along with $10,000 as an initial equipment fund and an increase of some $3,000 in the annual budget for maintenance. I consider this a most essential movement in our mission enterprise. Without a boys' school we must depend largely on the "come-out-ers" from other bodies for our leaders, and by working among the limited class we can not hold such leaders as we develop.

Current Expense Fund Insufficient

But these are not our only problems. The $10,500 granted annually to the Japan work is all too small to maintain as it exists. With the present force of workers, to allow each person to count for the most, we should have an increase in the annual appropriation of at least $2,000. The Japan Mission no longer asks for what is thought could be put to good use nor even what is thought to be absolutely necessary. They simply make out a budget to the extent of the largest amount we feel we can hope for.

Encouraging Though Critical

These facts are set forth, not to discourage, but to show the need. Should any doubt our judgment on these matters, send more representatives to Japan to study conditions and needs. We invite investigation, and expect nothing but profit from it.

Our people understand these things to an extent unknown before. There is a broader, deeper missionary sentiment than the past ever dreamed of. The people are beginning to feel their strength as never before. Co-operation has added to this strength. Our schools are bearing fruit. We have entered some large towns and cities, and new emphasis on the rural church and its problems can not help but strengthen us more. There is nothing before us but assured success. Only let us "advance, on our knees."

Ability Spells Responsibility

It was but a short time ago that THE CHRISTIAN SUN advanced the opinion that the Southern Christian Convention alone could support all of our missionaries. I do not know whether it was intended to include all of the necessary expenses or not. The item in the 1914 Japan Mission Budget for missionary salaries is lower than usual owing to the decrease of salaries while missionaries are on furlough (A family is now at home and another missionary was planning to come in January). It is $4,350. I do not know the salary item of the Porto Rico Mission, but I doubt not that our Southern brethren could easily pay the salaries of all, next year. With a noble, united effort, they could do much more. There are other Conferences or groups of Conferences which could do as well. Any conference, church or individual that fails to do his best stands convicted in the sight of God.

Whose Task?

The opportunities and needs are staring us in the face. Do the people know it? We are told that the money is about, and the people liberal, and I believe it is true. If they do not know, why do they not know, and more to the point, how can they be informed?

Missionaries'?

It is out of the question for missionaries to do any great portion of this work of enlisting the sympathies of the people at large. Their articles for publication and their private correspondence may be full of it, and a part of their furloughs may be made to contribute to this end.

Mission Secretaries'?

Those who wait for the general Mission Secretaries to do the great part of missionary seed sowing and harvest are expecting entirely too much of a few. If a man had no other work to do, no administrative work, no literary duties, no correspondence to care for, gave no time to the study of his work and co-operation with the missionary experts of other churches and Mission Boards, if he were to neglect the communication with the missionaries and native workers, if he were to eliminate all of these and simply give himself to the duties of a Field Secretary, and were one day sufficient for him to present the claims, the needs and the opportunities of missionary service, it would take lacking twenty-five days of three years to make the circuit of our churches, leaving no time for travel between points and not a day for rest.

If but one week were given to each conference, one Secretary would be unable to visit all of our conferences each year, again allowing no time for the other manifold duties devolving upon him. If the missionary specialist is to do any great part in presenting missions to the churches, or even to the conferences, we must have, in addition to the regular Secretaries, several Field Secretaries to give their whole time to this one phase of the work. The more thickly churched states might well have their own Field Mission Secretaries, as do the larger churches.

But we can not wait for additional secretaries, for they will come only as a result of the sentiment we want created.

Let's Prove that We're Awake.

The responsibility falls back on those of us who have caught the vision. Editor, conference official, pastor, layman, all must stir ourselves to present the needs in such a way that the churches, the individuals in the churches, will understand the great success we have attained in beginning the establishment of the Kingdom in lands where Christ is unknown. Let us show them how we are limited for funds and make them understand, if we can, just what $1,000 will do. Let's not talk so much in small sums, though not discouraging the widow's mite, but let us show that the work we are in is a great work and demands large things, in sacrifice, in service, in consecration, in prayer and in means.

Oh, brothers and sisters, my readers, do not wait for some one to come to you asking you to enlist; but give of your best as befits the great enterprise of extending the Master's Kingdom, and go you to others and enlist their support. Tell them that consecrated men have their hands tied: that they might be doing large instead of small things. Tell them of the church buildings that should be, and are not. Tell them of boys and girls who should be in training for Christian leadership. Tell them,—yes, be sure to tell them—that throughout the whole church, throughout the Christian Church, there is a stronger missionary sentiment than ever before, and as they advance, as we advance, it may be seen that "the whole line has stepped forward."

The EFFECT OF MISSIONS ON COMMERCE IN THE FAR EAST

BY IDA CLYDE CLARKE

Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, a former Chinese minister to the United States, writes that "the missionaries have penetrated far into the heart of the country, and have invariably been the frontiersmen for trade and commerce." The late Mr. Denby stated that the fact that "commerce follows the missionary has been indubitably proved in China. The Hon. F. S. Stratton, formerly collector of the port of San Francisco, on his return from a journey of three months in China, Japan and the Philippines, declared that "commercially speaking the missionaries are the advance agents for American commercial enterprises, and if business men only understood this matter they would assist rather than discourage evangelistic work in the east."

During a visit of Bishop E. R. Hendrix to China he met a wealthy English merchant in Shanghai, whose convictions on this subject were pronounced and clearly expressed. He says: "We find that our very commerce in China is based upon the missionary. He precedes us into the interior and becomes the means of our communications with the natives."

A correspondent of the London Standard has written: "In almost every instance of new trade centers, new settlements and ports being opened in the far east, the missionary pioneer has been the first student and interpreter, geologist, astronomer, historian and school master, and his example and instruction have first aroused the desire for those commercial wares of ours which subsequently drew forth the traders." In the initial attempts to build railways in China it was found comparatively easy to do this if the route had been previously occupied by mission stations, but that there was prompt trouble if the attempt was made where no missionary influence has been exerted. The Rev. W. A. Cornaby, for many years a resident missionary in China, is quoted as saying: "The opening of China was desirable first of all in the interests of the kingdom of God, and then in the interests of commerce; but the missionary must precede the trader, and commerce must be on Christian lines." These carefully formed opinions of men of intelligence and character might be multiplied, and they are full of significance, in view of the rapid and enormous extension of commerce in the far east during recent years.

Schoolmaster of the Orient.

Japan has been called the "schoolmaster of the Orient." There are over 18,000 Korean, Siamese and Chinese students in her capital. There has never been such a movement of students to one country in the history of the world. Japan is not only the schoolmaster of these 18,000 students, but she is the schoolmaster of the entire east; and from her China, Siam and India will learn the lessons of independence, self-government and civilization. The importance of the situation in Japan has not been equaled in the whole history of missions.

Over three-fourths of Japan is unevangelized. There is not a home in all of Japan that is not illumined by coal oil brought from Christian lands.

In little towns of a few hundred inhabitants can be seen the advertisements of a brand of cigarette manufactured by a Christian merchant of the southland; and yet in these same towns there are no churches, chapels or Bibles.

Do these things mean that Christian business men are more alive to the opportunity to secure wealth than the church is to win souls?

Japan stands on an equality with the civilized nations of the world. She is in military alliance with England, Japan is the leader of the east, the pilot of the oriental ship of state. She holds in her hands the destiny of the Orient. As goes Japan, so will go Korea, China and Siam.

Were she not the tremendously energetic and progressive country that she is the winning of her millions to Christ would present a call worthy of the activities of the church; but when we consider her position and influence, of what she has accomplished, and of what she promises in the world field, we have a situation and a call that are colossal.

"Every prayer for Japan is a prayer for the whole east. Contributions for Japan are contributions for the entire east, and every servant of the church sent to Japan is a servant sent to the entire orient."

Miss Annie Stockwell, a missionary in Persia, estimates that there are at least 1,000 Moslem girls and boys attending the 13 Christian mission schools in Persia. This is twice as many as were in attendance five years ago. Of the number given 700 are paying tuition.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

THE DEATH OF MOSES

Subject of Sunday School Lesson for Next Sunday.

Deut. 34: 1-12.

Time.—B. C. 1451 (Ussher), 1407 (Toffteen). Other dates by other scholars.

Places.—Plains of Moab, Mount Nebo.

Golden Text.—Precious in the sight of Jehovah is the death of his saints.—Ps. 116:15.

Leading Thought.—In life or death we are precious in God's sight.

The book of Deuteronomy consists of Moses' farewell addresses to the Israelites, spoken on the plains east of the Jordan just before his death, as they were about to cross over into Canaan.

The plains of Moab were east of the Jordan, opposite Jericho. There the Israelites were encamped. Nebo rose about 640 feet above the plain. Pisgah is a peak 200 feet lower, westward from Nebo, toward the Jordan, commanding a view over Gilead, the mountainous tract east of the Jordan, to Dan, in the extreme north of Palestine. Naphtali lay north and northwest of the Sea of Galilee. Mt. Hermon has been seen from Pisgah. Manasseh, Ephraim, and Judah lay successively southward. "The utmost sea" was the Mediterranean. "The South" was the general name for the southern part of Palestine. "The Plain" was the fertile region in which Jericho lay. Zoar was a city on the Dead Sea. Beth-peor was a Moabite town, on a hill sacred to the god Peor.

Seven days was the usual period of mourning, but it was thirty days for the most illustrious men.

Object Lessons.

A DOOR.—When someone passes through that door into the other room, he goes beyond our sight and hearing. But we think nothing of that. He is simply in another room of this building. In many ways, death is like a door. It is the entrance to another room in our Father's house. Those who pass through death's door go beyond our sight and hearing, but we know they are still in God's house. Today's lesson is about the passing of Moses to his heavenly home.

AN ARITHMETIC OR OTHER LESSON BOOK.—When you come to the end of your arithmetic, what does your teacher do? Promotes you and gives you higher lessons. That is the rule in school and in life. When we learn one kind of lessons well, we are promoted to higher, harder ones. When all the life lessons are learned, we are promoted to the heavenly life. Today we have the story of Moses' promotion from earth to heaven.—Hageman.

The Burial of Moses.

By Nebo's lonely mountain,
Beyond old Jordan's wave,
In a vale in the land of Moab
There lies a lonely grave.
And no man dug that sepulcher,
And no man saw it e'er;
For the angels of God upturned the sod,
And laid the dead man there.

This was the bravest warrior
That ever buckled sword,
This the most gifted poet
That ever breathed a word;
And never earth's philosopher
Traced with his golden pen
On the deathless page truths half so sage
As he wrote down for men.

—MRS. C. F. ALEXANDER.

Question Review.

1. Of what have we studied today?
2. How old was Moses when he died?
3. How long had he been sick?
4. What does the account say about his failure to be sick?
5. Where did Moses die?
6. What did he see just before he died?
7. Who came to his funeral?
8. About whose death and burial does the Lord have a special care?—Leonard.

THE THANKSGIVING C. E. MEETING

Topic: "Discontentment or Praise: Which Is Your Life?"—Psalms 100: 1-5.

Let the leader first speak of the intention of Thanksgiving Day, a day, like the Sabbath, on which we acknowledge God as the Giver of all good. This special day reminds us that every day is Thanksgiving Day, just as every day should be a Lord's Day for us. Let him then speak of the disintegrating effect of grumbling and discontent upon the mind; it weakens the will, spends nervous energy in beating the air, and it makes us hateful to our friends. We should cultivate a cheerful spirit as a matter of duty. The habit of praise may be acquired. Make an appeal to the will to start at once in this new path of sunshine.

When the Puritans gave up the keeping of Christmas, Easter, and saints' days, which were common in the Roman Catholic Church, they substituted fast days or days of thanksgiving. These days were holy days, Sabbaths. This is the root from which Thanksgiving Day has sprung.

In 1621, after the harvest was got in, the Governor sent four men to hunt birds, and the Pilgrims spent a week in feasting, probably without religious ceremonies. This feast may have been an echo of the old English harvest home, when festivities accompanied the bringing in of the last sheaf. The fast day was religious; the feast day was social. In our time we have united the two.

The first Presidential Thanksgiving proclamation was made by George Washington in 1789. It specified the things for which thanks might fittingly be rendered and outlined matters that should be made the subject of prayer.

The Jews of old had a Thanksgiving service called the Feast of Ingathering, or the Feast of Tabernacles. It was a harvest festival, where men acknowledged God as the author of all good, and expressed gratitude for His care.

Thoughts of Praise.

There is a legend that says that the angel of Requests, and the angel of Thanksgiving both came to earth to take to God the prayers of men. The basket carried by the angel of Requests was full, men had so much to ask for, while the basket carried by the angel of Thanksgiving was nearly empty.

Discontent never leads to good. Two horsemen riding along a country road were troubled with the dust. One said, "Let us ride in the fields and be free from this dust." But in the fields the flies tormented the horses so that the men could hardly keep in the saddle. Often we fly from trouble into greater trouble.

THE POWER OF THE PENNY

The value and power of the humble penny was recently illustrated by a society that wanted to raise money. The movement started among some who wanted to go to the Los Angeles convention. The methods employed may be used by any society, class or organization.

A penny contest was planned. The limit was one month and each division was to see how many pennies it could collect in that time. The pennies were to be handed in at a penny social at the end of that time. There was keen rivalry and earnest solicitation. At the end of the month 5,975 pennies, or $59.75, were in hand. At the social people brought articles worth one penny each. These were sold at auction to the highest bidder and brought $15.10, while a gift from a friend brought the total up to $79.85.

Those at the social were given a slip of paper and asked to write a stanza of four lines, the last word to be cent and rhyme with a word in the second line.

NOTES ON THE WORK

We are glad to know that Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Superintendent of Elementary Grades for our Convention, who has been so critically ill, is able to be up again and write a word for THE SUN. We trust she will soon be completely well.

A letter from Brother A. N. McAbee, Zebulon, Ga., asks for Christian Endeavor and organized class literature. He proposes to organize a society and a young ladies' class. We trust he will be successful.

WORLD'S CONVENTION POSTPONED

Small pox in Sydney, Australia, will prevent the holding of the World's Christian Endeavor Convention in that city, as had been anticipated and planned. The disease has broken out there and is a very severe epidemic. It may be months before it is completely stamped out.

Leading workers of the society in this country had already made arrangements to attend the convention and take a tour around the world and naturally there is disappointment. Australian Endeavorers had also begun preparation for a great event and they are disappointed. Halls had been engaged, speakers secured and the program outlined. Money to defray the expenses of the convention had been raised.

HOW TO HELP THE TIMID ONES

One Christian Endeavor society has adopted a very effective plan for taking care of the timid members of the society. At each consecration meeting, toward the close, all who have taken part in the meeting are asked to retire. Then the ones who have not participated are left to themselves, and the president says a few encouraging words, seeks to draw the members out and get them started to discussing the topic. When they realize that all the others in the room are timid ones also, they do not hesitate so much in taking a part. We suggest the same plan to societies that have backward members.

There had been a bad explosion in a powder mill, and the proprietor, who was away on a pleasure trip, hurried home to make an investigation as to the cause.

"How in the world did it happen?" he asked the foreman of the mill as he viewed the wreck. "Who was to blame?"

"Well, you see, sir," replied the foreman, "It was this way: Bill went into the mixing room, probably thinking of something else, and struck a match by mistake. He—"

"Struck a match!" exclaimed the proprietor in amazement. "I should have thought that would have been the last thing on earth he'd do."

"It was," was the foreman's calm rejoinder.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Secty. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

TREASURER'S QUARTERLY REPORT

Of the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Christian Convention.

RECEIPTS

Aug. 6—To cash N. C. and Va. Conference.	$ 9.47
Sept. 18—To cash E. N. C. Conference	7.55
Sept. 18—To cash E. N. C. Conference	8.98
Sept. 18—To cash N. C. and Va. Conference.	8.19
Sept. 29—To cash N. C. and Va. Conference.	6.22
Oct. 8—To cash W. N. C. Conference	12.50
Oct. 18—Va. Valley Central Conference	1.95
Oct. 25—E. Va. Conference	117.59

Total Receipts$172.45

DISBURSEMENTS

Sept. 29—By cash Mrs. L. F. Johnson, R. R. Expenses	$ 3.20
Sept. 29—By cash Mrs. W. T. Walters, postage	1.10
Nov. 3—By cash Mrs. C. H. Rowland, postage	2.00
Nov. 3—By cash J. A. Mills, Mrs. Watanabe's salary	14.50
Nov. 3—By cash J. A. Mills, two Japan Sunday schools	22.82
Nov. 3—By cash J. A. Mills, Sanat Isabelle	2.74
Nov. 3—By cash J. A. Mills, Mrs. Frye's School	12.50
Nov. 3—By cash J. A. Mills, Foreign Missions	56.79
Nov. 3—By cash J. A. Mills, Home Missions	56.80

Total disbursements$172.45

Contributions have been received from the following churches: Franklin, Third Church, Suffolk, Newport News, Waverly, Bethany, Memorial Temple, Holland, Sunbury, First Church Greensboro, Burlington, Bethlehem, V. Valley, New Hope, Winchester, Henderson, Wake Chapel, Pleasant Grove and Elon College. MRS. W. T. WALTERS, Treas.

OUR WORK—THE OUTLOOK

(Delivered before the women of the Eastern Virginia Conference by the President.)

While, from the time of the early church down to the present day, woman has been active in spreading the gospel message, yet organized missionary work among women is of recent date, many of the larger and older denominations celebrating their golden anniversary just a little while ago. Perhaps the women of the Christian church here in the South have been more slow than any other denomination to begin the work. Many of us had felt the need of it for a long while, but for some cause, it was not begun until two years ago, when our Annual Conference met in Suffolk and a Woman's Missionary Board was appointed. A year ago, after nine months of organization, there were reported eight Women's Societies, two Willing Workers' Societies, and two Cradle Rolls, with a membership of near three hundred women, about fifty boys and girls, and $320 raised for all purposes. The work has been encouraging the past year, and we now have twelve Woman's Societies, four churches using Mite Boxes, four Willing Workers' Societies, one Girls' Society, and two Cradle Rolls, having near five hundred women engaged in the work, one hundred fifty boys and girls, a total of twenty-three organizations in sixteen churches, and $599 received for the work.

While we have not done what we might have done had all our women been as faithful as the few; yet, when compared with the nothing attempted and nothing accomplished of two years ago, we feel that these figures should encourage us to attempt even greater things for the coming year.

We have in our Conference forty-three churches and a membership upward of 6,000. Granting that one-half of our membership are women, gives us twenty-seven churches and 2,500 women, and perhaps a still larger number of children not engaged in the work. Three thousand women giving ten cents a month would give us $300 per month or $3600 a year. Add to this at least $500 from our children's societies, and we have an amount not to be scoffed at, especially with a depleted mission treasury staring us in the face. Nor is this an impossible vision. We may not enlist every woman in all the churches, nor will every girl and boy consider it worth his while to engage in the work; but we do hold that a good many from each church can be enlisted, and that the contributions from these can be made to equal ten cents per month for each woman in the church. Can we believe? Then the promise is, All things are possible to him that believeth. It may take time, prayers and hard work, but would not the results warrant the cost?

But some may ask, Why should I engage in this work? There are many, when they are shown the needs and their duty, will endeavor faithfully to do their part. So we would say some of the reasons why every woman should have a part in this work are:

1. The helplessness and the hopelessness of the world without Christ. It is impossible for us to realize this save as His Spirit reveals it to us, because we have never known nor experienced anything like it. There are thousands who die daily and pass into eternity, who have never had the opportunity of accepting Christ. Think of the many innocent babes that look up into mothers' faces that have never been softened by the love of Christ. Do we ever give a thought to the many girls sold by parents or brothers to lives of shame and impurity, often in the name of religion? and young men given to immorality and vice with no hope of anything better unless you and I choose to give them that which alone can purify and ennoble them. The part of the non-Christian world assigned to the Christian Church is estimated at 1,000,000 souls. The force we have on the field is far too small to reach them. To increase it money is needed.

2. While those in darkness need us to give them the light, it is also true that we need them for the keeping of our lights bright and shining. Our lives are too apt to become self-centered and selfish. As with the individual, so with the church. That church that is concerned only with its own local affairs has the germs of decay already within it. The denomination that disregards the opportunity of spreading the Gospel is doomed to die, and ought to die. This is the church's mission, and without this spirit, she is simply a cumberer of the ground.

3. But another reason why every woman and child, and man, too, for all that, should be enlisted in the work, is the straitened condition of our mission treasury. The hands of our Mission Board are tied, they are unable to advance, unable to send recruits, unable to enlarge, and a debt like Banquo's ghost, which will not down, faces them continually. Think you that this is any time for ease or idleness in our ranks?

So in view of these facts we make this appeal to our women: that we raise for the work for the coming year, at least $1,000. We are well able to do it. Let us not think of it as a thing impossible. Let us dare and do. To succeed in this we will need to enlist the uninterested in churches where we already have organizations and to organize in many of the churches not yet organized. We will need to enroll at least one half of our churches this coming year. We can do it if we will; let us say we can do it and we will. Let this be our battle cry for 1914: $1,000 for the work, and one-half of our churches enlisted. Can we count on you to do your part? We believe we can.

REPORT OF MITE BOX AND LITERATURE SUPERINTENDENT

The Mite Box and Literature Superintendent of our Woman's Conference Board begs leave to submit the following report:

We have written letters to each of the organized Societies of our Conference urging them to use the Mite Boxes in connection with their work. Also, we have recommended the appointment of local superintendents in each society.

We have communicated with the country churches and others of our Conference, where it seems impossible to maintain the organized work and hold regular meetings, urging them to adopt the Mite Box plan.

We have received a number of responses to our letters, and feel grateful to be able to report the following churches now using the boxes: Franklin, Memorial Temple, Third Church, Portsmouth, Suffolk, Waverly, Bethlehem, Bethany Liberty Spring, Spring Hill and Dendron.

We do most earnestly desire that you give the following recommendations your approval and co-operation:

(a) That each church within the bounds of our Conference adopt the Mite Box plan, and appoint local superintendents.

(b) That each society shall form Mission Study Classes. We would suggest for your text-book for the coming year "The King's Business," by Maud W. Raymond. This is one of the clearest and most forceful books for Mission Study Classes. It is well arranged for class work and Reading Circles. We would also call attention to "The New America," a Home Mission text book dealing with the problems of immigration.

(c) We would urge the local superintendents to write to our Publishing House for missionary tracts and leaflet literature, and distribute them generously. We believe this to be one of the best ways of reaching the people, by giving them missionary information and creating for them a missionary atmosphere.

(d) We wish to call your attention to the Christian Missionary, which is the official missionary organ of our church. Subscribe to it and carefully read its pages, if you would keep in touch with the missionary interests and problems of our church.

We would also call attention to our Woman's Department in the CHRISTIAN SUN, and urge you to read it carefully each week.

(e) We would recommend that each society take an offering during the month of October for the Tract Fund.

MRS. J. W. HARRELL,
Superintendent Conference Board.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MISSION POLICY

(Continued from Page 5.)

sions will be raised in this way with all ease, and we trust more than doubled. This will have to be done, if we reach our "Convention Aim." If all our schools pull together and adopt the above policy at once, we will reach our Convention Aim in full by the time the Convention meets at Virginia Beach next July. Where is the schools that would not join in this procession that is marching to larger things for the Kingdom? We are counting on every school to fall in line.

At the Annual Conference six other schools ordered the little book entitled "Five Missionary Minutes," which furnished the missionary program for the year. The book has in it missionary facts for fifty-two Sundays, and asks for only five minutes each Sunday in which to present one of them. This could be presented before going to classes or just before the close of the school. It is a great book, and costs only 50 cents. Order of the Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

The work of the Mission Secretary will be to stand behind the mission interests of the school, circulate mission books and literature—tracts, pamphlets, etc. Our Mission Secretaries at Dayton, Ohio, will be glad to send any free literature they have for distribution. The Mission Secretary should strive to secure the reading of the mission books in the Sunday school library, and to add to the library the newest and best mission books as rapidly as possible.

In providing for the weekly missionary offering, all that is necessary is to secure another collection envelope and sew it to the envelope you already have and write across it with red ink—Missions. The envelope will gather in from Sunday to Sunday the free-will mission offering of the pupils, and there will be no begging and teasing to get up your mission money. The envelope will do the work if you will give it a chance.

All Sunday school Superintendents will please report to me as soon as their school adopts the above policy. What school will be the next?

J. W. HARRELL,
Mission Secretary.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

Of the Mission Treasurer for the Month of October, 1913, as Per Standing Rule of the Mission Board.

RECEIPTS

For Home Missions	$ 616.13
For Foreign Missions	1,042.77
For all other purposes	215.90

Total Receipts	$ 1,874.80
Cash Balance October 1, 1913	2,810.90

$ 4,685.70

DISBURSEMENTS

To Home Missions	$ 1,451.44
To Foreign Missions	1,354.27
To all other purposes	539.56

Total disbursements	$ 3,245.27
Cash Balance October 31, 1913	1,440.43

$ 4,685.70

LIABILITIES

Bills payable	$ 6,600.00
Due accounts	4,755.52

Less Cash Balance	$11,355.52
	1,440.43

Total liabilities October 1, 1913	$ 9,915.09
---	-------------

Note.—Of the bills payable, the Board's note for $600 is held in Boston by the Board's agent, for the Boston property, but whom the Treasurer is informed that $333.03 had been endorsed on the note, and that another endorsement was soon to be made on said note, all of which cuts down the liabilities by so much.

J. G. BISHOP,
Mission Treasurer.

SAVING TIME IN EDUCATION

There is a waste of at least two years in the present plan of American education. This is the conclusion reached by a committee of prominent educators in a report on "Economy of Time in Education" just issued by the United States Bureau of Education.

This conclusion follows an investigation lasting nearly ten years by a committee of the National Education Association, of which President James H. Baker, of the University of Colorado, is chairman. The committee has endeavored to form a plan that would do away with the two-year loss. They propose that six years be assigned to the elementary school instead of eight as at present; that the high-school period be from ages twelve to eighteen, divided into two parts, of four and two years each; that college work extend from eighteen to twenty, or sixteen to twenty, according to the method of distributing the last two secondary years; and that graduate or professional work at a university cover the years from twenty to twenty-four. This would enable boys and girls to get ample vocational training after the age of twelve; it would enable those who go on to college to get through their college work at the age of twenty; and it would save the professional man from having to wait until twenty-seven to start his professional career.

The report insists that the present elementary course is too long; that the ground now covered in eight years can be covered just as efficiently in six, allowing secondary work to begin at the age of twelve. To save on elementary schooling they urge: "Choose the most important subjects and the most important topics; make a distinction between first-rate facts and principles and tenth-rate. Confine the period of elementary education to mastering the tools of education. Include the last two years of the present elementary school in the period of secondary education and begin the study of foreign language, elementary algebra, constructive geometry, elementary science, and history two years earlier than at present."

Emphasis is laid on the necessity of concentrating on a few valuable studies: "The great mistake of our education is to suppose that quantity and strain constitute education. Education is a question of doing a few essential things well and without overstrain. The college has committed a grievous mistake in demanding ever more in quantity than in quality produced under conditions of healthy normal development."

The report takes up the problem of saving time in education from the point of view of the college, the school, and society at large, as well as of the individual pupil; and it contains opinions on every phase of the question from representative school men and the general public.

BUREAU OF EDUCATION.

The Philippine agency of the American Bible society was founded in 1899 immediately after the islands had passed into the hands of the United States. More than 1,020,200 volumes of the scriptures have been circulated since that time. One of the notable results of the work was the translation of the Old Testament into Panayan. The whole Bible is now translated into three Philippine languages or dialects, the new testament into four and other parts of the scriptures into still five other dialects—making twelve dialects in all.

The Bible has already been translated into all the principal tongues of the world and portions of it into more than four hundred languages and dialects employed by nearly 1,200,000,000 people, or seven-tenths of the human race.

FOSTER'S
STORY OF THE BIBLE

From Genesis to Revelation. Told in Simple Language.

ADAPTED TO ALL AGES, BUT ESPECIALLY TO THE YOUNG

By CHARLES FOSTER

Size, 6½ x 9 in.; 704 Pages: 300 Illustrations.

BEAUTIFUL COLORED PICTURES
THE BEST EASY-READING VERSION OF THE WHOLE BIBLE

It adheres most closely to the Scriptures, retaining much of their force, dignity and distinction of style, with the pure and simple wording of the English Bible, without comment or doctrinal discussion.

MOST GENERALLY USED—750,000 SOLD

Approved by eminent men of various religious denominations
Valued in thousands of homes.

FINE CLOTH, with beautiful design in three colors (shown above), $1.50

SEND US YOUR ORDERS.

Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Children's Missionary
Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions for Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDREN

The
Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

See Us about Job Printing
WHEN YOU WANT GOOD WORK.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

CRADLE ROLL

Dear Cradle Roll Superintendents:

In the last letter I wrote a spoke to you about the Wall Roll for the Cradle Roll work. I want to advise most earnestly the use of this Roll, for several reasons. One thing, it is well to keep it in mind, and what we see we remember far longer than what we hear as a general rule. Then the names of the members of the Cradle Roll are in plain sight always, and someone may notice the name of some child that is not, but ought to be on the Roll.

For still another thing, we need to let everyone know where we stand, and the work we are doing. I have been thinking much lately of the question the prophet asked King Hezekiah concerning the visit of the ambassadors of the enemy: "What things hath he seen in thy house?" If a stranger comes into our church or Sunday school room, what things would he see? Would he see anything to lead him to suppose that we were busy, at work, caring for all from the largest to the smallest? Or would he see a great bare barn of a room without the sign of a tool in it, looking as if it were used semi-occasionally as a nondescript gathering place of nondescript people?

I urged the adoption of the Cradle Roll and the Wall Roll in a Sunday school not long ago, and they objected, "because they had to have Sunday school and church in the same room, and it did not look well for church service to see such things hanging around." I fairly gasped for breath. What? that we, busy about the King's business, should be ashamed of our tools? That we should be afraid someone would see we were really working? That the names of little children whom we had gathered for the Master to bless, should be considered in the light of a blot upon the walls? Perish the thought! If we are not able to have a separate room for Sunday school and church service, then in the name of all that is holy, let us be able to show by the things that are in our house, that we are busy, that we are not neglecting a single channel through which we can reach out and help, ourselves, to answer the prayer, "Thy kingdom come."

"What things hath he seen in thy house?" Would a visitor to your church or Sunday school room imagine that here was the "church at work, winning souls for Christ and training them in His kingdom?" Would he see that you were anxiously seeking, not only to save the lost, but to keep some from being lost? Or would he get the idea that, so far from being "the church at work," as we are taught our Bible schools ought to be, he would think he saw the answer to the old sneering conundrum, "When is a school not a school? Answer, When it is a Sunday school."

No, let us have the Wall Roll for our dear babies, let us have maps to help us understand in the older departments, let us have song books and Bibles and plenty of them. Suppose they do give the church an untidy look sometimes. My mother used to quote an old proverb to me, "A good workman is known by his chips." But it is not really necessary to have an untidy church. Set some of those eager, active, restless boys and girls to work clearing up, make them Librarian and Assistant Librarian, and let them work out some of that abounding vitality by clearing up the debris of the Sunday school before church services commence. You kill two birds with one stone in that way.

Dear me, that is rather outside the province of the Cradle Roll, isn't it, but we who have to "double up" in work as we do in so many of our country churches have all these problems to meet, anyway. But to get back to what I started to speak of; just this. Have the Cradle Roll; have with it the roll to hang on the wall; have every baby's name on it; be proud of it, put it where it can be seen, talk of it, think of it, pray for it. Help in every way possible to bring and to keep these little ones close to the Master "and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of Heaven."

Cordially, Your Cradle Roll Supt.,
MRS. F. BULLOCK.

THE FINEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD — FOR THE MONEY —

This Photograph represents exact size $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{4}$ inches
Bound in French Morocco, absolutely flexible,
with overlapping covers as shown in this photograph. Has red under gold edges.

— IT CONTAINS —
The Authorized Version of the Old Testament and New Testament

— HAS —
Self-Pronouncing Text
All the proper words being accented and divided into syllables for quick and easy pronunciation.

— IT ALSO CONTAINS —
A New Series of Helps to Bible Study

— INCLUDING —
4000 Questions and Answers
which unfold the Scriptures

31 Beautiful Illustrations
showing scenes and incidents of Bible History

12 Maps of the Bible Lands in Colors
Large Clear Type Fine Paper

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN one year,
$2.50, postpaid.
Or sent alone for $1.50, postpaid.

— ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO —
The Southern Christian Pub. Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

THE ANSWER TO MY QUESTION

The mother of the home sat by the fireside weeping. Little Mary stood with her arms about her mother's neck. This mother was broken-hearted; little Mary was sad. I knew not the burden of these two hearts, and what to say to them I did not know. "What has saddened this home?" I asked myself as I turned to leave. The report from the Recorder's Court next morning answered my question: King Alcohol did it. C. B. RIDDLE.

There are 77,000,000 persons in the United States who do not attend any Sunday school.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. JAMES O. COX, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

J. O. Cox, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson Chairman Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amount brought forward$3,852.38

Monthly S. S. Offering

Apple's Chapel$.25
Franklin, Va. 5.26
1st Church, Greensboro.. 2.83
New Hope, Valley Con... .65
Newport News, Va. 2.00 10.99

Special

Ladies' Aid, Pleasant
Grove, Va.$2.50
Mrs. M. F. Cook 1.00
Collected Alabama Con.. 6.70
C. F. Patridge50
J. T. Cox50
J. A. Roquemore25
J. Y. Stephens25
Miss Sallie Cobb50
W. H. Grover50
H. W. Elder50
D. S. Hogg25
W. B. Martin50
W. L. Wells25
J. W. Lane 1.00
J. W. Kent50
C. S. Swanson25
John Thompson25
C. E. Short50
Mrs. W. H. West25
Mrs. J. L. Redman50
J. R. Short25
Mrs. Fannie Crabtree .. .25 16.95

Total for the week$ 27.94
Grand Total$3,880.32

We are approaching the Thanksgiving season. Our Orphanage family has been looking forward to this time with great expectation. Miss McCauley is preparing a program to be given in the College chapel, in connection with the church's annual Thanksgiving service. Following this dinner will be served in the Dining Hall to our family of 68. The Superintendent is having a hard time in trying to plan and provide for this occasion. Last year he sat down around his own table with his happy family of four. But since that time his family has been multiplied seventeen fold, and his task and responsibility has increased in the same ratio. If any of our good friends wish to help him out in his great task and have a part in delighting the heart and satisfying the appetite with good things, just drop him a card stating the part you will have in our Thanksgiving Dinner. We shall be very thankful.

While it is no small job to provide a good Thanksgiving Dinner for so many, it must be remembered that we eat at the Orphanage three times each day, and to make daily provision for so many is even a greater task. Our expense at this season is very great: shoes and winter clothing to provide; and bills that have accumulated during the summer months are to be paid. Our creditors have been kind and indulgent, and we have been promising them that we will settle our accounts in full soon after Thanksgiving. We are looking to you to help us keep our promise. If every member of the Christian church will only have a part in this offering we can meet all our obligations, and then go forward with our delightful task with a light heart and a more determined effort.

Envelops for the Thanksgiving offering are being sent out to each church in the Southern Convention, and we are expecting our friends to give us a liberal offering. Please make remittance as soon as convenient after the offering is taken, as we have a number of urgent obligations upon us.

Thanking you in advance, I beg to be,
Very gratefully,
J. O. Cox, Supt.

Newport News, Va., Nov. 1, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I am sending you two dollars which the East End Newport News Christian Sunday school raised for the Orphanage. Every month we are going to take an offering for the Orphanage, and we are going to have a scholar write you a letter enclosing the money.

I am in the Primary department, and would dearly love to have one of the orphans write me a letter.

With lots of love from

ROSA R. VIPOND.

2204 Roanoke Ave.

We are indeed grateful for the offering, and are delighted with your plan. We shall be glad to have a letter from some member of your school each month. I will ask one of our little girls to write you.

HOW TO OBSERVE THANKSGIVING

The day is almost here which the almanac tells us is the time for observance of the annual proclamation calling for a day of thanksgiving. As is usual, certain games, certain annual hunting parties, and certain other plans for pleasure, not to omit the hapless turkey have been long looked forward to in keen anticipation by tens of thousands of us in connection with that date, but how many will remember the real significance of the institution of thanksgiving? How many of us have preserved the original spirit that prompts the observance and how many of us are preparing to make real expression of thanks on Thanksgiving day?

The usual pleasures are natural results of a year of prosperity, but that is not all. Every man who has prospered and is conscientious in his intentions to properly observe the occasion can't do so without expression of sympathy for the unfortunate and the numberless needy. These classes are found under many circumstances and, this year of all years, when prosperity has been almost rampant, they ought to receive a much increased material support. The orphanages of the state, these institutions that exist for the sole ob-

Increase Your Yield

By using the F. & J. Bemis Transplanter. DO THE WORK RIGHT THIS YEAR

Set your plants with this machine and see them start growing quicker and bring you larger yield better quality and greater money returns.

In setting plants by hand you thrust a stake into the earth to make a hole, put the plant in and souse some water on it. What is the result? The tender root fibers are all doubled up, are packed in a casing or hard ball of earth which the sun bakes and the plant is injured and perhaps killed by sun burn. If it do happen to live it starts growing slowly for it takes time for the tender root fibers to force their way through the casing of hard sun baked earth. Results—delay in the plant getting a good start and a crop not uniform in growth and quality.

The F. & J. Bemis Transplanter by means of a plow or furrow opener opens the earth to receive the plant and the mechanical watering device deposits just the right amount of water around the roots of the plant, flushing and spreading them out. The pressure or covering plates are so shaped that they press the loose soil firmly around the watered roots and leave the soil loose about the stem of the plant. Results—no injury to the roots, no baking of the ground, no burning of the plant, growth starts at once and you get stronger and better plants of uniform growth and better quality.

MACHINE SETTING IS EQUAL TO CULTIVATING THE FIELD ONCE.

Actual tests show that 95 per cent. of the plants set with the F. & J. Bemis Transplanter live and thrive. They can be set out whenever they are ready regardless of weather conditions. Think of the great advantage of this. Think also of the labor saving feature. From three to five acres can be set out easily in a day. You get a larger yield, better quality and more money with less work.

The F. & J. Bemis is built on the "Quality First" plan, strong, of the best materials obtainable, not complicated and it will last a life time with proper care. Its cost is saved the first year. The following can be furnished if wanted—fertilizer, Irish potato and nursery planting attachments.

Write to the Madison Plow Company, Manufacturers, Madison, Wisconsin, or W. B. Leonard, General Representative for the East and South, Elmira, New York, for special descriptive pamphlets, or write or call upon any of the following representative dealers who sell and warrant this popular machine:

H. E. Brewer & Co., Rocky Mount, N. C.

L. Harvey & Sons Co., Kinston, N. C.

Hinsant-Mersob Co., Wilson, N. C.

E. C. McLamb, Keener, N. C.

Stevens F. & I. Co., Smithfield, N.

R. H. Elmore, Melfa, Va.

Dixon Brothers Mercantile Co., Snow Hill, N. C.

Hallwood Feed & Supply Co., Hallwood, Va.

Hart & Hadley, Greenville, N. C.

E. R. Johnson, Currituck C. H., N. C.

Smith Hardware Co., Goldsboro, N. C.

J. S. Weeton, La Grange, N. C.

Martin Hall, Oak Hall, Va.

J. T. Edgerton & Brother, Kenly, N. C.

Geo. M. Holley, Coleraine, N. C.

This is a Florida Bungalow designed by Bonnell & Sons, Architects, of St. Petersburg, and stained with and this is the architects' experience with these Stains:

Cabot's Creosote Stains

"We specified your Stains on the exterior of a small bungalow which was covered with the hardest Florida pine siding.

The result was far above our expectations, and we can truthfully say there is no comparison between this job and one done with best quality paint.

Although on the building in question the pine was not selected, and some was heart, very hard, and some sap, yet there was absolutely no mottled or streaked appearance. By the use of Stain we obtained the effect desired, namely, softness, which we could not have done with paint.

Leaving out its advantages from an architectural point of view, we have found from actual experience that it costs less than one-third what a good job of paint work would cost."

Cabot's Creosote Stains are ideal colorings for the South, being cheaper, more durable and vastly more preservative than paints. Paint now costs more than ever before (or is poorer in quality) while these Stains cost less than half as much as paint and can be applied by anyone twice as fast, using a broad, flat brush, or dipping. They are made of the strongest and finest unfading pigments ground in linseed oil and their liquid vehicle is refined Creosote, "the best wood preservative known." They sink into the wood and give deep, rich coloring effects that are much handsomer than paint and as they form no coating they cannot crack or peel off as paint does in the South. The Creosote thoroughly preserves the wood from decay and insects. Be sure that you get the genuine Cabot's Creosote Stains. There are many worthless and inflammable imitations, made of Kerosene and cheap, crude colors.

Send for samples and full information

Samuel Cabot, Inc., Manufacturing Chemists Boston, Mass.

NORTH CAROLINA DISTRIBUTORS

B. F. WITHERS, Charlotte

PECK & HOLLOWAY, Wilmington

T. H. BRIGGS & SON, Raleigh

BUILDERS SUPPLY CO., Greensboro

CLARK HARDWARE CO., Hendersonville

CITIZENS LUMBER CO., Asheville

R. E. WILEY, Southern Pines

BROWN-ROGERS CO., Winston-Salem

PUBLIC HARDWARE CO., Durham

ROWAN HDW. & FURNITURE CO., Salisbury

ject of fathering the homeless children, that fit them for the higher duties of life, ought to find as tender spots in the hearts of the prosperous public as any cause. It is good to contemplate how many children are sent out in life from them well equipped to meet the exigencies, but it is sad to contemplate how many of them might have been derelicts if they had not been well cared for and sheltered in their more tender years.

No cause is more appealing and it is to be hoped that more people will mingle a little of the spirit of thanksgiving and make Thanksgiving worthy of its name.

THE COST OF RELIGION

Sometimes one hears the complaint that religion is too costly. Going to church we are told costs too much nowadays, and men say that the gospel should be preached without money and without price. The Lutheran makes this reply: "Last year about $250,000 was spent to keep the work of 142,000 churches in America going—an average of about $7.00 per communicant member. One would think that if religion is really worth much it should make much heavier demands on the purse than that. Confectionery and soft drinks, however, seem to be worth more to the American people than religion, for $320,000,000 is spent for these articles. The automobile bill is double what it costs to run the churches, and the jewelry bill exceeds it more than three times. The theater and moving picture bill is equally in excess. Men and boys (and even some women) puff nearly five times that amount into tobacco smoke every year, and the large army of intoxicant lovers spend ten times that sum to satisfy a craving which means the ruination of millions of lives."

MARRIAGES

Greenwood-Croxton.

Mr. William H. Greenwood and Miss Natalie Oliver Croxton were happily married on the afternoon of November 5, 1913, at the bride's aunt's, Mrs. J. H. Crews, 812 Green St., Danville, Va. The groom was accompanied to the altar by his best man, Mr. J. A. Tune, and the bride was given away by her father, Mr. W. T. Croxton. Miss Georgia Crews, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and little Catharine Reynolds was ring bearer. Miss Edna Greenwood presided at the piano and rendered Mendelssohn's Wedding March and Simple Confession during the ceremony. The bride is a most charming woman of the Pleasant Grove section in Halifax County, Va., and Mr. Greenwood is a prosperous farmer and business man of Vernon Hill, Va. These young people are justly popular and are held in highest esteem by a large circle of friends. We wish for them that degree of happiness and wedded joy which those who establish Christian homes richly merit and usually receive. In the union of two pure hearts and consecrated lives heaven's blessings are secured and earth's holiest fellowship is realized. The souvenir ring ceremony was used and the writer officiated.

J. O. ATKINSON.

Join the CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 15.

Shirley President Suspenders

50¢

"A pair for every suit"

makes a man's whole year merry—saves time and temper every day. Try it and see! Choice of 12 beautifully designed gift boxes. At stores or post-paid, 50c.

"Satisfaction or money back!"
Be sure "Shirley President" is on buckles
The C.A. Edgerton Mfg. Co., Shirley, Mass.

TRIAL BOX FREE

Do you suffer with
Headache or Neuralgia
One trial of Megrinime is sufficient—your suffering will cease.
For over a quarter of a century

ME-GRIM-INE

Has been a Godsend to victims of all forms of headache and neuralgia. Write at once for a trial box without cost

The Dr. Whitehall Megrinime Co.
8 N. Lafayette St., South Bend, Ind.

DR. J. H. BROOKS,

Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

MORPHINE WHISKEY and TOBACCO

HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanatorium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARHOLT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.

Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81		4:35 a. m.
No. 29		Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41		4:10 p. m.
No. 43		6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84		12:48 a. m.
No. 38		11:35 a. m.
No. 66		12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries. Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles, Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

—HIGH CLASS—

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Winter-Time Health

MY STANDING OFFER

If you suffer from any form of stomach, liver, kidney or bladder trouble, send me $2 and I will ship you 10 gals. of Shivar Spring Water with the understanding that if it fails to benefit you I will refund your money promptly on return of the empty bottles. You are to be the judge. $2 if it benefits—nothing if it fails.

M. J. Shivar

People in this climate are exposed to severe changes of weather and other influences that make winter trying. No fear need be felt by anyone whose system is healthy. It is only when the skin is clogged the lungs are choked and the vitality is lowered by poor digestion and inefficient excretory organs that danger exists.

No medicine can keep you well. Medical treatment aids and whips the body to clear away the clogging, but it is only in Nature's laboratory that the remedies are compounded that keep you well.

Nature Herself Makes Shivar Spring Water

She makes it so wonderfully effective that it helps 997 of every thousand cases of indigestion, kidney or liver trouble that use it. Less than three out of a thousand ask for their money back. This is the water that is sold under a positive guarantee to return the money to any one who drinks ten gallons and fails to be benefited.

Shivar Spring Water puts you into shape to withstand the rigors of the winter. Drink it now and be fortified against the enfeebling indigestion that opens the way to winter colds, pneumonia and fevers.

Remember, if ten gallons fail to help you I send back your $2.00 at once. Shivar Spring Water does not deteriorate in any climate. It is good to taste, good to drink and best for your health. Be sure you get the bottle that bears the signature above.

SHIVAR SPRING COMPANY,
SHELTON, SOUTH CAROLINA.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

Schedule of the trains leaving Elon College:

N. B.—The following schedule figures are published only as information and are not guaranteed.

No. 21—11:28 A. M. Through Train for Asheville with Chair Car for Waynesville. Connects at Asheville with Carolina Special for Cincinnati and Chicago, also for Chattanooga, Memphis and all Eastern points. Connects at Greensboro with Through Train for Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, also with local train for points South.

No. 139—6:32 P. M. For Greensboro. Handles through Pullman Sleeping Car for Atlanta. Makes connections for all points North, East, South and West, New Orleans, Texas and California points.

No. 131—9:27 P. M. For Greensboro. Makes direct connection with Train No. 38, Solid Sleeping Car Train for Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, makes connection for Boston, Pittsburgh, Chicago, and all Eastern and Northern points. Connects with Through Tourist Sleeping Car for New Orleans, El Paso, Los Angeles, and San Francisco.

No. 111—5:44 A. M. For Greensboro, with Sleeping Car for Winston-Salem. Connects with No. 37, Through Train for Atlanta, New Orleans, connects also for Asheville, St. Louis, Memphis, Birmingham and all Western and Southern points. Also with local train for Danville, Lynchburg and Washington.

No. 22—4:48 P. M. Raleigh and Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern and S. A. L. Rwy., also at Selma with A. C. L. Rwy. And at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 144—10:08 A. M. For Raleigh and Goldsboro. Makes connections at Selma with A. C. L. Rwy., for points North and South, and at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 108—8:00 A. M. Local Train for Raleigh, Selma and Goldsboro. Makes connection with S. A. L. Rwy. at Raleigh and A. C. L. Rwy. at Selma and Goldsboro.

No. 112—1:27 A. M. For Raleigh, Selma, Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern, S. A. L. and R. C. & S. Railway, at Selma with A. C. L. Rwy., at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

For detailed information, also for information concerning special round trip rates account various special occasions and Pullman Sleeping Car reservations, ask any Southern Railway Agent or communicate with the undersigned.

J. O. JONES.

Traveling Passenger Agent,

The law of nature is that they who do the thing shall have the power; they who do not the thing have not the power.—Emerson.

MARVELOUS PROGRESS

In 1843, thirty-five years after the missionaries started to work in China, there were but six communicant members in the Protestant church in China. Some of the workers on the field at that time are reported to have expressed the conviction that if the work could be carried forward faithfully there would be a thousand converts at the end of the century.

History has recorded the fact that there were 100,000 converts in China in 1900 and at present there are, according to recent statistics, 278,628 communicant members and a Christian constituency of 750,000.

TERRIBLE TRAIN OF TROUBLES

Lake Charles, La.—Mrs. E. Fournier, 516 Kirby street, says: "The month before I took Cardui, I could hardly walk. I had backache, headache, pain in my legs, chills, fainting spells, sick stomach, dragging feelings, and no patience or courage. Since taking Cardui, I have no more pains, can walk as far as I want to, and feel good all the time." Take Cardui and be benefited by the peculiar herb ingredients which have been so efficient for womanly ills. Cardui will relieve that backache, headache, and all the misery from which you suffer, just as it has done for others. Try Cardui. ad.

STOMACH SUFFERERS
Gallstone Victims

If you have pains in Right Side, Back, Under Shoulders, Pit of Stomach, Colic, Gas, Stomach Trouble, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Dizzy Spells, Nervousness, Bad Color, Blues, Costiveness, Yellow Jaundice, Torpid Liver, Appendicitis or Gallstones, send today for our LIVER-GALL BOOK FREE

Gallstone Remedy Co., Dept. 610, 219 S. Dearborn St., Chicago

THE BEST
Sunday School Help

If you are a Sunday school teacher or pupil you should desire the best possible help. This you will find in one volume, Peloubet's Select Notes on the International Lessons for 1914. Send in your order now. Up to January 1 you can get a copy for $1.00, after that time, $1.25. The publishers' price is $1.25, but we save you 25 cents by ordering from us. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

CHILLS AND FEVER
OR ANY FEVER

QUICKLY YIELD IF
TREATED WITH
30 YEARS OF SUCCESS
IN CURING FOLKS

JOHNSON'S
TONIC*ASK HIM

Ask your doctor about Ayer's Pills. Ask him if he advises you to keep this family laxative in the house. He knows the action of these pills, and can wisely advise you. Take them or not, as he directs. Ayer's Pills have been sold for over 60 years. For constipation, biliousness, sick-headache, indigestion, dyspepsia.

J. C. Ayer Co.,
Lowell, Mass.

ELON COLLEGE
CO-EDUCATIONAL

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of higher education fostered by the Southern Christian Convention.

MODERN IN EQUIPMENT, Steam Heat, Electric Lights, Baths, Sewerage, Elegant New Buildings.

A HIGH GRADE INSTITUTION whose graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great American Universities without examination.

MAINTAINS EXCELLENT MUSIC, Art, Elocution, Normal, and Preparatory Departments.

A FACULTY OF SEVENTEEN SPECIALISTS, with a successful record of twenty-three years behind it.

HAS ALL THE ADVANTAGES of city life with none of its disadvantages. Situated in the delightful hill country of North Carolina, famed for its healthfulness, pure water, and high moral tone.

ELON COLLEGE HAS DONE MORE to build up the Christian Church than any institution ever yet commissioned by our people.

TERMS VERY MODERATE. $141 to $191 per session of ten school months.

For catalogue or other information, address,

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, Elon College, N. C.

FRESHEN UP, MY FRIEND!*Don't Look Like a Rag Baby.

The Columbia Laundry Company can take your old suit and hat, dry clean them by the best French process, and make them look like new. A complete cleaning plant, backed by years of experience and fully responsible, for the refreshment of clothing and household fabrics.

The latest machinery and skilled workers enable us to give universal satisfaction. We have a complete chemical laboratory to test the goods and remove the stains from them. Our efficient force puts clothing especially into perfect order.

When in Greensboro visit our plant. It is most complete and interesting. We give the best of attention to

Dry CleaningPerfect Dyeing*Good Laundering

Send your goods by parcel post. We will return them within a week. We refer to any bank or any citizen of Greensboro. Agents wanted in each town. Write for our booklet of prices.

COLUMBIA LAUNDRY COMPANY

106 Fayetteville Street, Greensboro, N. C.

This Mill Is Built to Grind More Meal and Grind It Better Than Any Other Mill Made

FROM the strong, rigid frame to the genuine pebble stone grit buhrs, every detail shows superiority in design and workmanship, and great care to secure a mill that will always be a money maker to its owner and never a disappointment. It is the

Williams Portable Mill

Service is the prime idea. The automatic cleaning device, the oil trap, patent buhr protector, new sifter, modern type ball bearings, and latest and best feeding device, all mean long and perfect service. The best mill in the world, the mill for you. Sold at absolute satisfaction or money back guarantee.

Ask your dealer or write us at once for illustrated catalogue and full particulars. Don't wait.

WILLIAMS MILL MANUFACTURING CO.,

41 Main Street.

Ronda, North Carolina.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun!
ONLY $1.50 PER YEAR

Join The Christian Sun Piano Club

And Make Thanksgiving Day Memorable

Of all the beautiful gifts you can think of, which one can compare with a lovely, sweet-toned piano or player piano, as a present to gladden the heart of every member of your family? Day after day, year after year, for a whole lifetime, it will keep the family life pure, sweet, wholesome, animated, interesting, cultured, refined. Good music banishes the dullness, flatness, monotony, fretfulness, listlessness, sordidness and selfishness which are apt to creep into the life of any family where the soul has no daily food exercise in music.

DON'T BLAME YOUR CHILDREN, BLAME YOURSELF

If your boys and girls, your young men and young women are looking to the streets and public places for their entertainment and amusement, don't blame them. An old proverb says that "It's a poor workman who curses his tools." Take that to heart. You are the workman who must mold the characters and lives of your children, and your home is your only safe workshop. Your tools are food, clothing, shelter—these are all necessary; but they minister only to the animal requirements. Do not neglect to provide pure food and exercise for the soul, the spirit the mind for surely unless you do so provide your children will wander in search of it and perhaps find tainted and impure instead of wholesome and nourishing amusement.

MUSIC PURIFIES, SWEETENS, UPLIFTS, INSPIRES

It is a well known fact that professional criminals as a class, have no appreciation for music. If they had been taught in youth to love music who can say that their characters and lives would not have been different? Shakespeare says:—"The man that hath no music in himself, Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds, Is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils; The motions of his spirit are dull as night, And his affections dark as Erebus; Let no such man be trusted." Young refers to music as "The parent of actions good and brave." Addison says, "Music is the only sensual gratification which mankind may indulge in to excess without injury to their moral or religious faith." And he might have added, with Luther, that "Music is the Art of the Prophets, the only art that can calm the agitations of the Soul; it is one of the most magnificent and delightful presents God has given us."

Music the Anchor of the Home

The better the music the safer the home. Do not expect a cheap, tin-panny piano, a squeaky organ or screeching phonograph to make your home attractive to young or old. In providing music for your family be sure to secure the best. This is where the Christian Sun Piano Club comes in to help you and every other parent who realizes his obligation to his family. The Club provides the ideal piano for your wife and daughters and the ideal self-player piano for you and your sons. The combination piano and self-player piano, two instruments in one, solves the problem for every family and for every member of the family. It is not a new experiment, but a perfected success, the King of all musical instruments.

The Club is the Parent's Opportunity

It was formed for you and especially planned to meet your needs and overcome your difficulties. By placing your order through the Club, along with ninety-nine other members, you get the lowest, rock-bottom, factory prices on instruments of the highest quality which might otherwise be beyond your reach. We have also arranged convenient terms and the strongest guarantees of quality and durability. Jointly with the advertising manager of this paper, we have provided absolute assurance of perfect satisfaction to every member of the Club so that there is no possibility of dissatisfaction. Write for catalogue, special Club prices and terms, then select the style you think would please you and we will ship it on approval, freight prepaid. If you are delighted, as all have been, accept it; if not, return it and the trial has cost you nothing. Address the Managers, Nine beautiful styles from which to make your selection. Illustrated catalogue giving full descriptions.

Ludden & Bates CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB DEPT., Atlanta, Ga.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Albright.

Durant Hatch Albright, M. D., died at his home in Alamance County, N. C., November 3, 1913. He was born August 12, 1826. His age was 87 years, 2 months and 21 days. William and Eliza Albright were his parents. He had two brothers, Gaston and Henry, and eight sisters. Gaston was a very prominent citizen of Chatham County, and often represented his county in the State Legislature. Henry was captain of a company in the Confederate army and was killed in battle. The father of Dr. Albright was the leading spirit in organizing the Pleasant Hill Temperance Society. This society was organized long before the Civil War and is, so far as I can learn, the oldest temperance society in North Carolina.

Dr. Albright had for many years an extensive practice, and was highly esteemed by his people and by the medical profession. He was attentive, prompt and sympathetic. For more than 30 years he was a member of the Christian church at Pleasant Hill, and for many years was the secretary of the church and kept an excellent record. He represented the church often in conference and convention. He was twice married, and leaves a family of seven children; four sons, Adolphus, William, Frank, Walter, and three daughters, Decie, Bertha, Maud. His body was placed to rest by the side of his two wives in the cemetery at Pleasant Hill. Many of the people of that and other sections were present to honor the departed friend.

The pall bearers were: Dr. W. R. Goley, Dr. Edwards, John A. Coble, John Murchison, Eugene Teague, Newton Hornaday, Holt Pickard, David Lashley. Funeral by W. S. LONG. Chapel Hill, N. C., November 8, 1913.

WEAK, COLD SPELLS

Wilmington, N. C.—Mrs. Cora L. Ritter, of this place, says: "I used to have headaches, and blind dizzy spells, and weak cold spells went all over me. I had different doctors, but they were unable to tell me what was wrong, so I began to travel. I am now all better. I have been for 10 years." Cardui is a remedy for women, which has been helping sick women for nearly a lifetime. You can absolutely rely upon it. Other

Here is Proof of Real Success

Read what your neighbors in North Carolina can tell you of the

It is testimony that you cannot dispute of restoration to health.

HEART

J. W. Chandler, 209 Markham St., Durham, N. C. says:—I am using the OXYPATHOR on my little boy with very satisfactory results. His physicians had pronounced his case a hopeless one, and being a heart trouble, would naturally take time. Before using the machine I had not had a night's sleep for months, having to be up constantly with the boy; but after using the OXYPATHOR for four nights the boy has rested well, has gained ten pounds, and is able to run about and play with the other children.

HEADACHE

J. G. Ferrall, 204 Melton Ave., Durham, N. C., says:—I have been a sufferer from headache and nervousness for the past fifteen years, and had to take a dose most every day for three years to ease the pain. On March 9th I bought one of your OXYPATHOR machines, and with the first treatment I began to get relief, and at this date I feel better than I have for ten years.

Mrs. G. T. Hickman, Winnabow, N. C., says:—I have been a sufferer from sick headache fifteen years. I would have to be in bed one or two days every week or two. Since I have been using an OXYPATHOR for about six weeks, I have not had to be in bed from sick headache at all, and I believe if the machine is properly used it will do all that it is claimed to do.

RHEUMATISM

Jesse Holt, Burlington, N. C. says:—I have been using the OXYPATHOR in my home and treating others for nearly twelve months. I first used the OXYPATHOR for Indigestion and Rheumatism and it soon relieved me of both. There were many things I could not eat at all which I can now eat without feeling any inconvenience.

R. H. Baxter, West Durham, N. C., says:—March 2, 1912, I was stricken with Rheumatism in its worst form and for weeks was in bed. One of Durham's best physicians, after weeks of treatment, told me that drugs would not cure my case and advised me to try Hot Springs, Arkansas. After a thorough examination by one of the best physicians in Hot Springs City the physician told me that I had Diabetes as well as Rheumatism. After taking a course of hot water baths as prescribed by my physician, I was told by him that my case was incurable. I had been able to sleep scarcely any for months, unless I was under the influence of dope of some kind. I came home very much discouraged and was not able to do any kind of work. I was told of the little OXYPATHOR machine by my friends and after a thorough investigation I was induced to try it, and the results were wonderful. I have gained in flesh and health and can sleep well at night. I can do my work as usual and feel like a new man. I believe that the Rheumatism and Diabetes that the physicians said I had and that was incurable, is now being cured by the little OXYPATHOR machine.

A NEW MAN

M. M. Ketchie, China Grove, N. C., says:—For the last 40 years I have been afflicted with Rheumatism, was often confined to bed for several weeks at a time. My muscles became very much stiffened. For some time I have been using a "00" Duplex OXYPATHOR, and it has made a new man of me, so to speak. I feel as well as I ever felt in my life, and am 66 years old. I work in a roller mill every day from 7 A. M. till 6 P. M., and I feel as fresh in the evening as I do in the morning.

SCIATICA

J. H. Crocker, Weldon, N. C., says:—For fifteen years I had been a sufferer with Sciatic Rheumatism. At times I had to stay in bed for weeks suffering agony. Last January I had been down for several weeks, and a number of doctors prescribed for me, one saying that I would have to go to Hot Springs. I was not able physically or financially to go there for treatment. One of my friends induced me to try an OXYPATHOR. I secured one January 2nd, and used it according to the needs of my case. Today I am at work, feeling better than I ever have, the treatment having cured my Rheumatism entirely.

W. C. York, Sanford, N. C., says:—In March a year ago, I ordered an OXYPATHOR to correct a case of Sciatic Rheumatism of five years standing. At times I suffered greatly. After two months treatment under directions, I was absolutely cured and have not since had a recurrence of this or any trouble, and am in better health now than for many years.

With hundreds of others, your own neighbors and friends, telling like facts, many of them in our booklet,

Why Do You Remain Sick?

Send for the booklet. Get acquainted with the merits of the OxyPathor. Then see our agent and regain your health

You may buy on a positive guarantee.

CAROLINA OXYPATHOR CO., 126 W. Martin St., Raleigh, N. C.

people have done the testing, and you should profit by their experience. Cardui has benefited a million women. Why not you? Begin taking Cardui today. adv.

Byron W. King School of Oratory
ELOCUATION AND SPEECH ARTS

New Building and Dormitory
Courses for Teachers, Lecturers, Lyceum and Cantiqua Work, speech defects, stammering, loss of voice, sore throat positively cured. Largest school of speech arts in America. Send for prospectus. Mt. Oliver, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

LOW COST LIGHT for YOU

No Smoke, No Dirt, No Odor—A convenient lamp for every purpose—For the Home, Office or Store. Costs 1-2 cents per hour—300 candle-power—soft yet brilliant light. Agents make money—men or women—quick, easy, sure. All year business—Experience Not Necessary. They buy on Sight. Every home a prospect. Write today for free description and agent's proposition. ACORN BRASS MFG. CO., Dept. 29, Aurora, Ill. Mfrs. Gasoline lights—every description, for every purpose.

NEW FEATHER BEDS ONLY $6.50.
Full weight 36 pounds. New, clean and odorless. 6-pound Pillows $1.08 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for FREE catalogue. Address SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 1005, Greensboro, N. C.

YUM FOR HEADACHE

"HASN'T FAILED YET"

WANTED Several honest industrious people to distribute religious literature. Write Prof. Nichols Box 42, Naperville, Ill. Salary $60 A MONTH

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., NOVEMBER 19, 1913

NO. 47

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Fitness for Marriage

A government employee in Washington has obtained from the United States Public Health Service, after a most thorough and rigid physical examination, the first eugenic certificate ever issued by the Health Service. The bride-to-be was subjected to a similar test by her physician. This strikes us as straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel. The trouble with American marriages is not physical, but mental and moral. That which fills the divorce courts is that of a lack of mental congeniality, or moral turpitude, more often the latter. Immorality and vice unfit more people for agreeable and happy marriage relations in a day than physical unfitness does in a hundred years.

Eternal Fitness

Some events and issues in this world fit in and flow together so completely that they seem to have been thus intended from the foundation of things. How is this, for an example? A certain church in New Jersey, noted for its social latitude, was giving a "benefit" entertainment. One of its members, a young man of rather festive tendencies, insisted on dancing the tango, and on persistently refusing to quit when persuaded, the fire department was called out to compel him to desist. It was first thought to call in the police, but on further and wiser consideration it was decided that the fire department only could do justice to the situation. The church that would allow such social latitude certainly needs the aid of the fire department—and in truth is most likely to get it, if not in this world, then in the next. A fire department is certainly a necessary adjunct to the most efficient church protection.

Beauty and Bands

In the eleventh chapter of Zechariah, seventh verse, we find this: "And I took unto me two staves: the one I called Beauty, and the other I called Bands." Those are expressive and comprehensive terms, Beauty and Bands. The literal meaning of the two words, according to the original, is Graciousness and Union, and refer to God's attitude and purpose towards His children. In the gift of His Son, our Lord and Savior, there was graciousness, an act full of grace and unspeakable goodness. When Christ was betrayed, sold for thirty pieces of silver, Beauty—grace—graciousness—was "cut in sunder," as the prophet teaches in verse ten. Wicked men with evil intent were determined that grace should not abound, and they did their deadly work to prevent it. But "graciousness" was not thwarted, for as the prophet had foreseen, there were Bands as well as Beauty—Union as well as Grace. And God's purpose looked forward, as Zechariah foresaw, to the union of all His people, and that union is yet to be consummated. God's people will one day get together. Division and schism and strife will cease and a common enemy will be fought by a united people. God made and gave both Beauty and Bands—both grace and union, and the gift of one is a promise and a prophesy of the other. As sure as Christ came, and grace through Him, so sure will union—bands—come, and be made perfect through Him. Zechariah's prophecy is not yet all fulfilled.

At Evening

The true servant of God has his ups and downs, his dark days and disappointments, but he lives ever in the consciousness that the final shall be triumphant, and the outcome victorious. If at morning, noon, or night he sees the lowering clouds about or above him he has hidden in his heart the comforting words of Zechariah 14:7, "As evening time it shall be light." The servant of God may never attain that which his heart had desired, but he never goes out under a cloud. He knows that his going shall be in peace, and amid a glorious light. "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death." That is it; the shadow—it takes light to cast a shadow; that is the evening light cast from the west and of gorgeous and golden splendor. Meek Moses had many a hardship, and trials thick and fast beat him. The clouds came and there were dark days; but he went up on a high mountain—always on a high mountain—to die so that "at the evening time" there should be light. He did not attain, did not put foot on promised soil, but his eye was not dim so that he could see, and a light from off the glory shore beat free and full upon him—and the angels formed his funeral train. That splendid old life ended amid an evening light too gloriously brilliant for mortal man to look upon and live. "At evening there shall be light."

A Challenge

Roman Catholicism, that strange hierarchy of human power, which craves nothing so much as civil authority and power at any price over the peoples of the earth, becomes bolder every day and more of a menace to human rights and civil liberty. Lying on my table now is a portion of a "sermon" reputed to have been preached by Priest D. S. Phelan, of St. Louis, recently, in which these utterances occur: "We of the Catholic Church are ready to go to the death for the church. Under God, she is the supreme object of our worship. Tell us that we think more of the church than we do of the United States; of course we do. Tell us we are Catholics first and Americans or Englishmen afterwards; of course we are. Tell us, in the conflict between the Church and the civil government we take the side of the Church; of course we do. Let the governments of the world steer clear of the Catholic Church; let the emperors, let the kings and the presidents not come into conflict with the head of the Catholic Church. Because the Catholic Church is everything to all the Catholics of the world. Why is it the Pope is such a tremendous power? Why, the Pope is the ruler of the world. Why? Because he is the ruler of the Catholics of the world, and the Catholics of all the world would die for the rights of the Pope. He is the head of the Church, and they would die for the Church." Such a spirit of boastfulness and defiance pervades the Catholic church today. It is a challenge both to civil government and to all Protestantism. It is well known of all who read history that Catholicism once gained ascendancy and held undisputed sway among the rulers and nations of the earth, and that it was then, what it would be now, the bloodiest, most beastly and brutal tyrant that ever governed the affairs of men, and that it carried on, under the cloak and garb of Christianity, an organized and universal system of sensuality, vice and crime the like of which history nowhere else records. The scourge to humanity and the menace to civil and religious liberty since the early centuries of our Christian era has been, and is, that blood-thirsty monster, that son of perdition, the Catholic Church. This organization would, though going under the name of a "Church," dethrone, before tomorrow's sun, Jesus the Christ and put the Pope of Rome in His place. The preacher quoted, and all devout Catholics say so, as witness his words: "The Pope is the head of the church." This priest, and others of his ilk, do not care that our Bible says, again and again, as in Ephesians 5:23, "Christ is the head of the church"; and as in Colossians 1:18, "And he is the head of the body, the church." Yet Catholics declare that the Pope and not Christ is the head of the church. But more than this: If Catholics had their way every Bible would be taken from every home in all our broad land and burned before tomorrow. Catholics would dethrone Christ and destroy our Bible, the very source and center and foundation of human rights, civil liberty and religious freedom. This is indeed a challenge to our time and a call to loyalty and zeal and activity on the part of Protestants everywhere. That which alone can overthrow united Catholicism is united Protestantism.

THOSE WHO FORGET GOD

Early one morning we walked down the streets of a large city. People were rushing to their work. Places of business were being opened and the wheels of progress being started. We lifted our eyes to the heavens, and some how we felt that in all this throng of people, and amid this rush, no one had lifted his voice to God to give thanks for all these enterprises and life about us. We left the city on the next train, and to our sorrow and sadness, we heard in a few days of that city's destruction. "Blessed is that nation whose God is the Lord."—Ps. 33:12.

C. B. RIDDLE.

"Neither a borrower nor a lender be."

EDITORIAL

THE WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA

The annual session was at Ramseur, in Randolph County, Tuesday to Thursday night, three sessions a day. Rev. L. I. Cox was re-elected president, and no conference has a more congenial or capable presiding officer. Brother Cox has not one, but absolutely every enterprise of the church at heart, and he sees to it that Trojan and Tyrian are dealt with in absolute carefulness and consideration. The Conference was well attended and the spirit of fraternity and good fellowship was beautiful. There is no better conference amongst us to attend than this, for courtesy and cordiality and always apparent and unstinted.

Rev. W. S. Long, D. D., who is a member of this Conference, has attended every session of the Southern Convention since the Civil War and insists that when one is elected to this important duty it is one's religious duty to go and do one's best. He says that nine times out of ten they can go if they will, but because it means sacrifice many will not go. He has to make a sacrifice to go, and sees no reason why others are not willing to do so.

Rev. C. A. Boone could not attend the Conference, because his physician advised otherwise, but he always sends a letter to the conference of sweetest spirit and fellowship.

Rev. L. I. Cox is one of the very busiest pastors in this Conference, and his labors are greatly blessed. He was in ten revivals the past year, raised all Conference calls from his churches and received a large number into fellowship.

Rev. W. W. Lawrence, a member of the conference, was reported very ill and in a low state of health. We missed his congenial handshake.

Dr. A. B. Kendall, of Burlington, reported a most successful year's work, and preached a sermon before the Conference that was powerful and epoch making. A collection of $32 was taken with which to have the sermon published in tract form for free distribution. It was a fraternal utterance, with a comprehensive outlook. In tract form for general reading it will have wonderful effect and do untold good. It was on the topic, The Why of the Christian Church.

One of the most active younger ministers of the Conference is Rev. J. F. Morgan. He held 150 preaching services the past year, had in his charge 63 conversions and received 37 members. Bro. Morgan is to graduate from Elon College next June and is already actively engaged in the full work of the pastorate.

Rev. M. P. Julian was received into full fellowship in this Conference from the New York Eastern. Bro. Julian has been for years a successful and beloved pastor, and if some of our churches do not at an early date require his services we shall be surprised. He came back to North Carolina, from which he went when eight years of age, on account of health conditions here. Bro. Julian is ready to receive and begin work when and where the demand may require.

Rev. T. E. White made an able and enthusiastic address on Home Missions, contending that what we needed to make our mission interests go was power. Bro. White said that the word "power" came from a Greek root which meant dynamite—dunarius—and when we got the dynamite by prayer and consecration there would be results. We will have both money and men when we get power.

Dr. Morrill, Rev. D. P. Barrett, and Brother Netum Rathbun, all added much to the Conference sessions, and their presence and addresses were inspiring and very helpful.

Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Chairman of the Woman's Board of the Conference, was present, called a meeting of the women, addressed the same and had Dr. Morrill do likewise, and created, by her wisdom and enthusiasm, a new interest in the woman's work. Her report to Conference was encouraging and showed that the women of the Conference were not indifferent to the cause and call of missions. The Conference meets in next annual session at New Providence, Graham. Rev. J. W. Patton, the Secretary, is one of the very best and most efficient, and at every session has the proceedings in well night perfect form.

The Conference is exceedingly anxious to carry forward the work already begun at Asheboro and High Point, and a minister for all his time is needed at each place. This Conference should undertake the work at these two places and will do so, one day when the proper persons can be found for the work.

Our home while in Ramseur was with Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Craven and their two splendid boys, Alton and Jesse. Bro. Craven is a bank cashier and interested in the manufacture of furniture on a large scale; but the atmosphere of his home is thoroughly Christian, and to be in his home was an inspiration. He and his wife are devout and loyal Methodists, serve their church well, and love all Christian activity.

Ramseur is a town of an unusual religious activity and Christian fellowship. The denominations work together in great harmony, and the churches have a great following and wonderful influence in the entire town. Conference could not have met in a more congenial atmosphere.

GOVERNOR PATTERSON'S CONVERSION

The papers are making much of the recent conversion of ex-Governor Patterson of Tennessee. But why? The religion of Christ is as able to save a governor as it is the humblest man of the realm, and the fact that Governor Patterson has been converted should cause no more of a surprise than that any other man has been converted.

The Governor had fought prohibition and the anti-liquor laws of his State. But immediately after his conversion he went to work to undo some of the meanness he had done before he became converted. This is usually the case with a truly repentant and converted man. We want our readers to see what Governor Patterson has to say as to the way he went about it. Here are his words:

"When I sent in my message to the Legislature on the prohibition question, and afterwards vetoed the bill, I was as honest and sincere with the people as I knew how to be, and absolutely true to my platform pledges.

Since then I have tried to discover whether the law itself was responsible for the evils or its non-enforcement, and I have been irresistibly led, as if by the hand of an unseen power, to the belief that our trouble was not in the law—not altogether in the non-enforcement of the law—but in the accursed thing itself.

"You who have followed me in the past and rallied around my flag when the smoke was thickest and the fight fiercest, will ask, 'Is this the man we once knew?' And I answer, 'Yes; the only difference is that I have cast off the shell of my environment, cut the cord which bound me, and entered upon a new, and, I hope, happier and better life.

"I know that every man in Tennessee who has been my real friend will never find it in his heart to censure. There are others who will charge me with inconsistency; those who have used me to their advantage, and those who wish to be unmolested while they coin money from the wails of children, the tears and heart-aches of women and degradation of men.

"To those who charge inconsistency, my reply shall be an admission to the fact. I am inconsistent—my views now are not what they were. I am glad I am inconsistent—I want and mean to be inconsistent. How has this change come about? It did not come through me or by me. I have felt, my countrymen, like one groping in the dark.

"I know suffering and sorrow, and I have pitied it in others. I have felt my weakness and insecurity and need of help. I could not find it in cold logic and reason. I looked for it in my own mind and conscience and could not discover it.

"I then cast aside all pride of opinion, all thought of what the world would think or say, and bowed my head before the throne of Almighty God and asked for strength and light. At last I found it there—my doubts are dispelled—the curtain of the night has parted and the way is clear.

"From now on as long as life lasts I am the uncompromising foe of the liquor traffic. Its ugly and venomous head should be struck wherever it is raised.

"Failures have been recorded and failures will be recorded in the attempt by the state alone to control or destroy this evil.

"The great battle to be fought is to dissolve the connection of the United States government with the manufacture and sale of liquor and interdict it by a constitutional amendment. This and this alone will strike the last and decisive blow for redemption.

"In this mighty effort the friends of law and order everywhere, from ocean to ocean, will be enlisted, and every patriot heart. When the victory is won its fruits will be the richest and most stupendous ever won in any contest since time began."

THANKSGIVING

The President of the United States, the Governor of this State, and many of the Chief Executives of other states, have issued proclamations calling upon the people to assemble at their churches and places of worship on Thursday, November 27, and give thanks to Almighty God for His many blessings and benefits to us as a nation and as individuals the past year. Facts are recounted showing that we have very many blessings for which we should as a nation give thanks; we have enjoyed peace; no pestilence, famine or dread disaster has befallen us; trade and commerce have been easy and abundant; shops and factories have given abundant opportunity for labor at good wages; and the Lord of the harvest has smiled upon our fields, which have yielded abundant increase.

And the people will gather at appointed times and places, some giving thanks, others making merry, and still others will be indifferent. Great dinners will be spread amid happy family gatherings, and evidences of plenty will make hearts glad and households happy.

In this time of giving thanks we sincerely trust SUN readers everywhere will remember our Orphanage. We have now fifty-nine children to feed, clothe, shelter and educate. These are dependent upon the bounty and generosity of our readers and friends. There can be no more appropriate thing on this Thanksgiving Day than to make a thank-offering to our dependent ones at the Orphanage. Let us, in our homes and at our churches, remember these, and this year strive to make the offering the largest we have ever made it, for the need never was as great, and means were never more abundant from which to give.

When you sit down with your family to enjoy Thanksgiving dinner, don't forget our church family, the Orphanage. This is Christianity put into practice and is the giving of thanks in a most appropriate manner.

NEWS AND VIEWS.

—After a thorough investigation the United States Geological Survey places the loss by flood last Spring in Ohio and Indiana at $200,000,000. But the power of recovery shown by the devastated region has been wonderful indeed.

—President Wilson stands firm in his decision that President Huerta of Mexico is merely a dictator and usurper and therefore under no circumstances will negotiations with Mexico go forward till Huerta resigns and gets out of the way. The powers of the world seem now to support President Wilson's position.

—The Charlotte Observer announces that it will publish three lectures by William Jennings Bryan not heretofore published or delivered to the public. The topics and dates for printing the lectures by the Observer are: "The Royal Art," December 14; "The Message from Bethlehem," December 21; "The Making of a Man," December 28.

—The Spanish steamship Balmes with a cargo of cotton, and 130 passengers, was found to be on fire in mid-ocean Wednesday last. The crew kept up a brave fight till Thursday, when distress signals for help were sent out by wireless, and in a few moments a steamship, the Pannonia, 180 miles away, caught the message, flashed back the welcome news that she would come immediately to the rescue, and with full head of steam turned her course in the direction of the burning ship. It was quick work, and all the passengers were transferred from the burning ship in mid-ocean. Great is wireless—the triumph of modern genius "in the air."

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Rev. S. Q. Helfenstein, D. D., writes this encouraging word which is much appreciated: "I congratulate you upon the improved condition of THE CHRISTIAN SUN which you have made, and wish THE SUN continued and abundant success.

—Our sermon this week is taken from The Christian Herald, of New York, and is upon a topic near and dear to the hearts of SUN readers—The Right of Private Judgment, one of our cardinal principles, and though delivered by Rev. D. H. Steffens, of the Lutheran church, sounds as if delivered by a pastor in some of our Christian pulpits. If every SUN reader will go through the sermon to the last line, untold grace will be accomplished thereby.

—If the ministers who have been at Conference and have pledged to secure a number of new subscribers to THE SUN, will begin at once, they will find the task easy and the work quickly done. Rev. L. I. Cox's Conference apportioned to his field 20 of these new subscribers. His Conference was in session last week. At his first appointment last Sunday he secured eight. That is the way to get at it.

—Rev. L. F. Johnson, 27 Hardy Ave., Norfolk, Va., in sending a new subscriber to THE SUN, gives the following word of cheer as to the number of new subscribers allotted by his Conference to his church to raise: "I am going to get the five new subscribers requested for our church. I hope every church will respond to your liberal call and that the list may be greatly increased. My heart is with you in your great undertaking."

—Rev. D. P. Barrett, our missionary to Porto Rico, now on furlough, delighted a large congregation from the Elon College pulpit at the 11 o'clock hour Sunday. Brother Barrett graduated from Elon in the class of '99 and with the exception of a year at Vanderbilt University has been in Porto Rico ever since. He has done a splendid work in these years, and has grown into a man of earnestness, consecration and power. The story of his work and experiences in Porto Rico was heard by his Elon audience with rapt attention, and we feel sure the same will result in great good.

—Rev. E. M. Carter has been called to the work at Rose Hill, Columbus, Ga., and is doing the work there, but his physician says that owing to the condition of his throat he must not take full work. Bro. Carter is anxious to get in touch with a live pastor who could give his full time to this work. He writes: "The work is in much better condition than it has been before, and with the proper man at the head, I think, in course of time it will be a good work. I don't want the work to suffer, and have told the folks that I would look after it till some one else is secured, if not too long."

—Rev. M. T. Morrill, D. D., Foreign Mission Secretary, Dayton, Ohio, gave an illustrated lecture on Japan Saturday evening, and another on Porto Rico Sunday evening, in the chapel at Elon College, to large audiences. Dr. Morrill has visited both Japan and Porto Rico and brought with him the views which he exhibits by use of the stereopticon, and gives first hand information of untold value and interest. These lectures show the work the Christians are doing, and we have not occasion to be ashamed of that which has been done. We are not doing half enough. That is the greatest pity of it all. But Dr. Morrill's lectures are full of first hand fact and information such as is most needed. Our people will do more for missions when they know more about missions: and these lectures afford information of the very best kind and that which will stick.

PHILOLOGIAN ANNUAL ENTERTAINMENT

We gratefully acknowledge receipt of the following invitation: "The Philologist Literary Society of Elon College requests the honor of our presence at its Fifteenth Annual Entertainment, Thursday evening, November twenty-seventh, nineteen hundred and thirteen, eight o'clock, College Auditorium."

The following is the program for this occasion:

Oration - - - - -	Joseph D. Franks
College Cuts - - - - -	Herbert H. Barber
Oration - - - - -	Ben E. Wilkins
Humor - - - - -	William H. Gray

DEBATE

Query: Resolved, That North Carolina should provide an income for the maintenance of a real university so that within ten years' time it should be five hundred thousand dollars annually.

AFFIRMATIVE	NEGATIVE
Paul V. Parks	Robert F. Brown
Hilbrie S. Smith	William L. Kinney
President, J. Frank Morgan
Secretary, M. Clebon Barbee

MARSHALS

Walter B. Fuller, Chief	Hollis E. Atkinson
Samuel B. McCauley	Henry M. Neese

What we want is to feel that God knows what happens to us, and is with us while it happens, and loves us steadily and tenderly through it all.—Dr. Henry Van Dyke.

CHURCH NEWS

ENIGMA, GEORGIA

As I have not seen anything from Enigma, I want to write a few lines. I feel it my duty to write a report from our Missionary Society. We have thirty-six members, and have been organized something over a year. We feel that we have not been as successful as we might have been if we had been more zealous. There seems to be an epidemic of excuses when we ask numbers of our good women to share in this great work. Some insist that they do not believe in missions. How can a woman be opposed to foreign missions when the gospel of Christ has been the means of lifting her from degradation? How gladly she should do what she can in sending the glad tidings to those groping in darkness!

But women have always been most active workers in the spread of the gospel. There is no place where their influence is felt to better advantages than in the church. In Matt. 28:7 we find the angelic message to the women at the empty tomb of the risen Lord, "Go quickly and tell his disciples," and they ran to bring his disciples word; and as they went, they saw Jesus, who said to them, "Fear not, go tell." Obedient to the divine command, these women and others with them, labored together to spread the glad tidings. Ever since then the Lord has been making use of women as well as men in his work of salvation, and often He has pointed out the way where a woman's hand and voice and sympathy have been able to help and rescue as a man could not.

As to our society here, we do not realize all that we can do. Here in the needy places of the homeland, and in the foreign field, doors are opening, hands are beckoning, and voices calling; calling us to personal service for our Lord and Master. Let me tell you what our missionaries are doing.

They are preaching the gospel, they are teaching in schools, they are training Bible women, ministering to the purifying of the home, and caring for the sick and suffering. We know these facts, but we must admit that there is a general and deplorable indifference amongst us. If we should continue to trace the indifference, we would find that the cause lies with the individual; but let us come closer home and examine ourselves. Are you and I really, vitally, interested in the salvation of the ones with whom we come in contact? Our neighbors, friends, acquaintances, and even the heathen across the seas? Did not Christ die to redeem their souls as well as yours and mine?

Christians, Baptists and Methodists are all in one society and divide the proceeds, and all seem to work in unity. Why not? We are all God's children, all trying to reach one heaven.
FANNIE J. PATRICK.

THE KIND OF MAN THE WORLD WANTS

In The American Magazine Ray Stannard Baker, writing about Colonel Goethals, the builder of the Panama Canal, reports Colonel Goethals as saying:

"The world today is above all else a practical world and it demands results. What it is looking for is men who can and will do things. It is recorded of Lord Kitchener that, when during the South African campaign a subordinate officer reported to him a failure to obey orders and gave reasons therefor, he said to him: 'Your reasons for not doing it are the best I ever heard; now go and do it!' That is what the world demands today."

THE RIGHT OF PRIVATE JUDGMENT

A Sermon by PASTOR D. H. STEFFENS of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, Baltimore, Md.

TEXT: "Ye shall know them by their fruits." Matt. 7: 16

PERHAPS the most hateful thing about Protestantism in the eyes of Rome is its insistence upon what is commonly called the "right of private judgment." In his Faith of Our Fathers, His Eminence, James, Cardinal Gibbons devotes five whole chapters to his argument against this principle. Rome is willing to forgive us anything but that. The most heinous offense, the most damnable sacrilege of Protestantism is its persistent refusal to humbly recognize the infallible authority of the supreme pontiff, and its insistence upon the right and duty of every individual Christian to know and beware of false prophets.

It is, therefore, of greatest importance that the words of our text were by the Lord of the church addressed, not to the chosen twelve, but to all who heard his Sermon on the Mount. They are thus a recognition of the supreme dignity and sacred responsibility of the individual, whose eternal destiny depends upon his own personal attitude toward the truth. When Christ says: "Ye shall know them by their fruits," he puts the judgment of their prophets into the hands of the people who hear their preaching. He confers upon them the "right of private judgment."

To urge that a congregation of Christian believers or an individual Christian must give up this sacred right and, without question, humbly accept whatever some minister may choose to preach; blindly follow wherever some minister may choose to lead, and unhesitatingly obey whatever some minister may choose to command, is to urge a principle as pernicious as it is false.

I say "false," because our Lord, when he urges his Christians to "beware of false prophets" and to "know them by their fruits," distinguishing the true from the false or untrue, beyond all question raises his people up to the throne of judgment, places the scales of truth in their hands and requires them to exercise their God-given "right of private judgment." I say "pernicious," because as "the just shall live by his faith," so, in things pertaining to our salvation, we may not, we dare not place any dependence upon mere human power or authority. Can any man die for me? Can any man be my advocate with God? Can any man be my substitute in his judgment? Are we not individually accountable to our Maker for our faith and deeds? How then dare we build our faith upon the authority of men and rest our hope of salvation upon their pretended authority or works?

EQUALITY BEFORE GOD

Before God, all men stand upon a perfect level. "There is no difference: for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." "For God hath concluded them all in unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all." The new birth of water and the Spirit replaces both the imperial purple of an emperor and the rags of a beggar with the spotless robe of Christ's righteousness, clothing all alike with the garment of salvation. Human wisdom, virtue, holiness and keenness of mind decide nothing in things divine. Before God, human wisdom is foolishness; human righteousness, sin; and keenness of intellect, folly. To enter the kingdom of God, a philosopher must become as a little child and a little child must be endowed with wisdom from on high. It therefore follows that all are alike pledged to know the truth which alone can make us free; and, knowing the truth, to prove all things, keeping that which is good and rejecting that which is evil.

Accordingly, we see the holy apostles commending the Bereans for trying their teaching by the infallible rule of the divine Word, "searching the Scriptures daily whether these things," spoken to them by the inspired messengers of God, "were so." Instead of this being resented as a questioning of their authority, these people are commended by Paul and his fellow laborers for thus exercising their "right of private judgment." "Beloved," says St. John to the people who attended upon his preaching, "believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God: because many false prophets are gone out into the world." We find St. Paul, who upon occasion could emphatically assert his apostolic authority, urging the exercise of this privilege and duty upon that very congregation, which he had founded, nurtured and enriched in the knowledge of Christian faith; for, speaking to the believers of Corinth, he says: "I speak as to wise men; judge ye what I say."

Plainly, it is God's will that you should exercise this right and privilege. "One is your Master, even Christ." You are to bow down before no other authority. You are to suffer no human will to lord it over your conscience. You are to submit to no majority rule in questions of doctrine. Doctrines are not decided nor truths fixed by majority votes. You are to receive no human teaching, no human book, no human resolution, without first proving it by the Word of God. As you would save your soul alive by coming to a knowledge of the truth, you cannot, you dare not give up this most precious thing, your God-given "right of private judgment."

"Ye shall know them," says our Lord, "by their fruits." Here is a privilege conferred and a direction laid down. What does he mean by the "fruits" of a prophet?

THE FRUITS OF A PROPHET

The usual answer to this question is that the teaching of men is judged by their personal character, the soundness of a creed by the concrete life which accompanies it, the character of a prophet by the virtues which adorn his walk and conversation. Certainly, this interpretation is not borne out by experience. There have been apostles of soul-destroying error whose lives were models of sweetness and purity. On the other hand, teachers have appeared whose utterances were in most perfect accord with the revealed truth, but whose lives belied and discredited their doctrines.

Another interpretation, similar to this, is also full of practical difficulties. It is claimed that our Lord means by "their fruits" the moral results of a prophet's teachings upon his hearers. This rendering robs the Savior's words of all present force. The practical results or fruits of error are often a long time in ripening. They may not appear for years, but as the harvest of truth requires "long patience" on the part of husbandman.

Surely, the specific fruit of a prophet is what comes from his lips, or his teaching. A false prophet may be known by his teaching. John therefore says: "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God: because many false prophets are gone out into the world. Hereby know ye the Spirit of God: Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God: and every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God." What is this but saying in other words: "Ye shall know them by their fruits," their confession or teaching concerning Christ. As he confesses him, he is a true prophet, for "to him give all the prophets witness, that through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins." As our Lord says in the words immediately following our text: "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." Ay, verily, "And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son and believeth on him, may have everlasting life, and I will raise him up at the last day." But where is the truth of Christ to be found? "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me."

Our judgments of our prophets and their fruits or teaching must be based upon the divinely inspired, infallible Word of God. As it squares with that, it is correct. As it fails to square with that, it is false.

Do we permit a judge to arbitrarily pronounce judgment according to his own convictions of right? Or do we insist that he base his judgment upon the statute books of the State in which he holds office? Do we permit a jury to arbitrarily render a verdict according to its own notions of right? Or do we insist that it be charged and instructed in order that its judgment may conform to the law?

If this is done in the everyday affairs of this present life, must it not also be done in the things of the life to come? If we are to know false prophets by the fruits of their lips, distinguishing truth from error, belief from unbelief, righteousness from unrighteousness, light from darkness, Christ from Belial, must we not base our judgment upon God's eternal revelation of truth, the holy Scriptures, which are alone able to make us wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus? Not our personal opinions or convictions, not congregational resolutions or synodical decrees, but the Word of Truth, is to have rule in Christ's Church. "God standeth in the congregation of the mighty; he judgeth among the gods." Do you ask how? "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son." Peter therefore admonishes us: "If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God." As he does that, so will he be a true prophet, declaring "the whole counsel of God." As he fails or refuses to do that, so will he be a false prophet, corrupting the Word of God.

"Ye shall know them," says Christ. I have no choice in this matter. My eternal destiny depends upon my personal attitude to the truth. I must exercise my right of judgment, based upon the Word of truth. "Ye shall know them by their fruits"—their teaching or doctrine.

THE FUNDAMENTAL WORD

This then is the fundamental principle of the Reformation: that God's Word is the sole and absolute authority and rule of faith and of life in the Church of God—a principle so fundamental that without it there would have been no Reformation. The reformers knew where their strength lay. They felt that what had redeemed them could alone redeem the church. They saw that, under God, their ability to sustain his cause depended on his Word. When the great princes and free cities of our church at Augsburg in 1530 laid their Confession of Faith before the emperor and estates civil and ecclesiastical of the Holy Roman Empire, they said: "We offer the confession of the faith held by the pastors and preachers in our several estates, and the confession of our own faith, as drawn from the Holy Scriptures, the pure Word of God." In all lands where the great battle of the Reformation was victoriously fought, the Bible furnished banner, armor and arms.

Rome knew this then as it knows it today. All its insistence upon the principle of ecclesiastical authority, papal primacy, supremacy and infallibility, all its bitter enmity against this God-given right of private judgment is at root a wilful, malicious antagonism to the Word of God, of which it is said: "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." It is giving the lie to Him who said to every Christian: "Beware of false prophets." "Ye shall know them by their fruits."

Rome with specious argument asks Protestantism to give up that sacred right. It asked the same thing of Martin Luther at Worms. He needed, Rome urged, but to say one word: Revoco, I revoke. Shall I remind you of his reply: "Unless I be refuted by Scriptural testimonies, or by clear arguments—for I believe neither the Pope nor the councils alone, since it is manifest that they often erred and contradicted one another—I am convinced by the passages of Scripture which I have cited, and my conscience is bound in the Word of God: I cannot and I will not recant anything; since it is neither prudent nor safe to do aught against one's conscience. Here I stand; I can do no other. God help me. Amen."

No man can call himself truly Protestant without saying the same thing. As he would prize the Word of God, obey his Lord and Master Jesus Christ, keep the testimony of a good conscience, preserve his liberty in things spiritual as in things temporal, he must insist upon his right of private judgment. He can do no other. God help him! Amen.—The Christian Herald.

SOME IMPRESSIONS OF THE HELPFULNESS OF ELON COLLEGE TO THE METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH

For some time we have been discussing through our Methodist Protestant papers the advantages of church union with the United Brethren Church. We have been reading the articles on both sides, and are convinced that there are advantages to be reaped in the future from such a union as this. But while this is true and while we are meditating on future benefits, we sometimes forget the forces that are at work at present for the betterment and uplift of our beloved church and for the advancement of the Master's kingdom.

It is the purpose here to call attention to some of the forces at work in this direction, and especially to an institution that is working quietly, modestly, but yet surely for the progress of our beloved Zion.

At present there are eight young men in Elon College preparing for the ministry in the Methodist Protestant Church in the North Carolina district. These eight young men are receiving their tuition free of all cost and a number of them are finding a way by which they may make a good part of their other expenses while they are students here. In the matter of the tuition alone, Elon College is giving four hundred dollars annually to the Methodist Protestant Church. She is doing this with no other purpose in view except to be a means in God's hands in spreading His kingdom throughout the earth. She expects no returns except the consciousness of duty well done.

These young men preparing for the ministry are noble fellows. They will be heard from in the coming years. One of them represents his Society in the annual Thanksgiving debate, and he is also on the Junior and Senior debate between these classes. In the selection of men for prominent positions and places of honor and trust, members of the Methodist Protestant Church have exactly the same chance as any other person. Manhood and womanhood count here, and the student who is faithful is sure to win out in college honors. Our M. P. men and women are making good, and are winning honors here. The superintendent of the magnificent College Sunday school is a Methodist Protestant.

Then there are four young men here who are the sons of our M. P. ministers. They are doing good work and are honored and respected both by the faculty and students of the College. These also receive free literary tuition, and besides our Church is given a full professor on the teaching staff of the College.

In addition to this, there are twenty-eight other students here, all members of the Methodist Protestant Church. These with the others mentioned make a total of forty students who are from our own church.

As a Methodist Protestant myself, I feel that we have a right to be proud of this goodly number of young men and women who are here under Christian influences, seeking knowledge in an institution where the principles of true Christianity are taught and inculcated, and doing their best to prepare themselves thoroughly and equip themselves with all the necessary knowledge and Christian character that will make our lives tell for their church both in the pulpit and in the pew and elevate the standard of citizenship in our old North State.

When we as Methodist Protestants send our sons to our universities, we have no assurance that they will come back as earnest representatives of their father's faith. As one of them here, the writer feels that Elon College is and will always be faithful to her trust. A student who comes here as a Methodist Protestant will go away with his faith strengthened, his character broadened and deepened, and his mind thoroughly trained, and a Methodist Protestant still. Not one of our students here has ever lost his religion or joined any other church.

This is one of the silent forces working quietly and smoothly day by day and year by year for our church and asking no other recognition than the consciousness of duty faithfully done. As a member of this Church, I feel that we as a church are honored and strengthened because of the fact that Elon College exists, and she is at all times ready to extend a helping hand to any and all inquiring after knowledge, truth, and Christian character.

A METHODIST PROTESTANT WHO IS HERE.
Elon College, N. C.

Carry forgiveness into your life, and remember that a chip of remembrance sometimes becomes a log of remorse. Try to forget the evil and remember the good.

DR. MARTYN SUMMERBELL'S BOOK HIGHLY COMMENDED

Dr. Summerbell's latest book, which, by the way, is not to be latest very long now, since another is already on the press, is meeting with favorable comment at the hands of intelligent editors and reviewers—a fact which those who have read the volume will readily understand.

A most amusing incident in connection with this is that the Disciple people have claimed him, his book, and the audiences before whom he delivered the addresses composing the book, and particularly is this amusing in view of the concluding chapter, which gives the history of our own people in such convincing fashion. They have a way, however, of claiming everything that is good—for which reason they claim us, and so this latest claim is their delicate method of telling Dr. Summerbell that his book is good. I doubt, however, if he relishes the fellowship they thus extend him. Here is the review in question, taken from the Chicago Advance: "The President of Starkey College gathers into this volume (Religion in College Life) a dozen sermons delivered by him at different times in his own and other Colleges and before denominational gatherings of the Disciples." A case this of the lamb lying down with the wolf, with the lamb on the inside.

The genuine appreciation accorded the book by the Reformed Church Messenger, of Philadelphia, is in striking, fraternal contrast with this. In one of its recent issues we read:

"By a sort of instinct, this author seems to know the needs of college life, and with a mind overflowing with winsomeness, finds truth everywhere in the Bible to meet it. It is seldom that a book of sermons to young men preserves such a high plane all through. It would be a shame for any body of young students not to have given the closest attention to these counsels from such a master of college assemblies. The last sermon, which is purely denominational, while eschewing the name, is excusable even though it hardly comports with the remainder of the volume. The reader will rise from the study of these sermons with the consciousness that the only salvation for American colleges is a fuller apprehension of the Gospel of the Son of God, without which all knowledge is a blinding flame which destroys everything that it touches. This Gospel, when properly presented, will attract the growing mind of eager young men, and give direction to that wider outlook of life which necessarily follows those studies which constitute a college curriculum. It should find a place in every college library, be heartily commended by the professors of the institution."

It is refreshing to find that our own high estimate of this really uplifting book is borne out by other and disinterested parties. The book is meeting with a ready sale and should be owned by all our brethren who can spare the dollar. Orders may be sent to the Fleming H. Revell Co., New York City, the publishers, or to the Christian Publishing Association, Dayton, Ohio, or to the Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

W. A. HARPER.

PROTESTANTISM AND CHILDREN

To the Editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN:

An editorial note in THE CHRISTIAN SUN of November 5 begins by saying: "If Protestants understood, as do Catholics, the worth of children, and in like measure emphasized this worth, Protestantism would be gaining in numbers, prestige and power more rapidly than it is." This is certainly true. As an opponent and friend of Catholicism, in one of the most Catholic cities in the United States, I wish to

(Continued on page 10)

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER

Some years ago I visited a woman who was shut in because of age and infirmity. She was not solely dependent, but accepted small gifts without embarrassment. I visited her one day, remained a short time, and had prayer without leaving a "nickel" in her hand. I had not been gone from the house but a short time till a neighbor woman, who was a member of our church, went to see the same woman to carry a tray of something nice to eat, which she frequently did in the spirit of Christian kindness. While there she said to the woman: "Dr. Staley was in to see you a while ago, wasn't he?" In a gruff voice she replied: "Yes, he was in here and made a little prayer about that long (measuring on a joint of her finger.) I could have done as good myself." If I had placed a nickel in her hand when I departed her remark would have been different. This incident, and the teaching of this age by so many good people, leads me to say a few words on "nickel-plated prayers."

I have no word of criticism against charity that takes the form of material gifts for human necessity. It is clearly taught in the Scriptures, prompted by kind human feelings, and commends itself to the sanction of all intelligent people; but when material assistance obscures real sympathy and spiritual interest, it fails to accomplish the end for which it was designed by Jesus. Charity, expressed in terms of food, clothing, fuel, medicine or money is the product of Christianity and not Christianity. Feeding the five thousand was not the only thing, nor the largest thing, Jesus did for men; forgiving the woman who was a sinner, was even greater.

Just what that woman thought, when she felt that the prayer was nothing without a nickel, is what is actually taught by many in our day. By so much as this principle is taught the church is discounted in the mind of the unthinking and the unbelieving. There are so many charity and benevolent organizations in this age that emphasize the practical in religion to the exclusion of the spiritual, that spirituality is fading out, in many places, from the life even of the church. They accept the gift and ignore the giver. Carried to its ultimate, this would render Christ useless in salvation. Charity saves no souls. Charity makes no converts. Charity adds no members to the church. Charity cleanses no sins away. There is no salvation without cleansing by the blood of Christ. It leads to this, that many people give their money for charity and consider that they have done what God requires. "Though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing." Real charity, prompted by love, profits the benefactor and the beneficiary alike; and this kind is prompted only by the spirit of true love, which is of God. The slightest observation shows that parents may spoil their children by giving them too much money; but they might give them something more valuable. The money the prodigal's father gave him was not half so valuable to him as the kiss he pressed upon his lips, when he came home in rags. Peter was right when he said: "Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have, give I unto thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk." What many people need is a new spirit and not bread.

The age needs a return to spiritual worship, heart-cleansing, a closer walk with God. Prayers may be good without coin. "Nickel-plated" prayers are not necessarily the prayers that bless mankind—they may bless the body while they do not reach the soul. Statesmanship rests on principles; politics rests on cash; and all true charity rests on Jesus Christ and His gospel. The poor man's prayer may be as good as the rich man's money. "Nickel-plated" prayers are not the only prayers that reach the throne of God and the hearts of men. The exercise of genuine religion does not rest on the ability to render financial aid. No true prayer is too short to reach the throne. There is no long-distance approach to God. "The word is nigh thee, even in thy heart and in thy mouth." You have only to open the door to let the sunshine in. It is all about you, and so is God's presence and His love. The poor old mother, who lives on her son, can offer prayers that will bless his life beyond the wealth of the world. She may never enter an earthly palace nor see an earthly throne, but she lives near the throne of God and will one day wear a royal robe.

W. W. STALEY.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION. Eastern Virginia Conference.

PRESENTED BY CHAIRMAN, W. W. STALEY.

The tendency in modern schools is toward Christian education. College Y. M. C. A.'s; the Student Volunteer movement; Social Service work; and the civic demand for men of character in office; all emphasize this tendency. In fact, Christian civilization cannot maintain its achievements nor make progress without the aid of Christian education. The schools that foster this type of education must, eventually, rank first as institutions of learning; and this will be the test rather than endowments and large student bodies.

Your committee has only two phases of education weighing heavily upon its heart, if a committee may be allowed a heart. It is, at least, composed of men who are sensitive to the education of young ministers and the progress of the church college.

The education of Candidates for the ministry has never been fully solved, though there have been schools of the prophets from the time of Elisha to the present. Gilgal, Bethel, and Jericho were Theological schools when Elijah and Elisha made their last journey beyond Jordan; but, evidently, many of these students never attained to distinction; but the schools turned out some great teachers. It is the same today: "many are called, but few are chosen." This, however, must not discourage those who aid in this necessary and praiseworthy work.

Elon College continues to grow and the church has surprised herself by the phenomenal development of this young institution. Elon had no traditions to impede her progress, was free to seize modern plans of equipment and modern methods of instruction and discipline, and has thus kept abreast of the most up-to-date colleges. She was launched on the edge of a financial depression of long duration; struggled through those years with heroic faith and endeavor; and emerged from that crisis to enjoy the revival of prosperity and of learning. Schooled to hardship in her childhood, she has strength in her youth, and the prospect of a long life of usefulness.

Dr. Harper and his twenty-one co-helpers form a Faculty of educated and consecrated men and women successful in their field of service.

The co-educational feature is in harmony with all modern movements in American society, and two decades have demonstrated the cultural advantages of educating young men and young women together. In Biblical thought, they are not separate, but complements; and, therefore, cannot be fully educated apart. The argument for co-education rests on the facts of creation, the family institution, the needs of humanity, and the efficiency of society. We, therefore, commend the needs of Elon College to the loyal and liberal support of the churches, and to liberal-hearted individuals of means as a point of worthy investment that will perpetuate their names and their usefulness.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH, "BERKLEY" NORFOLK

The interest in church work at the First Church is on the increase. We have an active membership. Much faithful service has been rendered during the past two months. A successful revival has been conducted. Results, about twenty-five professions. Many valuable members received. The Conference collections have been received in full and paid to the treasurer of the Conference, and our church placed on the banner list. The preacher has been pounded with almost every good thing to eat and other things useful. It is a sort of never ending pounding. Good things have been coming to the pastorium almost every day since we moved in,—coal, wood, flour, meat, potatoes, lard, apples, cereals, oysters, coffee, sugar, and the good people are greatly pleased over the success they have made of the pounding. They wanted it to be a good one, a big one. Their hopes have been fully realized.

Our people are well pleased with the new pastorium, and are working hard to pay for same. One of our liberal members, Brother John Cuthrell, furnished us the money to pay for the building. We will pay him as the money comes in for the purpose. Our auxiliary society has already made a cash donation of three hundred dollars for this purpose. We expect to pay for the pastorium and afterward improve our church property. We need more room for Sunday school, but will have to wait a while for the much needed improvements. The Lord is with us, and we believe in His name we will get all that we pray and work for. Every department of our church is well organized and active. Why not get anything we may need in the bounds of reason?

We believe in THE CHRISTIAN SUN and will make a faithful effort to get our full share of the new subscribers called for by our faithful Editor, who is a warm friend of our church.

Mr. W. H. Heard, Secretary of the Southern Produce Company, has united with our church and has been elected a member of our Business Board. Brother Heard is a successful business man, and will be a valuable addition to the board.

We are now engaged to preach several Sunday evening sermons to the young people. We had a splendid audience last Sunday evening for the first sermon in the series. May the Lord give us wisdom, that the opportunity with the young people may be improved, and that a helpful word to them may be spoken.

We plan to hold a Thanksgiving service and receive an offering for the Christian Orphanage.

Sincerely,
L. F. JOHNSON, Pastor.

GULPH MILLS, PA., LETTER

Last week was filled with unusual interest about the Gulph Mills Church. Monday evening the Board of Trustees met at the church, and at the same hour the Teacher Training Class met at the parsonage. On Tuesday evening the West Conshohocken Ministerial Association met with us at the parsonage, and at the same hour the Square Deal Bible Class held a Christy Donation Social in the Sunday school rooms of the church for the benefit of Christy hospital, Norristown, Pa. About $25 in free-will offerings was realized for that institution.

Wednesday evening our usual mid-week praise service was held. On Thursday evening the Men's Bible Class held a special service to which they invited the public. The auditorium was filled, including the aisles and other vacant spaces filled with chairs. The meeting was addressed by Dr. Huey of West Philadelphia, who spoke on "Life in Libby and Andersonville Prisons in the Sixties." He recited some of his personal experiences as a prisoner in both of these institutions, and displayed a drawing showing the location of different departments and indicating the location of the tunnel dug with an iron spoon, clam shells, and piece of spittoon, and through which a number of prisoners escaped. It was intensely interesting, especially to one of Southern sensibilities and pride. After the address Mr. Jas. Wilfong, a veteran of the G. A. R., was called to the stand and gave an excellent recitation for a man of his age and experience. Special music added to the occasion. At the conclusion of the exercises the audience was invited to the church basement, where all were served to hot coffee, sandwiches and cream. Neighbors shook hands, held pleasant conversation, church workers discussed plans and methods for more efficient work, and it was evident that the occasion was a factor in the cultivation of friendliness and sociability in the community and church life. I know that some will criticize this feature, but results speak for themselves and the same conditions do not obtain in all communities alike, nor will the same methods work. I was recently at Newark, N. J., where I met a very pleasant business man, and not knowing that I was a Southerner, found occasion to remark on Southern people, which he did as follows: "Oh, those folks down there haven't any sense anyhow." We continued the pleasant conversation for a few minutes, and when I gave him my hand, had said "Good bye," and expressed pleasure in meeting him, said, "I am from the South." Imagine the expression, if you can, that played over his face as I turned away for my train. It may be counted rude of me, but I felt that I could not resist the temptation.

I am expecting to begin a series of revival services soon, and will begin cottage prayer meetings next week in different sections of our congregation, in place of the Bible Conference which had to go by because we could not secure the necessary help.

Attendance at church yesterday was good for a rainy day. Friends of the Lighbournes at Dover, Del., will be pleased to learn that Dr. Lightbourne's son, Victor Lightbourne, a bright and talented young man, has entered the evangelistic field. We hope soon to hear him preach here. More later.

MURDOCK W. BUTLER.

MEN OF THE EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE, ATTENTION!

The pastors and laymen of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference cannot afford to miss the United Missionary Campaigns to be held this month within our conference. There are five within our borders and we must have strong delegations from all our churches at some of these two-day conventions. The convention begins on the evening of the first day and continues the next day and evening, making two nights and one day in each city. They are as follows: Newport News, November 23, 24; Norfolk, November 25, 26; Portsmouth, November 27, 28; Suffolk, November 30, December 1.

There will be a strong team of speakers at each convention. You cannot afford to miss any session of the convention. The city press in each convention city gives much information about the meeting, and you will do well to watch the announcements each day from now until the convention. We want every one of our churches to send a good delegation to one of the conventions.

J. E. WEST, Suffolk,
WARREN H. DENISON, Norfolk.

THE CHRISTIAN MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION

The Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Conference will meet at the Memorial Temple, Norfolk, Va., Tuesday, December 9, 1913, at 10 A. M. There will be two sessions, morning and afternoon. All members attending the meeting can return on the evening trains. We would indeed be glad to see a larger part of our membership present, as it will take such a small portion of their valuable time. It will do the busiest person in our membership good to take that day from their work and put it in a definite way in the work of the Lord.

There has been a decided increase in our membership during the year. Already, over thirty new members have been secured, and we are trusting that others will come in at the meeting of the association. Are there not twenty others that will take memberships in the association? It would be gratifying to have an increase of fifty this year. There are churches, Sunday schools, Missionary societies, Aid societies, etc., and individuals that ought to have memberships in the association. You ought to rally to the work of the Lord and help in pushing it forward. You are needed. The work suffers when we fail to do our duty. The cause demands our best service and the devotion of our means to its upbuilding.

J. W. HARRELL, President.

WINCHESTER LETTER

Nothing of special importance has taken place at the Winchester church since my last letter. The following amounts have been received on the debt:

Reported	$7,180.93
W. A. Larrick	1.00
L. S. Johnson	5.00
Albert Larrick	.25
R. A. Larrick	2.00
G. W. Morris	5.00
R. C. Norfleet	5.00
Leaksville Sunday school	5.00
J. W. West	4.00
Col. Robt. F. Leedy	1.00
Rev. H. Russell Clem	1.00
J. R. Holland	1.00
B. L. Nichols	4.00
Dr. C. W. McPherson	1.00
Dr. J. W. Manning	1.00
Mrs. J. W. Manning	1.00
R. Roy Hosaflook	5.05
A. R. Hosaflook	5.05
Mrs. Mary E. Clem	1.00
Dr. N. G. Newman	1.00
Mrs. W. T. Walters	1.00
Rev. Jno. Blood	2.00
Mrs. Margaret Herrell	1.00
Rev. C. H. Scholefield	1.00
Jas. P. Montgomery	1.00
Ladies' Aid Society	4.35
Rev. W. G. Clements	2.00
W. C. Perry	2.00
Mrs. Mary E. Rolston	1.00
Mrs. A. H. Liskey	1.00
Miss Mabel Liskey	1.00
Total	$7,247.63

Notices have been sent to nearly all who have subscribed and we are thankful to the ones who have responded. If we could have a prompt response from all, it would be a great help to the local church in a reduction of interest. The way is still open for new subscriptions and cash contributions.

W. T. WALTERS.

November 13, 1913.

WADLEY, ALABAMA, LETTER

My Dear Brother:

New Harmony Christian church, of which I am pastor, was destroyed by fire yesterday. Not long since the public school building, which occupied a part of the church ground, was burned and the school was using the church temporarily. Both fires originated from defective flues. The church was easily worth $1,000 or $1,200, and the school building can't be duplicated for less than $600 or more. Will be forced to rebuild at the earliest date possible.

Yours,
G. O. LANKFORD.

November 11, 1913.

WE MUST CONTINUE IN LOVE WITH LIBERTY

This is not America because it is rich. This is not America because it has set up for a great population great opportunities of material prosperity. America is a name which sounds in the ears of men everywhere as a synonym of individual opportunity, because it is a synonym of individual liberty.

I would rather belong to a poor nation that was free than to a rich nation that had ceased to be in love with liberty. But we shall not be poor if we love liberty, because the nation that loves liberty truly sets every man free to do his best and be his best, and that means the release of all the splendid energies of a great people who think for themselves. A nation of employes cannot be free any more than a nation of employers can be.

So, in emphasizing the points which must unite us in sympathy and in spiritual interest with the Latin-American people, we are only emphasizing the points of our life, and we should prove ourselves untrue to our own traditions if we prove ourselves untrue friends today. Do not think, therefore, gentlemen, that questions of the day are mere questions of policy and diplomacy. They are shot through with the principles of life. We dare not turn from the principle that morality and not expediency is the thing that must guide us, and that we will never condone inequity because it is most convenient to do so.

So it seems to me that this is a day of infinite hope, of confidence in a future greater than the past has been. For I am fain to believe that in spite of all things that we wish to correct, the nineteenth century has brought us a long stage toward the time when, slowly ascending the tedious climb that leads to the final uplands, we shall get the ultimate view of the beauties of mankind, and presently, it may be a generation or two, come out upon those great heights where there shines, unobstructed, the light of the justice of God.—President Wilson at Mobile, Ala., Oct. 27, 1913.

LEARNING TO ENJOY LIFE

It is wanting too much, not having too little, that often makes us miserable. As Dr. van Dyke has said, "For the most part our distress, our poverty, our carking care come, not from the smallness of our provisions, but the largeness of our pampered desires." A thousand dollars looks very small to the man who wants ten thousand; yet there is real provision for many needs in the thousand. We can never get the full enjoyment from what we have until we turn our attention heartily to it, and away from what we have not.—S. S. Times.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: NOVEMBER 23

Subject: "Joshua, the New Leader." Text:
Joshua 1: 1-9.

In accordance with the divine plan for the salvation of fallen man, the chosen race, from which should come the Lamb of God to take away the sin of the world, in the process of discipline and instruction, was led by Moses out of Egypt to the plains of Moab. The purpose of this lesson is to tell how Joshua, Moses' successor, was divinely commissioned for his great calling.

After the death of Moses the Israelites spent the full time of mourning for a great man—thirty days. The Jordan was crossed on the first month (March or April, according to the variations in the positions of the sun and moon). The year is given by Professor Beecher as B. C. 1459, and other dates by other scholars.

To Joshua's original name, Hoshea (Hosea) meaning salvation, was afterwards added "Je" for "Jehovah," making it Jehoshea, shortened to "Joshua," meaning "Jehovah saves." "Jesus" is the Greek form of this name.

Joshua was of the tribe of Ephraim, therefore a descendant of Joseph. He was about 83 years old at this time. He was one of the commanders in the battle with the Amalekites soon after the crossing of the Red Sea, when Aaron and Hur held up the hands of Moses. He was one of the twelve spies sent to report upon Canaan, and only he and Caleb made an encouraging report.

The boundaries of the promised land were the wilderness, or southern desert reaching to Sinai; the Lebanon mountains in Southern Syria, then called the land of the Hittites, the Euphrates on the East and the Mediterranean sea on the West. The Israelites enjoyed all this territory only under David and Solomon, and later under Uzziah and Jereboam II.

Object Lessons

A recipe book and a Bible. (Show the recipe book first.) This book has recipes for good bread, good cakes, good pies. But the success of the cook depends on following the recipes perfectly. (Now show Bible open at the Book of Joshua.) This book has recipes for happiness, goodness, peace. And yet we can have these only by following the recipes perfectly. The word "success" is used just once in this Bible of ours, and the rule for securing it is plainly told in today's lesson. Anyone who will follow this rule cannot fail to achieve success.

A guidebook or a map. What do people use guidebooks and maps for? When travelers go on an automobile trip or other journey, over unfamiliar roads into unfamiliar places, they take great interest in studying maps and guides. We want to learn all we can about roads and conditions when going on a journey in order to make it successful and pleasant. Today's lesson tells of the guidebook Joshua was to use in leading the Israelites into Canaan.

Question Review

1. Who led Israel out of Egypt?
2. Who was to lead Israel into Canaan?
3. Who gave Moses wisdom, strength and skill to be Israel's leader?

4. How much did God offer to do for Joshua?
5. What must Joshua study in order to keep step with God?
6. How must Joshua in his own spirit and action show that God and he were partners? G. T.
7. How can we make sure of having God for our partner in any undertaking?—Leonard.

Time.—The season of Jordan's full banks, B. C. 1451 (Ussher), 1407 (Toftean). Other scholars give other dates.

Place.—Plains east of the Jordan, opposite Jericho.

Persons.—Jehovah, Joshua.

Golden Text.—Be strong and of good courage.—Joshua 1:9.

Leading Thought.—He who trusts in God may well be brave and strong.

GET THE RIGHT PERSPECTIVE

Much is being said lately about intensive farming, using every inch of space—even raising single vegetables under separate screens of glass. Remarkable results are thus obtained, but if the millions are to be fed there still must be farming on the extensive plan—thousands of acres of wheat and grain, cultivated with the aid of the best modern machinery. The same principles must be remembered in connection with the work of the Sunday school. Sometimes one phase of the service is emphasized too much, at the expense of the other. The development of character is a test of Sunday school efficiency. It is worth while for a teacher, for a whole school in fact, to use every resource to make one boy a good citizen, to fit one girl to take her true place in church, home and society. But it will never do to make this kind of service the excuse for failing to reach out after every boy and girl within the radius of the school's influence. It isn't the commercial spirit that reaches out after numbers for the Sunday school; it is the spirit of the Master who gladly took his time to talk with one lone enquirer by the wayside, and who at the same time had for his mission the redemption of the whole wide world.

NOTES ON CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC: NOVEMBER 30

Topic: "Our Church at Work for Our Own Country"
—Deuteronomy 8: 1-20.

The leader will begin his plans for this meeting in ample time to give all who are asked to take some part time for preparation. The subject should be discussed under the following heads:

1. Early churches and missionary work in the colonies.
 2. What missionary work was done in America from 1776 to 1876?
 3. Missionary work in America during the last quarter of the 19th century.
 4. A summary of the missionary work that has been done and is proposed for the 20th century.
 5. Some of the home mission heroes.
 6. Home mission work of our denomination.
- Appoint two or three to discuss each sub-head and let them have talks and papers. Some of the hardships and stories of the pioneers will prove interesting. Especially incidents in the lives of our early ministers.

Information on the Topic

In many places where preaching services are out of the question a beginning can be made with a Sunday school. In a little mining town in West Virginia where but one sermon had ever been preached, and that five years before, a Sunday school missionary organized a school, and sold two Bibles in a saloon keeper's home. In a single year seven churches grew out of schools under the care of one missionary.

By Christian efforts in behalf of the red men the churches are doing what they can to remove the great blot of our national honor caused by past dealings with them. A Comanche testifying at a meeting said: "Now we can see what Christianity does for our Indians. Now every summer they always say, 'We are going to the camp-meeting.' It is because they believe in God; that is why they do it. We are not only looking for ourselves, but are looking for the future. Our ways don't go very far. After we pass away it will be like the camp-meeting here; and the young generation, they will understand better."

The missionary schools for the colored people have trained capable teachers and preachers to be the leaders of their race. Besides the training of the mind needed for such leadership a large place is given to the industrial education that is counting for so much. One of these schools makes this statement: "As results of this industrial training we point to buildings built by student labor of brick made by student hands; young men and women finding in school-shops the way to useful occupations as carpenters, painters, blacksmiths, printers, dressmakers, milliners; graduates carrying forth from school industrial as well as moral and spiritual impulses; establishing schools that meet the needs of their communities; building homes that bespeak thrift and economy."

In an Italian church and parish house in Brooklyn are to be found a gymnasium; dispensary; penny bank; girls' guild; kindergarten; classes in sewing, dressmaking, millinery, singing and instrumental music; while a branch of a theological seminary also has quarters in the building. Many city churches are conducting in their own buildings or elsewhere like kinds of work for the foreigners around them.

The changes wrought by immigration and other causes make home missionary ground of some of our oldest communities. It is said that in Massachusetts may be found almost every form of missionary work. "The Bible woman of India has her counterpart among the Greeks of Lowell; the itinerant preacher in China is matched by our traveling Finnish missionary; the mission teacher in Japan would find herself at home in the kindergarten circle of the House of Good Will, East Boston; the missionary busy with a church building enterprise with the Cape Cod pastor who works with his Portuguese parishioners in the erection of their chapel. The multifarious work includes ministries to the strangers at the steamship docks and in the immigrant homes; visitation of hospitals, asylums, and jails; evening schools; employment agencies; boys' camps; tent missions—all these as well as the usual work of organized churches."

One of the promising steps that has been taken within a few years is the formation of the Home Missions Council. Its membership represents thirty-three societies at work for our country, including all but one of the leading denominations. By such co-operation it becomes possible to learn the needs of all parts of America and to plan to meet these in the most efficient way.

ELEMENTARY AGAIN

If you are a teacher or superintendent of scholars between the ages of three and thirteen and did not see the note on this page, issue of November 5, defining Elementary, please look it up, and when you have found it, please be gracious enough to overlook the errors in printing. Some way or other they will creep in.

And having understood that the Elementary division of a Sunday school embraces three department—Beginners, Primary and Junior—do not fail to keep clearly in mind that each of these departments stands for one or more grades, depending upon numbers. With only three scholars of Elementary age, the demand for three grades may be both imperative and immediate. For instance: say there are but three children belonging to an Elementary division (and do not think this never happens, I have seen it), one five years old, one eight, and one eleven. Teaching them the same lesson in the same way does not change the fact that they represent three distinct stages of mentality and therefore require, if the same lesson is used, each a different presentation and treatment of the lesson.

TO ELEMENTARY SUPERINTENDENTS

Our seven Southern Conferences have each a Sunday school and Christian Endeavor Convention, perhaps not in every case known by that name, but standing for the same thing. Each of these Conventions has, I presume, in keeping with the polity of the Sunday school and Christian Endeavor General Convention, a Superintendent of Elementary grades, or the equivalent. I am wanting to get the names of such officials. Having no records at hand to aid me in so doing, I have in some cases written to such Conference and Convention officials as I thought might give the desired information, but not a single response has reached me after several months of waiting. Almost one-fourth of the valuable time till next session of the Sunday school and Christian Endeavor General Convention has passed. Have we no regrets and no disposition to amend?

Will the individual who fills the place in her Sunday school Convention of Superintendent of Elementary Work, or its equivalent, report to me, at once, by personal letter, her name and address? Please do this without delay.

MRS. J. J. LINCOLN,

Secretary Department Elementary Grades,
S. S. and C. E. General Convention.

FRANKLIN CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETY ENTERTAINED

According to the suggestion of the Program Committee, our Christian Endeavor Society met in the home of one of our members Monday evening, November 10. Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Darden threw open their home and gave us a hearty welcome. Mr. Darden is our President and has shown a keen interest in the welfare of the Society. Songs were sung, prayers were offered and talks were made. Mr. W. A. Daughtry, acted as leader, and almost every one present following in some way. The subject was "The Home," and it was discussed from many standpoints. After the program, Mrs. Darden, assisted by the Social Committee, served hot chocolates and wafers and home-made candy. Some time was spent in a social way, and after singing "Home, Sweet Home," the company dispersed, every one feeling benefited and having had a pleasant time.

We feel that we have solved the "Social Problem" in our Society. So often we prepare for a social evening and the younger people whom we want to reach are conspicuous by their absence. But by having the regular meeting in a home and following this with an hour of social intercourse, in this instance, was most satisfactory.

A MEMBER.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Secty. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

REPORT OF YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE

There is only one Young People's Society in the Eastern Virginia Conference that has identified itself with the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society and that is the Girls' Missionary Society, Suffolk, Virginia.

This society was organized last March with Miss Ethel Shoop as President, a very active, enthusiastic worker. It has thirty-five members, all of whom seem very much interested in the work, and has sent to Mrs. W. H. Dick, Treasurer, dues to the amount of $25.10. We use the mite boxes and have realized from them $10.00. They are thinking now to support a girl at the Orphanage as their special work.

The meetings are held monthly. Heretofore a special program has been prepared for each meeting by a program committee. They are now planning for a mission study class and think to study some book on Porto Rico as the Santa Isabel work there is their very own.

There is a Willing Workers' Society at the Norfolk Christian Memorial Temple with a membership of forty. Mrs. H. H. Reed is superintendent.

In addition to their regular dues, which amount to $7.60, they have contributed $2.00 to the Bible Woman's Fund. They have been studying Japan for Juniors.

Franklin also has a Willing Workers' Society with a membership of twenty-five, Mrs. C. H. Rowland as Leader, and has sent to the Treasurer dues to the amount of $5.19. They have an active, interested membership, and are doing good work.

The first of October Suffolk organized a Willing Workers' Society, seventeen members with Miss Bessie Norfleet as Superintendent. Last Sunday, Windsor also organized a Willing Workers' Society. As yet these two societies are too newly born to talk, but we hope to have them very much in evidence in our next report.

The total membership of Young People and Willing Workers' Societies is 117, and the amount of dues raised by them is $37.89, all of which goes to the Santa Isabel field. Their special funds amount to $12.00.

Aside from these organizations, there are a number of Christian Endeavor Societies contributing to the support of Santa Isabel work.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE FUTURE

Not so much attention has been given the Young People's Department as it deserves because most interest has been in organizing the older women. We hope, however, that the coming year great work might be done in this Department, for we do not believe there is anything of greater importance than training the young for higher Christian service, and we think there is no better place for this training than in Missionary Societies. Boys and girls of today are men and women of tomorrow, and upon them rest the destiny of nations and the salvation of unnumbered millions.

Children under fourteen years of age should be trained in Willing Workers' Society. While the heart is tender and the life open to receive every impression, we should sow the seeds of Christian thought. Illustrate to them in story and song the principles that underlie the Christian life. Teach them of God's universal love, their responsibility to Him and what they can do to send the story of Jesus to children who have not so much as heard of Him. Willing Workers' Societies can be organized in every church if some women will only conduct them. The children are always joyously responsive to the call and quickly imbibe the training.

For those over fourteen years of age we have the Young People's Society. Appoint a Superintendent from your Woman's Society and let her continue the training, building carefully on the foundation already laid in the Willing Workers' Society. Have a Mission Study class for them that they might learn of the world's mission heroes and gain a better knowledge of the world-wide field and its need.

Advance in the Antilles, Comrades in Other Lands, Servants of the King, and Under Marching Orders are all recommended by our Mission Board as being especially adapted for young people's study.

You will always find the children ready and, more than often, the young people, to enlist in service for God if you will only lead them. It will take a sacrifice of time, but isn't it well worth our while? May God indeed arouse every woman here today so that she will not be satisfied until there is a Young People's and Willing Workers' Society in her church doing a mighty work for God. Will you not say—

Time worketh, let me work too,
Time undoeth, let me do;
Busy is time, my work I ply,
Till I rest in the rest of eternity.

Sin worketh, let me work too,
Sin undoeth, let me do;
Busy is sin, my work I ply,
Till I rest in the rest of eternity.

God worketh, let me work too,
God doeth, let me do;
Busy for God, my work I ply,
Till I rest in the life of eternity.

MAMIE HOLLAND,

Supt. Y. P. Work of E. Va. Conference.

EASTERN VIRGINIA YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

As important as any of the reports to the Eastern Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference, and as encouraging too, was that of the Young People's Work, by Miss Mamie Holland, of Suffolk, Va., which is given in these columns this week. It shows that there has been growth and an increase of interest in the work. Nor does the report show all that is being done by the young people in the Conference. There are a number of organizations working along the same line but not identified with the Woman's work. It is hoped that all of these may speedily fall in line and all work together towards a common end. Every church should have its boys and girls in training in a Missionary Society. It is not a question of getting the boys and girls to work but of getting a leader to direct them. Let us lay greater stress on this important branch of our work for the coming year and give to it the support it deserves. Miss Holland is enthusiastic over the outlook of her Department, and desires the co-operation of all in pushing the work.

PROTESTANTISM AND CHILDREN

(Continued from page 5)

call attention to this editorial suggestion. It is sometimes hard for us to see the good points in an opponent. We are likely to magnify the good points of our own interests and minimize the good points of the other fellow. This can easily be seen in the average Northerner, as he thinks of the South, or the average Southerner as he thinks of the North. But until we can look at truth with fairness, we cannot be free, for the truth alone brings freedom.

The great strength of Catholicism today and for tomorrow lies in the training of the children. The Catholic child is dedicated to God at the very beginning of its life. As we are told that Jesus was taken up by his father and mother to the temple, to follow out the custom of the law, so a child is baptized in a Catholic way, at the very beginning of life. It is taught to have reverence for holy things. Its father and mother both manifest reverence; the father is not ashamed to kneel and bow and pray. The prayers may be mostly conventional, but nevertheless they are looking to the Holy of holies. The child is taught to kneel, pray, and go through religious exercises from its earliest experiences that it can remember. Pictures of the blessed Virgin are in almost every Catholic family, and often in its room is some cheap copy of glorious Madonna, which may be the last thing the child sees before going into the land of slumbers. At a very early age which has recently been changed, the child is confirmed, unites as a member of the Holy Catholic church.

Some of this is a real spiritual experience. Is it any wonder then, that simple reasonings by Protestant divines who do not understand the good of the religious training in the Catholic should be to the intelligent Roman Catholic simply words, words, and nothing but words? We can never make any decided stand against the oncoming flow of Roman Catholicism, which is capturing all the cities of the United States, until we understand it better, and its hold on the heart-strings of the coming generation.

But some cannot understand how a good and intelligent Roman Catholic can approve of the church as a whole. There are, for instance, certain parts of the Old Testament that offend the moral sense, if taken as a rule for present-day actions. But if you call attention to these, the conservative Protestant will think of the beautiful parts of the Bible which reveal a loving Father, and of the religion of his mother, and of the prayers he was taught to say at his mother's knee. And he at once looks upon you as a traitor, and one who could upset his faith in God, and he begins to call out such names as Liberal, Unitarian, Higher Critic, and anything else which he thinks of. And he does this conscientiously, in the name of God and of Christ.

Human nature is just the same in the Catholic and Protestant. And Roman Catholicism will not be destroyed by the appeal of an infallible library of books, called the Bible, against an infallible church called the Holy Roman Catholic Church. It will only be when men are not afraid of having their church and their sacred books cross-examined by the intellect, that men will be free, not only to hold fast the good of the past, but to go into more mansions of the Father's house which the human race has not yet explored.

To the writer it is very apparent, that until Protestantism with all its sects becomes more reverent to God and appreciative of the kingdom of God dwelling in humanity, until it becomes more devotional and more intellectual, until it becomes more beautiful and more charitable, the Roman Catholic church with all its short comings, must sweep forward in this fair country of freedom, and capture new points of vantage.

Christianity, a twentieth century Christianity, neither Catholicism nor Protestantism is what will make America free. The truth brings freedom. Therefore contend for the truth. Men in the past have died for it.

CARLYLE SUMMERBELL.

Fall River, Mass.

FINDING THE COMMON GOD IN THE COMMON GOOD

A few days ago the newspapers pictured an incident that because of certain sensational features of interest transfixed the attention of the world. A ship loaded with hundreds of human souls was burned at sea in a terrific storm at night. The shell of wood in the grip of wind and wave and darkness, and the precious freight it bore, was a pitiable spectacle in its apparently hopeless contest with the omnipotent forces that sought to destroy it. But the same Power that rode in devastating violence upon the storm had provided through the patient and painful civilization of the centuries the means of salvation. Terror-stricken instinct for self-preservation was controlled by educated discipline, and a disgraceful panic of each man for himself was changed to a co-operative effort for the rescue of all; the miraculous voice of the wireless—the result of the expenditure of years of labor and research and capital, called above the fury of wind and wave and assembled the sympathy and courage of the citizenship of the sea; it reached through miles of darkness and storm and found a representative of perfectly organized business efficiency—the oil-ship. And the warfare of the most terrific of natural forces was stilled into peace.

Behind this divinely thrilling and dramatic spectacle we can see in miniature the not less thrilling spectacle of our civilization working out its salvation through the co-operation of the same forces; knowledge taking account of material fact and individual self-interest, and using its facts to build to higher knowledge, and joining commerce and faith and heroism and brotherhood to build to still higher power and freedom and the more abundant life that comes through learning the ways and laws and use of material forces, and translating them into ever higher values.

The thing that happened there on the sea makes up our every-day life. The river slips by the town and runs to the sea, a muddy, turbulent stream. Its force is caught and converted into usable power. It turns the factory wheels, lights the streets, lights the school and the home and the church. It purifies and cleanses the town and gives it health. We have mastered the fact of it, its ways and its laws, and the turbulent, muddy stream is no longer material, undirected force; it is spiritual life.

We call this process of mastering the ways and laws of material forces, that they may lead to higher and higher productivity, education. It cannot go too high; it knows no high nor low. Its business and the business of all forward-looking, upward-leading men is to be vitally interested and mutually helpful in all of the forces that make up our actual, active life.

Where shall we begin this necessary task of realizing our dream of a Commonwealth that will be satisfied with nothing less than the common weal of all? Where, but here and now? Nothing can act but where it is! Our greatest lesson is to learn that these streets and stores and fields—the earth and sky in all of their daily manifestations—are but "folds

FOSTER'S
STORY OF THE BIBLE

From Genesis to Revelation. Told in Simple Language.

ADAPTED TO ALL AGES, BUT ESPECIALLY TO THE YOUNG

By CHARLES FOSTER

Size, 6½ x 9 in.; 704 Pages: 300 Illustrations.

BEAUTIFUL COLORED PICTURES
THE BEST EASY-READING VERSION OF THE WHOLE BIBLE

It adheres most closely to the Scriptures, retaining much of their force, dignity and distinction of style, with the pure and simple wording of the English Bible, without comment or doctrinal discussion.

MOST GENERALLY USED—750,000 SOLD

Approved by eminent men of various religious denominations
Valued in thousands of homes.

FINE CLOTH, with beautiful design in three colors (shown above), $1.50

SEND US YOUR ORDERS.

Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.Children's Missionary
Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions For Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDREN

The
Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

See Us about Job Printing
WHEN YOU WANT GOOD WORK.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

across the face of God"; that "earth is crammed with heaven and every common bush aflame with God"; that the "Thy will" for which we daily pray will be done here and now or nowhere; and that agriculture, business, freedom, education, and religion are but instruments in our hands for finding the common God in the common good and making His will prevail.—Edward K. Graham, in The State Journal.

C. E. LIFE-WORK RECRUITS.

At the Los Angeles Convention a new movement was started in the Christian Endeavor Society. It was first decided to call those who came into it "Christian Endeavor Covenanters," but the trustees have decided that "Christian Endeavor Life-Work Recruits" is a better name.

This movement is designed to stimulate young people to give up their lives wholly to the ministry, to missions, or to other kinds of thorough-going Christian service. The covenant those who enlist will take is as follows: "Feeling myself called by the Holy Spirit, and trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I promise Him that I will from this day forth strive to shape the plans of my life so that I give myself wholly to the service of Christ and the church."

Any one wishing to sign this covenant may obtain a copy by addressing General Secretary Shaw, who will keep the enrollment. It is hoped that the splendid stimulus given the movement in the Ohio State Convention and at Los Angeles will be kept up.

There is certainly need for this movement in the Christian denomination and we sincerely hope that at Elon College and in our churches and societies stress will be laid upon this new feature of the Christian Endeavor program. Constantly we are hearing the cry, "The laborers are few." Many denominations do not have ministers enough to fill all of their pulpits. We need more and better paid preachers. There is a call for local preachers and missionaries.

The Christian Endeavor Life-Work Recruits form exactly the organ for developing what may be one of the most fruitful and helpful works undertaken by the modern church.

THE NEED IN PORTO RICO—A LIFE

One of the interesting features of the Woman's Missionary Conference in session at Mt. Carmel was a talk by Mrs. D. P. Barrett, of Ponce, Porto Rico, on "The Young People of Porto Rico." She told of a number of boys and girls and the struggles, and, oftentimes, persecutions they have to endure to lead the Christian life. Bright and interesting as they are, and as willing as they are to learn and to do, yet they find it hard to live right. There are so few restraining influences, such little help from their homes and their associates.

Few of those who heard her will forget soon the touching appeal she made for some one to help in the work. Others, she said, could appeal for money, and it is necessary in the work, but she asked for something more—a life—some one to come in close touch with these young people and to help them to stand true to Christ. The missionary force here has been reduced until Mr. and Mrs. Barrett stand alone. The work is too much for them, they must have help or much will be lost. Let us all unite in prayer that God may direct a life to go to the rescue and then, as we pray, let us labor to furnish the money necessary for the life to go. Surely there is some one among our people whom God would have labor in this corner of His harvest field, and may we not hold that one back by withholding the means.

Holy Bible

THE FINEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD
—FOR THE MONEY—

* This Photograph represents exact size 5½ x 8¼ inches

Bound in French Morocco, absolutely flexible, with overlapping covers as shown in this photograph. Has red under gold edges.

—IT CONTAINS—

The Authorized Version of the Old Testament and New Testament

—HAS—

Self-Pronouncing Text
All the proper words being accented and divided into syllables for quick and easy pronunciation.

—IT ALSO CONTAINS—

A New Series of Helps to Bible Study

—INCLUDING—

4000 Questions and Answers
which unfold the Scriptures

31 Beautiful Illustrations
showing scenes and incidents of Bible History

12 Maps of the Bible Lands in Colors

Large Clear Type Fine Paper

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN one year,
$2.50, postpaid.
Or sent alone for $1.50, postpaid.

—ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO—
The Southern Christian Pub. Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

A FINE CASE OF PLUCK

Do you remember that early in the summer of 1912 a minister was thrown under a train on the New Jersey coast, losing his left arm near the shoulder and both feet well above the ankles? The minister was the Rev. Ross MacClements, of the First Presbyterian Church, Asbury Park. The trouble was worse than it sounds in telling it.

And what did he do? Ask the big congregations that have been hearing him preach all this summer. He has not yet so recovered that he can stand up in his pulpit, but he can sit down and speak with such power that congregations of five hundred to eight hundred can hear. No whimpering message, either, nor any wry face, nor any acceptance of pity in this man. He knows what the gospel can do in undergirding a man, and he is telling people.

That is sheer Christian pluck, and it is making brave a good many people whom Dr. MacClements never will see or know. Aren't you a little ashamed yourself of complaining about the tiny troubles that have come your way?—Rev. Cleland B. McAfee, D. D., in C. E. World.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. JAMES O. COX, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

J. O. Cox, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson Chairman Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amount brought forward$3,880.32

Monthly S. S. Offering

Oak Level	$ 1.21
Hines Chapel	1.07
Berea (Norfolk)	1.76
Berea (Nansemond) ...	7.47
Shallow Ford	.73
New Lebanon	.69
New Lebanon Baraca ..	1.00
Oak Grove, Gates, N. C. .	.50
Timber Ridge, Val. Con. .	1.47
Suffolk	25.00	40.90

Special

Mt. Auburn church ...	$ 4.20
Tyler Bolling (work) ..	2.00
A Friend	1.00	7.20

Thanksgiving Offering

New Hope (N. C.)	$ 6.00
M. H. Hayes	2.50	8.50

Total for the week	$ 56.60
Grand Total	$3,936.92

My Dear Children and Friends:

We are still looking for and expecting your letters on every mail. Boys and girls tell me everywhere I go, that they are going to join the Band of Cousins and write each month; a good old grandmother told me yesterday that she was going to write to each of her grandchildren and have them write to the Corner. We are going to have a bright sunny Corner all our own, with all the old ugly advertisements chased from our page after a while. I am sure every one in the entire church had rather read bright, cheerful letters from good boys and girls, than to read old advertisements. We are glad to have one new member this week. Her letter came after the report was made up, and we hold it for next week's issue. We want a number of others to join her next week. We are depending upon the boys and girls throughout the church to help us make our page one of the best pages in the paper.

This is our last word before Thanksgiving. I only wish that every member of the church could understand that the Orphanage belongs to them, and we are looking to them with faith, just as a child looks to its father. If the members of the church withhold their support, we cannot do the great work that the Lord has called us to, as it should be done. But I believe the Lord is going to hear our prayers, and answer them through the loyal and liberal friends of the institution. Already the offerings are coming in; and they look mighty good to us. We thank the faithful Sunday schools for their liberal monthly offerings. We are grateful for the Special and Thanksgiving Offerings that have already been received. We are expecting liberal offerings from every church in the Southern Convention. Please do not disappoint us. We thank you in advance.

Yours humble servant,

J. O. Cox, Supt.

FORTY YEARS' WORK

About forty-four years ago, Rev. D. C. Greene and his wife went out to Japan as missionaries of the American board. Since then Dr. Greene has been occupied with preaching, teaching committee work and Bible translation. He has gained an honored place not only among the members of his own mission, but it is highly esteemed by foreigners and Japanese in all departments of life. Recently he has exerted his influence to promote good feeling beyond the land of his birth and that of his adoption. In recognition of this the Emperor of Japan has conferred upon him the Third Order of the Rising Sun. Doctor Greene's share in the tremendous changes of forty years makes him worthy indeed of the honor that has come to him.

CHOOSING THE RIGHT PRESENT

Are you in doubt about a certain present? The Youth's Companion has proven to be one of the best that can be chosen. Perhaps you have not seen it lately, and are not quite sure. Then let us send you a sample copy or two. Suppose you ask for the issues containing the opening chapters of Arthur Stanwood Pier's fine serial story of life in a boys' school—"His Father's Son." If you look the paper over carefully, bearing in mind that there are fifty-two such numbers for a year's subscription of $2.00, we are sure you will say that a better present could not be chosen, whether for a young person or for an entire family.

For the year's subscription of $2.00 there is included a copy of The Companion Practical Home Calendar for 1914, and all the issues for the remaining weeks of this year, dating from the time the subscription is received.

If you ask for sample copies we will send with them the Announcement for 1914.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION,
144 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass.

ROBBING FREIGHT CARS

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 6.—The Carlin bill, recently passed by Congress, making the robbery of freight cars, baggage cars and express cars engaged in interstate commerce, and the robbery of interstate shipments from platform and stations a federal offense, is a law with teeth in it, and sharp ones at that, as was evidenced in the Federal court here when John L. Parker was given a sentence of six years in the United States prison for robbing a shipment of shoes consigned to Glazen, Miss., from a car in the Birmingham yards on May 4th. Parker was also implicated in robbing a shipment of notions consigned to Avondale, Ala., from a car in the Birmingham yards on the night of July 30th and Otis Williams and Arthur Goodeye who assisted him were given sentences of four years and six months and three years and six months respectively in the United States prison.

STOP CHEATING YOUR FAMILY

You doubtless fully realize your duty to your family in making your home life attractive, entertaining, cultured and refined; and you have promised yourself that some day you will fill that vacant spot in the parlor with a splendid piano or self-player piano of the sweetest tone and highest quality, or that you will replace the old rattle-trap with a superb new instrument. But the days, the months, and possibly the years have silently crept by and still there is no good music in your home. In the meantime, home is not what it might be, for a home without a high-grade piano or self-player piano is seriously and hopelessly handicapped.

Why not stop cheating yourself and your family right now? You have only one life to live, here, why let procrastination steal your family's big opportunity for social, mental and spiritual advancement? Remember that good music is not simply a social accomplishment, but is also mental exercise and spiritual development. Why not let the Christian Sun Piano Club solve the financial problem for you now as it has done and is doing for hundreds of others? It was organized to overcome the very difficulties which confront you. Everything has been prepared, no feature overlooked. Write for your copy of the Club's catalogue and full particulars today. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

The very center of the
FRUIT TREE
AND ORNAMENTAL PLANT
BUSINESS IN THE SOUTHERN STATES is in the
J. VAN LINDLEY NURSERY CO.
For a book showing all they are prepared to do for their customers address them at
Box 207, Pomona, N. C.

MARRIAGES

Cook-Lashley

On November the 1st Squire George Atrell Cook of Frederick County, Virginia, and Miss Mary Belle Lashley, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, were married by the writer, in the presence of a few relatives and friends. After the ceremony, the bridal couple left for Washington on their honeymoon.

Squire Cook owns a valuable farm three miles from Winchester where they will make their home.

The writer joins with their many friends in all good wishes.

W. T. WALTERS.

WOMEN'S WORK IN JAPAN

Japan has the largest percentage of wage-earning women of any country in the world. In the United States the proportion is eighteen men to fourteen women wage-earners; in Great Britain the proportion is seventy-five men to twenty-five women; in Germany the proportion is eighty men to twenty women. In Japan there are nearly twice as many women as men on the pay rolls of the government.

All large employees assert that women are the industrial backbone of the country. The cheap labor of women and children is said to be the secret of competitive power of the Japanese in the textile and other handicraft industries.

EIGHTY MILLION UNTOUCHED CHILDREN

There are over 80,000,000 Moslem children in the world, and Miss Von Mayer, writing from Samarkand, says: "I shall gather information as to numbers, education and morality of children here, but I cannot contribute anything as to the religious work done, for not a single one of the one and a half million Moslem children in this field, at any time or anywhere comes into contact with Christianity." It is an undeniable fact that Moslem childhood has had a pitifully small share hitherto, in the ministry of the Christian Sabbath school.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

In recent years there has been a great deal of talk about the high cost of living. The big men of the country are practically agreed in attributing the yearly increase in prices to extravagant methods of distributing goods rather than to any increase in the cost of manufacturing them. As a nation, we have contracted the habit of buying without thinking. It is human nature for a merchant, dealer or agent to get as high a price for his goods as he can and thereby make as much profit as possible on each sale.

The best way to cut down your cost of living is to study values and prices carefully and be sure you are not paying more than the same article could be bought for elsewhere. For example, the Christian Sun Piano Club will save you about one dollar out of three on high-grade pianos and self-player pianos. By uniting our orders in a Club of one hundred buyers we get the lowest, rock-bottom factory price, and by having the instruments shipped direct from the factory to our homes we save the customary double freight. We thus get pianos and self-player pianos of the finest quality and of lifetime durability at prices such as you would ordinarly pay for low-grade instruments. Write for your copy of the Club's catalogue and full particulars. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

THIS WILL INTEREST MANY.

F. W. Parkhurst, the Boston publisher, will send their address rheumatism in any form, neuralgia or er, says that if anyone afflicted with to him at 701 Carney Building, Boston, Mass., he will direct them to a perfect cure. He has nothing to sell or give; only tells you how he was cured after years of search for relief. Hundreds have tested it with success. Ad.

ECZEMA BOOK FREE.

The National Skin Hospital, located at 121 Main Street, St. Joseph, Mo., who treat skin diseases, only, have published a book of more than sixty pages which they are mailing free to anyone writing for it. It has many colored plates showing the different forms of skin diseases and tells how they can be treated at home. Anyone interested should write for it at once.

FEATHER BED BARGAINS.

Send us $10.00 and we will ship you one first class new 40-pound Feather Bed, one pair 6-pound New Feather pillows ($2.50), one pair full size Blankets ($3.00), one dandy Comfort full size ($3.00), all for only $10.00. All new goods and no trash. Biggest Bargain ever offered. Satisfaction guaranteed. This offer is good for a short time only to advertise our goods. Mail money order now or write for circular and order blanks. SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 1154, Greensboro, N. C.

TRIAL BOX FREE

Do you suffer with
Headache or Neuralgia
One trial of Megrimine is sufficient—your suffering will cease.
For over a quarter of a century

ME-GRIM-INE

Has been a Godsend to victims of all forms of headache and neuralgia. Write at once for a trial box without cost.

The Dr. Whitehall Megrimine Co.
8 N. Lafayette St., South Bend, Ind.

DR. J. H. BROOKS,

Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

MORPHINE WHISKEY and TOBACCO

HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDAR CROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.

Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81 4:35 a. m.
No. 29 Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41 4:10 p. m.
No. 43 6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84 12:48 a. m.
No. 38 11:35 a. m.
No. 66 12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf.

8 New Editions.
OXFORD Black Face Type Bibles
Pearl 32mo.
A wonderful type in a small book.
Nonpareil 24mo.
A gem of printing.
Milon 16mo.
Model hard Bible.
Brevier 16mo.
Large type in small compass.

"To say that a Bible is an Oxford is sufficient. Yet the Oxford keeps on improving. The New Editions will prove a delightful surprise."—Christian Nation.

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly.

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

The Scofield Reference Bible
"The Last Word in Bible Editing"

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.

Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles,

Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

—HIGH CLASS—

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

THE BEST THANKSGIVING

There is one blessing which is never taken away from those who want it. It is worthier of our thanksgiving than all other blessings combined. And the more we give thanks for it, the more we shall see in it to give thanks for. This blessing is God himself. Have we practiced this form of thanksgiving daily? To pour out our thanksgiving to God for what he is has a remarkable result. It means that in the very act of such thanksgiving we receive more of him to be thankful for. It is as though, when we thanked a friend for a generous gift of money, with every word of our thanks that friend poured more money into our hands. The outgoing of our praise to God means the incoming of God. Let us take time apart on this Thanksgiving Day, alone with God, to praise him and thank him for what he is. A half hour spent thus with him, with perhaps the book of Psalms open before us, can make the day memorable in our lives. Moreover—let it be said reverently—it will make the day memorable in God's own life; for the praise of his children rejoices God's heart. Shall we not make it a day of thanksgiving in heaven because of our thanksgiving on earth?—S. S. Times.

A VETERAN PASTOR'S THANKSGIVING

Lord God, our Creator, Father, Friend and Portion: We offer thee a sacrifice of joy and holy trust. We thank thee for the world we live in, with all its treasures; for the inviting panorama of land and sea and sky; for the absorbing drama of passing events under thy hand; for friends, and the warmth of human affection; for sunshine, birds, flowers, trees, music, and poetry, and for gracious words and kindly deeds; still more, for the exquisitely delicate fabric of our own frame, which responds with thrills of pain and pleasure to every touch; for the privilege of suffering and of enjoying—keenly; for the power of probing the secrets of nature and of grace; for the quenchless longings and aspirations implanted in our breasts; chief of all, for the revelation of thyself in Jesus Christ as our Friend, Redeemer, and Satisfaction. We praise thee for the joy of entering others' lives, laden with blessing; for permission, and opportunity, daily to touch the harp-strings of others' souls and make them vibrate with joy. . . . Lord, what a career! Fit us for it. Sustain and guide us in it. Make us eager to fulfil it—to the very utmost. So fill us with love and wisdom that our words shall be music to our fellows, and our very presence a benediction. Teach us to forget our own pain, grief, greed, loneliness, or harrowing apprehension in the delights of gracious ministry. Oh, for power from thee to still the ache of sore hearts, and to generate hope in darkened lives! —S. S. Times.

In Taiyuanfu, China, where in the Boxer days forty-five Christian workers were beheaded by order of the governor of the province, a number of the leading men have sent out a call for the establishment of a free Christian church. Among the signers of the call are the chief military officer, the chief civil officer, the president and vice-president of the provincial assembly and the chief of police.

The latest news is that Peru has thrown itself open to the gospel as preached by Protestantism. Hitherto Protestantism has been practically ruled out of the country. A new call comes to every Protestant denomination. The pity of it is that so many gates are being opened through which we are not prepared to enter.

SHE STAYED IN BED

Ingram, Texas.—“Ever since I became a woman,” writes Mrs. E. M. Svans, of this place, “I suffered from womanly troubles. Last fall I got so bad I had to stay in bed for nearly a week every month. Since I have taken Cardui, I feel better than I have for years.” You can rely on Cardui. It acts on the womanly organs and helps the system to regain its normal state of health, in a natural way. Prepared especially for women, it prevents womanly pains by acting on the cause, and builds up womanly strength in a natural way. Purely vegetable. Mild, but certain in action. Try it. ad.

THE BEST Sunday School Help

If you are a Sunday school teacher or pupil you should desire the best possible help. This you will find in one volume, Peloubet's Select Notes on the International Lessons for 1914. Send in your order now. Up to January 1 you can get a copy for $1.00, after that time, $1.25. The publishers' price is $1.25, but we save you 25 cents by ordering from us. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

WEAK LUNGS

Seventy-five years' experience with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral gives us great confidence in it. Ask your doctor what he thinks of it for colds, coughs, bronchitis, weak lungs. He knows. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of higher education fostered by the Southern Christian Convention.

MODERN IN EQUIPMENT, Steam Heat, Electric Lights, Baths, Sewerage, Elegant New Buildings.

A HIGH GRADE INSTITUTION whose graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great American Universities without examination.

MAINTAINS EXCELLENT MUSIC, Art, Elocution, Normal, and Preparatory Departments.

A FACULTY OF SEVENTEEN SPECIALISTS, with a successful record of twenty-three years behind it.

HAS ALL THE ADVANTAGES of city life with none of its disadvantages. Situated in the delightful hill country of North Carolina, famed for its healthfulness, pure water, and high moral tone.

ELON COLLEGE HAS DONE MORE to build up the Christian Church than any institution ever yet commissioned by our people.

TERMS VERY MODERATE. $141 to $191 per session of ten school months.

For catalogue or other information, address,

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, Elon College, N. C.

“Just Like New”

That is what they all say about the ladies' and gentlemen's wearing apparel, the most delicate fabrics, household draperies, portieres, blankets, etc., that are cleaned by our French process.

Moreover, there is nothing to excel our skillful dyeing. We secure uniformity of color and good finish and match colors. The process of dyeing we use does not injure the daintiest fabrics.

We Dye the Most Delicate Shades.

Write to us and get our booklet. It costs you nothing, and it shows the short cut to economy, real money saving. Send a postcard with your name on it, and we will send the book.

COLUMBIA LAUNDRY COMPANY,
106 Fayetteville Street, Greensboro, North Carolina

EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

has often heard class-members say: “I cannot understand the Bible.” They could not understand any other book that was printed three hundred years ago. So many English words of that day were different.

More than forty new dictionaries have been required since then, to keep up with the changes in the English language. The

American Standard Bible
Edited by the American Revision Committee
uses the words of our day, which make the meanings of the Bible writers clear to us.

Write for Our Free Booklet, “How We Got Our American Standard Bible”

No teacher can afford to be without it.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun!
ONLY $1.50 PER YEAR

SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

Schedule of the trains leaving Elon College:

N. B.—The following schedule figures are published only as information and are not guaranteed.

No. 21—11:28 A. M. Through Train for Asheville with Chair Car for Waynesville. Connects at Asheville with Carolina Special for Cincinnati and Chicago, also for Chattanooga, Memphis and all Eastern points. Connects at Greensboro with Through Train for Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, also with local train for points South.

No. 139—6:32 P. M. For Greensboro. Handles through Pullman Sleeping Car for Atlanta. Makes connections for all points North, East, South and West, New Orleans, Texas and California points.

No. 131—9:27 P. M. For Greensboro. Makes direct connection with Train No. 38, Solid Sleeping Car Train for Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, makes connection for Boston, Pittsburgh, Chicago, and all Eastern and Northern points. Connects with Through Tourist Sleeping Car for New Orleans, El Paso, Los Angeles, and San Francisco.

No. 111—5:44 A. M. For Greensboro, with Sleeping Car for Winston-Salem. Connects with No. 37, Through Train for Atlanta, New Orleans, connects also for Asheville, St. Louis, Memphis, Birmingham and all Western and Southern points. Also with local train for Danville, Lynchburg and Washington.

No. 22—4:48 P. M. Raleigh and Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern and S. A. L. Rwy., also at Selma with A. C. L. Rwy. And at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 144—10:08 A. M. For Raleigh and Goldsboro. Makes connections at Selma with A. C. L. Rwy., for points North and South, and at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 108—8:00 A. M. Local Train for Raleigh, Selma and Goldsboro. Makes connection with S. A. L. Rwy. at Raleigh and A. C. L. Rwy. at Selma and Goldsboro.

No. 112—1:27 A. M. For Raleigh, Selma, Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern, S. A. L. and R. C. & S. Railway, at Selma with A. C. L. Rwy., at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

For detailed information, also for information concerning special round trip rates account various special occasions and Pullman Sleeping Car reservations, ask any Southern Railway Agent or communicate with the undersigned.

J. O. JONES.

Traveling Passenger Agent,

Out of the total of 83,638 Christians on the church records in Japan, 30,666 are non-resident, or about 37 per cent. of the whole.

THE "TURKEY SPECIAL"

All preparations have been completed by the traffic and transportation departments of the Southern Railway for the operation of the annual Thanksgiving "Turkey Special" from the great East Tennessee poultry district to the big Eastern markets. The special train will start from Johnson City Friday morning, November 21st, running via Morristown and Asheville to Washington over the Southern Railway and from Washington to New York over the Pennsylvania Railroad. Stops will be made at various East Tennessee points to pick up cars, but after the train is complete it will be hurried eastward on practically passenger time. Thousands of live turkeys will be shipped in special poultry cars while refrigerator cars will also be handled for dressed birds and eggs.

The poultry business has come to be one of the great money producers of East Tennessee. While special trains are run to Eastern markets for the Thanksgiving and Christmas festivities, shipments are not confined to these seasons, the records of the Southern Railway showing an average of nearly fifty cars per month from this section to Eastern and Southern markets during the past year. These figures refer to solid cars and do not include a very heavy volume of business moved in less than car load lots.

For its poultry shipments East Tennessee is now getting hundreds of thousands of dollars of outside money every year, and while the greater part of this money comes from the big Eastern cities, a very considerable per cent. comes from Southern cities which are surrounded by territories in which conditions are extremely favorable for poultry raising.

MIGHT NOT BE ALIVE

McMinnville, Tenn.—Mrs. Oeie Jett, of this place, writes: "I don't believe I would be living today, if it hadn't been for Cardui. I lay in bed for 27 days, and the doctor came every day, but he did me no good. Finally, he advised an operation, but I would not consent, and instead took Cardui. Now I am going about the house, doing my work, even do my washing. Cardui worked wonders in my case. I am in better health than for five years." Cardui is a strengthening tonic for women. It relieves pain, tones up the nerves, builds strength. Try it. At your druggist's. ad.

The total number of Jews in the world is 12,000,000. Of these 6,250,000 are in Russia, and about 2,250,000 in our own land. They have spread all over the land, but the large cities hold the bulk of them. Chicago is said to have 180,000 Jews, Philadelphia some 125,000. But in Greater New York, according to Dr. Laidlaw of the Federated churches, there are 1,265,000. Here every fourth man is a Jew.

TRIAL BOX FREE

Do you suffer with
Headache or Neuralgia
One trial of Megrimine is sufficient—your suffering will cease.
For over a quarter of a century

ME-GRIM-INE

Has been a Godsend to victims of all forms of headache and neuralgia. Write at once for a trial box without cost.

The Dr. Whitehall Megrimine Co.
N. Lafayette St., South Bend, Ind.

This Is the IRON

Such a Comfort for YOU!

No stove to fuss over, no wires or tubing to bother with, no fireless stoves and aching back. A penny's worth of gasoline is enough for the family ironing with a

Sun

SELF-HEATING IRON

Alcohol or Gasoline—Full Nickel Square Back and Double Pointed Styles. Irons better and saves your time. Always ready for use indoors or out. Saves its cost in fuel alone over and over again. Lasts a life time. Sold on Trial and Guaranteed. If your dealer does not sell "SUN IRONS" WRITE US FOR DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULAR AND OUR SPECIAL FIRST ORDER TRIAL OFFER. Agents Wanted MODERN SPECIALTIES MFG. CO. 129 High St., South Bend, Ind.

GIVE ME A CHANCE TO CURE YOUR RHEUMATISM FREE

Mr. Delano took his own medicine. It cured his rheumatism after he had suffered tortures for thirty-six years. He spent $20,000 before he discovered the remedy that cured him, but I will give you the benefit of his experience for nothing.

If you suffer from rheumatism let me send you a package of this remedy free. Don't send any money. I want to give it to you. I want you to see for yourself what it will do. The picture shows how rheumatism twists and distorts the bones. Maybe you are suffering the same way. Don't. You don't need to. I have the remedy that I believe will cure you and it's yours for the asking. Write me today. F. H. Delano, 541-B Delano Building, Syracuse, New York, and I will send you a free package the very day I get your letter.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLE

LARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10 1/4 x 12 1/4 in.

HOLMAN RED LETTER SELF-PRONOUNCING TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5 1/4 x 7 1/4 inches.

THE TYPE.
23 The Bāb-ŷ-lō-ni-an, and all the Chāl-dē-an, Pē-kōd, and Shō'a, and Kō'a, and all the Ās-sūr-i-an with

No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges. $2.50

No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges. 3.00

Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENT

SELF-PRONOUNCING

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Daintiest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2 5/8 x 4 1/4 inches.

THE TYPE.
5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the

No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges.50

No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms.75

Postage, 3 Cents.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO
The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Hess

Resolutions passed by the faculty and students of Union Christian College on the death of Mr. J. N. Hess, of Dayton, Ohio.

Whereas: There has gone from this earthly life our beloved friend and brother, Jasper N. Hess, who was a staunch and loyal friend of U. C. College, a true citizen, and an ever faithful servant of his fellowmen;

Therefore, Resolved, That while we deeply mourn our loss, we recognize the beauty of such a life and hope that it may be an inspiration to others to pattern their life, as did he, after the Great Exemplar.

Resolved, That we extend our sympathy to the bereaved family and friends and pray that the all-sustaining Power may uphold them in this time of sorrow.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family and that they also be spread on the College records, and that they be sent to the Herald of Gospel Liberty and to the Christian Sun for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
ELIZABETH HATTEN,
W. S. SANFORD,
W. E. GOERNANDT.

Merom, Indiana, November 3, 1913.

A BEAUTIFUL LESSON

What a beautiful missionary example in Korea, a land so lately heathen and grievously troubled by political unrest and persecutions of Christians stretching out in its weakness and poverty to help China. The native Korean churches propose to raise $1,000 toward missionary work in China.

GREAT SUNDAY SCHOOL ARMY

The Protestant Sunday school army of the world now numbers 28,701,489, or equal to one-third of the population of the United States. This is a gain over three years ago of 690,295 members. The most notable gains are in Asia, where reports show 8,113 new schools, with 316,818 more pupils enrolled than there were enrolled three years ago.

Save 1/2 on these splendid Books

This Library Consists of eight large volumes (8 1-4x5 1-4) and is one of the most helpful and inspiring works ever compiled. It has proven to be a fountain of real and indispensable help to thousands of Pastors, Evangelists, Students, and Christian Workers of all denominations. Average number of pages per volume 309.

CLERICAL LIBRARY

Furnishes Pastors, Bible Students and all earnest Christian Workers with stimulus and helpful suggestions in the various departments of their work. It contains the best thoughts of the world's greatest preachers and writers. It is printed in large, clear type, on white paper, strongly and handsomely bound in cloth.

This Set of Standard Helps is Being Received with the Highest Satisfaction by an Increasingly Large Number of Pastors and Bible Students.

Former Price $12
Now Only
$6.00

Read What Some of the Owners of These Books say

"A truly magnificent addition to the ministerial helps."
"I consider the Clerical Library of rare value."
"A fine tonic for the hard-working minister."
"The books are valuable to me in the way of suggesting certain lines of thought."
"The bane of the pulpit is the heavy style and monotonous delivery."
"These incidents and anecdotes will send the truth home to the hearts of the people."
"This set of books is a valuable addition to any preacher's library."
"They are just what are needed."
"I heartily recommend them to all engaged in pastoral work."

Outline Sermons on the Old Testament

This volume, containing 139 outlines of sermons by 46 eminent English and American clergymen, is fully indexed by subjects and texts.

Outline Sermons on the New Testament

This volume contains 300 outlines by 77 eminent English and American clergymen; it is fully indexed by subjects and texts. The outlines furnished in these two volumes have been drawn from the leading pulpit thinkers of every denomination in Great Britain and America, including Rev. Drs. Wm. M. Taylor, John Cairns, Howard Crosby, Theodore L. Cuyler, Charles H. Spurgeon, R. S. Storrs, H. J. Van Dyke, James McCosh, J. T. Duryea, Alex. MacLaren, Joseph Parker, C. F. Deems, Canon Farrar, Dean Stanley, Bishop Phillips Brooks, and many others. The subjects are practical rather than controversial.

Outline Sermons to Children

With numerous anecdotes; fully indexed by subjects and texts. This volume, containing 97 outlines of sermons of a very high grade of thinking, by men of acknowledged eminence in possessing the happy faculty of preaching interestingly to the young. It contains enough illustrations and anecdotes to stock for many years the average preacher of children's sermons.

Anecdotes Illustrative of Old Testament Texts

529 anecdotes and illustrations, fully indexed by subjects and texts. Dr. Guthrie says his hearers often remembered the illustrations in his sermons when they had forgotten the abstract truth.

Anecdotes Illustrative of New Testament Texts

614 anecdotes and illustrations, fully indexed by subject, and texts. Preachers will find this book a very godsend to their preparation for the pulpit, and full of windows to let in the light.

Expository Sermons and Outlines on Old Testament

These sermons by distinguished preachers embrace a great variety of subjects from the Old Testament, are rich in application, and will be an education and inspiration to many.

Pulpit Prayers by Eminent Preachers

These prayers are fresh and strong; the ordinary ruts of conventional forms are left and fresh thoughts of living hearts are uttered. The excitement of devotional thought and sympathy must be great in the offering of such, prayers, especially when, as here, spiritual intensity and devoutness are as marked as freshness and strength.

Platform and Pulpit Aids

Consisting of striking speeches and addresses on Home and Foreign Missions, the Bible, Sunday-school, Temperance, and kindred subjects, with illustrative anecdotes. Just the book an overworked pastor who has many speeches to make, with little time for study, will appreciate.

TWO PLANS OF PAYMENT

We will forward at once the whole set of 8 volumes, securely packed, and guarantee safe delivery on receipt of $6, you paying express or freight charges or, send $1.00, and promise, in your letter to pay $1.00 a month for 6 months, making $7.00 as complete payment, and we will forward at once the whole set of 8 volumes, securely packed, and guarantee safe delivery, you paying express or freight charges.

Customers living a long distance from us may send, if they choose, 70 cents additional, and we will prepay express or mail charges and guarantee delivery. As to our Responsibility, we refer to this paper or to any Commercial Agency. Established 1868.

S. S. SCRANTON COMPANY, 118 Trumbull Street, Hartford, Conn.

CANCER

FREE TREATISE The Leach Sanatorium, Indianapolis, Ind., has published a booklet which gives interesting facts about the cause of Cancer, also tells what to do for pain, bleeding, odor, etc. Write for it today, mentioning this paper.

Byron W. King School of Oratory ELOCUTION AND SPEECH ARTS

New Building and Dormitory Courses for Teachers, Lecturers, Lyceum and Cautauqua Work, speech defects, stammering, loss of voice, sore throat positively cured. Largest school of speech arts in America. Send for prospectus. Mt. Oliver, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair. 50c and $1.00 at Druggists.

DROPSY TREATED, usually gives quick relief, soon removes swelling & short breath, often gives entire relief in 15 to 25 days. Trial treatment sent Free. Dr. THOMAS E. GREEN, Successor to Dr. H. H. Greens Sons, Box X, Atlanta, Ga.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

6 lb Pair of Pillows Free!

We again make our unparalleled offer of free pillows with your order enclosing $10 for our famous 36-lb. feather bed. All made of new sanitary feathers; best ticking and equipped with sanitary ventilators. Freight prepaid. Delivery guaranteed. Money back if not satisfied. Agents make big money. Turner & Corawell, Dep. A-C Memphis, Tenn. or Dept. A-C CHARLOTTE, N. C.

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., NOVEMBER 26, 1913

NO. 48

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Light Bearers

The other day in Wheeling, W. Va., a cripple, Jacob Blitz, saw a five year old child on the railroad track just ahead of an oncoming train. The crippled man saw that by desperate effort he could save the child, but knew that it meant instant death to himself. His duty was clear, and he did not hesitate, just pushing the child from the track as he himself was crushed beneath the cruel wheels of the great engine. Such deeds of heroism bear forward the light of heavenly righteousness and remind one of that One who died for our transgressions and of Whom it was said (Mark 15:31): "He saved others; himself he cannot save."

Irreverence Is Unnatural.

When people attempt to substitute something of their own fancy for an act of reverence they make themselves ridiculous. Recently a couple recited their marriage vows at the grave of Ralph Waldo Emerson rather than at any church altar. If the ghost of the Sage of Concord could have been seen at this wedding we have an idea he would have broken out in hilarious laughter right in the midst of the "ceremony." For neither Emerson nor any other generous and noble soul was ever irreverent or sacrilegious. Reverence is a natural attitude, in due season, of the human heart, and the irreverent are abnormal, unnatural and to be pitied.

Self-Support and Self-Respect

According to a bulletin issued by a Bureau of Self-Help of Princeton University, students in that institution earned more than $20,000 during the academic year 1912-13 for self-support. The larger universities and colleges, and many of the smaller ones as well, are doing much more than in former years to secure work for students who really care to go to college and educate themselves. In all such cases real work is required, and real earnings are realized. Self-support never carries with it loss of self-respect, but the lack of it, the attempt to get support without the payment of proper returns, is what causes a loss of respect. God and men unite to help the man who seeks with honest endeavor to help himself.

The Great Reward

Recently an opera singer of international reputation received $25,000 from a moving-picture firm for singing in a cage of lions. There was also a large policy of insurance against death or injury while the woman was caged with the beasts and the pictures were being taken. This was an enormous reward for so brief a service, but there is a reward far greater than this, even the reward of life everlasting, to those who amid the hazards and dangers of sin and evil, remain true and steadfast to that high calling whereunto they have been called in Christ Jesus. Dangers, deadly and desperate, assail those who seek to walk in the straight and narrow way, but the promise of great reward is held out in the words of the Revelation, "Be thou faithful until death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

Living Waters

The city of Los Angeles, California, recently made holiday over the completion of its great aqueduct. This aqueduct is a wonderful engineering achievement costing $24,500,000, representing eight years of work, and will carry to the city pure mountain water, from the snow-capped Sierras, 265 miles away, at the rate of 258,000,000 gallons every twenty-four hours and deposit the same in great reservoirs nearly a thousand feet above street level. The city does well to make merry over such an event, for an abundant and pure water supply is a city's best guarantee of both health and security. But that which Los Angeles needs far more than this water supply is an abundant supply of that water which our Savior told the Samaritan woman about in John 4:14: "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst."

Another Chance

By an act of the last session of the legislature, in Pennsylvania, one hundred and eighty convicts, serving time in the State penitentiary, were paroled that they might spend Thanksgiving Day where they wished. They are given an indefinite career of limited freedom. None could apply save those who had served one-third of their sentence, and those who are paroled must not leave the State and must report to the parole officer every month. Each one was given a suit of clothes, a hat, a necktie and ten dollars with which to begin a respectable career. Whether this is a wise law remains to be seen, but it is an attempt to show clemency, and give the convict another chance. The age in which we live does not demand an eye for an eye nor a tooth for a tooth, but seeks while punishing crime to rescue the criminal. In this the demands of justice are not met, but those of mercy are. To sin is human, to forgive is divine.

Good Through Evil

The Prince of Monaco (the owner and ruler of Monte Carlo) owns the most luxurious and enticing gambling salon in the world. Thousands flock to Monte Carlo from all over the world, and many of them part with their fortunes over the gaming tables there and the Prince of Monaco is made rich year after year.

These riches the prince gives for the benefit of science, principally the science of the sea, vegetable growths about the sea, and the creatures that make their home and living in the depths of the sea. It matters not how much good such a science may do, nor what benefits may be bestowed on mankind by the donations and investments of the owner of Monte Carlo, that does not justify his vile and nefarious business. The ends of an evil transaction are never justified by the means employed. No man has a right to do evil that good may come. A salt fountain will not give off fresh and pure water, and a wicked heart cannot be a blessing to mankind, it matters not how benevolently it may be employed.

The Foolishness of Preaching

The minister's sermon was not brilliant, nor learned, nor sensational, nor oratorical. On that account it seemed to many quite weak and impotent and not worth while. Is this the best that divine Wisdom could do in planning to redeem a world and save men from their sins? Doubtless. Read 1 Corinthians 1:20-21: "Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world? For after that in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." The fact is that we place too much emphasis on our attitude to God and too little emphasis on God's attitude to us. As a recent writer said, we love God and that is the joy of our salvation. But God loves us and that is the strength of our salvation. And we are saved, not by the strength of our love to God, but by the power of God's wonderful love for us. It is the love we trust, not the love we feel, that lifts us up and carries us forward toward God and glory. Our love to God is only a very small channel through which and over which God's love for us flows in infinite abundance.

The Golden Rule

Laws, congresses and courts do not make a people. They are only agencies intended to correct people when they would go wrong, or actually go wrong. The ideal law for all men is the Golden Rule, Do unto others as you would have others do unto you. If men would act by that, congresses might take a long recess and courts adjourn. We were much impressed with this manly utterance from Vice-President Marshall recently in addressing a great audience: "The idea is prevalent throughout these United States, that as long as we do not transgress against the laws that have been passed by some Legislature or by Congress we are safe, and as a result of this a sort of new citizenship and a false code of morals have sprung up. What we need is fewer laws and more citizens who appreciate their rights of their fellow man and give more attention to the Golden Rule. There are three types of law-abiding citizens—those who obey the law because they are afraid of the sheriff, those who obey it because it is the law, and those, far too few, whom I call 'automatic citizens,' who never think what is the law, but simply do right."

EDITORIAL

THE NORTH CAROLINA AND VIRGINIA

The annual session was with Lebanon church, Semora, Caswell Co., N. C., and began Tuesday at 10 a. m., November 18, closing Thursday evening at a late hour, November 20. It was a strenuous term, there being three sessions a day, and then many important and vital issues were crowded to the limit. The weather was ideal, the attendance was large; the hospitality unbounded, and the spirit of the meeting unsurpassed for fraternity and good fellowship. Prof. W. P. Lawrence presided with absolute fairness and with unequalled poise, dignity and parliamentary tact. President W. A. Harper was made Secretary, and with the assistance of Rev. H. E. Rountree, not only kept the records in perfect shape, but kept up a daily correspondence with several papers, and looked after multitudinous other duties. Rev. J. W. Holt, the retiring president, who has served several years with great acceptance, presented to President Lawrence, in the name of the Conference, a gavel made of wood taken from the old Lebanon church building where the Christian church in the South had its beginning and where the name Christian was adopted as the only and sufficient name for the church. The Treasurer of the Conference is Deacon D. S. Farmer, who, like Secretary Harper, serves the Conference in this official capacity without financial remuneration. Our minutes are kept, transferred, etc., and our money is handled without any cost to the Conference. Visitors to the Conference were Drs. W. S. Long, A. B. Kendall and M. T. Morrill, and Revs. L. I. Cox, D. P. Barrett, J. W. Patton, T. E. White, and Brother Netum Rathbun, all of whom made appropriate addresses and aided much in making the Conference so successful and efficient.

Dr. Long reminded the Conference that he had been a minister 53 years, but, as there was more gold in the earth than had ever been dug out, so was there more ability and power in the church than had yet been developed and manifested. We cannot give out without getting in, and if we but remain faithful to God He will yet give us the victory.

This Conference has decided to make a change in the matter of Moral Reform. As all know who have ever been to Conference, there is more said about moral reform during Conference, and less done for moral reform after Conference, than on any other topic whatsoever. This report is the signal for opening up the flood gates of pent-up oratorical powers and individual opinion on any topic within the range of human thought and mental grasp. This Conference decided that at least one thing would help considerably in the realm of good morals, and that was to get as many family altars established in the homes of the people of the Conference during the coming year as possible. Ten dollars was placed at the disposal of the Chairman of the Committee on Moral Reform and he is to use this in distributing letters and instituting something of a campaign for the establishment of family altars the coming year. Rev. W. L. Wells of Durham was made chairman of the committee, and if Bro. Wells can report to next Conference that his committee has been instrumental in getting a few scores of families to reading the Bible in their homes the present year, we can feel that something actual and practical is being done for moral reform.

Rev. J. W. Holt delivered the annual sermon and it was thoroughly enjoyed, was suggestive and inspiring.

Dr. A. B. Kendall preached on "The Why of the Christian Church," and the Conference voted a fund for the publication of the same in tract form for free distribution.

Three young men were licensed as probationers: J. F. Apple, H. Shelton Smith, and J. G. Truitt. These men are in Elon College as students, and all stand well in their classes. Two were ordained as elders: B. J. Earp and R. P. Crumpler. Both of these are graduates from Elon and have had successful experience as licentiates. Both give promise of usefulness and efficiency in the ministry.

Dr. M. T. Morrill gave two illustrated lectures before the Conference which were much appreciated, and Rev. D. P. Barrett gave two addresses which held closely the attention of his audience. Bro. Netum Rathbun spoke on our publishing interests, using a drawing of a wheel to illustrate his address. Bro. Rathbun has done good at the Conferences in advertising our various publications and in placing many religious books in our homes.

President W. A. Harper delivered three exceedingly instructive and edifying. The Conference appropriated $30.00 with which to have them printed in tract form for free distribution.

The Conference took the right step in throwing its strength, for home mission work, into the work at Reidsville. Rev. L. I. Cox is in charge, which is a guarantee of wise counsel and successful work. Bro. Cox has already organized a church in Reidsville with thirty-one charter members, and the same was admitted to membership in Conference. It is proposed to erect a building beginning in early Spring to cost not less than $3,500, and the money is on hand or in sight with which to do the work. Of this amount members of Conference gave, for themselves or their churches, $500, and Conference voted a like amount from its treasury for the work.

No Conference of those we have attended this year showed as many signs of progress and development along all lines as this one. Every enterprise received due thought, counsel and consideration, and the outlook for material and spiritual progress was never so bright as now in the old North Carolina and Virginia.

The ladies of the Conference, under the wise and energetic leadership of Mrs. W. A. Harper, Mrs. M. F. Cook, and Mrs. L. M. Cylmer, are making rapid progress and a full report of their work is to be given in the Woman's Missionary Department of THE SUN. They now have twelve societies; have raised the past year the amount set for themselves and have greatly increased their pledges, plans and purposes for the coming year. They held an enthusiastic meeting during the Conference, in a home nearby, and organized a society in the local church.

The Conference is to meet next year with Berea church, Alamance county, N. C.

A MISSIONARY CONFERENCE

All our Conferences laid emphasis on the subject of missions, and rightly so. If we are to advance in the work of the Kingdom we must be missionary. There is nowhere today such opportunity for Christian service with promise of such large returns as in mission fields. The call of the world, or rather the call of the Gospel to the world, never sounded in clearer notes than today, and we of the Christian church know full well that we have not done our duty, nor risen to our opportunity in missionary work.

But of all the Conferences this Fall the North Carolina and Virginia took the longest step forward along missionary lines. The church in which the sessions were held had its walls decorated with swinging charts bearing missionary mottoes and messages. Almost every speaker referred in one way and another to the subject of missions. The Committee on apportionments increased considerably the call for foreign missions the coming year. President W. A. Harper, who had been elected for the purpose, delivered three instructive and masterful addresses on missions, and so pleased was Conference with this part of its work that it voted an appropriation of $30 to have the addresses put in tract form for free distribution, and then elected Dr. Harper to deliver a series of three more addresses on the same topic next year. The speaker had acquainted himself with missionary methods and movements, and was full of his topic. He spoke with authority, for he had studied well his subject, and gave impulse and inspiration to those who heard him in the matter and interest of missions. Somebody made enquiry if this was not a missionary conference. The enquiry was justified, for certainly no topic was as much discussed as that of missions, Home and Foreign.

The only way a conference can grow is by doing missionary work. Old and long established churches do well to hold their own. What a Conference gains must be in new churches added, and in missionary work done off yonder. When all our Conferences come to be missionary you will see a great forward movement along all lines.

Judge Frank Carter of the Superior Court put a half dozen of the leading hotel managers and proprietors of Asheville under heavy bond for retailing liquor, and all are to be tried for breach of the law. Faithful judges and determined sheriffs can break up liquor selling in North Carolina if they will, and Judge Carter is doing his part in a most commendable manner.

The United States has not gone to war with Mexico, but what the Mexicans are doing with each other on the field of battle is enough. Federals and rebels had a general engagement near Juarez November 24, when in three fights 10,000 troops were engaged. The fatalities are not given other than that terrible conditions obtain among the sick and wounded.

Great regret is felt here at the untimely death of Lieutenant Eric Ellington, U. S. A., at San Diego, California, November 24, who, with Lieutenant Hugh Kelly, was trying an aeroplane for the army corps. Both men, losing control of their machine, fell about 100 feet and were killed instantly. Lieutenant Ellington went from Johnson county to the naval academy and made a fine record as student, and was meeting with success and promotion in the army, to which he had been transferred from the navy. He was a bright young man, and much esteemed in the home of THE SUN's editor, where he had warm friends and near relatives. One moment in health and happiness: the next moment hushed in death. Of such uncertainty is the life we live.

Elon College is building up in a most substantial manner, as a village and community. Esquire Jerry Whitesell is rushing to completion a nice two-story dwelling just south of the Bank and Publishing House, and this is to be occupied as soon as completed. A contract has just been closed with Mr. J. C. McAdams for two nice residences just across the street from the new Whitesell house, and we are advised that two or three dwellings are to go up shortly on the lots recently sold adjacent to our Graded School building. We said last Summer that our people here believed in plain living and high thinking, ate vegetables out of their own gardens and drank buttermilk of their own churning, all went to church on the Sabbath and then kept too busy about wholesome pursuits in the week to gossip about our neighbors. Well, the folks are still at this same sort of business, and are building, meanwhile, the most delightful community to live in this side of Charlotte and the Atlantic Ocean. If you don't believe it come and spend a week with some of our neighbors who have big fine hogs and turkeys and such to kill, and see.

NEWS AND VIEWS

—The three sons of the President of the Chinese Empire are in school at Cheltenham College, England.

—New York City is building the largest hospital ever erected for the care and treatment of those infected with tuberculosis. There are twenty massive buildings erected at a cost of $4,000,000 on Staten Island, on the crest of the highest point on the coast between Maine and Virginia.

—Of the $50,000,000 which Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo placed at the disposal of the banks for use in moving the crops this Fall, $34,311,000 have been taken, and the West will likely take a few more million before the crops are all moved.

—As a precaution merely, our government has placed reinforcements along the Texas border. President Huerta refuses to resign, and it now seems as if the usurper meant to hold on until driven from the presidency by force of arms.

—A meteorite of considerable size dropped into Craddock Park in Malden, Mass., on the evening of November 1, nearly striking two young men, who say that the visitor from space passed within less than a yard of them. So close were they to the flaming mass that the impact of its fall threw them to the ground and they were overcome by the fumes. Both felt the effects of their queer experience for several hours and complained of violent headaches and attacks of nausea. The meteorite buried itself ten feet in the earth, and when the news of its fall was noised abroad, the jagged hole it had made became the center of a curious throng. Scientists from Tufts and Harvard Universities have been called upon to exhume the starry visitor and tell the world of what it is composed. McDonald and Butler, the young men who so miraculously escaped death, declare that they saw the meteorite for several seconds before it reached the earth, but thought it was an ordinary falling star, and never imagined or suspected that it would come anywhere near them.—Christian Herald.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Suffolk Letter this week tells of progress among our colored brethren in church matters that will interest many and speak volumes.

—Bro. Pastor, let us send a few sample copies of THE SUN to prospective subscribers in your field, and the work of securing them as subscribers will be easy.

—The North Carolina and Virginia Conference did the handsome thing by THE CHRISTIAN SUN in deciding to secure through the pastors 250 new subscribers by April 1, 1914. The number was apportioned out among the churches.

—Pastor C. E. Newman, who has recently moved to Raleigh to become pastor of Hillsboro Street Christian church, is making a hit in his new field of labor and is having largely increased congregations.

—Elon College Christian Church has adopted the duplex envelope system and the Sunday's collections have increased from about $2.00 to more than $20.00 per Sunday, and the attendance at church services has greatly increased.

—Rev. L. F. Johnson, D. D., has been preaching a series of sermons at the Main St. Church, Berkley, Va., to young men and young women. His theme last Sunday evening was, "The Ideal Woman." His theme next Sunday p. m. is, "Is the Young Man Safe?"

—Our latest missionary statistics for Japan and Porto Rico are: stations and outposts, 33; organized churches, 15; church members, 1,037; baptisms during the year, 139; Sunday schools, 25; Sunday school enrollment, 2,769; Christian Endeavor Societies, 7.

—We congratulate our Baptist friends and brethren in Greensboro. They have agreed to erect a $5,000 church building in Chinkiang, China, and have already practically secured cash and pledges to that amount.

—Our good women are certainly waking up to their privileges and possibilities along missionary lines. Women of the Eastern Virginia, Western North Carolina, and North Carolina and Virginia Conference all held enthusiastic missionary meetings all their own during the recent sessions of these three Conferences.

—Our Disciples of Christ brethren know how to make claims and fling out to the world a name that is powerful and inviting, whether they have any legal right to it or not. Recently they held an International Missionary Convention at Toronto, Canada, and formulated the plans for a new order to be known as "The General Christian Convention."

—Will all Sunday school teachers who wish Peloubet's Select Notes for 1914 please send us in their orders at once. If delivered in December we can supply these at $1.00 the copy, though the publisher's price is $1.25. After Jan. 1 we will have to have $1.15—the 15 cents for postage. We pay transportation and deliver on all orders received in December for $1.00.

—The Methodist Protestant Conference in session at High Point the past week voted favorably on the question of union, on the part of that church, with the United Brethren church. More than 80 per cent. of the Conferences in the M. P. denomination have voted in favor of the union. The name the united body is to have is the United Protestant Church. It seems now as if the union will be effected.

—"They are blind to their own interests," exclaimed a public man of great experience and ability, in referring to pastors who were indifferent to the circulation of their denominational paper. We sometimes think that many pastors are blind to this matter, and that they themselves suffer from this blindness more than they are themselves aware.

—Hanks Chapel Sunday school, through that loyal layman, Bro. F. M. Farrell, sends $2.00 to help publish in tract form Rev. A. B. Kendall's great sermon before the Western North Carolina Conference on "The Why of the Christian Church." This makes $42.00 in all received on this fund, and if others wish to contribute so that more of the copies can be published the way is open, if attended to at once. It will be for free distribution when published.

—Now is the time to take subscriptions to your church paper. Conferences have been held, the people's minds are open to suggestions about church matters for the coming year, evenings for reading are long, and church claims of the year have all been attended to. If sample copies of THE SUN are needed to help in the canvass for new subscribers, write us, brother pastor, and we will endeavor to supply your needs.

—President W. W. Finley, of the Southern Railway, died very suddenly at his home in Washington, D. C., Tuesday, November 25. Mr. Finley was born in Mississippi, September 2, 1853, and by sheer dint of brain, character and energy worked his way from stenographer to President of one of the great railway systems of the country. Mr. Finley was doing much for development of the South industrially, and his untimely taking off is a loss to the entire country. He was an affable gentleman, a hard worker, and a most worthy man.

—If our Sunday schools do not organize Cradle Rolls and enlist the babies in Sunday school it will certainly not be the fault of Mrs. Bullock, Waverly, Va., Cradle Roll Superintendent of the Eastern Virginia Convention. Mrs. Bullock has this part of the work greatly at heart, and writes with an enthusiastic and vigorous pen. Her articles each week are interesting and suggestive also not only to cradle roll workers but to the general reader. We commend Sister Bullock's article each week to all our readers.

—On Sunday, November 30, and Monday, December 1, a United Missionary Campaign will be conducted in Suffolk. All five of Suffolk's churches are to unite in this missionary campaign, and great educational and inspirational results should follow. The live topic of the time is missions, and those who do not catch something of the missionary spirit is certainly out of touch with the time.

—Miss Myrtle Cox, daughter of our townsman, Rev. L. I. Cox, was married Tuesday p. m., November 25, to Mr. J. O. Sutton, of Lillington, N. C. Mr. Sutton was formerly Southern railway agent at Elon and is now with the Norfolk Southern at Lillington. He was a popular agent while here and much esteemed. Miss Cox is an Elon College graduate and has a host of friends. They left for a bridal tour to Washington and points North immediately after a quiet home marriage witnessed by a few relatives and friends, the ceremony being performed by the bride's father.

—It is a coincidence merely, but a rather singular one, that the presidents of the two greatest railway systems of the South, namely, the Southern and Atlantic Coast Line, should die on the same day, November 25, and both, apparently, in the best health only a few hours before, and both very suddenly. Col. A. B. Andrews, First Vice President of the Southern, on hearing of the death of President Finley, said: "It may be truly said that he worked himself to death." Many think that those high up in official circles of corporations and great business interests work on short hours and high pay; but they do err. Men who hold great positions pay for their place with brain, sinew, nerve, and life.

—Our sermon this week is from the lips of Rev. A. C. Dixon, born at Shelby, N. C., but now occupying the foremost pulpit in England, if not of all the world. His words are simple, his message clear, his theology so plain that a child can comprehend. If you are in a hurry this week and can't read anything else, read our sermonic section. It will pay you.

—If the laymen in all the churches were as wide awake, faithful and true as Bro. C. H. Stephenson of our Raleigh church, pastors would indeed have efficient and capable lieutenants with whom to prosecute the King's business. Bro. Stephenson is a busy man as merchant, but simply takes the time to devote to church interests.

"YE MUST BE BORN AGAIN."

A Sermon by DR. A. C. DIXON, Metropolitan Tabernacle, London.

"Marvel not that I said unto thee, ye must be born again" (John 3:7), or, as the margin has it, doubtless more correctly, "born from above."

OUT OF THIS text and the context come at least five great things: a great possibility; a great mystery; a great philosophy; a great necessity; and a great simplicity.

A GREAT POSSIBILITY

The great possibility is that anyone may be born from above. Such a birth is not confined to the spiritual world. When the caterpillar turns into the butterfly there is a birth from above. It rises into a higher realm. When the seed drops into the earth and the vital force in it takes up the mineral, there is a birth from above. That mineral is lifted into the vegetable kingdom. When the ox eats the vegetable, there is another birth from above, for the vegetable has been lifted into the animal kingdom, and when man eats the ox and it becomes part of his brain, fibre and nerve, there is another birth from above, from the lower into the higher animal kingdom, and when the Spirit of God touches the soul and causes repentance and faith with the upward look, there is a birth from above, a lifting into the higher spiritual realm one who heretofore lived in the lower physical, mental and moral merely. There is such a thing, I am sorry to say, as a birth from beneath. There is a going down in the physical, moral and spiritual scale. I saw a man, young, vigorous, strong, bright eye, clear brain, standing side by side with his bride as the pastor pronounced them husband and wife. Sober he was, industrious he was, intellectual he was, prosperous and happy he was. Within less than fifteen years afterwards I saw that man standing on the porch of a dilapidated shanty of a building. Unkempt he was, eyes bleared they were, nervous, trembling, the wife with her father, the children with their friends, and he, a confirmed, disgraced and apparently hopeless drunkard. There had been a birth from beneath, a force that dragged that man down into the lower realm. And we see that going on about us oh, so frequently. And sometimes there is a process like that in the intellectual as well as in the scientific world. There comes a wave of bad literature. The books are bad, the magazines are tinged with evil, the press catches the contagion, and we have a sort of epidemic of sin. I have been meditating lately as I have read one or two books along that line, of the birth from beneath that really came to the scientific world a generation ago. The indication is that there is now a re-action, a prospect of a birth from above. The great scientist, Charles Darwin, began life as a Christian in faith, intellectually at least. He believed the Bible and quoted it with authority. He prayed. He did not hesitate to say that there was a God, and that God had manifested Himself in Jesus Christ. He even thought of the ministry. He gave himself to scientific study. Very carefully, very studiously. He made many very important discoveries, but he never drifted from the fact that there may be a God. But the scientific philosophers about him: Huxley, Spencer, Haeckel, interpreted his teaching without God, and there was born an Agnostic Movement that refused to acknowledge God. The materialist movement has gone through our colleges and churches and even got into our Sunday schools. And it caught Mr. Darwin in its under-tow. For as he grew older he was frank enough to confess that he had lost all taste for painting, poetry, music and religion. And his son, in his biography, tells us that he had a taste for exciting novels. And the whole scientific world was more or less caught in this under-tow. I am thankful to say that there is a tendency upward now. I am thankful to God that the young men and women of our colleges and the great mass of people who think are looking upward, and beginning to recognize that back of everything there is a God at work and the God of nature as well as the God of grace is Jesus Christ our Lord.

Except a man be born from above he cannot see the kingdom of God. I am quite sure that phrase is a Hebraism which means, "born of the cleansing power of the Spirit." Except a man be born of the cleansing power of the Spirit he cannot have a vision of God as King at all. Except a man be born of the cleansing power of the Spirit he cannot enter into that kingdom, become a subject of that kingdom, be ruled by that kingdom, advance the interest of that kingdom. There is first the vision of the kingdom, and having an experience which makes you a very part of the kingdom. I say then that the great possibility is that any soul can get this vision and this experience. But a greater possibility is that a man like Nicodemus can get it; that a religious man, brimful of religious spirit, one of the officers in the synagogue, saying long prayers, doing religious things, every seventh day at least; a Pharisee, careful of the law; and not only a religious man, but a moral man, a decent sort of fellow; not only a religious and moral, but a cultured man; every indication that he was a man of the school, a man of education, a man of refinement; not only religious, moral, cultured, but influential; a ruler of the Jews, a member of the Court; the highest in the land—I say that the wonderful possibility is that a man like that can be lifted to a higher realm still.

THE GREAT MYSTERY

"Born from above." But how? That is what puzzled Nicodemus. How shall I begin life again? Shall I go back to my mother's arms? Oh, some of us would like to do that. We would be so glad to wipe out the past and begin with the babyhood, the lullaby, and the prayer at mother's knee. But that is not it. It is not being born again. It is being born from above. But how? The how of every birth is mysterious, the physical as well as the spiritual. The birth of the butterfly from the caterpillar is just as mysterious. The birth from the seed into the stalk and the ear and the full corn is just as mysterious. Life is invisible, we cannot trace it, but we are alive in the mystery.

A GREAT POSSIBILITY

How can we explain the great possibility and the great mystery of the new birth? You have the philosophy of it in John 3:16. "For," don't leave that out. We drop it usually, but it gives us the philosophy of the new birth. "For God so loved." That is the reason it is possible. That is the reason it is mysterious.

God so loved us he does the work himself. There is no power that can help God in producing the new birth. That is his work.

THE GREAT NECESSITY

"Marvel not that ye must be born again." Marvel at the possibility. Marvel at the mystery. Marvel even at the philosophy; at God's love in sending Christ to die for us, and at Christ's love in dying. It is so infinitely great that we cannot comprehend it. But do not marvel at the necessity. "Ye must be." If you do not get that vision of God in his kingdom you will never enter in as a subject. If you are not lifted from the lower to the higher you will not move along the higher plane through time and eternity.

In that discussion of the question, "What is Hell?" I noticed one of the writers told us he thinks perhaps hell and heaven may be the same place after all. The same place! He forgot just one scripture: "There is a gulf fixed." "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire." He forgot that. But the principle he was thinking about is worth remembering, for he says, hell would be heaven to a man in the kingdom of God with Christ enthroned, and heaven itself would be hell to a man self-enthroned and sin-mastered and Jesus Christ reigning about him in all his glory. Marvel not that ye must be or you will not be prepared for heaven. "Ye must be born again," or you will have to live and die on the lower plane of the flesh and self and sin. Let there be no wonder at the necessity. It is just as plain as the sun at noonday.

THE GREAT SIMPLICITY

"As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness." Notice how Jesus came to the level of Nicodemus. A Jewish Ruler, expert in Biblical knowledge. He knows every incident in Israelitish history, if he doesn't know every word of the Old Testament, and the pointings of the passages, and the middle word, the number of words, the number of letters and the number of sentences. There is no doubt about his knowledge. And he meets him on the plane of that knowledge that he may lift him up to the higher. You remember that scene in the wilderness when the Israelites were bitten by fiery serpents and were dying by thousands. God said to Moses, Make a piece of brass in the shape of a serpent, place it on a pole in the midst of the camp and whosoever looks at that shall be lifted into health, shall be born from above, shall be lifted out of the region of poison and taken into the region of health and joy. Your part is simple as looking. Your part gets no credit to you. God does the work when you look. Oh, friend, cease to philosophize. Cease to talk of the mystery, as you did when you ate breakfast or luncheon today. You were hungry and ate what you needed, and all the philosophers on earth could not explain how the bread gave strength, how the meat put red corpuscles in your blood, how it is the vital force appropriates these material things. No College or University could explain it, but you ate just as heartily as if you knew all about it. Stumble not at the mystery. Do the simple part that you can do and let God do His part, and He will do it well.

We see Nicodemus first in the midnight, with the day-dawn coming into his soul. Then we see Nicodemus in the twilight as a timid champion of Jesus Christ. The sanhedrim were just about to pass sentence of condemnation on Him when Nicodemus quietly rose and said, Is it our law to judge a man until we have seen and heard him? Then we find Nicodemus in the daylight. He comes out with Joseph of Arimathea and makes confession of Christ as he brings his spices to embalm His body. It was a courageous act. It is Nicodemus; not the timid champion now, but the blood witness for Christ. Oh, friend, will you do it tonight? I plead in the name of Nicodemus, the man who was timid at first, take a stand for Christ.—From The Golden Age.

MINISTERS' SALARIES

BY REV. CARLYLE SUMMERBELL, D. D.

In a recent sermon in THE SUN on the Lack of Ministers, which contained very good things and which showed a beautiful spirit, there is one sentence expressed that I wish we could think over. I refer to the suggestion in the question, "Who knows but that God keeps the ministry poorer in order to keep it purer?"

Now that is a very comforting sentiment to churches that pay their minister starvation wages. It reminds me of the old Scotchman that prayed when the new minister arrived, "O, Lord, you keep him humble, and we'll keep him poor."

But the intimation in this question of poor and pure is, that the Lord is also keeping him poor. I want to question whether it is the Lord, or some one else whose name is not mentioned in polite society, who is keeping the minister poor. Is this really the Lord's work, and is it a sign of grace in a minister not to take into consideration the question of salary at all, to feel that he is on a different basis than other children of God, and that such mundane questions as grocery bills, or cost of books, or rearing of children, are things which the Lord is responsible for, without the minister using common sense?

Really, brethren, has not our teaching been entirely wrong on this subject, and in order to cover up our lack of training the laymen and to excuse our own failures of making people benevolent and cheerful givers to the cause, we use our brains to work out a reason for conditions as they are, Who knows but that the Lord is back of this small salary propaganda? And I say, Who knows that He is? If you have the word of the Lord, give it.

Is it a fact that if men are underpaid for their services, it exalts the profession and makes them stronger and better men? Take the ministers in the South that you know in our own denomination. Is it a fact that the best paid men are conspicuous for their failures? Have the brethren who give good salaries to their pastors worked against the law of the Lord in this respect? Or put it another way. Is the religion of the preacher so little that if he got a good salary his religion would at once deteriorate, and he could not preach the gospel? Because our Savior had not where to lay His head and did not live in the parsonage, is that logical to say this is an example for a man with wife and children; not have where to lay his head?

I was born and brought up in the Christian church, and have always heard this exaltation of small salaries, but I do not believe it is the word of the Lord.

Do I think a minister should preach for money? Not alone. He has no right to preach unless he feels that he is giving the word of the Lord. But that does not depend on the dollar sign. It is possible that a man can preach on $600 or $1600, and some are known to have married rich wives when they can preach for nothing, if they so desire.

Nor is the kingdom of God confined to the ministry. The doctor has no right to doctor simply for the money he gets, and not care about his real success. But does a decent fee to the doctor keep him from diagnosing the case successfully? Or does the pay enable him to secure the best information along his line, and be a more efficient workman that need not to be ashamed?

Does the lawyer have a right to be a hireling and work for money irrespective of the truth and righteousness of the case? No. No. No. And ministers are partly to blame for the preaching the sacredness of the callings, as if they had the only calling that should be sacred in the whole world. It is a wrong gospel and a narrow view of the kingdom that makes the minister's calling alone sacred. Our missionary spirit should make our home land sacred, and our professions sacred, and our business life sacred. I tell you, brethren, we want to study the Lord's prayer we say so much and pray so little, to bring the kingdom on earth. The emphasis is to bring it on earth, as it is in heaven. And this earth must be saved, and sanctified, and glorified. And all men, not ministers alone, should contribute their share.

When a man talks like this, many people will accuse him of special pleading. But what of it? Some one must give the sensible word, and the sensible word is God's word. When I came to my present field, I received more salary than I did before. I came for a righteous purpose. When I leave this work, so far as I know, I will receive less salary than I receive here, and I will leave for a righteous reason.

Again my brother says, "Who knows but that a preacher is given small pay in order to keep out the hirelings?" Well, who knows it? I don't, do you? I think he receives poor pay or good pay because the people have not been so educated. Does a rush of hirelings follow good salaries in the ministry? If so, how can we account for the good pay in the Presbyterian churches and the vacant pulpits? Does the history of Christianity present this as a working basis of life? Were the churches that paid Paul a decent sum, especially disfavored by the Lord, or the reverse? Did Martha and Mary and Lazarus who were hosts to Jesus and his disciples, lose anything by being benevolent and spending with a lavish hand?

Does the college presidency lose, by being supported well? Does the editor or the teacher, or the professional man generally do any worse work by his being paid well or does it lower the personnel of those entering the clergy. Must the ministers be set apart, a recluse a sort of financial monk, a man who does not have a right to consider money and the kingdom, or grocery bills and the education of the children, and the work of a faithful wife, because there might be a rush of hirelings into the ministry?

I say that a decent salary when possible should be given by a decent church, and I challenge the suggestion that the Lord is actively engaged in keeping down the price.

Fall River, Mass.

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH AND THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETY

May I call your attention to the principles of the Christian Church.

1. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
2. Christian, is a sufficient name for the Church.
3. The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

4. Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.

5. The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be exercised by all.

Our Position in the Realm of Churches

1. A united church as opposed to sectarianism.

A platform on which the various denominational churches could come and unite in organic union, and practice their usages and rites as they may interpret the Scriptures, but without power to make others do as they may think and interpret.

3. We have a great Church. Not great perhaps in numbers, but great in its polity, and principles, and great in its responsibility.

4. We have a broad church; broad in its view of the Kingdom of God, and able to fellowship any Christian believer.

5. We have a very modest church; so very modest that in the 119 years of its existence it has failed to take its place in the world, and make known in many parts of the world her position, and teaching concerning the Kingdom of God.

One who will look, and study our beloved church will find that while it has done great good in the world; and has in it many strong men and women, and some spiritual life, yet it has great needs.

It needs a deepening of spiritual life, among the young as well as among those who are of riper years.

And it is apparent to the careful observer that there is a need of more consecrated leaders in the laity and ministry.

A need of greater missionary enthusiasm and zeal among ministers and laymen.

A need for a system of training that will bring the child, the youth, and the adult into trained and efficient leaders.

I believe that most of us agree as to these needs. Now I ask you to read, and I trust that you may see that the Christian Endeavor Society, if organized and fostered by pastor and official members, would in a short time help in giving to us what we need.

The Christian Endeavor Society stands for great principles like unto our own church. It stands for Christ and the church, for this is its motto.

Many regard the movement with suspicion, if not hastily. But a correct understanding of the organization will show that it is entitled to a place in our church, not as a stranger or foreigner, but as a child eager to assist in bearing the burdens and sustaining the honor of the Church.

It stands for spirituality and Catholicity.

For Loyalty and fellowship.

For Christian Missions, and all philanthropies, at home and abroad.

For good citizenship.

Peace and good will among men, arbitration and conciliation, are the watch words of the 20th century, as well as international brotherhood.

For beneficence and generous giving, and has its tenth Legion.

For high intellectual attainment.

For high devotional development with the comrades of the quiet hour.

For pure home life, honest business life, loyal church life, patriotic national life, joyous social life, and brotherhood with all mankind.

I call your attention to some fruit of this C. E. Movement. We have more than 70,000 societies in the world, three and a half million members.

Millions of former members who have gone out into the various forms of church work.

(Continued on Page 7)

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The 40th session of the colored Eastern Virginia Christian Conference was held in Antioch church in Suffolk, November 18-22. There are two Christian churches for the colored people in this new city.

Rev. S. A. Howell, D. D., of Newport News, is the President. He is a man educated at Franklinton Christian College, endowed with large gifts of body and mind, with large experience as leader, and a diplomat of great consecration. He wields the gavel with a master's hand and has the respect and confidence of his church and the Conference. He is pastor of the largest colored church in Newport News, President of a successful bank in that city, and puts his life and his money on the altar of the Lord in the interest of his denomination.

The Conference is composed of 42 churches, about 4,000 members, and 32 ministers. They raised the past conference year about $20,000 and during this session of Conference about $900. The Educational Board gave $200 to Franklinton Christian College, and they raised on the floor of Conference $150, making $350 for this Institution. The college was founded in 1878 in the town of Franklinton, North Carolina. A few years ago that property was sold for $3,500 and a farm one mile from Franklinton on the Seaboard Railroad was purchased for $1,500. A deep well has been bored on that property which without buildings, I understand, is now worth $10,000. There is now in course of erection a fine three-story concrete block school building which will cost $35,000, and it is nearing completion. It will be one of the best school buildings in the State. This school will supplement the public school and serve as a training center for ministers and teachers. When it is remembered that the white Christian church was a hundred years old before it had a school property of as much value as the colored church has, after fifty years of freedom, it speaks well for the race and the white friends who have assisted them in this great undertaking.

Rev. James W. Wellons superintended the erection of the first building and should be at the opening of the larger and more modern structure. This school has turned out some intelligent and worthy men who honor God and serve their race faithfully.

Rev. John Blood, President of the Board of Control of Franklinton Christian College, and who resides in Riegelsville, New Jersey, was present two days in the interest of the Institution. He attended our Wednesday night prayer meeting, took part in the same, and met a good many of our congregation. Deacon V. S. Kilby, who now resides in Burlington, N. C., with his daughter, was also present and made a fine talk in our prayer meeting. He is not only welcome, but greatly enjoyed when he visits his old church.

There were visitors at the Conference from the N. C. Conference and the Philadelphia Conference. Rev. Matthews, pastor of the Raleigh Christian Church, preached a great sermon on Friday night.

The local congregation had erected a house, in the rear of the church, for dining room and kitchen for feeding the people. In this building they fed hundreds morning, noon, and night; and an offering was taken each day to aid in the expense of entertainment. Some of the good people in our church made donations and loaned dining room articles for the occasion.

The Conference was harmonious, the spirit of the meeting was devout, the subjects before them were discussed wisely, and progress is marked on everything done in the meetings. Sunday schools, Temperance, the Home, and Education, all received due attention. The leaders are alive to the necessity for improvement in morals, purity, and education, and they are pressing these claims as fast as their constituency will bear them.

H. H. Butler, I. W. Johnson, laymen, and I. of our church, attended and enjoyed it.

W. W. STALEY.

THE FUTURE MINISTRY OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

BY C. B. RIDDLE.

In the early years of the Christian Church, when the work was at its beginning, those who entered the ministry were largely uneducated men, at least from our present educational standard. The work of the Church was begun. The task was before those who had faith in the principles of the Church and its teachings, and a great challenge confronted the untiring efforts of these noble patriots. Our people had no schools, and educational centers were not so numerous as they are today. The demands of education were not so pressing, and so the Church began its work largely with an uneducated ministry. Custom is hard to abandon, and since that day there have been those in the pulpit with a very limited education. These men have been the pioneers of the Church, and are today some of the strongest links in the chain of our brotherhood. I dare not pen one line against these noble souls; we cannot do without them. But I am confident from all this goodly number of Christian workers, there is not one who would not confess his need and inability to measure and cope with the pressure and demands upon him. At our best, we are then weak enough, and our tasks are never too light.

In the advancement of our denomination, we find in its history more and more educated ministers. This was natural, and was certainly in harmony with other denominations and their growth. Some of the older Protestants have long ago placed the training of its ministry at a very high standard, and now require graduation before the issuing of a license. The churches which have taken this step are today the strongest to be found. Why? Because such a standard insures leadership and proficiency—two very essential things for the growth of any religious sect. The Christian Church has not reached this standard, but in our estimation and way of seeing, we are now in the very shadow of this important step. Why do I say this? The question is easily answered. Ten good colleges and one seminary have been founded by our people, and are located in a convenient radius of the entire Church. The instruction in these institutions is free to all candidates for the ministry, regardless of denominational affiliations. The laymen are being educated to the extent of a college education. We are brought face to face as never before with other denominations and cannot rise as a Church above the educational standard of our ministry. Every indication points to this advancement. The Eastern Virginia Conference we learn will not give license to a ministerial student until he has finished his college course. We are not prepared to speak for other colleges of the Christian Church, but the ministerial student of Elon cannot serve but one church during the first two years of his study, and two churches during his last two. This insures more time for study and research work, which should certainly be done during the college course. Also in raising the curriculum recently at Elon, it was so arranged that all ministerial students are required to study the Greek language and the new course in theology. These steps were taken last year and there is a strong tendency in the College to do away with ministerial labors until after graduation. We are happy to say that this sentiment comes not from the Faculty alone, but is becoming popular in the minds of the ministerial class. Our position has always been for the student to finish his college course before accepting church work. This has been the minority side, but we do not hesitate to speak what we sincerely believe.

In practically all quarters the Church goes forward. The demands upon our ministry are increasing, and these demands come through the growth of the Church, and can only be met by trained men, both laity and ministers. The call comes from all quarters for strong men mentally and physically. The matter is purely a necessity and not a competitive spirit. The cause which the minister represents is one of utmost importance and demands the best judgment and leadership. The great Book from which the minister bases his fundamental principles is a book of science, of philosophy, history, and has in it all the elements of our modern education. High schools are abundant and hundreds of young men and women from the rural districts are seeking a college education, which is by necessity constantly raising the educational standard of our ministry, and most assuredly the minister must be a leader in education if he is to be a real shepherd of his flock.

Elon College, N. C.

WHY CHRISTIANITY IS DIFFERENT

How can an honest seeker after God know which is the best religion? It has been objected that there are hundreds of religions; and that Christianity is only one of the many. To which it has been replied that while there may indeed be hundreds of religions, there is only one gospel. And that while all the other religions make man see God, the gospel of Christianity is the only religion that shows God seeking man. When we contrast man's uncertainty and helplessness with God's certainty and omnipotence, what a mighty comfort there is in turning to the religion that bases its hope on what God can do for us rather than on what we can do for him. We set out with fresh courage to find our peace, victory and salvation in One who seeks us even at the cost of his own life.—S. S. Times.

President T. M. Emerson of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway died quite unexpectedly at his home in Wilmington, N. C., Wednesday evening, November 25. His death was due to an attack of acute indigestion. Mr. Emerson came South from Ohio in 1875 as a railway clerk, believing that the South held great possibilities for railway development. His pluck and energy and wisdom served him well, and he was promoted rapidly, until in November, 1905, he was made president. President Emerson was a nephew of the late lamented Rev. T. M. McWhinny, D. D., a Christian minister of national reputation, whose articles used to enrich the columns of THE CHRISTIAN SUN and who a few years ago preached the baccalaureate sermon and delivered addresses at Elon. President Emerson, by the way, was named for his uncle, Thomas Martin McWhinny.

CHURCH NEWS

NEW ELAM

DEAR BRO. ATKINSON:

I filled my first appointment for this conference year at New Elam yesterday. Our offering was good. The thanksgiving cards for the Orphanage were taken, all committees were appointed. We want the keynote for the coming year to be missions. I am looking for a good years work at this church. May the Lord bless us in our work.

G. R. UNDERWOOD.

ALDORA, GEORGIA

The work at Aldora is moving on nicely and interest increases steadily and surely. Our band is small, but there is not a more loyal people to be found anywhere. Religious cyclones frequently come and I think one has just passed over us, but our people are practically the same. I might say a few things about this meeting which lasted for seventeen days. It seemed as though everything was gone. I used to think that dear brother B. was the hottest headed religious fellow I ever saw, but I am bound to give it up. He is not. The man who held the meetings here seemed to make it his entire business to bring division in and among the church. But God crowned his efforts with failure. His course was like the chaff which the wind driveth away. After the thunder has ceased, the rain ceased and the cloud passed from over the earth, the sun shines on the tender plant. It grows more vigorously than before the storm. Our Sunday school attendance is the greatest in its history. We have a movement on foot for a new, or I had better say, a church building. We have been using a union church, but the time has come when we must build or quit, and we prefer building. A. N. M'ABEE.

Zebulon, Ga.

THE TRUE THANKSGIVING

'Tis well to set apart a day
Amidst the rush, the toil, the strife,
In which to meet, and sing, and pray,
And thank the God who gives us life.

'Tis well that church and nation blends
In songs of joy and hymns of praise,
To Him who all our blessings sends
And lengthens out unworthy days.

We keep the day with thankful hearts;
We feast; we sing; we fast; we pray;
And tell of crops and business marts,
Of blessings given day by day.

We thank Him for the nation where
The stars and stripes float on the breeze,
An emblem of our freedom here;
This land of wealth between the seas.

We should not compass in a day
Our thanks to Him for all the year,
But when at morn, or eve, we pray,
God should be thanked for life and cheer.

But thanks confined to words alone
Are poor indeed for us to give,
E'en though through them the heart has shown
Its praise to Him in whom we live:

For he who takes from friendly hand
A gift, however large or small,
And uses it to place a ban
On him who gives, is scorned by all.

Then he who from the Father's hand
Receives his blessings large and small:
His home, his friends, his health, his land,
His strength, his life, e'en, and his all;

And uses them for selfish ends,
To gratify his own desires,—
No words for him can make amends,
Nor praises light Thanksgiving fires.

The best of thanks that we can give
Is our own selves, from day to day,
And use these blessings while we live
To help God's cause as best we may:

Our time, our all, at His commands;
For true Thanksgiving is to give,
With loving hearts and ready hands,
The use of blessings while we live.

W. T. WALTERS.

Winchester, Va.

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH AND THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETY

(Continued from Page 5)

Millions of dollars given to missions and other charitable objects.

Millions of associate members brought to Christ, through the society.

Systematic religious work undertaken for sailors, soldiers, prisoners, and other work, that is too numerous to mention; and a religious influence and impulse that cannot be weighed, measured, or tabulated.

Its Demand

Christian Endeavor *demand*s that Christ shall be supreme in the life.

Christian Endeavor insists on the necessity of higher up, and deeper down, religion and asks not only what did Jesus do, and what would He have me to do, but for the source of power by which to do it.

Christian Endeavor protests against the idea that religion means dullness and gloom, and insists on glad enthusiasm and abounding life, as the essential mark of discipleship.

Christian Endeavor holds that young men and young women should meet together in a common quest for God and goodness, and that their comradeship will be a greater blessing than if either sex met separately.

Christian Endeavor protests against the idea that Christians should abstain from civic and municipal responsibility, and demands that the public conscience should be stimulated by Christian ideals, and that Christian men and women should do their utmost to return clean men, of whatsoever political party, to place of power.

Christian Endeavor believes in the Church, the sacrament, an ordained ministry, but protests against the intrusion of the priest into the office of Christ, and against the notion of sacramental grace apart from the living faith of the soul.

Christian Endeavor is a protest against isolation and exclusiveness of our religious bodies, and while pledging its members to make their own churches first in their affections, demand that each sheep should remember that it belongs not only to its special fold, but equally to one flock. That each soldier should think not only of his own regiment, but of the entire army. And that each member of the body should seek the life and power of the whole organization of which Christ is the Head.

A Plea for the Christian Endeavor Society.

Are we not negligent, and perhaps recreant to our trust, and performance of duty, if we fail to make every effort to organize a society in our church, and help it in working out the ideal the general society has?

In some places the cry is that we have too many societies now in our church. Look over your church and see if you have not some society that has only one feature of the work in hand. Now the Christian Endeavor society is a well rounded organization, and can care for any train of the various needs and enterprises that we are called upon as a church to do. And if only one night is desired, why not take one night for the organization that will cover the work in general, rather than have two or three that are only partially covering the field.

I know that every committee and organization thinks that their society is the one to be pushed forward, but does it cover the entire field of operation as the Christian Endeavor Society does?

I ask you to weigh the matter and see if with an Endeavor Society you could not do more work and better work and only be taxed with one society and one night.

But if you have more time and desire more organization then add the special.

But for all around work, if the departments are looked after you can bring out of the Christian Endeavor Society a large amount of good for each interest we have as a church.

Dr Francis E. Clark, declares: "Again I have learned that our fellowship is an essential feature of Christian Endeavor. This, too, is not a matter of zones, or climates, or latitudes, or languages, our fellowship is a universal God given, fundamental feature of Christian Endeavor."

Our World's conventions demonstrate it. The movement, today more emphatically world wide than ever before, emphasize it.

In every land I have felt the heart throbs of my fellow endeavorers, our fellowship is expressed in different ways, but it is the same fellowship.

In Japan I have prostrated myself on hands and knees with my fellow endeavorers, and touched my forehead to the floor as they touched theirs.

In China, over and over again a thousand Endeavorers have stood up as I addressed them, and have shaken their own hands at me, while I have shaken my own hands at them.

In India they have hung scores of garlands about my neck until I have blushed for my own unworthiness of such a flowery welcome.

In Bohemia they have embraced me, and kissed me on either cheek.

In Mexico they have hugged me in a bear's embrace, and patted me lovingly on the back.

Always I have felt that these greetings were far more than personal matters. They represent the fellowship of the cause. Always, what ever the form the loving greeting of loving hearts is the same. So it seems to me, as I have gone around the world again and again, I have heard the gentle words of fellowship from a million Endeavorers Peace, Peace, Peace."

DAN'L A. KEYS.

South Norfolk, Va.

Down in Alabama the saloon folks and liquor people generally are reported to be lined up for Hon. Oscar Underwood for United States Senator. It is furthermore stated that two thousand preachers in Alabama will vote solidly for Mr. Hobson. Seeing this last statement, an Alabama paper remarks, "So the preachers want to mix up Church and State." We would like to know what those liquor dealers want to mix up! About the silliest and most senseless cry ever uttered is, that when preachers want to vote their preference, they are mixing Church and State—an old bugaboo, by the way, that died over a hundred years ago, but which the unthinking use when they want to frighten and intimidate. We presume the preachers of Alabama want to vote for Mr. Hobson because they believe he would do all he could to put the saloon out of business, and the liquor dealers want to vote for Mr. Underwood because they believe he would leave the saloon to ply its deadly work, and there is no mixing of church and state in either case.

The only reward a man ever receives for trying to emulate fools is to be laughed at by fools for his folly.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, NOVEMBER 30

Subject: "Crossing the Jordan." Text: Joshua 3:7-17

Time.—From the seventh to the tenth day of the first month (Josh. 4:19), B. C. 1451 (Ussher), 1407 (Toffteen). Other scholars give other dates.

Place.—The Jordan, near Jericho.

Persons.—Joshua, priests, all Israel.

Golden Text.—Fear thou not, for I am with thee. —Isa. 41:10.

Leading Thought.—While God is with us, we have nothing to fear.

The beginning of this lesson found the Israelites at Shittim, a broad terrace at the base of Moab mountain, just opposite Jericho, but with the raging river between them and the city. When they advanced the ark was carried more than half a mile ahead of them, so that all could see it. It should remind them that God had delivered Noah and family from greater waters than these.

The people were to sanctify themselves by the cleansing of clothes, bathing and the like, the outward expression of inward purification.

The Jordan at this point is from 500 feet to half a mile wide, so swift and deep that only a powerful swimmer could cross it. "And the feet of the priests that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water." Suppose they had refused to march into the water. Would the miracle have occurred?

Seventeen miles to the north, at Adam, just above the mouth of the Jabbok, the river is very narrow, and the cliffs bounding it are high and soft. This is probably the spot where the river was dammed up, either by a fall of the cliff or by the rise of the river bed through the volcanic action to which the region is subject. All below this dam, twenty-three miles to the Dead Sea, the Jordan bed would speedily be drained dry. This would last till the accumulated waters had eaten their way through the dam, or risen sufficiently to flow over it. This natural explanation of the event does not make it less a miracle; the miracle lay in timing the event just when it would be useful to the Israelites.

An interesting fact is given by LeClere, which is in harmony with the miracle of the dried Jordan. "In the year 1672 the Dutch expected an attack from their enemies by the sea, and public prayers were offered for their deliverance. It came to pass that, when their enemies waited for the tide, in order to land, the tide was retarded, contrary to its usual course, for twelve hours so that their enemies were obliged to defer the attempt to another opportunity, which they never found, because a storm arose afterwards, and drove them from the coast."

Object Lesson

A souvenir of some place the superintendent has visited. Most of us have souvenirs of various places where we have been. We like to keep them as memorials of our trips to points of interest. We show them to our friends and say: "I got this at Plymouth Rock." "I got this at the World's Fair in Chicago." Today's lesson tells of a wonderful collection of souvenirs which the Hebrew children saw for years in Canaan. It was a pile of twelve stones collected from the bottom of a river when the river was a raging flood. It was a wonderful souvenir of a wonderful journey.

Lesson Announcement

Today's lesson told of the Israelites reaching the west bank of the Jordan. The conquest of all this Promised Land from the Jordan to the Mediterranean was yet to be made. Directly in their road lay an important walled city. Next Sunday's lesson tells how they were able to take this city, not by a prolonged siege, but by using the Ark of the Covenant as God directed.—Hageman.

NOTES ON C. E. TOPIC, DECEMBER 7

Subject: "The Ideal Christian. XII. His Rewards." Psalms 1:1-6.

The leader should make his opening speech especially attractive and inspiring. He might discuss the rewards that come to people in business. The farmer is rewarded for his efforts by a good crop, the manufacturer by a good machine, the mill owner by a good piece of cloth. Sluggishness has its reward in weeds, in a poor piece of machinery, or a bad piece of cloth.

Assign to members a week in advance the following topics and ask for two or three minute talks on each:

1. Physical Rewards.
2. Mental Rewards.
3. Spiritual Rewards.

The leader will write on the blackboard: "What Rewards Are We Working For?" Let members answer this question.

Some Christian Rewards

The rewards of the Christian are legion. The most important things of life are:

Happiness.—By this is not meant a "good time." Let some one distinguish between the two.

Contentment.—What is the difference between this and happiness? One should be contented when not happy and he will be if his trust is in God.

Ease.—This is not a Christian virtue, except as a mental trait. The Christian does not have time for ease when he sees the world so much in need of Christ.

Prosperity.—As the world regards being prosperous, it is not a Christian virtue. That man who seeks to help his fellowman and does it wisely will prosper in the things that are eternal, but may be poor in things temporal.

HOW SHALL WE TREAT MIRACLES?

The thoughtful Sunday school teacher is constantly confronted with the question of how far shall he credit miracles to natural causes. This question is peculiarly involved in next Sunday's lesson. The helps give certain plausible explanations of Bible occurrences, some of which intimate that God was in no way responsible for them, while others would assign them to God's omnipotence and not believe that he used natural agencies.

Somewhere between these two extremes is the truth. The careful, consecrated teacher will probably advise the class that these miracles were far from a mere accident or coincidence, but were planned and executed by God. At the same time he should study with the class the methods God used. The Great Creator of the Earth and all its possibilities would not likely ignore these and the great natural laws He established and bring something to pass in a different way.

Let us teach then that it was the Master's hand that directed the forces of nature to the ends reached, but also teach that He respects his own great natural laws and will not set them aside when he can accomplish his results by following these laws.

WITH THE VANGUARD

The First Philathea Class of our Greensboro church is conducting a membership campaign. Mr. W. B. Truitt is the teacher of this class of 75 young women.

A Cradle Roll with 20 charter members has been organized in the Hobson Christian church, Nansemond county, Virginia. The officers are: Mrs. L. L. Eley, Supt.; Mrs. G. E. McNeal, Teacher; Mrs. J. T. Johnson, Secretary. We wish this class much success.

Largely through the efforts of Brother A. N. McAbee, a Christian Endeavor Society was organized on November 16 with 22 charter members at Zebulon, Ga. It was a rainy day, which kept many away who intended joining, so the number will soon be increased. The officers are: J. M. Martin, President; A. N. McAbee, Vice President; G. C. Moon, Secretary; J. P. Ballew, Corresponding Secretary; Georgia Barber, Treasurer. Brother McAbee will soon organize a class of young ladies. He is one of our most progressive brethren.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

The coming session of the Christian Missionary Association at the Christian Memorial Temple, Norfolk, Va., December 9, 1913, promised to be one of the best sessions ever held. We fully realize that it should be such, since there is an awakening interest in missions throughout the Conference. At the late session of the Eastern Virginia Conference the rising missionary tide could be easily discerned. We are looking to larger and better days in the work of the Kingdom.

The Christian Missionary Association has and is a powerful agency in the home mission work of the Conference. It is an indispensable helper. It is doing a worthy work. At present it is standing by the work at Portsmouth, Newport News and Winchester, Va. Other places need its assistance. We long to see the day when it shall be able to do more. It has promise of great usefulness before it.

The Association ought to have a larger membership. Many churches and Sunday-schools have not become members, as yet. We are hoping they will catch the vision and fall in line at the coming session. Also, there are many brethren among us and sisters too that ought to have memberships in the association. The Lord has made them able but they have not yet become willing. We pray that they may become willing and help the cause of Christ while they live.

Further, we need members in the Association who will not stop with one membership, but who will rather take two, five or ten memberships, as they may be able. We ought to have many members of this class. Who will start the list?

Remember the Association meets December 9, 1913 and we are expecting an enthusiastic meeting.
J. W. HARRELL, Pres.

"Learn as if to live forever; live as if to die tomorrow." It is a motto that no young man can take without lifting his life to a higher level of thought and action.

It is one of the greatest delusions of the world for us to suppose that people are well off or blessed or prosperous because they are delivered from the necessity of toil.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Sec'y. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

THE IDEAL PRESIDENT OF A MISSIONARY SOCIETY

It is with fear and trembling that I attempt to write a few words upon this subject, because experience has taught me that very many women shrink from accepting that office, feeling their inability to perform its duties. This article is written in the hope that no woman may become discouraged, feeling her own inability to reach these ideals, but with a desire to spur each one on to higher ideals. Lowell says, "Not failure, but low aim, is crime." "The people satisfied with themselves and their work never advance; it is only those who have an ideal far beyond them who really struggle up into life and perfection." With that thought in mind, let us study a few characteristics that make an ideal missionary society president.

Personal Consecration. She must realize that she is a helper, a co-worker with God in the stupendous task of bringing the whole world to Christ, and only by a life of prayer and self-surrender will she be able to do her share in that great work. Prayer means power, and power comes in no other way except through prayer.

Energy. The uninterested so often call the missionary meeting a dull, dead affair, and even though this criticism may be unjust it lies within the power of the president, by her energy and wide-awake methods, to make the missionary meeting so attractive, enlightening, and irresistible, as to leave no room for such a criticism. The business of the society should be thought over and planned so that it can be quickly disposed of. The president should be sure that each person who has a part in the program has been notified what is expected of her in time for her to make the proper preparation. The printed program is not sufficient, unless a marked copy is sent to each one having a part a month before her participation. Only by the president's personal supervision may she be sure not to have a failure in the program.

Perseverance. There may be a tendency to become discouraged because the members do not respond to our efforts and seem indifferent to the cause of missions, will not attend the missionary meetings regularly, and do not seem to feel their responsibility in making the meetings successful; but it is the persistent effort—the "everlasting keeping at it," that overcomes this indifference. It is God's work and we must leave results with Him after we have done our best. Let us remember there is no work that brings larger results to our own lives.

Tact. The president is not only to preside at the meetings of the society, but she is to preside over the work of the members, to inspire them, getting them to work and keeping them at it. She may have a word of praise for a good paper or for good work done, and a tactful suggestion for improvement here and there.

Inventiveness. The ideal president avoids getting into a rut, varies the programs, does the unusual things, keeps a lookout for new plans, makes a file of helpful ideas from missionary magazines, and tries one of them occasionally, visits missionary conferences and conventions whenever possible with the thought in mind of bringing home inspiration and methods that may be applied to her own work.

Information. Perhaps in no other phase of Christian work is up-to-dateness so essential as in missions. The missionary world is making very rapid changes. Items from last year's missionary magazines are of little value except as a matter of comparison to bring to mind those rapid changes. The ideal president subscribes for and reads the leading missionary magazines, especially those of her own denomination, and keeps abreast of the latest missionary books.

But it is so hard to realize perfectly one's ideals! However, there is one ideal to which we may all attain, and that is an ideal willingness to do our very best in the tasks assigned us, even though it may involve sacrifice on our part. And the Author of missions, in whose cause we labor, can make every honest effort count, and if we faithfully use our talents, be they one or ten, He will greatly increase our ability.—Mrs. Abbie B. Denison, in The Christian Missionary.

WILL WE KEEP FAITH?

We are now at home in the States. We had expected to remain in Porto Rico through the winter, but a change of climate seemed necessary for the family. Our five and a half years on the field, exposed constantly to the malaria carriers, seemed to be a warning for a cooler climate.

For two years we had hoped that the Mission Board would send some one to share responsibilities and who could serve as a leader during our absence. The Board has not felt justifiable in taking that responsibility, so our hopes were in vain. Seeing only one thing to do, we set about doing that.

On the nineteenth of August last, we left each preaching point supplied with a native brother. Rev. Rafael Hernandez was put in charge of the Ponce field with a general oversight over all other points. A monthly report of each worker and of all work done at each preaching place, will be forwarded through Bro. Hernandez to me. By this means we hope to keep in close touch with the work and the workers during our furlough.

The reports for September are in, and are as follows: Fifty-one sermons delivered, twenty-two prayer meetings, twenty-eight Sunday schools held, eight Christian Endeavor meetings, nineteen cottage prayer meetings, twenty-one Bible class studies given, three hundred and seventy-one pastoral visits, eleven dollars and sixty cents offering, seven baptisms, seven professions of faith, seven marriages, and one funeral.

We have heard directly from each of the brethren in charge of the work and from some of them a number of times. They are in good spirits and hopeful of doing good. However, these young brethren, with Bro. Hernandez excepted, having had but limited school advantages, find that they are not equipped for carrying these responsibilities for an unlimited time.

I feel that these circumstances bring up to us a genuine call for greater efforts, more united efforts on the part of the Christian Church for our missionary work in Porto Rico.

For the last few years retrenchment has been in the minds of many, owing to existing circumstances, the lack of finances. To us, on the field, such an idea has never been long entertained.

The pressing need of reinforcements and the better equipment of our native men for the actual work already undertaken has indeed filled our minds and hearts as no one can feel it except one on the mission field.

We have three missionaries at home from Porto Rico who were directly employed by the Board: Rev. H. J. Rhodes, Rev. T. E. White, and Miss Jennie Mishler. Also, Rev. Wallace McCloud and wife, who were in Porto Rico and interested in missionary work, but never directly employed by the Board.

Not one of these mentioned expects to return to Porto Rico, so far as I am informed. At any rate, I know that the Mission Board, from the appropriation made for Porto Rico for the coming year, does not expect any of them to return. I do not believe it is the desire of the Mission Board to see the work in any way retarded. To have been with them in their last Board meeting and to have seen their heart-yearnings for the means to advance the cause and meet the demand, would have been sufficient proof to any mind of their great love and interest for the mission cause.

With the need of two more missionaries in our Porto Rican Mission, a better educated native ministry, and the financial straits on the Mission Board, we believe we see an opportunity for the Christian Church which compares with no other opportunity at the present time.

On August 19, as I was seated in the two-o'clock auto, which runs between Ponce and San Juan, and we were being driven out of Ponce at the rate of thirty or forty miles an hour, there was an undescribable sadness which swept over my soul. I remembered so many questions that had been asked by our Porto Rican friends. "Do you think you will return to us?" "Have you given up your house?" "Have you sold your furniture?" "How long will you be away?" "Will any other missionary be sent to take your place?" These questions within themselves carry but little importance, but the motive for such questions is the point I wish you might see.

When Brother T. E. White left Porto Rico we accompanied him to the railroad station in Ponce, expecting to have him return to the work later, but it has turned out otherwise. When Sister Mishler left for her first furlough, she expected to return within six months, and remained away about two years. The last furlough given her was over a year ago, and she will probably never return.

There is a doubt in the minds of our Porto Rican friends and brethren as to the actual attitude of the Christian Church toward them and the work of which they have gladly become a part.

Am I mistaken when I declare that the Christian Church has a sacred duty to our Porto Rican constituency? I believe I am not.

In 1901, your missionaries were sent to Porto Rico. There was no call to the Christian Church except a call from God and the call of an opportunity to help your unfortunate brother. Your humble servant, in the best of faith and his soul upon God's altar to go anywhere the Christian Church might call him, felt that Porto Rico was the place to go. Bro. H. J. Rhodes and myself lost no time after our arrival in renting a hall in which to hold religious services. The name, Christian Church,

(Continued on Page 10)

WILL WE KEEP FAITH?

(Continued from Page 9)

in large black letters on a white background, was painted over the hall doors, and remains till the present day, though the hall was given up nearly a year ago.

Missionaries asked, "What church is that?" Natives asked if all churches were not Christian. To which questions varied answers were given. Some said, "I never heard of the church." Others said they did not know why it was called the Christian Church. Our creeds were sought for and we gave the Bible. The Porto Rican was advised not to join that church, it was too poor. It had no standing, for it had never been heard of before. Why not join this and that church, for they are large churches. They are wealthy ones. It has the most money of any denomination in the world. With all these disadvantages, the mistakes of an unexperienced missionary dealing with the stranger in a strange tongue, the Christian Church has been blessed and many souls have been saved down in Porto Rico.

I believe that God has given the Christian Church a trust to keep in regard to our mission there. Shall we keep our Porto Rican friends with a doubt as to what the final result of our relations shall be? Shall those young men who are struggling to carry a strong man's burden be relieved and educated while the Church sends missionaries to take their places?

Shall we sustain the work in such a way that the Christian Church of Porto Rico shall be an important factor in the building of home, church and State?

Let every individual of the Christian Church answer according to his most holy convictions.—Rev. D. P. Barrett, in Herald of Gospel Liberty.

THE GREAT AWAKENING

That a great awakening is taking place among the Protestant majority is every day becoming more and more evident. The vital question is, has this awakening come in time to save us from a struggle almost if not altogether revolutionary in its character? The Roman Catholic hierarchy has become already possessed of such control at Washington through the pro-Romanish administration of Taft, that great vigilance and patient perseverance will be required to dislodge her. It is evident that we have put off the evil day too long, and must therefore pay the penalty of our over-confidence. In many of the large cities she claims that she has nothing to fear in an open contest. This is likewise true of one or two states.

European nations, that have learned what it means to be under her denomination, by bitter experience, and which have cast her out, are watching the struggle in this country. To them it is a matter of great surprise that we, a people who have boasted of our liberal institutions, should allow the world-wide enemy to liberty and enlightenment to get control of our government. How is it that we have ignored the object lesson presented to us by every nation in the world, where the papal hierarchy have been in control? The history of their struggles to regain liberty, has been the news of every day, for the past decade. There can be only one answer to this question and that is the sin of covetousness. The business world has been the wild race after the almighty dollar, while politicians have only thought of gratifying their ambition, and society of the gratification of divers lusts while the masses of the people have been quietly looking on. Our literary lights have patted each other on the back with the thought that never again can the history of the dark ages be repeated.

Rome has been permitted, through our negligent indifference, to drive the Bible out of our public schools, as well as all books that gave a true history of the great Reformation. We have suffered her insolent slanders against the schools from which she has driven out the Bible—the key to knowledge—and all authentic histories. Her foreign priests are bold in declaring that the schools are "Godless," and corrupters of youth. She has boldly denounced our public schools and build with our money and approval her parochial schools, while European nations have denounced her parochial schools and have legislated them out of business as being corrupters of morals and national patriotism, and worse than useless as educators in anything but the catechism, and the fabled lives of her army of saints.

The price of liberty is eternal vigilance, is the trite saying of one of the forefathers and lovers of that liberty. We are away in arrears in our payment of the price, and by our neglect have come to the place where it becomes a vital question. Shall we be able to make up the payments and save that liberty of which we have so long boasted? Without divine help it is a grave question if we will. By God's help united with an effort to help ourselves we still believe it is possible.—The Christian.

PER CAPITA FIRE LOSS

The per capita fire loss in the United States for 1912 was $2.55, which is many times higher than it was in the principal European countries. The per capita loss in England was 54 cents, in France 84, and in Germany 20. So our loss was more than ten times as great per capita as in Germany

Join the CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 16.

Raise Money For Your Church Society

WRITE US for our plan by which ladies can quickly earn money for their Missionary Society, Ladies' Aid, etc. Any woman wanting to earn money easily and in a dignified manner for any purpose whatever will be interested in our proposition. Modern Specialties Mfg. Co., 130 High St., South Bend, Ind.

Is the world growing better? If not, why not?

WHY COUGH?

Most coughs are useless. Then why cough? Better go to your doctor. Ask him to prescribe. If he orders Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, take it. If something else, take that. Let him decide.

J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Own a Williams Corn Mill

Costs No More--But Pays More

Dealers
Write for Attractive Offer

It will more than repay its cost in a short while, whether you grind simply for yourself or grind for the public.

There is no other mill made to compare with it. The only one with pebble stone grit buhrs, which produces the finest quality table and bread meal and the most nutritious feed meal; so adjusted that hard substances cause no injury. Patent device prevents buhrs from running or drifting together when grain runs out. Grain is cleaned before it reaches the buhrs by automatic cleaning fans. Equipped with new, simple feed, sifter, and modern type ball-bearings. Heavy frame, rigidly bolted. The Williams is the one mill that will never disappoint you. Sold on absolute satisfaction or money back guarantee. Ask your dealer or write us at once for free catalog and full particulars.

WILLIAMS MILL MANUFACTURING CO.,

41 Main Street.

Ronda, North Carolina.

Tampa Yacht Club, Stained with Cabot's Creosote Stains
Bonfoey & Elliott, Architects, Tampa, Fla.

Beautify Your Buildings—Save Half Your Paint Cost

Preserve Your Woodwork—Save Half Your Labor Cost

The high cost of linseed oil and other ingredients makes the price of paint higher than ever before or the quality poorer. Cabot's Creosote Stains are better than paint, especially for the South, and they can be applied twice as fast, so that the labor cost is only half as much as painting. Anyone can put them on, with a wide flat brush that covers the surface very rapidly. They are made of the finest and strongest colors—all natural pigments that will wear as long as colors can—thoroughly ground in linseed oil. Their liquid is refined Creosote, the best wood preservative known, and this penetrates the wood and protects it against decay. Paint is a surface coating and has no real penetrating preservative quality, but the Creosote in Cabot's Stains goes into the wood and tans it like leather. The Stains form no coating over the surface and therefore cannot crack or peel off as paint does in the South so that they not only look much better, but wear much better than paint. Cabot's Stains are ideal for Southern buildings—cheap, lasting, preservative and sanitary. They are used on all kinds of wood; shingles, siding, boarding, fencing, etc. Be sure that you get the genuine Cabot's Creosote Stains. There are many worthless and inflammable imitations, made of Kerosene and cheap, crude colors.

We will send you free a package of stained wood samples, showing the colors, and catalogue giving full information. Send your address.

Samuel Cabot, Inc., Manufacturing Chemists Boston, Mass.

NORTH CAROLINA DISTRIBUTORS

B. F. WITHERS, Charlotte
PECK & HOLLOWAY, Wilmington
T. H. BRIGGS & SON, Raleigh
BUILDERS SUPPLY CO., Greensboro
CLARK HARDWARE CO., Hendersonville

CITIZENS LUMBER CO., Asheville
R. E. WILBY, Southern Pines
BROWN-ROGERS CO., Winston-Salem
PUBLIC HARDWARE CO., Durham
ROWAN HDW. & FURNITURE CO., Salisbury

Subscribe for The Christian Sun!

ONLY $1.50 PER YEAR

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of higher education fostered by the Southern Christian Convention.

MODERN IN EQUIPMENT, Steam Heat, Electric Lights, Baths, Sewerage, Elegant New Buildings.

A HIGH GRADE INSTITUTION whose graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great American Universities without examination.

MAINTAINS EXCELLENT MUSIC, Art, Elocution, Normal, and Preparatory Departments.

A FACULTY OF SEVENTEEN SPECIALISTS, with a successful record of twenty-three years behind it.

HAS ALL THE ADVANTAGES of city life with none of its disadvantages. Situated in the delightful hill country of North Carolina, famed for its healthfulness, pure water, and high moral tone.

ELON COLLEGE HAS DONE MORE to build up the Christian Church than any institution ever yet commissioned by our people.

TERMS VERY MODERATE. $141 to $191 per session of ten school months.

For catalogue or other information, address,

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, Elon College, N. C.

and about five times as great as in England. These figures suggest at a glance the reason our fire insurance premiums are higher than Europe's. Premiums are based upon losses, and they are not likely to be much lower until we have fewer fires and less destructive ones. The chief reasons for the lower fire losses in Europe are the more durable construction of buildings and the greater carefulness of the people. Having less wealth, they can less afford to suffer loss by fire. They take better care of what they have than we do.

Travelers abroad have often commented on the slowness and lack of modern equipment of the fire departments of Europe, so it is not true that their fire losses are smaller because they know more about fighting fires. They have less need than have we of very capable fire departments.

FIRST-CLASS

Brigadier-General Funston, in command of our troops in Hawaii, has adopted a novel division of his soldiers into first, second, and third class, according to the neatness of their attire and the fineness of their behavior. First-class men are granted special privileges.

In this step General Funston is simply following the lead of General Custom, who regulates the affairs of the world.

Everywhere the men of neat attire, fine bearing, courtesy, and manifest manliness are placed in a class by themselves. They have special honor and special privileges. Other men instinctively look to them for noble words and deeds. They are offered the best places. If they prove to be evil at heart, all men grieve.

It is worth while to be first-class, in clothes and in hat-tipping as well as in everything else.—C. E. World.

GIVING THANKS

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving Day. Throughout this land of ours many prayers and words of praise will go upward to the Giver of all gifts for the bounties and blessings of life. God will hear these prayers and praises of his people, and will answer them by sending another prosperous year. But many will not recognize the answer to their own prayer, else they would give thanks each day rather than on Thanksgiving day alone. "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O most High: To show forth thy loving kindness in the morning and thy faithfulness every night."—Psalms 92:1-3.

C. B. RIDDLE.

Tuesday, November 25, Francis B. Sayre and Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson were married at the White House in Washington. This is the thirteenth White House marriage in the history of our country. Miss Wilson's wedding cake, made and shipped from New York, weighed 145 pounds.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books; Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

Your Money Will Earn 6%

With absolute safety if invested in Guaranteed Gold Bonds

secured by First Mortgage on North Carolina Real Estate worth twice amount bonds issued against it. Bonds due one year after.
Principal and interest guaranteed. Interest payable semi-annually. Denominations $100.00 up. Ten Years in business without loss of a penny for any patron.

Write for free booklet.

PIEDMONT TRUST CO.
Burlington, N. C.

EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

has often heard class-members say: "I cannot understand the Bible." They could not understand any other book that was printed three hundred years ago. So many English words of that day were different.

More than forty new dictionaries have been required since then, to keep up with the changes in the English language. The

American Standard Bible
uses the words of our day, which make the meanings of the Bible writers clear to us.

Write for Our Free Booklet, "How We Got Our American Standard Bible"
No teacher can afford to be without it.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's Icy
Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf.

ENTIRELY NEW!
Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55
cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—
Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly.

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York.

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions,
and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by
REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent
scholars and divines.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ARE THEY WEAK OR PAINFUL?

Do your lungs ever bleed?
Do you have night sweats?
Have you pains in chest and sides?
Do you spit yellow and black matter?
Are you continually hacking and coughing?
Do you have pains under your shoulder blades?

These are Regarded Symptoms of Lung Trouble and

CONSUMPTION

You should take immediate steps to check the progress of these symptoms. The longer you allow them to advance and develop, the more deep seated and serious your condition becomes.

We Stand Ready to Prove to You Absolutely, that Lung Germine,
the German Treatment, has cured completely and permanently case after case of Consumption (Tuberculosis), Chronic Bronchitis, Catarrh of the Lungs, Catarrh of the Bronchial Tubes and other lung troubles. Many sufferers who had lost all hope and who had been given up by physicians have been permanently cured by Lung Germine. If your lungs are merely weak and the disease has not yet manifested itself, you can prevent its development, you can build up your lungs and system to their normal strength and capacity. Lung Germine has cured advanced Consumption, and the patients remain strong and in splendid health today.

Let Us Send You the Proof--Proof that will Convince any Judge or Jury on Earth

We will gladly send you the proof of many remarkable cures, also a FREE TRIAL of Lung Germine together with our new 40-page book (in colors) on the treatment and care of consumption and lung trouble.

JUST SEND YOUR NAME

LUNG GERMINE CO., 303 Rae Block, JACKSON, MICH.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. JAMES O. COX, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

J. O. Cox, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amount reported last week ..$3,936.92

Dues

Lois Brinkley	$.10
Eula Wampler	.10
Carlton Wampler	.10
Jennings Wampler	.10
Harold Wampler	.10	.50

Monthly S. S. Offering

Wentworth	$ 2.70
Dendron	1.76
Damascus, Orange, N. C.	2.50
Wadley, Ala.	1.28
Rosewood, Ohio	.75	8.99

Special

Pleasant Cross	$ 5.00
Hank's Chapel	7.20
Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society, Pleasant Grove, Va.	7.65
J. H. Lamah, on support of children	12.00
Tyler Bolling, work	2.00	29.35

Thanksgiving Offering

Wake Chapel Church ..	$25.00
Christian Light	4.00
Mrs. J. H. Barksdale ...	1.00
Mrs. Annie E. Odendhal ..	1.00	31.00

Total for the week	$ 69.84
Grand Total	$4,006.76

Donations

One coat suit from Miss Jessie Massey. Three boys' coats and caps and four towels, Mrs. J. H. Massey; both of O'Kelley Chapel Church.

My Dear Children and Friends:

Our Corner looks a little better this week. Two nice letters, and dimes from two sweet girls and three bright boys who want to help. We are so grateful for these five, and if we only could have a hundred who would write each month how happy we would be. I have faith to believe we will find them before so long. I know we have many hundred boys and girls throughout the church who love and are interested in the work. We will hear from them some of these days.

How many will write and tell us about the good time you had Thanksgiving? We are expecting a delightful time here. Miss McCauley and her class are practicing each night for the Thanksgiving exercises. It is going to be fine. Wish all the Cousins could be here to enjoy it with us. I know you would then be proud of your Orphan Cousins.

We are going to have something besides speaking and singing. Three large turkeys are in the coop waiting for the occasion. A good friend in Durham has promised to send us four gallons of fine oysters. Oysters and turkeys together with many other good things prepared by our orphan cooks will make a dinner worth while.

I sincerely trust all of our friends will have a good day, and will not forget us. I know you will not. Many churches and individuals have already remembered us, as you may see from the report. We are thankful, and will endeavor to express our appreciation by doing the very best year's work we can.

Gratefully yours,

J. O. Cox, Superintendent.

Driver, Va., Nov. 17, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I am sending my first letter to the Corner. Hope it will help to take away some of the advertisements from the Children's Page. I am a girl ten years old, and enjoy going to church and Sunday school. Enclosed you will find a dime for the Corner. Love to all the cousins.

LOIS BRINKLEY.

We are glad to welcome such a nice girl to our Band of Cousins. Girls and boys who enjoy going to church and Sunday school now will soon become the men and women of tomorrow.

Mt. Clinton, Va., Nov. 17, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

It has been quite a while since we wrote to the Corner, but we have not forgotten the orphans. We are so glad to welcome you to the Corner, and we will try to write oftener in the future. Hope you will like your new work and that everything may prosper under your supervision. Enclosed please find 50 cents for the orphanage. With much love we are your niece and nephews,

EULA WAMPLER,
CARLTON WAMPLER,
JENNINGS WAMPLER,
HAROLD WAMPLER.

Thank you, my dear children. I knew you had not forgotten the Orphanage, but just allowed old Neglect to get hold of you. But we are grateful for the good resolution to write oftener. Why not say "we will write each month," and then try to get others to join? We want 100 Cousins to write each month.

TO PREVENT FIRES

When the stoves are put up this fall great fire hazards may be removed or materially lessened by care in the matter of a number of details. Following are some suggestions that may prevent a disastrous fire:

1. The floor under the stove should always be protected by tin, zinc, or asbestos, extending out about 2 feet from the doors of the stove.

2. The stove should be placed 2½ feet from the wall, but if necessary for it to be placed closer, a metal sheet should be hung against the wall as a protection. The sheet should be hung on hooks, leaving a half-inch space between it and the wall, so that the air can circulate, thus preventing the heat from the metal sheet from charring the wall.

3. Chimneys and stovepipes should be cleaned at least once a year. The brick chimney at the top of the house should be cleaned with a long scraper, and the chimney hole where the pipe enters should also be cleaned once a year.

4. Stovepipes should be scraped so that if there is any rusty spot or holes they will be discovered and the pipe be replaced with new.

b. A stovepipe should not run through a wood partition or ceiling unless a metal collar protects the wood.

6. If the pipe is long horizontally it should be wired so that there is no danger of it falling down. A large number of fires every winter are caused by the stovepipe falling down.

7. If a stovepipe runs along under the ceiling for any distance, it should not be closer than 2 feet from the ceiling.

8. Fires are most numerous during the winter months, and most of them can be traced to carelessness in regard to heating stoves. This carelessness is caused by not properly cleaning and putting up stovepipes, by allowing stoves to become overheated, by using cracked or broken stoves, by not properly protecting floor, walls, and ceilings near stoves, and by leaving garments hanging near stoves.

DON'T WORRY—EAT

Memphis, Tenn.—Mrs. Emma D. Looney, of this place, says: "I suffered misery for nearly eight years, but since taking Cardui I am much stronger and I haven't missed a single meal. I hardly know how to express my gratitude." Don't worry about your symptoms—Cardui doesn't treat them. What you need is strength. Cardui helps you to get it. Take Cardui, because other tonics and medicines do not contain its peculiar and successful ingredients, imported especially for its manufacture. Half a century of success has stamped Cardui with the seal of public approval. During this time, Cardui has benefited a million women. Why not you? Try it, today. Adv.

STUDENT WORK IN JAPAN

There are 600,000 students above the primary grade in Japan. A committee of missionaries has been formed to reach these young men and women with Christian literature and a little sheet called "The Morning Light" is being widely distributed. One of the committee says: "We believe we can reach 100,000 students and that we can influence three times that many. We will soon be distributing 10,000 papers."

Fourteen student hotels in Japan have been made possible by an American gift of $50,000. When Secretary Kim entered on his office two years ago there were but two Korean Christians in this student community and now there are eighty.

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads,
Bill Heads,
Statements,
Envelopes
Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

The Southern Christian Publishing Company,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

THE BEST
Sunday School Help

If you are a Sunday school teacher or pupil you should desire the best possible help. This you will find in one volume, Peloubet's Select Notes on the International Lessons for 1914. Send in your order now. Up to January 1 you can get a copy for $1.00, after that time, $1.25. The publishers' price is $1.25, but we save you 25 cents by ordering from us. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

WOULD AN ORCHARD PAY ON YOUR PLACE?

Would you pay more for a farm with a good orchard than for one without? Would the orchard on a farm where you were about to make your home represent dollars to you? We think there is but one answer to this kind of question. The orchard undoubtedly adds value to the farm.

If it adds value to the farm you are about to buy, will it not add value to the farm you now live on? By value we are talking now of the dollars and cents side of it. There can be but one answer to this question, too. A good bearing orchard is the most profitable use to which any amount of ground can be put.

You not only increase the value of your land; but you increase the attractiveness of your home and you add to the factors that make your family healthy as well. Fruit eaters are not subject to many of the illnesses that afflict those who do without the delightful food Nature calls for. Nothing adds more to the attractiveness of your home to the young people than a fine orchard. So the orchard well managed will bring you money, health and contentment. Worth while, isn't it?

Yet the question of an orchard is not to be lightly entered upon. There are many factors as to location, size and soil to be considered. Then it represents not only considerable work—all good things require work—but a considerable period of waiting to develop the trees. And what a disappointment meets many when trees fail to come true to expectations, when after years of waiting one gets scrubby, insignificant fruits instead of the kind he thought he was buying!

There is only one way to insure that the fruit you want will be the best of the kind and that you will have a money bearing orchard. That is to buy of a nursery that (1st) is honest—that is, that really has the goods for sale it represents to have; and (2) a nursery that is able to carry its honesty into effect—that is, one that from experience and location is able to furnish you with trees true to variety and trees that have the initial vigor, the breeding, so to speak, that will bring them true to type and with life enough to be good bearers.

There are many such nurseries, perhaps, but there is one that every resident of this state will at once acknowledge is both honest and able, and trees from which grace every town and most farms in this state now—the great enterprise of the J. Van Lindley Nursery Company.

This concern is in a position to and will gladly offer you its vast experience in the way of counsel. It has prepared a new fruit and ornamental book, just off the press, with directions on planting and after care, which will be sent to you on request. Its experts will gladly give you any assistance in their power, and its hundreds of acres of sturdy, carefully kept stock will supply you with an orchard that is both bearing and money making. Address the J. Van Lindley Co., Box 207, Pomona, N. C. ad.

THOSE BAD SPELLS

Lebanon Jet., Ky.—Mrs. Minnie Lamb, of this place, says: "I believe I would have been dead by now, had it not been for Cardui. I haven't had one of those bad spells since I commenced to use this medicine." Cardui is a specific medicine for the ills from which women suffer. Made from harmless, vegetable ingredients, Cardui is a safe, reliable remedy, and has been successfully used by weak and ailing women for more than fifty years. Thousands of health and happiness by its use.

Join the CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 15.

Why not profit by their experience? A trial will convince you that Cardui is just what you need. Adv.

When your throat is sore and your lungs ache with each breath, when the cough is sharp and painful, and the skin is hot, then look out for pneumonia. If it has already set in you have a quick relief in Mother's Joy, the best cold salve ever compounded. Instant relief for colds, coughs and sore throats, and quick remedy for croup, pneumonia and rheumatism. The expectant mother has no better friend. No household where children are subject to colds or adults to exposure can afford to be without a package for quick relief. Druggists sell it. This is the cold salve that is made on the basis of goose grease and animal fat instead of petroleum products, which cannot penetrate. Made by Goose Grease Company, Greensboro, N. C. ad

Byron W. King School of Oratory ELOCUTION AND SPEECH ARTS

New Building and Dormitory
Courses for Teachers, Lecturers, Lyceum and Catechism Work, speech defects, stammering, loss of voice, sore throat positively cured. Largest school of speech arts in America. Send for prospectus. Mt. Oliver, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

FEATHER BED BARGAINS.

Send us $10.00 and we will ship you one first class new 40-pound Feather Bed, one pair 6-pound New Feather pillows ($2.50), one pair full size Blankets ($3.00), one dandy Comfort full size ($3.00), all for only $10.00. All new goods and no trash. Biggest Bargain ever offered. Satisfaction guaranteed. This offer is good for a short time only to advertise our goods. Mail money order now or write for circular and order blanks. SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 1154, Greensboro, N. C.

DR. J. H. BROOKS,

Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

MORPHINE WHISKEY and TOBACCO

HABITS cured without pain or restraint. No fee until cured. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Booklet free. CEDARCROFT SANITARIUM, Box 1001, Lebanon, Tenn.

LOW COST LIGHT for YOU

No Smoke, No Dirt, No Odor—A convenient lamp for every purpose—For the Home, Office or Store. Costs 1-3 cents per hour—300 candle-power—soft yet brilliant light. Agents make money—men or women—quick, easy, sure. All year business—Experience Not Necessary. They buy on Sight. Every home a prospect. Write today for free description and agents' proposition. ACORN BRASS MFG. CO., Dept. 27, Aurora, Ill. Mfrs. Gasoline lights—every description, for every purpose.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.

Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81 4:35 a. m.
No. 29 Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41 4:10 p. m.
No. 43 6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84 12:48 a. m.
No. 38 11:35 a. m.
No. 66 12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice,
RALEIGH, N. C.

La Grippe and Bad Colds are caused by germs. For Quick relief take The Giant Grip Germ Killer Johnson's Tonic

25c and 50c, and Tablets 25c

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC
Makes You Immune From Malaria
in all its forms. Contains no arsenic or opiates; pleasant to take and harmless, for children as well as adults. Sold and guaranteed by your druggist. Arthur Peter & Co., Louisville, Ky., General Agents.

LET US GIVE YOU This Booklet Free.

It tells you how we can make your old clothes look like new by scientific dyeing. It tells you how we remove by French Dry Cleaning every particle of dust, every stain, every smear, from the daintiest or the heaviest fabrics, and restore them to you in perfect order.

PRICES ARE THE LOWEST.

For three years we have been growing into a big trade. We now have 10,000 square feet of floor space devoted to our dyeing, cleaning and laundry work. We have the latest improved machinery, the best of skilled labor. We can do what needs to be done in the right way.

All clothing cleaned or dyed by us is sterilized, freed of dust and dirt and carefully repaired. Curtains, portieres and other household articles get the best of attention.

We have the facilities and experience. You are always safe in sending work to us. Ask any bank in Greensboro as to our reliability.

Use the parcel post. Write for our free booklet, which tells what we do and gives prices. Freshen up your winter clothing now.

We want an agent in each town. Write for terms.

COLUMBIA LAUNDRY COMPANY,
106 Fayetteville Street, Greensboro, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries. Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles, Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

HIGH CLASS

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

FLOATING BIBLE HOUSE IN CHINA

A few years ago Rev. Frank A. Keller, M. D., missionary of the China Inland Mission since 1897, found his heart throbbing with a great ambition. This ambition was inspired by the spectacle of a trim launch steaming up the Siang river and dropping anchor at Changsha, the capital of Hunan. Without delay a party of foreigners and Chinese came ashore and began distributing in every shop and house attractive little boxes containing samples of cigarettes. The swiftness, system and thoroughness with which these workers performed their tasks impressed this thoughtful missionary and he said to himself, "Why should not the ambassadors of the King be equally comprehensive in plan, wise in method and prompt in action?"

Mr. Keller tells the story for the Missionary Review of the World. He says: "We told our friends at Los Angeles of the work of the cigarette distributors and of how it had stirred us. We also called their attention to the remarkable opportunity offered by the great waterways of Hunan to reach nearly every part of the province by boat. The heads of the Bible House in Los Angeles saw the vision, they heard the cry of twenty-two million people at Hunan, and they accepted as a commission from God the task of visiting, so far as possible, every one of Hunan's 4,268,000 homes and leaving in each one God's printed word.

"At present we have two parties at work, each party consisting of twelve colporteurs under the leadership of an evangelist, all living on a large Chinese houseboat. These boats are well adapted to our work, having a kitchen, a number of sleeping rooms and a good-sized saloon which serves as dining room, study and class room, and also as a chapel for small evening evangelistic services."

At this time of the year the colporteurs go to the so-called "sacred mountain" of Hunan for a month of Bible study, conference and special work among the pilgrims. During one week at this season as many as 10,000 pilgrims a day go to the "sacred mountain."

The far-reaching effects of this splendid work cannot be estimated. There are over 60,000,000 of homes in China, and to more than half of them no word of the gospel has ever come. Mr. Keller says:

"Our two bands of colporteurs can average 1,600 homes per week. Allowing for spring rains and intense mid-summer heat they can work for forty weeks, which means the gospel preached and printed copies of the Scriptures left in 64,000 homes per year by these parties. But divide the more than 30,000,000 unreached homes by the 64,000 reached in one year and we are brought face to face with a tremendous appeal."

"What kind of a church would my church be, if every member were just like me?"

THE FINEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD FOR THE MONEY

* This Photograph represents exact size $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{4}$ inches
Bound in French Morocco, absolutely flexible,
with overlapping covers as shown in this photograph. Has red under gold edges.

—IT CONTAINS—

The Authorized Version of the Old Testament and New Testament

—HAS—

Self-Pronouncing Text

All the proper words being accented and divided into syllables for quick and easy pronunciation.

—IT ALSO CONTAINS—

A New Series of Helps to Bible Study

—INCLUDING—

4000 Questions and Answers
which unfold the Scriptures

31 Beautiful Illustrations
showing scenes and incidents of Bible History

12 Maps of the Bible Lands in Colors
Large Clear Type Fine Paper

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN one year.

$2.50, postpaid.

Or sent alone for $1.50, postpaid.

—ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO—

The Southern Christian Pub. Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Curling

Brother Edmond Curling died at the home of his son, Benjamin Curling, near Great Bridge, Va., Nov. 11, 1913, aged 70 years, 2 months and 12 days. He was married twice. To the first union there were born nine children, but to the second there were no children. He is survived by his widow, two sons and three daughters, eighteen grand children, and six great grandchildren. Brother Curling was a charter member of Berea Christian church and one of the prime movers in its organization. He was a life-long member of the church, and a lover of the cause of Christ and the interests of his kingdom.

He was a veteran of the Civil War and delighted in telling the experiences through which he passed during the four years of the struggle between the States.

During the last two years of his life he was a great sufferer. He often longed for the summons to come home. He clung to Christ with great earnestness through all his afflictions. His hope was in Him.

The funeral was conducted by the writer from the home, and the interment made in the family burying ground. J. W. HARRELL.

Boggs

Mrs. Samuel Boggs departed this life Nov. 14, 1913; she was born March 2, 1854, making her stay on earth 59 years, 8 months, 12 days. She united with the Christian church at an early age and was a consistent member up to her death. She leaves a devoted husband, mother, one brother, Dr. R. M. Morrow of Burlington, N. C., one sister, Mrs. S. J. Caudle, to mourn her death. She was a good woman, kind and affectionate. Her delight was to do something for her neighbors. She was a plain, good, kind hearted Christian woman, always abounding in the work of her Master. She bore her sufferings patiently, and was ready and willing to go. One of the last sentences the writer heard her utter was: "I want to go home." She could truly say with Paul, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course. Therefore there is a crown of righteousness laid up for me."

The funeral was conducted from the Christian church in Liberty, N. C., by her pastor, Rev. J. W. Patton of Elon College. The large concourse of people and the display of flowers were striking testimonies of the high esteem in which she was held in the hearts of the people of Liberty and surrounding country. A FRIEND.

GOOSE GREASE IS VERY PENETRATING

When croup threatens and pneumonia endangers, the mind of the wise parent turns to Mother's Joy, the great goose grease remedy. Vaseline and other compounds cannot penetrate, while animal oils go right into the sore lungs and relieve the congestion. Every home ought to have a package of this wonderful healing compound at hand for the first indication of sore throat and congested lungs. All druggists sell it. It never fails to relieve rheumatism or sprained muscles. Send to the Goose Grease Co., Greensboro, N. C., for proof. Adv.

CATHOLICISM OUR NATIONAL PERIL

The trouble with the Roman Catholic Church is that it seeks to be both a church and a political party. Its arrogant claims of being the only true Christian church, intolerant as they are, might be treated with indifference; but when for its head it asserts temporal power and civil authority, intruding itself by logical consequence into the political affairs of every country which it enters, a position is assumed which cannot be allowed any church whatsoever. If it must assume such a position, its members must not complain if it is met with political opposition not offered to any other church. This is why such great men as Gladstone, Bismarck, Juarez, Diaz, Garibaldi, and the ruling statesmen in France have resisted its pretensions.

Since the Spanish-American War and the acquisition by the United States of colonies where Romanism has been the established religion, it has been more aggressive than ever in our political affairs. The peril of Romanism to our institutions is not an imaginary danger, conceived by the heated brains of fanatics; it is a real and constant menace. It must be resisted in our country, as it has been resisted in England, Germany, France, Italy, Mexico, Portugal—as it has been resisted in every country where it has secured any considerable following. If it were willing to take its place as a church along with all the other churches it would be improper to meet it with any other attitude than that in which we meet all the other churches; but it is not willing to be only a church. Putting itself in a class to itself by its political animus, it must take all that such an improper position makes inevitable; it can not claim the political exemptions of a church while it asserts political claims as well as churchly prerogatives.—Warren A. Chandler, Bishop M. E. Church, Atlanta, Ga.

The Japanese agency of the American Bible society was established in 1876. The whole circulation to the end of the year 1912 was 2,642,541.

TRIAL BOX FREE

Do you suffer with
Headache or Neuralgia
One trial of Megrimine is sufficient—your suffering will cease.
For over a quarter of a century

ME GRIM-INE

Has been a Godsend to victims of all forms of headache and neuralgia. Write at once for a trial box without cost.

The Dr. Whitehall Megrimine Co.
1 N. Lafayette St., South Bend, Ind.

Liver Misery

If you have a Bad Stomach, Indigestion, Gas Bloating, Belching, Colic, Biliousness, Sick Headaches, Dizzy Spells, Nervousness, Bad Color, Yellow or Itchy Skin, Constipation, Blues, Torpid Liver, or Pain in Right Side, Stomach, Back, Under Shoulders or in your Bowels, Appendicitis, or Gallstones—You need GALL-TONE—Direct Liver Treatment—Nature-aiding, cause-removing, operation-saving. You can't enjoy life or do yourself justice in your work or business with Liver Trouble, the commonest and most misery-causing of human ailments. Wretched and tormented, it finally weakens your body, mind, nerves and will-power, and robs you of Life's pleasures and Success. It weakens your resistance against all kinds of ailments, colds and contagions—it is the wide road that leads to physical destruction.

Get Rid Of It Send today for our FREE LIVER-GALL book
Gallstone Remedy Co., Dept. 611, 219 S. Dearborn St., Chicago

CANCER FREE TREATISE
The Leach Sanatorium, Indianapolis, Ind., has published a booklet which gives interesting facts about the cause of Cancer; tells what to do for pain, bleeding, etc., etc. Write for it today, mentioning this paper.

THE HOLMAN RED LETTER FAMILY BIBLE

LARGE TYPE SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

No. 820 P. R. L. Size, 10½ x 12½ in.

Contains in addition to the Authorized Old and New Testaments, all the Sayings of Christ in Red; The Temple Library at Nippur; Names and Order of the Books of the Bible; Maps of Bible Lands; Pronouncing Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names; Comparative Systems of Scripture Chronology; History of the Period from the Close of the Sacred Canon of the Old Testament until the Times of the New Testament; Illuminated Marriage Certificate and Family Record; Chronological Index to the Bible; Concordance; Full-Page Dore Pictures, Half-Tones and in Colors, etc.

No. 820 P. R. L. Bound in IMITATION OF LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Gilt Titles, Marbled Edges. (Weight, 12 lbs.) $2.10

No. 822 P. R. L. Bound in SEMBLE LEATHER, Paneled Sides, Full Gilt Sides and Back, Gilt Edges. (Weight, 13 lbs.) 2.85

No. 823 P. R. L. Bound in AMERICAN MOROCCO, Padded Sides, Rounded Corners on Cover, Gold Side & Back Titles, Gold Edges. (Weight, 15 lbs.) 5.00

HOLMAN RED LETTER SELF-PRONOUNCING TEACHERS' BIBLE

A complete Red Letter Bible, Authorized Version, with all the Prophecies in the Old Testament relating to Christ, as well as all the Sayings of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

New Copyright Helps to Bible Study, a Teachers' Ready Reference Hand Book, Comparative Concordance, Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors.

Bourgeois, 8vo. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches.

THE TYPE.
23 The Báb-ý-lō-ni-an, and all the Chál-dē-an, 'Pé-kód, and Shō'a, and Kō'a, and all the As-sýr-ý-an with

No. 810 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, grained lining and fly leaves, round corners, red under gold edges $2.50

No. 830 R. L. French Seal, overlapping covers, lined with leather, headbands and marker, round corners, red under gold edges 3.00

Postage, 25 cents.

HOLMAN VEST POCKET RED LETTER NEW TESTAMENT

SELF-PRONOUNCING

Authorized Version. All the Words of Our Saviour in Red. Daintiest, Handiest and most useful Red Letter New Testament Published. Largest Type in smallest compass. Absolutely Flexible Binding.

Nonpareil 32mo. Long. Size, 2½ x 4¼ inches.

THE TYPE.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Je'sus is the

No. 013 R. L. French Morocco, limp, gold side title, round corners, gold edges50

No. 015 R. L. P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, gold side title, round corners, red under gold edges; with addition of The Book of Psalms75

Postage, 3 Cents.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Get Our New Catalogue

FREE

This has been made up for the man who wants to know where he can get dependable Ornamental Trees, Shrubs, Roses and Fruits at moderate prices. We sell direct to you—no agents to put on big prices.

Southern Grown Roses

Two Years Old

Ready to Bloom for Next Summer

We have a splendid lot of Roses, select varieties, grown especially for planting out this season. We have some new sorts and some of the old kinds—get the catalogue today. It tells all about them.

HOWARD NURSERY CO.
Box 206, Stovall, N. C.

This means big and little tents, and we make all kinds. A thousand satisfied users testify to their quality. Let us make you a quotation. No trouble at all.

M. D. & H. L. SMITH COMPANY
Atlanta, Ga. Dalton, Ga.

Let The Christian Sun Piano Club

BE YOUR SANTA CLAUS

By the time this announcement reaches the readers of the Christian Sun Christmas will be almost upon you. Old Santa Claus will have barely three weeks in which to deliver his goods, but the Club has prepared for the emergency and has secured a full supply of the most beautiful pianos and player-pianos that eye has ever seen—ready for shipment at a moment's notice. Do not delay but write at once for your copy of the Club's catalogue and make your selection and we will rush shipment by first train.

Christmas is a splendid time to join the Club, for the Club Pianos and Player Pianos will make the most delightful and permanently useful presents you could possibly give. In sweetness of tone, in action and durability these instruments are unsurpassed, and as the Club guarantees perfect satisfaction to every member, you and your family cannot fail to be delighted.

THE CLUB MAKES PIANO BUYING EASY

By clubbing your order with those of ninety-nine other subscribers which we secure you obtain a strictly high grade instrument of sweetest tone, of perfect action, of beautiful design, of elegant finish and of permanent durability at a price such as you would ordinarily pay for an inferior imitation.

The Club gives you a positive and absolute protection against every form of dissatisfaction and makes you the judge and the sole judge. You must be thoroughly satisfied with the quality, price, terms and every feature connected with the transaction, otherwise you are requested to return the instrument. The trial will cost you nothing.

The Club will arrange the terms to suit your needs and convenience.

GIVE THE CLUB A TRIAL

The Club claims to save each member one-third of the price or more on Cabinet Grand Upright Pianos, Self-Player Pianos and Grand Pianos. Old Club members, who have secured their instruments, unanimously verify this claim. Then why not give the Club a chance to prove it to your entire satisfaction? You have everything to gain; nothing to lose. If after trying the instrument in your own home you are not thoroughly pleased simply say so and the Club will relieve you of all responsibility and expense. But you will be delighted with the superior quality of the instrument and the big saving in price just as every other Club member has been and you will gladly add your praise and indorsement to that of other Club members.

Read these letters from Club members:

Cedartown, Ga., December 31, 1912.

"The piano is a treasure and everyone remarks on the sweetness of tone. It has been so much pleasure to the family. The Club Plan places the piano into so many homes that would otherwise have to wait an indefinite time to buy. Accept my sincere thanks for your courteous treatment."—MRS. R. A. SPINKS.

Dillon, S. C., November 17, 1913.

"The more I use the player the better do I like it, and I must tell you that I am agreeably surprised at the way it works, and the expression one can put into a composition of the highest class with it. Until I received this player I always thought that the ——— (an instrument costing fully one-third more) was really the only player on the market, but I have just about reached the conclusion that there is, at least, one more player as good. I am also much pleased with the tone of the piano. With best wishes, I am,"—WM. B. HARRISON.

Greensboro, N. C., Jan. 14, 1913.

"I am just delighted with the Piano I purchased from you. It has given entire satisfaction and I would advise any one desiring a Piano to join the Club."—MRS. A. C. FORSYTH.

Sheffield, Ala., Dec. 31, 1912.

"We are delighted with the Club Piano bought of you something like a year ago. There are Pianos in our community costing more, but they do not come up to ours. I want to thank you for the courteous treatment received at your hands, and any time that I can help you with a sale let me know."—C. O. BOWLING.

Vaiden, Miss., December 2, 1912.

"I am perfectly delighted with my piano. I think the Club Plan a capital idea."—MRS. RUFUS B. SMITH.

Old Fort, N. C., November 1, 1913.

"The piano has arrived. It is a dandy—just the thing we wanted. The girls are just delighted with it. It is a fine piece of workmanship."—(REV.) H. C. MARLEY.

Write for your copy of the illustrated catalogue and booklet containing hundreds of commendatory letters from Club members. Address the Managers,

Write for handsomely illustrated catalogue which pictures the nine beautiful styles of Pianos and Player Pianos from which Club members make their selection.

Ludden & Bates CHRISTIAN SUN
PIANO CLUB DEPT. Atlanta, Ga.

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., DECEMBER 3, 1913

NO. 49

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Thou Shalt Not Kill

According to figures given out in Chicago on November 22, just before the football season ended, fourteen persons were killed and 175 others injured in the games of the present season. God's laws cannot be violated with impunity, and "thou shalt not kill" applies to players as well as to any other class of people. One wonders who is responsible for the death of these fourteen men.

Christmas

We have made more of Christmas than we have of Christ, observed a philosopher recently. That is a stinging rebuke, if true. In selecting and sending our Christmas gifts, in planning our Christmas pleasures, in preparing for the glad occasion, do we forget, or ignore, Him who gave us the name and the event, and, by His great love and the wonderful gift of Himself, made the occasion possible? How can we accept a gift and forget the Giver?

Counting the Cost

According to figures now given out, it cost the snug sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars to impeach, and remove from office, New York's recent governor, William Sulzer. We sometimes think that it costs heavily to maintain the church, and moral institutions; but the cost of these is nothing compared to that of immorality, corruption, vice and crime about us. Dishonesty, immorality, sin, wickedness of all sorts—these are the things which cost society and the State and help to impoverish both.

Health or Wealth

Recently the courts allowed a verdict of $25,000 to a man who was thrown one hundred and forty feet down an elevator shaft and whose neck and spine were so injured that the very slightest twist of his head would result in instant death. His head is encased in a guard which prevents him from moving it for even a fraction of an inch. To lie down would mean death, so he must needs sleep in a sitting posture, and suffer pain continually. The man won his wealth, but he lost his health first. This was accidental, but has not many a man won even a smaller fortune at even greater sacrifice? A crust with liberty is better than a crown with bounds.

May One Know?

"Are you a school teacher?" "Yes," was the immediate reply. "Are you an attorney, sir?" was asked of another. The response was instantaneous, "I am." "Are you a prohibitionist?" "Yes, sir, I so voted in the last several elections." "Are you a socialist?" "No, sir." All such questions are asked and answered without hesitation, mental reservation, or secret evasion of mind. "Are you a Christian, sir?" "Well—er—I hope so, sir—at least—er—I am trying to be one." We have been wondering about this difference in reply. Paul said (2 Tim. 1:12): "I know whom I have believed."

The Air Above

So the air above and about us has begun to yield its powers and possibilities. Scarcely a ship sails the high seas now that does not carry equipment for wireless telegraphy, and the upper air conveys the news from ship to ship, and sea to land, hundreds of miles away. On the Pennsylvania road the other day a train went out equipped with a wireless outfit, and messages were sent from and received by the moving train with all ease. And now the press dispatches tell us that on the night of November 20, people in the United States Naval Observatory, near Washington, D. C., heard, audibly and well, coming by an arrangement, through the upper air, the ticking and the beats of the observatory clock in Paris, France. "Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet."—Psa. 8:6.

An Aimless Ship

The papers are speculating about a ship recently picked up at sea, which ship was in good condition, had valuable cargo, and was safe and sea worthy in every particular, save it had no crew whatever to direct its course. There is cause for wonder; yet there are many barks on the sea of life, human barks, seemingly sound and safe and seaworthy, but they are at the mercy of the waves and are aimlessly floating and beating about because they have no haven in view, and no fixed and steady purpose in life to guide them. A ship at sea with no one to pilot it is no more hopeless and helpless than an individual in society with no particular aim or purpose. "But this one thing I do," wrote Paul (Phil. 3:13-14), "... I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." If you want to get your finger on the key-note of this great life, put it there: "This one thing I do."

Saved to Serve

On November 2, Rev. E. A. Neville, a famous missionary, died while traveling in Mexico. In his many missionary journeys Doctor Neville had many interesting experiences and miraculous escapes. He was traveling in a party of six missionaries in New Guinea in 1892, when the entire party was captured by cannibals, and Neville grimly witnessed the cannibals' feast as they cooked and ate all five of his companions. For some unknown reason Neville was kept a closely guarded prisoner for months, and was finally rescued and made his escape. During the term of his imprisonment among these cannibals he learned their language to a great extent, and later gave 2,000 words of it to the world. These words being translated, enabled other missionaries to learn the language and work with efficiency to great effect among the inhabitants of New Guinea, to the salvation of thousands. Dr. Neville was spared to serve, and he served well his day and time. The mysteries of God are very deep and past finding out; but they make ever for the uplift of fallen man and the advancement of His kingdom.

Our Unchanging Need

We want to pass on to SUN readers an excerpt from a letter sent out to the Episcopal churches by the House of Bishops at the close of their recent convention in New York, and to commend it to our readers for careful consideration and meditation: "The unchanging need of men is the Christ. The church, the Bible, and the sacraments, history, science, and philosophy, government, education, and civilization are intended to be torches to reveal him to mankind, ties to bind him to the race and the race to him, and paths wherein he may walk with accustomed feet among men. We have in him a God who knows the meaning of human life. He entered our life by the gateway of birth. The sympathy of God with human life is thereby forever assured, and he added victorious power to his compassion. He broke its bars that he might gain new entrance among men after such imperishable manner that never again can he be thrust away from us unless the whole race become apostate. The human experience of the ages is enshrined in his life. He is the Ancient of Days with the knowledge of the ages, but he is also the Spring of Youth, in touch with our times, ready, eager, burning to impart himself to us that we may serve even as he serves." In this one is reminded of Paul's words (Col. 3:11): "Christ is all and in all."

The Essential Question

Our civilization has not yet proven whether it is to abide, and our American republic is yet being weighed in the balances. It is the story of the past which is now in the telling, and Bishop William Lawrence, of Massachusetts, put it in a nutshell before the Episcopal Convention in these words: "In the vast material resources of today and the intensity of life, the battle is being quickly fought out as to whether the material or the spiritual will dominate. Shall we run the course of other nations and fall under the impact of wealth; or shall we use our wealth for the uplifting of the people?" This is the essential question, and the one not yet settled. We cannot serve God and mammon, but unless we serve God with mammon, mammon will become our god, and we shall become slaves and not free men.

Cardinal Farley of New York has forbidden dancing at the coming annual entertainment given by the Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Vincent's hospital for that institution, on the ground that the tango and turkey trot and other new steps are too indecent for even a Catholic charity entertainment. This annual dance usually brings in about $5,000 income to the institution. If you will give even the devil enough rein he will eventually hang himself.

EDITORIAL

THE ESSENTIALS OF RELIGION

There are many isms in our day, spiritualism, Russellism, Zionism, and we know not what. There are also very many doctrines and sects, Christian Scientists, Seventh Day Adventists, Millennial Dawnists, Christian Socialists, and a hundred others. All of these use the printed page, the circular, and the tract in great abundance, till one hardly knows what to read, or what to believe.

There is furthermore much doubt in our day, and no little skepticism. Some doubt, after all, if it is worth while to give much heed to the sanctity of the Sabbath, the reading of the Word, obeying the Commandments, or observing the Beatitudes. One enquires what one is to believe in so much unheavenly chaos and confusion. Old beliefs are getting a jar, and, to quote a recent writer, there is a mighty "blasting at the Rock of Ages."

However much one may be attracted by these isms, schisms, sects, creeds, and credulities, if one really cares, one need not be swept off one's feet by them. These dogmas and doctrines, and those of a kindred kind or similar sort, may flourish for a while because of the enthusiasm and fervor that a new movement always develops, but they pass out after a season and the Word of truth, as in the past centuries, will be found to abide.

But even here there is division, and there is confusion of doctrine and belief. Yet, again, if one really cares, one can easily find the necessary things, and to these one may cling with absolute safety and security. Again and again the clarion note sounds out from the Book in clear and in unmistakable tones so that one may hear and give heed if one really cares. For example, Paul came to foundation fact when he wrote for all who fear and doubt and do not know they way out in so much confusion, "And now abideth faith, hope, charity; these three." These abide now; they will abide when many a live nation of our day is dead and gone and forgotten. To these one may cling with everlasting tenacity, and these one may cultivate as the eternal verities. If one has, and daily exercises, faith in God, lives daily in the hope of eternal life, and is charitable to all about him, (that is, loves his neighbor as himself), such a one is fixed and safe and steadfast upon the Rock, all the isms, schisms and divisions to the contrary notwithstanding.

Or take a simple and clear statement like that given by inspiration through the voice of St. James, "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world" (James 1:27). It does not take a theologian to teach that nor any eloquence to burn it into one's mind. It is plain, simple, easy of comprehension, and ready of interpretation. One need not stumble or blunder, or be clouded in mind about what these words mean.

Or if one wants a different, though a succinct and comprehensive statement of the whole matter to which one may fasten with absolute security, let one learn, hide away in one's memory and heart, the words of our Master, Matt. 22:37-40, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets." One's theology need not have a wide range in order to grasp that. Yet here is a principle big enough, broad enough, safe and sound enough for any one who really cares to stand upon it, and it will prove his salvation.

One need not worry and fret of one really cares. The foundations are not torn up, and upon them, even in a day of doubt and of new things, one may build with absolute safety.

THE ORPHANAGE

Elsewhere this week is given a program of exercises by a class from the Orphanage in the Elon College chapel on Thanksgiving day, November 27. The exercises were very creditable and the large audience thoroughly enjoyed the various numbers on the program. At the conclusion the Thanksgiving offering on the part of the Elon College Christian church was taken and some over $30 was realized. If a class from the Orphanage could visit the various churches for their Thanksgiving exercises, the returns would be much more than they are now.

Last Sunday a delegation from Palm St. church, Greensboro, Baraca Class, visited the Orphanage with instructions to select a boy or girl to clothe and support. An impromptu exercise in the afternoon was given in the Orphanage chapel for the benefit of this visiting committee, and was much enjoyed, both by the Baracas and by a few villagers who were invited over.

The Institution is well manned, and everything moves along like clock work. Rev. J. O. Cox, the new Superintendent, has put his hand to the business in a methodical and business-like manner, and is doing his work orderly and well. No Orphanage has a better matron and instructor than we have in Miss Sudie McCauley, who is throwing all her wonted energy and consecrated zeal into her work. To say that Miss Dora Edwards, at the head of the house-keeping and sewing departments, is again with the institution, means neat rooms, spotless linen and cleanliness and order throughout the building. Miss McCullers has charge of the cooking and dining rooms and is faithful in the discharge of her duties there. Bro. High from Durham has charge of the farm and the dairy and buildings, and is both worthy and capable. There are now fifty-nine children to be cared for, clothed, fed, trained and educated, in the institution, and there are heavy accounts to meet. The future of our Orphanage never seemed brighter, and those in charge are bending every energy and effort to make the institution worthy of the great cause it represents, and the great church to which it looks for support.

Funds were never needed more than at present, and Superintendent Cox is devoutly hoping that the churches will do their utmost to make this the largest Thanksgiving offering ever yet received.

We wish our people could grasp the idea contained in the following from an address by Mr. Archibald Johnson, of the Baptist Orphanage, in Greensboro on Thanksgiving day: "An Orphanage is a gift, not a charge. If men did not have to go down into their pockets and minister to the comfort of others, they would 'devolve' into savages. Solicitude for the helpless is indeed a boon, for it is what makes the heart sunny, and saves the soul from atrophy."

When we realize that our Orphanage is a blessing and not a burden, it will be cared for better and more liberally than at present.

"TILL I COME"

Paul was exceedingly anxious that his spiritual son, Timothy, should grow into stalwart manhood for service in the Kingdom. Hear then his injunction, "Till I come give heed to reading" (1 Tim. 4:13).

Two classes of people in our day need especially to give heed to this wise advice. First, those who read, but give no heed to what they read or how they read. They read the good, the bad and the indifferent, and give little heed to either. Such get no blessing or benefit from what they read.

Second, Those who do not take time to read any paper or book that is sound, safe and solid. Take heed. Reading is one of life's chief joys, boons and blessings. It is too great benefit to be wasted, unappreciated or thrown away.

Till the man of God come to give you words of warning and of wisdom from his own lips, give heed to reading that which is wise and well and wholesome. This is the only safe way. Give heed to reading.

—Elon has been favored with many visitors and exceedingly interesting events during the Thanksgiving season.

—The Philologian Literary Society annual entertainment last Thursday night measured up to its usual high order and was very largely attended—the College auditorium being unable to accommodate all who came.

—Rev. W. G. Clements was a welcome visitor to Elon College last week. He was working in behalf of his beloved, our Chapel Hill church. He hopes now to have it ready for occupancy by January 1, and if it is not, the fault will not be that of Bro. Clements.

—We believe the ministers have gone home from their conferences and entered their new year with more zeal for the work, and more determined than ever to do more for Christ and the church. There is hope everywhere, and the outlook for a great year's work was never brighter.

—If our class from the Orphanage could be present at the several churches as they take their Thanksgiving offering, the gifts would be large and liberal, for every one would see that a good work is being done at the Orphanage. Bear these in mind, brethren and sisters, as the offering is taken at your church.

—Our dear brother, Rev. David E. Millard, D. D., Portland, Michigan, writes a most interesting letter of a personal nature and will prove a source of pleasure to many. Bro. Millard is one of those remarkable men who though advanced in years is fresh in mind and lovable of heart. May our heavenly Father spare him to many years of service.

—We trust that all churches that have not done so will use the envelopes sent out by our Orphanage, take a Thanksgiving offering and send in as early as possible. The Orphanage never had so many as at present to care for, and the need for funds was never more pressing. Every dollar received now is a benefit and a blessing to a needy cause.

—Of the eleven new subscribers Rev. P. T. Klapp was to secure at his churches, he has sent in five already. Of the 28 Dr. Staley, Suffolk, Va., was to secure, he hopes to finish the entire number before Christmas, some of whom he already has. The pastors are going at the matter of securing 1,000 new subscribers in earnest, which means that the work will be done.

—Revs. C. H. Rowland, D. D., Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Rev. J. S. Carden, Rev. P. T. Klapp, Rev. W. G. Clements, and Bro. C. B. Riddle, are among the number who sent in lists of new subscribers the past week. When the pastors get in earnest about putting THE SUN into homes where it should go, but does not go now, that 1,000 new subscribers by April 1 will be a reality.

Now is the time to get those needing the paper to subscribe.

—We acknowledge with thanks the following: The Reverend and Mrs. Lenneous I. Cox announce the marriage of their daughter, Myrtie Leocia, to Mr. John Oswin Sutton on Tuesday, 25th of November, 1913, Elon College, N. C. At home after 5th of December, Lillington, N. C. The newly married pair have our best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

—If a SUN reader has a relative or a friend who swears, ask such an one to read Rev. H. E. Rountree's sermon which is printed on another page. Bro. Rountree puts the matter very clearly, makes out a strong case, and is thoroughly biblical. Such sermons are needed, for we are often told these days that profanity is on the increase. Read the sermon this week and pass it on to some one else. There is possibility of untold good in it.

—Instead of the usual Winchester Letter the writer, Bro. W. T. Walters, broke into verse last week and invokes the muses in re Thanksgiving. Nor was it bad verse either, for a busy preacher. Bro. Walters evidently has an ear for poetic melody and emotion.

—Rev. G. R. Underwood sounds out the keynote for his work this year, Missions. We trust every pastor will feel that this is the watchword, Missions. If we mean to prosper, if we mean to so conduct ourselves that our heavenly Father will prosper us, we must be missionary. God cannot prosper a non-missionary people and keep His word.

—Last year, under the old system of church collection—pay as you please and when the collector could get it—the Thanksgiving offering of the Elon church for the Orphanage was less than $15.00. This year when the duplex envelope system of collection—that which follows the biblical way of laying by in store on the first day of the week—is in vogue, the Thanksgiving offering for the Orphanage was over $32.00; and all other offerings so far are in like, or in larger proportions. So when a church tries to follow the biblical method and do its duty, special collections are not hurt, but helped. Try the duplex and be convinced.

—The good women of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference have not only not been idle the past year, in the matter of organizing missionary societies, as will be seen from an address by Mrs. W. A. Harper, President of the Woman's Board of the Conference, but they have planned a very definite work for the present year. A Woman's Missionary Society in every church, and a mission study class in every society, would mean great things indeed. And yet our women should never stop until that good event is brought to pass. They have certainly wrought well in that direction the two years of their organization.

—The Christian Advocate Company, of Greensboro, reports a net gain of 1200 subscribers the past year, and in its Job Department a net gain of 40 per cent. The net earnings for the year were $2,017.56. We congratulate our neighbor on such a good showing, having advanced during the five years they have been in business from a total of $10,910 to $19,872.76—an increase of nearly 100 per cent. If the Southern Christian Publishing Company does not show a similar growth and development in that time it will surprise us beyond measure, and will indicate poor management. For the Company is turning out the best of work, patrons are finding this out, and orders are increasing.

—"There is not a church in all this section," writes a CHRISTIAN SUN correspondent, that will observe Thanksgiving. I wish so much that we could begin this custom in our community." We presume the same may be said of many other communities, despite the fact that our Chief Executive and Governor call upon us to do this very thing, and despite the further fact of the eternal fitness of the thing. When we have been so bountifully blest during a whole year is really seems as though we might come together at our houses of worship once a year for the sole purpose of giving God thanks for His bounty and goodness. Yet thousands spend the day rabbit hunting, with no thought of reverence or gratitude.

—President W. A. Harper was in Greensboro and spoke before the Y. M. C. A. The Daily News, Monday, gave the following: "Yesterday afternoon at the Bijou theatre the regular Sunday address to men was made by W. A. Harper, president of Elon College, on 'The Life that Counts.' He said no life can count for most here or for eternity at all, without Christ as its guiding power and constant inspiration. Mr. Harper said a man's life should be more than making a living merely, and that he comes into his highest possibilities when he is concerned with the avocational matters, which has been typical of great men. He illustrated in saying that Armour and Rockefeller and others made their successes chiefly by utilizing the by-products. He said further that the by-products of life are as many and as enriching as those in material matters. Happiness, promotion, and character were named as three by-products among many others that are noticeable in the human life. Happiness, he said, comes as the by-product of righteous living, without striving on the part of those who possess it. Promotion, he also said, comes to him who goes steadily about his affairs without thinking of it, and one day he wakes up to find himself famous. Character was described as the finest of all the by-products, and it is a product of life well lived, of numberless deeds well performed. The finest type of character is Christian character. Christ, when he comes into a man's life, is a regenerative, propelling power, enabling one to surpass his fondest dreams."

—Christ's Mission in New York is now caring for six former priests who have recently become converted from the Catholic to the Protestant faith. The six are preparing for the ministry in Protestant churches.

—Maritime experts say that Germany will profit by the opening of the Panama Canal more than any other nation, and that German ship builders are planning and building ships accordingly.

—The body of Lieutenant Eric Ellington, who was killed in an aeroplane at San Diego, Ca., Nov. 24, was buried at Clayton, N. C., Tuesday, December 2. Lieutenant Ellington was instructor for the aero corps of the United States Army.

—Because Miss Jessie Wilson had her wedding trousseau made in America and entirely of American made material, the chamber of commerce of Cincinnati, Ohio, sent a telegram of warmest commendation and congratulation to the future Mrs. Sayre.

—If parents are determined to keep pistols in the home—a weapon, by the way, about as useless around the house as a lightning-rod—why not keep them securely hidden away under lock and key? The following from last Sunday's dispatches is sad indeed, but carries its own lesson, if only parents would heed it: Asheville, Nov. 30.—Little George Chackels, the 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Chackels, was shot and almost instantly killed this morning by his 5-year-old brother Eddie, the weapon used being a 22-calibre rifle. The older boy had just secured the gun a few days ago and was playing with it on the back porch of the Checkels home when in some manner it was discharged, the bullet striking the small boy in the back. He was rushed to a local hospital, but died before reaching there. The mother created quite a scene, and is prostrated over the death of her baby.

—Sunday before last was a beautiful day, and thousands of automobiles, with their cargoes of human freightage, were on the roads. It would be a most interesting bit of information to know how many people were injured and how many killed in auto wrecks during the day. We presume that Monday morning's papers in all parts of the country carried for their localities paragraphs of a similar nature to this taken from Monday's Greensboro Daily News: "Ten people were hurt in three automobile accidents on the High Point road yesterday. One of these was knocked unconscious, another had a collar bone broken, and a third had an arm broken. The others received cuts and bruises. The automobiles in each instance were badly smashed. Two of those seriously hurt were ladies. One child was painfully cut. In each instance it was said that the accidents might have been avoided, save for recklessness."

THANKSGIVING AT ELON

Miss Sudie McCauley, matron at the Orphanage, had charge of the Thanksgiving exercises at the College last Thursday, and with the children from the Orphanage rendered the following program:

Song: Praise God—By the Class.

Prologue—Fred Cates.

Song: America.

Recitation: Pessimistic Gratitude—Thomas Andrews.

Dialogue: The Feast-time of the Year.

Song: Little Reapers—Alice Rodgers, Ruby Curling, Viola Councilman, Lula Brown, Edith Parker.

Dialogue: Gifts to the Poor—Pearl Goodwin, Irvin Parker, Gordon Churchill, Lucile Blanchard, Earl Cates.

Song: To Thee We Hail Thanksgiving—Class.

Recitation: Watch the Corners of Your Mouth—Alice Rodgers.

Song: I Love Him—By the Class.

Recitation: The Landing of the Pilgrims—Edith Parker.

Song: The Drunkard's Lone Child—Pearl Goodwin.

Recitation: Farmer John's Thanksgiving—Mary Webster.

Dialogue: November Came—Viola Councilman, Wannie Councilman, Pearl Goodwin, Pauline Andrews, Lucile Blanchard.

Song: The Little Wanderer—Viola Councilman, Iola Jacobs, Ruby Curling, Pearl Knott.

Song: God Will Take Care of You—Class.

All the children did well and the large audience was greatly edified. Revs. W. G. Clements and J. W. Wellons led in prayer. The offering amounted to $32.32.

The good ship Thomas, of the United States transport line, reports that it received wireless messages from a distance of 4,700 miles. How is that for projecting an electric current through the broad open?

When an epidemic of cholera is raging in the Philippines, the authorities do not close the schools to avoid contagion. They keep them open as centers of hygienic information for preventing the spread of the disease.

Help your pastor secure new subscribers.

"Swearing is Inexcusable"

A Sermon by REV. H. E. ROUNTREE
First Christian Church, Greensboro, N. C.

TEXT: For God will not hold him guiltless who taketh his name in vain.—Ex. 20:7.

PROFESSOR in one of our New England colleges,—a college founded by the money, prayers, self-sacrifices and devotion of a godly constituency, has been reported as saying:

"Swearing is as necessary as any other form of language. When you burn your finger you do not stop to think what you are going to say. It is natural to break out with a swear-word,—some oath which has served mankind for ages.

"Swearing is and always will be the universal language of man. Even though the exact language is not known to a foreigner, still he can comprehend the nature of an expletive through its form, appropriateness and innate expression."

It is possible that the professor is misquoted, but the Christian Endeavor World, which quotes him says he has not denied it; and I think it is kind to give him the benefit of the doubt by attributing his meaning to the innocent exclamations, such as "Good land of Goshens," "Dear me," "Fiddle-sticks," "Plague stamp it," etc., which in most cases are harmless exclamations. But if the professor meant this, he should have said so. No such definition of swearing is given in the dictionaries.

"To swear,—1. Appeal solemnly to God. 2. To utter profanity, blasphemy, cursing."

The first explains itself. The second is irreverent, degrading, impious, unhallowed, vulgar language. The first is the type of Abraham's, Jacob's, and Joseph's swearing with God and their fathers, and the second is the impious, unhallowed invocation of destruction upon anything.

It is not my purpose to discuss the innocent and harmless exclamations which so many people employ, but to show you how utterly inexcusable one is in "cussing."

It makes me cringe as though I had been struck a blow in the face to hear the profane blurring out of oaths in which the name of God, and of Jesus Christ, is unhallowed. There are a few who cannot use a sentence without an oath, others who are moderate "cussers," and still others who "cuss" under passion. And then when remonstrated with they attribute it to their constitution. It is hideous enough to be guilty of profanity, but it seems to me to be the limit of blasphemy to defend swearing by imputing it to God. He is our Creator.

Stealing may be excused under the pressure of starvation. Immorality and imbecility may have their hereditary propensities which cannot be controlled. Murder may have its palliating circumstances. But the man who swears has no excuse from God or man. He can plead no passion, appetite, irresistible temptation, or personal gain; for his words are directed toward Almighty God, and Jesus the Son; and he can never lay claims of gain thereby except that of a depraved mind, a seared conscience, and the curse of God which is:

"He will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain."

Zech. 5:3: "Every one that sweareth shall be cut off."

Reverence is one of the first things the Lord Jesus taught the disciples, and when He taught them how to lift their hearts to God in prayer, the very first utterance was reverence.

If swearing were not disobedience to God; it is not good manners. Animals are even sensitive to its influence. For example, it is said by a famous owner of fine horses:

"I have never yet seen a good mannered horse that was all the time being sworn at. Swearing hurts the feeling of sensitive horses, and I'll keep my word to discharge any man in my employ if I hear him swearing around my horses."

If we would have regard for gentlemanliness in ourselves and a fine sense of the feelings of others, we must never swear, for it is an enemy to both.

Besides all this, it is every man's business to have an end in view for speech as well as acts, and that end is to see that controversies are appeased, that the finer senses of others in whose presence we may be speaking may be satisfied, that we may establish personal innocence, gentleness and soberness, and the same in others to whom we may speak. If this be true, the following is true: Under passion however great, in the name of the false, however malicious, in the name of the earth or high heaven, by the stars, sun or moon, or the life of man, no man has a right or is excusable to swear. Look at these direct and very positive Scriptures:

Lev. 9:12: "Ye shall not swear by my name falsely, and profane the name of God."

Matt. 5:34-37: "Swear not at all" etc.

Zech. 5:3: "Everyone that sweareth shall be cut off."

Jer. 23:10: "Israel mourned because of her profanity." Hosea 4:2 (speaking of Israel): "There is naught but swearing, and breaking faith, and killing, and stealing, and committing adultery."

Jacob swore when he wrestled with the angel. Abraham swore with Jehovah. Joseph swore with his father, but each was by putting the hand under the thigh and appealing unto God as of the covenant betwixt them made. These acts of swearing were all in deep reverence, and were in the nature of a solemn and sacred pledge with Jehovah.

Two or three facts need emphasizing. First, Guilty Unintentionally

It is possible to be guilty of profanity when we do not mean to be so. For example: A man said, "For God's sake hold my books till I light my pipe." Dr. Clark, of the Christian Endeavor World, says: "Such an one I would not trust out of my sight. He is a man who will desert his wife, embezzle moneys, beat his mother, and betray his best friends if the temptation seized him to do so, for such expressions reveal a heart sorely depraved, even rotten at the core."

This looks like putting it very strongly, but I am confident that Dr. Clark's ripe experience and profound reverence for all that is good and holy, does not place him very far out of the true position, certainly in the principle of the thing.

My message to you is that you may be warned of the great evil of swearing, the utter inexcusableness of it, and that you are doomed to a downfall if you persist. Swearing is an insidious canker that gnaws away the vitals of morality ere one is aware.

I would warn every young woman, beware of the swearing man if he seeks your confidence. He will bring you tears and a life of sorrow if you tie to him. I know too many now who are deprived of the privilege of any response to religious feelings because their husbands are the swearing type. I know of a few cases reformed by marriage, but the rule is the other way.

I would warn the young men to set their faces and their hearts against this awful evil. Avoid it as you would a plague, a serpent in your path, and if you fall into irreverent company and you cannot reform them, avoid them as you would a leper; they will do much more harm than that dreaded disease.

A great poet said in an age more addicted to vice than our own, "To swear is neither brave, polite nor wise." Another has said, "To swear is cowardly because it takes advantage of God's longsuffering and kindness." "It is boorish because it offends the ears of decent people." "It is foolish because it brings no advantage, but harm." "It is wicked, because it is sin against God's commands."

Just as the boughs in the gardens bend toward the rich rain treasures as the fall, just as the wheat sways and makes obeisance before the enriching summer wind; so the truly great soul bows in humility in the presence of that God in whom is no admixture of meanness, selfishness or sin.

The second fact I want to emphasize is

Our Privilege and Our Duty Toward the Swearing Man

Gal. 6:1: "Brethren, if any man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such an one in the spirit of meekness (gentleness), looking to thyself, lest thou also be tempted."

Rom. 15:6: "That with one accord ye may with one mouth glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ."

It must be confessed that this is an age of little reverence. Many things once held sacred are now called into question. Believers have come to put their own beliefs into Christianity, and so thoroughly has the crust of ancient beliefs and observances been broken up, that in many quarters it seems as if the fear of God and respect for men alike have departed from the earth.

When the best of you would be reverent you are caught in the eddies of irreverent society and the maelstrom of business and materialism, and you are carried away from your moorings. You feel, as all right thinking people do, that God should be revered and always approached with that spirit, and yet you are almost totally unfitted to cultivate that spirit to override the current.

If you would be strong, you must take advantage of every avenue of knowledge. You must use your minds, feelings, and imaginations, in finding and possessing all of God. You must cultivate the closest companionship possible with your elder brother, Jesus Christ, in whom alone we find God in His highest qualities of character. Knowledge increases reverence, and if knowledge grows, reverence will grow. You cannot live with Christ without reverencing Christ. No one can think of Him and the divine creation of man without awe. And the only tolerance any one can afford to give a profane man is to reform his speech and point him to God. Brethren, too many of us fear to correct or reprove the man who swears.

Often he will thank us, and we may reclaim him.

For example, two drunken men entered a train. A man of God was sitting just behind them. The two men were intolerably profane. The godly man began to sing, "Come, Thou Fount of Every Blessing." The drunken men asked, "What are you doing?" The answer was, "You are telling everybody of your master. I want to tell everybody of mine." To this they replied, "You are a — fool." A passenger said, "Sing on, brother, I'll help you." He did. Other passengers joined in, until the two men were made ashamed and slipped out.

Another example: Chaplain McCabe, waiting for a train, heard a man swearing viciously. Instead of rebuking him, he began to sing, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul." The man was softened, soon turned and said: "Sir, I beg your pardon. If Jesus is the lover of your soul, as He was of my mother's, I shall respect your feelings and not use His name in blasphemy again." Brethren, we who do not swear indulge too much those about us who do.

How easily a storm is quelled by a little of the Spirit of God. God will help us to stop the language of profane and vulgar men. God give us the reverence and the fire of the Spirit to stoop down and clinch the lips of a profane world. This is the solemn duty of men who know God, and it becomes us to try to put a stop to so much vicious irreverence and blasphemy round about us.

RECOMMENDATIONS EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE

Dear Dr. Atkinson:

I am enclosing for THE SUN the action taken by the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference concerning the important matter of foreign missions at the last conference session. This report was heartily adopted and we believe will be as heartily carried out.

Yours truly,

WARREN H. DENISON,
Sec. Foreign Mission Committee.

1. We recommend the heartiest co-operation with the United Missionary Campaign for Home and Foreign Missions. At least four two-day conventions are to be held within the bounds of this conference as follows: Newport News, November 23, 24; Norfolk, November 25, 26; Portsmouth, November 27, 28; Suffolk, November 30 and December 1. We plead with our pastors to attend at least one of these conventions throughout, and we plead that our churches have a strong delegation of men at these conventions. More than 700 of these conventions will be held this winter in the United States. All denominations are asked to co-operate in them and the campaign will culminate in an every-member canvass in March or a time as near that as may be suitable for each denomination. Our Mission Board has set January as the time for the canvass by the Christians and we recommend to our churches to plan accordingly.

2. We recommend that the laymen of our churches as well as our pastors study carefully the work and plans of the Laymen's Missionary Movement and make it a great blessing to our churches.

3. We recommend that a strong effort be made to organize women's missionary societies in all our churches.

4. We recommend the formation of mission study classes in our churches, and especially so among the young people of the church.

5. We recommend that the second Sunday in March or a Sunday more convenient near that date be Foreign Mission Sunday throughout this conference and that each pastor and church be asked to make the day throughout a strong missionary day with sermon, songs, appeals, facts. Inasmuch as the conference only apportions $645 to all the churches, a membership of 6,500, we feel that an opportunity at least should be given on that day for special gifts for that cause in addition to the apportionment, as the apportionment of the conference is the minimum amount expected and not the maximum amount. Our foreign missionary work cannot be supported on the minimum apportionment. We must plan not merely to maintain the present work, but we must enlarge our work, for at least one million souls must be evangelized in this generation by the Christian church in addition to what we are now doing.

6. We recommend that an effort be made to place the Christian Missionary in all our homes.

7. We recommend to the young people of our churches that they make plans to attend some of the Summer Missionary Conferences next Summer and get in touch with missionary leaders and experts. Some churches are now helping some of their young people to attend such meetings.

8. We recommend to the churches and Sunday schools that they enter heartily into the missionary plans adopted by the Sunday School Convention in July.

9. We recommend that we endorse the Budget Plan adopted last year by the Mission Board and pledge to help the Southern Christian Convention do its full part toward its share of the budget.

10. We recommend the plan of a Missionary Committee in the church, a committee of the strongest men and women to develop missionary spirit and prayer, and giving.

11. We are firmly convinced that the day is here when it is important from every consideration for our churches to adopt the general plan as presented by the Laymen's Missionary Movement: a pastor aflame with missionary zeal, a strong missionary committee, a missionary Sunday school, a program of prayer for missions, systematic missionary education, the every-member canvass for Missions, and the weekly offering for missions.

THE PAST RECALLED

Dear Brother Atkinson:—

As I am now approaching the 61st anniversary of my ordination to the Christian ministry, I feel impressed to write a few lines for THE CHRISTIAN SUN, endeared to me by so many sacred memories, and never more so than it is today.

I remember when the first number of Vol. 1 came to my father's home in West Bloomfield, N. Y., in 1844. Elder Daniel W. Kerr was its editor, at that time, and I, a youth of fifteen years, read the modest little sheet with more than ordinary interest. My father became a subscriber, and took the paper until its publication ceased during the trying years of the Civil War. Nearly all of the contributors to the paper in those early days long since finished their work and "entered into their rest." At one time I had quite a list of them in my mind, but as I write now, only four of them came to me; namely, Wm. B. Wellons, Daniel W. Kerr, Mills Barrett and Solomon Apple. These, with several others, whose names do not occur to me at present, impressed me as strong, noble, consecrated and self-sacrificing ministers of Jesus Christ.

During and after the War, for a number of years, the CHRISTIAN SUN was lost sight of, but not forgotten. At the Quadrennial Convention held in New Bedford, Mass., in October, 1886, a copy was placed in my hands, and a subscription solicited, by Sister Barrett, then known as "Aunt Minnie"—the excellent and accomplished wife of Dr. J. P. Barrett, then editor of THE SUN, and now of The Herald of Gospel Liberty. Of course she took my name, and since, for more than 27 years, I have been a regular subscriber, a deeply interested reader, and an occasional writer for its columns, and hope to enjoy its visits every week "while on earth I stay." I congratulate you most heartily, dear brother, on the improved condition of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and for the good work it is doing, not only for our cause in the South, but for our cause generally.

Now just a few words concerning my ordination and the work that has followed it. On the 9th of December, 1852, my ordination occurred in the Franklin Street Christian Church, Fall River, Mass. Of the eight ministers who took part in the services, not one except the candidate is still living. All of the others have finished their work and gone to their eternal home. I had preached occasionally for nearly two years, and while yet a student, before I was ordained, commenced preaching at the age of 21, and at nearly 85, am still preaching, as occasion seems to require.

Since my retirement from pastoral work, I have supplied many pulpits of other denominations besides my own. Here in Portland I am frequently called to supply the local pulpits of the Congregational, M. E., U. B. and Baptist churches, and have always co-worked with them in union revival services. How much longer I shall be able to do this I can not say—only that it will be as long as the Lord shall give me the ability and strength to serve Him acceptably.

God bless you, Brother Atkinson, and all the good Christian people of our church, North and South. Very sincerely,

Your brother in Christ,

DAVID E. MILLARD.

Portland, Mich., November 25, 1913.

P. S. During 37 years of pastoral work, I served the following churches: Fall River and New Bedford, Mass.; West Bloomfield and Honeoye Falls, N. Y.; Marshall, Jackson, and Belding, Michigan.

ON YOUR WAY TO WORK

A church located in the very thick of business in New York bears on a bulletin placed conspicuously at the front an announcement of a "service of seven minutes at 7:45 A. M. for those on their way to work."

What a fine idea! It is a lure inspired of God to persuade the hurrying crowd to pause awhile for spiritual communion before plunging into the taxing toil of the day. It is quietly proclaiming a way to fortify the soul against the vexations and trials which are just ahead. It is showing the world the source of strength and courage from which all may draw through prayer.

But if no such invitation meets our eyes as we tread the highway, we need not on that account miss the advantage which it suggests. God is everywhere, and He hears His children's whispered prayers above the roar and din of earthly traffic. A few minutes taken from the perusal of the morning paper—to rest the eyes by closing them, and rest the soul by opening it toward heaven—while the train or street car bears us on toward daily toil, will bring a sense of security and a spirit of hope which will fill the darkest day with light.—N. Y. Advocate.

The old Congress died by statute of limitation Monday at noon, December 1, but the new was convened at once and will continue work on the Currency bill. Congress has had its longest session in history, and has been busy all the while.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

THANKSGIVING AT ELON

The annual Thanksgiving season is far from a monotonous reproduction of previous years at Elon College. Every annual recurrence of the occasion witnesses a variety and so a newness of life, and after it is passed we return to our accustomed studies with renewed energy and quickened enthusiasm. Our Fall term would be woefully deficient in spice and flavor, were Thanksgiving to be left out by any sort of strange mishap.

The season this year opened with the annual intellectual combat of the Junior and Senior classes. The question under discussion was a vital one—that educational and property qualifications should be added to our laws governing immigration. The affirmative was championed by Messrs. J. L. Farmer, News Ferry, Va., and W. D. Loy, Burlington, N. C., for the Junior Class, and they produced sound argument for their view of the matter. They based their plea largely on the protection due American labor and felt that America could discharge her obligation to the down-and-out of alien races by sending them the Gospel rather than by suffering our own population to be dragged down to their level.

They clearly had the popular side of the question, and if the decision of the matter had been left to the vote of the audience, they would have won.

But the three distinguished gentlemen who sat in solemn judgment on the debate, were of the opinion that Messrs. C. C. Johnson, Siler City, N. C., and F. F. Myrick, Bennett, N. C., produced the sounder argument, and so they voted for them. The negative agreed with the affirmative that undesirable aliens should be kept out, but argued that it had not been shown that illiteracy and poverty made an immigrant undesirable, provided his morals and health were good. Illiteracy is no test for character, neither is poverty. The illiteracy test would have kept from our shores the mothers of Lincoln and Jackson, and the property test would have excluded Jesus of Nazareth, Who had not where to lay His head, and yet His life has been the regenerating force of the ages. They also showed that two presidents of the United States, Cleveland and Taft, had vetoed bills embodying these tests.

It was beautiful to see, however, the fine spirit in which both audience and the Junior Class accepted the decision, though at variance with their own opinion. There was willingness to concede that they might be mistaken, and there were only words of praise for the judges. Thus did Thanksgiving Eve give real cause for thanksgiving in all hearts.

The usual sermon of Thanksgiving morning was displaced by an exercise specially prepared, under the leadership of Miss Sudie McCauley, the matron, by eighteen children from the Orphanage. The change was novel, but it was successful. And many times during the progress of the entertainment, stern eyes unaccustomed to tears were moistened, evidence that the heart was touched. The offering amounted to $32.22, which is more than twice as large as that of a year ago—which is proof that the Scriptural plan of giving, recently instituted here, does not hurt, but rather helps special offerings. Giving is a habit, and becomes second-nature, a real joy by constant practice. I predict that Heaven's windows will be opened wider for our little band this year than ever before and that God's blessings will be more abundantly poured out upon us.

Immediately following the exercises by the orphans, the annual Thanksgiving Dinner was given in the College Dining Hall. Many visitors and friends were there to enjoy the occasion, and declared themselves delighted. This writer does not recall the number of courses, but everything needful was there, including good fellowship and thankful hearts.

The annual public entertainment of the Philologian Literary Society was given that evening, and was pronounced almost universally the best yet of a long roster of good ones. This Society has during its entire history been noted for its thorough attention to its legitimate work, and there was abundant evidence given this year that the old life is still present in the organization. Mr. J. F. Morgan presided like a past-master, and Mr. M. C. Barbee did the secretary's duties gracefully. The humorous numbers by Messrs. H. H. Barbour and William Gray were of a high order, the two solos by Messrs. W. C. Franks and O. D. Poythress excellent, and the two orations by Messrs. J. D. Franks and B. E. Wilkins deserved the praise they elicited.

The chief interest centered, however, in the debate, which was with reference to the appropriation of $500,000 annually to the University of N. C. to make it a real university. The affirmative was represented by Messrs. H. S. Smith and Paul V. Parks, who declared in the beginning of their defense of the proposition that they did not wish to be understood as criticising the work of the State University, but as pleading for the enlargement and extension of its present work. They endeavored to show that no State had ever yet developed an excellent public school system without a great State University capping it, and further, that N. C. is abundantly able to bear the burden.

The negative, supported by Messrs. R. L. Brown and W. L. Kinney, argued that it is not expedient at present for the State of N. C. to spend more money for the higher education of its favored few at the University, while the minimum of four months for its secondary schools guaranteed by the constitution is not yet attained. The affirmative are mistaken in supposing that a State University is necessary for good public schools, they thought, for Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut and other states having fine public school systems have never had a State University. They have left higher education to voluntary support, which is far better. The greatest universities of the world have been thus supported and are now being so supported. Furthermore, State institutions must result in an incomplete type of education, because they cannot teach religion, and no education can be complete without religion.

The judges were Dr. R. L. Flowers, Trinity College, Hon. W. H. Carroll, graduate of the University, Burlington, N. C., and Dr. A. B. Kendall, graduate in the college of human experience coupled with an active ministry. They voted for the negative. Dr. Flowers rendered the decision, declaring that the thing that had most impressed him in all the exercises was the evident moral earnestness of every speaker, which he was sure was attributable to the fact that Elon is a Christian institution, which compliment was greatly appreciated by the audience.

Friday evening the Music Department presented thirteen young ladies and one young man, all pupils of the Director, Miss Wilson, in an excellent program of voice and piano numbers, every one of which deserves especial mention. The participants were Misses Hattie Belle Smith, Madge Moffitt, Inez Odell, Grace Walton, Vera Gay, Annie Simpson, Gertrude Mason, Essie Mae Houchins, Jennie Willis Atkinson, Ethel Barrett, Grace Rollings, Frankie McNeil, and Beatrice Mason, with Mr. Marmaduke Woodward. The renditions were chosen from such master writers as Slunicko, Godard, Hawley, Wachs, Lynes, Chopin, Woodman, Grieg, Friml, Schutt, Cowen, Sinding, Aylward, and Hahn.

The Sunday school, the preaching service, the Christian Endeavor prayer meeting, and the prayer meetings of the Christian Associations on Sunday were of their usual high order and came like the "benediction that follows after prayer" as the fitting climax of the festivities that had made Thanksgiving, 1913, a season long to be remembered by reason of the fine exercises described above and equally by the presence throughout of many devoted friends and Alumni, every one of whom we were delighted to welcome, but none of whom for lack of space we can individually mention.

W. A. HARPER.

* SUFFOLK LETTER

One of the seven hundred United Missionary Campaigns to be held in as many towns and cities of five thousand population and more, in the United States, between September, 1913, and March, 1914, is now being held in Suffolk.

In March, 1913, a joint meeting of duly appointed representatives, from the Foreign Mission Boards of North America and the Home Mission Council of the United States, was held in New York City to confer as to the desirability and feasibility of a united campaign for education and finance throughout the churches of North America, with the end in view of leading the church to discharge its full missionary responsibility both at home and abroad.

The execution of such a plan as to reach seven hundred towns and cities in such a campaign was committed to the Laymen's Missionary Movement. Suffolk was chosen as one of the seven hundred localities in which to hold these conferences. Teams of expert speakers go to all of these places, deliver addresses, hold conferences, and unite the denominations in mass meetings.

The campaign for each place includes two nights and one full day; and it proposed to make an every-member canvass, in all the churches, in March, 1914, with the end in view of securing systematic giving on the part of each member of every church to missions and benevolences.

The meeting in Suffolk opened on Sunday night, November 30, at the Baptist church, all local denominations calling off regular services and uniting in one great congregation. The crowded church, the enthusiastic singing of familiar songs, and the devotional spirit, were full of inspiration. Col. J. E. West presided and there were two main addresses. Dr. R. E. Blackwell, President of Randolph Macon College, delivered a very fine Biblical address on "Stewardship," showing Christian obligation in the use of all talents. It could not fail to appeal to thoughtful Christians and awaken in them a deeper sense of obligation to the support and the extension of the kingdom of Jesus Christ. Rev. Dr. A. C. Cree, of Atlanta, Ga., delivered a great oration on "The Alien Invasion and its Reaction on the World." His main proposition was that this is not a Christian nation, that it is not American, and that we are in the power of aliens. By statistics he maintained that only 33,000,000 out of 93,000,000 are in the churches, and that 60,000,000 are outside; that foreign-born and children of foreign-born outnumber native Americans. The peril and the opportunity of such vast numbers of aliens brought the missionary problem home to American churches. His question: "How can we convert the nations far away, if we cannot convert representatives of alien nations at our own doors?"

At 10:30 A. M. today, Monday, December 1, a "Women's Meeting" was held, when Dr. R. E. Gaines, Secretary of this movement for the Southern States, and Professor of Mathematics in Richmond College, made an address on "Women's Responsibility for Church Efficiency." His thesis was that "woman is the most influential factor in determining the policies of the family," and that "the family is a co-operative arrangement for family welfare, with a division of labor and sharing in the earnings." He elaborated the idea by striking examples and illustrations of the rights of women to enjoy the liberty of giving to the cause of the Kingdom; that giving and serving in the church should have family consideration as much as housebuilding, education, furnishing the home, and any other family interest. Mother and children should not be left out of the plan for the family contributions to the cause of Christ. Every Christian family should have a plan and all the members should be parties to this plan to make the family service in the church efficient. This same idea of woman as the most influential factor in determining the policies of the home was extended into the church, where woman plays such a large part in its work and its mission. Women should insist, if men are too busy to initiate such a plan, upon a family consideration of Christian obligation to the Kingdom. It is difficult to say how much a woman should give, under present conditions. She gives her time, her life, to the family with no financial earning capacity and should share in the earnings of her husband not only for food and raiment, but in supporting the causes in the Kingdom; yet no adequate part can be taken by her when the husband simply gives without consultation. Women should lead in this great matter, and help to work out a family plan of giving and serving that will meet the increasing demands of the world's evangelization.

Meetings for the afternoon and night will close the conference; but the plan is to have a local committee to arrange for Mission Study classes, every-member canvass, and further educational work along all benevolent and missionary lines.

W. W. STALEY.

RALEIGH LETTER

Raleigh Letter must be brief. Not that we expect our mail to be crowded with checks and subscriptions to our "building fund," but to let you know that we are still on the forward move, and appreciate all help, however small. We hand you list of new subscriptions and statement of progress since our last report:

Dr. O. G. King	5.00
Mr. P. R. Hatch	2.50
Mr. Keller	5.00
J. G. Council & Co.	2.50
I. H. Rowland	1.00
Bedford Brown	1.00
Cash, old lumber	1.50
Cash, freight claim	6.00
J. T. Holt	5.00
Rev. H. Scholz	10.00
Perry's Art Store	5.00
Rev. J. C. Stuart	2.00
Oscar Summers	5.00
Thompson Electric Co.	1.50
Harry B. Jones	1.00
C. P. Snuggs	1.00
N. Bess	1.00
Cash, A Friend	2.00
Baker Thompson Lumber Co.	9.40
J. Kline	1.00
J. W. Peebles	1.00
A. J. Bashford	5.00
Johnson & Johnson	1.98
Oldham & Worth	2.06
W. C. Underhill	6.95
Ellington Lumber Co.	2.85

G. B. Justice	1.00
W. S. Newcom	1.00
J. Rufus Hunter	1.00
Russell L. Jones	5.00
Dan E. Hooker	1.00
M. V. Sanderford	.25
Jno. C. Drewry	2.00
J. B. Green	2.00
C. A. Bridgers	.25
T. J. Tignor	5.00

$ 106.74

Previously reported 8,047.84

Total to November 1 $8,154.58

Our report to Conference shows new subscriptions for the year $694.52 and collections $4,432.56, and a gain in all departments of our church work. We were proud of our church letter. Were you? While we possibly may have failed to do our full duty, we are grateful for the good feeling, enthusiasm, and noble efforts of our little church. It is going to take every cent of the ten thousand dollars we are trying to raise to complete the improvements undertaken—and if you "just can't" send us check or subscription, please remember us in your prayers, for "God is good and gracious," and will supply the means in His own way. Our pastor, Rev. C. E. Newman, has moved, and is now a citizen of Raleigh and is doing some "mighty fine preaching." Our people are proud of him, and with God's help we want to make this the "very best year" in the history of our church.

C. H. STEPHENSON.

WINCHESTER LETTER

Rally Day Service was observed by our Sunday school last Sunday. There were 120 present and the offering was $13.33. In addition to the program rendered by the school, short addresses were made by Mr. W. S. White, Superintendent of the Presbyterian Sunday school, and Dr. J. L. Whitlock and Mr. W. G. Hardy, teachers of large organized classes in the Southern Methodist Sunday school. All these addresses were good and were much enjoyed by our people.

One new member was received in the Winchester church the 16th and another the 23rd. Another one expects to join next Sunday night. Our report to the Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Conference shows that 17 members have been received during the year, and over $1,000 paid on our church debt.

The following contributions have been received:

Reported	$7,247.63
F. H. Mayes	1.00
Rev. J. F. Burnett	1.00
Prof. R. C. White	1.00
Geo. C. Mayes	2.00
Rev. C. E. Short	1.00
Dr. W. A. Harper	15.00
Mrs. W. A. Harper	5.00
J. A. Kagey	1.00
Miss Florence Eaton	2.00
Miss Minnie E. Morris	1.00
Samuel Earman	5.00
Mrs. Samuel Earman	4.00
Sunday school	13.33
J. H. Park	1.00
Mrs. Reuben Foltz	1.00
A. D. Larriek	2.50
E. L. Alger	5.00
Mrs. M. E. Grove	5.00
Miss Maggie Spaid	5.00

Total $7,320.46

We are thankful for all these contributions.

W. T. WALTERS.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 27, 1913.

OUR CRADLE ROLL

DEAR CRADLE ROLL SUPERINTENDENTS:—

At last I have received an answer to one of the letters I sent out a month ago. Mrs. Fulgham, of Windsor, has written me a dear letter, telling me of her work there. She has been delayed by illness, she tells me, as her husband has been very sick, but he is better now, and she is taking up the work with renewed interest. Thank you Mrs. Fulgham, you have given me renewed interest, too, for I have wondered many times if any one cared or was interested in the work I was trying to do through this column.

We cannot afford to lose the dear babies, but I think we often fail to realize how very necessary they are to us. We know when the little ones come to our home and into our own life, how unspeakably dear and precious they are, but when it is a question of babies in the mass, we are apt to say, "Only a baby and let it go at that." "Only a baby," but, my, oh my, how they count up, when we add baby to baby the wide world over.

I am going to quote you an article sent out by the Elementary Superintendent for the International Sunday School Association, Mrs. Mary Foster Bryner, in the course of the campaign to double the membership of the Cradle Rolls, and, of course, to start Cradle Rolls where there are none now.

"The average birthrate of the world is one baby for every beat of the human heart, 70 every minute, 4,200 every hour, 100,800 every day, 36,792,000 every year. In the United States about 3,000,000 babies are born each year.

"The Cradle Roll covers three years, during which 9,000,000 babies enter life. During the first three years little lives are so frail, that about one in five gives up the struggle. Deducting this 20 per cent, there would remain 7,200,000 children of Cradle Roll age. The last Sunday school enrollment (1911) in the United States, without Cradle Roll or Home Department was 15,500,000 or about one-sixth of our population. If we could claim one in six of all the babies, our Cradle Roll membership would be 1,200,000. Shall we not claim our own? The latest enrollment showed 644,166 Cradle Roll members. This was a gain of 217,645 during the triennium (1908-1911)."

A "double-up" campaign during 1913 would give us the 1,200,000 babies for our Cradle Rolls. Let us secure and report them before our next International Convention, June, 1914. Within one year, Pennsylvania added over 1,000 Cradle Rolls. At the same rate, over 3,000 would be added during the triennium. This would double those reported in 1911. In one country in Pennsylvania, there is a Cradle Roll in each of the 285 schools. The first point of the Elementary standard is "A Cradle Roll."

Do these figures give you a wider vision of the work you can do? Don't they make you want to sit up, and say "As far as I am able to make it so, MY State and MY Denomination shall not be behind"? We cannot afford to be left; we cannot afford to lose our babies "As the twig is bent, the tree is inclined" is equally true of the child, and of the denomination, of the State and of the country at large. If we lose our babies, we shall be weaker as a denomination in the next generation than in this, we shall be poorer religiously as a state, because our denomination is weaker; we shall be poorer religiously as a Nation if our State lags behind. Dear Cradle Roll workers, won't you put fresh vim and energy into the work; won't you try to start a Cradle Roll where there is not now one? If you need information or assistance, won't you ask for it. Mrs. Foster here in Waverly, for the Southern Christian Convention at large, or myself, for the Eastern Virginia churches, stand ready and willing to help in any and every possible way.

Cordially your Cradle Roll Supt.,

MRS. BULLOCK.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

NOTES ON SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Subject for December 7: "The Fall of Jericho."

Text: Joshua 6: 8-11, 14-20.

Time.—April, B. C. 1451 (Ussher), 1458 (Beecher).

Places.—Gilgal, Jericho.

Persons.—Joshua, Prince of Jehovah's hosts, priests, armed men, the people.

Golden Text.—All things are possible to him that believeth.—Mark 9:23.

Central Truth.—Great truths are done through faith.

The passover which the Israelites observed just before the fall of Jericho was just forty years from the first passover, preceding their exodus from Egypt.

It was celebrated at Gilgal, in the plain, three miles west of the Jordan, and two miles east of Jericho.

The ceasing of manna is noted by the statement that the Israelites began to eat of "the old corn of the land," the grain kept over from the last harvest. It was then April.

Joshua was cheered by another manifestation of Deity, one of the appearances of the Angel of the Covenant, who came to the leaders of Israel at the most critical periods of the national history.

Jericho was a walled city situated in a hot, enervating plain. It had a rich temple and was very wealthy, but its people were never fighters. The circumference of the city, as measured by the ruins, was less than three-quarters of a mile.

The ram's-horn trumpets were used to announce the beginning of the year of jubilee and the new year. They were loud and piercing in tone.

The solemn procession of the Israelites filled the superstitious inhabitants of Jericho with fear, while at the same time they taught the Israelites that their triumph would be due to God alone.

We are not required to believe that all the wall fell, but only enough to give access to the city. Nor is it stated that the shouts of the Israelites caused the wall to fall. An earthquake, and earthquakes are common in that region, may have been the instrument used by God to accomplish the miracle.

Platform Illustration

A rotten apple.—When we sort the apples and potatoes in the cellar, what do we do with the decayed ones? Throw them away. Why? Because they are spoiled and will spoil all other apples and potatoes that touch them. The only wise thing to do with decayed fruit and vegetables is to keep them from spreading the decay to other fruit. Sometimes, in the past, cities or individual persons have become so evil that the only thing God could do for them was to keep them from spreading evil to others. Today's lesson tells of the city of Jericho being destroyed for this reason.—Bertha D. Hageman.

Question Review

1. What city of Canaan did Israel first besiege?
2. How was Jericho protected?
3. What does a New Testament writer say about the overthrow of Jericho's walls? ("By faith the walls of Jericho fell down.")
4. With what instruments were walled cities attacked at that day? (Battering rams, catapults, ladders, etc.)
5. Instead of these what did Israel's leaders use? (Horns.)

6. What was the central and most important object in the procession?

7. How many times in all did Israel march around the city?

8. How did faith claim the city when Israelites had finished executing Jehovah's directions?

9. What will become of the liquor traffic if we all attack it as Israelites attacked Jericho?—Carrie B. Leonard.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR LESSON: DECEMBER 14

"Lessons from the Men and Women of the Bible"—Hebrews 11: 1-40

It is suggested that the opening exercises be held, and following this the society will divide into two societies, the young men in one section and the young women in the other.

Hints for a Good Meeting

1. Gather around the piano for a song service. Let the members choose hymns, the girls selecting hymns written by women, and the young men selecting hymns written by men.

2. While all are standing around the piano have a series of chain prayers.

3. Study the Scripture-reading and assign certain verses to half a dozen or more Endeavorers to read in the meeting.

4. A week beforehand let the president of the society announce the topic and urge the members each to study a Bible character during the week. Let them use a concordance and read all that the Bible says about the character they select. Suggest, however, that at the meeting each Endeavorer confine himself to one characteristic of the person selected.

Women of the Bible

Jezebel, the Bad.—1 Kings 21.
Delilah, the Traitor.—Judges 16:4-20.
Vashti, the Modest.—Esther 1:10, 11.
Esther, the Daring.—Esther 4:16.
Eve, the Weak.—Gen. 3.
Sarah, the Faithful.—Gen. 17:15.
Rebekah, the Schemer.—Gen. 27:6.
Lydia, the Obedient.—Acts 16:14.
Dorcas, the Charitable.—Acts 9:36.
Naomi, the Disappointed.—Ruth 1.
Herodias, the Hater.—Mark 6:18-29.
Martha, the Home-maker.—Luke 10.
Mary, the Listener.—Luke 10:42.
Hannah, the Praying Mother.—1 Sam. 1:11-19.
Miriam, the Devoted Sister.—Exodus 15:20.

Men of the Bible

Adam, the Tempted.—Gen. 3.
Andrew the Personal Worker.—John 1:40.
Aaron, who yielded.—Exodus 32:4.
Balaam, the Greedy.—Num. 22.
Elijah, the Impetuous.—1 Kings.
Abraham, the Friend of God.
Lot, who chose Sodom.—Gen. 13:10, 11.
Jacob, who came back.—Gen. 32:24.
Joseph, the Dreamer.—Gen. 37:5.
Moses, the Organizer. Practical Moses.
David, the King and Poet.
Solomon, the Wise and Dissolute.
Job, the Patient.
Samuel, the Wise Prophet.
Daniel, the Daring.—Dan. 6:9, 10.
Joshua, the Warrior.—Josh. 1.
Peter, the Enthusiast.—Matt. 14.
John, the Apostle of Love.—1 John 4:7.
Thomas, the Doubter.—John 20:25.

The Closing Exercises

Let the two sections unite for the closing exercises. The leader may ask a member to name some new type of man, some man with characteristics that men of the Bible did not have. Are we not forced to the conclusion that human nature is about the same that it has been for 6,000 years. Some are strong, some are weak; some are faithful, some doubt; some are liberal, some are greedy; some are pure, some are vile.

Let some one in closing make a strong prayer that the members may be benefited by the characters they have studied.

THE OUTLOOK ON CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

One of the heartiest commendations from an important source ever given to Christian Endeavor is an editorial page in a recent number of The Outlook about the Increase and Efficiency Campaign. This editorial shows a thoroughgoing investigation of the recent plans of Christian Endeavor, and is most encouraging in its earnest approval of what the societies are doing today and the methods they are using. Here are some paragraphs of this editorial:

"The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor has had a development as notable as that of the Young Men's Christian Association, though less noted, since represented by no large property in buildings and material equipment. But it has rooted itself on three continents, and in the last four years has gained a million members.

"To maintain this progress is now its endeavor. Its birth in 1881 signalized the reawakening in the Protestant churches of the primitive spirit of Christianity in its endeavor to match creed with deed, and emphasized the need of this in the plastic period of youth.

"Many lands are now represented among the thousands in the various groups forming the United Society of Christian Endeavor. Its founder and president, Dr. Francis E. Clark, states that at least ten millions of its former members are now active and useful in the churches, to a degree large attributable to its training; also at least four million associate members, whom it helped to bring into the Christian life.

"But no statistics can adequately represent its effectiveness directly upon the churches and indirectly upon the many forms of Christian activity that have drawn strength from its influence.

"Churches that have been stirred to imitate the effort of modern business for greater efficiency would do well to pattern from the Endeavorers. Their new program of 'increase and efficiency' is a specimen of masterly organization eclipsed by no commercial or industrial corporation."

WHEN SANTA CLAUS FORGETS

For many years letters of children addressed to Santa Claus and mailed in our postoffices have gone into the waste baskets of the postmaster. The Postmaster General has made an order that in the future letters so addressed may be delivered to charitable organizations in the cities and towns where such letters are mailed. The circumstances of those writing the letters may be investigated. If the families are able to take care of the children the letters will be turned over to them, otherwise the charitable organizations may help to make Christmas brighter and happier in the home. Here is an opportunity for people who want to be happy at Christmas. Ask your postmaster for some of the Santa Claus letters and you can be St. Nicholas to the needy children.

—Mr. Francis B. Sayre, the husband of President Wilson's second daughter, Miss Jessie, has seen two years' service in strenuous missionary work on the coast of Labrador with Dr. Greenfell who acted as his best man at the wedding. Mr. Sayre is a lawyer, but is to be secretary to President Garfield (son of the late lamented President James A. Garfield) of Williams College. Mr. Sayre is an enthusiastic Y. M. C. A. worker, as is his bride an effective Y. W. C. A. advocate.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Secty. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'ty.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

THE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE OF THE N. C. AND VA. CONFERENCE

The women of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference held a Missionary Conference at the home of one of the good sisters near Lebanon, during the sitting of the Annual Conference. After a song, Scripture reading, and prayer, the President read a report which is given below. Following this was the Secretary-Treasurer's report, which shows that $154.46 has been raised the past year. Mrs. Minnie Farmer Cook read an excellent paper on the Need of Mission Study. Mrs. Robert Williams, of the Greensboro church, read a paper on "The Method of Work in the Greensboro Church."

Dr. Morrill, Mission Secretary, and Mr. Barrett, missionary to Porto Rico, both gave inspiring addresses on the work in the foreign fields and made the responsibility we owe the work to be seen more clearly and forcibly.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C.; Secretary, Mrs. M. F. Cook, News Ferry, Va.; Treasurer, Mrs. L. M. Clymer, Greensboro, N. C.; Supt. of Young People's Work, Mrs. Robt. Williams, Greensboro, N. C.; Supt. of Literature, Mrs. W. P. Lawrence, Elon College, N. C.

When the meeting was over, the women of Lebanon had so caught the spirit that it was an easy matter to organize a Society there, with thirteen members and the following officers: Treasurer, Miss Cora Foster; Vice President, Miss Lula Oliver; Secretary, Miss Virgie Davis; Superintendent of Young People's Work, Mrs. Bettie Wells; Superintendent of Literature, Mrs. J. H. Yarborough; Treasurer, Miss Jeter Taylor.

This makes a total of thirteen organizations in the Conference. The addresses were so inspiring and the women of the Conference are so determined to work harder that when another year has passed, we doubt not that this number will be doubled. Will you not help to make it so?

PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL ADDRESS

BY MRS. W. A. HARPER.

Last year at Greensboro we held the first session of our Conference women's organization for missions and heard some excellent addresses on missions and methods during the Conference. We went to our homes determined to raise the $150.00 assigned to our Conference by the Southern Christian Convention Board, and we are now met to consider what we have done and to lay plans for what we can do next year.

We have raised during the past year $154.46. The Treasurer's report will show in detail the sources of this money and how it has been expended. It is not a large achievement, but it is a beginning, and withal an encouraging beginning. It suggests to us yet larger work for the cause.

What We Have Done

We have societies as follows: First Church, Greensboro, three—Woman's Society with 15 members, Juniors with 10 members, and Willing Workers with 16 members; Virgilina, 1—a Woman's Society with 18 members; Elon College, four—Woman's with 18 members, Juniors with 14 members; Willing Workers with 14 members, and Cradle Roll with 22 members; Ingram, one—a Woman's Society with 15 members; and Pleasant Grove 3—a Women's with 24 members, Willing Workers with 20 members, and Young People's with 7.

This gives us a total of 12 societies with 193 members. Here again we have only a beginning, but an encouraging beginning and the suggestion of a yet larger work at our hands.

What We Should Do

If we had put our enthusiasm to work the past year and lived up to the inspiring speeches we had heard, we would have a far larger report this time. This is not to condemn enthusiasm nor to depreciate inspiring speeches, but to point out that we must not depend on these instrumentalities alone. We need enthusiasm. We must hear inspiring speeches. But to avail, these must be the means to equip us for practical work and work to be practical must be definite and thoroughly planned.

It would be idle to resolve here to establish a Women's Missionary Society, with auxiliary organizations, in every Church of the Conference during the next year. It will take time to bring about this manifestly much-needed condition. But some of the churches do not even yet have Sunday schools, after the insistence upon such organizations for many years by the ministers and the laity alike. We should not be discouraged, therefore, if we are not able in a year or two to establish our organizations in each local congregation.

There are, however, certain churches that we can reach and we ought to. We should use the societies we now have as nuclei to establish others. In the absence of a regular field secretary, the societies we now have must be missionary in the sense also that they shall carry their organic life to the churches nearby and also in the further sense of introducing the auxiliary organizations into their own organic life. Each Society that we now have organized should not rest till gathered around itself there is a Cradle Roll, a Willing Workers', a Young People's, and a Junior Society. In these organizations we will be training up the church membership and the congregation in the way it should go. This is scriptural, and it is also common sense. And history abundantly demonstrates that the organization which neglects children and young people must eventually succumb to imbecility, and this is practically true of religious organizations. Will each Society resolve for its own local work next year to institute these auxiliary organizations not now in operation by its side?

But fine as this will be, it is not enough. Ours is a missionary organization and should be so genuinely missionary that it will besides raising more for missions do actual missionary work in the nearby churches, carrying the Women's Missionary Society and its auxiliary organizations to them. Virgilina should be willing to organize Liberty and Hebron. Pleasant Grove and Ingram should take the society in organic form to Semora. First Church, Greensboro, should organize Palm Street Church, Hines' Chapel, Apple's Chapel, Pleasant Ridge and Monticello. Elon College will look after Shallow Ford, Berea, Bethlehem, Union, Long's Chapel and Haw River. The pastor with Mrs. Kernodle should organize Durham. Let this be our program for new societies next year and let us not only adopt the program, but let us work to carry it out.

Financially, we should attempt to raise at least $300.00, to be divided equally between home and foreign missions. Our sisters in Virginia have decided to raise $1,000 next year. We can reach that amount too eventually, but this year we can easily raise $300.00 if we will. Let us set this as our standard, and then let us rise to our standard, not in our own strength, but in the strength of Him who said, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

Can We Do It?

We can do it if we will. If we really want to do it, we can. But it will require work, and we cannot work unless we are interested. Let us study missions, work missions, pray for missions, give ourselves to missions joyfully, and we will do this work before we know it. We can do it if we will: shall we say we can do it, and we will?

Ought We To Do It?

There can be no doubt in respect to this matter when we consider the need of the heathen, the plain teaching of Scripture, and the poverty in spirit of our home churches. There is nothing that will so gloriously spiritualize the home Church as deep and abiding concern in missions. What a glorious privilege we have in this mission work and how our hearts should burn within us, as we contemplate it, and gird ourselves for the task! Yes, we ought to do it, and I believe we shall get the vision to enable us to do it.

"WITH MANY SORROWS"

There is a surprisingly strong statement in one of Paul's letters to Timothy. He is talking about people who want to be rich and of the temptations into which they come. Some, following this lure, and going down beneath these temptations, have, he declares, "pierced themselves through with many sorrows."

It is impossible to read the daily papers without thinking some such thought as that. Not only of money-makers, but of many sorts of pleasure-seekers and passion-followers, how true it is that they are being led to a painful, gloomy end! That will be the goal, instead of the bright thing they hope for—a soul which has pierced itself through with many sorrows.

We are apt to get a totally wrong idea of the warnings and invitations of the Bible. Young people, particularly, are tempted to think that God must be an unfriendly, even a cruel Being, to wish to deprive them of their pleasures. It is not so at all. God wants to lead us to pleasure, not away from it. So he tries to woo us from the things that must bring sorrow in the end. Innocent pleasure and hearty work we may, and should, enjoy to the full. But certain pleasures and certain tasks are not of that kind. They have only one end—a soul pierced through with many sorrows.

It is a poor bargain: the lights, the laughter, the thrills, now; the gold, the jewels, the houses and the lands gained by unjust strife now—after that, the sorrow-pierced soul. There is a better way. It is the way of wisdom. God "giveth us richly all things," all things good and pure and kind, "to enjoy." "The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow therewith."—The Christian Herald.

MARRIAGES

McClure-Davis

The residence of Mrs. Mattie E. Davis, the home of the bride, November 18, 1913, at 2:30 o'clock, was the scene of a pretty and quiet marriage, when Mr. Robert C. McClure, of Norfolk, Va., and Miss Ruby E. Davis, of Colosse, Isle of Wight County, Va., were united in marriage by the bride's uncle, Rev. J. W. Barrett, Jr. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Essie Johnson. The parlor was tastefully decorated in white and green, with potted plants and beautiful chrysanthemums.

The bride wore a traveling suit of blue with gloves and hat to match, carrying a lovely bouquet of white carnations. The lady attendants were all dressed in white and entered the parlor in this order: Miss Hettie Davis, with Mr. Raleigh Barrett; Miss Edith Saunders, with Mr. Chester Carr; Miss Mary Avis, with Mr. Roy Carr; Miss Izorah Barrett, with Mr. Ryland Lewis. Quite a number witnessed the ceremony.

The bride is very popular among a host of friends and acquaintances. After the ceremony the happy couple left by automobile for the station, accompanied by attendants and most of the young people of the neighborhood. When the bride and groom boarded the train they were showered with rice by friends wishing them a long and happy life. They left for Baltimore, the home of the groom's parents. After a visit North they will return to Norfolk, where they will reside. A host of friends join in best wishes. B.

McAdams-Tate

At Mt. Zion Christian Church, Orange County, N. C., November 23, 1913, just at the close of the sermon, Mr. Levi R. McAdams and Miss Ida Tate presented themselves at the altar and were united in marriage by Rev. Thos. W. Strowd. They have the best wishes of their many friends for a long and happy life. T. W. STROWD.

Dickey-Joyner

At the Monticello Hotel, Norfolk, Va., October 29, 1913, Mr. J. A. Dickey of Burlington, N. C., and Miss Naomi Joyner of Southampton County, Va., were united in marriage. After the ceremony they left for an extensive tour to northern cities. Upon their return they will reside near Burlington, N. C.

Miss Naomi is a popular young lady of the Johnson's Grove neighborhood, and Mr. Dickey is a prosperous young farmer residing near Burlington. May their lives be happy and useful. R. H. PEEL.

JOIN THE CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

Why? It will save you from one hundred and fifty to two hundred and fifty dollars on high grade pianos and player-pianos. It absolutely insures their quality. It provides convenient terms. It gives you perfect protection against dissatisfaction. Write for your copy of the catalogue and letters from old Club members. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

FEEL ABSOLUTELY SAFE

If in some way I could implant in you the absolute confidence I have that Shivar Spring Water will benefit any and every case of indigestion, bladder, kidney, liver and bowel trouble and other diseases arising from faulty elimination and non-assimilation of food, I would try that way. If seeing you personally should be possible, I will go to considerable effort to see you, and show you just what Shivar Spring Water has done for me. And with me

Join the CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 16.

THE OLD RELIABLE
ROYAL
Baking Powder
ABSOLUTELY PURE
THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE

Catarrh

The accompanying illustration shows how Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Remedy reaches all parts of the head, nose, throat and lungs that become affected by catarrh.

This remedy is composed of herbs, leaves, flowers and berries (containing no tobacco or habit-forming drugs) which are smoked in a small clean pipe or made into a cigarette tube. The medicated fumes are inhaled in a perfectly natural way.

A five day's free trial of the remedy, a small pipe and also an illustrated booklet explaining catarrh will be mailed upon request. Simply write a postal card or letter to DR. J. W. BLOSSER, 100 Walton St., ATLANTA, GA.

6 lb Pair of Pillows Free!

We again make our unparalleled offer of free pillows with your order enclosing $10 for our famous 36-lb. feather bed. All made of new sanitary feathers; best ticking and equipped with sanitary ventilators. Freight prepaid. Delivery guaranteed. Money back if not satisfied. Agents make big money. Turner & Corwell, Dep. A-O Memphis, Tenn. or Dept. A-O CHARLOTTE, N. C.

CANCER

FREE TREATISE
The Leach Sanatorium, Indianapolis, Ind., has published a booklet which gives interesting facts about the cause of Cancer; also tells what to do for pain, bleeding, odor, etc. Write for it today, mentioning this paper.

TRIAL BOX FREE

Do you suffer with
Headache or Neuralgia
One trial of Megrimine is sufficient—your suffering will cease. For over a quarter of a century

ME-GRIM-INE

Has been a Godsend to victims of all forms of headache and neuralgia. Write at once for a trial box without cost

The Dr. Whitehall Megrimine Co.
129 High St., South Bend, Ind.

This Is the IRON
Such a Comfort for YOU!
No stove to fuss over, no wires or tubing to bother with, no tiresome steps and aching back. A penny's worth of gasoline is enough for the family ironing with a Sun SELF-HEATING IRON.
Alcohol or Gasoline—Full Nickel Square Back and Double Pointed Styles. Irons better and saves your time. Always ready for use indoors or out. Saves its cost in fuel alone over and over again. Lasts a life time. Sold on Trial and Guaranteed. If your dealer does not sell "SUN IRONS" WRITE US FOR "DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULAR AND OUR SPECIAL FIRST ORDER TRIAL OFFER. Agents Wanted MODERN SPECIALTIES MFG. CO. 129 High St., South Bend, Ind.

Oldest Jewelry Mail Order House in America
Established 1855

C 25 $5.00
Solid Gold Pend. 7 Baroque Pearl, 1 Coral Cameo.

C 27 $2.75
Fine White Dia. in 14k Tiffany $14.25 Mtg.

C 29 $2.50
Solid Gold Cuff Buttons, Roman Finish.

C 31 Individual Communion Set
Made of highly polished pure Aluminum. Every cup hole is cushioned on three sides making it noiseless, complete with Cover, one Tray and 25 Glasses.....$7.00
C-32—Complete with 36 Glasses.....$7.50
C-33—Extra Tray with 25 Glasses.....4.75
C-34—Extra Tray with 36 Glasses.....5.50
We carry a complete line of silver plated and aluminum communion sets, bread-trays and collection plates; also automatic fillers, glasses, etc.

E.V. Roddin & Co., Chicago, Ill.
809-10-11 Heyworth Bldg., 29 E. Madison St.
Just write your name and address below, cut the coupon and mail now. You will receive our 160 page jewelry catalog by return mail.

Name.....
Street.....
City.....State.....

C 26 $3.50
Solid Gold Pendant, 2 Topaz, 1 Pearl and 2 Baroque Pearl Drops.

C 28 $3.50
Solid Gold Signet Ring, polished and Rose Finish.

C 30 $1.25
Solid Gold Scarf Pin, Roman Finish.

WEAVER PIANOS

make the best

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

They are the Pianos that have set a new high standard of quality for the 20th century.

They have the finest tone quality, and the most durable and lasting tone quality.

They have the most responsive and elastic touch.

The action is the most durable and lasting.

They are therefore the best for long wear and for satisfaction in the using.

Don't ever confuse the Weaver Pianos with any cheap Pianos offered as so called bargains or by mail order houses. The Weaver Piano is made for the musically cultured, and for the home of refinement.

If you present your family with a Weaver Piano it will cost you more than some others, though the price is not extravagant, but it will stand forever as a testimonial of your discriminating good judgment and will prove a permanent joy to the members of your household. Write us at once for catalogue prices and full particulars. Easy terms of payment when desired.

WEAVER ORGAN & PIANO COMPANY, MANUFACTURERS, YORK, PA.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of higher education fostered by the Southern Christian Convention.

MODERN IN EQUIPMENT, Steam Heat, Electric Lights, Baths, Sewerage, Elegant New Buildings.

A HIGH GRADE INSTITUTION whose graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great American Universities without examination.

MAINTAINS EXCELLENT MUSIC, Art, Elocution, Normal, and Preparatory Departments.

A FACULTY OF SEVENTEEN SPECIALISTS, with a successful record of twenty-three years behind it.

HAS ALL THE ADVANTAGES of city life with none of its disadvantages. Situated in the delightful hill country of North Carolina, famed for its healthfulness, pure water, and high moral tone.

ELON COLLEGE HAS DONE MORE to build up the Christian Church than any institution ever yet commissioned by our people.

TERMS VERY MODERATE. $141 to $191 per session of ten school months.

For catalogue or other information, address,

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, Elon College, N. C.

EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

has often heard class-members say: "I cannot understand the Bible." They could not understand any other book that was printed three hundred years ago. So many English words of that day were different.

More than forty new dictionaries have been required since then, to keep up with the changes in the English language. The

American Standard Bible

Edited by the American Revision Committee

uses the words of our day, which make the meanings of the Bible writers clear to us.

Write for Our Free Booklet, "How We Got Our American Standard Bible" No teacher can afford to be without it.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's Icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf."

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly."

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

I could carry to show you hundreds of letters of other people who are every bit as enthusiastic as I am concerning this splendid water, which, as you have read before, is good, tastes good and is "best for what ails you," as the boys say. But I cannot see you all, and the only way that I can show you my faith in this water is by my double guarantee. When I put it up to you to decide whether it helps you, and stand ready to send back your money if it does not help, isn't that pretty good reason to believe I am in earnest? If any man stands where I did before Shivar Water cured me—a complete wreck—and wants to get well, I'll do anything reasonable to help him. Any man would. So when I insist on saying that Shivar Spring Water is the most reasonable thing, you can be sure it is because I know from experience what I am talking about.

Read my guarantee:

"Send me two dollars for ten gallons, two five-gallon demijohns. Follow the directions, and if the results are not satisfactory to you I will refund the price on receipt of the two empty demijohns and your report. You to be the sole judge.

"But ten gallons is not a fair test for any mineral water. Therefore I make you the following guarantee to secure a fair trial:

"Order and drink twenty gallons of Shivar Spring Water, at least two quarts a day, as directed in my booklet, and if after that you feel you have received no benefit therefrom return the demijohns and I will send you ten gallons more, absolutely free of charge, and if, after using the third ten gallons, you see no benefit, I will cheerfully send you five dollars in cash, being a refund of money you have paid me and a dollar for your trouble.

"No strings to it; no fuss about it; just a simple letter to me telling the truth about your own case."

There are literally hundreds who have testified that they have been helped. I would be pleased to send you a booklet of these. But the best way is to try Shivar Spring Water. If your druggist cannot supply you I will send you ten gallons for $2, and if you use as directed and say you are not benefited, I will promptly refund the money. I would do more if I knew how to convince you relief can be obtained through this water. Address me at Shelton, S. C.

N. J. Shivar

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Everything! For example, the name of "Ludden & Bates" on the fall board or a piano or player-piano is a positive and permanent guarantee of the highest quality and durability in every detail of construction. It means that the keys are genuine Ivory, not celluloid. It means that the strings are made of the finest imported piano wire, not of a cheap substitute. It means that the case is built of the choicest patterns of genuine Mahogany, not of painted imitations. It means that the sounding board, the most vital part of the instrument, is built of the finest specimens of mountain spruce and has been seasoned and tested for five long years and has been pronounced perfect by experts before the piano is allowed to leave the Factory. It will never warp or crack—it is perfect.

The name of "Ludden & Bates" on your piano is like an insurance policy, for it guarantees the owner against all imperfections in workmanship and material. It is also your best guarantee of superior quality in tone and action. For nearly half a century Ludden & Bates Pianos have maintained the highest standard of excellence.

The Christian Sun Piano Club makes it easy for you to own a Ludden & Bates Piano or Player-piano. You are cordially invited to join. Write for your copy of the catalogue and full particulars. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

THE PIANOLESS HOME

Have you ever visited a home where discord had usurped the place of sweet accord and where time seemed to hang heavy on the hands of the individual members of the family? There was no entertainer there! A sweet-toned Piano or Self-player Piano would have kept that home so happy, enlivened and entertaining that the home-life would have been like "One grand, sweet song."

Why let your home grow dull and your young folks seek amusement in questionable places, all for the want of proper entertainment at home? The Christian Sun Piano Club enables you to secure a high-grade piano or player-piano of the sweetest tone, at the lowest Factory price and on terms to suit your convenience. Every feature of the Club is guaranteed so that you cannot fail to be delighted. Write for handsomely illustrated catalogue and full particulars. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

AGENTS A BRAND NEW LIGHTER

Novel watch-shaped lighter. Operated with one hand; gives an instantaneous light every time. No electricity, no battery, no wires, non-explosive; does away with matches. Lights your pipe, cigar, cigarette, gas jet, etc. Dandy thing for the end of your chain. Tremendous seller. Write quick for wholesale terms and prices. B.W. Brandt Lighter Co., 145 Duane St., N.Y.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving; Wedding Invitations; Visiting Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All Kinds of Books: Hymn Books Song Books, Teacher Training Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian Annual, and other publications of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

Plant Some Apple Trees Around Your Home Place

Trees set this season should produce some apples in four years. When ten years old you may expect a barrel or more from each tree. You can make the trees produce crops every year if you care for them right.

Plant Carolina-Grown Trees for Results

Our trees are given expert care from budding to digging. They are the best for the South for they are grown for the South.

Get Our New Catalogue Today

It will help you to select the right varieties at the right price—we have no agents but sell direct to you. Write now.

HOWARD NURSERY CO.
Box 206, Stovall, N. C.

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. JAMES O. COX, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

J. O. Cox, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson Chairman Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Brought forward	$4,006.76
Dues
Miriam Odom	.10
Florence Patricia Holden ..	.10
Luther Thurma Williams ..	.10
Elizabeth and Harvey
Vincent	6.00
Hubert Beane	.50
Carlene Beane	.50	7.30

Birthday Offering

Wm. Staley Cheatham..	$ 4.00
Florence H. Cheatham..	2.00	6.00

S. S. Offering

Apple's Chapel	.11
Wakefield, Va.	2.89
Bethlehem (Nansemond) ..	12.00
Beulah (Ga. and Ala.)..	2.75
Mt. Carmel (E. N. C.)..	1.68
Linville (Valley Con.)..	1.40
First Church, Norfolk ..	1.70
Union, Va.	1.00
Big Oaks (W. Con.) ..	1.00	24.53

Special

Mrs. Hattie Blanchard, support of children ..	$ 3.00
Willing Workers, Liberty, Va.	10.00
Taylor Bolling (work) ..	2.00	15.00

Thanksgiving Offering

Apple's Chapel	$13.15
Union, N. C. (partial report)	6.15
Wakefield, Va.	8.15
Berea (Nansemond) ..	61.11
W. H. Ethridge, Selma..	1.00
Six Forks	4.50
Elon, C. E. Society....	3.72
Oak Grove S. S., Ga....	2.45
J. H. Fowler, Mebane..	1.00
Mem. Christian Temple.	53.69
Miss Jessie Massey ..	2.50
Miss Bettie Stephenson.	1.00
Dingler Chapel, Ala. ..	2.00
Mary E. Scott	1.00
Ladies' Aid, Youngsville	5.00
Liberty (Randolph) ..	4.17
Monticello (church and Sunday school)	8.69
New Center	1.60
Mrs. Thad & Fred Troy	.50
Ladies' Missionary Society, Holland, Va.	10.00
Rev. T. B. Dawson	1.00	192.38

Total for the week	$ 245.21
Grand Total	$4,251.97

We are happy this week. In addition to the above fine report, many societies and friends have remembered us with valuable boxes of good things to eat and nice things to wear. We are so grateful for each donation, and appreciate the Christian spirit in which they were given. One box contained a beautiful Thanksgiving card bearing the following sweet message: "To our dear little sisters and brothers at Elon—Heartiest greetings and best wishes for a pleasant Thanksgiving. (Signed) Willing Workers, First Christian Church, Greensboro."

Many similar messages of good cheer have been received, which makes the gifts even more valuable. Space will not permit mentioning the contents of each box or barrell. The following have been received up to the time of this writing:

Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society of Holland Christian church, one new quilt.

Mrs. E. T. Pierce, News Ferry, Va., one box of clothing, and one dozen jars of fruit.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Rowland, Raleigh, N. C., box of candies, fruits, and little boy's overcoat.

Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society of Wake Chapel Christian church, one box containing clothing and dress goods.

Willing Workers of Suffolk Christian church, box for Mary Thompson.

Raleigh Christian church.

J. A. Harden, one-half barrel of apples.

Foster & Caveness, Greensboro, N. C., one crate of oranges.

W. R. Brown, Durham, N. C., four gallons of oysters.

"Billie" Myrick, Elon College, N. C., one-half crate of oranges.

Willing Workers, First Church, Greensboro.

Philathea Class of Burlington Sunday school, a buggy load of nice things to wear.

We are grateful indeed for each gift, and pray God's richest blessings upon each giver. But the thing that rejoices our hearts most is the many nice letters that we have to present this week. I believe we have the ads. on the run now, and we will soon chase them off of our page. Come on, boys, and hurry up, girls, and let us have the best and brightest page in the paper.

We haven't time now to tell you all about our Thanksgiving. But it was a delightful day with us. The exercises at the College, given by eighteen of our boys and girls, rejoiced the heart of us all. I only wish each member and friend of the church could have been present. I am sure they would have felt proud of their Orphanage and rejoice over their investments in the past, and resolved to make larger ones in the future. The dinner was the best we have had in a long, long time, and we were all present.

Many friends have called during the Thanksgiving season. We were delighted to have them, and trust that they may come again. We are always glad to have friends of the institution come and see what we are endeavoring to do for the needy and dependent children.

Again thanking every one who has had a part in this report—many whose names are not known contributed their dimes or dollars to make this nice offering; but if contributed in the right spirit, the names are all recorded in heaven, and the Lord will add his blessing to each contributor.

Your very grateful and humble servant,
J. O. Cox, Superintendent.

Louisburg, N. C., Nov. 24, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I was a welcome visitor at home and I hope I am in the Children's Corner. Grandma Staley gave me a dime to send to the Orphanage. You may tell all the cousins I came on the 20th of the month, and weigh nine pounds and am twenty-one inches tall. All looked at me to see if I was all right, and who I looked like. They say I have a chin like father, nose like grandma, eyes like Grandpa Staley. My mother says I have a will of my own like her. After all the mixture they decided I was pretty. I cried and kept them awake one night; then I slept so long they were uneasy and tried to waken me, but I slept on. I am named for my cousin, Florence Cheatham, and Grandma Staley. I was not born with a silver spoon in my mouth, but my little cousin, Margaret Holden, brought me a gold one.

Love to you and the Cousins.

FLORENCE PATRICIA HOLDEN.

We are delighted to have you, Miss Florence; just as welcome in our Children's Corner as you were at home. We accord you first place, and hope to be favored with a call each month.

Seagrove, N. C., Nov. 24, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Enclosed you will please find $.50 for each of us, as our Thanksgiving offering to the orphans in your care. Papa gave us the money to send. I, Hubert, am three years old. Little sister is fifteen months old.

Wishing you all a happy Thanksgiving, we are your little nephew and niece,

HUBERT BEANE,
CARLENE BEANE.

Thank you! We are glad to hear from Randolph, Uncle Jim's native county, and we appreciate your nice letters and liberal offering. Write again real soon. We are so glad to have you.

Driver, Va., Nov. 17, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I would be glad to see the Corner full of letters too, for I love to read them. I will write and send a dime for this month. I hope all at the Orphanage will have a good time Thanksgiving.

Fondly yours,
MIRIAM ODOM.

Thank you, Miriam! We join you in the desire to see the "Corner" full, and believe you are going to help us make it so. Will you not be one of 100 who will agree to write each month? I believe you will, and I am going to count on you. Please do not disappoint me.

Dendron, Va., Nov. 27, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Here comes a little boy from Dendron asking permission to join your Band. I am nearly five years old, and attend the Christian Sunday school. I have been promoted from the Cradle Roll to the Primary Class, so you see I am quite a man.

Although we have a rainy Thanksgiving Day, I hope you and the Cousins are bright and happy.

I used to say the pennies I gave to Sunday school were for the "children that hasn't any mamma," but since I am older I find they don't get them all, so am sending some more direct.

I am spending the day with Auntie. Hope this won't find the waste basket, for I want to surprise Papa with

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Statements, Envelopes, Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

The Southern Christian Publishing Company, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

THE BEST Sunday School Help

If you are a Sunday school teacher or pupil you should desire the best possible help. This you will find in one volume, Peloubet's Select Notes on the International Lessons for 1914. Send in your order now. Up to January 1 you can get a copy for $1.00, after that time, $1.25. The publishers' price is $1.25, but we save you 25 cents by ordering from us. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

my letter in the Sun.

With love to you, Aunt Mamie, and the Cousins, Your little nephew,
LUTHER THURMAN WILLIAMS.

How happy we are to welcome the boy from Dendron to our Band, for I know he is going to make a noble man. Nearly five years old! That sounds good to Uncle Jim, he has a girl almost four and a boy that will soon be two. We had no rain Thanksgiving, but turkey, oysters, and other good things to eat. We all thought it was good to be an orphan on that day. Wish all the Cousins could have been with us.

Holland, Va., Nov. 21, 1913.
Dear Uncle Jim:—

We are so ashamed of our page in the Sun when there are no letters from the Cousins. We are always promising ourselves to do better about writing, and we go right on neglecting it. It sounds like old times to write to "Uncle Jim," and I hope you are as nice as the other Uncle Jim. We love him, and I am sure we are going to love you, too. We have sold our chickens, and we send six dollars for our Thanksgiving offering.

Your friends,
ELIZABETH VINCENT,
HARVEY VINCENT.

Thank you, my dear children. We appreciate your letter and offering very much. Now won't you promise this Uncle Jim that you will write each month, and help keep the ugly old advertisements off of our page. Let's make our page one that all will be proud of. We can if all help.

Nathalie, Va., R. F. D. 2., 1913.
Dear Brother Cox:

Please find enclosed $10.00 for the Orphanage. This amount was given by Liberty Sunday school workers. Wish we could send you more. Our Sunday school is young and small, yet we hope to send more next time.

I will close, hoping to hear from you at an early date, and praying God's blessings upon you and the little ones.

I am, sincerely,

HENRY W. TUCK,
Sec.-Treas. Liberty S. S.

I know all the Cousins will be glad for this good word from the faithful workers of this young but growing Sunday school. Uncle Jim remembers with pleasure the pleasant days spent in their midst this Summer. He knows how loyal and faithful they are. We are expecting good things from them.

Roxboro, N. C., Nov. 20, 1913.
Dear Uncle Jim:—

It is three months past my birthday. I was four years old August 20, and we meant to send my birthday money on time as usual, but you will have to excuse us this time. We have missed my little sister so much. I send $4 for my birthday. $2 is to divide between the children in rooms furnished by Dada, Grandma and Greatma, and the other $2 is to add to your Thanksgiving offering or to use as you think best for the Orphanage.

Last year sister and I both had birthday parties, and this year she went away before time for either party, but Miss Florence Harvey, otherwise known as Pontie, was present at mine.

Please let me know what date last winter our last letters were written, so I can write again soon and straighten up our dues. Fondly,

WILLIAM STALEY CHEATHAM.

Join the CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 15.

We are so glad to hear from you after so long a silence. I am sure you miss your little sister very much. I will look up the date of your last letter and write you in a few days.

FISH

Let me tell you how to catch them where you think there are none. We make the famous Double Muzzle Wire Fish Basket. Greatly improved this year. Write to EUREKA FISH NET CO., Griffin, Georgia.

GIVE ME A CHANCE TO CURE YOUR RHEUMATISM FREE

Mr. Delano took his own medicine. It cured his rheumatism after he had suffered tortures for thirty-six years. He spent $20,000 before he discovered the remedy that cured him, but I will give you the benefit of his experience for nothing.

If you suffer from rheumatism let me send you a package of this remedy free. Don't send any money. I want to give it to you. I want you to see for yourself what it will do. The picture shows how rheumatism twists and distorts the bones. Maybe you are suffering the same way. Don't. You don't need to. I have the remedy that I believe will cure you and it's yours for the asking. Write me today. F. H. Delano, 541-B Delano Building, Syracuse, New York, and I will send you a free package the very day I get your letter.

DR. J. H. BROOKS, Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.

Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81 4:35 a. m.
No. 29 Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41 4:10 p. m.
No. 43 6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84 12:48 a. m.
No. 38 11:35 a. m.
No. 66 12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

NEW FEATHER BEDS $7.30
Extra weight 30 lbs. Pair 6 lb. pillows $1.15
NEW LIVE, SANITARY FEATHERS. Best ticking. Guaranteed as represented or money back. Order now or write for BIG FREE CATALOGUE.
AMERICAN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Agents Wanted
Dept. 10 NASHVILLE, TENN.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
A toilet preparation of merit.
Helps to eradicate dandruff.
For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair.
50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

DROPSY TREATED, usually gives quick relief, soon removes swelling & short breath, often gives entire relief in 15 to 25 days. Trial treatment sent Free
Dr. THOMAS E. GREEN, Successor to
Dr. H. H. Greens Sons, Box X, Atlanta, Ga.

SONGS 52 Favorite Songs, words and music complete. The kind you like best. Purchased separately, would cost over $5. All 52 songs sent postpaid on receipt of 10c. (coin or stamps). Send now. Crafts, Richmond, Va.
10 CENTS

FRESHEN UP, MY FRIEND!

Don't Look Like a Rag Baby.

The Columbia Laundry Company can take your old suit and hat, dry clean them by the best French process, and make them look like new. A complete cleaning plant, backed by years of experience and fully responsible, for the refreshment of clothing and household fabrics.

The latest machinery and skilled workers enable us to give universal satisfaction. We have a complete chemical laboratory to test the goods and remove the stains from them. Our efficient force puts clothing especially into perfect order.

When in Greensboro visit our plant. It is most complete and interesting. We give the best of attention to

Dry Cleaning

Perfect Dyeing

Good Laundering

Send your goods by parcel post. We will return them within a week. We refer to any bank or any citizen of Greensboro. Agents wanted in each town. Write for our booklet of prices.

COLUMBIA LAUNDRY COMPANY

106 Fayetteville Street, Greensboro, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.

Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles, Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

HIGH CLASS

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAINS STREET,

BURLINGTON N. C.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

Schedule of the trains leaving
Elon College:

N. B.—The following schedule
figures are published only as information and are not guaranteed.

No. 21—11:28 A. M. Through
Train for Asheville with Chair
Car for Waynesville. Connects at
Asheville with Carolina Special for Cincinnati and Chicago, also for
Chattanooga, Memphis and all
Eastern points. Connects at Greensboro with Through Train
for Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, also with local train for points South.

No. 139—6:32 P. M. For Greensboro. Handles through Pullman
Sleeping Car for Atlanta. Makes connections for all points North,
East, South and West, New Orleans, Texas and California points.

No. 131—9:27 P. M. For Greensboro. Makes direct connection with
Train No. 38, Solid Sleeping Car
Train for Washington, Baltimore,
Philadelphia, New York, makes connection for Boston, Pittsburgh,
Chicago, and all Eastern and
Northern points. Connects with
Through Tourist Sleeping Car for
New Orleans, El Paso, Los Angeles, and San Francisco.

No. 111—5:44 A. M. For Greensboro, with Sleeping Car for Winston-Salem. Connects with No. 37,
Through Train for Atlanta, New Orleans, connects also for Asheville, St. Louis, Memphis, Birmingham and all Western and Southern points. Also with local train for Danville, Lynchburg and
Washington.

No. 22—4:48 P. M. Raleigh and Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern and S. A. L. Rwy., also at Selma
with A. C. L. Rwy. And at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and
A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 144—10:08 A. M. For Raleigh and Goldsboro. Makes connections at Selma with A. C. L.
Rwy., for points North and South,
and at Goldsboro with Norfolk
Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 108—8:00 A. M. Local Train
for Raleigh, Selma and Goldsboro.
Makes connection with S. A. L.
Rwy. at Raleigh and A. C. L. Rwy.
at Selma and Goldsboro.

No. 112—1:27 A. M. For Raleigh, Selma, Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern, S. A. L. and R. C.
& S. Railway, at Selma with A. C.
L. Rwy., at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

For detailed information, also for information concerning special round trip rates account various special occasions and Pullman
Sleeping Car reservations, ask any
Southern Railway Agent or communicate with the undersigned.

J. O. JONES.

Traveling Passenger Agent,

It was estimated that the profit of parcels post the first year would be $15,000,000, when, behold, it turns out to be $30,000,000.

THE FINEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD

FOR THE MONEY

* This Photograph represents exact size $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$ inches

Bound in French Morocco, absolutely flexible,
with overlapping covers as shown in this photograph. Has red under gold edges.

—IT CONTAINS—

The Authorized Version of the Old Testament and New Testament

—HAS—

Self-Pronouncing Text

All the proper words being accented and divided into syllables for quick and easy pronunciation.

—IT ALSO CONTAINS—

A New Series of Helps to Bible Study

—INCLUDING—

4000 Questions and Answers

which unfold the Scriptures

31 Beautiful Illustrations

showing scenes and incidents of Bible History

12 Maps of the Bible Lands in Colors

Large Clear Type

Fine Paper

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN one year.

$2.50, postpaid.

Or sent alone for $1.50, postpaid.

—ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO—

The Southern Christian Pub. Co.,

Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Sutton

Whereas: Death hath removed from among us our friend and worthy sister, Elizabeth Sutton, who had been a faithful member of our Society for many years;

Therefore, Resolved, That in the death of Sister Sutton, Bethlehem Ladies' Aid Society has lost a true and valued member, and the home has lost a kind mother and good neighbor.

Resolved, Second, That these resolutions be spread upon the records of our Society, and given to The Christian Sun, Burlington News and State Dispatch for publication, and that a copy be presented to the bereaved family.

MRS. J. M. SMITH,
MRS. MARTHA MORTON,
MRS. LYDIA APPLE,
J. W. HOLT,

Committee.

Caffey

Near Glencoe Mills, Alamance Co., N. C., October 1, 1913, Mrs. Caroline C. Caffey, wife of W. S. Caffey, at the age of 75 years 6 months and 26 days. She was the mother of nine children, six of whom survive her. She had been a member of Bethlehem Christian Church since about 1880. Her funeral and interment conducted by Rev. J. W. Holt.

J. W. HOLT.

Lawrence

Mrs. Susan Lawrence died near Mt. Carmel Christian Church November 14, 1913, aged 85 years and 3 months.

She leaves one daughter, three sons, fifteen grandchildren and fourteen great grandchildren, besides a large number of relatives and friends. Funeral services were conducted at Mt. Carmel Church by the writer. May the children and friends have the comfort of the Christian religion.

R. H. PEEL.

Caffey

Whereas: It has pleased God in His wisdom and goodness to call from our midst our beloved brother, James Robert Thomas Caffey, who was a loyal, consecrated member of our church, Sunday school and community, and one of our most faithful citizens; therefore be it resolved

First—That in the death of this good man, Monticello church and Sunday school has lost one of its most faithful, devoted members, and the community one of its most beloved citizens.

Second—That while we mourn our loss, we bow in submission to the will of God recognizing the beauty of his consecrated Christian life, and commend it to those who knew him as an example worthy of their consideration.

Third—That we extend our sympathy to the bereaved family and pray that the all-powerful hand of God may sustain and uphold them in their sorrow.

Fourth—That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our church and Sunday school records, a copy sent to The Christian Sun and the Greensboro Patriot for publication.

J. V. KNIGHT (Pastor),
MARY NICHOLS,
LELIA McKINNEY,
Committee.

Montgomery Apple

Whereas: It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst, by death, our friends and neighbors, Mrs. Sarah Montgomery and Mrs. Jennie Apple, we, the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of Hines' Chapel, hereby resolve:

First—That while we shall miss them, we recognize that this dispensation of Providence is for the infinite good of our departed sisters.

Second—That we strive to emulate their devotion to their church and their duty, and keep the good influences of their lives alive in our midst.

Third—That a copy of these resolutions be published in The Christian Sun and spread on our minutes.

Mrs. Sarah Montgomery died September 23, 1913, and Mrs. Jennie Apple, October 20, 1913.

MRS. ROBERT SMITH,
MRS. A. R. HINES,
MRS. JAS. J. BUSICK,
Committee.

Caffey

Deacon J. R. T. Caffey was born September 1, 1850, and died November 2, 1913, aged 63 years, 2 months and 1 day. He was united in marriage to Ann Dalton, October 23, 1873, and to this union were born two daughters, Mary Sue and Nannie.

In early married life Brother and Sister Caffey both gave their hearts to God, and united with Salem Chapel church. Later in life Bro. Caffey moved from Forsyth County to Guilford County, N. C., bringing his church membership with him, uniting with Hines Chapel church. But this church being quite a little distance from his home, he organized a Sunday school and began Christian service near his home, which resulted in the organization of Monticello Christian Church. Bro. Caffey was the prime factor in the beginning of this church, and one of its charter members. Sister Caffey crossed over to the spirit land a little over three years ago. Bro. Caffey lived a devoted life to church, and has gone to his reward. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. A. O. Rudd and Mrs. Robert Troxler, and nine grandchildren, together with many relatives and a host of friends who mourn their loss.

The funeral services were conducted from Monticello church by the writer, assisted by Revs. J. W. Patton and P. T. Klapp, and Rev. W. F. Ashburn of the M. P. Church. L. I. COX.

THIS WILL INTEREST MANY.

F. W. Parkhurst, the Boston publisher, says that if anyone afflicted with rheumatism in any form, neuralgia or kidney trouble, will send their address to him at 701 Carney Building, Boston, Mass., he will direct them to a perfect cure. He has nothing to sell or give; only tells you how he was cured after search for relief. Hundreds have tested it with success. Adv.

The Nerves

Doctors know best about diseases and their treatment. Consult your own doctor freely and follow his advice closely.

J. C. Ayer Co.,
Lowell, Mass.

Nerves must be fed with pure, rich blood, or there will be trouble. Poorly fed nerves are weak nerves; and weak nerves mean nervousness, neuralgia, headaches, debility. For treatment—Ayer's Sarsaparilla has been used for sixty years. Entirely free from alcohol.

Guaranteed to be the best constructed, the longest lived and the nearest perfect Huller made.

We manufacture STAR PEA HULLERS with hand and power feeders for hand and engine power. One and two horse single and double row Fertilizer Distributors. Single row one-horse stable manure spreaders. The J. M. B. No. 20 cotton and corn plow stocks, with steel beams warranted for five years.

Write for cuts and prices. Our proposition means more profit for you whether you are user or dealer.

STAR PEA MACHINE CO., Inc.,
ABERDEEN, N. C.

Place of Ornamental In Home Decoration

Culture of the Boys and Girls Greatly Influenced by Arboreal Decoration refinement and beauty, but also is strongly influenced to consider that home the dearest spot on earth.

Of perhaps less importance, yet none the less gratifying, is the increased financial value brought to any place by the sensible and liberal use of ornamentals. Any woman, and the woman makes the home, will be greatly attracted by the beauty of a place artistically arranged and developed. This attraction is always cashable into hard dollars.

Much disappointment may be avoided by an intending beautifier who considers his interests carefully. It is essential that the plants he obtains be of the kind that will do best in his locality, and that are thoroughly vigorous. Plants once stunted never grow, and unless one is certain that the nursery raising them is thoroughly careful, one is never certain of getting the best. The purchaser will inevitably be disappointed unless he buys of an establishment that makes a practice of considering his interests as well as his money.

"Tie your house to the ground with shrubbery," is the advice of an eminent authority on home life. He urges that the decoration of the dwelling by the ornamental use of shrubbery and flowering plants is about the surest evidence of culture and refinement in home life, and his reasons therefore are so good that they form a sermon in themselves. But it is not alone in their beauty that the value of good plants lies. Nothing contributes more to the air of satisfaction and home stability. In these days of the appeal of many outward interests the boys and the girls are affected by so many untoward influences that it behooves every father and mother to make home the nearest ideal possible. The far-reaching and attractive influence of the culture of ornamental shrubbery and flowering plants has never received the attention it deserves at the hands of the home makers, or there would be no homes, schools or public places without roses and their like. The boy or the girl who finds the beautiful in the home is not only insensibly influenced toward

The exquisitely beautiful effects in the accompanying picture came from the hands of a Southern institution which has had a remarkable success along the line of ornamental shrubbery and flowering plants. Furthermore, this institution has the reputation of aiding its customers to get the best results and gives them material help by its advice and suggestions. This year they have prepared a new book that will prove very helpful to the prospective purchaser, and this they will send on request to the J. Van Lindley Nursery Company, Box 207, Pomona, N. C.—Ad.

Let The Christian Sun Piano Club

BE YOUR SANTA CLAUS

By the time this announcement reaches the readers of the Christian Sun Christmas will be almost upon you. Old Santa Claus will have barely three weeks in which to deliver his goods, but the Club has prepared for the emergency and has secured a full supply of the most beautiful pianos and player-pianos that eye has ever seen—ready for shipment at a moment's notice. Do not delay but write at once for your copy of the Club's catalogue and make your selection and we will rush shipment by first train.

Christmas is a splendid time to join the Club, for the Club Pianos and Player Pianos will make the most delightful and permanently useful presents you could possibly give. In sweetness of tone, in action and durability these instruments are unsurpassed, and as the Club guarantees perfect satisfaction to every member, you and your family cannot fail to be delighted.

THE CLUB MAKES PIANO BUYING EASY

By clubbing your order with those of ninety-nine other subscribers which we secure you obtain a strictly high grade instrument of sweetest tone, of perfect action, of beautiful design, of elegant finish and of permanent durability at a price such as you would ordinarily pay for an inferior imitation.

The Club gives you a positive and absolute protection against every form of dissatisfaction and makes you the judge and the sole judge. You must be thoroughly satisfied with the quality, price, terms and every feature connected with the transaction, otherwise you are requested to return the instrument. The trial will cost you nothing.

The Club will arrange the terms to suit your needs and convenience.

GIVE THE CLUB A TRIAL

The Club claims to save each member one-third of the price or more on Cabinet Grand Upright Pianos, Self-Player Pianos and Grand Pianos. Old Club members, who have secured their instruments, unanimously verify this claim. Then why not give the Club a chance to prove it to your entire satisfaction? You have everything to gain; nothing to lose. If after trying the instrument in your own home you are not thoroughly pleased simply say so and the Club will relieve you of all responsibility and expense. But you will be delighted with the superior quality of the instrument and the big saving in price just as every other Club member has been and you will gladly add your praise and indorsement to that of other Club members.

Read these letters from Club members:

Cedartown, Ga., December 31, 1912.

"The piano is a treasure and everyone remarks on the sweetness of tone. It has been so much pleasure to the family. The Club Plan places the piano into so many homes that would otherwise have to wait an indefinite time to buy. Accept my sincere thanks for your courteous treatment."—MRS. R. A. SPINKS.

Dillon, S. C., November 17, 1913.

"The more I use the player the better do I like it, and I must tell you that I am agreeably surprised at the way it works, and the expression one can put into a composition of the highest class with it. Until I received this player I always thought that the ——— (an instrument costing fully one-third more) was really the only player on the market, but I have just about reached the conclusion that there is, at least, one more player as good. I am also much pleased with the tone of the piano. With best wishes, I am,"—WM. B. HARRISON.

Greensboro, N. C., Jan. 14, 1913.

"I am just delighted with the Piano I purchased from you. It has given entire satisfaction and I would advise any one desiring a Piano to join the Club."—MRS. A. C. FORSYTH.

Sheffield, Ala., Dec. 31, 1912.

"We are delighted with the Club Piano bought of you something like a year ago. There are Pianos in our community costing more, but they do not come up to ours. I want to thank you for the courteous treatment received at your hands, and any time that I can help you with a sale let me know."—C. O. BOWLING.

Vaiden, Miss., December 2, 1912.

"I am perfectly delighted with my piano. I think the Club Plan a capital idea."—MRS. RUFUS B. SMITH.

Old Fort, N. C., November 1, 1913.

"The piano has arrived. It is a dandy—just the thing we wanted. The girls are just delighted with it. It is a fine piece of workmanship."—(REV.) H. C. MARLEY.

Write for your copy of the illustrated catalogue and booklet containing hundreds of commendatory letters from Club members. Address the Managers,

Write for handsomely illustrated catalogue which pictures the nine beautiful styles of Pianos and Player Pianos from which Club members make their selection.

Ludden & Bates CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB DEPT. Atlanta, Ga.

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., DECEMBER 10, 1913

NO. 50

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Valuables Left

The papers report that at the recent game of football between Harvard and Yale Universities, the spectators left behind them in the stadium $10,000 worth of valuables, furs, jewels, hats, pocket books with much money and other personal effects. These spectators became so enthusiastic over the game that they went away unconscious of the valuables they were leaving behind them. Enthusiasm is a very fine frame of mind and heart when produced by proper means and motives; but a congregation of worshippers at the house of God would have to be wonderfully awakened to part with $10,000, even consciously.

No Greater Love

A mother who was visiting in New York the other day, with her two children, repeated that old, old story of mother's love which seems more divine than aught else we know or read about. Seeing an automobile bearing down upon her daughter, fifteen, and her son, twelve, she leaped from her place and pushed the children out of the road of the car, only to be crushed herself so that she died four days later. She offered her life that her loved ones might have life. This is that mother love which gives to earth a touch of heaven, and brings to mind the words that fell from our Savior's lips, John 15:13: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Christ's Own Motive

The distinguished author of many books, Winston Churchill, scholar and philosopher, occupied a pulpit in an Episcopal church in San Francisco on a recent Sunday, and among other things said: "The motive of our present civilization, based on a scientific theory which we are coming to see is false when applied to humanity—the survival of the fittest, the piling up of property, the exploitation of our fellowman—is slowly but surely giving way to the motive which is Christ's own—that of service. We are beginning to realize that we are our brother's keepers." Christ's own motive was that of service to man, as is clearly set forth in Matthew 25:31-46. Richard T. Eley pointed out, some years since, in a lecture to his Johns Hopkins students that in this Scripture Christ for once and all sets forth the mark of distinction, the line of final cleavage, between those that are to be judged bad, and those that are to be judged good in the final test of things, and that it is wholly and solely one of service to man in the name of Christ. He serves God best who serves most his fellowman. Some pile up money as if they expected to live forever and forever, with little thought of service to any save to those of their own household. How far different indeed is this from the motive Christ taught prompt us in all our deeds and dealings.

The Person Behind the Song

We heard an art critic say once that a certain person sang well, but that his singing was all there was to it—a certain fetching melody, but no personality to sustain it, or give it real power. They tell us there is more in the man behind the gun, in the army, than there is in the gun. Likewise Ruskin remarked of song, "All great song has been sincere song." A song, to be worth while, must have a person behind it. Madam Marchesi, famous on two continents, and for two generations, for her great voice, and unparalleled power in song, and who died in London recently at the ripe age of eighty-seven, made it her claim, with pardonable pride, that she never sang, and never taught any one to sing, a vulgar song. There can be no soul in vulgarity, and unless there is soul in song it is as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal. There is no higher or holier gift to man than that of sweet, soul-stirring, sacred song, and to desecrate such a gift is wicked indeed.

Life And Existence

There is a difference. Some live lives; others have an existence. The former seek to save, to make life more bearable, the world more beautiful, mankind better and happier. The other exist for themselves. Their single thought is how to get most for self,—and self only. Dr. Richard T. Grenfel, the medical missionary to Labrador, who came to act as best man at the White House wedding when his former companion and friend became the husband of the President's daughter, while here lectured to the students of Harvard, and in his lecture said: "This experience brings me here today to try to induce you to accept as your life axiom, not merely that God was once reincarnated in human life, as an emotional submission, but that as an everyday matter of fact Christ walks in our streets today, and can again prove His divinity to us beyond question if we will permit Him, by living in our human lives. There is no life but the life which comes from Him; to me the rest is merely existence. The reason that Christ came was that we might have life, here and now, and that we might have it more and more abundantly."

An Option on Life

Mr. Andrew Carnegie was seventy-eight the other day, and to a company of newspaper reporters is reputed to have said: "This life is such a heaven that I wish I could stay here forever. If I could get an option on life, I would allow you to name your price and not squabble over it." Over against this declaration of the multimillionaire you may put that of thousands who have suffered from the effects of sin and disease and poverty and crime and cruelty and injustice, and who on that account would declare that this life is not such a heaven as one might suppose—not for all at any rate. One calls to mind a famous declaration about a rich man in Luke 16:25: "Son, remember that thou in thy life time receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things; but now he is comforted and thou art tormented." But if Mr. Carnegie really wants an option on life he can get it without money and without price, by the will of God and grace through Jesus Christ who said: "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Campaigning for Righteousness

And so the greatest single campaign ever undertaken for a Christian cause in so brief a time ended in glorious success. For the local Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. of New York City, the Christian people of that metropolis undertook to raise four million dollars in two weeks' time, beginning Tuesday, November 11, with a universal minute of prayer, at nine o'clock, New York time, throughout the Associations of the world. There were a thousand canvassers with a chairman for each group of ten workers. It was a stupendous undertaking, seeking to secure by voluntary gifts a sum so large in so brief a time. But men of brain, of great faith, and of thorough consecration were behind the movement, and the millions poured forth as streams of living waters from inexhaustible fountains. And all New York is the happier, the better and the richer for this unselfish Christian liberality and activity. One is reminded of the words in Mal. 3:10: "Prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Well Done

A thing well done makes that thing seem worth doing. So wrote George Eliot, that sage and philosopher. And so goes human experience ever and always. When President Woodrow Wilson, at the beginning of his administration, went in person to the Congress to deliver his message, rather than send it in written form to be drummed, by an indifferent secretary, into the ears of sleeping statesmen, the conservatives stood aghast and wiseacres said our country was going to the bowwows. But President Wilson has done the departure so successfully and delivered his messages so pointedly and so powerfully, that even the crusty New York Tribune wonders why in the world his predecessors haven't been doing this same sort of thing. Do your humble duty thoroughly, sincerely and well, and others will think it worth doing and will wonder why all the world has not been doing that thing and just that way. One is reminded of George Eliot's philosophy in the words of even a far wiser philosopher than she, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord" (Matt. 25:21).

EDITORIAL

THE RICH GAVE GIFTS

New York's stupendous and rather spectacular campaign to raise four million dollars by free will offerings in two weeks' time, and the splendid success that crowned that effort, has taught a lesson or two that should not be ignored.

In this campaign, we are assured, the majority of the gifts were from people rich, or at least well-to-do, the gifts themselves ranging from one thousand to fifty thousand dollars, ten thousand being a favorite and quite frequent amount. These of course came from men able to give, possessed in no mean measure of this world's goods. And the success of the campaign was due, in large part, to the fact that rich men responded readily.

In any campaign for funds that are to be seasonably and reasonably invested this same thing is true. The most liberal men and women we know, the ones most ready and willing to hear with patience a plea for any worthy cause, are men and women who have made good in the business world and who realize the fact that they have been greatly blessed in their efforts to improve the talents God had given them. It is not insignificant that in our Lord's parable of the men with the talents, the one with five talents doubled his, and rendered good account of stewardship, when his Master came; and likewise the man with two talents doubled his; but the man with the one talent was the meager, measly, miserly one who hid his talent and did nothing to improve or increase it. The man with the five, and the one with the two, had been hustling and had wherewith to make his Master's heart glad on the day of reckoning.

The Bible does not condemn riches, nor heap calumnies upon a man because he is rich. Some of the leading lights of Scripture, some of the most loyal, loving and true, were men of great wealth. The denunciation of the Bible against the rich man is ever and always against the irresponsible and miserly rich sort.

The rich young ruler who came to Christ was putting his riches above and before all else, and Christ realized that and gave directions how he might come to better things. "How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God." When His disciples were astonished at that, our Lord explained (Mark 10:24) that He meant those who trusted in riches.

Beside this explanation remains the fact that many enter the kingdom of God, become converted, give their lives to God who regenerates them, and then following the teachings of Scripture to the best of their knowledge and belief, use the talents God has given them and become rich both in heart and in purse. It may be difficult and exceedingly rare to get a rich man to enter the kingdom of God, but it is neither difficult nor rare to get a man to enter the kingdom of God and then become rich. And these are the most liberal, willing, and ready to hear patiently the plea for help, and to respond; viz., those who surrendered their hearts and lives to God, and by the riches of grace entered the kingdom of God, and then seeking to mold and shape their lives according to the laws and teachings of God, have been able to improve their great talents and increase their holding both of heart strings and of purse strings. New York's great campaign at least teaches that much, and is therefore a most wholesome lesson.

There is one other. Not infrequently New York has been called the modern Babylon,— a place of gilded crime and unspeakable sin and shame. Admit that there is crime and sin and shame there. But she has shown to the world that she is not all bad. That there is also a care, and a deep concern, for the things that make for righteousness and the kingdom. Here was concert of action for a great and unselfish cause. Busy men and women took two weeks off and all classes and conditions gave themselves to this gigantic task of moral and spiritual uplift. Every business interest of the great city became interested and helped in some way to push along the great work. It was a wonderful and magnanimous performance, and a great city did its Christian duty well. The world, even the world of money and business, is not all dead to the things of Christ and righteousness. The world is very much alive to the best things when the proper appeal is made, and the proper methods are employed. Our Lord's word and work yet have sway and place in the world, and the greatest things of all the ages are being done for Him and His kingdom in our time. A glorious Christ, a glorious cause.

LAMBERTS POINT

Our Lamberts Point, Va., brethren and sisters excelled themselves last Sunday and gave the rest of us an example of unparalleled loyalty, devotion and liberality. Bro. Denison's letter elsewhere tells the story of a great day's work.

It was the editor's privilege to visit the church in question last week, and to say that we were both delighted and gratified but poorly expresses it. The beloved pastor, Rev. W. H. Garman, has done a man's part, and has worked with ceaseless energy and Christian zeal to build up the work and make possible the wonderful things Dr. Denison's letter tells about. Bro. Garman is a man of consecration, and with his own hands has encouraged those about him and done not a little of the work that tells to such great effect on the building. The church is ample, neat, inviting, well appointed, well planned and handsomely finished and furnished. Besides the main auditorium there are six class rooms, most of which can be easily thrown into the open space of the auditorium when occasion demands. We heartily congratulate Bro. Garman and his faithful band of co-workers both in their work of building so well and raising the funds with which to pay off the indebtedness and to dedicate.

There is simply no reckoning what a few loyal and consecrated hearts can do when they lay themselves and their efforts on the altar and all work together for the kingdom of God and the development of a good cause. It is marvelous what Bro. Garman and his people have done and are doing, and the whole brotherhood will rejoice with them in their great work and good success.

PLANNING FOR CHRISTMAS

"Are you planning for a great Christmas?" was asked the other day. Of course. Who does not so plan? It is a great occasion. There is cause for greatness and grandeur and glory all about it.

It celebrates the anniversary of the birth of Jesus Christ. He it is who gave us the event, the name, and the spirit of the occasion. He it is who has made the world better, men and women happier, all hearts richer and all mankind gladder. He opened the eyes of the blind, unstopped the ears of the deaf, made the lame to walk, healed the lepers, cured the sick, and preached comfort to the captive and freedom to the oppressed. Of all the glad events of this earth Christmas celebrates the gladdest. From out the manger at Bethlehem there goes forth a stream of light to lighten all the world and carry new gleams of joy to all hearts.

"Planning for a great Christmas?" Of course. The event and the incident are great, and greatness fills the air. True greatness always consists in service to others, in making others happy and good and glad. He whose birth we are to celebrate went about doing good, making those about him good and great and glad. There was not a tinge of selfishness or narrowness about Him. He made others happy. He made the poor and needy glad. He helped the helpless. He took hold on the fellow who was down and raised him up. He went to the cheerless and carried with Him hope and happiness and good cheer there. We shall plan for a great Christmas when we plan not only to be glad and cheerful ourselves, but to make some one or ones around us happy, wholesome and cheerful.

A MAN'S BUSINESS

It is right for one to attend to one's business, and to be diligent in season and out of season. But, it may be pertinently asked, What is one's business? It is certainly not one's private affairs only.

If one attends to one's private affairs, or daily duties only, one may then neglect the best and most bounden duties and obligations.

Robert Louis Stevenson very wisely said: "Perpetual devotion to what a man calls his business is only to be sustained by perpetual neglect of many other things. And it is not by any means certain that a man's business is the most important thing he has to do." Society has claims upon a man, and God has claims upon every man all the time, which may interfere in no small measure with a man's "mere business." No man is excusable for neglecting the claims of God upon him, it matters not what his business or obligations are.

THE AGE LIMIT

Cold storage eggs are selling in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, for 32 cents per dozen, whereas in many other centers than in State aforesaid, they are selling at from 35 to 60 cents per dozen. The State of Pennsylvania enacted a law that eggs should not be kept on cold storage longer than eight months, and incidentally there are ten million dozen eggs whose age limit expired December 1. This age limit forced eggs upon the market in Pittsburgh, with results as above stated. Which fable teaches that as we reach the age limit our products tend downward so far as market values go; but our lives may ever tend upward in that which money cannot buy, namely, in examples to others of patience, piety, purity, love, gentleness, meekness, kindness. It is possible for every life to enhance in value all the way through, and so in richness, fulness and fragrance, abolish the age limit. There is a wide difference between life itself, and the products of life. Some lives amongst us are of infinite worth, not for what they produce in goods and results, but for the wholesome examples they set, and the sacred and venerable atmosphere which surrounds them. There is no age limit in this world to the worth of a true, noble, genuine, sweet spirit. Nevertheless, we should bear in mind the words of John 9:4: "I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: for the night cometh, when no man can work."

PITY AND PARDON

George Eliot was not quoting from the Book, but her philosophy was exceedingly scriptural when in a generous mood she wrote: "It is surely much better to pardon too much than to condemn too much." You find persons, even now, who never pity, nor pardon, nor forgive. They knock; they condemn; they pelt with flings of venom from their own evil hearts. Unhappy mortals they who revel in the hurt and the undoing of those about them. Our Lord's words of seventy times seven have no place in their thought or speech. "It is better to pardon too much than to condemn too much." Or, as our Lord put it (Matt. 18: 35): "So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses."

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—The National Assembly of the Philippines has abolished slavery throughout the archipelago. Good for the American administration. Where enlightenment, civilization and Christianity go slavery is bound to disappear.

—We do not know whether any CHRISTIAN SUN readers, their kind, kindred or acquaintances, dance the tango (whatever it is) but if they do, and for their benefit we pass on the fact that the German cabinet, approved by the Emperor, has issued an order that no army or navy officer, wearing the uniform, shall dance the tango—that to do so is to dishonor the uniform of a German soldier or sailor.

—The Nobel prize, worth $40,000, was on November 13 awarded to a Hindu poet, Rabindranath Tagore, for the greatest contribution to literature during the year. This is the first time the prize has ever gone to any one other than a white man, and shows that the East is indeed waking up. The poet Tagore is a Bengali, and is 53 years old. His poetry is of the lyric type, and breathes an exalted spirit of religion and of God.

—Rev. Carlyle Summerbell, D. D., has resigned as pastor of the First Christian church, Fall River, Mass., the resignation to take effect three months hence when he will have completed the sixth year as pastor of this church. Dr. Summerbell is considering a call to the pastorate of the Christian church at Wolfboro, N. H.

—President Harper informs us that a Japanese girl, graduate of our Girls' School in Japan, is to come to Elon College to take the course of study here preparatory to becoming a missionary in Japan among her own people. She is being taken by the advice of Miss Alice True, one of our missionaries in Japan, and Mr. J. Beale Johnson and Rev. J. Lee Johnson have consented to bear the expense of her education at Elon.

—The editor enjoyed a trip to Suffolk, Norfolk, Franklin, Va., and Sunbury, N. C., last week, looking after matters pertaining to the Mission Board and the Publishing House. Besides meeting many friends and spending delightful hours socially the business was highly satisfactory and successful. Our people are interested in their church enterprises and are loyal, which fact makes it a pleasure to represent such interests.

—We have been requested to open in THE SUN a Question Box for the asking and answering of theological questions of a salient and worthy sort. Rev. W. C. Wicker, D. D., acquainted both with Hebrew and Greek, has kindly consented to conduct such a department in THE SUN. Any one having a salient and worthy question from Scripture about which there is doubt in his own mind, let him address such a question to W., Care CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

—We learn from The Greensboro Daily News, December 9, that Bro. A. J. McCauley died at his home in Mebane, N. C., last Saturday night, from an acute attack of indigestion. Bro. McCauley had been a member of Union Church, Union Ridge, N. C., for years, and moved from that vicinity, in which he was reared, to Mebane, some time ago. The interment was in the Union Ridge cemetery. Deceased leaves a widow, one son, George, and one daughter, Mrs. John A. Iseley, both of Mebane.

—"That boy is an optimist who finds nothing except a hole in his stocking on Christmas morning, and is thankful it is a big one," remarks an exchange. We defer. That is trying a fellow's optimism too far. The boy who hangs his stocking in hope on Christmas eve should find something at least on Christmas a. m. to greet and gladden his heart save the hole in it. Parents by a small effort may make the child's heart glad on this good and glad occasion—the occasion that celebrates the gladdest event of all time—the birth of the Babe of Bethlehem.

—The fine face of our distinguished friend, and alumnus of Elon, Dr. J. E. Rawls, Suffolk, Va., smiled at us last Wednesday from the front page of The Virginian-Pilot. Dr. Rawls, a successful surgeon of Suffolk, is President of the Seaboard Medical Association, which body convened in Norfolk this week. Dr. Rawls also delivered the annual address, which was highly commended for its marks of real worth and ability. We knew when he used to beat us out of all show in playing tennis that Jape would surpass other people at better sports and occupations some day. He had the zeal, the energy, and the spirit of fair play that tell in the race of life. Dr. J. E. is all right, and may his kind multiply among those whose business it is to relieve human suffering and so make the world brighter and happier.

—The following invitation has been issued: Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Michael request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Margarette Jewel, to Rev. Alonzo Tomlinson Banks, Wednesday afternoon, December 24, 1913, at half past three o'clock, Elon College, N. C. Miss Michael is a woman of rare character and accomplishments, having graduated from Elon College two years ago, and has been a very successful teacher since. She is now a member of the faculty of Catawba College, Hickory, N. C. She is devoted to her church and a woman of consecration and piety. Bro. Banks, the successful pastor of Henderson, N. C., Christian church, also a graduate from Elon College and popular as a pastor, has our heartiest congratulations.

—Look at this, bretheren, and, with us, get glad. It is from the Suffolk News in a Norfolk paper December 5: "The members of Hobson Christian church gave their pastor, Rev. I. W. Johnson, D. D., a generous pounding today. Several automobile loads of flour, potatoes, home preserved and canned fruits, chickens, eggs, and dozens of other eatables were among the gifts." Now there, how is that for you? A pounding brought in automobiles, and there were eggs—don't forget the eggs. None of your ancient or cold storage stock, but full, fine, fresh eggs produced by hens in generous barnyards where automobiles are tethered. As Jeff would say to Mutt, "Some class to that!" Who knows but they found the hens' nests right over in the soft upholstery of the family automobile? Put it down that we are living in a fast and fine age—and that it is great to be—a preacher of the right sort.

—Texas has recently suffered from great rainfalls and swollen streams, there being a death loss of about 150 persons and a property loss estimated at not less than $5,000,000.

NEWS AND VIEWS

—Capt. Alfred Brown, a famous swimmer, has won the distinction of being the first person of all time to swim from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean. He swam, of course, via the Panama canal route.

—The New York campaigners secured $62,501 more than the four million dollars asked for in their canvass for Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. funds.

—The recent floods in Texas exacted a toll of 150 lives and several millions in property. The greatest loss of life was near Bryan, Texas, where there is a 30-mile stretch of levee which was broken.

—Edward Bok wrote wisely in these words: "A young man cannot honestly make a success in any business unless he loves his work, any more than a married man can be happy in his home unless he loves his wife."

—In his first annual report, Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels recommends that the United States government acquire and operate oil wells and refine its own crude oil for propelling naval vessels. The Secretary's building program for the year is two dreadnaughts, eight destroyers, and three submarines.

—Dr. William Hayes Ward, editor-in-chief of The Independent, retires at the ripe age of seventy-nine, from routine work at the editorial desk, after a service there of forty-five years. He will remain with The Independent as Honorary Editor, but will only write editorials and reviews as his tastes and inclinations may dictate. He has richly earned his retirement.

—A delegation from the National American Woman's Suffrage Association visited President Wilson at the White House December 8 and endeavored to secure from the President a special message to Congress in behalf of woman suffrage. The President said he favored a House Committee on Woman's Suffrage, but would not consent at this time to send in a special message. Woman suffrage sentiment seems spreading very rapidly in our country; but so far we have been spared of the militant sort.

DO YOU KNOW?

Do you know that since the organized class movement got under real headway in the year 1905 there have been, in round numbers, three millions of members added to our Sunday schools in the United States, and of these three millions more than half are men and boys?

Do you know that since the organized class movement came into existence some Sunday schools that did not have a dozen men in them now have more men than women and girls combined? Class organization did it.

Do you know that the attendance of men at church has been greatly increased by the organization of men into Bible classes? One pastor reports an increase of forty per cent. of men in his church in one year.

Do you know that in some places the organized Bible class is the most important and influential organization in the town?

Do you know that there are hundreds of pastors ready to testify to the fact that the Bible class is the thing upon which they rely most for help in their work?

Do you know that the men's Bible class is doing more than any other one thing to keep the boys in the Sunday school?

Do you know that some of the largest men's Bible classes are in small towns? No town is too small for a class of this kind.

Do you know that the Bible class is establishing some fine new standards of service for men?—Exchange.

THE BOY-END OF A MAN

A Sermon by Rev. C. H. ROWLAND, D. D., Franklin, Va.

"There shall yet old men and old women dwell in the streets of Jerusalem, and every man with his staff in his hand for very age. And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof."—Zechariah 8:4-5.

HE constant warfare with neighboring tribes allowed few of the men of Israel to reach gray hairs. It was a rough and hard society, unblessed by the two great benedictions of life, childhood and old age. But the prophet said that this should all be changed, and that the streets of Jerusalem should be filled with placid old men and women, and with joyous boys and girls.

It is a happy sight, the sports of children, and old people joining in. What life! What joy! Bring out the children, and let the trumpet and the drum do their best. We never know what children really are while we keep apart from them, or watch them as a sentinel does a prisoner. Let us get hold of their hands and their hearts, and try to enter into their joys.

When the old have gotten hold of the hands and hearts of the young on the play-ground, then the young will gladly listen to their testimonies concerning spiritual things. Listen to the testimony of age: "I have been young, and now I am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread." Hear the response from the young heart, "Thy God shall be my God, and thy people my people."

THE BOY END OF A MAN

Youth is built for amusement as well as for some other things, and the inclination of this part of a young man's make-up it apt to find gratification somewhere. Youth and pleasure are congenial. The blood is in good condition for the business of play. The nerve cells are fresh and tingling. It is a glorious thing to be a boy, just a boy, and to be alive. The muscles are elastic, the bones are supple, the step elastic, and the eye flashes.

The business world is not going to wreck because young people play. It is a healthy sign for business to see the young at play. Play is business, and a serious business with boys. Play is a blessing. It is the antidote for many a sickness. It makes the muscles strong, and the brain clear. It is nature's panacea for half the ills that afflict the body. Play is honorable, and is right. Idleness is suicide of our noblest manhood.

Every young person needs to know that play should be ballasted with sound principles. Be master of your games. Don't let your games master you. Competition will sometimes be so sharp that it will be hard to keep this. Many a fellow has been a slave to his play. There must be self-reliance, for it will not do to depend too much on others. Honesty and reliableness are very necessary, for it is better to be honest and reliable than to win. "And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof."

Young people are not to be hermits; their lives are to be colored by others, and they are to mold and influence other lives. Man is a gregarious animal. He goes in nations and tribes and families and sets and clubs and cliques and fraternities and gangs and leagues and parties. This coming together of young life must be considered seriously, for much depends upon the social surroundings. "The setting of a diamond is of great importance; much of its beauty may be hidden thereby." There can be no more important subject for discussion than how a young person should carry himself with wisdom in his social relations.

The play hours of boys are, if anything, more important on their character and upon the real success or failure of their life as a career than are their working hours. The kind of friends and the associations that a young man chooses for his hours of recreation are of immeasurable importance to him. Every one is tempted to make friends with those who will be lenient with our faults and foibles, and who will not be disappointed when he falls below the best things. That is the very greatest danger that some young men have.

The young man needs to go into society because of its refining influences. If he shuts himself up in solitude, and leads a life apart from his fellows, he will almost inevitably grow awkward, rude, and bearish. Society is a prevention. It is a grateful recreation. Let the young people go into society." We find that the Lord gave His endorsement to this opinion, for He went to a marriage in Cana of Galilee.

Some one has said that society needs more brains, and more heart, and he was not far wrong. But when I say that society needs more brains and more heart, I am not speaking of individuals but the institution. Society will never be what is needed, so long as it rests on a frivolous foundation. Immortal beings, created in God's image, ought to think higher things that they do when they come together for social fellowship. And it needs more of the spirit of that little girl, whom Dr. Guthrie met. She was carrying a boy almost her own size, and the doctor said, "Let me help you, my lass. The load is too heavy for your little arms." "Oh no," she answered with a sweet smile, "he's my brother, sir."

Society needs to be regenerated, and to be Christianized. The hope of society is in the young people, and they must be shown that Jesus has laid down the law by which alone society can rise to something higher. "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

It is true that young people get interested in play, and society, and forget religion. The young are prone to neglect religion any way, but that is no reason that they are bad. They have often been driven away from religion because old people make them believe that it means to be long-faced.

We need to impress them with the fact that religion is not a funeral dirge. I believe with Dr. Jas. I. Vance, who says: "Christianity is a religion of gladness and delight; it does not quench the bounding spirits and buoyant joy that thrills the young. One can have upon him the glow and elasticity of youth, and still be loyal to Jesus, and devout enough to stand in the tomb where the Lord lay. The gospel does not create long faces, and funeral tones. It does not put old heads on young shoulders. It does not shrivel the marrow in our bones nor dry up the juices in our flesh. It harmonizes with all the glad songs of youth."

There is no doubt that there would be less prejudice against religion, if the subject were better understood. It is not a question of creed or ritual or dogma. The fundamental question in religion is as to a young man's relation to God. What is God's attitude to you and yours to Him?

"It is necessary for the young man to have a God. He has a body, but is a soul. The soul is his glory. Not hands nor eyes nor ears, nor nerves, nor mind, but soul is that by which a young man towers to his highest stature." The young people who will serve the play-ground and society best are those through whom God expresses himself.

The most glorious deeds are done when God strikes hands with the old, and the old strike hands with the young in the streets. Then is wrought out that which lifts the fallen, cheers the faint, vindicates the innocent, frees the fettered, rights wrong and crowns right.

Young people, don't divorce your play and your social fellowship from your religion. A good boy is not necessarily a crank, a fanatic. Young people, follow Jesus. We are living in a good age. We face the piled-up opportunities of all the ages. God challenges every young person to do his utmost. May you not fail.

THE MAN-END OF A BOY

There are those who seem to forget that they have been young. They do not think that they once "spake as a child, understood as a child, and thought as a child." To become a man and put away "childish things," is not to put away the child, and to ignore his interests and sports.

The young people must have recognition. They want to be recognized by the old people, and one of the best places for them to know that they are being observed is on their play-ground. It is a beautiful sight to see an old man leaning on his staff, and watching the boys at their play, or to see mother lay aside her work, and enjoy the sport of the girls. Children want to be seen, and they will be seen, but they do not want to be looked at through eyes of suspicion; they want to be spoken to, but not with sarcasm; they want to be conferred with, but not as though they had no rights.

Some old people do not believe the young people want to do right. But they are just as honest, and just as energetic, and just as truthful as the young people of any age of the world. The trouble is, that they are not helped to be honest. It requires much help, and a great effort to be honest. Their energy is often allowed to run to naught, and no hand to direct. They are encouraged to exaggerate until it is difficult to relate facts as they are.

"Look all around you, find some one in need, Help somebody today!"

We need to list the assets of our young people. They are human beings. That is considerable capital to begin with. They are citizens of no mean country. That increases their capital. They have minds that can think, hearts that can feel, eyes that can see, hands that can lift, feet that can run, lips that can speak, and days crowned with limitless opportunities. But their assets are like crude ore in the mine. To have value they must be mined and marketed. Every life needs training. Greatness is not accidental. Edison did not happen, and no great man happens. Our young people are crying for a chance. Shall they have it?

The successful man is the prepared man. There is no such thing as extemporaneous success. God believes in preparation. In His plans there is no room for luck or chance or fate. The Lord Jesus said when He was about to go back to the Father, "I go to prepare a place for you." Heaven is a prepared place, as well as earth. The celestial home is a "prepared place for a prepared people."

We have endeavored to show that the Boy-End of a Man is business, social life, and religion. Now we have to say that the Man-End of a Boy is business, social life, and religion. It is true that the business is different, and social life is more far-reaching, and religion is more spiritual. But we know that many older people are poor examples in business, indifferent to society, and unfaithful in religion. The old people need to get in the streets with the boys and girls, and help them by precept and example.

THE CONNECTING LINK

Life would mean more if we gave more time to the program of joy. If we do not get hold of the young people in their pleasures we will never reach them. There is a notion that pleasure is a thing that ought to take care of itself. We must spend our time and thought and toil on the serious side of life, but pleasure is automatic. There are people so immersed in business, and the thought of gain, that they almost despise the play-ground. They are fooling themselves by saying, "After a while we will enjoy ourselves." This is false, because the time will come when the faculty for enjoyment will be dried-up.

We often hear the old people lamenting the fact that the play-ground has been debased, society has been corrupted, and that religion has been forgotten. If this is true, and I doubt it, it is because the "old men and old women have not been on the play-grounds with the boys and girls." Their pleasures have been ignored, and religion has been urged upon them as something to get them ready to die. "There is philosophy in recreatoin, morality in amuse-ment, and strength in humor."

It is a good day for any city, town and community to prepare play-grounds, and places of amusement for their young people. The amusement question has a direct effect in the making of a strong, symmetrical character. "Life is a serious business even when it is funny." A hearty laugh no less than a tear reacts on character. Help the young people in their games, for a desire for amusement is holy. If we keep in touch with their sports, we can remove much moral filth, and keep their souls unsoiled.

The fathers and mothers need to get close to their children in play. It is a good plan to play with them. A boy will love and respect his father more, if he romps with him, fishes with him, runs races and plays ball with him. Mothers ought to play dolls with their girls, and become companions to them. If parents can keep their children when all is play, they will keep the young life open to advice during the years when advice is most needed. Children need to be preserved from morbid self-consciousness.

When old people get in the streets with the boys and girls in their amusements, then they will find one of the first links that binds childhood to old age. Those who delight the young people on the play ground, will delight them in all the social relations of life.

Let no man or woman say, I have no time for such things. If you have time to live, you have time to live a part of your time with the young, and this is living rightly and happily. We have no right to so rush through life that we lose all the sweetness and social value out of it. We must join the gang on the street, or the social link will be broken.

Religion is the climax. The young person's make-up reaches its climax in the element of religion. The other links we have mentioned are only stepping stones. It is not the problem of pleasure nor the favor of fortune, nor the matter of social standing, but the high and solemn and eternal subject of the young and God, is of all the most vital. This includes all, and if this be right, the rest is sure to be righted.

Whatever is to be the amusement, and the social standing of the future, it may safely be predicted, that it will take its coloring from the men and women who have first learned to trust themselves to God, and have identified themselves with the children. Those who serve the play-grounds and society best are those through whom God expresses himself.

"And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof." "Somebody filled the days with light, Constantly chased away the night; Somebody's work bore joy and peace, Surely his life shall never cease; Was that somebody you? Was that somebody you?"

THAT SOUTHERN TRIP

As representatives of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, I attended both the Alabama and the Georgia and Alabama Conferences. I started on the afternoon of the third Sunday in October, and on the next morning encountered a snow storm at Atlanta; but continued on same train to LaGrange. Having to wait for several hours, I hunted up good Brother Tidwell, and very pleasantly spent those hours in his happy home. Thence I met with that genial Brother H. W. Elder, and also with Rev. J. V. Knight on his way to the same Conference to represent Elon College. About 8 o'clock, P. M., we boarded the train for Roanoke, Ala., and I spent the night with Brother John Sledge and his good wife. After partaking of a good breakfast the next morning, I went to see Brother and Sister S. M. Sledge (Uncle Shelley and his wife, as they are known), with whom I rode over to Noon Day Christian Church, where brethren were assembled for Conference, and whom I found eating dinner.

The meal finished, the Conference was organized by electing Rev. G. O. Lankford President, Rev. E. M. Carter Secretary, and Dr. Welch Treasurer. On account of the weather, a quite hurried session was held, but that was harmonious and progressive.

I met at Conference Revs. G. D. Hunt, C. M. and J. D. Dollar, C. W. Carter, J. H. Hughes and J. W. Elder. I spent one night in the home of Rev. C. C. Huey, and one in the home of Rev. J. W. Payne. Leaving Conference with Brother J. D. Dollar, I accompanied him to his home, where a rain detained me for a day and night. By his kindness I was conveyed to Mt. Zion, and spent the night with Brother Swan, and thence went to Antioch, and thence to Pleasant Grove. On fourth Sunday I was with Rev. G. D. Hunt and his congregation at New Hope, and was by him conveyed to Beulah. After spending the night with this brother, I went to New Harmony and thence to Wadley—there spent a short while in the home of Rev. G. O. Lankford. While with Rev. J. D. Dollar, I visited Rev. T. H. Elder, who was too feeble to attend Conference, but who is still interested in the progressiveness of the cause.

Leaving Wadley, I started for the Georgia and Alabama Conference, spent the night in Roanoke and met the brethren next day in Columbus, Ga. These brethren held a session that was sweet-spirited, harmonious and progressive. While there, the time was spent in the good home of Sister Simerly, with Rev. H. W. Elder as a fellow guest. The following brethren were met at this Conference: Revs.

Elder, Young, Duke, Denham, Short, with perhaps others.

After the Conference was over I visited the following churches: Oak Grove, LaGrange, Lanett, Langdale, River View, Richland (where I was married out) and Red Hill. This last church was organized and served some time by Gipsy Smith.

I was received with the utmost hospitality, and shown the greatest kindness everywhere it was my privilege to go. I was given cane to chew, besides being welcomed to many good homes and permitted to partake of such an abundance of good food. I would like to make mention of all, but that would lengthen out this letter too much.

These brethren have caught the spirit of progress and the spirit of Missions, so while these conferences are not large, they are on the road to become so.

Pleasant memories of all will abide with me, while I shall pray Heaven's blessings upon the brethren of Georgia and Alabama.

Brethren of these churches kindly ask their pastors to write more for THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

C. C. PEEL.

MEMORIAL CHRISTIAN TEMPLE, NORFOLK

The Temple has just closed a series of meetings conducted by the pastor. There were eleven additions to the church and several renewed their Christian vows publicly. This closes one and one-half years of service with this church, with 101 additions to the church. The July average Sunday school attendance was 175, August 177, September 191, October 222, November 203. The church's Thanksgiving offering for the Orphanage was between $50 and $60. The Christian Missionary Association will meet with the Temple Tuesday the 9th, and we are hoping for a large attendance and good interest at this meeting. A Teacher Training class of twenty-seven members has just been started. This makes our school on the Front-Line Honor Roll of the Christian Church. At least six members of the church have become "Rope Holders" for the Mission Board. Our average missionary offering in the Sunday school for October and November was $4.52. This does not include the birthday offering in the bank for the Orphanage as that is opened at the end of each quarter. We are glad to see that several of our schools are adopting the plan of making an every-Sunday mission offering. It will do your school good as well as the cause of missions. The work in all departments of the church seems to be going forward steadily. We really want to do the full work of a church that our Lord wants us to do and to be abreast in the best movements in the work of the Kingdom. A large delegation of our people were at the United Missionary Campaign Convention held last week in Norfolk. We are enjoying the work at the Temple in spite of its hard problems. The people show their kindness and appreciation in many ways. The brethren of our other churches here are especially helpful. We are expecting Dr. O. W. Powers to be with us Sunday morning, and Missionary Rev. D. P. Barrett in the evening.

WARREN H. DENISON.

December 1, 1913

—Dreadnaughts were not formidable enough and now the superdreadnaughts are being built. One of this latest class, the Warspite, was successfully launched at Davenport, England, by the British government, November 26. The monster is to cost $14,000,000, and is to be driven entirely by oil, having receptacles for 4,000 tons, a sufficient quantity to carry her around the world.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER

Dr. Atkinson and I ran into a donation-party this afternoon on Saratoga street in Suffolk. Our first thought was that it was a marriage. The big automobile stood in front of Dr. I. W. Johnson's house and the porch was full of women. "What is going on?" said some one; "it must be a marriage," said another. "We will stop and see," said I to Dr. Atkinson; and so we stopped and inquired what the excitement meant. "You just ought to see," said Mrs. Johnson; and Dr. Johnson looked like he wanted to say something and did not know how to say it. He did finally say, "Come in here," and we followed. Then we were introduced to Mesdames J. T. Johnson, C. R. Fulgham, Alice Lewis, R. H. Moore, C. Oliver, L. L. Eley, W. T. Newman, and F. M. Messick; Misses Hilda Johnson, Erstine Fulgham, and Eugenia Eley; Messrs. Parker Johnson and Linwood Mason. The young men had come to drive the cars. Then Dr. Johnson said: "Come on in here." We followed him into the Dining-room, and we saw it was a donation-party from Hobson church to their beloved pastor and good wife. They had come twenty miles on this fair December day to gladden the home of one who had gone twenty miles once a month for years to carry to them and those they represented the bread of life. Here is a list, in kind, of the Donation:

Both kinds of potatoes, sausage, chickens, eggs, butter, coffee, sugar, rice, oatmeal, cocoa, macaroni, turnips, apples, soap-powders, thirty cans of vegetables, fruits, pickles, preserves, and milk. To tell the truth I could not tell which looked the happier; the preacher and his wife, or the good people who had loaded the table with evidences of their love for their pastor.

I heard Will Carlton recite his "Elder Brown's Donation" in the Academy of Music in Norfolk years ago; but Elder Johnson's donation was full of thoughtful kindness and real value. Two baskets of eggs, when prices provoke rich women to inaugurate an egg strike in the great cities, look like loyalty on the part of the parishioners to their pastor.

Dr. Atkinson congratulated Dr. Johnson with a visible sense of a neglected editor; and I fear brother H. H. Butler will be jealous when he reads of this pastor's good fortune; but it is a good sign of returning good for preachers. But the best of the donation-party is not the donation, but the party. It is the folks, the appreciation, and the love they bear to their pastor. Every one of them will be the gladder to see him at his next appointment, because they have ministered to his life in this substantial fashion; and he will feel like bringing them the message with a new sense of acceptance on their part. The feeling is reciprocal and the ties are thereby strengthened. Luke speaks of "Mary, Joanna, Susanna, and many others, which ministered unto Him of their substance." So, this donation is not unscriptural nor unfruitful.

This occasion, which came under my observation without notice or invitation, furnishes a suggestion that is worthy of consideration. Whenever the pastoral relation is properly established in mutual affection the labors of pastor and people are productive of good feelings and good deeds; and it is the privilege of the congregation to make out of their minister the kind of preacher they can love and honor. Hobson seems to be that kind of a congregation, and their pastor seems to be worthy of their kindness.

Whoever dreams of the hard lot of preachers has not seen a donation-party nor the smiles on the face of a minister's wife when good people come twenty miles to load her table with rich tokens of regard for her husband.

Long live Hobson and all that good congregation! Listen, all other churches, and learn how to double the sweet relation between pastor and people.

W. W. STALEY.

LAMBERT'S POINT

DEAR DR. ATKINSON:

This has been a rainy day but the showers at Lambert's Point Christian Church were "Showers of Blessing." The church is practically a new church and it is a temple of beauty and is splendid in appointment. It is neat and tasty and has six Sunday school classrooms and a Secretary's room. It has been rebuilt, remodelled and to all intents and purposes is a new building and will meet the needs of their growing congregation. It has cost between $4,000 and $4,500 in cash and donated labor to put it in its remodelled and renewed condition. There remained $3,500 to be raised on the day of dedication. This includes some estimated expenses yet to be completed as sidewalk, fences etc. That was no small sum for a small church membership and many who did not know their faith and willingness to make sacrifice doubted that it could be raised. The showers did not dampen their ardor and at the morning service today, December 7, after the sermon cash and pledges were made to the amount of $3,725, and at the afternoon service $525 more in cash and pledges came in making a total at the two services $4,253, or a margin of $750. And the church was dedicated at 4 p. m., amid rejoicings, tears, and praises. Pastor W. H. Garman and wife and the entire membership are rejoicing. They are seeing the results of their work, prayers, and faith. Rev. O. W. Powers, D. D., Home Mission Secretary, Rev. D. A. Keys, Rev. J. W. Harrell, D. D., the pastor, Rev. W. H. Garman, and the writer participated in the dedication services. Dr. Powers is preaching the sermon tonight. The church has preached a wonderful sermon in Lambert's Point, Norfolk, Va., today. A goodly number from the Memorial Christian Temple and the Third church attended the services, helped in the work and made generous gifts.

WARREN H. DENISON.

December 7, 1913.

THE CHAIR OF THEOLOGY

The Chair of Theology which has recently been established at Elon College is getting along nicely under the supervision of Drs. J. U. Newman, W. C. Wicker, and J. O. Atkinson, and the young men are making fine progress and are earnestly seeking for the Bible truths that are so numerous and so rich in God's Word. We have about thirty-two representing the Christian church, Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Protestant, and Missionary Baptist at this time, all working together in perfect harmony, seeking for the rich truths embodied in the English Bible—not sectarianism, but for a deep work of grace in the heart and for that power that will bring souls to Christ as they go forth in the great harvest field to bring in their sheaves for the garner. So many are now in the broad road that leads to destruction. They want to be instruments in saving sinners. No new Theology, higher criticisms, no Unitarianism is taught in the College, but the young men are studying the English Bible, searching for scriptural knowledge that they may impart to those who hear them preach.

We have collected about three hundred volumes for the Theological library, and have some money in hand with which to purchase other books. All who may wish to assist in this good work may send us such books as they may have in their library, good religious books; or, if any one would like to contribute money for this purpose, we would be glad to hear from him at any time. Or there may be some that would like to give us their notes for a certain number of years, bearing six per cent. interest, so as to help bear a part of the expense of the College, or such as may feel disposed to remember us in their wills, as an endowment fund, the interest to be used that they might be preaching for years to come. I have so long been burdened about young men going out to teach the Bible when they were so wholly unprepared to teach its great truths! I know so much about this from experience. When my work is over and I lay down the gospel armor in death, whatever I may have left shall be used to aid young men in preparing to preach the gospel to lost souls and to feed the flock with Bible truths, the interest to be used only that I may be preaching, when I am gone, the unsearchable truths that I have delighted so long to preach.

The young men must know the English Bible and to do so they must read it, read it, and read it again, until they get it fully instilled in their minds, starting with Genesis, for there is a thread of divine knowledge going through the Old and New Testaments, connecting the events therein taught into one chain. When we first read a chapter we don't get so much out of it, but every time we read it, we get more light, until we master it. Then they can teach it and carry it in their minds wherever they may go, always in readiness to use it whenever an opportunity affords itself. Then they can preach expository sermons, expounding the Bible as Messrs. Moody, Torrey, Morgan, Gypsy Smith, and other evangelists have taught and are now teaching. That kind of Bible preaching will draw a congregation and hold the people when they come. Plain, simple truths of the Bible will draw the people. Whitfield preached in Boston one morning at six o'clock, when 2,000 persons were there to hear him expound the Word. They came to hear Christ expound the Word until they trampled on each other. I have heard and read fine sermons that did not have an ounce of gospel in them, consequently souls were not converted under it, and the flock was not fed. We want our young men to study and preach the Bible with power that may convert the world.

J. W. WELLONS.

REVIVAL SERVICES AT WAVERLY, VA.

The revival services at the Christian church at Waverly, Va., began November 16, and lasted ten days. Bro. Victor Lightbourne, Evangelist, member of the People's Christian Church, Dover, Del., and son of Dr. A. W. Lightbourne, pastor of said church, was with us and did all the preaching. This young brother, recently converted, gave the message with such power and earnestness that the hearts of the people of Waverly were moved in a wonderful manner. His visit to us will long be remembered, for his forceful presentation of the Gospel truths, his great talent for music, and earnest desire to see souls brought into the kingdom, were all a source of inspiration which revived the church, gave pleasure to homes, and brought happiness to the unsaved. Fourteen new names have been added to our church roll as the result of the meetings.

Many prayers will follow our young brother as he goes about his Master's work for which he is so wonderfully adapted, and we commend him most heartily to those who are planning revival services.

Our people came together at the Baptist church in a union meeting Thanksgiving night. A very interesting program had been arranged and a Thanksgiving offering was taken for the different denominational enterprises. Our part goes to the Christian Orphanage and will be completed at morning services Dec. 7th.

All of our churches went up to Conference as banner churches and are starting the new year in good condition financially, and greater enthusiasm for the Master's work.

Our people are always mindful of their pastor and from time to time remember his needs with liberal gifts.

We are grateful to God for His mercy and blessings.
JAS. L. FOSTER.

GULPH MILLS, PA., LETTER

It will be of interest to our people generally to learn that the People's Christian Church of Dover, Delaware, the center and parent of the Delmarvia Christian Conference, has recently experienced a very great revival. The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. W. Lightbourne, D. D., who was assisted by his son, Rev. Victor Lightbourne. Dr. Lightbourne had been disappointed in an effort to secure ministerial assistance for his special services, and so proceeded alone for a few days. Early in the series his son, who is a master musician and extensively known, gave himself to God and experienced a very definite change of heart and life, in a wonderful salvation. Although he had never attempted to speak in public, a few evenings after his consecration and experience he began his work as preacher and evangelist in his father's pulpit and was signally blessed from the first. Many strong men broke down and entered the better life under his preaching. At one service several hundred stood at once in testimony for Christ. He is emphasizing a definite experience of regeneration and baptism of the Holy Spirit as an anointing for service. He has a testimony and a message. He has been elected by the Executive Committee of the Delmarvia Christian Conference as Conference Evangelist, with the privilege to do evangelistic work in other sections. A large number of additions were made to the membership of the Dover church as a result of the special services. The People's Church of Dover has grown to be not only the religious center of the beautiful city, but it touches and quickens the social, commercial and educational life of the entire community, infusing its life into all these avenues. A distinguished Judge recently remarked that "The influence of the People's Christian Church of Dover is felt far outside the State."

With such a center and parent back of it, the Delmarvia Conference should, and we believe will, become a power in the Lord's hands for the promotion of the principles of the Christian Church. Their Men's Brotherhood recently held their annual banquet, which was attended by several hundred and was quite an event for the church, and even the city. Addresses were made by Dr. Jas. E. Carroll, Supt. of Education; Chancellor C. M. Curtis, the presiding Judge in the highest State court; Judge Henry Conrad, of the Supreme Court; Dr. A. W. Lightbourne, and others. I have heard words of praise for the occasion, as uplifting, unifying, and inspiring in its character.

Dover is the center of a great mission field, and the new Conference needs only men and money to make herself felt thereabout more powerfully yet. It is only a short ride from Philadelphia, of nearly two million of people; not far from Wilmington, Delaware, each without a Christian Church, while the entire peninsula down to Cape Charles, Virginia, furnishes inviting territory. People who would love to assist the mission cause of the Christian Church could not do better than communicate with Dr. J. H. Wilson, Chairman of the Home Mission Committee, Dover, Delaware. I have written about Dr. Lightbourne's field so much because I feel that our people should know, and because Dr. Lightbourne's becoming modesty forbids his writing such things about his own work. Instead of lessening, the mission of the Christian Church seems to be increasing in importance. Ecclesiastical chains that have been binding and holding their prisoners for years are breaking in some places, however, and the Christian Church has reason to believe that her voice has been heard, and her power felt.

We are in the midst of a revival here at the Gulph Church, and are hoping for an outpouring of blessing on the services. Rev. Jas. R. Johnston, known as "Sunny Jim," once Superintendent of the Florence Crittendon home, N. Y., is with me this week since Sunday evening. Sunday morning and evening our congregations were better than usual. In the afternoon, the teacher of the Men's Bible class had to be away, and the class was addressed by Rev. Mr. McNally, pastor of the Bridgeport Presbyterian Church, who was once with Evangelist Wilbur Chapman. He gave one of the clearest and most forceful addresses on the second coming that I ever heard, and greatly impressed the class.

Last week in addition to our Wednesday evening praise service at church we held three cottage prayer meetings in different sections of our membership.

MURDOCK W. BUTLER.

WINCHESTER LETTER

The greatest event of its kind in Frederick County, took place last Sunday afternoon, when, in spite of a cloudy, damp day, hundreds of men and women belonging to the Adult Bible Classes of Winchester and Frederick County paraded the streets of Winchester for half an hour, after which they entered the Winchester Christian church for a service. The parade was planned by Mr. I. N. Good, County Superintendent of the Adult Division in the International Sunday school work, assisted by a committee composed of W. S. White, W. G. Hardy, J. E. Cooper, E. W. Cather, and W. T. Walters. Owing to the illness of Brother Good, the writer had charge of the services. Rev. W. D. Smith, rector of the Winchester Protestant Episcopal church, led the opening prayer, after which Mr. Thomas C. Diggs, General Secretary of the State Sunday school work, made a strong address on organized class work.

He summed up the need and activities of the organized class work under the three heads, viz., "Something to do; some one to do it; some one to see it done." The closing prayer was led by Rev. Mr. Smith, a visiting Baptist minister from Martinsburg, W. Va.

The music was furnished by the choir of the Christian church, assisted by the choir from the Reformed church and the congregation.

These union meetings are a manifestation of good feeling and hearty co-operation among the different denominations of the city and county. We all labor together here for the advancement of the kingdom of Jesus Christ.

The evening service at our church was well attended last Sunday. At its close one new member was received and two were baptized by immersion.

Death entered our ranks for the first time November 28 and took one of our charter members, Sister Lillian C. Rudolph.

We shall begin our meeting at Timber Mountain December 8. W. T. WALTERS.

Winchester, Va., December 5, 1913.

FOSTER'S STORY OF THE BIBLE

From Genesis to Revelation. Told in Simple Language.

ADAPTED TO ALL AGES, BUT ESPECIALLY TO THE YOUNG

By CHARLES FOSTER

Size, 6½ x 9 in.; 704 Pages: 300 Illustrations.

BEAUTIFUL COLORED PICTURES
THE BEST EASY-READING VERSION OF THE WHOLE BIBLE

It adheres most closely to the Scriptures, retaining much of their force, dignity and distinction of style, with the pure and simple wording of the English Bible, without comment or doctrinal discussion.

MOST GENERALLY USED—750,000 SOLD

Approved by eminent men of various religious denominations
Valued in thousands of homes.

FINE CLOTH, with beautiful design in three colors (shown above), $1.50

SEND US YOUR ORDERS.

Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Children's Missionary Stories

STORIES are—yes, must be—used by every wide-awake worker among, or leader or teacher of, children.

MISSIONARY STORIES seem to have been the one field well-nigh overlooked until Mrs. Alice Moreton Burnett, Corresponding Secretary for the Woman's Board for Home Missions of the Christian Church, made a compilation of thirty interesting, instructive stories pertaining especially and directly to missions that are sure to be appreciated by workers, teachers, leaders, pastors, fathers, mothers—and the children.

Some of the Important Events of both Home Missions and Foreign Missions are also included, together with Suggestions For Junior Leaders.

They make a book 5 x 7 inches in size, 128 pages, red cloth binding—a handsome, attractive volume. Price 35c per copy postpaid.

BUY THIS BOOK FOR THE CHILDREN

The
Christian Publishing Association
Dayton, Ohio.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

Just a little bit of Christmas
For the neighbor at your side,
Who upon the wave of fortune
With yourself seems not to ride.
Do not be a miser, hoarding
Health and strength and power to bless—
Share them with the lone one near you
Who these charms may not possess.

For 'tis not alone the dollar,
Soon forgotten, that you spend,
But the handshake that goes with it,
Carries blessings in the end.
Putting the true Christmas spirit
Into everything you do,
You will find it will be Christmas
In your heart the whole year through.
—HELEN M. RICHARDSON.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: DECEMBER 14

Subject: "The Sin of Achan," With Scripture Lesson from Josh. 7:6-15.

Time.—A short time after the fall of Jericho. (See last lesson.)

Places.—About Gilgal, near Ai, in the valley of Anchor.

Persons.—Joshua, Achan and family, the children of Israel, army of Ai.

Golden Text.—Be sure your sin will find you out. Num. 32:33.

Leading Thought.—Sin cannot be hidden from God. Our lesson events took place soon after the fall of Jericho, which Professor Beecher placed at B. C. 1459.

Jericho's goods were "accursed," that is, devoted to the Lord, so that the Israelites might not stain their victory or lose their sense of dependence upon God, by any greed for gold, or destroy their unity by quarrels over the spoils. Achan's sin must be punished severely, as it struck at the foundations of safety for his people.

Ai was on the plateau northwest of Jericho, and was the first city in that direction. It was fifteen or twenty miles from the Israelites' encampment at Gilgal. Here the Hebrews met a terrible defeat, which foreboded loss of prestige and ultimate ruin.

Achan was pointed out by means of lots. The names of the twelve tribes were written on twelve blocks of wood or pieces of stone, which were shaken together and one drawn out. Then the families of that tribe were inscribed on blocks in a similar fashion, and one was drawn. Finally, a household in this family connection was designated in the same way, and then a man of that household—Achan.

Anchor (meaning "trouble") is the name of a valley leading down to Jericho from the plateau on which Ai was situated. Hosea (2:15) saw a vision of the Jews returning from captivity and marching up this same valley, thus transforming the valley of Anchor into "a door of hope."

Object Lessons

A burning match. What will happen if I lay this lighted match in a basket full of papers? It will spread into a dangerous fire. But suppose I hide the tiny flame under the papers? It is just as full of danger when hidden. The fire will spread and destroy, just the same. Sin is like the tiny fire in that respect. To hide it does not make it less dangerous and destructive. Even though it is hidden for a while, like fire it will soon spread and become visible. Today's lesson and Golden Text tell a sad story of a hidden sin.

Two silver dollars. (Have a boy hold them close up to his eyes.) You would not think anything so small as a dollar could make a person blind. But when a dollar is held close enough to each of a person's eyes, he cannot see anything else. Dollars can shut out sunshine, the faces of his friends, the safe path for his feet, if they are the first and biggest things he sees. Money has had many other forms than dollars in various countries and times, but it has had the same destroying effect on those who cared too much for it.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC: DECEMBER 21

"The Christmas Spirit, and How it May Prevail."—Isaiah 9:2-7.

It would be well at the meeting a week beforehand for the leader or president to explain to the society the plan for this meeting. Tell them that you want it to be a real Christmas meeting. Prepare to discuss the Christmas idea under two heads:

1. "Glory to God in the Highest."
2. "Peace on Earth."

On the evening of the meeting arrange the chairs in three divisions, and let the members who are to discuss each sub-head have a section together.

The leader will speak of the song of the angels at Bethlehem. Let him talk of the comprehensiveness of the program, which is: For the individual, worship of God; for society, good will to men; for nations, peace on earth.

Then pass to the Scripture passage and show its connection. The names that were here given to the Messiah are the basis of the angels' song. Then the leader should make the application to present day life and announce the plan of the meeting.

"Glory to God in the Highest"

God wants to be glorified by men, not because He needs our praise, but because we need to give it. When we glorify God it is we that are glorified far more than He is.

God wants to be glorified by men because He loves men, and wants to be loved in return. We are made in the image of God, and we know how delightful praise is. Our praise does not add to God's glory, but it adds to His joy.

If our glorifying of God is to be "in the highest," it must be couched in our best words. It must be the fruit of our best thought, it must not be a careless fragment tossed out of our time.

We know little about the angels, but we know that these highest of created beings, so vastly superior to men, are glad to spend their time in praising and glorifying God. We shall know our superiority by doing the same thing.

"Peace on Earth"

One proof of the common saying that Christianity has never really been tried on a large scale in the world is the prevalence of war. War is the very opposite of Christianity. War is hatred, cruelty, destruction, sorrow death; Christianity is love, kindness, preservation, joy, and life.

Probably the greatest event in the world's history since the resurrection of Christ was the assembling of the first peace conference at the Hague. It heralds the Christianization of the world.

Every Christian, so far as he is truly a Christian, is a peace society. He is at work as a peace-maker among individual men; and at work also, so far as his influence reaches, to promote peace among the nations of the world.

Peace on earth springs from peace in the heart. It is not a matter of laws or constitutions or treaties or organizations, but is a matter of human character.

Christ is the Prince of Peace, as Isaiah says. Mohammedanism, the religion nearest to Christianity and Judaism, is a religion of war. Its disciples have been the fiercest fighters of the world's history. One of the Christian novelties is insistence upon forbearance, forgiveness, and peace.

Peace is not a weak virtue, but one of the most heroic. Only a strong man can maintain a peaceful spirit and ensure peace in his surroundings. If you think that peace requires no strength, try to experience it steadily and to propagate it constantly!

ELEMENTARY GRADED LESSONS

It is now pretty generally accepted that graded Sunday school lessons are the best lessons for elementary scholars. The little remaining doubt or uncertainty as to their fitness has shifted from that of merit to that of applicableness. The superiority of graded lessons for children over any other known arrangement or type of lessons is no longer so much disputed, the hesitancy as to their adoption arising nearly always in conditions of the school considering them. We shall try to show that the poorest conditions in the poorest Sunday schools may be met, improved or overcome by the use of graded lessons. Following this note, it is our purpose for three consecutive weeks to outline in these columns simply and briefly the elementary graded Sunday school, giving definite suggestions concerning the arrangement and equipment of each class. Cradle Roll, we must remember, according to our denominational order of things, is not a part of the elementary division, but a division in itself. We have, then, Beginners, Primary and Junior. Look next week for what may be said on the first of these three departments.

Class organization is not practicable for elementary classes, but each department should have a distinction other than the lesson itself, by naming its own color, songs, pin, etc.

MRS. J. J. LINCOLN.

CHRISTMAS ON THE CONGO

One of the most pleasant associations of the joyful Christmas festival in our Sunday schools is the thought that the Spirit of Christmas, like a beam of light, is swiftly making its way around the world, penetrating and lighting up even the darkest places of the earth. Think what it means to have a story like this come from the banks of the Congo, in the depths of Africa: "Our children at Sona Bata had a pleasant Christmas. It is not the custom of these people to eat their meals sitting at tables, but this year the sixty children really enjoyed being seated at tables in the school building, and finding a plate of food for each one. A goat was purchased specially for the occasion, and every edible portion of it (edible in Congo covers almost everything but hoofs and horns) soon disappeared. In the evening, hymns were sung and the verses of Scripture referring to the birth of Christ were recited. A number of the children reciting were dressed, some to represent the shepherds, others the Wise-men, Herod, and the scribes. They seemed pleased to act their parts, and even Herod was unable to show the face of a villain. A picture of the Christ child was hung on the wall, and Wise-men brought their gifts, consisting of their Christmas offerings, and placed these near the picture. Then the children received their presents, and were just as happy as the children at home. Each had a school bag, with a piece of lump sugar inside, besides a few pins and a piece of soap, which gave them great delight."

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Sec'y. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

METHODS OF WORK IN THE GREENSBORO CHURCH

BY MRS. ROBERT WILLIAMS

We have three societies in the First Church in Greensboro—the Woman's, the Juniors, and the Willing Workers. We are studying "Sunrise in the Sunrise Kingdom" in the Woman's Society and are using the Mite Boxes, which we open quarterly for the support of the Japan work. Our meetings are always interesting, but all of our members are not active, I am sorry to say. As has been said, a great deal depends on the co-operation of the pastos in keeping the missionary spirit alive in the church. In order that every member shall be brought face to face with the awful conditions existing in the foreign fields, they must be taught. A Sunday should not close in our churches that has not heard our pastor's voice raised in prayer for our missionaries and their work. Information about missions and prayer for them will naturally lead to gifts. We can not pray earnestly for any cause without a desire to be the means of helping that cause. Why should we want to withhold from others what God has so bountifully given to us and is really their God-given right. Jesus did not die for us alone—He died to redeem the world, and if we are truly His followers, we should each do our share to bring about this redemption.

I wish everyone enjoyed as heartily as I do the work with the young people. I have given two Sunday afternoons a month to their meetings. I help prepare their programs, play for them, and am always on the lookout for the most interesting and vital stories to kindle their interest in missions. Here is where our best effort is needed—the orchard must be planted before we can gather the fruit, and the young trees are the ones of promise. I have my Sunday school class at my home on Friday afternoons to teach them sewing, and I always make it a point to read them a missionary story. Of course, this requires work, but it will bear fruit later on, and I am more than willing to give as much of my time as I can to what I consider one of the greatest and noblest causes of our time.

When we read of parents selling their daughters in Japan in order to pay their debts and these girls being forced to live lives of shame; when we read of the thousands of child widows in India, and when we read of millions of people in ignorance of Jesus Christ and two infants out of every three in the world, looking up into the faces of mothers who can tell them no word about the world's Savior and know that the reason so many are not Christians is not because they have wilfully rejected the Gospel—I feel that I am more than obligated to do all I can in order to obey my Master's strikingly explicit command: "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Missions are not a matter of choice, but of plain obedience. Let us all learn to pray for missions—the prayer of Elijah could open and shut Heaven, and if the prayer of one righteous man could avail so much, what could not the prayers of many righteous people do? It would reach up to God and lie before the throne of His grace, and never depart without its answer.

THE IMPORTANCE OF MISSION STUDY

BY MRS. J. W. HARRELL, PORTSMOUTH, VA.

Our Master's words, "Lift up your eyes and look on the fields," give us a glimpse of Him teaching His disciples the value of knowing about the needy ones of the world. Until there is information about them there will be little vital interest in them.

It has been said that "the greatest foes of Missions are prejudice and indifference, and ignorance is the mother of them both."

We cannot be at our best for Him, we can not render efficient service in the upbuilding of His kingdom unless we are informed about world-wide affairs.

It seems to us that there is nothing more important for the future welfare of our woman's work than the systematic study of missions. Unless our people are educated along missionary lines there is little hope of ever accomplishing any thing great for the work.

Nothing educates like study, so if we would reach the church, let us emphasize the study class. Facts are the fingers of God, as has been wisely expressed.

Men and women must know in order to pray. They need to become familiar with conditions existing among the needy classes of the earth, before they can intelligently pray the Lord of the harvest to thrust forth laborers into the harvest field.

Men and women must know in order to give. If they could only get a vision of the real need, giving would become a privilege and not a sacrifice.

Today as never before the importance of Mission Study is emphasized.

The fields are white as never before. The church is eagerly grasping the situation and coming to realize the obligation and the opportunity. Never before have men and women displayed such an interest in the welfare of the darkened lands of the earth.

The women of Christian lands are beginning to realize and appreciate the fact that they owe every privilege which they enjoy to the influence of the religion of Jesus Christ. "A people cannot rise above the level of its womanhood." A knowledge of this fact should arouse us to our duty. Let us acquaint ourselves with the deplorable conditions of our sisters across the sea. When this is done, the women of Christian lands will not be slow to pledge themselves to a united effort in behalf of the Christless women of the world.

Mission Study is especially important for those who are not particularly interested in the affairs of God's kingdom. There are so many purposeless souls among us. And yet if they could only be made to see and understand conditions as they really exist, it would often revolutionize their lives. A study of the Mission fields would be of untold benefit to such people.

Perhaps there was a time in your life and mine when Missions had no attraction for us. We were not reared in a missionary atmosphere, the very subject seemed dull and uninteresting. Today, we are peculiarly fascinated with the missionary spirit. What has brought about the change? It is the little information that we have gotten on the subject.

The reason people are not interested today is because they have no knowledge of the subject. The study class will give scores of women their first real glimpse of the missionary undertaking. As a band of women united for the service of our Master, we need the conviction burned into our souls, the world's great need of Christ. So many voices are calling us, and our time is demanded elsewhere. We say we haven't time to join the Study Class. But let us put first things first. "Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." This is the true mission of the woman's movement.

The Mission Study Class is a possibility in every church. There should be groups of women, groups of children, Young People's Societies, and Sunday school classes, studying Missions. The results where this has been tried are amazing. It has been known to double the membership of a society, to more than double the gifts. It unites the women of a church and sometimes it actually results in assuming the support of a missionary or native worker. The study class will multiply and train leaders for the church. Isn't this the great need of all our churches? We are suffering today because of the need of capable and trained leaders.

We would not say that the Study Class is the only form of education, but would call attention to the great importance of the Mission library and literature in the form of pamphlets, tracts, and leaflets. The Woman's Boards have many attractive leaflets for free distribution. These, as some one has put it, are seed corn to be scattered broadcast if an abundant harvest is expected.

For our country churches, we would suggest the Reading Circle or Study Group. In each community, form a circle and meet at stated intervals—once a week, or once a month, in the home of some member, and in an informal way read aloud and discuss the text book.

Some of the helps for study classes will be found in "The Mission Class," by Dr. T. H. P. Stiler. "The Mission Class Method," by Dorothea Day, "Mission Class Manual," by Milliken. Correspondence with our Publishing House will bring help in the way of supplies, plans and literature.

We would not close this paper without calling attention to the fact that we need more Bible reading and prayer in our meetings. The study of Missions will reveal to us the fact that the Bible is the greatest of all missionary books. It contains the list of our first missionaries and heroes of faith, and it contains the doctrines which all missionaries are to follow.

Let the keynote of our Study Classes be found in John 10:10, "I am come that they may have life, and that they may have it more abundantly." This is our Master's personal appeal to each of our hearts in behalf of the Christless millions of the earth. We who have the privileges of the abundant life should gladly help pass on our blessings to those who have it not.

ANOTHER SOCIETY ORGANIZED

On the fifth Sunday afternoon, the women of Palm Street Church, Greensboro, held an enthusiastic meeting and organized a Missionary Society with fourteen charter members. They are going to study Missions and will hold their meetings in connection with the Ladies' Aid Society. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Anna Belle Smith; Vice President, Mrs. A. H. Hinshaw; Secretary, Mrs. S. H. Ballard; Treasurer, Mrs. H. C. Simpson. We believe this Society is going to do good work.

CHURCH NEWS

SHADY GROVE

The church at Shady Grove seems to be in a very good condition, though all members have not yet awakened to the full sense of their duty. If we would only obey where Christ said it is more blessed to give than to receive, and give of our means for the upbuilding of Christ's kingdom, we would enjoy the Christian religion much more than we do. Let's wake up and do more for Christ than we have ever done before. The Conference at Ramseur last week was a great blessing to my life. I know I can serve God better and will be truer to His cause since I have attended Conference in the town of Ramseur. My life has been strengthened by going into the homes of the Christian people there, and hearing the many able addresses and problems discussed. The town of Ramseur, I think, is a splendid Christian town. I greatly enjoyed being in their midst and sharing of the good things in the homes of the people. That we may trust God more and do better in the coming Conference year is my earnest prayer.

W. C. MARTIN.

HOLLAND, VA., LETTER

Dear SUN Readers:

We are here. We came October 1 at 9:30 a. m. A committee representing Holland and Holy Neck churches met us at the station. Sister Irene Holland took charge of Mrs. Black and Emma Judith. Bro. I. A. Luke took charge of the carload of our belongings, while wagons and carts manned by willing hearts from the two churches hauled our goods to the parsonage. I did the receiving act.

By 7:30 p. m. we had the bedroom ready for the needed rest, while meals were taken with the good people of the town. We were delighted to hear responses from the chickens, pigeons, doves, rabbits, and the dog at curfew roll call. They came on the same train with us. It took us a few days to unpack and get in shape, but in the meantime every one was as nice to us as—well, in the characteristic way of the Holland and Holy Neck parish. You must know something of the people here to get an idea of what I am trying to say.

I was delighted with our Eastern Virginia Conference. It was simply great from every point of view.

The third Sunday in November Holy Neck had an all-day service. Preaching at 11:30 a. m., then dinner for all. At 2:30 the Missionary Society convened. The roll call resulted in something over $15.00. The house was full. Good spirit in all of the services.

The quarterly Conference on Saturday was full of the spirit of earnestness and of love. Hundreds partook of the bread and wine on Sunday, and all seemed to feel that it was good to be there.

November 23 was Orphanage Day with the Holland church. The Sunday school made an offering of over $20.00, while the church made an offering of about $12.00. But this is not final. We hope to add to both of these amounts.

Holy Neck will make an offering for the Orphanage first Sunday in December. The Ladies' Aid Society at Holland is making up a donation and a shipment of good things also, for the Orphanage.

The work goes on well. Under Dr. Newman's leadership it could not be otherwise. It remains, however, to be seen, as to whether the present pastor will hold it to the high mark which it has attained.

We have reorganized the C. E. Society. Fifty were present Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at our third meeting. The young people have taken hold in earnest, while we older ones stand hard by ready to help when we are needed.

The Annual Conference asked for 20 new subscribers for THE SUN from Holy Neck members, and 12 new subscribers from Holland members. We are canvassing as we cover the field in pastoral visiting, and hope in time to meet not only this, but every request and requirement of the Conference. Our people seem well pleased with the improvements made on our paper.

There is a splendid interdenominational spirit here. We have a union prayer meeting in Holland. Dr. Lawless, the Baptist minister, is a learned, devout, sweet-spirited man. We alternate in holding the prayer meetings.

Dr. W. A. Harper gave us a pleasant surprise on his way home from our Conference, by taking dinner with us. One objection, however, we wish to record against him; namely, his call was made conspicuous by its shortness. With all of this, he got a student for Elon. Come again, Doctor.

Many of my members have requested me to write a Holland Letter. By request, therefore, I am writing, and not by choice. I am not a writer, but do profess to be a talker.

Sincerely,

B. F. BLACK.

MOORE'S UNION AND LEE'S CHAPEL

I have met both of these churches since Conference. I was indeed sorry to learn that the delegates from Moore Union did not get to attend the Conference, but Deacon J. W. Lett was not well enough to go, and they sent the Conference apportionments in full. The Sunday school here is doing well under the leadership of our young Deacon B. J. Harward, who is a promising young man.

I met my congregation at Lee's Chapel at 3 p. m. same day, and we had a good service. Here we have a live Sunday school and prayer meeting, with Deacon Em-

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC
Makes You Immune From Malaria
in all its forms. Contains no arsenic or opiates; pleasant to take and harmless, for children as well as adults. Sold and guaranteed by your druggist.
Arthur Peter & Co., Louisville, Ky., General Agents.

The Best Mill You Can Buy

Williams Portable Mill
If you want a mill that will really pay you—one that will grind all your grain economically, quickly and without waste and bring business from your neighbors and keep it—then you will buy a Williams Portable Mill.
Cheapest because it lasts a lifetime; doesn't break down, and does more and better work than any other mill. Genuine Pebble Stone Grit Buhrs the most durable buhr known, producing soft, fine meal. Buhrs protected from injurious substances by new spring arrangement. No attention required as patent device prevents buhrs from drifting together when grain runs out. Equipped with cleaning fan, sifter and new feeding device. Sold on absolute satisfaction or money back guarantee. Ask your dealer or write us at once for illustrated catalogue and full particulars. Let us show you.
WILLIAMS MILL MANUFACTURING CO.,
41 Main Street, Kenda, North Carolina.

YOUR HOME TOWN HAS A CHANCE TO FURNISH A WINNER!

This Will Interest "LADIES ONLY"

Within sixty days there will be awarded to North Carolina young ladies thousands of dollars in valuable prizes by the GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS.

Contest is just starting in which you should become interested
Prize List is very attractive

Capital Prize.....	$1250 Case Automobile
Grand Prize.....	$500 in Gold Coin
District Prizes.....	5 Awards of $200 in Gold Coin
	5 Awards of $50 in Gold Coin
	5 $100 Diamond Solitaires
Special Prizes.....	$300 in Gold Coin
Pro Rata Prize.....	$500 in Gold Coin

NO ONE WILL LOSE ALL HAVE EQUAL CHANCE WRITE TODAY

CONTEST MANAGER

The Greensboro Daily News

GREENSBORO, N. C.

THE HOME BEAUTIFUL

What is it that makes home beautiful? First of all, it is the spirit of love which predominates and brings into unison the highest and best impulses of which human hearts are capable. But what implements does love use to cultivate this spirit in the home and make the home life beautiful, happy and inviting? They are lovely furnishings, of which the PIANO is KING. What is there in the home, next to the Bible, which can be used to inspire greater appreciation of life, loftier ideals and deeper sincerity, than the Piano or Self-player Piano?

The Christian Sun Piano Club gives you the opportunity to combine your order with those of ninety-nine other Club members which we secure, thereby obtaining the maximum Factory discount on instruments of the highest quality. Every feature of the Club is guaranteed, so that you take no risk of being dissatisfied. Write for your copy of the catalogue and letters from old Club members. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of higher education fostered by the Southern Christian Convention.

MODERN IN EQUIPMENT, Steam Heat, Electric Lights, Baths, Sewerage, Elegant New Buildings.

A HIGH GRADE INSTITUTION whose graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great American Universities without examination.

MAINTAINS EXCELLENT MUSIC, Art, Elocution, Normal, and Preparatory Departments.

A FACULTY OF SEVENTEEN SPECIALISTS, with a successful record of twenty-three years behind it.

HAS ALL THE ADVANTAGES of city life with none of its disadvantages. Situated in the delightful hill country of North Carolina, famed for its healthfulness, pure water, and high moral tone.

ELON COLLEGE HAS DONE MORE to build up the Christian Church than any institution ever yet commissioned by our people.

TERMS VERY MODERATE. $141 to $191 per session of ten school months.

For catalogue or other information, address,

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, Elon College, N. C.

EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

has often heard class-members say: "I cannot understand the Bible." They could not understand any other book that was printed three hundred years ago. So many English words of that day were different.

More than forty new dictionaries have been required since then, to keep up with the changes in the English language. The

American Standard Bible
Edited by the American Revision Committee
uses the words of our day, which make the meanings of the Bible writers clear to us.

Write for Our Free Booklet, "How We Got Our American Standard Bible"

No teacher can afford to be without it.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf."

ENTIRELY NEW!
Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly."

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by
REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

ery Buckhanan as Superintendent.

The signs seem to be hopeful at this place. We received two more members, and I learn that there are others who will join later. The Conferences have laid it on me to raise eleven new subscribers to THE SUN. We have already turned in five of them. At both of the above mentioned places of worship, the brethren have right much material on the lots for their new houses of worship, and aim to take up the work of building very soon.

P. T. KLAPP.

November 29, 1913.

SANFORD, N. C.

Our work at Sanford is moving on nicely. Last Sunday night at the close of the services the Treasurer paid me one-twelfth of my salary for this year. We have received three members since Conference. Our Sunday school is in a flourishing condition, with Bro. J. U. Gunter as Superintendent. We have a Ladies' Missionary Society that meets monthly, also ladies' prayer meeting that meets every Tuesday at 3:00 P. M.; weekly prayer-meeting at the church every Thursday night at 7:30 P. M. All committees have been appointed, and we are ready for work.

G. R. UNDERWOOD.

ECZEMA BOOK FREE.

The National Skin Hospital, located at 121 Main Street, St. Joseph, Mo., who treat skin diseases, only, have published a book of more than sixty pages which they are mailing free to anyone writing for it. It has many colored plates showing the different forms of skin diseases and tells how they can be treated at home. Anyone interested should write for it at once.

"EVERYBODY DELIGHTED"

The Christian Sun Piano Club receives hundreds of letters like the following and not a single case of dissatisfaction to date.

"I am just delighted with the piano. It has given entire satisfaction and I would advise anyone desiring a piano to join the Club."—MRS. A. C. F., Greensboro, N. C.

"The Ludden & Bates Piano bought of you is all that it has been represented and, in my opinion, is one of the very best instruments made."—MR. J. H. D., Bartow, Fla.

"I am perfectly delighted with my piano. I think the Club Plan a capital idea."—MRS. R. B. S., Vaiden, Miss.

"We are delighted with our piano and the Club Plan."—MRS. J. M. C., Toney Creek, S. C.

"I am delighted with my piano. With best wishes for you and the Club, I am."—MRS. J. P. R., Roanoke, Ala.

"I am highly pleased with the Ludden & Bates piano and my friends remark about the sweet tone. The Club plan is an ideal way of buying a piano."—MRS. B. L. B., Thomasville, Ga.

If your home is in need of a high-grade piano or self-player piano write for your copy of the Club's catalogue, also for booklet containing hundreds of commendatory letters from old Club members. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Adv.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER RELIEVED OF CONSUMPTION

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The doctor now gives his recipe free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the stomach and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., Philadelphia, Pa., naming this paper. Ad.

THE PIANOLESS HOME

Have you ever visited a home where discord had usurped the place of sweet accord and where time seemed to hang heavy on the hands of the individual members of the family? There was no entertainer there! A sweet-toned Piano or Self-player Piano would have kept that home so happy, enlivened and entertaining that the home-life would have been like "One grand, sweet song."

Why let your home grow dull and your young folks seek amusement in questionable places, all for the want of proper entertainment at home? The Christian Sun Piano Club enables you to secure a high-grade piano or player-piano of the sweetest tone, at the lowest Factory price and on terms to suit your convenience. Every feature of the Club is guaranteed so that you cannot fail to be delighted. Write for handsomely illustrated catalogue and full particulars. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

Raise Money For Your Church Society

WRITE US for our plan by which adies can quickly earn money for their Missionary Society, Ladies' Aid, etc. Any woman wanting to earn money easily and in a dignified manner for any purpose whatever will be interested in our proposition. Modern Specialties Mfg. Co., 130 High St., South Bend, Ind.

Shirley President Suspenders

50¢

"A pair for every suit"

makes a man's whole year merry—saves time and temper every day. Try it and see! Choice of 12 beautifully designed gift boxes. At stores or post-paid, 50c.

"Satisfaction or money back"
Be sure "Shirley President" is on buckles
The C.A. Edgerton Mfg. Co., Shirley, Mass.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books; Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. JAMES O. COX, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

J. O. Cox, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Amt. reported last week. $4,251.97

Dues

Garland Gray		.10
John Newman Denton		.20
S. E. Denton, Jr.		.20
Joseph Rabb Denton		.20
Ruth Horne		.10
Lillian Horne		.10
Lillian Hand		.05
Roy M. Hand		.05
Thomas Brickhouse, Jr.		1.20
Joseph Brickhouse		1.20
Everet Brickhouse		1.20
Charles E. Newman, Jr.		.10
Hannah Clare Newman		.05
Helen Shivers Newman		.05
George Alfred Newman		.05

4.85

Monthly S. S. Offering

Oak Level		6.03
Rose Hill, Columbus, Ga.		2.45
Damascus, Orange Co., Va.		3.05
East End, Newport News, Va.		3.36
1st. Ch. Greensboro		15.00
LaNett, Ala.		2.50
Franklin, Va.		5.26
Waverly, Va.		10.00

47.65

Special

Tyler Bowling, Work	..	2.00	2.00
---------------------	----	------	------

Thanksgiving Offering

New Providence		5.00
J. T. Tucker		5.00
Hayes Chapel		2.25
Mrs. H. E. Pierce		1.00
Isle of Wight C. H.		12.00
First Bible Class, Holland, Va., S. S.		5.00
Second Bible Class, Holland, Va., S. S.		10.00
Class No. 3, Holland, Va.		3.40
Class No. 4, Holland, Va.		2.00
Class No. 5, Holland, Va.		2.67
Class No. 6, Holland Va.		1.75
Burlington Church		20.75
Elon College Church		29.71
Mrs. Lawrence's Class, Elon
Sunday School		1.50
Mrs. McNailey's Class, Elon
Sunday School		2.37
Ebenezer Church		9.20
Hank's Chapel		10.12
Daughters of Liberty, Morrisville, N. C.		3.00
Henderson Church		17.25
Philathea Class, Henderson S. S.		1.00
Raleigh Church		5.07
Raleigh S. S.		4.21
Ladies' Aid, Raleigh Ch.		5.40
Jr. C. Endeavor, Raleigh		1.00
Mrs. C. A. High		1.00
Miss Mamie Holland's S. S. Class		5.00
B. F. Gwathney and wife		1.00
Pleasant Ridge, (Randolph County)		3.73
Durham Church		18.21
1st. Ch. Greensboro		13.21
Mrs. T. W. Parks		1.00
Mrs. C. H. Swint		1.00
Rev. H. W. Elder		1.40
3rd. Ch., Norfolk, Va.		28.15
Rosemont		7.75

241.45

Total this week295.95

Grand total$4,547.92

My dear Children and Friends:

See what a nice report we have this week. Many bright sunny letters with faithful promise to write more often in the future. And then such a fine financial report. Uncle Jim has been kept busy crediting up offerings, and paying debts. How glad he is to pay our friends who have furnished us something to eat and wear when we needed it, and had nothing with which to buy. If you will just keep him as busy a few more weeks we will be able to "read our titles clear." Let all the churches report their Thanksgiving offerings as promptly as possible; and if any church has failed to take the offering, please do so at once. This is your work, and I am sure every member of the Christian church wants to see it succeed. We can't succeed to the fullest extent without the co-operation and support of the entire church. And then the Lord can't bless for work that is never done. Many churches and individuals turn away blessing by withholding from the Lord. The Orphanage needs the money and the work will be promoted by it; but every individual and church in the Southern Convention, needs to take the offering, and will be blessed by having contributed, far more than the orphanage will. Let's bless and be blessed together. Yours for service,

J. O. Cox.

Waverly, Va., Nov. 27, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I am a boy 12 years old tomorrow, and I am in the first year high school. I have not written in many a day, but I will try to write oftener. Enclosed you will find 25 cents. Love for all,

GARLAND GRAY.

We are glad to hear from you, Garland, and are pleased to learn that you are getting on so nicely in your school work. Only twelve years old, yet in the high school. That is fine.

We are grateful for the promise to write more often. Uncle Jim and all the cousins would be delighted to have a letter from you each month.

Tifton, Ga., Nov. 30, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Here comes a little Georgia girl to join your corner. I am eight years old. I like school fine and love my teacher so much. Would like to attend Sunday school, but we live too far from church.

My Grandpa and Grandma Veazly came to see us in October. They live in Alabama. I will close for this time and when I can write better I will write more. Please find five cents. With love to you and all the cousins I am,

Your little niece,

LILLIAN HAND.

We are glad to welcome this nice girl from Georgia, to our Corner. Glad to learn you are liking school so well; but sorry that you haven't opportunity to attend Sunday school. I know you had a good time when grand-mother came to see you.

Tifton, Ga., Nov. 30, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I want to join the band of cousins. I enjoy hearing the children's letters, and want to help too. Wish more of the Alabama children would write for we did live in Alabama and would be glad to see lots of Georgia letters. I am going to school. Miss Nannie Clegg is my teacher. All of the scholars love her, she is so kind. We had our Thanksgiving dinner at school. Hope you and the orphans had a good time too. I enjoy driving my dog with a rope when I am out of school. He goes with Papa to the field and catches rabbits. Tell me some of the little boys names about my age. I am six years old. With much love to you and the cousins I will close. Please find five cents for the band. Your little nephew,

ROY M. HAND.

Welcome to you Roy! We are delighted to have you join our band, and are pleased to hear you enjoy our children's letters. I join you in the wish that more of the Alabama boys and girls would write. You have set them a good example, and when they read your nice letter I am sure they will write too. Watch and see.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 28, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I am sending my first dime. I think I must be about the youngest in the whole Daughtrey family. My father is from Nansemond Co., and I have never seen a letter from any of the other little Daughtreys so thought I'd start the ball rolling. My father belongs to the Third Christian church, mother to Epworth, and some day I expect to be a Christian preacher. Am just eighteen months old now.

With love,

JOE PERSON DAUGHTREY.

Thank you Joe! We appreciate your dime, but gladder to get your letter, and learn of your anticipated service. Trust that some day you may be a great and useful preacher.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 1, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Enclosed you will find our dues for the year. We are going to try to write more regular and hope all the Cousins will do the same. Thomas is in school now and don't you think it will be nice when he can write for us.

Wishing you and the Cousins a Merry Christmas. With love,
THOMAS BRICKHOUSE, JR.
EVERETT BRICKHOUSE,
JOSEPH BRICKHOUSE.

I knew our faithful cousins would soon write again. "Old neglect" can't always hold sway. The boys and girls are all going to break way from him, and write every month this next year; and what a fine page we are going to

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads,
Bill Heads,
Statements,
Envelopes
Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

The Southern Christian Publishing Company,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

THE BEST
Sunday School Help

If you are a Sunday school teacher or pupil you should desire the best possible help. This you will find in one volume, Peloubet's Select Notes on the International Lessons for 1914. Send in your order now. Up to January 1 you can get a copy for $1.00, after that time, $1.25. The publishers' price is $1.25, but we save you 25 cents by ordering from us. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

have. Just count the long list of Cousins writing this week. Sixteen this week. Is not that fine. Let's have twenty next week; and then twenty-five the week following.

Burlington, N. C., Nov. 23, 1913.
Dear Uncle Jim:

I am a little girl eight years old. I am in the third grade at school. Miss Mamie Fonville is my teacher. I attend Sunday school regularly. Miss Nonie Moore is my teacher. We hope you and your family and the little orphans had a pleasant Thanksgiving. I went to church this morning and this afternoon our Christian Endeavorers went to the county home and carried a nice dinner to the poor people, and they seemed so glad. Enclosed please find ten cents. Hope it will help a little.

Lovingly, RUTH HORNE.

How delighted we are to have this nice girl from Burlington to become one of our number. See how many good things she did on Thanksgiving: went to church in the morning, carried a nice dinner to the poor people in the County Home that afternoon; and then as a fitting climax to this day of good deeds, wrote to the "Corner" enclosing a dime for the Orphans. How many who read these lines made so many hearts glad?

Burlington, N. C., Nov. 27, 1913.
Dear Uncle Jim:

I thought as my sister was writing to you, I would write too. I hope you and the Orphans had a nice Thanksgiving yesterday. I went to the County Home and helped to carry something to the poor people. I would like to join the Band of Cousins. Enclosed please find ten cents.

Yours sincerely,

LILLIAN HORNE.

We are happy to welcome you, Lillian, for I am sure you are going to make us a faithful cousin. Our Orphanage family had a very pleasant Thanksgiving.

McRae, Ga., Nov. 29, 1913.
Dear Uncle Jim:

We think of you as our old friend, Uncle Jim, and hope we will be able to come to see you some time. We did not know how to begin our letter for last month, but send our dues now. We enjoyed Thanksgiving Day, and have begun to count the days until Christmas. Love to all.

JOHN NEWMAN DENTON,
S. E. DENTON, JR.

JOSEPH RABB DENTON.

I know the faithful Cousins would come all right, but was beginning to get a little impatient. Glad you had an enjoyable Thanksgiving. Trust Santa will be good to you Christmas.

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 2, 1913.
Dear Uncle Jim:

We are sorry we neglected the Corner so long. It was from no lack of interest. We are in our new home in Raleigh. Charles is in school. Hannah Clare wants to go back to Henderson. She misses her playmates there. Helen, not being of a social disposition, is contented so long as she has her home people.

We had a delightful visit at Elon College. Cousins, we went to the Orphanage twice. We missed the family of our former Superintendent, but became acquainted with our new one. We enjoyed playing with Mary Virginia's toys. We awoke Harper from his afternoon nap, so he didn't feel like playing. We are looking forward to Christmas. Hope Santa Claus will be good to us, and to the Orphans too. Enclosed find twenty-five cents for the Corner.

Lovingly,

CHARLES E. NEWMAN, JR.,
HANNAH CLARE NEWMAN,
HELEN SHIVERS NEWMAN,
GEORGE ALFRED NEWMAN.

Well, we will forgive your neglect in the past if you will write us regularly each month during the coming year. Hannah Clare will soon find some playmates in Raleigh, then she will be just as happy as she was in Henderson.

Newport News, Va., Nov. 23, 1913.
Dear Uncle Jim:

I have been selected by my class to send you the Orphanage collection from the East End Christian Sunday school. So you will find enclosed $3.36. Love to you and all the orphans.

Your little friend,

ETHEL HOCKADAY.

Thank you, Ethel. We appreciate the offering, and are grateful for your nice letter for the Corner. Please thank your class and each member of Sunday school for the liberal offering.

DR. J. H. BROOKS, Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.

Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81	4:35 a. m.
No. 29	Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41	4:10 p. m.
No. 43	6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84	12:48 a. m.
No. 38	11:35 a. m.
No. 66	12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

ROYAL Baking Powder Absolutely Pure

There is a remarkable interest in Home Baking and Cooking throughout the land.

Home cooking has the backing of science and the approval of fashion. It adds to housekeeping a pride; to our food, healthfulness; and the best cooking in the world today is with the aid of Royal Baking Powder.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.
American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO., BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.
Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles,
Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS —HIGH CLASS— DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants
MAIN STREET, BURLINGTON, N. C.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

Schedule of the trains leaving
Elon College:

N. B.—The following schedule
figures are published only as information and are not guaranteed.

No. 21—11:28 A. M. Through
Train for Asheville with Chair
Car for Waynesville. Connects at
Asheville with Carolina Special for Cincinnati and Chicago, also for
Chattanooga, Memphis and all
Eastern points. Connects at Greensboro with Through Train
for Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, also with local train for points South.

No. 139—6:32 P. M. For Greensboro. Handles through Pullman
Sleeping Car for Atlanta. Makes connections for all points North,
East, South and West, New Orleans, Texas and California points.

No. 131—9:27 P. M. For Greensboro. Makes direct connection with
Train No. 38, Solid Sleeping Car
Train for Washington, Baltimore,
Philadelphia, New York, makes
connection for Boston, Pittsburgh,
Chicago, and all Eastern and
Northern points. Connects with
Through Tourist Sleeping Car for
New Orleans, El Paso, Los Angeles, and San Francisco.

No. 111—5:44 A. M. For Greensboro, with Sleeping Car for Winston-Salem. Connects with No. 37,
Through Train for Atlanta, New Orleans, connects also for Ashe-
ville, St. Louis, Memphis, Birmingham and all Western and Southern points. Also with local train for Danville, Lynchburg and
Washington.

No. 22—4:48 P. M. Raleigh and
Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern and S. A. L. Rwy., also at Selma
with A. C. L. Rwy. And at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and
A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 144—10:08 A. M. For Raleigh and Goldsboro. Makes connections at Selma with A. C. L.
Rwy., for points North and South,
and at Goldsboro with Norfolk
Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 108—8:00 A. M. Local Train
for Raleigh, Selma and Goldsboro.
Makes connection with S. A. L.
Rwy. at Raleigh and A. C. L. Rwy.
at Selma and Goldsboro.

No. 112—1:27 A. M. For Raleigh, Selma, Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern, S. A. L. and R. C.
& S. Railway, at Selma with A. C.
L. Rwy., at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

For detailed information, also for information concerning special round trip rates account various special occasions and Pullman
Sleeping Car reservations, ask any
Southern Railway Agent or communicate with the undersigned.

J. O. JONES.

Traveling Passenger Agent,

NEW FEATHER BEDS $7³⁰
Extra weight 36 lbs. Pair 6 lb. pillows $1.15
NEW LIVE, SANITARY FEATHERS. Best tickling. Guaranteed as represented or money back. Order now or write for BIG FREE CATALOGUE.
AMERICAN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Agents Wanted
Dept. 10 NASHVILLE, TENN.

THE FINEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD

FOR THE MONEY

* This Photograph represents exact size 5½ x 8½ inches
Bound in French Morocco, absolutely flexible,
with overlapping covers as shown in this photograph. Has red under gold edges.

—IT CONTAINS—
The Authorized Version of the Old Testament and New Testament

—HAS—
Self-Pronouncing Text
All the proper words being accented and divided into syllables for quick and easy pronunciation.

—IT ALSO CONTAINS—
A New Series of Helps to Bible Study

—INCLUDING—
4000 Questions and Answers
which unfold the Scriptures

31 Beautiful Illustrations
showing scenes and incidents of Bible History

12 Maps of the Bible Lands in Colors
Large Clear Type Fine Paper

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN one year,
$2.50, postpaid.

Or sent alone for $1.50, postpaid.

—ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO—
The Southern Christian Pub. Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year$1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Lafollette

On Sunday, November the 23rd, Levi M. Lafollette fell asleep after a lingering illness of cancer of the stomach, at the age of 59 years. He had been a member of the Timber Ridge Christian church for a number of years and was a faithful attendant at all its services. He made no display of his religion but quietly lived it and held the respect and esteem of all who knew him. He was a kind and devoted husband and father and a good neighbor. He will be sadly missed by the church and community.

He left to mourn his departure a widow and three daughters: Mrs. Octavia Griffin and Misses Flora and Bessie at home. Funeral services were conducted from his home church by the writer in the presence of a large congregation. W. T. WALTERS.

Rudolph

At the home of her mother, Mrs. J. W. Davis, Winchester, Va., November the 28th, Mrs. Lillian C. Rudolph, departed this life at the age of 31 years. She joined the Timber Ridge Christian church at the age of sixteen, where she was a faithful member until the organization of the Winchester church. She was one of the charter members of the new organization and one of its best workers as long as her strength permitted. Hers was a beautiful Christian character, which won the esteem and friendship of all who knew her.

She left to mourn her death, her mother and one child, Evelyn, and also one sister, Mrs. N. H. Brill and two brothers, Frank R. and Benjamin Davis.

Funeral services were conducted from the home by the writer and the remains laid to rest in the city cemetery. May the Lord comfort and bless the bereaved. W. T. WALTERS.

Spence

On December 4, at her home in Auburn, N. Y., Mrs. Robert B. Spence fell on sleep, after a long continued sickness. During her entire suffering she was resigned, patient, trustful, and her last end was beautiful.

Mrs. Spence was the fourth daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Martyn Summerbell, her maiden name being Miss Laura Summerbell. She died in her 33rd year. Mrs. Spence was a universal favorite, of amiable disposition, whose chief characteristic was forgetfulness of her own comfort in her inclination to help everybody else. In the hospital during her fatal illness the nurses were perfectly devoted to her, going out of their way to show her their affection. But the hour had struck for her to go home, and her precious life went out in calm confidence and serene hope.

Her father was at the Executive Committee Meeting of the Federated Churches in America, in session at Baltimore, when she breathed her last. He was summoned by wire from the council hall of religious statesmanship, where he was representing his church, to attend in his own home the obsequies of his devoted daughter. She was laid to rest December 6th in Lake-mont, N. Y.

The bereaved and sorrowing ones will have the heartfelt prayers and sympathy of their host of friends in this hour of testing, whence faith will grow stronger and Heaven take a new charm because another loved one is there. W. A. H.

Murray

Eliza Murray, better known as "Aunt Lineu" was born February 24, 1829, and died December 1, 1913. Age 74 years 9 months and 7 days. Her maiden name was Eliza McIntyre. She was united in marriage to Jerry M. Murray February 25, 1857. To this union were born eleven children, six boys and five girls. The husband and three of the children preceded the mother to the spirit land.

Sister Murray professed faith in Christ when only a small girl and has always been faithful to her church. She joined the church at Bethlehem immediately after conversion where she remained until the organization of Berea (Alamance). Here she united with this church remaining faithful unto death.

Aunt Lina loved her church and would often shout God's praise at the regular monthly service or in her home. She lived her religion every day.

She leaves behind eight children, four sons and four daughters, three brothers, 39 grandchildren, 17 great-grandchildren and a great host of friends who may in their sorrow remember well the life of the noble Christian mother as an example.

The funeral services were held in Bethlehem church, conducted by this writer, assisted by Rev. L. I. Cox, her former pastor, and her remains laid to rest beside her husband who preceded her to the grave.

J. V. KNIGHT.

Croak

Whereas, it hath pleased our heavenly Father to take from our midst Mrs. Jennie Croak, who was one of the charter members of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Suffolk Christian Church; and, whereas, she was a faithful and consistent Christian, who, in spite of great physical affliction, was greatly interested in all the work of our Society, therefore be it resolved:

First—That we record our great appreciation of her life and deep interest in our work.

Second—That we express our appreciation of her devotion to the cause of Christ, which she manifested in uniting with a Society, and keeping up her dues, when unable to attend any of the meetings.

Third—That we commend her example to those more able to work for the Master, and that we all strive to do what we can for the Kingdom.

4. That we express our deepest sympathy to the family of the deceased, and pray for our Father's blessing to be upon them.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be entered upon the records of the Society, a copy sent to the bereaved family, and a copy sent to the Christian Sun for publication.

MRS. I. W. JOHNSON,
MRS. W. J. KENDRICK,
MRS. W. H. ANDREWS,
Committee.

BAD COLDS

Some colds are worse than others, but they are all bad. Let your doctor decide the medicine. If he orders Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, remember we have been making it for 75 years.

J. C. Ayer Co.,
Lowell, Mass.

Guaranteed to be the best constructed, the longest lived and the nearest perfect Huller made.

We manufacture STAR PEA HULLERS with hand and power feeders for hand and engine power. One and two-horse; single and double row Fertilizer Distributors. Single row one-horse stable manure spreaders. The J. M. B. No. 20 cotton and corn plow stocks, with steel beams warranted for five years.

Write for cuts and prices. Our proposition means more profit for you whether you are user or dealer.

STAR PEA MACHINE CO., Inc.,
ABERDEEN, N. C.

Dozen Field Grown
ROSES $2.50

Delivered prepaid to your door when you send cash with the order.

SELECT YOUR COLORS

We will send you a good assortment, sure to please you, of hardy roses ready to bloom.

Our catalogue is worth having. It tells of real Southern Grown Plants, Fruits and Ornamentals, and it is just about the best thing of the kind, because it is not "professional." We tell you just what we have and just what can be expected. We want your orders and we intend, you know, to gain your free confidence by right treatment. We deal direct with you and we save you big agents' fees. Write for that catalogue, please.

HOWARD NURSERY CO.
Box 206, Stovall, Granville Co., N. C.

TRIAL BOX FREE

Do you suffer with
Headache or Neuralgia

One trial of Megrimine is sufficient—your suffering will cease.
For over a quarter of a century

ME-GRIM-INE

Has been a Godsend to victims of all forms of headache and neuralgia. Write at once for a trial box without cost

The Dr. Whitehall Megrimine Co.
N. Lafayette St., South Bend, Ind.

THIS means big and little tents and we make all kinds. A thousand satisfied users testify to their quality. Let us make you a quotation. No trouble at all.

M. D. & H. L. SMITH COMPANY
Atlanta, Ga. Dalton, Ga.

XUM
FOR HEADACHE
"HASN'T FAILED YET"

Dr. Blosser's
Catarrh Remedy.

Trial Package Mailed Free to Any Sufferer.

If you have catarrh of the head, nose, throat; if catarrh has affected your hearing; if you sneeze, hawk or spit; if you take one cold after another; if your head feels stopped up; you should try this Remedy discovered by Dr. Blosser, who has made a specialty of treating catarrh for over thirty-nine years.

This Remedy is composed of herbs, flowers and seeds possessing healing medicinal properties; contains no tobacco, is not injurious or habit-forming; is pleasant to use and perfectly harmless to man, woman or child.

Catarrhal germs are carried into the head, nose and throat with the air you breathe—just so the warm medicated smoke-vapor is carried with the breath, applying the medicine directly to the diseased parts. If you have tried the usual methods, such as sprays, douches, salves, inhalers and the stomach-ruining "constitutional" medicines, you will readily see the superiority of this Smoking Remedy.

Simply send your name and address to Dr. J. W. Blosser, 100 Walton St., Atlanta, Ga., and he will send you a free package containing samples of the Remedy for smoking in a pipe and made into cigarettes, together with an illustrated booklet which goes thoroughly into the subject of catarrh. He will send by mail, for one dollar, enough of the medicine to last about one month.

Your Money Will Earn 6%

With absolute safety if invested in Guaranteed Gold Bonds secured by First Mortgage on North Carolina Real Estate worth twice amount bonds issued against it. Bonds due one year after. Principal and Interest guaranteed Interest payable semi-annually. Derominations $100.00 up. Ten Years in business without loss of a penny for any patron.

Write for free booklet.

PIEDMONT TRUST CO.
Burlington, N. C.

MY MAMMA USES "MOTHER'S JOY" FOR CROUP NEVER FAILS TO RELIEVE PRELIMINARY

MOTHER'S JOY & COLDS

TRICE'S SALVE

GUARANTEED BY GOOSE GREASE CO.
GREENSBORO, N. C.

ARE THEY WEAK OR PAINFUL?

Do your lungs ever bleed?
Do you have night sweats?
Have you pains in chest and sides?
Do you spit yellow and black matter?
Are you continually hawking and coughing?
Do you have pains under your shoulder blades?
These are Regarded Symptoms of Lung Trouble and

CONSUMPTION

You should take immediate steps to check the progress of these symptoms. The longer you allow them to advance and develop, the more deep seated and serious your condition becomes.

We Stand Ready to Prove to You absolutely, that Lung Germine, the German Treatment, has cured completely and permanently case after case of Consumption (Tuberculosis), Chronic Bronchitis, Catarrh of the Lungs, Catarrh of the Bronchial Tubes and other lung troubles. Many sufferers who had lost all hope and who had been given up by physicians have been permanently cured by Lung Germine. If your lungs are merely weak and the disease has not yet manifested itself, you can prevent its development, you can build up your lungs and system to their normal strength and capacity. Lung Germine has cured advanced Consumption, and the patients remain strong and in splendid health today.

Let Us Send You the Proof--Proof that will Convince any Judge or Jury on Earth

We will gladly send you the proof of many remarkable cures, also a FREE TRIAL of Lung Germine together with our new 40-page book (in colors) on the treatment and care of consumption and lung trouble.

JUST SEND YOUR NAME
LUNG GERMINES CO. 803 Rae Block, JACKSON, MICH.

ECONOMY HELPED BY THIS INSTITUTION

Greensboro is fortunate in having one of the best equipped and wisest handled laundries in the United States.

The Columbia Laundry of the city is not only a place where clothing is washed, but is also a place where the very best French dry cleaning is done scientifically, with a laboratory for analyzing all sorts of spots in clothing and restoring to its original color, and where dyeing is done after the most approved methods.

It is remarkable what success attends the renovation of an old suit, or an old skirt, by these people. They have carried the process of freshening up clothing to such a state, that, while of course it is not new, and does not look exactly like new, it is sometimes difficult to recognize their dyed or cleaned garments from absolutely new clothing.

People who are of an economical frame of mind have found that the Columbia Laundry can do more for them than any other concern not so well equipped, and have found that the courteous treatment and prompt attention to business of this laundry has gone a long way towards making it easy to do business with them.

All that is required is that a suit be sent in by parcel post, and the laundry informed of what is to be done. It will then be sent out by parcel post prepaid within a week's time, thoroughly cleaned, or well dyed, with all repairs made, and in the very best of order. This is a great boon to people who live at a distance from the tailor. All that they need do is to call the rural free delivery man and give him the package, then Uncle Sam's Mail takes the package and brings it back to the customer properly attended to.

Every one who is interested in keeping clothing right up to the very best possible appearance should write the Columbia Laundry, 106 Fayetteville St., Greensboro, N. C., for their price list and for their literature showing just what they can do. Ad.

CABBAGE PLANTS FOR SALE

Frost Proof Cabbage Plants now ready to ship. Very fine plants, and frost-proof because they are frost-tested. Raised in the open in a cold section, they will stand the frosts and freezes better than plants from the Sea Islands. Leading varieties. $1.25 per 1,000, 5,000 for $5.00. Special prices on large orders. Order blank and cultural points if desired.

HIGH CREST TRUCK FARM,
G. L. B. Penny, Prop.
"The Tar Heel Plant Man,"
Raleigh, N. C., R. F. D. 1.

A "Society for the Instruction of Eugenics" recently founded in New York already has two hundred members.

La Grippe

25c and 50c, and Tablets 25c

and Bad Colds are caused by germs. For Quick relief take The Giant Grip Germ Killer

Johnson's Tonic

"Just Like New"

That is what they all say about the ladies' and gentlemen's wearing apparel, the most delicate fabrics, household draperies, portieres, blankets, etc., that are cleaned by our French process.

Moreover, there is nothing to excel our skillful dyeing. We secure uniformity of color and good finish and match colors. The process of dyeing we use does not injure the daintiest fabrics.

We Dye the Most Delicate Shades.

Write to us and get our booklet. It costs you nothing, and it shows the short cut to economy, real money saving. Send a postcard with your name on it, and we will send the book.

COLUMBIA LAUNDRY COMPANY,
106 Fayetteville Street, Greensboro, North Carolina

This Book Will Be a Real Help to the Tree Planter

This new edition of Lindley's Catalogue contains eighty pages of revised and rewritten planting directions. By word and by picture it shows you how to plant "Trees that Produce Results."

Beginning with ornamentals for home planting, it gives simple suggestions for using shade trees, shrubs and vines, and shows specimen pictures of the most useful kinds.

Fruits for the South Are Told About in This Book.

We have tried to list only the best fruit trees for the Southern planter, and are sure that we have succeeded. Some of the good Apples are Bonum, Delicious, Winesap, Stayman, York Imperial, Arkansas M. B. Twig. These are only a few we offer—get the catalogue and see the full list. You won't make any mistake if you plant apple trees—there isn't any danger of a surplus of fruit, and the price for first quality fruit is always high. Bonums this fall sold at $5.50 and $6 a barrel.

Send Today for a Free Copy.

You will find it the best tree planter's book printed this year. It's just full of facts about "Trees that Produce Results."

J. VAN LINDLEY NURSERY CO.,
Box 207, Pomona, N. C.

Subscribe to The Christian Sun

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., DECEMBER 17, 1913

NO. 51

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Moving Pictures and Moving Men

Last year the people of this country spent 6,380,000,000 nickels in seeing moving picture shows. That means $319,000,000 for this form of amusement. We gave $14,942,523 for foreign missions—over twenty-one times as much for moving pictures for amusement as for moving men for Christ and salvation. We have said much about missions, but we have hardly begun to realize what we can do and must do for missions, if we really mean business.

Miracles Continue

In the year 1900, just thirteen years ago, China wanted to destroy every Christian in her land, and seemed, for a season, bent on doing so. Now China's Ambassador to Germany, and one of her most distinguished diplomats, is a Christian, Dr. W. W. Yen, the son of a Chinese Christian preacher, Rev. Y. K. Yen. God is making good His word delivered first through His servant David: "Ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession."

Sanitation and Salvation

Sanitation is all right. It makes living better, and the mind freer, and the heart gladder, and life longer. But sanitation is not salvation. The city of Washington boasts having torn down three hundred and fifteen buildings this year because they were unsanitary, and the city is trying to clean up. One wonders how many places of drunkenness and vice and sin and shame and crime the city has razed to the ground? These are they which make a city dangerous and deadly to live in, and ought to be looked after. You cannot clean up a home, nor a city, with new timbers and white wash.

Regarding the Least

There are many words spoken and written which are right and wholesome if properly put. But a small deviation throws all out of order. The man who wrote the notice and hung it up on his front door, "Knock the Door-bell Out of Order," meant well, and wanted to save others and his family some annoyance; but he brought trouble to all when the first passing school boy who could take in the situation literally obeyed the sign posted. Only a small comma left out, and the damage which the magistrate would not exact from the boy, was on the owner of the house only. A front door well smashed to pieces may seem a heavy penalty for leaving out a comma, but greater penalties than that have been inflicted for offenses not as great. "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much."

A Drop in Politics

Several men of opposing and contending political factions entered an elevator in a Chicago building recently and so warm did the discussion wax and so menacing was the gesticulation that the elevator boy was crowded from his position, lost control of the machine, and the whole load fell six stories. Fortunately there were no fatalities, though there was a general shaking up and much personal inconvenience from bruises, sprains, and pains. It is easy for men to become so engrossed in ambitious schemes and worldly pursuits as to forget or ignore altogether their own safety and security. Our Savior while on earth came in contact with such men, and from His great wisdom propounded the question (Matt. 16: 26): "What is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?"

Living Religion

The papers report that Hebrew children of the East Side, New York, are protesting against being compelled to sing songs embodying praise to God, and recognition of Jesus as Savior. The reason for the protest was presented by one of the little girls, speaking for her comrades, "We don't go in for any religion, for we don't know where we go when we die." This girl not only represented her comrades in this speech, but she represented her parents and a great many other people. Religion is looked upon by very many as a sort of savings bank account, to be drawn out at the last moment, and used under constraint of final necessity. The religion of Christianity is life, and nothing on earth or under heaven does so much to make this present life so sweet and happy and bearable as a knowledge of the vital presence of Him whom these deluded children would be rid of. Christianity is spirit after death, religion is needful for this present and is life. Whatever may be the prospect after death, religion is needful for this present world.

Cheap Notoriety

Some notoriety is not cheap; it comes at the cost of brain and energy and toil and sacrifice. But not all. Some notoriety is very cheap, and public speakers, all too often ministers of the gospel, seek and obtain notoriety in a most silly and senseless manner. Recently a clergyman, addressing a company of women who desired suffrage, used these words: "The modern home is the most detestable institution ever imagined. The sooner a wife understands that the washtub and the cooking range are not the sole aims of her existence, the better it will be for the emancipation of women." If that clergyman were to seek the world over, we doubt if he could find a woman who would say that the washtub and the cooking range were the sole aims of her existence. He would find many at the washtub and the cooking range as a part of their daily task, just as he would find many a man at the plow or the forge, as a means of earning their daily bread, and which daily task was neither dread nor drudgery, but an honest and praiseworthy method of making the earth wholesome and life agreeable. Seeking notoriety by cheap method is a poor performance, and often costs society much, because there are always some to believe what a public speaker utters. Many need to bear in mind (Matthew 12:36): "Every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give an account thereof in the day of judgment."

Wherein Foreign Missions Pay

There is not a line of legitimate industry in the United States that is not financially benefitted by missions. There never has been an investment that paid better return in dollars and dimes than the meager sums given to foreign missions. Let the man who would oppose missions because it costs too much, or takes the money from home, bear in mind these salient facts: The missionary opened up Japan to trade, commerce, improvement and progress—an immense advantage in trade to our country. The export trade of the United States to Asiatic countries was almost nothing before the missionary taught the Asiatics who we were and what we had. Our exports to Asiatic countries in 1903 was $58,000,000. In 1905 it was about $127,000,000 and it is increasing by leaps and bounds. The missionary opened up the way for this trade and made it possible. Missionaries were the first to give the world any idea of the interior of Africa and have given more accurate and valuable knowledge about Africa than all other agencies combined. The trade with the Fiji Islands is now enormous and amounts to more in one year than all that has been spent in fifty years in Christianizing them. All the museums of the world and the libraries and the colleges have been benefitted enormously by the findings and discoveries and information by the missionaries. Missionaries have translated the Bible into seven-tenths of the languages of the world, and increased the world's demand for paper, print, and allied industries. Our heavenly Father has seen to it that men should lose nothing, but should gain, in carrying forward His work in the world.

GOD'S WAY

It was a union where there was unity; a home and not a house. Law and life and love and liberty were dominating factors in that home. The presence of God was there and angels in invisible form hovered about the fireside while the father and mother taught the little ones of a Savior's love. But affliction came into that home, and death bore away the husband. A link from the circle had taken and the mother left to guard the wolf from the door. This case is not a singular one, it is only a sample of God's dealings with His people. Why so averse to our way of thinking, we cannot tell. "God works in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform."

C. B. RIDDLE.

EDITORIAL

ENVY

About three-fourths of the misery, one-half of the sin, and one-fourth of the crime of this world is caused by envy. There is a saying attributed to President Rutherford B. Hayes to the effect that "Every time you appoint a man to public office you make nine enemies and one ingrate." The nine were the applicants who could not be appointed, and were ever afterwards the President's enemies, not because he had harmed them, but because in their own estimation they were so much better fitted for the job than the one appointed that they could never forgive the President for making such a blunder. They were enemies of the fellow who got the job.

In the parable of the laborers whom the householder sent into the vineyard to work, beginning at any and all hours of the day, and then paying each the same (Matt. 20:1-16), those who went in early in the morning were angry, not because they failed to receive that which was promised them, but because others who came late received as much as they did. They were not angry at what they received, but because of what others received. And this is the rub in life. We grow angry at what others get. The sound of our murmuring, our grievances, and complaints, is not the little or much we receive, but that which others get with whom we choose to compare ourselves.

A person may make himself unhappy whenever he will. He has only to compare himself, his condition, his surroundings, his income, not with his needs, comforts, or benefits, but with what others, who have surpassed him, have acquired or do receive. We often make ourselves unhappy and disagreeable, not because of the inconveniences from which we suffer, nor the lack of comforts which we enjoy, but because of the many benefits and blessings and advantages which those about us seem to enjoy.

Envy is at bottom a species of covetousness, and the divine and eternal command was given, "Thou shalt not covet" (Ex. 20:17).

When Paul made his immortal charge to the elders at Ephesus, he must have felt a clear conscience and a buoyant spirit when he said (Acts 20:33): "I have coveted no man's silver, or gold, or apparel."

CONGRESS AND THE CHURCH

We of this country should bear in mind that our law makers are not all bad, and that our National Congress has men of heart and soul who are just as anxious that the church should prosper and righteousness prevail as men in the pulpit.

There lies before me now what seems to me to be both a remarkable utterance and a no less remarkable publication. The utterance is entitled, "Why I Attend Church," and is taken from the Congressional Record of the recent Congress. On Friday, August 8, 1913, the Honorable Scott Ferris, Congressman from the Fifth Oklahoma District, said, in the House of Representatives:

"Mr. Speaker, I have just read in Leslie's Illustrated Weekly of August 7, an article by my colleague in Congress from Oklahoma, Hon. Claude Weaver, which is well worthy of space in the Congressional Record of this Congress.

"The article teems with brilliancy, pathos, and a devotion to the church of God. It deserves to be read and referred to in every church and Sunday school in the United States.

"I ask unanimous consent, Mr. Speaker, to incorporate it in the Congressional Record, that it may there be preserved for those who come after us.

"It is sweet on a Summer's morning, when the air is a-quiver with the love songs of the birds and fragrant with the odor of the rose's bloom, to hear the music of the church bells, an invitation to the world-weary to enter God's temple and find peace, because the instinct of worship is in the heart of man and the church is the temple of the living God.

"I go to church because I find peace there, that peace which DeQuincy described as a resting from human labors, a Sabbath of repose, a respite granted from the secret burdens of the heart, as if I stood at a distance and aloof from the uproar of life; as if the tumult and fever and strife were suspended; as if there brooded over me a dovelike and halcyon calm.

"I go to church because I love the music that I hear there, the mighty roll of the great organ, singled with the marvelous symphonies of that divine stringed instrument, the human voice, untwisting all the chains that tie the hidden soul of harmony.

"I go to church because I delight to hear the teachings of the preacher, whose soul is dedicated to God, whose field is as wide as God's universe, whose theme is the destiny of man, and whose words are the oracles of Fate. Marvelous is the spell of the preacher to whom God has given genius and consecration and the power of illustration drawn from the old, sacred, immortal Book, and from the miracles of nature, no less revealed in the crimson-tipped flower turned up by the plowshare of Robert Burns upon the soil of Ayr than in the long reaches of the star-girt skies.

"I go to church because 'the way is dark and I am far from home,' and because the church is the polar star to light my pathway in the rayless night.

"I go to church because the church ministers not only to the spiritual but also to the material needs of life, and because it is there that the charities that soothe and heal and bless are scattered at the feet of man like flowers.

"I go to church because in that atmosphere vice and crime wither and die.

"I go to church because I hear the teachings of the philosophy of Jesus, the incomparable man; and if you say His teaching is philosophy and not religion and that He was a man and not a God, then the philosophy of that man has redeemed the world from savagery and blessed mankind with Christian civilization, and, to my mind, it is a thing worth while to hear.

"I go to church because I find there consolation and hope; because I see there the dawn and not the sunset; and if it is better for man, if the hope is baseless and the vision but an elusive phantom, to cherish a dream so glorious and beautiful than to be weighted down an derushed with the quarried mountains of a world without hope and without God."

But of the publication, which is no less significant. A distinguished banker of St. Louis, President Tom Randolph of the Bank of Commerce, and one of the most prominent financiers and bankers in the United States, seeing this in the Congressional Record, clipped it and sent a copy to his pastor, Randolph being a devoted church member and a regular attendant at church. In some way Financial America, a paper devoted solely to finance, got hold of Mr. Randolph's letter to his pastor and prints that and all the above from the Record. And this editor is under obligation to a distinguished banker and financier for putting a copy of this in our hands, which we pass on to our readers with the desire that they may realize that law makers and financiers, professions, classes, lawyers, doctors, all are interested in the message that the church has to give when that message is given in clear and unmistakable note. The only hope of this world is the Church, that is, the power of God unto salvation, proclaimed by the church, and great men, as well as small, will come, if they have not already come, to realize that fact.

A BOOK FOR PASTORS

We have before us a "Pastor's Ideal Funeral Book," containing suitable scripture selections, topics, texts, and outlines, suggestive themes, prayers, quotations, ceremonies, and forms of service for funerals. The author is Rev. Arthur H. DeLong, and the publishers are Eaton and Mains, New York. The book is bound in morocco, with gold side title and gilt edges, and is plainly printed on a fine quality of white paper. It strikes us as being the most suitable book for pastors in conducting funerals we have seen anywhere in print. The book is divided into sections, Funerals of a Child, Funeral of a Young Person, Funeral of a Person in Middle Life, Funeral of an Aged Person, with Scripture Selections, Topics, Texts and Outlines, Suggestive Themes and Texts, a Prayer, Quotations and Illustrations for each section.

It also has other pages devoted to Funeral Etiquette, especially helpful to young ministers, and Forms of Service. One can find in the book a suitable text, outline, scripture reading and prayer for almost any occasion or condition under which one would be called upon to conduct a funeral. It is of convenient size and shape, and of neat and durable appearance. The price is 80 cents net, and we can furnish the volume to any minister desiring it at the price named, or send the book upon approval after thorough examination.

We regard it as fully up to what it claims to be—an ideal funeral book.

RECORDS WANTED

Rev. W. E. McClenny, Sunbury, N. C., wishes to find the record of the Southern Christian Association, also the record of the North Carolina Conference up to the time it was merged with the North Carolina and Virginia Conference in 1854. Brother McClenny has a copy of all the North Carolina and Virginia Conferences up to the Civil War. Anyone who can give the desired information would confer a great favor.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—Rev. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., has been in a meeting, since Tuesday last, at Timber Mountain.

—Rev. J. W. Wellons, D. D., has a very timely article this week on "Family Prayer." It is worthy the consideration of parents.

—The postmaster at Philadelphia ordered 90,230,000 postage stamps valued at $1,696,000 in preparation against Christmas demands.

—After four days of fighting at Tampico, Mexico, the constitutionalists were repulsed by the federals, the number of fatalities from the long continued battle not being given.

—Rev. W. H. Garman and our Lambert's Point brethren are much rejoiced, and they have a right to be, since the great results achieved lately in building and so successfully dedicating their splendid house of worship.

—Rev. W. L. Wells is liking his work at Durham, and the outlook for growth and development there Bro. Wells regards as favorable. The Thanksgiving offering was $20.00. The church has decided to use the Duplex envelope system of collections.

—We regret that THE SUN was mailed late last week. Unavoidable circumstances, which we trust will not recur, caused the delay. We are doing our best to mail early in the week, and will come to that all right.

—Revs. H. E. Rountree, J. S. Carden, P. T. Klapp, and L. I. Cox are among those sending in new subscribers from their fields the past week. Rev. P. T. Klapp has secured more than half the number allotted to his field.

—Mrs. W. W. Staley, Franklinton, N. C., was reported worse Sunday, but a note from Dr. Staley Monday evening stated that she was resting some easier. Her hosts of friends will hope and pray for the best.

—We are sending out, on order, many nice Bibles as Christmas presents. We furnish the very best—in binding, paper, and print, at prices better than can be had from the publishers or the book stores. Let us have your orders.

—Gifts to Foreign Missions are increasing in the United States, and quite rapidly. In 1907 the total was $8,449,693; in 1909, $10,086,216; in 1911, $11,030,715; in 1912, $14,942,523. The expectation is that 1913 will show a still greater increase.

—Rev. Wm. Hayne Leavell, D. D., a Presbyterian pastor of great reputation, has been appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Guatemala. It is believed that the influence of a strong Christian gentleman will be a mighty factor in the progress of Guatemala.

—The Durham church has decided to use the Duplex envelope. We congratulate the church on this advanced step. We are of opinion there is nothing to compare with the Duplex as a biblical system of financing a church. It has proven eminently successful. THE CHRISTIAN SUN can supply the envelopes and entire outfit on demand.

—The mania for speed by drunken and reckless chauffeurs in the city of New York has resulted in such wholesale death to pedestrians that the police had to get busy, and on December 1st 398 persons were before police courts charged with exceeding the speed limit. Many were fined, some were sent to jail; but where those went who were run down and killed is not stated.

—Last Sunday Mrs. W. A. Harper organized a Women's Missionary Society at Shallow Ford church, and a Willing Workers' and Young Girl's Missionary Societies at Elon College. Our good women are waking up on the subject of missions, and almost every Sunday a missionary society is organized or a mission study class is organized.

—We have on hand the Mite Boxes for Women's Missionary Societies, or rather, to be used in congregations where there are no societies. If a society has not been organized in a church the Mite Boxes can be used and to great advantage, even to the raising of quite an amount of missionary money. Send for the Mite Boxes—a penny each postpaid, or 75 cents per hundred postpaid.

—"I thought I loved my church well enough before hearing Dr. Kendall's great sermon on The Why of the Christian Church, but I love my church better since, and I am anxious for all our members to read that sermon," writes an intelligent correspondent who attended the N. C. and Va. Conference. We are pleased that this sermon is to be printed in tract form for free distribution. As soon as they are ready announcement will be made in THE SUN.

—Mrs. Robert Williams, 709 Walker Ave., Greensboro, N. C., has been appointed Superintendent of Young People's Missionary Societies of the N. C. and Va. Conference. She will be glad to furnish report blanks to any society in the Conference, and earnestly requests the societies in the Conference to report to her. Mrs. Williams is one of our most devoted women workers in the missionary cause, and may be depended upon to do her work well.

—Either because of his own literary taste and bent of mind, or because he was best acquainted with men of letters, President Wilson has sent not a few authors and publishers to represent our government in foreign capitals: Walter H. Page, editor, author and publisher, to the Court of St. James; Thos. Nelson Page, the noted novelist, to Rome; Paul S. Reinsch, from a chair in the University of Wisconsin, to China; Henry Van Dyke, poet, preacher and essayist, to the Netherlands; and Brand Whitlock, novelist and "golden rule" Mayor of Toledo, (the son of a preacher), to Belgium. Possibly others of like refinement and culture have been sent to other foreign ports.

OUR CAMPAIGN FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS

As is known by many SUN readers, we are in a campaign for 1,000 new subscribers by April 1. The Conferences have practically pledged this number, and we are endeavoring to give every minister credit for every subscription sent in, so that we may know just what each and all are doing, and how the work goes. If there are any corrections to be made from time to time, we shall appreciate the same, as we desire that every one shall have due credit for work done. To date we have received the following:

Rev. L. I. Cox, Elon College, N. C.
 Rimar Freeman Ether, N. C.
 Mrs. W. A. Allen Okeewemee, N. C.
 Mrs. Ada Allen Alreds, N. C.
 Daniel Ward Alreds, N. C.
 Mrs. C. A. Needham Alreds, N. C.
 M. W. Freeman Alreds, N. C.
 J. T. Freeman Alreds, N. C.
 K. W. Moore Alreds, N. C.
 Lee Cashion Moneure, N. C., R. 1
 Jane Stewart Liberty, N. C.
 W. O. Carter Liberty, N. C.
 T. E. Fogleman Liberty, N. C.
 J. H. Fogleman Liberty, N. C.
 F. H. Pickard Liberty, N. C.
 Irene Brame Summerfield, N. C., R. 1
 C. C. Griffin Summerfield, N. C., R. 1
 S. A. Harris Wentworth, N. C., R. 1
 J. W. Brame Wentworth, N. C., R. 1
 Eva Gunn Wentworth, N. C., R. 1
 Mollie Sharpe Summerfield, N. C.
 Ed. R. Roscoe Reidsville, N. C.
 Mrs. A. G. Fagg Box 96, Reidsville, N. C.
 Mrs. P. C. Apple Reidsville, N. C.
 Geo. D. Lambeth Reidsville, N. C.
 G. M. Ross Wentworth, N. C., R. 1
Rev. A. N. McAbee, Barnesville, Ga., R. 1
 T. W. Barber Barnesville, Ga., R. 1

Rev. P. T. Klapp
 T. W. Price, Mt. Bethel Church Summerfield, N. C.
 W. L. Cummings, Mt. Bethel Stokesdale, N. C.
 W. D. Lanier, Moore Union Sanford, N. C.
 B. F. Gunter Moneure, N. C.
 B. T. Buchanan R. 1, Moneure, N. C.
 Mrs. Elise Addor Keyser, N. C.
 T. R. Friddle R. 1, Summerfield, N. C.
Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va.
 W. T. Harris Suffolk, Va., R. 3
 G. C. Bray Suffolk, Va., R. 3
 W. T. Kilby Suffolk, Va., R. 3

Rev. B. J. Earp, Semora, N. C.
 C. G. Sharpe Goldston, N. C.
 G. B. Elkins Bear Creek, N. C.
 Miss Sank Hart Green, N. C.

Rev. W. G. Clements, Morrisville, N. C.
 M. B. Strowd, Oak Level Mebane, N. C.
 Ed. Smith Clayton, N. C.

Rev. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va.
 E. L. Daughtridge Franklin, Va.

D. W. Darden Franklin, Va.
 W. H. Jones Franklin, Va.

Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Cardenas, N. C.
 Mary J. Griffis Varina, N. C.
 T. C. Buchanan Apex, N. C., R. 2
 C. A. Carpenter Cary, N. C., R. 1
 M. D. Smith Cary, N. C., R. 1
 Richard H. Smith Raleigh, N. C., R. 6
 J. R. Cross Raleigh, N. C., R. 1

Rev. R. F. Brown, Elon College, N. C.
 C. F. Smith R. 1, Seagrove, N. C.

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C.
 Jno. T. Pittman Elon College, N. C.
 Mrs. J. H. Pritchett Elon College, N. C.

Rev. H. E. Rountree, Greensboro, N. C.
 Miss Pearl Jones 919 Ashboro St., Greensboro, N. C.
 Miss Effie Lowe 763 Chestnut St., Greensboro, N. C.
 Mrs. P. E. Tucker R. 2, Kernersville, N. C.
 S. A. Tucker Greensboro, N. C.

Rev. I. W. Johnson, Suffolk, Va.
 J. P. Duke Suffolk, Va.
 C. C. Skinner Holland, Va., R. 2
 Harry Bradshaw Holland, Va., R. 2

Rev. Herbert Scholz, Macon, N. C.
 Mrs. W. G. Wall Elams, Warren Co., N. C.

Rev. W. C. Wicker, Elon College, N. C.
 D. C. Huckabee Revolution, Greensboro, N. C.
 B. H. Angel Revolution, Greensboro, N. C.
 W. T. Rich R. 7, Greensboro, N. C.

Rev. C. C. Peel, Elon College, N. C.
 A. Beal R. 4, Burlington, N. C.
 Mrs. J. O. Sutton Lillington, N. C.
 T. M. Mason Morrisville, N. C., R. 1

Rev. A. T. Banks, Henderson, N. C.
 T. C. Lindsay Chapel Hill, N. C.

Rev. G. R. Underwood, Sanford, N. C.
 Mr. Fred Ray Sanford, N. C.
 J. T. Harrington Sanford, N. C.

OUR QUESTION BOX

If there are biblical questions of real worth and interest about which you are puzzled, address same to W. Care Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C., and the answer will be given in this department by Rev. W. C. Wicker, D. D., a teacher of Theology in Elon College.

The following question has been submitted: Explain: "And Joshua said, Why hast thou troubled us? The Lord shall trouble thee this day. And all Israel stoned him with stones, and burned them with fire, after they had stoned them with stones."—Josh. 7:25.

This question refers to the explanation of what "them" includes. The English is a true translation of the Hebrew. The Hebrew word for "them" is masculine, which would lead us to believe it referred to persons, including things in this case. Lange's Commentary says, "He is now, together with the articles appropriated by him, as well as his whole property, and also all his sons and daughters, given up to destruction." Some commentators think that the sons and daughters were brought into the valley of Achor as spectators, but others think that they were punished by destruction because they were guilty of participation in their father's sin. God visits the sins of the fathers on the children. Ex. 20:5. Acts 5:1-11.

The Greek translation from the Septuagint is: "And Joshua said to Achan, Why hast thou troubled us? The Lord shall trouble thee from this day, and all Israel stoned him."

The translation from the Latin Vulgate is: "Where Joshua said; because thou hast troubled us, the Lord shall trouble thee this day. And all Israel stoned him; and all (things) that he had were consumed by fire."

It is evident that the Greek translators avoided the difficulty by leaving out the last clause, not using the plural pronoun. The Latin would lead us to think that Achan's material possessions alone were included, but the original Hebrew favors Lange's interpretation.

If we meet with unkindness and contempt from the world, we remember the trials and the contempt which our blessed Savior suffered in it.—Sel.

THE MAKING OF MEN

A SERMON BY A LAYMAN

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

"What a piece of work is man! how noble in reason! how infinite in faculty! In form and moving how express and admirable! In action how like an angel! In apprehension how like a god! The beauty of the world! The paragon of animals!"—Hamlet, Act II, Scene II, 324-329.

HE crowning work of creation was the making of man. In Genesis 1:20, God said in his final act of creation, Let us make man. The crowning work of education is the same. The Primary School, the Grammar School, the High School, the College, the University, the Technical School,—all of them have their justification for being and lodge their claim for support in keeping with this purpose, and merit praise or condemnation as they further or retard its process. It is a most difficult task—this of the making of men. No machine can do it; no ordinary mechanic can engage in it with success. It is the most difficult work in the world. And to its accomplishment not only education, but every department of life makes its prime contribution. To this end every industry, every social organization, every religious brotherhood, must contribute, or stand condemned before the tribunal of human progress. To this end the world was created and to this end it now devotes its multitudinous energies. When this work shall have been wrought with such excellence of workmanship as to meet the high expectations of our Heavenly Father for man, the world will cease and the Church be caught up in the air with her Bridegroom, Christ the great Head of the Church.

But the making of men, like the making of any other product, is conditioned by the ideal set before the workmen. And with every generation, sometimes even in shorter time, the ideal changes. It is easy to look back over the past and discern how the ideal man fashioned the educational system of each period, and particularly is it easy to detect the power of this ideal for the great races whose individuality has stamped itself on the world's course of events. The Hebrews, for example, considered the ideal man to be a pious, virtuous seeker after the holiness commanded by Jehovah, and shaped their educational system accordingly. All their schools were Bible schools—what we today call Sunday schools. The Spartans considered that the ideal man should be a splendid specimen of physical manhood—superior to any misfortune and equal to any hardship. Their educational system was devoted to that end and Spartan bravery, the result of it, has remained a proverb to this day. The Romans regarded the ideal man as the equivalent of the ideal citizen. To them religion was patriotism and their every institution was directed to the production of patriots. They became the law makers of the world because they knew best how to obey the laws they made, and because their schools taught them the laws of their Twelve Tables as the fundamental code of life and conduct. The Greeks, and particularly the Athenians, looked at the aesthetic element as the prime factor in the ideal man. Their educational system gave great space, therefore, to cultural studies, to music, both instrumental and vocal, to painting, to sculpture, to gymnastics, as the means of developing beautiful bodies, and even mathematics was studied and applied to that same end. And their works of art and particularly the statues of their divinities fashioned after their notion of the ideal human creature, some say reproductions of living Greeks, have ever since been the world's admiration for beauty and grace. The early Christians were so possessed with the beautiful thought of the second coming of Christ that they gave their attention to celestial citizenship to the neglect of terrestrial citizenship. Their education was shaped by their ideal, mystical as it was, and the saints it produced, though in monasteries and nunneries, were marvels of devotion and self-sacrifice for a noble cause. With the Renaissance came the ambition for scholarship, learning, intellectual culture. The ideal man was your man of giant intellect, of prodigious learning—and while occasionally it brought the book-worm, he was atoned for in the splendid array of great scholars that this ideal produced, men of energy as well as of learning, by whom the world greatly profited.

To define the ideal man of our own time is a far more difficult task. I am not willing to believe that this age regards the ideal man as the great financier, the man who has been able by energy or trickery to amass a fortune, provided that is all there is to him. For there would be but few who could be influenced by this ideal. Ours is the land of mammon, the land of dollars, but how pitifully few are the possessors of the fabulous wealth of our country! A score of men control twenty per cent. of our nation's entire wealth, and less than five per cent. of our population control more than ninety-five per cent. of all our possessions. Surely an ideal which excludes all but a mere handful of our millions of intelligent people cannot be adequate, if not democratic. Nor am I willing to believe that the educational reformers who now prate so loudly for the commercialization of our educational system as being the great desire of our people have read the signs of the times aright. Neither do I believe that these would-be reformers would inaugurate their policies, if they were given a chance, nor would the people tolerate them if they should be inaugurated. These reformers call for practical education, vocational training, specialization—and with none of these do I quarrel. But when they plead for the elimination of all cultural studies—all studies to give us kinship with the past and enable us to project ourselves into the future, in their endeavor to be strictly practical, even the surface thinker can depict under their philosophy only the crassest materialism—a materialism which would limit life to wealth-production and divest it of its essential human qualities. Vocational training, too, is all right, in its place. But its place, like specialization, is after the liberal education is completed and the chosen field of duty plain. Critics of democracy have always contended that it tends to pull the noblest men down to the level of the lowest, in its vain endeavor to treat all alike. The modern reformers in education certainly merit that opprobrium. Because statistics show that very few comparatively pass from the grammar school to the high school, and because those who fail so to do go into the trades and stores and work-shops, these prophets of the new educational propaganda readily conclude that the high school is fashioned on a wrong basis and that, were it made more practical, these great numbers would remain in it. They were never more mistaken. Those who leave are the children of parents without vision, who wish or sometimes unfortunately need the wages their children will bring, or they are children who despise school and prefer to work instead, or, worse still, to loaf or live a fast social life. A little investigation will reveal that the years closing the grammar grades and the minimum age permissible for child labor are the same, and this in itself should give the new light educational torch-bearers a clue to their problem and point the way to its solution.

They are, however, with singular blindness ignoring this great fact and in their endeavor to reach those whom they cannot reach, are throwing away their opportunity to help those who really wish help. In certain sections of our country there are vocational high schools alongside the educational high school, and the latter, after the glare of the first year or two is vanished, always enrolls more pupils. The same is true of the schools of Germany and of other countries where the two types of high school operate in open competition. Do the reformers know this? And is it for that reason that they wish to do away with the educational high school and put in its place the vocational one? If so, their triumph will be short-lived.

Further evidence that the present-day educational reformers are more concerned about pulling the highest type of man down rather than about lifting the lowest up to his type is found in their assumption that the schools should fit their pupils to fill their place in life, and then in providing instruction in manual arts and bookkeeping as satisfying that aim, with never a mention of the higher forms of social service, as represented by the professions. Is it not the State's duty to see to it that the means of education are provided as much for its professional men as for its artisans, and on the same terms? I do not conceive it to be the duty of the State to provide me my special training to be a carpenter or a brick mason or a bookkeeper and to deny you yours to be a lawyer or a school teacher or a doctor or a minister. I do not conceive it to be the duty of the State to provide either of us at its expense with our special training. Our public schools are not apprentice shops as the reformers would have you believe, but schools, and their business is not to produce an artisan nor a professional man, but to give their pupils that fundamental general education that will enable them with greater ease and rapidity and finer grasp to become either an artisan or a professional man, as each individual's bent may lead him to elect. And when the public schools undertake to depart from this sensible aim, they are meriting the opprobrium so often hurled at democracy—that it cannot produce the noblest type of citizen, but only the average type.

But to return to the conception of the ideal man in relation to education as he is viewed in our day, we observe that there are two conflicting notions current respecting him—one that he should get all the educational system can give him with or without religion as he may choose, the other that education without religion is worse than no education. The issue is plain between these two and every man who goes to school in our day must meet this issue and dispose of it. Our courts have frequently held that religious instruction cannot be given out of the Bible in our public school system, whether of the secondary or higher order, and experience has shown that it is not given apart from the Bible in them. Not only can religious instruction not be given in these schools, but the Bible cannot even be read in many of them. A proposed constitutional amendment in North Carolina allowed reading the Bible in the public schools, but it was defeated. And this is the aim in respect to religious instruction, of those who believe in the ideal man of the former type. They wish him to be educated, with religion left out, or rather in a non-religious atmosphere. Reason, however, teaches that there is no such thing as a non-religious atmosphere or a non-religious education. Religion is not a separate department in the curriculum: it is a spirit that pervades every study. It is impossible to teach without biasing those taught either for or against religion, and particularly is this true in those studies which involve ethical standards and ideals of life and conduct—such as philosophy, ethics, sociology, and political economy, history, psychology, literature and natural sciences. So that the ideal of non-religious education is unrealizable, unattainable. It leaves the individual to choose for himself from considerations outside the curriculum and, if he be religiously inclined, most often in opposition to the teaching the curriculum offers him. For while religion cannot be directly taught in the State schools and is not taught in the non-denominational or independent schools of this country, irreligion can be and frequently is taught in them.

The second ideal would certainly appear to be preferable—that the ideal man needs all that the educational system, pervaded with religious sentiment, can give him in order to best serve his fellowman. This ideal does not stand for sectarian religious instruction, but for the religious, Christian atmosphere under devout Christian teachers, with not a part but every one of them Christians, thus producing an atmosphere that predisposes every breather of it in the direction of the Christian life. And since the religious element is that which leavens the entire lump of man's nature, this type of College will produce the best type of man—the ideal man, the man imbued with the spirit of the Gospel, which is the spirit of humanitarianism, of helpful service to fellowman. The present-day ideal man is the man who can best serve his fellowman. It is undoubtedly the educated Christian man who can fulfill that ideal best, because no man is complete whose religious nature is undeveloped, and no incomplete man can serve his fellowman best.

The modern educational aim, then, when broadly and rightly interpreted is a composite of all aims that have preceded it. It contains elements of the desire of the Renaissance leaders for sound scholarship, of the Athenian love of culture and beauty in their relation to life, of the Roman devotion to the welfare of the State, of the Spartan ambition for a vigorous body, of the Hebrew striving to please God, and of the early Christian's anxious endeavor to prepare for celestial mansions, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. The student who comes to College as if on an excursion for recreation and pleasure viewing it as a sort of vacation season spent amid delightful surroundings, will not become your ideal man. He must give attention to scholarship. But scholarship is not all of College life. If so, the book-worm would be the ideal product, which he isn't. Attention also must be given to the aesthetic side of life and studies like music, art, expression, literature, philosophy, history, and the like must lend a halo of culture and refinement in order to the best results. Matthew Arnold defined culture as acquaintance with the best that has been said, done and thought in previous ages, and regarded such acquaintance as essential to correct conceptions of life and duty and adequate enjoyment of the high privilege of living. And he was right, but not entirely so, for life is more than culture, and some of the most cultured men have been the biggest oppressors of their fellows. Besides culture and besides scholarship, the ideal educated man of today needs respect for the rights of others and for the majesty of the law, such a devotion to law and the duties of citizenship as the old Roman education of the best days produced. Our civilization needs this ingredient and needs it sorely, and it is coming, coming particularly among College students who now respect each other's fundamental rights as they did not even a generation ago—and this is one of the most hopeful signs of our times, since college men make the sentiment of our country in large measure. Then the ideal educated man needs, must have, a vigorous body. This is a strenuous age, an age tense with nervous energy, pulsing with life, and exacting on all who essay to do its age tense with nervous energy, pulsing with life, and exacting on all who essay to do its work. A man with a weak body, in these stirring times, need not expect to attain any other than mediocre position of usefulness, no matter how brilliant his mind or devout his purpose. Therefore colleges provide, at great expense, the means of physical development, and insist that they be used, but not to the exclusion of scholarship, culture, and obedience to regulations needful in preparing for the duties of citizenship and helpful in the process of man-making. The ideal physical man is not the prize-fighter, nor the professional athlete, but your man who combines in Juvenal's fine phrase, "mens sana in corpore sano." But excellent as scholarship is, charming as culture is, beautiful as law-abiding patriotism is, necessary as a vigorous physical manhood is, needful as are all these, they are not enough. That which makes man man is that he is made in God's image, is that his is a divine nature, that he is destined to see Him as He is. In order to be a completely made man, he shall need to give heed in his preparation to his divine nature, to the cultivation of his divine attributes, that he may grow in greater likeness to his Father and be prepared to stand before His judgment throne unabashed. The old Hebrew was right in his anxiety to do the will of Jehovah and the early Christian was right in his endeavor to prepare for Heaven, for we shall need to do God's will in this life in order to inherit our mansion in the celestial city.

THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to the members and friends of Hobson Christian church for the generous "pounding" given to us recently. This expression, in such a substantial way, of esteem brings to our hearts much joy; and we received these helpful donations with grateful hearts. We hope to render more faithful service, as pastor in their midst, and pray that our Father's blessings may abide with these dear people.

I. W. JOHNSON AND WIFE.

INGRAM, VA.

I preached my farewell sermon to this church and congregation the second Sunday in November. This closed up a six years' pastorate of the most pleasant work, and during all these years the most pleasant relations existed between pastor and church. My resignation became necessary as I could not give the time necessary to the work here. The long distance I had to travel from the depot to church and back during the cold winter was too severe. I attain to its best till a pastor can locate in reach of this work on buggy. I have been trying to get a pastor to locate in reach of this work in Halifax County, Va., for three years. I wish to say that I never served a church with more ease in which there was a stronger growing spirit of missions than Ingram. I do not believe there is a church in the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference that is doing more real good work for missions according to real ability than Ingram. I know this is saying much, but I do not think too much.

This is a progressive church and an appreciative people. They are very attentive to the needs of their pastor. During all these years all the financial obligations have been met, and the pastor was never forgotten. At my last appointment a nice present of $15.00 in cash and a nice set of gold cuff buttons were presented by Sister R. L. Ingram, in behalf of the church, and that noble heart, Dr. S. T. A. Kent, had put a nice John B. Stetson hat on my head. All these acts of kindness have been most heartily appreciated, and will never be forgotten. Yes, I will continue to remember the dear friends of Ingram for their untiring interest in me during these six years of pleasant association. May God bless them all very abundantly, is the prayer of their retiring pastor.

S. B. KLAPP.

Greensboro, N. C.

MISSION TREASURER'S FINANCIAL STATEMENT

For the month of November, 1913, as per standing rule of the Mission Board.

RECEIPTS

For Home Missions	$ 408.46
For Foreign Missions	1,195.46
For all other purposes	233.20
Total receipts	$ 1,836.98
Cash balance, November 1, 1913 ...	1,440.43
	$ 3,277.41

DISBURSEMENTS

To Home Missions	$ 286.93
To Foreign Missions	1,354.65
To all other purposes	696.74
Total disbursements	$ 2,338.32
Cash balance, November 29, 1913 ..	939.09
	$ 3,277.41

LIABILITIES

Bills payable	$ 6,600.00
Due accounts	4,868.66
	$11,468.66
Less cash balance	939.09

$10,529.57

NOTE.—The credits on a note now in the hands of the Board's agent in Boston would probably cut down the liabilities at present to about $10,000.

J. G. BISHOP, Mission Treasurer.

December 3, 1913.

The true Christmas spirit is the spirit of charity, service to others and unselfish devotion.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER

The dedication of the remodeled Christian church in Lambert's Point, now a part of Norfolk, on December 7, was a red letter day in the history of that congregation.

A series of preliminary services had been held during the previous week as a special preparation for the final occasion.

On Tuesday night Rev. W. H. Denison, D. D., of the Memorial Christian Temple, met the official board in conference on the subject of finance and the dedicatory services. On Thursday afternoon Dr. Denison met with the Ladies' Aid Society to consider the same interests; on Thursday night, he met with the Sunday school officers and teachers.

On Friday night Rev. Daniel A. Keys preached and Dr. Denison held a conference with the young people after the services.

On Saturday night Rev. Dr. O. W. Powers, Home Mission Secretary of A. C. C., Dayton, Ohio, preached the sermon.

On Sunday morning there was a S. S. rally service. Then followed the services in the church for the day. A financial statement was made which showed that $3,500 was needed to complete the house, concrete pavement, fence, and a few incompleting fixtures. Then Dr. Denison preached one of his appealing sermons, after which $3,726 was raised in pledges and cash. It was rainy in the afternoon, but Dr. Denison preached again to a large congregation and raised $529 more, making the total for the day of $4,255. The pledges were taken to be paid within three years, with interest on unpaid pledges after two years. Dr. J. W. Manning of the Third Church, and J. J. Pitt, of Memorial Temple, rendered valuable floor help during the taking of pledges. A goodly number of members from Memorial Temple, Third Church and probably other churches attended these services and made contributions. Pastor W. H. Garman and wife, who had already made great sacrifices in building the church, made liberal pledges which generous friends in part reimbursed by voluntary contributions. Deacon S. L. Savers added to his liberal subscription a nice brass rail and curatins around the choir platform, and Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Davis gave a nice pulpit Bible in addition to liberal subscriptions.

The subscription of $4,255 leaves a margin of $755 from present requirements of $3,500, and that should cover interest charges on unpaid balances and losses by nonpayment. It, therefore, looks as if Lambert's Point would get on her feet without debt within the next three years. The results of the day surprised the congregation and the community.

The following ministers participated in the dedicatory exercises: Revs. W. H. Denison, D. D., O. W. Powers, D. D., J. W. Harrell, D. D., D. A. Keys, and pastor, W. H. Garman.

The auditorium is seated with 240 opera chairs, and there are six Sunday school class rooms that can be used as added auditory. The building is gas-heated, electric-lighted, neat in finish, baptistry under pulpit, and is really a model of structure and finish of good material. Spare materials have been utilized to full value, and the congregation and pastor deserve praise for doing well. The vicissitudes of the past will no more hinder the church in its growth, and the future is bright with hope to that earnest and devoted band of Christian workers. Their history is one of struggle, despondency, recovery, and hope; and, as Lambert's Point is now a ward of Norfolk, they are really in the city and the city improvements will gradually extend to their streets and homes. The church adjoins the two big public school buildings and seems to occupy a local position as to population, and the Methodist Church is on the opposite side of the street. The day closed with a great sermon to a great congregation by Rev. O. W. Powers, D. D., of Dayton, Ohio.

W. W. STALEY.

WINCHESTER LETTER

I failed to mention, in my last letter, the lecture of Dr. M. T. Morrill, on Japan. It was very much enjoyed by our people, and will do good for the cause. He was accompanied by Mr. Rathbun, our Publishing Agent. We hope they can both come again.

I am now in a series of meetings at Timber Mountain.

As the Christmas season approaches, we are reminded of what it stands for, and why it is kept, and along with this, we cannot help thinking of how we keep it.

It seems hard for us to catch the true spirit of Christmas. There is no condemnation of the giving of gifts, though it might be done more judiciously, and many of the useless presents bestowed where they are not needed might have their value given in something useful to those who are in need. We give our gifts because God gave the first Christmas gift, when "He gave His only begotten Son."

It is well that we should make merry and be glad, for if there is any class of people in the world that has more reason for joy than another, it is the Christians. And we should be especially glad at the Christmas season because of what it means to us, but there is a difference between joy and revelry, and in all our festivities we should keep in mind whose birth we are celebrating and should do the things that will please Him.

The Christmas season should never be used as a time of license. The church member who keeps sober all the year and celebrates the birth of His Lord by drinking or getting drunk, or the one who abstains from evil or questionable things through the year, and keeps Christmas in the revelry of the dance, should never observe it at all. If we are going to dishonor the day in our method of keeping it, we had better let it pass without any notice. It seems to me that it would not be unreasonable for every one and especially every professed follower of Jesus Christ, to adopt this as his motto: To so keep the Christmas season, whether we take one day or many, that we will have no cause to regret anything we have said or done during the time.

W. T. WALTERS.

THE IDEAL CHRISTIAN

In living the life of an ideal Christian, or making the life we live the life we ought to live, we can find no better reference than Rev. 3:11: "Hold fast, that no man take thy crown." Every boy and girl is born for a crown, not those crowns studded with precious jewels, but far more precious than diamonds and rubies are the crowns that God has in keeping for all His boys and girls. Money cannot buy them. Men cannot make them. Only God is rich enough and great enough to furnish them. There are crowns awaiting you when you claim and earn them, but there is no crown without effort, and toil, and sacrifice.

The chief thing in life is to live like a prince of God. The greatest ambition one can have is to do the Father's will. Life is reduced to a very simple thing—obedience. To the obedient, life is always good, and God's blessings increase and descend in showers.

Christ is our life-saver. It is not an easy thing to be a good ball-player, or scholar, or musician, or painter, or lawyer, or to be good at anything. It costs time and effort and brains and purpose, and they are the most valuable things we have. To live a good life, therefore, we should not expect to be an easy task. We must spend more thought and energy and purpose in accomplishing this than in doing anything else. To live a good life is far better than to be rich or famous. To succeed in anything good, every one needs a Savior—that is, someone to guide him, to teach him, to inspire him and to encourage him. The need of a Savior is not confined to those who are trying to be good, but our life from beginning to end is guarded in this manner. We are in need of the help of a Savior every hour. We cannot get along without friends, or teachers, or physicians, or neighbors. They save our lives every day, and we love them because they do so much for us. Christ will do a thousand times more. He saves the soul, the heart of life, the crown of life. To be rich, or healthy, or wise, amounts to very little unless the soul is saved. "What does it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

To enter the Christian life is a little like entering the army. Christ is the Captain. The banner of the Cross is the flag. There are battles to be fought against the hosts of evil. Every Christian is a soldier who promises to obey Christ and to put on his uniform—that of repentance. He has the beautiful white garments of purity. He will give you a shield of righteousness, a sword of prayer and a helmet of safety. But all this does not come within a day's time, for there is nothing more wonderful in the world than growth. The growth of a man from a baby boy is marvelous. Who ever would think that a baby—speechless, thoughtless, without memory, future plans, without reasoning powers, without knowledge of evil, would become a Philip Brooks or a Gladstone?

Jesus says, "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow." The life of Christ must be planted early in life, it must be daily nourished, but it will take years before it comes to the fulness of its glory.

Often the questions come to us, What is life? Why all the discipline of the home and school? Why must I learn to control myself? Some say that life is for pleasure. Their pleasure may be coarse or refined, it is all the same. They mean to get out of life all the amusement and fun they can. They believe that man should live for his body. If they are right, if our bodies are all we are, then this way is right, and the highest thing one can do is to cultivate the animal.

Some say that life is for power, that the highest thing one can do is to go to school, to cultivate his mind, so as to wield power over men. Others say that life is for immortality and God. A man is a body—but something more. A man is body and intellect—but something more. A man is an immortal being, and the object of his life is not to have a strong body, nor a strong mind, but to gain spiritual power.

Prayer is the key that unlocks the doors to the unknown and unseen. The master-key of life is prayer. Life will abound with problems, and you will have many battles with many enemies, but with this master-key in your hand you need fear nothing.

Life is like sailing from one port to another.

It is not given to us to stay in the harbor, but every one must put off to sea. The Bible has traced out several very safe routes—the best of all, the way made plain by Christ Jesus.

Let us sum up the whole story in one word—Love. Jabu, who grew to be aged in wisdom, used to write about God and living right, but one day he said: "If you want to know all about it in one word, I will tell you. God is love. I can say no more."

The richest home is poor without love. The largest church is weak without love. The finest education is vanity without love. Love will bring happiness and power to the poor and weak and ignorant and homely. Love sums it all up, puts it in a nutshell. Where love is, God is, for God is Love. The ideal Christian is that one whose life is moved and motivated and measured by Love.

(Miss) VIOLA ROLLINGS.

FAMILY PRAYER

With a bird's eye view over our country, we see to few religious families that keep up regular family prayer, and we see the fatal results growing out of neglecting it. We should never neglect to read God's Word and to read it carefully every day. The Catholics have well learned to look after their children and train them up in the Catholic faith and to observe all the Catholic usages in their church. Solomon has well said, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." If the Protestants don't take care of their children, the Catholics will. We should teach them to read the Bible every day, and to respect its teaching above all other books. That will teach the child to fear God and keep His commandments from childhood, and to fear and reverence their parents—to observe all their Christian duties as they owe them to God and the church. Teach them early to go to the Sabbath school and wait on the ministry and give attention to the Word as it is preached from the pulpit. Early teach them to fear God and keep His commandments; to love the pastor and to be fond of hearing him preach. So many children, and the teachers, too, go home after the Sabbath school is closed, and don't hear the preacher, in this way growing up out of the church. Many of the best members of the church were brought into the church early. But some parents disapprove of their children joining the church early, just as the devil would have them to do. I don't know at what age they are converted, but they know they love God and the church, and know they love all Christians, which is the evidence that they have been changed from nature to grace. It doesn't matter how they get it, and at what age, so they have the grace of God deeply rooted in their hearts.

Now, here is my suggestion for family devotion: Immediately after supper let the parents and children assemble in a room, all with a Bible or Testament in their hands. Turn to a chapter and read it, father reading first, then the mother, and then the children each a verse, and so on until they have read the chapter. Then the father or mother, or some member of the family lead in prayer, closing with repeating the Lord's Prayer by all together. After this, have one or two pieces of music, and then let the smaller children retire for sleep and rest for the night. This will become a sort of second nature and the children will not want to retire without this service. And you won't have infidels, nor higher critics, in your family. Then in the morning when the children wake up, let them repeat, each one for himself: "I accept this day Jesus Christ as my Savior, my Lord, and my King, and I will try to serve Him every day in everything."

At each meal, let the father, mother and children ask a blessing according to seniority. Here are three forms of table blessing:

"Indulgent Lord, bless these refreshments to our use and us to Thy service, we ask for Jesus' sake, Amen."

"O Lord, pardon our sins, sanctify a portion of this food to the nurture of our bodies and our souls to Thy service, for Jesus' sake, Amen."

Another, "Good Lord, we thank Thee for this, another expression of Thy goodness, Amen." J. W. WELLONS

DANCING

A lady put to us the direct question, "Is it wrong to dance? That, with the question about card-playing and theatre-going, troubles many young people who want to hold a church connection somewhere and yet want the liberty, without church restrictions, to indulge in worldly amusements. There are many ways to answer the question. We have never seen a dancer who leads a really spiritual life. To belong to the church may mean no more than to be enrolled in its records of membership, but to belong to God in the spirit of a healthy and holy surrender to His will, will answer the question, without asking preachers about its ethical and religious qualities.

"I wish you would come to our young people's meetings," said a city pastor to a prominent society girl, who was a member of his church. "It would help our work if we could have your influence and service." "O," said the girl in astonishment, "why I have no influence. The young people all know how fond I am of dancing and of theatre-going, and what I would say would have no weight with them. I think they would laugh and regard it as a joke if I attempted to persuade them to be good."

This girl was shrewd enough to see that influence for good is far too precious to be purchased with wealth or social distinctions, and yet she protested right along that she "saw no harm in dancing." Can that be good which destroys the influences for doing good? If dancing is not harmful, why should it affect one's influence among those who "see no harm in it." Did the one asking this question ever know of a person who was a good Christian and an habitual dancer at the same time? When asked this question, the answer was, "I know women who are very charitable and do a great deal for the poor, and they dance and have dances at their home." But charity is not religion. A Zulu who has never heard of God may be moved to furnish food to some starving wanderer. To know God and to surrender to His will make people charitable, but it will also make them holy, and holiness is something infinitely higher and nobler than occasional acts of charity. But even charity is but a reflex effect upon the people who are influenced by some such merits of religion, but never go far enough to become heirs of its promises.

Here is an old clipping from the New York "Journal of Education," which is secular, and not especially concerned about the religious side of human conduct: "A great deal can be said about dancing; for instance, the chief of police of New York City says that three-fourths of the abandoned girls of that city are ruined by dancing. It requires neither brains nor good morals to be a good dancer. As the love of the one increases, the love of the other decreases. How many of the best men and the best women are dancers? Would you count those who are enthusiastic dancers among your intimate and trusted friends? In ancient times the sexes danced separately. Alcohol is the spirit of beverages. So sex is the spirit of the dance. Take it away—let the sexes dance separately—and dancing will soon cease. It will go out of fashion in short order. Parlor dancing is dangerous. Tippling leads to drunkenness, and parlor dancing leads to ungodly balls. Tippling and parlor dancing both sow the winds and both reap the whirlwinds. Put dancing in the crucible, apply the acids, weigh it, and the verdict of reason, morality and religion will be, 'Weighed in the balance and found wanting.'"—Methodist Protestant.

DR. LAWRENCE LECTURES AT ELON

Some Interesting Facts Concerning the Bronte Family
Theme of Discourse

The speaker gave a brief sketch of the history of Yorkshire, stating among other things, that it was rich in political and religious events and of considerable interest in literature. It is the largest of the English counties, and is divided into three sections, East Riding, North Riding, and West Riding. Our visit this evening is to the little town of Haworth, some sixteen or eighteen miles west of Leeds, in West Riding. This visit is to see the home of the Bronte family.

The town is built on either side of the Worth valley or ravine. The hills are exceedingly precipitous, making it difficult to get up and down the stone paved streets. Here lived, seventy-five years ago, Patrick Bronte, the rector of the Haworth church. The stone parsonage is still standing. Patrick Bronte had six children, five daughters, Maria, Elizabeth, Charlotte, Emily, and Anne, and one son, Patrick, Jr. His wife died when the oldest daughter was about nine. He was a stern father, starving the bodies and feeding the minds of his frail children. Three years after the death of her mother, the two oldest girls were sent to Cowan's Bridge, a boarding school for girls. They soon fell sick, perhaps from the slim diet and rigorous discipline of the school, and were sent home to die only a little later. Charlotte had been entered at the school a little before her sisters became ill, and her experience is strikingly recorded in "Jane Eyre," her most popular book. The Helen Burns of this story is said to be Maria Bronte. Upon the death of these two sisters, Charlotte is left a girl of nine as chief housekeeper.

Life goes hard. She gets a few months' schooling about her fifteenth year, and later she and Emily study in Brussels, where they learn to speak French. On their return home in 1844, after some two years' absence, they find a great sorrow to be added to their already sorrowful and gloomy lives: their brother Patrick, always of quick, irritable disposition, has fallen into a life of the worst kind of dissipation and vice. The girls all three try teaching, but find it unsatisfactory. They turn to literature as a possible means of livelihood. Charlotte's first book, "The Professor," was rejected by publishers wherever offered. Emily's "Wuthering Heights," and Anne's "Agnes Gray," were accepted and met a fair degree of success. Charlotte was discouraged, disappointed, but not cast down. Immediately she went to work on "Jane Eyre," into which she put her own life. It was wonderfully successful. The other two sisters die within six months of each other, in 1848-49. The brother goes three months before Emily, September, 1848. Charlotte writes two other books, "Shirley," in which she portrays her sister Emily, and "Villette," in which is recorded her Brussels experience. She dies at the age of 39, in 1855, a famous author.

A man who lives right, and is right, has more power in silence than another has by his words.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor

THE CHRISTMAS LESSON

"The Word Made Flesh," or a Study of the Prologue to John's Gospel.

Scripture.—John 1:1-18.

Time.—"In the beginning." B. C. 5, A. D. 27.

Places.—The universe, the world, Palestine.

Golden Text.—"And the word became flesh, and dwelt among us."—John 1:14.

As a text for the Christmas lesson we have the Prologue of the Gospel by John. The purpose is not to discuss the leading characteristics of the Gospel by John, not to make any philosophical study, but simply to center the thought of the Sunday school world upon the incarnation. This also offers a fine introductory to the lessons for 1914, as during the year the Life of Christ will be the theme.

Boardman says of the lesson: "These eighteen verses are, in depth and majesty, peerless in all the world's literature, peerless even in the Book of God. They take us into the very Holy of holies in the sanctuary of truth; aye, into the very heights of Godhood, into the very depths of Godhood in manhood. In this prologue profoundest philosophy and loftiest poetry are divinely wedded."

The Incarnation was the one thing in which was centered the hope of all the ages, and in it is centered all the hope of the future. The long expected Savior came.

The world is coming to know Christ better. Knowing Him somewhat begets the desire for more knowledge, and more knowledge increases the desire for close acquaintance with Him.

The Man of Galilee was never studied from so many viewpoints, by so many strata of mind, with such profound scholarship and with so much faith as he is today.

St. John's chronology antedates creation itself. "In the beginning was the Word." The event we celebrate on December 25 was in the infinite mind before the foundations of the world were laid. The term "Word" is familiar in the philosophy of olden times; it means the principle that upholds the order of the Universe and the Creator of that principle.

No comment on the Scripture itself can do more than detract from the inherent beauty and magnificence of expression.

The ancient world believed that God dwelt in darkness and was dangerous. The coming of Christ was to bring to men the great consciousness that our Father is not a God of darkness but a God of light.

NOTES ON C. E. TOPIC FOR DECEMBER 28

"Our Church at Work for the World."—Mark 16:14-20. (Foreign Missions).

The Missionary Committee will arrange this program, assisted by the prayer meeting committee. The leader should be the chairman of the missionary committee.

Try to make this a bird's eye view of the foreign missionary work of your denomination. Have a map of the world, the latest report of the foreign missionary board, show just what our church is doing and how little it is compared with the big world that is to be saved. If you can, show also what all denominations are doing and how vast is the unoccupied or the insufficiently occupied territory.

Have a strong talk on the scripture lesson to be entitled "The Great Commission." What was meant by "all the world" and by "every creature?"

Fred B. Smith, the evangelist, on returning from his recent visit to mission fields around the world, said that he did not see a new temple anywhere; everywhere the newest building he saw was a missionary hospital or college or church.

One Korean has been won to Christ for every hour since the first missionary reached Korea, and a Christian church has been organized for every day of that time. The native Christians have been marked by love of the Bible, devotion to prayer, generous gifts of money and time for religious service, and faithful personal work for the salvation of others.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the leader in the Chinese revolution and the first provisional president of the new republic, said that it was from missionaries that he gained his ideals of liberty. Those taught in the mission schools were the ones best trained for leadership in the nation, so that sixty-five per cent. of the officials in one province were found to be Christians.

A bitter opponent of Christianity, who speaks of the missionaries as adversaries, in the same connection says of them that they are doing good and useful work in Madagascar. "They have conciliated the natives by treating them like men, established schools, given medical aid, opened hospitals, in a word, devoted themselves to the people."

When the commission appointed nine years ago by King Leopold to investigate conditions in the Congo reported, it stated that where there were Protestant missions the natives formed the habit of appealing to the missionary rather than the judge when any injustice had been suffered. This was true, it was said, generally, not only of the natives that had been under the missionaries' teaching. "The missionary becomes in the eyes of the native the sole representative of equality and justice."

Questions to be Answered

How much does our church give to foreign missions?

How much does our conference give?

How much does our church give per member?

How much our conference per capita?

What is our responsibility?

What countries need missionaries most?

GETTING READY FOR NEXT YEAR

BY THE DEPARTMENT EDITOR

Just now the thoughtful officers and teachers are planning for next year in the Sunday school. It is a year full of promise. Never before has the Sunday school faced such marvelous opportunities and such great responsibilities. Surely no school in the Christian church will miss its share of the blessings and privileges that will come to the progressive Sunday schools this year.

The lessons are upon the life of Christ. A systematic study of the synoptic gospels is outlined. It has been the writer's pleasure to examine, somewhat hurriedly to be sure, the forty-eight lessons of 1914. I believe that never before has a series of lessons been so well arranged as these. They make an interesting, instructive and connected study of the life of the Great Teacher. Just at this time when the Man of Galilee is being studied as never before, when great mission enterprises are being undertaken, when all the world is being aroused to a greater consciousness of its duty to the people of our generation, the series comes as a great inspiration and will be an infallible guide in directing our energies.

Sunday school officers and teachers should provide the very best for the school; more and better helps should be used in the adult classes; many of the story books on the Life of the Master should be placed in the hands of the teachers of children. The Gospels should be studied thoroughly and systematically. To go through this series of lessons any other way than with a full and adequate study will be little short of sin.

Then, too, there should be an intelligent and well directed effort at increasing the attendance. The study of the life of Christ appeals to people, and the things that the Sunday school offers for 1914 are too good for the school to help itself too selfishly. The motto of "the other fellow" should be made practical and definite. Let the whole community be interested in the study.

Finally, strive for better methods, obtain better tools, have a higher aim, a broader outlook, and resolve to accomplish better and greater results.

BEGINNERS' DEPARTMENT—AGES 4 AND 5

I. Grading. If the Department has not over twenty children, all may be taught in one room by one teacher. The best seating arrangement is little chairs placed in a circle; the teacher forms one of the circle. If there are more than twenty children, divide them into two classes, as follows:

1st grade—children four years old.

2nd grade—children five years old.

Each of these grades may include more than one class if numbers so require. Separate the grades by curtain or screen.

II. Officers:

1. Superintendent, who also may be a teacher.

2. Other teachers, as many as needed.

3. Secretary-Treasurer, musician, helpers if needed.

III. Color: pink. Same for boys and girls.

IV. Emblem: rosebud.

V. Lesson: the International Graded Lessons for first and second year beginners.

The color suggested is carried out in the Beginners' Department pennant, which is very beautifully designed in pink with the rosebud emblem attached. Very desirable for decoration. The rosebud celluloid pin is the accepted emblem for beginners, and it greatly pleases and attracts all the little ones. Both of these articles together with a vast variety of helps and suggestions, also the International Graded Lessons, may be obtained from the Southern Christian Publishing Company, Elon College, N. C.

MRS. J. J. LINCOLN.

A CHANGED HEART DID IT

The man's face had changed in appearance. The frowns and horrid expressions had vanished, and the feelings of renewed heart spread over his countenance. His form was more erect, and his manner genteel and refined. His life was a transformed one. His old habits were not evident, but instead he had caught a heavenly vision and was conscious of its presence. His good wife sang a new song with a happier note as she wielded her dexterous hand in the performance of her domestic duties. Around the fireside a new and happier association had been formed between the members of the family. What had made the changed face, brought a happier home, and the cheerful songs? Christian religion had found its way into a heart. C. B. RIDDLE.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Sec'y. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

AMERICA—GOD'S CRUCIBLE

By Ernest Bournier Allen

(May be sung to the music of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic.")

My soul has heard the roaring of the fusing fires of God!

He's melting all the nations in a crucible so broad—
His crucible's a continent all other lands applaud,—
His kingdom marches on!

They come from far off India and Siberia's cold plain.

They march in solid phalanx from Italia and Roumaine,

With countless curious voices they are chanting this refrain,—

Our God hath made us one!

They've heard the gracious Master saying, "Come to me and rest,"

Each race awaits the outcome of democracy's age guest,

A place where every man may have the right to be his best,—

For God is calling on!

I'm glad the kingdom's coming which our fathers longed to see,

The kingdom Christ our Savior taught to men in Galilee,

Because it makes men righteous, yes, because it makes men free,—

We'll speed His kingdom on!

FORWARD, ALL OF US!

Our Conferences have been held; much stress, in the addresses and the reports, was laid on Missions. Many of us have determined to put forth greater efforts this year for the advancement of the work in our midst.

While great success has attended the efforts put forth by our women, there is much that needs to be done. The organizing of a Mission Study Class should not be neglected longer. One of the things we greatly need is information and knowledge. The training of the boys and girls is one of the most fruitful resources we have and the greatest opportunity at our command. Often we cannot arouse the grown-ups, but to the young we only have to say, Come with me.

And going a little further, we can come in touch with those who are yet in the cradle and enroll them as prospective workers. All that is needed here is some one with sufficient interest to undertake the work.

And then there are in easy reach of some of our Societies, some church not yet organized for the work. If some one with sufficient zeal would act as a home missionary, the greater number of our church could be enlisted this Conference year.

We cannot afford to put off these matters longer. What is the thing that lies at your hand? What we do we must do quickly. Let us pray daily and labor unceasingly to spread the glad tidings of great joy which are for all people.

ANOTHER SOCIETY ORGANIZED

On Sunday, December 14, 1913, immediately after the preaching service, the good women of Shallow Ford organized themselves into a Women's Missionary Society, with 20 members. This society is going to study missions, and we are expecting great good from it. The officers elected are as follows:

Mrs. John Huffines, President;
Mrs. Sallie Tickle, Vice President;
Mrs. Mary Sutton, Secretary and Treasurer.
Mrs. Claude Cable, Organist.
Miss Florence Cable, Supt. of Young People.

THE OPENING OF JAPAN

In 1862, Japan had only two treaty ports, Nagasaki and Yokohama, which were open to other nations. All the rest of the country was forbidden ground, and all vessels passing from one port to another were compelled to go around six hundred miles or more, although there was a passage called Meandse, between the Islands which would have materially shortened the trip. Through this, however, we were not allowed to pass. In 1863, the nations demanded that this passage be opened, and also that other cities be opened for the purpose of trade, other than the two Treaty Ports mentioned above.

Japan at this time had two rulers, the Mikado and Tycon (or Tycoon). The Mikado was willing to grant the demands of the Powers, but the other refused, so the International Fleet went through this passage, and blew up all the forts lining the shores.

I was a quartermaster on a merchant steamship cruising in the waters at that time, and our vessel was the first to make this passage, going through before the smoke of battle had cleared away, so we were the first foreign ship besides the battle ships which had ever gone through this water route, opened at so great a cost to Japan.

We had cleared from Shanghai, China, with a party of bank officials, on a tour of inspection. They had chosen our vessel, the "Island Queen," for the trip, and now determined to make a landing on this long forbidden coast.

The small boat was ordered away; I was the youngest on board, so as the boat touched the beach, boylike, I jumped before anyone else could attempt to do so, not only because it was my duty, but because I wanted to be the first civilian to touch the forbidden shores of Japan.

As it chanced, I was not only the first, but the only one to land, for before anyone else could land, a party of officials from the wrecked fort who had watched our approach, met us and ordered us off, and we were forced to obey.

Farther along the channel we came upon a small junk or fishing boat. As soon as we came up they put out their sails, grasped their oars, and made frantic attempts to get out of our way. Our party was anxious for fresh fish to help out the boat fare, so halted them and endeavored to buy some of their supply, but in this we were utterly unsuccessful. They simply cried to us to go away, and would not even listen to anything we had to say. They were forbidden by their government to sell, barter or trade with the "Foreign Devils," as we were called, and to disobey would have meant serious punishment.

We went on our way to Yokohama and got coal there. While laying out of Yokohama, we saw the fleet set sail for Yeddo (now Tokio) to demand the signing of the new treaty at the point of the fleet's cannon. As all the world known, these arguments proved most effective, and the treaty was signed.

Japan was extremely exclusive. She was content to live and die to herself, and wanted nothing to do with other nations, at least outside of the Treaty Ports, which had been forced open by Commodore Perry years before. It was as much as our lives were worth to venture into the country three miles outside of the port, where the ground covered by the treaty ended.

Although their worship was idol worship, yet the Japanese were very religious, and their temples were visible on every hand. Their dress and their manner of wearing their hair has been described too often to need repetition. The rank of their noblemen could be told by the kind of sword which they carried, whether a half sword, or little sword, "whole sword," or long sword, one and a half sword, and the highest of all carried two long swords, rather, they carried one themselves, and a servant went behind them, bearing the other. I remember watching them pass on the streets of Yokohama, with the common people, who were very subservient to the ruling class, bowing to the ground before them. I noticed once a runner going down the street crying something in a loud voice. Everyone stopped where he was, shopkeepers ran out of their shops and prostrated themselves on the ground, as a palanquin came along, borne on the shoulders of a number of men, or coolies. None dared to raise their faces to much as to look at the august person passing by. I asked one of the natives who it was, and was told it was one of the princes.

My memory is not as clear as it used to be about all the things I saw then, for it is fifty years ago, but looking back on scenes I viewed, and reading as I do, of the vast progress this nation has made, I am amazed at their tremendous progress in half a century of intercourse with the western world.

God grant that the next fifty years may see as great a revival in Christianity, and the knowledge of God, as the last has seen in commerce, for when Christ opens the eyes of the blind, they are opened indeed, and those who wash in the Pool of the blood of Christ are "clean every whit."

JAMES GREEN.

Toledo, Ohio.

(The above is sent us by Mrs. F. Bullock, Waverly, Va., from the pen of her father, Mr. Greene, who, though now living, was the first Englishman to land on Japanese soil. When we consider what Japan is today, and how thoroughly awakened it is, and how many thousands there are in Japan now converted to Christianity, and how anxious Japan is for the gospel, we can hardly realize that all this has come about in the lifetime of a man yet living.—Editor Sun.)

WARNING AS TO CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

By way of practical suggestion, we submit the following as to the dangers of the Christmas tree, all of which are easily followed:

Don't leave an illuminated tree unwatched.

Don't use festoons of tissue paper or cotton batting on a tree.

Don't use any ornaments of celluloid.

Don't permit a draft of air to sway the branches of a tree while it is illuminated.

Don't put cotton beneath a tree to make the carpet look like snow-covered ground.

Don't remove a thing from the tree until the candles on it are blown out.

If the appearance of snow is desired for any purpose, use "mineral wool," or asbestos. It will not burn, and gives a better effect than cotton.

Finally, let the safety of your children and your property be your first consideration, and Christmas will then be a season of happiness, undisturbed by accident.

CHURCH NEWS

CHAPEL HILL

We hope to be in the building some time in January, 1914. We are needing every cent of money that has been pledged, to pay for the windows, seats, and heating furnace. Now is the time to lend a helping hand. The Ladies' Aid Society is working earnestly to help finish up everything necessary. In behalf of the church we thank every one who has given any assistance, either in money, sympathy and prayers.

OAK LEVEL

This good church at the close of last conference year, after paying up everything, gave the pastor a six-dollar hand grip, which was highly appreciated. First, because it was a thing he needed very much, and second, because the donation was from the sisters of the church.

At the first Sunday appointment we were sorry to find Sister Staley with rheumatism.

W. G. CLEMENTS.
Morrisville, N. C.

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

Are you willing to forget what you have done for other people, and to remember what other people have done for you; to ignore what the world owes you, and to think what you owe the world; to put your rights in the background, and your duties in the middle distance, and your chances to do a little more than your duty in the foreground; to see that your fellowmen are just as real as you are, and try to look behind their faces to their hearts, hungry for joy; to own that probably the only good reason for your existence is not what you are going to get out of life, but what you are going to give to life; to close your book of complaints against the management of the universe, and look around you for a place where you can sow a few seeds of happiness—are you willing to do these things even for a day? Then you can keep Christmas.—Henry Van Dyke.

STOPS TOBACCO HABIT.

Elder's Sanitarium, located at 1017 Main St., St. Joseph, Mo., has published a book showing the deadly effect of the tobacco habit, and how it can be stopped in three to five days.

As they are distributing this book free, anyone wanting a copy should send their names and address at once.

THIS CHRISTMAS AND NEXT

How much happiness is there in the world? How much should there be? How much could there be? How much shall there be? Joy-makers! That is what the world needs. And Christmas is the festival of the joy-makers. It is a time when their principles are recognized as correct.

But here's a plan. Not a new one, only this time let's do it, instead of acknowledging that it ought to be done. Christmas day means that for certain hours we adopt the policy of making other people glad. Why not do that same thing the day after Christmas? Why not the day after that? Why not every day till Christmas comes again?

Do you ever let yourself stop to think of the actual misery that is in the world? Just south of us a nation is torn by civil war. Have you seen any of the pitiful pictures of those battlefields and battle streets? The Balkan horrors are still fresh in our minds. These are only isolated and intensified illustrations of the pain and woe that men and women and children are bearing. There is the distress of poverty, of illness, of unemployment, of oppressive employment, of punishments for crime—and a hundred other forms. The task is to lessen the misery and increase the joy.

In that task everybody can help. Everybody must help. The wrongs that bring misery must be righted; the vices that bring misery must be uprooted; the people who make misery must be won to the other side; the people who are miserable must be made glad.

There is gladness enough to go round. There are enough Christmas trees for every home to have one. There are enough dollars to make sure that every child shall find his Christmas stocking filled. There is enough work so that every man shall have a job—the Christmas gift thousands of men would choose first of all. There is enough love in God's heart to fill every life with sunshine. There is enough power of love in the lives of the good to overthrow the works of hate.

But we have not even yet touched upon the real message of Christmas. Christmas is Christ's day. It means all that we have been saying, and then much more. It means that God gave Christ to the world to save it. It means that Christ has power to turn misery-makers into joy-makers, to turn hate into love, to turn sorrow into gladness. It means that the quickest and surest way to make the world a place of joy is to bring the world to him.

One last word: Do not be overwhelmed by the size of the task. A moment ago we were trying to visualize the world's vast sorrow. Does our life seem so small that it is hard to believe we can do anything to lessen appreciably the grief and increase the joy? Then you have forgotten the real story of Christmas. What could be weaker than a baby lying in the straw? Yet that baby has wrought the miracle of love and hope and gladness in so many lives that the mind staggers at the thought of trying to count them. One by one they have been made glad; one by one they have been

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Adds Healthful Qualities to the Food

CHRISTMAS GOOD MINCE PIE INDIGESTION

It's a crying shame to associate these ideas. But it is also a fact that the good things prepared by the best cooks of the land DO lead to indigestion. Ask Mr. Average Man and he will admit "feeling bad" after his Christmas feasting. The human furnace is not equal to the demand. The pies and puddings have been too rich. The inner works get clogged. You get ill. You hate to admit it, but it's a fact.

Now listen. If your sickness is only a case of simple overeating, it can speedily be relieved, but it will leave a weaker digestive apparatus. If it is a case of chronic indigestion and faulty elimination, it will doubtless be much aggravated, but it can be much benefited. Many have been cured.

SHIVAR SPRING WATER used freely during the holiday season will completely dissociate the idea of indigestion from Christmas and mince pies. Drink freely of it, and your ideas will associate thus:

CHRISTMAS GOOD MINCE PIE SHIVAR SPRING WATER HAPPINESS

Don't put off until you get sick. If you are sick, don't wait to get worse. Let Dr. Nature help you out. Nature's way is Shivar Spring Water. Two dollars buys ten gallons of this remarkably good spring water. If that much fails to benefit your case I will gladly refund the $2. You are to be the sole judge. Thousands have bought on that basis and derived great benefit. I would be pleased to send you testimonials from them. But the best way is to try the genuine Shivar Spring water, which bears my signature and get well yourself.

N. F. SHIVAR, Shivar Springs Company
Shelton, S. C.

THE HOME BEAUTIFUL

What is it that makes home beautiful? First of all, it is the spirit of love which predominates and brings into unison the highest and best impulses of which human hearts are capable. But what implements does love use to cultivate this spirit in the home and make the home life beautiful, happy and inviting? They are lovely furnishings, of which the PIANO is KING. What is there in the home, next to the Bible, which can be used to inspire greater appreciation of life, loftier ideals and deeper sincerity, than the Piano or Self-player Piano?

The Christian Sun Piano Club gives you the opportunity to combine your order with those of ninety-nine other Club members which we secure, thereby obtaining the maximum Factory discount on instruments of the highest quality. Every feature of the Club is guaranteed, so that you take no risk of being dissatisfied. Write for your copy of the catalogue and letters from old Club members. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of higher education fostered by the Southern Christian Convention.

MODERN IN EQUIPMENT, Steam Heat, Electric Lights, Baths, Sewerage, Elegant New Buildings.

A HIGH GRADE INSTITUTION whose graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great American Universities without examination.

MAINTAINS EXCELLENT MUSIC, Art, Elocution, Normal, and Preparatory Departments.

A FACULTY OF SEVENTEEN SPECIALISTS, with a successful record of twenty-three years behind it.

HAS ALL THE ADVANTAGES of city life with none of its disadvantages. Situated in the delightful hill country of North Carolina, famed for its healthfulness, pure water, and high moral tone.

ELON COLLEGE HAS DONE MORE to build up the Christian Church than any institution ever yet commissioned by our people.

TERMS VERY MODERATE. $141 to $191 per session of ten school months.

For catalogue or other information, address,

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, Elon College, N. C.

EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

has often heard class-members say: "I cannot understand the Bible." They could not understand any other book that was printed three hundred years ago. So many English words of that day were different.

More than forty new dictionaries have been required since then, to keep up with the changes in the English language. The

American Standard Bible
Edited by the American Revision Committee
uses the words of our day, which make the meanings of the Bible writers clear to us.

Write for Our Free Booklet, "How We Got Our American Standard Bible"
No teacher can afford to be without it.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's Icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf."

ENTIRELY NEW!
Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly."

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by
REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

brought over from the sorrow-makers; one by one they have been enlisted in the cause of putting down injustice and hate and giving kindness and justice sway. They have been reached, one by one; their tasks done one by one.

Think of the thousands of waking minutes from now till next Christmas. Will you fill them all with kindness and gladness? Shall we not all do it? Come! Make earth a gladder place before Christmas comes again.—The Christian Herald.

"EVERYBODY DELIGHTED"

The Christian Sun Piano Club receives hundreds of letters like the following and not a single case of dissatisfaction to date.

"I am just delighted with the piano. It has given entire satisfaction and I would advise anyone desiring a piano to join the Club."—MRS. A. C. F., Greensboro, N. C.

"The Ludden & Bates Piano bought of you is all that it has been represented and, in my opinion, is one of the very best instruments made."—MR. J. H. D., Bartow, Fla.

"I am perfectly delighted with my piano. I think the Club Plan a capital idea."—MRS. R. B. S., Vaiden, Miss.

"We are delighted with our piano and the Club Plan."—MRS. J. M. C., Toney Creek, S. C.

"I am delighted with my piano. With best wishes for you and the Club, I am."—MRS. J. P. R., Roanoke, Ala.

"I am highly pleased with the Ludden & Bates piano and my friends remark about the sweet tone. The Club plan is an ideal way of buying a piano."—MRS. B. L. B., Thomasville, Ga.

If your home is in need of a high-grade piano or self-player piano write for your copy of the Club's catalogue, also for booklet containing hundreds of commendatory letters from old Club members. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Adv.

SOME RED CROSS SEAL FIGURES

Few people have any idea of the magnitude of the Red Cross Christmas Seal Campaign. This year over 100,000,000 seals have been printed and distributed. If placed end to end these seals would extend nearly 2,400 miles, or practically from New York to Salt Lake City. They have been sent to over 25,000 different agents and will be sold and handled by an army of not less than 100,000 volunteers, including men, women and children. Millions of advertising circulars have been scattered throughout the country, and so thoroughly has the advertising campaign been organized that it is doubtful if many people in the more populous States of the country will not have heard of the Red Cross Seal and its mission in the prevention of tuberculosis. It is hoped that at least 50,000,000 seals may be sold this year. The principle upon which the sale of seals is based is that every cent except what little is needed to cover the actual cost of printing and handling shall be spent for tuberculosis work in the community where the seals are sold.

LOW ROUND-TRIP RATES

Account Christmas and New Year Holidays

VIA

NORFOLK SOUTHERN R. R.
Ask nearest Agent for complete information. H. S. LEARD, G. P. A., Norfolk, Va.
THE YOUTH'S COMPANION CAL-

THE PIANOLESS HOME

Have you ever visited a home where discord had usurped the place of sweet accord and where time seemed to hang heavy on the hands of the individual members of the family? There was no entertainer there! A sweet-toned Piano or Self-player Piano would have kept that home so happy, enlivened and entertaining that the home-life would have been like "One grand, sweet song."

Why let your home grow dull and your young folks seek amusement in questionable places, all for the want of proper entertainment at home? The Christian Sun Piano Club enables you to secure a high-grade piano or player-piano of the sweetest tone, at the lowest Factory price and on terms to suit your convenience. Every feature of the Club is guaranteed so that you cannot fail to be delighted. Write for handsomely illustrated catalogue and full particulars. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

Raise Money for Your Church Society

WRITE US for our plan by which ladies can quickly earn money for their Missionary Society, Ladies' Aid, etc. Any woman wanting to earn money easily and in a dignified manner for any purpose whatever will be interested in our proposition. Modern Specialties Mfg. Co., 130 High St., South Bend, Ind.

TRIAL BOX FREE

Do you suffer with
Headache or Neuralgia
One trial of Megrimine is sufficient—your suffering will cease.
For over a quarter of a century

ME GRIM-INE

Has been a Godsend to victims of all forms of headache and neuralgia. Write at once for a trial box without cost

The Dr. Whitehall Megrimine Co.
5 N. Lafayette St., South Bend, Ind.

Catarrh

The accompanying illustration shows how Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Remedy reaches all parts of the head, nose, throat and lungs that become affected by catarrh.

This remedy is composed of herbs, leaves, flowers and berries (containing no tobacco or habit-forming drugs) which are smoked in a small clean pipe or made into a cigarette tube. The medicated fumes are inhaled in a perfectly natural way.

A five day's free trial of the remedy, a small pipe and also an illustrated booklet explaining catarrh will be mailed upon request. Simply write a postal card or letter to DR. J. W. BLOSSER, 100 Walton St., ATLANTA, GA.

The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All Kinds of Books; Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian Annual, and other publications of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. JAMES O. COX, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

J. O. Cox, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Reported last week$4,493.40

Dues

R. P. Crumpler, Jr.	.20
Clarie Rebecca Simmons ..	.10
Pearl Phillips	.10
Luceil Phillips	.10
Virginia Pearl Ayseue.	.10
Mrs. W. S. Long	1.00	1.60

S. S. Offering

Durham	$ 3.14
Beulah (Ala. Conf.) ...	.50
Ramseur	2.33
Union Memorial, Everett, Pa.	.78	6.75

Thanksgiving Offering

Liberty Spring	$ 16.23
Ladies' Benevolent Society, Suffolk	5.00
Lamberts Point, Va. ..	1.50
Pleasant Union	4.63
J. T. Williams and wife	10.00
Windsor, Va.	13.10
Mrs. A. R. Garrett	1.00
Pope's Chapel	3.25
New Hope, E. N. C. C.	10.25
George W. James, Disputanta	1.00	65.86

Special

Tyler Bowling, work ..	$ 2.00
Sale Mulholland Land ..	367.50
Interest on endowment	22.05	391.55

Total receipts for the week ..$ 465.86
Grand total$4,959.26

My Dear Children and Friends:

Our page is not quite so sunny this week as last, yet it contains many encouraging features. We are glad to welcome three new members to our Band of Cousins, and are indeed grateful for Mrs. Long's interesting letter, and valuable help, in keeping our page clear of advertisements. If all of our cousins could only realize the number of interested friends throughout the church who eagerly look for their letters each week they would neither forget nor neglect to write at least once per month. There are many useful men and faithful women in the church now who, years ago, as boys and girls, wrote their letters and contributed their dimes that the unfortunate boy or girl might have a Christian home in which to live and be trained for places of usefulness in the church. Their letters and prayers and dimes under the guidance and blessings of God have materialized into the Christian Orphanage. Shall we not, with grateful hearts, accept this noble contribution of theirs, and gladly maintain and develop the institution until it shall fill that place of usefulness and be the great blessing to the church and kingdom that its earliest contributors so earnestly desired? Many individuals and churches accept the Orphanage as a gracious gift and are making it a blessing to themselves as well as to the boys and girls that are being reared in the home, while others seem to regard the support of the Orphanage as a difficult and burdensome task. No Christian duty should be considered burdensome, but as a privilege and a gracious opportunity in which we serve Christ. "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, ye did it unto me."

If we could only realize the many possibilities which the Orphanage offers, not only to do good, but to serve Christ and advance His kingdom, we would be profoundly grateful for it, and gladly maintain and develop the institution to the greatest degree of efficiency and usefulness possible.

No institution in the church, perhaps, can boast of truer friends or more liberal supporters, than the Orphanage. And we are profoundly grateful for them. But we need more friends, and larger contributions, to care for the pressing needs of the institution at this time, and make needed improvements. Let all those churches and individuals who have not yet made their Thanksgiving offering, please do so at their earliest convenience, and make the offering as liberal as possible. We are so anxious to clear the institution of debt and be able to start the new year with a clear record. If those who have not yet sent in their offerings will be as liberal as those who have reported we can accomplish this desired end. And then we all will have a happy New Year.

Your humble servant,
J. O. Cox, Superintendent.
Stern, N. C., Dec. 11, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jimmie:

I was somewhat careless and failed to send you my dime for November. So I am sending my dime for November and one for December. I wish all of the Christian people were as liberal to our Orphanage as the Baptist people around here are to theirs. Daddy conducted Thanksgiving services in the Baptist Church here on Thanksgiving day. The congregation was very small. Only sixteen grown men were present. But when the call was made, they gave eighty-two dollars and eighty-five cents for their Orphanage at Thomasville. These people are not millionaires, either. They are good people who don't mind helping those who need help.

Love to you and all the Cousins.
R. P. CRUMPLER.

P. S. - I am right sick this morning, but hope to be well again soon. Well, we are glad old "Neglect" turned you loose so soon. He seems to have a very strong hold on some of our children. They have not written in so long.

Yes, we wish too that all of our people were as interested and as liberal toward our Orphanage work as the Baptist people are to theirs. But we must remember that they have been teaching and training their people twenty-eight years. When our Orphanage gets as old and contributes as many noble men and women to the church, our people will contribute more liberally then.

Raleigh, N. C., Route 4.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Hope my letter will find the Children's Corner. I haven't written since you went to stay with the little children. Glad you all had a nice Thanksgiving. Guess the children are all thinking of what Santa Claus will bring them. Enclosed you will find a dime for last month. Fondly,

Your niece,
CLARICE REBECCA SIMON.

We are glad to welcome you back to the Corner after so long a silence. Yes, our children are beginning to talk about Santa Claus and plan for Christmas. Many are wanting to go home for Christmas. Greensboro, N. C., Dec. 10, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I have been thinking for some time I would join your Band. So here I come with my first letter. Was delighted to see so many nice letters last week. I am almost ten years old and can write for myself, so will try to write and send my dime for each month.

Wishing you and the Cousins a merry Christmas, I am,
Your little niece,
PEARL PHILLIPS.

Uncle Jim and all the Cousins extend a warm welcome to you, Pearl. We think you are real smart to write such nice letters yourself. We shall expect a letter from you each month.

Greensboro, N. C., Dec. 10, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Here comes a little girl four years old, asking permission to join the Children's Corner. I was glad to see so many letters last week. I am not old enough to read yet, but Mama reads them for me, and I enjoy them very much. Enclosed please find dime for the Orphanage. Love to you and the Cousins. Your little niece,

LUCILE PHILLIPS.

We are delighted to have you, Lucile, not only to join, but to write each month. Many hearts throughout the church are made glad when the Corner is filled with bright sunny letters; and sad when letters are missing. Will you gladden our hearts with a bright sunny letter each month? Henderson, N. C., Dec. 8, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Here come a little thirteen

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads,
Bill Heads,
Statements,
Envelopes
Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

The Southern Christian Publishing Company,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

THE BEST
Sunday School Help

If you are a Sunday school teacher or pupil you should desire the best possible help. This you will find in one volume, Peloubet's Select Notes on the International Lessons for 1914. Send in your order now. Up to January 1 you can get a copy for $1.00, after that time, $1.25. The publishers' price is $1.25, but we save you 25 cents by ordering from us. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

months' old girl that wants to join the Band of Cousins, and with my little dimes help the motherless and fatherless children. I wonder what has become of the little Newman children since they moved to Raleigh. We would be glad to hear from them.

Uncle Jim, I am young, but I love to hear about Santa Claus. I hope he will come to all the Orphanage children. Well, I had better stop. If I do not, my letter might find the waste basket.

With love to the Band and little Orphans.

VIRGIE BEALE AYSUE.

We have a warm welcome for every girl and boy who wants to help the orphans. Helpers are needed, and always welcome. Chapel Hill, N. C., Dec. 7, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I am so thankful the Cousins have decided to run all the advertisements out of their Corner that I want to send a few lines and a dollar to help chase them out, to stay, I hope, forever.

I am not known to the new Cousins, but used to write to dear Uncle Edwin (Beale) when I was a school girl. Although I have not written many letters to the Corner since, yet I have never lost my interest in the orphans, and will always love to remember I had the pleasure of laying the first brick in the foundation of the Orphanage.

Wishing you abundant success in your great undertaking of caring for and training the orphans,

Sincerely yours,

MRS. W. S. LONG.

We appreciate your encouraging word and liberal help very much.

FRUIT IN THE SOUTH

Accustomed as we are to considering the South the land of fruit, we nevertheless often forget that fruit trees do not grow and produce money crops without attention. There is no part of the entire country better fitted by nature for the production, for example, of high priced and delicious apples than North Carolina and Virginia. One is led to think no other country could make more money from such culture than these states. It is necessary, of course that the orchards be planted in trees that are naturally well suited to the climate and that they be southern grown and grafted, so that the trees will not suffer from severe climatic changes. Given that, the apple is one of the best money bearing crops a farmer can put on his lands. He should secure the plants of a reliable nurseryman whose interest runs beyond merely the collection of his money, and who wants to see the orchards or this part of the country built up. The nursery should be one where the trees are scientifically cultivated, kept free from all disease, and of the varieties most in demand. The writer had the privilege of going through such a nursery recently, where every sign is that of real love for the business. He refers to the gigantic establishment of the J. Van Lindley Nursery Company, Pomona, N. C. Here genuine love for the plant is united to good business foresight and a determination to maintain a reputation acquired by three generations of faithful dealing. It is worth many dollars to buy plants from such an establishment. Also it was learned that the company had prepared a new book on fruit trees and ornamentals which should be in the hands of every fruit grower or every one who contemplates growing fruit for pleasure or profit. The nursery is glad to send this book to any inquirer, as it has a good deal to tell about this great establishment—and what it says is profitable to any man who wants to make money on his land. Send for it. Ask for the new book, N. 207. ad

Don't despair. There is help for that weakened stomach of yours in Nature's remedy, Shivar Spring Water. It has cured hundreds. Let it cure you. Ten gallons will benefit you, or we refund the $2 you paid us for 10 gallons. Ask your druggist for our testimonials. Get the water of him or write Shivar Spring Co., Shelton, S. C. Ad.

The buoyancy of youth is lost more often through poor digestion or faulty elimination than through the flight of time. Old age need have no terrors for the man or woman who uses genuine Shivar Spring Water. It gives that perfect digestion that renews the body and keeps it young. Ten gallons for $2. At druggists or Shivar Spring Company, Shelton, S. C. Ad.

THIS WILL INTEREST MANY.

F. W. Parkhurst, the Boston publisher, says that if anyone afflicted with rheumatism in any form, neuralgia or kidney trouble, will send their address to him at 701 Carney Building, Boston, Mass., he will direct them to a perfect cure. He has nothing to sell or give; only tells you how he was cured after search for relief. Hundreds have tested it with success. Adv.

Dark brown taste in your mouth, headache, dull eyes, joy in life gone, no energy, no ambition and all the other feelings of the fellow who'd like to die and can't? Don't despair. I know all about it. I was there myself. I used Shivar Spring Water and now I'm well. Hence I can sell it to you with the guarantee that ten gallons will benefit you or I refund your money. N. F. Shivar. At druggists ($2 for 10 gallons) or of Shivar Spring Company, Shelton, S. C. Ad.

No one can do a good day's work with a disordered stomach. No one can enjoy life who is not well. Drugs may help. They do not cure. Let Nature have her way. Drink Shivar Spring Water. It has benefited others. It will benefit you. Try it now. If ten gallons do not benefit you, your money will be refunded. $2 for 10 gallons at the druggist's or of the Shivar Spring Company, Shelton, S. C. Ad.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER RELIEVED OF CONSUMPTION

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The doctor now gives his recipe free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the stomach and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., Philadelphia, Pa., naming this paper. Ad.

Just a little better than any of its forty predecessors in its fulness of explanation, illustration and anecdotes—its wealth of material and its practical helpfulness for teacher and pupil.

Price, $1.00 net
Postpaid, $1.15

W. A. WILDE COMPANY
120 Boylston Street, Boston

Rand-McNally Bldg., Chicago

For sale at all book stores

DR. J. H. BROOKS,
Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.

Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 814:35 a. m.
No. 29Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 414:10 p. m.
No. 436:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 8412:48 a. m.
No. 3811:35 a. m.
No. 6612:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.
J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,

NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,

DAYTON, OHIO

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.

Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles, Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

HIGH CLASS

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET.

BURLINGTON, N. C.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

Schedule of the trains leaving
Elon College:

N. B.—The following schedule
figures are published only as information and are not guaranteed.

No. 21—11:28 A. M. Through
Train for Asheville with Chair
Car for Waynesville. Connects at
Asheville with Carolina Special for Cincinnati and Chicago, also for
Chattanooga, Memphis and all
Eastern points. Connects at Greensboro with Through Train
for Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, also with local train for points South.

No. 139—6:32 P. M. For Greensboro. Handles through Pullman
Sleeping Car for Atlanta. Makes connections for all points North,
East, South and West, New Orleans, Texas and California points.

No. 131—9:27 P. M. For Greensboro. Makes direct connection with
Train No. 38, Solid Sleeping Car
Train for Washington, Baltimore,
Philadelphia, New York, makes
connection for Boston, Pittsburgh,
Chicago, and all Eastern and
Northern points. Connects with
Through Tourist Sleeping Car for
New Orleans, El Paso, Los Angeles, and San Francisco.

No. 111—5:44 A. M. For Greensboro, with Sleeping Car for Winston-Salem. Connects with No. 37,
Through Train for Atlanta, New Orleans, connects also for Ashe-
ville, St. Louis, Memphis, Birmingham and all Western and Southern points. Also with local train for Danville, Lynchburg and
Washington.

No. 22—4:48 P. M. Raleigh and
Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern and S. A. L. Rwy., also at Selma
with A. C. L. Rwy. And at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and
A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 144—10:08 A. M. For Raleigh and Goldsboro. Makes connections at Selma with A. C. L.
Rwy., for points North and South,
and at Goldsboro with Norfolk
Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 108—8:00 A. M. Local Train
for Raleigh, Selma and Goldsboro.
Makes connection with S. A. L.
Rwy. at Raleigh and A. C. L. Rwy.
at Selma and Goldsboro.

No. 112—1:27 A. M. For Raleigh, Selma, Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern, S. A. L. and R. C.
& S. Railway, at Selma with A. C.
L. Rwy., at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

For detailed information, also for information concerning special round trip rates account various special occasions and Pullman
Sleeping Car reservations, ask any
Southern Railway Agent or communicate with the undersigned.

J. O. JONES.

Traveling Passenger Agent,

DROPSY TREATED. usually gives quick relief, soon removes swelling & short breath, often gives entire relief in 15 to 25 days. Trial treatment sent Free
Dr. THOMAS E. GREEN, Successor to
Dr. H. H. Greens Sons, Box X, Atlanta, Ga.

THE FINEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD FOR THE MONEY

* This Photograph represents exact size $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$ inches
Bound in French Morocco, absolutely flexible,
with overlapping covers as shown in this photograph. Has red under gold edges.

—IT CONTAINS—

The Authorized Version of the Old Testament and New Testament

—HAS—

Self-Pronouncing Text

All the proper words being accented and divided into syllables for quick and easy pronunciation.

—IT ALSO CONTAINS—

A New Series of Helps to Bible Study

—INCLUDING—

4000 Questions and Answers
which unfold the Scriptures

31 Beautiful Illustrations
showing scenes and incidents of Bible History

12 Maps of the Bible Lands in Colors
Large Clear Type Fine Paper

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN one year,
$2.50, postpaid.

Or sent alone for $1.50, postpaid.

—ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO—

The Southern Christian Pub. Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

Harrell

Mrs. Margaret Julia Harrell, daughter of George W. and Missouri Turner, was born in Nansemond County, Va., February 22, 1867, and died October 1, 1913. She was married to Joseph M. Harrell February 7, 1884. Unto them were born three children, two of whom, Charlie R., and Addie B., survive the parents. Her husband died in 1898. She leaves, besides two children, two brothers and four sisters. She professed faith in Christ at an early age and united with Liberty Spring church. Sister Harrell was a woman of great energy, strong Christian character, and self-sacrificing spirit. She was a great sufferer for several years, and died in the triumph of a loving faith in her Savior. The funeral was conducted by the writer, at Liberty Spring, and the remains laid to rest in the church cemetery. May the Lord bless the bereaved family.

I. W. JOHNSON.

Teague

Lona Dixon Teague, wife of Eugene Teague, was born August 28, 1877, and died December 10, 1913, aged thirty-six years, three months, and twelve days. She was converted in early life, and connected herself with the Friends church, Cane Creek, remaining faithful till death. Her testimony in her last illness was that there was nothing in the way of her going, more than the desire to live for her family, if it could be the Lord's will.

She leaves a husband, seven children, three sons and four daughters, two step-daughters, a father, mother, three sisters and three brothers, and many relatives, who mourn their loss.

One of the largest congregations that ever assembled at Pleasant Hill church attended the funeral, which was conducted by this writer, and the remains were laid to rest in the church cemetery at that place.

A faithful wife and a devoted Christian mother has been taken.

L. I. COX.

Scott

Mrs. Cora Alice Scott was born in Chatham County May 2, 1858, and died in the High Point Hospital December 5, 1913. She was a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Norman Melton, and they were well and favorably known in the community of Hank's Chapel.

She married Benj. S. Scott, of Randolph County, who died about three years ago. They had eight children, six of whom are living: Benj. A. and S. O. Scott of Greensboro, Mrs. Clara Parks, Joseph M. Lois, and William Scott, of Ramseur.

Sister Scott gave her heart to God when young and joined the church at Hank's Chapel. Her life was spent in the Christian church, Ramseur Christian church being where her membership is now held.

For about three years she had been a great sufferer, but patient and hopeful that she might get well not for her own sake, but that of her children.

She was brought to Ramseur and her funeral was conducted from the Ramseur church, and the interment was in the Ramseur cemetery. The floral offering was beautiful and abundant.

T. E. WHITE.

Brown

Eli C. Brown, a brother of the deceased Rev. W. R. Brown, was born June 10, 1843, and died, rather suddenly, November 24, 1913, in the seventy-first year of his age. He came of religious parents, and that holy influence was manifested in his home and life. The greater part of his life was spent in the Christian church. He was one of the charter members of Union Grove and here he will be greatly missed. He was always present at his church and ready with his purse to aid in the advancement of his Master's kingdom.

He was married to Rebecca Bird July 28, 1864, and the union was a happy one. They lived and labored on a farm, reared a large family of boys and girls, and brought them up in a religious atmosphere.

He is survived by his wife, four sons, Oscar, Rufus, William W., Andra; four daughters, Mrs. Ida Jane Macon, Mrs. Loveta C. Lowdermilk of Kansas, Mrs. Antimela Kidd, and Vellie; two brothers, D. C. Brown and Adam Brown; three sisters, Mrs. Sarah Way, Mrs. Emeline Allen, and Mrs. Mahala Leach. There are thirty-three grand children.

The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. H. A. Albright, who had known the deceased long and well, and by J. N. and E. F. Cagle, who paid fitting tributes to his virtues. God rest his noble soul.

T. E. WHITE.

Steward

Bessie J. Steward, wife of Charlie Steward, was born March 24, 1882, and died December 7, 1913; aged 31 years, 8 months, and 13 days. She leaves a husband and three small children. The funeral services were conducted by this writer from Shallow Ford Christian Church, and the remains laid to rest in the cemetery at that place. May the Lord comfort the bereaved ones.

L. I. COX.

Lowdermilk

Mrs. Rebecca E. Lowdermilk was born May 23, 1855, and died November 13, 1913. She was the wife of John Lowdermilk, and a faithful member of Pleasant Grove Christian church. She professed faith in Christ when young, and remained faithful to Him all her life. She filled the sometimes difficult place of step-mother to a large family, but her step-children honored her, and at her funeral wept as if she had been their own mother. A large congregation attended her funeral, which was conducted in the church at Pleasant Grove.

T. E. WHITE.

JOIN THE CHRISTIAN SUN PIANO CLUB

Why? It will save you from one hundred and fifty to two hundred and fifty dollars on high grade pianos and player-pianos. It absolutely insures their quality. It provides convenient terms. It gives you perfect protection against dissatisfaction. Write for your copy of the catalogue and letters from old Club members. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

"Give, give, be always giving,
Who gives not is not living,
The more you give
The more you live.
Give strength, give thought, give deeds, give self,
Give love, give tears, and give thyself,
Give, give, be always giving,
Who gives not is not living,
The more you give, the more you live."

Happiness is a roadside flower, blooming on the road to usefulness.

EXCHANGE YOUR OLD PIANO

For a splendid new Self-player which every member of your family can play. The greatest musical invention of the age—a combination piano and self-player piano—two instruments in one. Write for descriptive catalogue and attractive exchange offer made to members of the Christian Sun Piano Club. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Adv.

APPENDICITIS

If you have been threatened or have ever had pains in the right side or in the abdomen, write for valuable Book of Information FREE. Gallstone Remedy Co., Dept. 741, 219 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.

CABBAGE PLANTS FOR SALE

Frost Proof Cabbage Plants now ready to ship. Very fine plants, and frost-proof because they are frost-tested. Raised in the open in a cold section, they will stand the frosts and freezes better than plants from the Sea Islands. Leading varieties. $1.25 per 1,000, 5,000 for $5.00. Special prices on large orders. Order blank and cultural points if desired.

HIGH CREST TRUCK FARM,

G. L. B. Penny, Prop.

"The Tar Heel Plant Man,"

Raleigh, N. C., R. F. D. 1.

6lb Pair of Pillows Free!

We again make our unparalleled offer of free pillows with your order enclosing $10 for our famous 36-lb. feather bed. All made of new sanitary feathers; best ticking and equipped with sanitary ventilators. Freight prepaid. Delivery guaranteed. Money back if not satisfied. Agents in the big money. Turner & Corwell, Dep. A-0 Memphis, Tenn. or Dept. A-0 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Proud of Your Hair?

If not, why rest contented? Ayer's Hair Vigor gives softness and richness to the hair, promotes its growth, keeps it from falling; cannot change the color. Ask your doctor about using it. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Will Make You Money

FULLER & JOHNSON STEEL FRAME

BEMIS

TRANSPLANTER

The only practical machine for transplanting Tobacco, Cabbage, Sweet Potatoes, Strawberries, Nursery Stock, etc. Better than by hand. Plants start sooner and mature more evenly. Great saving in time and labor; great increase in yield per acre.

Set Your Plants When You Are Ready. Don't Wait For Rain.

Each plant watered at the roots, which are slushed and spread out, and around which the earth is firmly packed by the covering plates, which are shaped so as to leave the earth loose about the stems of the plant; no baking of the earth about the plant stem and no sunburning of the plant. Every feature necessary for every purpose, every adjustment desired, perfect working qualities; easily handled, light draft; setting with this machine is equal to cultivating the field once. Will set from three to five acres per day.

A Money Saver For You.

Read what some of the nearby planters say about it:

From B. J. Baker, Snow Hill, N. C. The Fuller & Johnson Bemis Transplanter purchased from you last spring is just as good as I expected and a little better. Every farmer should have one, and if I could not replace mine $700.00 would not buy it.

From Herman Porter, Goldsboro, N. C., R. F. D. No. 4. The Fuller & Johnson Bemis Transplanter purchased from you last spring is everything you claim for it and more. It does the work and does it thoroughly, and I would not be without one if they cost double the price.

From H. V. Faulkner, Smithfield, N. C., R. F. D. No. 1. The Fuller & Johnson Bemis Transplanter is all you claim it to be. It does the work perfectly. It is the most perfect machine I ever used. I would not be without it for ten times its cost if I could not get another.

From Geo. W. Coley, Rocky Mount, N. C. The Fuller & Johnson Bemis Tobacco Transplanter bought of you last spring is all you claim for it. I bought it with the understanding that if it was not what I wanted I could return it. As soon as I began using it I found it was what I wanted and paid for it. It certainly will do the work.

Write to the Madison Plow Company, Manufacturers, Madison, Wisconsin, or W. B. Leonard, General Representative for the East and South, Elmira, New York, for special descriptive pamphlets, or write or call upon any of the following representative dealers, who sell and warrant this popular machine:

H. E. Brewer & Co., Rocky Mount, N. C.

L. Harvey & Sons Co., Kinston, N. C.

Hinnant-Riers Co., Wilson, N. C.

E. O. McLamb, Keener, N. C.

Stevens F. & I. Co., Smithfield, N.

R. H. Elmore, Melia, Va.

Dixon Brothers Mercantile Co., Snow Hill, N. C.

Hallwood Feed & Supply Co., Hallwood, Va.

Hart & Hadley, Greenville, N. C.

E. R. Johnson, Currituck Co., N. C.

Smith Hardware Co., Goldsboro, N. C.

J. S. Wooten, La Grange, N. C.

Martin Hall, Oak Hall, Va.

J. T. Edgerton & Brother, Kenly, N. C.

Geo. M. Holley, Coleraine, N. C.

MARRIAGES

Brinkley-Branton

October 16, 1913, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brinkley, Saratoga St., Suffolk, Va., their niece, Miss M. Blanche Branton, became the bride of Mr. L. C. Brinkley, of Monroe, N. C. Mrs. I. W. Johnson rendered the music and accompanied Miss Katie Brinkley, who sang "Melody of Love" just before the ceremony. The ring service was used. The ceremony was performed by the writer. Immediately after the ceremony, the couple left for a tour of Washington and other points. They will reside at Monroe, N. C., where the groom is employed with the S. A. L. Ry. I. W. JOHNSON.

Atkinson-Turner

On October 23, 1913, at the home of the bride's parents, in Nansemond Co., Va., Mrs. Wm. Murray Atkinson and Miss Bertie E. Turner were united in marriage, in the presence of a large number of friends. Just before the ceremony Miss Violet Atkinson sang "Melody of Love." Mrs. I. W. Johnson rendered the instrumental music for the occasion. The ring service was used. There was a reception following the ceremony. There were a large number of bridal presents. These young people have many friends who wish for them a happy and useful life. Ceremony performed by the writer.

I. W. JOHNSON

Ellis-Matthews

On November 23, 1913, at the residence of the writer, at 321 Saratoga St., Suffolk, Va., Mr. Charles W. Ellis and Miss Lillie M. Matthews, of Nansemond Co., Va., were united in marriage. Ceremony performed by the writer.

I. W. JOHNSON.

Duke-Turner

On December 3, 1913, at the home of the bride's father, near Liberty Spring Church, Miss Henrietta Turner became the bride of Mr. William E. Duke. It was a quiet, but very pretty marriage. The ceremony was performed by the writer. May their lives be useful and happy.

I. W. JOHNSON.

Pollard-Taylor

On December 7, 1913, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Taylor, Miss Bina E. Taylor became the bride of Mr. William R. Pollard. Mrs. I. W. Johnson rendered the music for the occasion. The ceremony was performed by the writer. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for a Northern tour, after which they will be at home at Suffolk, where the groom is an automobile salesman. May their lives be useful and happy.

I. W. JOHNSON.

York-Andrews

At the residence of Rev. Thos. F. Andrews, December 10, 1913, I united in marriage F. Eugene York and Miss Ethel Andrews. The parlor was beautifully decorated, and the ceremony was impressive. The evergreen arch, the music, the sacred vows, the prayer, are appropriate when lives are joined together, and we are reminded of the spiritual union of Christ and the Church.

The bride and groom are both deservedly popular. The bride is a daughter of Rev. Thos. F. Andrews, and is much esteemed. The groom is a son of R. W. York, a prosperous farmer, and a devoted member of Parks Cross Roads Christian Church.

T. E. WHITE.

Several of Arizona's school laws are models of simplicity and effectiveness, according to officials of the United States Bureau of Education.

CHRISTMAS

ABSOLUTELY
Flexible
Bindings

OUR BEST BIBLE BARGAINS

Will Not Break
in the Back

Specimen of Type
Holman Home Bible

Flexible Binding

Thumb Index on any of the above styles, 35 cents additional. Names lettered in Gold, 25 cents additional.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' POCKET BIBLES

Size, 5½ x 3½ inches. Specimen Agate Type.

No. 1108. Divinity Circuit Bible, bound in Durable Grained Leatheroid, round corners, burnished edges, gold titles. New clear Black Print, with Colored Maps of the Holy Lands, and is Self-Pronouncing, which enables children to easily and accurately pronounce the difficult Scripture names. Post Paid, $.70

No. 91. Scholars' Bible, with Pictures and Helps to Bible Study, clear type, divinity circuit, French Morocco, gold edges, gold titles. Post Paid, 1.00

INTERMEDIATE SCHOLARS' BIBLES

Holman Editions—Size, 7½ x 5 inches. Specimen of Minion Type.

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 4000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style, Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc. Post Paid, 1.35

No. 215 RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ printed in Red, and with Red and Gold INLAID PANEL SIDE TITLE. Post Paid, 1.60

ADULTS', PREACHERS' and TEACHERS' BIBLES

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it very easy to read. Contains Marginal References and 400 pages of Helps to Bible Study, including a Bible Reader's Hand Book, Concordance with 50,000 References, Illustrated Bible Dictionary of over 5000 Subjects, 4000 Questions and Answers on the Bible, Indexed Atlas and Maps in Colors.

Size, 8½ x 5½ inches, LARGE 8vo. Specimen Bourgeois Type.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Holman Teachers' Bible. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, gold titles. The Binding is guaranteed not to break in the back. Post Paid, 2.25

No. 812 RL. Holman Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., are all PRINTED IN RED. New Copyright Helps to the Study of the Bible. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type. Post Paid, 2.70

No. 75 X. HOLMAN INDIA PAPER, GENUINE MOROCCO BOUND. Leather Lined, Silk Sewed. 8vo. Size, 6½ x 7½ inches. Large Bourgeois Type. Self-Pronouncing. Overlapping covers, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk sewed, silk head bands and purple silk marker, with HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY.

Heretofore such a binding was only obtainable on very high priced Bibles, but, through a special arrangement with the publishers, we are now enabled to offer this excellent Bible at an exceptionally low price. Post Paid, 5.00

A BIBLE FOR OLD FOLKS or the HOME

Printed from large clear Pica Type, with Marginal References. Family Record and Maps. Size, 6½ x 9 in. This HOME BIBLE is new and very desirable for everyday use, containing all the advantages of a Family Bible in a compact size that can be easily handled, with Record for Births, Marriages and Deaths. The best Bible obtainable for old folks who need extra large clear print and a light-weight book. The chapter headings are printed on the outside corner of each page, which makes the Bible self-indexed.

No. 2014. Strongly and Durably Bound in French Seal Leather, full flexible covers, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles. Binding will not break in the back, and will lie open perfectly flat, or can be turned back to back. Post Paid, 2.35

PRESENTS

ADDRESS

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

GIVE THEM A CHANCE

While you are educating your children and giving them the benefit of every possible opportunity to improve their talents, do not overlook supplying them with a sweet-toned Piano or Player Piano. You can never tell what talent a child may possess, or what skill it may acquire until you have given it a chance. Daily companionship with a high-grade instrument will be the great incentive to acquire that most coveted Art of Music. Do not make the mistake of waiting until your boy or girl has reached mature years. There will then be other demands on their time; their minds will have lost much of their earlier alertness, and it will be difficult for them to master the piano.

Act now while the Christian Sun Piano Club offers you the opportunity to secure the best pianos and player-pianos at the lowest possible cost and on terms to suit your convenience. For catalogue and full information address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Department, Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

The Christian Sun

VOL. 65

ELON COLLEGE, N. C., DECEMBER 24, 1913

NO. 52

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

God With Us

Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost. Then Joseph, her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a publick example, was minded to put her away privily. But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary, thy wife: for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost. And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus: for he shall save his people from their sins. Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us. Then Joseph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife: And knew her not till she had brought forth her firstborn son: and he called his name Jesus. (Matthew 1:18-25.)

College Education and Smoke

A public speaker called attention the other day to the fact that our big guns in the navy are so expensive in action that enough money went up in smoke every time one of them is fired to give a boy or girl a liberal education estimating the same to cost $1,700, and that six per cent. interest on the cost of one dreadnought would keep every man in the navy in some school till he had learned some useful and gainful occupation. This is shocking; but the boys in the colleges themselves puff enough away in smoke from pipe, cigars and cigarettes to sustain almost double their number in college. The smoke bill is enormous, and the expense of it makes that for education and religion seem insignificant.

"See Thou to That"

Just those four words sent a man to his lonely death, sent him with the deep darkness of midnight and of awful hell gathered about him and preying upon him—see thou to that. They have been the parting words of irresponsibility and despair for these thousands of years. When one entices you to sin, leads you into error, hires or allurses you to the wrong, and the awful consequences of that sin and wrong and error come, that one is not there to lead you back, or sustain your sorrow, or restore your lost goods or reputation, but ever and always hurls back the four fateful and fearful words: "See thou to that." When Iscariot had betrayed his Master and had felt the awful thing he had done, he repented, came and begged pardon, pity

He Knows

Brigadier-General Mills tells that while visiting the battlefield of Chickamauga recently he met with an old gentleman, a citizen of Virginia, who had two sons that fought on opposite sides in the Civil War. Both sons were brave men, rose to eminence, one wearing the blue, the other the gray, and both were killed in battle, though in different battles. After the War the fond father brought both bodies to Virginia, buried them in one grave and had a headstone placed there bearing the simple inscription, "God only knows who was right." The only solace the fond father had was that both sons had fought hard and died bravely. He knows; and that is consolation to every one who, in the fear of God, does his best, and dares all hazards to do his plain duty.

Crowding Out the Bible

The Attorney-General of Minnesota has decided that it is a violation of the State Constitution to read the Bible in the public schools of that State. His opinion was based upon that of another Attorney-General who had previously ruled that opening the public schools of the State with prayer was unconstitutional, and that he could see no constitutional difference between reading the Bible and praying. This seems absurd enough, but men eminent in church and educational circles killed a proposed amendment to the laws of North Carolina allowing the Bible to be read in the public schools. There are people who are so anxious about the program and propaganda of their own church that they will oppose the Bible or anything else unless taught and interpreted in their fashion and according to their views. Romance and fiction and foolishness may be read and taught in the public school, but the Bible is being crowded out.

The Baby

The baby in the home has more influence than any one else there. Big brother and big sister may speak abruptly, or unkindly, to each other, but never to the baby. Father may be in a hurry, and mother much wearied from many cares, but never too much so to give heed to baby's calls and coos. Neither father nor mother, brother nor sister, has as much power, exerts as much influence over the household, as baby. God knew this. He understood where the tenderest spot in the human heart was. He knew what could awaken sympathy, and interest, and love, even in the hardest heart, in the most callous mind. So He Himself took that Form and came amongst us. One has called this, with due reverence, we think, "God's finest stroke of policy." If the world's heart was so hard that it could not be reached by a baby then there was no hope. So the Babe came for our salvation as God's final and finest stroke of policy and of wisdom. This gave us Christmas—God's great effort through a Babe to arouse the world's heart.

Seeing the Children

Maria Montessori, founder of the system of child education and training which bears her name, also of "Houses of Childhood," is now on a visit to this country because, to quote her own words, "I want to see the children of America." Mme. Montessori, because of what she has done, and is doing, for children, is famous on two continents, and her work is yet in its infancy. She is lecturing in a dozen or more cities, and the American people give her glad welcome. She comes at an opportune time and season. The Christmas period is that at which childhood is emphasized and honored. And yet the Child that made all this possible was cradled in a manger because there was no room for Him in the inn; and then in a few days was hunted as an outlaw and had to be hurried away from the land of His nativity to save Him from the hands of a cruel and heartless tyrant. So through His life, a Man of sorrow and acquainted with grief. He did more for the elevation of childhood, the liberation of manhood, and the salvation of the race than any other person this world has ever known. This Babe, cradled in a manger and then hunted from the home of His infancy did not forget children, but exalted and honored them and said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of heaven."—Luke 18:16.

A Deceiver

New York papers tell us that a man was recently arrested, tried, convicted, and punished as a misdemeanor in that city for a rather singular offense. The man was wearing the pin of a fraternal order to which he did not belong. A real member of the order, seeing the man with the pin, supposed him to be a member, but on giving a "high sign" the fellow did not respond, and was immediately suspected. So far as the evidence was brought out he was not trying to work the pin for any personal profit, just wearing it is a thing or ornament and because he liked it. The court held that he was a deceiver in the act, however, and inflicted the penalty accordingly. Suppose every one who wears the badge of a Christian—who carries his name on the church roll or says with his lips he is a Christian—but at heart and in daily life is not a Christian, were arrested and convicted, one wonders if the prisons would be sufficient to hold them. We may deceive men, but we cannot deceive God, for God looks not at the level of the coat, but at the content of the heart. Matt. 7:21: "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven."

Do your best loyally and cheerfully, and suffer yourself to feel no anxiety or fear. Your talents are in God's hands. He has assigned your place. He will direct your efforts if they be faithful.—F. W. Farrar.

EDITORIAL

CHRISTMAS

And so we have lived to see the joyous season again. God has smiled upon us, blessed and spared us, given us His gracious favors and unnumbered benefits. We have health and hope and friends and fellowship. Best of all we have the gift of the Babe of Bethlehem, heaven's greatest gift to earth's greatest need. Many of us may miss the mark in giving our Christmas presents, but our heavenly Father did not. He so loved that He gave His only Son. There is no gift equal to that, for because of that we have Christmas, make merry, give gifts, and are happy.

Christmas then is the season and the spirit of giving, not getting, and he is the happiest and enters most fully into the occasion who gives most of the joy and satisfaction of others. "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Hence the blessedness of the season—the season of giving.

We wish that every SUN reader may enter into such a spirit and enjoy its blessed benefits. We have rushed on through the worn and weary year trying to get. Now let us tarry for a season and try to give. It may not be a big gift of money or lands or stocks or bonds; but a gift of self, of love, of consideration, to others who need and would be cheered and helped and benefitted. The world of men and women about us hungers often, not for ours, but for us. Let us give of ourselves in some way to the joy and happiness and benefit of some one or ones and in so doing our own souls shall be made glad.

The angel choir sang of peace and good will. We may help to swell that chorus by carrying peace and good cheer to others. This should be our message, peace on earth, good will amongst men, and by giving the best we have and are, we may make the chorus loud and glad and long.

The great host of CHRISTIAN SUN readers may help indeed to add to the world's cheer and gladness and joy. And this is the wish we make for them, one and all.

REBELLION AND DIVORCE

The rebellion among the small band of Navajo Indians in New Mexico, and the successful suppression of it, reminds one that the world has come a long way, in morals and religion, since the days of Abraham, and his plurality of wives and concubines. Our government said the Navajos must have one wife only, and forthwith the Indians set up a miniature rebellion, supplying themselves with arms, ammunition and some stolen women, and prepared to resist all comers. Troops were ordered to be in readiness, and serious trouble seemed imminent, but the polygamists finally yielded to the moral suasion of General Hugh L. Scott and surrendered both their arms and surplus wives. The Bible teaches monogamy, and the idea of polygamy is now revolting and abhorrent to the enlightened, certainly to the Christianized, mind throughout the world. That which must come to be revolting and abhorrent to Christians everywhere, is that which is next to having two wives; namely, divorcing one and marrying another. Our Savior spoke very clearly against this (Mark 10:11-12): "Whosoever shall put away his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery against her. And if a woman shall put away her husband, and be married to another, she committeth adultery."

THE POINT OF VIEW

Very much depends upon the point of view. The Pharisees and Saducees and Scribes and Herodians in Christ's day argued their position and persuaded themselves that they were right. But they had the wrong point of view. Nor were they open to conviction. They loved their way and would not be turned from it, even by the Son of God.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate prints an extract from Franklin's Autobiography which illustrates and is exceedingly significant. In 1774 when the Americans had concluded a treaty of peace with the "Six Nations" they were exceedingly anxious to show their good faith to the Indians and so sent envoys saying that there was a college at Williamsburg, Va., Williams and Mary, at which six Indian youths would be educated and take care of if sent there. The next day the Indians replied in these words:

"We are convinced that you mean to do us good, and we thank you heartily; but you who are wise must know that different nations must have different conceptions of things; and you will not take it amiss if our ideas of this kind of education happen not to be the same with yours. We have had some experience of it. Several of our young people were brought up at the colleges of the northern provinces; they were instructed in all your sciences; but when they came back to us they were bad runners, ignorant of every means of living in the woods, unable to bear either cold or hunger, knew neither how to build a cabin, take a deer, nor kill an enemy, spoke our language imperfectly; were therefore neither fit for hunters, warriors, nor counselors. They were therefore, totally good for nothing. We are however, not the less obliged for your kind offer, though we decline to accept it; and to show our grateful sense of it, if the gentlemen of Virginia will send us a dozen of their sons, we will take great care of their education, instruct them in all we know and make men of them."

PEACE

To commemorate the notable event that one hundred years have passed since English-speaking people have engaged in war against each other there is a project on foot to build in New York a Museum of the Peaceful Arts. There is to be a group of twenty great buildings erected at a cost of $30,000,000 and a fund of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 to be expended annually for maintenance. The incorporators include men of national reputation, and their object is to "preserve to posterity the records industrial, mechanical and scientific progress" of the hundred years. This is an immense project and on a scale worthy of the event it is proposed to celebrate. But the salient fact in bringing about this century of peace seems to be ignored entirely in the memorial. The religion of Jesus Christ, with the forces and factors working for righteousness in His name, has done more to bring peace into the world than all physical, material and mental progress and development combined. The germ of this century of peace, and that germ whose fruitage is to bless and enrich all nations, was planted in the earth when our Savior said: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you." (Jno. 14:27.)

UNGRATEFUL

The United Department of Agriculture sends out this item: "Speaking at Cambridge, England, before a conference of agricultural teachers, the director of the British Meteorological Office ventured the opinion that bad weather cost the farmers of the British Isles an average of about $97,000,000 annually. Throughout the world hailstorms alone are said to annihilate upward of $200,000,000 worth of crops annually, and this is but an episode in the warfare waged by the elements against the tiller of the soil."

If the farmers of the British Isles lose nearly one hundred million dollars yearly by bad weather, one wonders what they make by good weather. And if the loss by hail storms is two hundred million, one wonders how many millions are saved by favorable weather conditions. If these millions' worth were added to the crops really harvested, the tiller of the soil would find that his warfare was the keener because prices were poorer and demand less brisk on the market.

It is the height of folly and ingratitude to pick out an incident of the weather and complain that we "lost thus and so by it." God gives the weather and the soil and the rain and all the increase. To say what we lost is to say that God might or could have been better to us than He was—which is unthinkable. God is love and deals with us only in love and mercy and favor and goodness.

A NEW YEAR RESOLUTION

If CHRISTIAN SUN readers really wish to make a new year resolution that will count, let it be framed after this fashion: God being my helper, I will seek, in every way possible, to be, the coming year, a more loyal and devoted church member, and will do what I can to help send the gospel to those who have it not, and will try to do and be just what God would have me. Such a resolution carried out would count. The trouble with many of our resolutions is that they are too numerous and too little and leave God and the church and the great issues out. If we mean business we should begin in a business-like way and seek to accomplish something for Christ and the church. Let us take God into our new year resolution and see if it does not count for more. Don't make too many—just one good and true and worthy one. To carry that out will count for something.

NO SUN NEXT WEEK

In keeping with a well established and meritorious custom there will be no CHRISTIAN SUN next week. The printers have driven away faithfully at their task for fifty-one weeks, and now want, and should have, a few days off for rest, recreation, and a new start. The editor neither needs nor deserves a rest, but feels that his readers do, so he will content himself by putting double pains and time on the next issue which will appear under date of January 7, 1914.

Best wishes and a happy new year to all our readers, young and old, great and small.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

The longer this man's name stays on the pages of history the more luminous and illustrious does his character become. Recently occurred an incident that proved afresh his thoroughness in any undertaking, and the exactness and precision with which he did things. In 1751, when only a lad of nineteen, he made surveys through the valleys of the Virginia hills for Lord Fairfax. Recently the government, with the most improved scientific instruments, surveyed these same lines and lands in connection with the Appalachian forest reserve, and found Washington's surveys, with primitive instruments and bonfires on hill-tops as markers and signals, perfect. One hundred and sixty-two years had not sufficed to obliterate the steady hand, accurate mind and honest heart of a master. That which is exact and perfect does not suffer the ravages of time, and never passes away. On this account our Savior said: "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away"—Mat. 24:35.

THE WHOLE LIFE

It is written that when James A. Garfield was president of Hiram College, years before he came to be president of the United States, a father brought his son to the educator and said: "I want my boy to take the shorter course and get through early, for he will never take in all you offer in your regular course." "All right," replied Garfield, "we can give it to him. It all depends upon what you want to make of him. When God wants to make an oak He takes a hundred years; when He wants to make a squash He requires only two months." Many in this world act and live as if they thought they could make characters that would endure through all eternity by only giving a day now and then, to the work of preparing. If we are to build for all time to come we shall have to have a care as to how we build. God wants, not the fragments of a life, but a life, for it requires a lifetime in which to prepare for God's eternity. The time not spent in God's service here on earth is wasted time—and makes for ruin and undoing.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—We are to build churches this year at Reidsville and High Point, a work delayed all too long, but one which we rejoice to know is to be begun and pushed on to conclusion.

—Rev. J. S. Carden, Durham, was a pleasant visitor Saturday. The work goes well in Bro. Carden's field and he is making a worthy effort to bring in the number of new subscribers to THE SUN allotted to his churches.

—The Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Conference raised about $1200 the past year and has made $1500 the objective for the coming year. We trust all the other Conferences may have soon a C. M. A. of equal power and liberality.

—Rev. J. F. Morgan, who began work at High Point just after the session of the Western N. C. Conference at Ramseur, reports a lot purchased, the deed secured, and that there is prospect for a church building on the lot at no distant date.

—President W. A. Harper's splendid addresses on Missions before the N. C. and Va. Conference are to be put in tract form for free distribution, and should prove a valuable addition to our missionary literature. They are to appear also in The Herald of Gospel Liberty and THE CHRISTIAN SUN. With such wide reading as these publications make possible the addresses must prove of inestimable worth.

—Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Cardenas, N. C., and Miss Kate Clements Maynard, Holly Springs, were happily married at the bride's home last Thursday afternoon, December 18. Only a few invited friends were present. Immediately after the marriage they left for a visit to the bride's brother at Cheraw, S. C. The bride is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Quinton Maynard, and the groom is the beloved pastor of a circuit of churches in Wake County. We wish for the worthy pair that meed of joy and wedded bliss their worthy lives deserve and merit.

—Rev. Alonzo T. Banks, of Henderson, is a happy visitor at Elon College, where he is to wed Miss Jewel Michael, the charming daughter of our townsman, W. C. Michael, this (Wednesday) afternoon at 3:30. Dr. J. U. Newman is the officiating minister. Rev. and Mrs. Banks will be at home at Henderson after January 6, and will occupy a house near the Christian church, of which Brother Banks is the beloved pastor. If Henderson people don't give this worthy couple a glad welcome and such a donation party as they deserve we shall be surprised.

—Mr. Chas. A. Hines, Greensboro, has resigned as Field Secretary and Editor of the Young People's Department, and Mr. Carl B. Riddle has been elected by the Executive Committee to serve in his stead. The weekly visits of Bro. Hines to SUN readers in their homes have been much appreciated and very helpful to many. We regret that he could not see his way clear to continue the work. We congratulate the Committee in its selection of Bro. Riddle. He is not unknown to the readers of these columns, and is fruitful of ideas, wields a ready pen and is deeply interested in the work. The Young People's Department will be ably edited under his supervision.

NEWS AND VIEWS

—Burglars entered the post office at Mt. Gil-ead, N. C., before day Sunday a. m. and carried away $700 worth of stamps and $300 in cash. The yeggmen left no clue as to their identity.

—The Baptists of this State have, in keeping with instruction from their Convention last week, made their apportionment for home missions in the state upon a basis of $55,000, which is an increase of $5,000 over last year.

—The currency measure in Congress nears completion and Congressmen are looking for home sweet home with their families during Christmas after a strenuous year's work. There was not even a Summer vacation. President Wilson is to go to the far South for a rest of a few weeks.

—George Johnson, a stone cutter at Mt. Airy, N. C., was shot Sunday p. m. at 3 o'clock by Elow Roberts, another stone cutter, over a game of cards. The men were drinking and playing cards and the affray occurred as mentioned. The wounded man cannot live, and the other is being hunted by a posse of armed men. The wages of sin is death.

—The Charlotte Observer thus: "Vassar girls are forbidden to take moonlight strolls, entertain young men friends after sundown, or keep cats. Wellesley girls must not chew gum or stay out after 10 o'clock. Swathmore girls who danced the tango at a frat entertainment are punished. Syracuse co-eds are forbidden to tango or turkey-trot. What is the world of Eastern college girls coming to?" Let us hope it is coming to sense, sanity and soberness.

OUR CAMPAIGN FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS

As is known by many SUN readers, we are in a campaign for 1,000 new subscribers by April 1: The Conferences have practically pledged this number, and we are endeavoring to give every minister credit for every subscription sent in, so that we may know just what each and all are doing, and how the work goes. If there are any corrections to be made from time to time, we shall appreciate the same, as we desire that every one shall have due credit for work done. To date we have received the following:

Rev. L. I. Cox, Elon College, N. C.

Hiram Freeman Ether, N. C.
Mrs. N. A. Allen Okeewemee, N. C.
Mrs. Ada Allen Alreds, N. C.
Daniel Ward Alreds, N. C.
Mrs. C. A. Needham Ether, N. C.
M. W. Freeman Ether, N. C.

J. T. Freeman Ether, N. C.
K. W. Moore Ether, N. C.
Jane Stewart Liberty, N. C.
W. O. Carter Liberty, N. C.
T. E. Fogleman Liberty, N. C.
J. H. Fogleman Liberty, N. C.
F. H. Pickard Liberty, N. C.
Irene Brame Summerfield, N. C., R. 1
C. C. Griffin Summerfield, N. C., R. 1
S. A. Harris Wentworth, N. C., R. 1
J. W. Brame Wentworth, N. C., R. 1
Eva Gunn Wentworth, N. C., R. 1
Mollie Sharpe Summerfield, N. C.
Ed. R. Rascoe Reidsville, N. C.
Mrs. A. G. Fagg Reidsville, N. C.
Mrs. P. C. Apple Reidsville, N. C.
Geo. D. Lambeth Reidsville, N. C.
G. M. Ross Wentworth, N. C., R. 1
Rev. A. N. McAbee, Barnesville, Ga., R. 1
T. W. Barber Barnesville, Ga., R. 1
Neill Kerns Allreds, N. C.
U. H. Deaton Allreds, N. C.

Rev. P. T. Klapp

T. W. Price, Mt. Bethel Church, Summerfield, N. C.
W. L. Cummings, Mt. Bethel Stokesdale, N. C.
W. D. Lanier, Moore Union Sanford, N. C.
B. F. Gunter Moncure, N. C.
B. T. Buchanan R. 1, Moncure, N. C.
T. R. Fiddle R. 1, Summerfield, N. C.

Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va.

W. T. Harris Suffolk, Va., R. 3
G. C. Bray Suffolk, Va., R. 3
W. T. Kilby Suffolk, Va., R. 3

Rev. B. J. Earp, Semora, N. C.

C. G. Sharpe Goldston, N. C.
G. B. Elkins Bear Creek, N. C.
Miss Sank Hart Green, N. C.

Rev. W. G. Clements, Morrisville, N. C.

M. B. Stowd, Oak Level Mebane, N. C.
Ed. Smith Clayton, N. C.

Rev. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va.

E. L. Daughtridge Franklin, Va.

Rev. S. B. Klapp, Greensboro, N. C.

Mrs. Elise Addor Keyser, N. C.

Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., Suffolk, Va.

A. S. Pierce 127 Spring St., Suffolk, Va.

Rev. J. S. Carden, Durham, N. C.

J. D. Higgins R. 1, Pittsboro, N. C.
I. W. Farrell R. 1, Pittsboro, N. C.

Rev. H. H. Butler, Suffolk, Va.

B. F. Butler Zuni, Va.
D. W. Darden Franklin, Va.
W. H. Jones Franklin, Va.

Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Cardenas, N. C.

Mary J. Griffin Varina, N. C.
T. C. Buchanan Apex, N. C., R. 2
C. A. Carpenter Cary, N. C., R. 1
M. D. Smith Cary, N. C., R. 1
Richard H. Smith Raleigh, N. C., R. 6
J. R. Cross Raleigh, N. C., R. 1

Rev. R. F. Brown, Elon College, N. C.

C. F. Smith R 1, Seagrove, N. C.

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C.

Jno. T. Pittman Elon College, N. C.
Mrs. J. H. Pritchett Elon College, N. C.

Rev. H. E. Rountree, Greensboro, N. C.

Miss Pearl Jones, 919 Ashboro St., Greensboro, N. C.
Miss Effie Lowe, 763 Chestnut St., Greensboro, N. C.
Mrs. P. E. Tucker R. 2, Kernersville, N. C.
S. A. Tucker Greensboro, N. C.

Rev. I. W. Johnson, Suffolk, Va.

J. P. Duke Suffolk, Va.
C. C. Skinner Holland, Va., R. 2
Harry Bradshaw Holland, Va., R. 2

Rev. Herbert Scholz, Macon, N. C.

Mrs. W. G. Wall Elams, Warren Co., N. C.

Rev. W. C. Wicker, Elon College, N. C.

D. C. Huckabee Revolution, Greensboro, N. C.
B. H. Angel Revolution, Greensboro, N. C.
W. T. Rich R 7, Greensboro, N. C.

Rev. C. C. Peel, Elon College, N. C.

A. Beal R. 4, Burlington, N. C.
Mrs. J. O. Sutton Lillington, N. C.
T. M. Mason Morrisville, N. C., R. 1
J. M. Fuller Buffalo Junction, Va.

Rev. A. T. Banks, Henderson, N. C.

T. C. Lindsay Chapel Hill, N. C.

Rev. G. R. Underwood, Sanford, N. C.

Mr. Fred Ray Sanford, N. C.
J. T. Harrington Sanford, N. C.

Rev. W. L. Wells, Durham, N. C.

M. J. Perry Durham, N. C.
J. L. Cash Durham, N. C.

THE VICTORY OF CHRISTMAS

A SERMON BY S. PARKES CADMAN, D.D., LL.D.,

Pastor of Central Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Romans 8:3: "For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God, sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh and as an offering for sin, condemned sin in the flesh."

I

 HE world was no longer young when it first fell under the spell of Christmas. Bruised, baffled, defeated, the accents of its despair are echoed in this Scripture. The handwriting of ordinances was against it, the testimony of a universally outraged conscience left it without excuse. The law, in itself just and good, had presented claims its rewards and penalties could not enforce; its attempted reign had resulted in confusion and rebellion. The transgressions it could not pardon were accentuated by its stern presence. While much that was beneficial began and ended in the law, as an angel of restoration its mission had been a failure. Judaism observed the traditions of men rather than the commandments of God. Its spirit and bearing afforded no hint of betterment; the enlightenment of the prophets had been followed by the bitter fruit of Pharisaism. Greece and Rome, sick unto death, were the arenas of degenerate and contentious philosophical and artistic cults. In the lull of that holy eve at Bethlehem an old era was expiring, and neither the Mosaic covenant nor the precepts of the sages could arrest the dissolution. These arose from a common conscience, made a brave display, required that which was just and right, but the inherent weakness of human nature prevented their evident benefit, and the soul of the race was orphaned, homeless, friendless and destitute. Had man known less he would have been more content. He was deeply conscious that God had accepted and forgiven to such an extent as to admit him to the consciousness of His presence and holiness. Aware of his divine rights, he lacked the authority to validate them. Prolific in possibilities and dreams of purity, he remained buried in carnalities. Evermore strong in his conviction of an imperishable and spiritual element; evermore weak by reason of the arrogant usurpation of his lower nature; self-opposed, self-riven, in perpetual slavery to his own corruptions, he cried out in his dire extremity, "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?"

From this inward abyss of mutiny welled up the hate, the war, the tyranny, the calamity which robbed nations of their strength and honor. Over against these there arose the religious systems which embraced penances, appeals, sacrificial rituals and attending priesthoods, all invoking whatever gods may be and all futile to heal humanity of its deep-seated diseases. Is it any wonder that the apostle, perceiving these things with the insight of an inspired moral genius, solemnly asseverated, "By the works of the law shall no man be justified"? In him the sense of their impotence to secure peace as not only alert, it was aflame. Born in the heart of Hebraism, cradled in its history, familiar with its provisions, its atmosphere his native air, he fully recognized both its august claims and its fatal incompleteness. Like a clear, cold star, remote from fevered, jaded earth of passion, lawlessness and crime, it still had radiance enough to illuminate the paths of life and fire enough to burn his nothingness into man. The iniquity which lurked within his members paralyzed his obedience and for Jew or Gentile the law, however they conceived it, was at once magnificent but inaccessible and as a gospel utterly impotent.

II

Then came Jesus, the Life-Giver, to vitalize truth and justice in mercy's embassy. Time did not soften the horror of the situation, distance lent it no enchantment. It was sufficient that the dear Lord was born while the madness and despondency were most rife, and a strong pulse of faith and joy and hope at once began to beat. The past was vindicated and the future was secured in that Greater Man of whom John Milton sings. Heaven opened wide the gate of "her high palace hall" to receive the forgiven children of the Father. The infinite reality of this event has been universally felt. Multitudes who could not or did not care to reason about it or their emotions concerning it were aware that God was then revealed to His creatures, and the revelation was the spring of their delight. Others saw that the divine residence in man had won for the race eternal distinction. The more enlightened rejoiced because the warfare was accomplished and our ancient foes were vanquished by the direct interference of the Everlasting Will. The separateness and austerity of statutory enactments and the verdicts of rigid and unbending morality were absorbed and blended in the greater righteousness of regenerating love, embodied in One who, remembering that we are dust, showed that even the dust could be transfigured, perfected and glorified. From the days of Christ's flesh to the present moment men and women and children everywhere have been recreated by the breath divine which was first received at Bethlehem. Renewed in the image of Him who created them, they have found their way to the mount of God and raised the ceaseless alleluia of the Church.

These are the facts and the related sentiments and interpretations which have enhanced the Christmas victory. They found their extension in the literature of the New Testament, and their consummation in one great unity of God and man through Christ Jesus is an organic phase of Christian experience which persists now as then. In the meantime we can await the day of Christ, firmly fixed upon the substantial and reasonable grounds for faith which Saint Paul presents to our view. He found in the inability of the law the divine opportunity for sin's condemnation. Jesus was the end of the law to every one that believed. His entrance into humanity and the mediation of His eternal life transformed the fallen nature which had been under its interdiction. The robe of clay we wear was not necessarily vile, since such a Prince could wear it. The readjustments His incarnation effected have operated in ways too manifold and subtle for our wisdom, too deeply recessed and spiritually alive to be injured by alien forces. If our own kind had produced monsters who surpassed the dreams of infamy, it was now incorporated with the Holy One and the Just, with the ineffable luster of Mary's maternal sanctity and the heroic virtues of a new type of man.

One is reminded of the marvelous changes in nature. The Winter storms come to the verge of Spring and their proud course is stayed. The snow thins into misty veils, weird messengers of light scurry across the sky, rending asunder its gray shadows. Soft and balmy winds begin to softly blow down the frozen mountain pass and across the desolate plain. Their warm wings have dipped on a thousand leagues of ocean waves; they silently caress the living and the dead. The icy grasp yields to their recurrent touch and the released rivers ripple through the green flush of earth's living robes. Presently the flowers appear, the birds sing, the sower goes forth to sow and it is very bliss to be alive.

Yet the same elements are at work in all seasons. The miracle is not in them, but in the kindlier handling of Him who has decreed that the dayspring from on high shall visit us. He directs the energies of the Pacific isles toward the frozen wheat plains of our land and makes it laugh with abundance. In like manner the new moral and spiritual world began with Christ's appearance, when the arid Winter of our discontent gave place to glorious Summer and the fountains of pity and consolation were broken up. This, as I understand it, is the Christmas victory of Him who was called Jesus because He should save His people from their sins. He declared that He and the Father were one, and certainly to nothing less than that declaration dare we turn, in nothing less can we trust. He who sent the law as the herald of regeneration has fulfilled His promise. The God who caused Sinai and Horeb to tremble waited a little while and spoke again in His Son, by whom He made the heavens and the earth. The law and the gospel were thus concentrated in one aim, and the moral restoration arising from their united purpose justifies the ways of God toward men. The genesis of Christian belief as found in the earliest logia of Saint Mark and those of Saint Matthew and Saint Luke regarded Jesus as upraised by His birth, mission and sacrifice to an eternal sovereignty in which He interprets man to God. Development came later and came legitimately. The vast perspectives of Saint Paul and Saint John, in which our daysman is the object of angelic adoration and the Savior of the race, are projected from His own words under the direction of the Holy Spirit. We do not see His rule completed. Provinces of human life and action have not yet bowed to His easy yoke, but we see Jesus, the Man of the five wounds, lodged in the courts of time as a part of eternity, making known the Father to His offspring, and in wrath remembering us in mercy. Who among us can celebrate this Feast of the Nativity if he has not made this victory over sin his own! Are we not debtors to personality? A father's counsels and a mother's prayers track the erring child to the last haunts of vice. The memory of Lincoln demands the nation for its habitation, Shakespeare monopolizes literature, Saint Paul captured Western Christianity and reached on the father East, but Jesus, the Captain of these leaders and of all the armies of the saintly and the great, is better still, our Prophet, Priest and King.

Those who bid us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die; seize our pleasures and stifle our pains, turn the paling lamp of life on fleeting joys and purchase a temporary cessation from our hurt and woe, are children of the vanishing night. Those who never doubted that the night would vanish, held that we fall to rise and sleep to wake, are thrice blessed in their anticipation. The river of tears, blood-clothed, full of shame, flowing out of the blackness behind into the blackness beyond, ruthlessly, constantly flowing, has at last been arrested and presently will be dried up. And now we reach the higher levels of devout meditation, whence arise the streams which make glad the City of God. From those levels of religious aspiration and trust reason elaborates its meanings, concepts and beliefs. Still, however, they remain unsearchable in their richness, unfathomable in their depth. For this is the birthday of the universal heart of man, the organ of closest contact with his Maker, of response to this exceeding gift of Christ, of intimate communion with the gift Himself. Christmas proclaims the gospel of sin's destruction through the medium of the flesh which has been its fortress; the unutterable fact that we live in a redemptive world, guided by a redeeming God. Furnished with every celestial essential, made in all points like unto His brethren, the known history of Jesus has shown how that in Him God walked on this earth and shot through and through with everlastingness the vesture we inhabit, the existence we occupy.

"No one could tell me where my soul might be,
I searched for God and He eluded me,
I sought the Babe and found all three."

Although the music of the life of Jesus is heard on earth, it originated in heaven. His virgin Spirit, His sinless career, His majestic teaching, His flawless equipment in everything we conceive of as divine are presented so fully and cogently that the ideal becomes the real and we are prepared to accept His own explanation of His presence and purpose here. The people who sat in darkness welcomed His uprising, the deserts of cruelty and abomination began to blossom as the rose. For since by man came death, by man came also this greater resurrection from the dead.

III

It should be noted that Saint Paul's argument is based on the worth of Jesus Christ as the personalized love, grace and authority of the Supreme Being. He re-established righteousness on His own terms, as the disposer of all goodness, making it to abound through grace and by faith. This Redeemer was God's only begotten Son, the designed and express image of the otherwise invisible Deity, and yet bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh, foreign to nothing that is our lot, living, acting, dying and rising again on our behalf.

Does this message come to one who is bowed down and weary, who says, My feet have well-nigh slipped, the mouth of hell is yawning to devour me? Then hear and accept the gospel; look to Jesus and live; follow after Him who is the Author and the Perfecter of your faith and obedience. And as you do so be encouraged by the testimony of this erstwhile Judaizer, this man of the lawing, this monarchical apostle who lived again because the Master lived in him. I sat, says Saint Paul, at the feet of the rabbis and saw ahead of their weavings and labyrinths. I caught at least a distant note of the Grecian porches. I felt the exaltation of a Roman citizen and claimed the protection of her eagles, but I fell with a failing world; into the pits of formalism and persecution I went neck and crop. Deadly are the sins of the flesh, mine were deadlier still; they ate up my manhood and made me a fearful ravager of the flock of God. I forfeited my peace and the fevers within me burned me up. Then I saw the Christ standing athwart my reckless course, and His soul passed into mine and my life was lost in His as a river in the sea. I am, in deed, as in name, the son of God, of love, of toil, of self-forgetfulness, the brother of my Elder Brother, in bonding to whom I have found perfect liberty. What a triumph, whose strains were first made possible at Bethlehem! It is chanted today with increasing volume, if not in such passionate intensity. It sets forth the Child of the Stable, the Youth of Nazareth, the Preacher of the Mount, the Sufferer who ascended Calvary. Its keynote is salvation; its theme the honor and immortality of man; its undertone the abolition of sin and its ghastly entail; its ascensive chorus, the sanctification of the whole creation of God through the adoption by redemption of His reborn sons. This is the victory of Christmas. Its tremulous apologetic stages are found in a passing or periodic state of charity and good cheer. Its glad, confidence morning belongs to those who believe that God in Christ swept past the nature of angels that he might tenant the seed of Abraham and become Emmanuel, God with us. The seraphim enjoy no higher renown; their wondering gaze is fixed on our passage to the skies, while God is pleased to show His wisdom and His love in His incarnate Son and in the brotherhood of the Church.—In New York Christian Advocate.

"THE BEST STORY I EVER HEARD"

A number of men in a Pullman car agreed each to repeat the best story he had ever heard, to help while away the tedious hours of travel.

One told how a fireman had climbed the dizzy ladder to the top story of a tall building after the chief had ordered the men back, and how he barely saved the life of a sleeping babe.

Another told of a young man who left college and took his father's place as the head of the household after the father had been sent to prison for embezzlement, and how the brave young fellow bore the odium, carried on the business, and paid back every dollar that his father had taken.

A third related the story of a physician, the honor man of his class, who spent his life ministering to the poor of the city slums, when he might have had a lucrative practice among the wealthy, and who was at last discovered in actual want and dying by one of the members of his class in the college of medicine, a wealthy practitioner, who had resolved to look up the "most brilliant young surgeon the college had ever graduated."

Each story was applauded in its turn, and each one seemed a little better than the last, so that, when it came to the turn of the last one to tell a story, all wondered how he could possibly keep up the interest; the climax seemed to have been reached; nothing finer or nobler could possibly be narrated.

The King Who Exiled Himself

This last story-teller began to relate how a part of the subjects of a certain king raised the flag of rebellion against him. He had the resources to crush them; but he stayed his hand from the blow while he disguised himself as one of them, and went among them to live in poverty, earning his bread by the most humble employment, so that he might study how to win them back to his allegiance.

The story grew in interest as he related how the self-exiled king went among the subjects who hated and defied him, ministering graciously to their sick, feeding their hungry, cheering the discouraged, and how, finally, when he was yet in the prime of his young manhood, after he had so won many of them that they wanted to seize the peasant youth, as they supposed, and make him their king, he gave his life for these, his enemies, to prove to them that he still loved them, though they would have none of him.

The story-teller drew so graphically and effectively the contrast between the throne that was left behind and the ministering peasant, whose heart was so filled with compassion, that the previous stories seemed to pale in comparison; the men were strangely moved, and after a deep quiet that pervaded the car for a minute one of them said softly,

"That Christmas Story Surely Is the Best."

It is, because, as Henry Ward Beecher said, "When I stand in Zion before God, the brightest thing I shall look back upon will be that blessed morning of May when it pleased God to reveal to my wondering soul the idea that it was His nature to love a man in his sins for the sake of helping him out of them; . . . in short, that He felt toward me as my mother felt toward me, to whose eyes my wrongdoing brought tears, who never pressed me so close to her as when I had done wrong, and who would fain, with her yearning love, lift me out of trouble."

Or, as Dwight L. Moody said, "I used to think of God as a stern judge on the throne, from whose wrath Jesus Christ had saved me. It seems to me now that I could not have had a falsier idea of God than that. Since I have become a father, I have made this discovery, that it takes more love and sacrifice for the father to give up the son than it does for the son to die."

The Cream of the Christmas Story is the Father's love. The emphasis of Christmas from a sentimental point of view has always been placed upon childhood, but the real theological emphasis is on fatherhood. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son." "The Word became flesh, and dwelt among us," not as Jean Stewart, in the book entitled "Goodly Fellowship," the petted heiress and society girl of New York, became a missionary in Persia in spite of the pleadings and commands and ridicule of her wealthy and fashionable friends, because she chanced into a mission station there and saw the beautiful self-denial and consecration of its workers; but rather, as Thorley Prescott, the hero of the story, became a missionary, because his dear mother had put her hand on his head when he was a boy, and given him to God for missionary work, and he dared not meet her in judgment unless he obeyed her wish.

The Word's becoming flesh involves not merely the Son leaving His throne in heaven, but the Father leading Him to the battlements of heaven, and pointing to a lost and ruined world, and saying: "I want you to go to them. I love them even as I love You. We must save the lost sheep."—Rev. J. F. Cowan, D. D., in Christian Endeavor World.

The true gift, however trifling, is the one that comes with some suggestion of the heart with it. Thought in the selection means more than price in the purchase. Such gifts say: "You have had a place in my kindly thought; I have studied your tastes and wishes."—Ex.

"It is possible to stifle the eternal part of man's nature by absorption in the immediate objects of the moment presented to us by the world, but such a life is precisely that of the beasts that perish, which gaze contentedly on the grass before them until the hour when the knife falls."

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER

Nineteen hundred and thirteen years have been added to the centuries of time since the Babe that ushered in Christmas was born and laid in a manger. The most helpless being and the most powerful being is a babe; but the most powerful of all was the Babe of Bethlehem. His name is above every name. His influence grows with centuries. He changed the calendar of time. He changed the Roman empire into a Christian state. He put the world to thinking in ways to save mankind. He has changed nearly all the governments of the world. He dominates the greatest and most powerful nations of the world. He sets the standard for all highest and best life. He grows larger in the thought and affection of the human race as centuries add their testimony to His worth. He not only drew the wise men from the East, but He draws all men unto Himself. Though Bethlehem was least among the cities of Judah she became the most renowned among the cities of the world. That cradle was not rocked, but it contained the Prince of Peace. That holy night when Jesus was born was the brightest night in all the eternities. The song of the angels lingers in the Sunday schools songs of thirty million singers; and the light of that night outshines the sun. Humanity and Divinity met in the Babe of Bethlehem, and earth and heaven met and kissed each other over the lap of Mary. The fires that were kindled in human hearts by that memorable birth will never go out till all the lights in the universe die in universal night. His life is light and His light is life. That sun seemed to set in the crucifixion; but it rose again on the morning of the resurrection.

Christmas celebrates the birth of Bethlehem's Babe and should awaken in human hearts the most reverend, spiritual emotions. No sensible person could look into the face of a babe and be stirred by frivolous feelings. There is something delightfully solemn in the face of a babe. Its helplessness, its innocence, its possibilities, its heavenliness, appeals to the highest and purest in our nature; yet the feeling is sweet, restful, purifying. Life seems more dignified, important, and responsible as our eyes gaze upon the face of a babe. The memory of the Babe that has touched the life of so many little ones cannot provoke boisterousness, rudeness, forgetfulness of God, dissipation, unless people forget the meaning and the lesson of Christmas.

Family reunions, presents among friends, social intercourse of uplifting character, exchange of greetings among friends, kindness extended to the poor, sympathy offered to those in trouble, songs that gladden the heart, feasts that fill the soul as well as the body, may all be indulged with pleasure and profit to man. Christmas brings the world to a pause; and pauses in society are just as necessary to the sense of life as marks of punctuation are to the sense of written words. Society needs days between days, occasions that concentrate life's best into a spirit that fills the air and commands men with authority. Christmas does that very thing. It carries its own power, delivers its own message, teaches its own lesson, closes the factories and the banks, dries the ink on the pen by the ledger, and silences the scream of whistles in the early morning by the vociferous shouts of happy childhood.

The march of bare feet—millions of them—on Christmas over velvet carpets or bare floors to look into millions of stockings is an army larger and mightier than any General ever led to battle; and the victory to be won by this Christmas host will outrank the victories of Alexander or Caesar. It is the army of innocence, the army of peace. Babyhood needs no monument of bronze or marble to perpetuate its glory, it erects its own monuments in the hearts and homes of the world. Wise men from the East worshipped Bethlehem's Babe and bestowed gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh; and wise men still present their gifts and their love. Isaiah said, "A little child shall lead them;" and it is literally so today. The thought, the plans, the expenditures, the anticipations of parents, as they wait for Christmas morning, is a tribute to Jesus Christ. Stores, trains, mails, banks, are crowded just before Christmas. Why all this stir, this business, this returning home, this closing of mills and schools? The Babe of Bethlehem is crying for human attention, service and love; and "inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of these ye have done it unto me," "for of such is the kingdom of heaven." It is Christmas. Grandma puts a lifetime into a look! Mama puts a year into a stocking! And baby gets a century out of an hour.

W. W. STALEY.

TO THE S. S. AND C. E. WORKERS

A message has just come to me that I have been elected Editorial and Field Secretary of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor work of the Southern Christian Convention to succeed Mr. Charles A. Hines, of Greensboro, N. C. This comes to me as a surprise, and finds me busy and seemingly without the time to devote to it. However, I have accepted with the hope that through this medium I may be of some service to the church to which I am devoted.

In accepting this position I fully realize the work that should be done and must be done to make the Sunday schools and Christian Endeavor Societies of the church capable of their best interest to the Master's cause. My work in this department both in the capacity of Secretary and Editor will have to be done amid busy hours of College life, but here we pledge to the entire brotherhood our best efforts, for knowing we shall have the support of all and the kindly suggestions of our predecessor.

To the Executive Committee of the General Convention we extend our thanks for the confidence which it has placed in us, but above all we thank God for the privilege and the pleasure of serving him in this way. Let our efforts be a unity, our labors for the advancement of the cause of Christ, and to this end we ask the prayers of all.

Yours, interested in the cause,

CARL B. RIDDLE.

December 22, 1913.

EXTRA FORCES

One of the greatest impediments the Church of God has today is the detestable sale of booze and the pestilential results which are sure to follow. There were fifteen hundred gallons of this horrifying beverage shipped into the city of Winston, N. C., last week, on one train, saying nothing of the amount which the other trains just previous to and following this have brought. The shipments have been so heavy that the Southern R. R. Co. has been compelled to employ extra forces to check up and dish out the "pop-skull" to the sots.

It is too sad, but nevertheless it is a fact that men buy booze and get drunk, thinking at the same time that they are celebrating the birth of our Redeemer; but they think erroneously, and mistake the real facts of the case. They are desecrating His birth rather than celebrating it. Shall we not say with united voices this evil is too grievous, too inglorious, and in its effect, too mischievous, to be borne? It is up to us as soldiers of that all-conquering Captain Who said, "I will not fail thee nor forsake thee," to enlarge and strengthen our forces that we may be enabled to battle against such evils with greater success and uphold the banner of the Cross. Let us look to the most indulgent Helper for the victory.

R. F. BROWN.

THE MAN OF CHARACTER

BY J. D. FRANKS

This is an age of almost world-wide progressiveness. There is a prevalent idea that we are living in a time in which our opportunities are limited, unless we are so fortunate as to be lucky or rich and thus on the road to progress and success. This conception will not apply when we come to consider who is really worth while; for we have men in our country who do not seem to love right or to hate wrong, neither are they active in trying to obey or to execute the laws of justice and thus eradicate evil. We have men in our midst who will scorn at those who are trying to put down wrong. But in the face of such opposition there comes the need as well as the opportunity for the man of character, whether he be rich or poor, whether he be old or young. And when I say a man of character, I mean a man who possesses all those virtues that go to make up an all-round, intelligent, honest, straightforward, progressive and conscientious citizen.

Wickedness and selfishness are in our midst and we need men of character, men whose moral traits are above reproach, and who will endeavor to establish the high standard of morality and right wherever they may go or wherever they may be. Such a class of men will never become too great in number.

So long as a person adheres strictly to the principles of truth and honesty, he or she will have enemies. Therefore, if you are a man of character you will have many battles to fight, you will have many burdens and criticisms to bear and many difficulties to overcome; yet it is only the man of character that really reaches the top.

Youth is the time in which to improve the mind, it is the time to lay broad and deep foundation for after life, and he who prepares the better foundation will perhaps live to see the greater monument to his success. The time, therefore, to begin a great career is early in life. A boy should be business-like and truthful, for it is most generally the polished boy that makes the polished man. Yet, if a young man has been reared by a godly father and mother, when he steps out into the world to work out his own destiny among men, he will find something for him to do. Temptations will be coming up constantly, and if he would not destroy the most valuable asset that he can possess in this life, he must be able to say when these little temptations come up, "Satan, get thee behind me." In many instances, it is little by little that men at first begin to depart from the path of rectitude. Perhaps the worst criminal in this nation today was once a young man of character, but, succumbing to little temptations, then to larger ones, and on, and on, until his life was ruined, his influence for good and his power to resist sin gone.

Then it is the duty of the man of character to be careful and watchful; "for it is the crown and glory of life, constituting a dignified rank within itself, dignifying every station and exalting every position in society. It exercises a greater power than wealth, and secures all the honors without the jealousies of fame. It carries with it an influence which always speaks for itself, and commands the respect and confidence of mankind."

I am glad that character cannot be swept away by one's enemies. I am glad also that the greatest and noblest rewards are for those who are striving to live up to their convictions; and never before has there been a greater demand for men of character than at the present time. It should be remembered by every young American that there is a time coming, not far distant, when America will appreciate your services and will expect you to be able to help bear the burdens as well as share in the glories and honors that belong to her citizenship.

I would say to the unscrupulous man without character or manly principles, your destiny is sealed unless you turn away from your unscrupulous practices and set about to become a man of character. The world will not hesitate to turn down the careless for the honest.

To the man of character who possesses those manly virtues that are necessary to meet the demands of the present day—morally as well as educationally, I say to you, you hold the keys to success; you are welcome on the farm, in the factory, in the store, in the bank, and even in the legislative hall of the state and nation.

I am proud that it is within the power of every boy and girl to build for themselves a character that will be immortal and will be in a sense as the "shadow of a great rock in a weary land." By acting nobly, thinking well, and striving to be true to yourself and to your friends, you will be made stronger and stronger, you will be made able to accomplish things that cannot be accomplished by the careless and negligent. Thus all the Satanic host of earth cannot destroy your character. The business world holds an outstretched hand to the boy or girl of character and bids you come; and, by the help of God, it is within your power to make men and women that will be a light, as it were, brighter than the midday sun.

To the man of character I would say again, if you will persevere, principalities, nor powers, things present nor to come, will prevent you from being justly rewarded for the high stand that you have taken in this life.

"Be something in this living age,
And prove your right to be
A light upon some darkened page,
A pilot on some sea.
Find out the place where you may stay;
Beneath some burden bow;
Take up the task with willing hands;
Be something, somewhere, now.

"Be something in this throbbing day
Of busy hand and feet;—
A spring beside some dusty way,
A shadow from the heat.
Be found upon the workman's roll;
Go mow, go reap, or plow;
Bend to some task with heart and soul;
Be something, somewhere, now.

"Be something in this golden hour
With actoin running o'er;
Add some momentum to its power,
A voice unheard before.
Be not a king without a throne
Or crown to deck thy brow;
Serve with the throne, or serve alone;
Oh! Be something, somewhere, now."

Elon College, N. C.

CHRISTMAS

The keeping of Christmas is more a thing of spirit than of mere date. As to the exact date, the oriental and the occidental churches disagree, yet the spirit of the word is what we are concerned with.

Christmas should be a time when we forget self and seek to make others happy.

"Oh, don't you think that giving

Is just the best of living,

When everybody thinks of all the rest?"

Then, too, on Christmas eve a message was sounded to workmen through the shepherds, their representatives. The toilers were remembered, and then began a social revolution resulting in the winning of a position of respect for the man who toils.

"This is the gospel of labor;

Ring it, ye bells of the kirk;

For the Lord of Love came down from above
To dwell with the men who work."

On the first Christmas came the promise of peace. Since then the spirit of brotherhood has been gaining sway over the hearts and the hands of men. The dove of peace is brooding over the nations of the earth, and though here and there peals out some discordant blast of the war god's trumpeter, yet that glad day is coming when every man shall aim at the common good of all men.

Christmas is, above all, a season of love. Its merry bells re-echo the glad truth that "God is love." Jesus Christ, who came at Christmas, is God's expression of love to man. At the gladsome Christmas season we may have our being thrilled by its music of love, if we but let our souls in worship behold the Master touch in reverence all of life's immortal keys, thus awaking the eternal melodies.—Elon College Weekly.

LOYALTY

Unfortunately, every organization and institution has connected with it those who are not loyal. Such persons are a constant source of annoyance and breeders of discontent. Every little fault seems to grow to immense proportions when nurtured by their fertile imaginations.

Why should we make ourselves unhappy, and also those about us, by our constant fault-finding? The trouble is usually the product of a morbid state of mind rather than something of real moment. Remember that where the spirit of loyalty does not prevail, there happiness and joy are strangers.

If you cannot be loyal to what and to whom you are now connected and associated with, you had better change your surroundings. It will be far better for all concerned. Be loyal to your friend, to your family, to your school, to your state and country, to your church, to your God,—and to every other thing or person with whom you have to do in the many relations of life. Thus will your life become more useful and worth while.—Elon College Weekly.

THE BOY

Something about boys attracts everybody strangely. The grimy, tousled, ragged boy on the street or on the farm I cannot help having a profound respect for. A boy is man in the cocoon—you do not know what it is going to become—his life is big with many possibilities. He may make or unmake kings, change boundary lines between states, write books that will mould character, or invent machines that will revolutionize the commerce of the world.

Call time backward and see Abraham Lincoln at twelve, when he had never worn a pair of boots,—the lank, lean, yellow, hungry boy, hungry for love, hungry for learning, tramping through the woods for ten miles to borrow a book to spell the words out. It was not all happiness with him, but a great reward was in view.

Boys, did you ever stop to think of the responsibility that is one day going to fall upon you? Abraham Lincoln did not have your or my chance to make a man of himself. We should keep this in mind, and always strive for the things which are noblest.

We have seen the farmer boy wearing the crownless hat with his hair sticking out at the top. We have seen the lad whose form was bony and awkward,—one suspender holding his trousers in place—and his bare legs and arms as brown as an Indian, from sunburn.

Who knows? That boy's life may depend greatly on our success.—Elon College Weekly.

A BIT OF RELIGION

For the sake of the shop-girls, we are all urged to do our Christmas shopping early.

For the sake of the mail-clerks, we are implored to mail our Christmas parcels early.

Let me add a third petition: for the sake of the subscription clerks, renew your subscriptions early!

Don't wait till the last minute, for thousands of others are doing that.

Exercise a bit of practical religion. That $1.50 is no bigger now than it will be two or three weeks hence, and your sending it now will help wonderfully to "ease up" on our office force.

What a glorious old world this would be if every one would take thought for every one else!—C. E. World.

WHAT CHRISTMAS MEANS TO ME

To me the charm of Christmas lies in the fact that the entire Christian world stands round the cradle of a child.

We are simple souls once more. We are not men and women struggling for place and power. We have laid down our weapons of offense and defense. We have abandoned our self-regarding attitude.

The breath of Christ is in the air, but not the Christ of Gethsemane and Calvary; not the Man of Sorrows and acquainted with grief; not even the Christ of the Beatitudes and Parables—the Christ of the Galilean sunshine—but just the Christ-child of Bethlehem, Mother Mary's child—type of all human helplessness, innocence and loveliness.

And we, strong men and brilliant women, delight to become children again at the foot of His cot. That, to me, is the ideal Christmas.—Rev. Charles F. Aked, D. D., in The Methodist Protestant.

EXCHANGE

Has it ever occurred to you what makes us brand people? What influence us more than their personal appearance and their English? All of us desire to be nicely and neatly dressed. We desire to use good taste. Do we agree that having good taste in dress is being so we attract no attention in any way? Have you ever heard the Fair-Wearer-of-Silk-Stockings say:

"It is him." "Prof. So-and-So is one perfect mess." "He don't."

(Have you ever noticed that the Fair-Wearer-of-Silk-Stockings uses the pronoun "he" in an unlimited way?) We perhaps are not so ignorant of the principles of good English, but we are so negligent, so shiftless, so unthinking. Perhaps "he," Mr. Pointed Collar, Flaming Tie, Silk-Shirter, caps the climax in grammatical errors and actually says:

"I hain't never did that way."

Of course we don't admire such people, but we must be very careful or we will be imitating them before we realize it. We never know the dire influence or impression that our improprieties in speech and dress have.—The Guilford Collegian.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

CHARLES A. HINES, Editorial and Field Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor.

SUNDAY SCHOOL REVIEW

Review Topic: "A Day of Decision." Scripture, Josh. 24; Heb. 11:28-31.

Subject of the Year's Study.—Old Testament History.

Review Topic.—A Day of Decision.

Reading Lesson.—Josh. 24; Heb. 11:28-31.

Golden Text.—For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life.—John 3:16. (See C. E. Lesson.)

Books.—Numbers, Deuteronomy, Joshua.

Time.—The period covered by the Quarter's lesson is about thirty-nine years; from 1490-1451 (Ussher).

Places.—The following named places are noted in the journeys of Israel in the lessons of the quarter: Wilderness of Paran, Hazeroth, Kadesh, Plains of Moab, Mount Nebo, Banks of the Jordan, Canaan, Gilgal, Jericho, Ai.

Today we end the quarter and the year.

With the exception of the special-day lessons our work for the year has been with the first books of the Old Testament. We began with "In the beginning," we close with "Israel in the Promised Land." The supreme thought of the course has been that God is interested in human history. Through all is revealed the gradual development of the divine scheme for the salvation of sinners.

In our fourth lesson for the fourth quarter we learned that Israel was just out from Sinai journeying toward the promised land. As we close the quarter, Israel is actually in Canaan, the land flowing with milk and honey.

According to the record, in this quarter's lesson the chosen race has been through nearly forty years of training. The generation of slaves that fled from Egypt in search of liberty in the wilderness has passed away. Their children, born as nomads of the desert, are just entering upon strange experiences in a land of grain fields, vineyards, fruit orchards and walled cities. The Israelites are slowly getting acquainted with themselves and with their Jehovah, the one true God over all. Life, civil, social, religious, is taking on a new meaning. A nation is in the building. Moses, the matchless, has wrought and gone, Joshua is the leader. Interests pertaining to little Israel and broad humanity, to all earth's ages and to the eternity of the world unseen, center in the lesson of the quarter.

Lesson Announcement

Next Sunday we shall have our new class books, our new lesson helps, and begin a series of New Testament lessons. We are to begin with the life of Christ where we dropped it a year ago, and will be studying his life for a whole year.

Come next Sunday and help start the New Year of Sunday school work with enthusiasm and a full roll call.—Hageman.

HAVING PUPILS TAKE PART

I recently visited a Sunday school in Spokane, Wash. After the first few numbers of the regular program, the superintendent announced that Miss — had something to say to the Sunday school, whereupon a little girl from the Primary Department walked to the platform and rendered in a very impressive manner a recitation that had a very beautiful and effective application to the lesson of that day. The speaker showed more than ordinary talent in reciting.

The superintendent told me after the session that this was one of the features of his program, coming once or twice a month. This enabled them to depend upon those in the school who were gifted in this line. It was always more or less a surprise to the school, and something fresh, also, for the boys and girls had not heard the recitation at frequent rehearsals as is often the case when a general program is given.

The idea is capable of indefinite application. Even brief addresses can be prepared for members of the school. They may refer to the next Sunday's lesson, the campaign for a bigger and better school, or a boost for a Rally Day. Once in a while a few minutes may be given to an exercise in which more than one take part. But in order to make them the most effective they should be short, strikingly to the point, and well rendered.—J. Dickinson.

WILLING WORKERS ORGANIZE

Brother A. N. McAbee has organized his class of young women at Barnesville, Ga., and they have decided to call themselves the "Willing Workers." Ten members were enrolled the first Sunday. The officers are: Miss Mattie Howard, president; Miss Estelle Douglas, vice president; Miss Annie Belle Ware, secretary; Miss Bessie Hale, treasurer; A. N. McAbee, teacher.

The Endeavor Society recently organized at this place is doing a splendid work.

PRIMARY DEPARTMENT—AGES 6, 7 AND 8

I. Grading. The best teaching cannot be done with less than three grades, one for each year, and a teacher for each class. But if one teacher must handle all, arrange in rows this way:

2	3	2	3
1		1
(Both sexes)		(Boys)	(Girls)
Six years		Six	Six
Seven years		Seven	Seven
Eight years		Eight	Eight

In these diagrams (1) shows location of superintendent, (2) the musician, and (3) the secretary. Make your choice of the two arrangements. First named, first choice with the writer.

II. Officers. A superintendent, musician, secretary-treasurer, and helpers. The superintendent may or may not teach; better not if the department is large. The secretary-treasurer should be an adult. Helpers care for hats, wraps, lesson papers, etc.

III. Equipment. Teachers' desks, tables, etc. Material for hand work. Little chairs. Send-table, blackboard, pictures, objects.

IV. Color. Light blue. Same for girls and boys.

V. Emblem. Angel and child.

VI. Lesson. The International Graded Lessons for First, Second and Third-year Primaries.

The department pin bears the emblem on its face, and the department pennant carries out the color—light blue. All appliances obtainable from our own Publishing House.

Mrs. J. J. LINCOLN.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC: JANUARY 4

"Twelve Great Verses. 1. The Salvation Verse."—John 3:16.

For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life.

One night, about 1,900 years ago, "For God so loved the world" was first spoken in the hearing of a few, who, as though it were too good to be true, and yet able to grasp only a little of its amazing preciousness, began to repeat it. During the ages since, in rapidly increasing numbers, men and women, with more and more heart-satisfying assurance, and with deeper, richer emphasis, have been repeating it, until millions untold have said it over times beyond counting. But it has never been repeated too often for the good of the world. And as future ages come and go, it will be repeated more and more frequently, and with a better and better understanding of its fathomless depths of meaning.

Little children learn it and think about it and are blessed; men and women in the strength of ripest experience and profoundest wisdom say it over and think about it and are blessed. The subjects involved range through vast stretches of undetermined abstractions, and yet the things philosophic and recondite touch all lives, through all experiences, and are the most common and vital to everybody.

The love that is divine, and the "whosoever" that is human, reveal the relations of God to man and the solidarity of humanity.

This verse is the joy of saints, the hope of sinners, the guiding star to the pilgrim, the inspiration of the living, the anchor within the vale to the dying. It is the epitome of all that men, created in the image divine and redeemed by the unspeakable Gift, has ability to receive, as a revelation from God, concerning the divine character and human destiny.

How to Conduct the Meeting

Let the prayer meeting committee prepare, a week or more before the meeting, a number of cards cut in the shape of a cross. On one side of each card a Bible reference dealing with some aspect of salvation should be written and on the other side the date of the meeting. These small crosses should be given to the members several days, possibly a whole week, before the meeting, and each member should be asked to study his reference and come prepared to quote it in the meeting and perhaps add a comment.

The chairs may be arranged in the form of a cross, the leader sitting facing the end of the longest arm. In calling for Bible references or responses the leader may ask that they come from any one of the four arms of the cross; and variations of the singing may be brought about in the same way.

Begin by asking the society to stand and repeat the text, "God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world." Then offer a brief prayer, the society still standing. The songs that follow should refer to the cross or to salvation.

For responses to the roll-call the Bible references, which all are supposed to have, should be used, each one, of course, adding some comment. Instead of the secretary's calling the roll, however, a simple yet effective variation will be to have the leader ask the different sections of the "cross" to rise and make the responses one after the other. This will divide the roll-call into four sections. The younger members will gain courage, because they will not be standing alone. As each one takes part he will resume his seat. A stanza or two of a song may be sung after each section has taken part.—C. E. World.

"I am thinking of you today because it is Christmas, and I wish you happiness. And tomorrow, because it will be the day after Christmas, I shall still wish you happiness, and so throughout the year. I may not be able to tell you about it every day; because I may be far away; or because we may be very busy; or perhaps because I cannot even afford to pay postage on so many letters, or find time to write them. But, nevertheless, the thought and the wish will be here just the same. Whatever joy or success comes to you will make me glad. In plain words, good will to you is what I mean in the Spirit of Christmas."—Henry Van Dyke.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Dep't.

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

Members of the Board.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., President and Editor Woman's Missionary Department in The Christian Sun.
Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., Vice President and Supt. of Cradle Roll.
Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., Recording Sec'y. and Supt. of Mite Boxes and Literature.
Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., Cor. Sec'y.
Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va., Treasurer.
Miss Bettie Stephenson, Boone, N. C., Supt. Young People's Dept.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER FOR MISSIONS—THE CHRISTMAS OFFERING

The Christmas season is here, and following this is the week of prayer for missions—January 5-9. All societies are asked to observe this—an hour's service each day; but if this is not practicable in all places, certainly each of our societies can have a service on Friday, the 9th. Below we give a program gotten up by the General Advisory Commission representing the Federation of Woman's Boards of Foreign Missions, which they urge to be used in union meetings in every town and city of our land. If not followed in detail, it is suggestive and can be helpful in arranging a program.

Our S. C. C. Woman's Board asks that a Christmas offering be taken during this week—an offering of love for our mission cause. If we pray earnestly, we will give willingly and freely, just as we feel the importance and responsibility of the work.

The women of the A. C. C. Board have in hand a sum sufficient for the building of a church at Ichinoseki; they ask that we assist in purchasing the site which will cost something like $600. Our Woman's Board asks that our Christmas offering be used for this purpose. We have a large Sunday school at Ichinoseki and a church is badly needed. At this time the Christ spirit should rule in our hearts. His heart yearns for those in darkness. Ours, too, should reach out to them, and enter into sympathy with his for them. Let us make a large offering for the work.

TOPICS FOR PRAYER

General Subject for the Day

That Women May Accomplish Their Part in World Evangelization

- 10 A. M.—John 17.
Prayer for unity; for all Woman's Boards of Missions; for our new Federation; for a vision of the task; for our missionaries; for guidance and wisdom; for Africa, Turkey, Egypt, Persia and Arabia.

11 A. M.—Matthew 28:16-20.
Thanksgiving for all that God has wrought through women. Prayer for faithfulness in our stewardship; for native Christian converts and leaders throughout the world; for China and the Philippine Islands.

A box luncheon at noontime is suggested.
2 P. M.—Romans 10:8-17.
For plans for united effort in foreign lands, through colleges, hospitals and preparation of literature; for India, Burma and South America.

An offering, with special music, is suggested.
3 P. M.—Psalm 96. Young Woman's Hour.
Prayer for a great increase of student volunteers, for young women who will lead in the foreign mission work in the churches at home; for young women who shall train our children in missions; for Japan and Korea.

PRAYER CYCLE

For the Missionary Work of the Christian Denomination.

SUNDAY—For the whole denomination, that it may have missionary vision, growing missionary zeal, that it may rally to the great missionary movements, to the full support of our missions in Japan and Porto Rico, and that especially during the current year funds may increase and no debt be incurred for the year's work.

MONDAY—For our missionaries in Japan: Rev. and Mrs. A. D. Woodworth, Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Fry, Rev. and Mrs. E. K. McCord, Miss Alice True, Rev. and Mrs. C. P. Garman.

TUESDAY—For converts, workers and churches in Japan: Eleven churches and thirteen ordained pastors, one home mission pastor, two Bible women.

WEDNESDAY—For missionaries in Porto Rico: Rev. and Mrs. D. P. Barrett. Especially that the way may be opened for another missionary family to go to Porto Rico.

THURSDAY—For converts, workers and churches in Porto Rico: Four churches, one ordained pastor, several young men who are in training.

FRIDAY—For our home missionaries and home mission churches:

Albany, Mo.
Boston, Mass.
Columbus, Ga.
Coshocton, Ohio.
Chapel Hill, H. C.
Delmarvia Conference Missions.
Eastport, Maine.
Franklin College, N. C.
Indianapolis, Indiana.
Lake City, Iowa.
Lynn, Mass.
Louisville, Illinois.
Lewistown, Illinois.
Manchester, N. H.
Muncie, Indiana.
N. Y. Eastern Conference Field Work.
Olney, Illinois.
Oronoke, Kansas.
Portsmouth, Va.
Portland, Indiana.
Romeo, Mich.
Raleigh, N. C.
South Norfolk, Va.
Springfield, Ohio, Missions.
Toronto, Ont.
Winchester, Va.
Western Washington Conference.
Wyoming Conference.
Walnut Hills, Dayton, Ohio.

SATURDAY—For the general Mission Board, the Woman's Board for Foreign Missions, the Woman's Board for Home Missions, and their administrative officers; the work of the Woman's Boards for the Young People and Children.

THE UNITED MISSIONARY CAMPAIGN

D. CLAY LILLY, FIELD SECRETARY

This great campaign, inaugurated by more than fifty of the largest Foreign and Home Mission Boards of the United States and Canada, has been carried on vigorously since early Fall. It is estimated that six hundred conferences, in as many cities, will be held during this Fall and Winter.

When it is remembered that each of these conferences reaches a number of churches, some idea of the breadth of this campaign is apparent at once.

And when it is remembered that each one of these conferences means the adoption of new methods, and a permanent increase in missionary giving on the part of some churches, their value is seen at once.

There is very little expense attached to one of these conferences, and this, when shared by all the churches of a city, is inconsiderable for any one of them.

Of how much value a conference can be is evidenced by the words of these two pastors, whose testimony might be multiplied many times over.

One of them says, "Referring to the recent sessions of the United Missionary Campaign held in our town, I wish to say to you, as I am saying to my friends everywhere, that I have lived in Mt. Carroll fifteen years, during which time many good and great things have happened; but this conference is the biggest thing, and has set in motion a movement which means more to us at home and abroad in the Kingdom of Christ than any other thing our town has experienced during these years."

Another pastor writes: "You don't know how much good your coming to us has done. I believe this Laymen's Conference will touch with spiritual power the various congregations of our city. The meeting has been highly educational, spiritual, interesting, and in every way helpful."

During January, February and March conferences will be held in the South in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi, and later in Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas.

The Home and Foreign Mission Boards of all the churches of the South are cordially supporting this campaign, and some of their most effective men are heard in these conferences from time to time. It is a great manifestation of the spiritual unity of the church and this immense movement, international and inter-denominational, goes forward with increasing power.

MR. C. A. N. KNOT

Caleb Cobweb Describes an Acquaintance—Not a Friend.

Mr. C. A. N. Knot is a member of my church. I often serve with him on church committees. He speaks frequently in the church business meetings. His voice is heard in the discussions of the Village Improvement Society. Indeed, at every turn I am liable to encounter this Mr. Knot.

He is an ingrained pessimist. He thinks the worst of human nature. He has no faith in corporate ability. He looks on the dark side of every cloud and the thorny side of every hedge.

If Mr. Knot were a general, he would be a master hand at a retreat, but could never lead an advance. If he were a farmer, he would leave all of his seeds out of the ground waiting for ideal weather conditions. If he were a merchant, he would never embark on advertising campaigns, and so would never sell his goods. What is Mr. Knot's business? He is an undertaker.

Mr. Knot is absurdly proud of his pessimism. He thinks it discloses superior acuteness, a profound knowledge of human nature. When, as sometimes happens, of course, his gloomy prognostications are verified, he takes great delight in saying, "I told you so."

But we are not proud of Mr. Knot. Indeed, we'd be glad to vote him a letter of dismissal, though it would be hard to vouch for him as being "in good and regular standing." "In good and regular misunderstanding" would be the proper phrase. Does any church apply?—C. E. World.

I wonder why it is we are not all kinder than we are? How much the world needs it! How easily it is done! How infallibly it is remembered! How superabundantly it pays itself back! For there is no debtor in the world so honorable, so superbly honorable, as love. "Love never faileth."—Professor Drummond.

OUR CRADLE ROLL

Dear Friends of the Cradle Roll: Another year is nearly upon us, and we will find it very much what we make it. What are we going to do with it in our Sunday schools and in our homes? More especially interesting to this column is the question, "What are we going to do about it in our Cradle Roll work?"

I have been thinking much of the work done among the children by the Roman Catholics. As soon as possible after birth, the baby is christened; at eight years of age he is confirmed. The age used to be twelve and fourteen, and the child was first supposed to know the catechism, and a few other things of equal importance, but they found that by waiting so long, they were losing a number of their children. Three years ago, for the first time, they accepted children, rather, demanded children, of eight years of age. They can learn their catechism, etc., afterwards, but they must belong to Mother Church now before they have left the ranks of babyhood. They are taught thereafter that of their own free will and accord they have entered the Holy Roman Catholic Church, and that to depart from it means everlasting and undying condemnation. Now I am not trying to turn you against the Catholic church, neither am I going to say any of the many things I could against that terrible politico-religious power which is getting so strong a hold in our dear land, but if the Catholic church, with over three hundred millions, cannot afford to run the risk of losing a child between the ages of eight and twelve, what does it mean to the Protestant religion, with not over two-thirds as many even nominally in its ranks? We say our country is a "Protestant" country, and yet we have only about nineteen millions out of ninety openly identified with the Protestant denominations. Isn't it about time that we said, "We cannot spare even one of these little ones"?

Oh, I wish that I could awaken not only the cradle roll workers, but every Sunday school superintendent, every pastor, every teacher, every parent, to the great and awful need and necessity of this work. Christian America? Say, rather, heathen America! Oh, that I might cry with a voice to be heard across the continent and in every home, "Awake, thou that sleepest!" We must, we must, we MUST save our babies of today if tomorrow is to see this a free, united and Christian nation.

And then, our denomination; I have in mind a church I visited lately. There is not in that Sunday school one singular regular attendant between the ages of 18 and 30. If the children now growing up leave the church as the generation just before them has done, it does not require a prophet to foretell the end of that church. What are you going to do to help build up the church of tomorrow?

Do you think this is unnecessarily alarming? Ask any one who has given thought to the matter, and he will tell you I have not said a half or a quarter of the things I might have said, and been strictly within the limits at that. Won't you help us to make this new year a new year indeed? Won't you work to double the Cradle Rolls and double the membership in those we have? Won't you write to me and tell me what you are doing, and what you hope to do? I wish you would also tell me if you like this column, and think it wise to carry it on? If it is not helping you, then there is no use in it. If it is, tell me so. Above all, don't think you can have a successful Cradle Roll, any more than anything else successful, unless you are willing to work for it. Let me quote you an odd little verse I found the other day:

"All things come to him who waits,
But here's a rule that's slicker:
The man who goes for what he wants
Will get it all the quicker."

So a happy new year to each and all of you, and may God give you the will to work, the wish to do, the eye to see, the heart to feel, and the mind that says, with Edward Everett Hale:

"I am only one;
But still I am one;
I cannot do everything,
But still I can do something;
And because I cannot do everything,
I will not refuse to do the something that I can do.
What I can do, I ought to do,
And by the grace of God I will do."
Cordially,
Your Cradle Roll Supt.,
MRS. F. BULLOCK.

THE CRADLE ROLL AND CHRISTMAS

Dear Cradle Roll Workers:

I wonder if you ever think: If I only knew about the work, I would be able to accomplish more? I am sure you have sometimes had thoughts like these, and therefore I am writing this letter to tell you of some extra helps just for YOU, the workers, which we can secure. There are no special books as yet, or none that I know of, at least, but there are two helpful sixteen page papers issued quarterly, The Cradle Roll Superintendent, by David C. Cook Publishing Co., Elgin, Ill., and The Baby's Mother, Standard Publishing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Then there is a little four-page monthly paper for the mothers of the cradle roll babies. This is also published by Cook, and samples will be sent upon receipt of post-card request.

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Makes delicious hot biscuit, griddle cakes, rolls and muffins.

An absolutely pure, cream of tartar powder.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

CHILLS AND FEVER
OR ANY FEVER

QUICKLY YIELD IF
TREATED WITH
30 YEARS OF SUCCESS
IN CURING FOLKS

JOHNSON'S
TONIC

FOSTER'S STORY OF THE BIBLE

From Genesis to Revelation. Told in Simple Language.

ADAPTED TO ALL AGES, BUT ESPECIALLY TO THE YOUNG

By CHARLES FOSTER

Size, 6½ x 9 in.; 704 Pages: 300 Illustrations.

BEAUTIFUL COLORED PICTURES
THE BEST EASY-READING VERSION OF THE WHOLE BIBLE

It adheres most closely to the Scriptures, retaining much of their force, dignity and distinction of style, with the pure and simple wording of the English Bible, without comment or doctrinal discussion.

MOST GENERALLY USED—750,000 SOLD

Approved by eminent men of various religious denominations
Valued in thousands of homes.

FINE CLOTH, with beautiful design in three colors (shown above), $1.50

SEND US YOUR ORDERS.

Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

THE ONLY INSTITUTION of higher education fostered by the Southern Christian Convention.

MODERN IN EQUIPMENT, Steam Heat, Electric Lights, Baths, Sewerage, Elegant New Buildings.

A HIGH GRADE INSTITUTION whose graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great American Universities without examination.

MAINTAINS EXCELLENT MUSIC, Art, Elocution, Normal, and Preparatory Departments.

A FACULTY OF SEVENTEEN SPECIALISTS, with a successful record of twenty-three years behind it.

HAS ALL THE ADVANTAGES of city life with none of its disadvantages. Situated in the delightful hill country of North Carolina, famed for its healthfulness, pure water, and high moral tone.

ELON COLLEGE HAS DONE MORE to build up the Christian Church than any institution ever yet commissioned by our people.

TERMS VERY MODERATE. $141 to $191 per session of ten school months.

For catalogue or other information, address,

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, Elon College, N. C.

EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

has often heard class-members say: "I cannot understand the Bible." They could not understand any other book that was printed three hundred years ago. So many English words of that day were different.

More than forty new dictionaries have been required since then, to keep up with the changes in the English language. The

American Standard Bible
Edited by the American Revision Committee
uses the words of our day, which make the meanings of the Bible writers clear to us.

Write for Our Free Booklet, "How We Got Our American Standard Bible"

No teacher can afford to be without it.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

WITH NEW AND UP-TO-DATE HELPS
ARRANGED UNDER ONE ALPHABET

Over 3,000,000 Copies Sold

"They are known From Greenland's icy Mountains to India's Coral Strand.—The Bookshelf."

ENTIRELY NEW!

Oxford Pictorial Palestine Bibles from 55 cents upwards.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first.—Intermediate Sunday-School Quarterly."

Sold by all booksellers. A full descriptive circular and specimen pages will be sent to any address on request.

Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 W. 32nd St., New York

SEND YOUR ORDERS FOR BIBLES TO

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

JUST PUBLISHED!

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

With a new system of connected topical references to all the greater themes of Scripture, with annotations, revised marginal renderings, summaries, definitions, and index, to which are added helps at hard places, explanations of seeming discrepancies, and a new system of paragraphs.

Edited by

REV. C. I. SCOFIELD, D.D.

with the assistance of many of the most eminent scholars and divines.

I want to say, too, that the Mothers' Magazine, published by Cook will give you many helpful thoughts. We Cradle Roll Superintendents cannot know too many things about the babies or the mothers, either, for our work. Many times you will find a cure for a cold or a knowledge of how to care for babies' flannels, of inestimable benefit in securing you a hearing in the home. We need to know something about babies, their mothers, and their problems, if we are to reach the mothers, and through them, the babies. We who have been mothers ourselves, of course know many things which may be of help to the younger mothers whom we meet, but even we forget, or never know, many things of general or specific usefulness. We need to learn, to study, to keep up with new thought, to make ourselves, as it were, "baby specialists," if we are to succeed in this work.

Do you remember the question Manoh and his wife put to the angel when he had told them of the baby that was to come to them? "What shall be the ordering of the child, and how shall we do unto him?"

Are we prepared to answer that question if it is put to us? Not only in the small things of daily life, such as I have hinted at above, perhaps, at least, not solely in that matter, but in the many things which we shall meet from day to day from those who are earnest in their desire to raise the best possible children in the best possible way? How many things we shall have to learn. You remember Manoh and his wife received a temperance lesson on the spot from the angel, so this is one of the things we need to know, and then the many questions that we may have the best of all possible babies in the best of all possible homes.

Oh, there is much room for thought, and much, so much room for a great and noble and tremendous work to be done in the Cradle Roll. Don't say, "It is only the Cradle Roll that I have, and only the babies that I work among." Think of it rather in this way: "I have the first chance at the tiny newly opening life. I can bring these 'little ones which believe on me' to the Master. I can make these children little beacons lighting the way to heaven in many a heart and home. God give me grace to grow big enough, strong enough, pure enough to lead these little ones to the Father of us all."

"What shall be the ordering of the child, and how shall we do unto him?" Cordially,

Mrs. F. BULLOCK.

Lay up lasting treasure
Of perfect service rendered, duties done

In charity, soft speech and stainless days;

These riches shall not fade away,
Nor any death dispraise.

THE PIANOLESS HOME

Have you ever visited a home where discord had usurped the place of sweet accord and where time seemed to hang heavy on the hands of the individual members of the family? There was no entertainer there! A sweet-toned Piano or Self-player Piano would have kept that home so happy, enlivened and entertaining that the home-life would have been like "One grand, sweet song."

Why let your home grow dull and your young folks seek amusement in questionable places, all for the want of proper entertainment at home? The Christian Sun Piano Club enables you to secure a high-grade piano or player-piano of the sweetest tone, at the lowest Factory price and on terms to suit your convenience. Every feature of the Club is guaranteed so that you cannot fail to be delighted. Write for handsomely illustrated catalogue and full particulars. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

LOW ROUND-TRIP RATES

Account Christmas and New Year Holidays

VIA

NORFOLK SOUTHERN R. R.

Ask nearest Agent for complete information. H. S. LEARD, G. P. A., Norfolk, Va.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION CAL-

EXCHANGE YOUR OLD PIANO

For a splendid new Self-player which every member of your family can play. The greatest musical invention of the age—a combination piano and self-player piano—two instruments in one. Write for descriptive catalogue and attractive exchange offer made to members of the Christian Sun Piano Club. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Adv.

TRIAL BOX FREE

Do you suffer with
Headache or Neuralgia
One trial of Megrimine is sufficient—your suffering will cease.
For over a quarter of a century

ME-GRIM-INE

Has been a Godsend to victims of all forms of headache and neuralgia. Write at once for a trial box without cost

The Dr. Whitehall Megrimine Co.
8 N. Lafayette St., South Bend, Ind.

The Southern Christian
Publishing Co., Inc.

Capital Stock, $15,000.00

CAN FURNISH:

Job Printing; Fancy Engraving
Wedding Invitations; Visiting
Cards; All Kinds of Bibles; All
Kinds of Books; Hymn Books
Song Books, Teacher Training
Books; Life of O'Kelly; Christian
Annual, and other publications
of the Christian Church.

Address

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.,
Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Orphanage

REV. JAMES O. COX, Editor, Elon College, N. C.

Officers of the Orphanage.

J. O. Cox, Supt., Elon College, N. C.
J. O. Atkinson, Chairman, Board of Trustees, Elon College, N. C.
E. Moffitt, Secretary, Asheboro, N. C.
W. P. Lawrence, Treas., Elon College.

Reported last week$4,959.26

Dues

John Murray Alphin ..$	.10
Annie Nevil	.10
Graham Elkins	.10
Lizzie Elkins	.05
Erma Lee Elkins	.05
Regina and Marie Carter	2.00
Helen Winborn Scholz..	.35
Herbert Scholz, Jr.	.30
Elizabeth Scholz	.30
Jessie Lee Scholz	.30

3.65

S. S. Offering

Shallow Ford	$ 2.07
Mt. Zion, Alabama Con.	1.00
Suffolk	25.00
Berea (Nausemond) ..	10.00
Pleasant Grove, W. Con.	1.25
Damascus, E. Va. Con..	3.45
Lebanon (4 months) ...	4.00
Burlington (3 months)..	21.66
New Lebanon	.87
Baraca Class, New Leb..	1.60
Haw River	1.70

72.60

Special

Msr. Mamie Andrews ..$	1.00
W. H. Lanham	12.00
Sale of calf	2.50
Mrs. E. J. Brickhouse ..	5.00
Interest on endowment.	30.00
Tyler Bolling, work	2.00

52.50

Thanksgiving Offering

Shallow Ford Church ..$	2.34
Martha's Chapel	3.70
Salem Church	5.00
Sanford Church	8.63
South Norfolk	10.00
Piney Plains	9.55
Ladies' Aid, First Ch.,
Norfolk	29.93
Clone Church, N. Y.	3.00
Chapel Hill	2.65
Eure C. Church	4.60
Mt. Auburn	30.17
Fuller's Chapel	18.00
Miss Mary Thomas	1.00
Ingram S. S.	4.00
Linden church, Iowa ..	2.00
Damascus, E. Va. Con..	12.01
Bethlehem, Iowa	10.76
Howard's Chapel	5.75
New Lebanon	9.05
Union, Ala., 2nd report	5.25
New Hill	3.15
Bethlehem, Valley Con..	12.75
W. M. S., Porterville, Ill.	5.00
Rev. M. L. Winston ...	2.50

200.79

Total for the week	$ 329.54
Grand Total	$5,288.80

My Dear Children and Friends:

Your humble servant has been kept so very busy trying to get his large family ready for Santa Claus that he has not time to write a long letter this week. He is very grateful for the nice report, and wishes that he could express the gratitude that he feels in his heart for the loyal, faithful and liberal friends throughout the church who have so generously contributed to the support of the institution. May the Lord abundantly bless every contributor, and make us worthy of such friends and liberal gifts, is my prayer.

We are to have no SUN next week, but the report will be made out and published the week following. I trust all who have not yet sent in their Thanksgiving offerings will do by the close of the year if possible. We purpose to give summary of the funds received up to that time, and the amount of indebtedness January 1. I have so earnestly desired that we might report the institution clear from all encumbrances.

Some Christmas boxes have been received, for which we are very grateful. We will report them next week.

Wishing all our friends, and especially the Band of faithful Cousins, a merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous new year, I beg to remain, very, very gratefully,

Yours,
JAMES O. COX, Supt.

Sunbury, N. C., Dec. 7, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I have been reading the letters from other little children, some of them younger than myself. My age is nine years. I stay at my grandmama's, and go to school in the country. Am in the third grade. My parents live in Portsmouth, Va., and I want to help fill the Children's Corner. Hope you will accept my dime for the Orphanage. Am hopeful to send more soon. I have three sisters and two brothers. The Orphanage has my deepest sympathy. We are very poor children, but our parents are living. Thank God for them.

JOHN MURRAY ALPHIN.

Glad to have you join the Corner. Hope you may make us a faithful little cousin. All of the children are talking Santa Claus.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Dec. 14, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I hope you and the Cousins had a good Thanksgiving. I am eleven years old and am in the fifth grade. My teacher's name is Miss McMillan. I have a little brother, who will be a year old the 20th of this month. School will be out the 19th. I hope old Santa Claus will come to see the Cousins, and I hope you all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. I will close with ten cents.

Your little niece,
ANNIE NEVILLE.

Yes, we had a nice Thanksgiving. The children are busy getting ready for Santa Claus. Several of the boys and girls are going home to spend Christmas.

Bear Creek, N. C., Dec. 14, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Here come a boy and two little girls that would like to join your Band. We think it is so nice to see so many letters from the boys and girls. As Christmas is so near it makes us think of those orphans in your care. We go to preaching at Antioch Christian Church, but it is too far for us to go there to Sunday school. We go to the Baptist church to S. S.

Hope this will not find the waste basket, as this is our first letter.

Enclosed please find 20 cts. for the Orphans. Lovingly,

GRAHAM ELKINS,
LIZZIE ELKINS,
ERMA LEE ELKINS.

We are always glad to have new Cousins to join the Band. When the weather is bad the little children have Sunday school here in the chapel. All the Cousins are expecting Santa Claus.

Macon, N. C., Dec. 18, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Enclosed you will find $1.25, our dues for the last quarter. We are rather late, but will try to write sooner next time. Our school will close Friday for Christmas.

Wishing you and the Cousins a merry Christmas, Sincerely,

HELEN W. SCHOLZ,
HERBERT SCHOLZ, JR.,
ELIZABETH SCHOLZ,
JESSIE LEE SCHOLZ.

Glad to receive your letters, if you were late. You must keep your promise and write sooner next time.

ChIPLEY, Ga., Dec. 18, 1913.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Though it is late in the season, we are sending our Thanksgiving offering, and with it our best wishes for you and all the children, a merry Christmas. Fondly,

REGINA and MARIE CARTER.

Better late than never. You must write us a letter each month, for the Cousins would enjoy hearing from you. The children are so full of Christmas they can't sleep for thinking of the good time they are to have at home.

NOT AN EXPERIMENT

Paint Lick, Ky.—Mrs. Mary Freeman, of this place, says: "Before I commenced to take Cardui, I suffered so much from womanly trouble! I was so weak that I was down on my back nearly all the time. Cardui has done me more good than any medicine I ever took in my life. I can't possibly praise it too highly." You need not be afraid to take Cardui. It is no new experiment. For fifty years, it has been found to relieve headache, backache, and similar womanly troubles. Composed of gentle-acting, herb ingredients, Cardui builds up the strength, preventing much unnecessary pain. Try it for your troubles, today. ad.

Cancer Cured at the Kellam Hospital

The record of the Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having cured to stay cured permanently, without the use of the Knife, Acids or X Ray, over 90 per cent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from Cancer which it has treated during the past eighteen years. We have been endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. Physicians treated free. KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St. Richmond, Va. Write for Literature.

Your Office Stationery

IS an index to the character of your business. If you write your business correspondence on stationery that is poorly printed on cheap looking paper, your reputation as a business man suffers. You know that. Then why not get first-class stationery printed in a first-class way? Our printing department is equipped in both workmen and material to turn out the very best class of printing, and at no higher price than the common kind. We print everything, such as

Letter Heads,
Bill Heads,
Statements,
Envelopes
Cards, Etc.

When needing printing of any kind or description send us your order; or if it is something that requires a special estimate write the Manager of our Printing Department, submitting copy and a description of just what you want, and he will gladly give you a price.

The Southern Christian Publishing Company,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

THE BEST
Sunday School Help

If you are a Sunday school teacher or pupil you should desire the best possible help. This you will find in one volume, Peloubet's Select Notes on the International Lessons for 1914. Send in your order now. Up to January 1 you can get a copy for $1.00, after that time, $1.25. The publishers' price is $1.25, but we save you 25 cents by ordering from us. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

HOW THE RED CROSS SEAL ORIGINATED

Nearly $1,500,000 has been raised by Red Cross Christmas Seals in the last five years, and yet many people do not know how this charity stamp idea originated.

Some of your grandmothers first played "post office" with stickers similar to Red Cross Seals way back in 1862, when they conceived the idea of selling stamps at fairs for the benefit of the relief funds for the soldiers' hospitals in Brooklyn, Boston, and elsewhere. Nearly $1,000,000 was raised in this way before 1865. After the war, this method of raising money was discontinued in this country for a generation, although it found vogue in Portugal, Switzerland, Austria, France, Spain, Denmark, Norway, Russia, Sweden and other European countries. There are now thousands of different types of charity stamps used in all parts of the world, as many as forty being used in Austria for children's hospitals alone.

Stamps or seals were first used to get money for the anti-tuberculosis crusade in Norway and Sweden in 1904. To Jacob Riis, the well-known social worker of New York, and to Miss Emily P. Bissell, the energetic secretary of the Delaware Red Cross, jointly belong the honor of originating our American Red Cross Christmas Seal. In 1909, Mr. Riis' interest was aroused by the receipt of a Christmas tuberculosis stamp on a letter from Norway. He published an article about this queer-looking stamp in the Outlook, and suggested some possible uses for it in this country. Miss Bissell at once saw an opportunity here and prepared a stamp, from the sale of which her society realized $3,000 for tuberculosis work. So impressed was she with this success that she induced the American Red Cross to take up the sale in 1908 on a national basis. With very little organization and with hardly any attempt at careful advertising, the sale that year brought in, nevertheless, over $135,000 for anti-tuberculosis work in various parts of the United States. In 1909, with more thorough organization, the sale was increased to $230,000; in 1910 to nearly $310,000; in 1911 to over $330,000, and over 40,000,000 seals, netting $500,000, were sold last year.

SMOKING

Does smoking make people utterly reckless about the safety of property and life in respect to fire, or does the smoking habit appeal especially to heedless persons? We cannot assume to say, but the typical smoker scratches his match and drops it anywhere and anyhow, without so much as troubling to extinguish it first; he is done with the match, and that suffices him. Sometimes it falls in his wastebasket, and sets that off; sometimes on the coverings of his bed, and gives him a little excitement; sometimes he tosses it out of the window, and it starts off an awning below; sometimes he drops it on a woman and burns her out of existence, as befell one hapless votary of the habit of seeing out the old year by eating and drinking food which one does not need, in a fashionable restaurant; sometimes it starts off an Asche building or a Binghamton clothing shop. The careless smoker keeps his habit of match-dropping with him, as exemplified by the case of a chap in Montreal who wanted a pair of scissors in a store in the dark. He scratched his match, caught sight of the scissors, tossed the match, and it dropped in an open can of gasoline, much to the subsequent interest of an insurance company, whose agent had sent to the owner of the store an unsolicited policy for approval.—Insurance.

TERRIBLE PICTURE OF SUFFERING

Clinto, Ky.—Mrs. M. C. McElroy, in a letter from Clinton, writes: "For six years, I was a sufferer from female troubles. I could not eat, and could not stand on my feet, without suffering great pain. Three of the best doctors in the state said I was in a critical condition, and going down hill. I lost hope. After using Cardui a week, I began to improve. Now I feel better than in six years." Fifty years of success, in actual practice, is positive proof that Cardui can always be relied on, for relieving female weakness and disease. Why not test it for yourself? Sold by all druggists. Ad.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION CALENDAR FOR 1914

The publishers of The Youth's Companion will, as always at this season, present to every subscriber whose subscription is paid for 1914, a Calendar for the new year. It is a gem of calendar-making. The decorative mounting is rich, but it is subordinated to the main purpose to produce a calendar that is useful.

FIRE WASTE

The fire waste in this country amounts to about $250,000,000 annually, an average of $2.50 per capita, and over $12 for each family. This is an immense waste and startling, especially when it is remembered that it is from one-fifth to one-tenth as much in European countries. While this is a property loss, the loss of life is great, and, of course, considerably outweighs any loss of property. In this country we have larger fire departments, better equipped and more efficient; while in Europe more attention is paid to the erection of buildings and to their inspection.

In North Carolina there was paid by the companies in 1912 on losses $1,896,906.31. This, with the amount of fire loss not insured,

AN ONLY DAUGHTER RELIEVED OF CONSUMPTION

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The doctor now gives his recipe free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the stomach and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., Philadelphia, Pa., naming this paper. Ad.

$150.00 SALARY For 60 days' work distributing religious literature. No experience or investment necessary. Promotion to broader field for those who show ability. Spare time work if you prefer. J. S. ZIEGLER CO., 801 Como Block, Chicago

Your Money Will Earn 6%

With absolute safety if invested in Guaranteed Gold Bonds secured by First Mortgage on North Carolina Real Estate worth twice amount bonds issued against it. Bonds due one year after. Principal and Interest guaranteed. Interest payable semi-annually. Denominations $100.00 up. Ten Years in business without loss of a penny for any patron. Write for free booklet. PIEDMONT TRUST CO. Burlington, N. C.

DR. J. H. BROOKS,
Dentist

Foster Building, BURLINGTON, N. C.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.

Schedule Effective January 3, 1912.

Trains Leave Raleigh.

Direct line with Double Daily Service to the West through Atlanta, Birmingham, and Memphis.

FOR THE SOUTH.

No. 81	4:35 a. m.
No. 29	Ar. 10:05 a. m.
No. 41	4:10 p. m.
No. 43	6:00 p. m.

FOR THE NORTH

No. 84	12:48 a. m.
No. 38	11:35 a. m.
No. 66	12:05 p. m.

Notice.—Above schedules published only as information, and are not guaranteed.

For rates, schedules, time tables and any other information desired, apply to J. F. Mitchell, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

J. F. MITCHELL, Pass. Agent,
H. S. LEARD, Division Pass. Agent,
No. 4 W. Martin St., Tucker Bldg.,
Opposite North Entrance Postoffice
RALEIGH, N. C.

Sunday School Supplies

WE publish Adult or Bible Class, Intermediate and Junior Quarterlies, uniform lesson series; a Teachers' and Officers' Journal; a four-page weekly paper; a combined Weekly Lesson and Story Paper for pupils under twelve years of age; Charts and Cards for Primary Classes. All these are high-grade, edited and published by our own people. Samples cheerfully furnished.

The Graded Sunday School Lessons are carried in stock and orders promptly filled. We can also furnish many additional supplies and items of equipment for Sunday Schools. Let us have your inquiries.

The Christian Publishing Association,
NETUM RATHBUN, Agent,
DAYTON, OHIO

SANITARY PLUMBING

THIS IS OUR MOTTO.

Let us do your Plumbing for you. We guarantee our work. We will charge nothing to make an estimate for you.

Big stock of Hardware, Paints, Farm Implements, Etc.

American Field and Lot Fence.

Phone 174.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO., Burlington, N. C.

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Druggists' Sundries.

Perfumery—all popular odors, Toilet and Fancy Articles,

Combs, Brushes, Etc.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS

—HIGH CLASS—

DRY GOODS

And Gents' Clothiers and Tailoring Merchants

MAIN STREET.

BURLINGTON, N. C.

would make a loss in our State of practically $200,000, or over $8,000 per day, and nearly $350 for each hour of the day and night.
—From Address of Commissioner Young to Firemen.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

Schedule of the trains leaving
Elon College:

N. B.—The following schedule figures are published only as information and are not guaranteed.

No. 21—11:28 A. M. Through Train for Asheville with Chair Car for Waynesville. Connects at Asheville with Carolina Special for Cincinnati and Chicago, also for Chattanooga, Memphis and all Eastern points. Connects at Greensboro with Through Train for Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, also with local train for points South.

No. 139—6:32 P. M. For Greensboro. Handles through Pullman Sleeping Car for Atlanta. Makes connections for all points North, East, South and West, New Orleans, Texas and California points.

No. 131—9:27 P. M. For Greensboro. Makes direct connection with Train No. 38, Solid Sleeping Car Train for Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, makes connection for Boston, Pittsburgh, Chicago, and all Eastern and Northern points. Connects with Through Tourist Sleeping Car for New Orleans, El Paso, Los Angeles, and San Francisco.

No. 111—5:44 A. M. For Greensboro, with Sleeping Car for Winston-Salem. Connects with No. 37, Through Train for Atlanta, New Orleans, connects also for Asheville, St. Louis, Memphis, Birmingham and all Western and Southern points. Also with local train for Danville, Lynchburg and Washington.

No. 22—4:48 P. M. Raleigh and Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern and S. A. L. Rwy., also at Selma with A. C. L. Rwy. And at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 144—10:08 A. M. For Raleigh and Goldsboro. Makes connections at Selma with A. C. L. Rwy., for points North and South, and at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

No. 108—8:00 A. M. Local Train for Raleigh, Selma and Goldsboro. Makes connection with S. A. L. Rwy. at Raleigh and A. C. L. Rwy. at Selma and Goldsboro.

No. 112—1:27 A. M. For Raleigh, Selma, Goldsboro. Makes connection at Raleigh with Norfolk Southern, S. A. L. and R. C. & S. Railway, at Selma with A. C. L. Rwy., at Goldsboro with Norfolk Southern and A. C. L. Rwy.

For detailed information, also for information concerning special round trip rates account various special occasions and Pullman Sleeping Car reservations, ask any Southern Railway Agent or communicate with the undersigned.

J. O. JONES.

Traveling Passenger Agent,

THE FINEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD FOR THE MONEY

This Photograph represents exact size $5\frac{1}{2}$ x $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches

Bound in French Morocco, absolutely flexible, with overlapping covers as shown in this photograph. Has red under gold edges.

—IT CONTAINS—

The Authorized Version of the Old Testament and New Testament

—HAS—

Self-Pronouncing Text

All the proper words being accented and divided into syllables for quick and easy pronunciation.

—IT ALSO CONTAINS—

A New Series of Helps to Bible Study

—INCLUDING—

4000 Questions and Answers

which unfold the Scriptures

31 Beautiful Illustrations

showing scenes and incidents of Bible History

12 Maps of the Bible Lands in Colors

Large Clear Type

Fine Paper

With THE CHRISTIAN SUN one year,
$2.50, postpaid.

Or sent alone for $1.50, postpaid.

—ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO—

The Southern Christian Pub. Co.,

Elon College, N. C.

The Christian Sun

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr

J. O. ATKINSON, EDITOR

The Christian Sun is published every Wednesday by The Southern Christian Publishing Co. in the interest of the cause of Christ as represented by the churches of the Southern Christian Convention.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year $1.50
Six Months75
Four Months50

IN ADVANCE.

Discontinuance: The paper will be sent until ordered discontinued.

All communications for the paper should be addressed to The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C. Those on business, to The Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Entered as second-class matter April 10, 1913, at the post office at Elon College, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUR DEAD

One hundred and fifty words of an accepted obituary published free of charge. All over that number must be charged for at half a cent a word. Please count your words in sending obituary and abide strictly by this rule. Send cash if more than 150 words are desired published. Done by order of the Publishers of The Christian Sun.

McCauley

Near Mebane, N. C., at his home, December 6, 1913, Mr. Albert Johnson McCauley passed from labor to reward at the age of 57 years, 8 months and 16 days.

Bro. McCauley professed religion at the age of 18 years, and joined Union Christian church. He lived a consistent life to his death.

He leaves a wife, one son, one daughter, two sisters, three brothers, and many relatives and friends, to mourn their loss. We laid his body to rest in Union cemetery, near his childhood home, December 8, 1913. May God bless and comfort the sorrowing ones.

THOS. W. STROWD.

Bridges

Deacon Joseph Bridges, a faithful member of Oak Level Church, passed from labor to reward December 6, 1913, in the city of Raleigh. He was 68 years old last May. He leaves a sister, two brothers, two sons, and two daughters to mourn their loss, two children and his wife having crossed the river of death before him. He was a brave soldier in the Confederate Army, and best of all, he was a high-toned Christian gentleman. As a deacon of Oak Level church none was more punctual to duty. Modest and unassuming, he was admired by all. He was buried at Oak Level, funeral services conducted by his pastor, W. G. CLEMENTS.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

One cold day, in New York, a young girl saw from her window a woman poorly dressed and very old, walking past the door with a basket of broken chips and wood. When a building is torn down in the tenement quarter many people take advantage of the opportunity to gather bits of broken board to light their fires. The girl ran out and asked the old lady if she would not come in and rest.

"We are having a party," she said. The house was one well known to numbers of people in the neighborhood as a Christian settlement. The women who lived there—both younger and older—were trying to be friends with their neighbors, and doing everything they could to make them happy and show them sweet and unobtrusive charity and clean ways of living. When they had a tea party in the afternoon they invited mothers and children in and tried to offer them real friendly hospitality and a good time.

"I can not come in," was the reply of the old woman in halting English. "I am not dressed for a party and I haven't any money."

"You don't need any money," said the girl, "and your dress is quite right. We only want you."

Thus persuaded, she stepped into the warm, bright room, sat down and had coffee and cake, while her basket was filled with fruit and flowers so that the rough wood was hidden. When she said good-by the old lady looked about her, and in a quavering voice made this little speech: "I am eighty years old. I came from Germany fifty years ago. This is the first time I have had anything to eat and drink outside my own room."

The thought of that speech never can lose its impression on those who heard it. Fifty lonely years. Think of it, and then say to yourself while you are young and happy that you will be looking out for the people who are lonesome, so that you may cheer their pathway. "There are lonely hearts to cherish,

While the days are going by."

SATISFY YOUR LONGING FOR MUSIC IN THE HOME

"Music! Oh, how faint, how weak, Language fades before thy spell! Why should feeling ever speak When thou canst breathe her soul so well?" —MOORE.

The Christian Sun Piano Club brings The King of Musical Instruments—the Piano—within reach of practically every reader of this paper. Those who have already taken advantage of the opportunity presented by the Club are enthusiastic in their praise of its plans and its instruments. Write for copies of their letters and see how easy it will be for you to satisfy that longing for music in your home. The Club gives you perfect protection and insures thorough satisfaction to every Club member. You are cordially invited to join us. Write for illustrated catalogue and full information. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. ad.

"EVERYBODY DELIGHTED"

The Christian Sun Piano Club receives hundreds of letters like the following and not a single case of dissatisfaction to date.

"I am just delighted with the piano. It has given entire satisfaction and I would advise anyone desiring a piano to join the Club."—MRS. A. C. F., Greensboro, N. C.
"The Ludden & Bates Piano bought of you is all that it has been represented and, in my opinion, is one of the very best instruments made."—MR. J. H. D., Bartow, Fla.
"I am perfectly delighted with my piano. I think the Club Plan a capital idea."—MRS. R. B. S., Vaiden, Miss.

"We are delighted with our piano and the Club Plan."—MRS. J. M. C., Toney Creek, S. C.

"I am delighted with my piano. With best wishes for you and the Club, I am."—MRS. J. P. R., Roanoke, Ala.

"I am highly pleased with the Ludden & Bates piano and my friends remark about the sweet tone. The Club plan is an ideal way of buying a piano."—MRS. B. L. B., Thomasville, Ga.

If your home is in need of a high-grade piano or self-player piano write for your copy of the Club's catalogue, also for booklet containing hundreds of commendatory letters from old Club members. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Adv.

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

Makes You Immune From Malaria

in all its forms. Contains no arsenic or opiates; pleasant to take and harmless for children as well as adults. Sold and guaranteed by your druggist. Arthur Peter & Co., Louisville, Ky., General Agents.

OLDEST AND BEST

Good Grit

We simply suggest the medicine. Let your doctor positively decide about it. Ask him first. Then do as he says.

J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is a strong tonic, entirely free from alcohol. Builds up the general health, without a particle of stimulation. Sold for 60 years.

ARE THEY WEAK OR PAINFUL?

Do your lungs ever bleed?
Do you have night sweats?
Have you pains in chest and sides?
Do you spit yellow and black matter?
Are you continually hacking and coughing?
Do you have pains under your shoulder blades?
These are Regarded Symptoms of Lung Trouble and

CONSUMPTION

You should take immediate steps to check the progress of these symptoms. The longer you allow them to advance and develop, the more deep seated and serious your condition becomes.

We Stand Ready to Prove to You absolutely, that the German Treatment, has cured completely and permanently case after case of Consumption (Tuberculosis), Chronic Bronchitis, Catarrh of the Lungs, Catarrh of the Bronchial Tubes and other lung troubles. Many sufferers who had lost all hope and who had been given up by physicians have been permanently cured by Lung Germine. If your lungs are merely weak and the disease has not yet manifested itself, you can prevent its development, you can build up your lungs and system to their normal strength and capacity. Lung Germine has cured advanced Consumption, and the patients remain strong and in splendid health today.

Let Us Send You the Proof—Proof that will Convince any Judge or Jury on Earth

We will gladly send you the proof of many remarkable cures, also a FREE TRIAL of Lung Germine together with our new 40-page book (in colors) on the treatment and cure of consumption and lung trouble.

JUST SEND YOUR NAME
LUNG GERMINE CO. 203 Rae Block, JACKSON, MICH.

THE HOME BEAUTIFUL

What is it that makes home beautiful? First of all, it is the spirit of love which predominates and brings into unison the highest and best impulses of which human hearts are capable. But what implements does love use to cultivate this spirit in the home and make the home life beautiful, happy and inviting? They are lovely furnishings, of which the PIANO is KING. What is there in the home, next to the Bible, which can be used to inspire greater appreciation of life, loftier ideals and deeper sincerity, than the Piano or Self-player Piano?

The Christian Sun Piano Club gives you the opportunity to combine your order with those of ninety-nine other Club members which we secure, thereby obtaining the maximum Factory discount on instruments of the highest quality. Every feature of the Club is guaranteed, so that you take no risk of being dissatisfied. Write for your copy of the catalogue and letters from old Club members. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Remedy.

Trial Package Mailed Free to Any Sufferer.

If you have catarrh of the head, nose, throat; if catarrh has affected your hearing; if you sneeze, hawk or spit; if you take one cold after another; if your head feels stopped up; you should try this Remedy discovered by Dr. Blosser, who has made a specialty of treating catarrh for over thirty-nine years.

This Remedy is composed of herbs, flowers and seeds possessing healing medicinal properties; contains no tobacco, is not injurious or habit-forming; is pleasant to use and perfectly harmless to man, woman or child.

Catarrhal germs are carried into the head, nose and throat with the air you breathe—just so the warm medicated smoke-vapor is carried with the breath, applying the medicine directly to the diseased parts. If you have tried the usual methods, such as sprays, douches, salves, inhalers and the stomach ruining "constitutional" medicines, you will readily see the superiority of this Smoking Remedy.

Simply send your name and address to Dr. J. W. Blosser, 109 Walton St., Atlanta, Ga., and he will send you a free package containing samples of the Remedy for smoking in a pipe and made into cigarettes, together with an illustrated booklet which goes thoroughly into the subject of catarrh. He will send by mail, for one dollar, enough of the medicine to last about one month.

Love is round, beneath, above thee,
God, the Omnipresent One.

CABBAGE PLANTS FOR SALE

Frost Proof Cabbage Plants now ready to ship. Very fine plants, and frost-proof because they are frost-tested. Raised in the open in a cold section, they will stand the frosts and freezes better than plants from the Sea Islands. Leading varieties. $1.25 per 1,000, 5,000 for $5.00. Special prices on large orders. Order blank and cultural points if desired.

HIGH CREST TRUCK FARM,

G. L. B. Penny, Prop.

"The Tar Heel Plant Man,"
Raleigh, N. C., R. F. D. 1.

I WANT LAND IN NORTH CAROLINA

Give price and send last tax receipt. Same will be returned by return mail. Correspondence treated as confidential. I am not a real estate agent. J. H. Chandler, 3633 Central St., Kansas City, Missouri.

MARRIAGES

Whitt-Riddick

At the residence of W. J. Riddick, near Bethlehem Church, in Nansemond County, Va., at 3:30 P. M. Sunday, December 14, Mr. John Monroe Whitt, of Virgilina, Va., and Miss Bertha Riddick, were united in marriage by Rev. W. W. Staley.

The attendants were: Willie Riddick and Miss Susie Harrell; Floyd Brinkley and Miss May Cullifer; John H. Bright and Miss Lillian Ashley; Horace Baines and Miss Gabriella Bright.

The decorations were pink and green. About fifty persons were present at the marriage.

A post-nuptial supper was served in the home to the guests.

Mr. Whitt is a merchant, and the happy couple will reside in Virgilina, Virginia. W. W. STALEY.

Stewart-Densen

On December 13, Mr. Chas. L. Stewart and Miss Bertha Densen, both of Ramseur, were married. They will make their future home in Ramseur, and many are wishing them a long and happy married life. The ceremony was performed by the writer in the presence of relatives and friends of the bride and groom. T. E. WHITE.

ONE OF THE MANY MOTHER'S JOY HAS SAVED

Burlington, N. C., Nov. 19, 1913.
Goose Greese Company,
Greensboro, N. C.

Gentlemen:

I am writing this letter because I think it is due you and for the sake of Humanity. I am not a man that wants my name paraded in newspapers. Coming from Baltimore on a sleeper my little girl took a severe cold and cough. For three weeks the doctors came to see her three times a day. Instead of getting better she grew worse. On the night of which I am speaking the doctors left me some emergency medicine and told me if the cough did not stop give her this. We gave it to her but with no benefit whatever that we could see. We had used other croup salves and they did not seem to do much good. My wife advised me to get a jar of Mother's Joy. I did so, using a half jar on my child's throat and chest and in fifteen minutes she stopped coughing and did not cough another time during the night. Now I am not a believer in Patent Medicines, but I think that you have the best Croup and Pneumonia salve made.

Yours very truly,

COL. J. H. HOLT,

Adv.

Burlington, N. C.

DON'TS TO PREVENT FIRES

Don't fill the oil lamps at night.
Don't use a paper shade on any kind of light.

Don't place rubbish in a stairway or cellar.

Never use gasoline for cleaning indoors.

Use only safety matches, and keep these away from children.

Don't drop a burned match in a rubbish pile or in the dry grass.

Keep curtains and draperies tied back to prevent them swinging against the gas jets.

When you use a match, be careful where you put it. Careless disposal of burning or smoldering matches may cause a big fire.

"Because love hopes ever, it can ever endure; and if its hopes can be realized, love will realize them."

CHRISTMAS

ABSOLUTELY
Flexible
Bindings

OUR BEST

Will Not Break
in the Back

BIBLE BARGAINS

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' POCKET BIBLES

Size, 5½ x 3½ inches. Specimen Agate Type.

No. 1108. Divinity Circuit Bible, bound in Durable Grained Leatheroid, round corners, burnished edges, gold titles. New clear Black Print, with Colored Maps of the Holy Lands, and is Self-Pronouncing, which enables children to easily and accurately pronounce the difficult Scripture names. $.70

No. 91. Scholars' Bible, with Pictures and Helps to Bible Study, clear type, divinity circuit, French Morocco, gold edges, gold titles. Post Paid, 1.00

INTERMEDIATE SCHOLARS' BIBLES

Holman Editions—Size, 7½ x 5 inches. Specimen of Minion Type.

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 4000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style, Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc. 1.35

No. 215 RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ printed in Red, and with Red and Gold INLAID PANEL SIDE TITLE. Post Paid, 1.60

ADULTS', PREACHERS' and TEACHERS' BIBLES

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it very easy to read. Contains Marginal References and 400 pages of Helps to Bible Study, including a Bible Reader's Hand Book, Concordance with 60,000 References, Illustrated Bible Dictionary of over 5000 Subjects, 4000 Questions and Answers on the Bible, Indexed Atlas and Maps in Colors.

Size, 8½ x 6½ inches, LARGE 8vo. Specimen Bourgeois Type.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Holman Teachers' Bible. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, gold titles. The Binding is guaranteed not to break in the back. Post Paid, 2.25

No. 812 RL. Holman Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., etc., are all PRINTED IN RED. New Copyright Helps to the Study of the Bible. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type. Post Paid, 2.70

No. 75 X. HOLMAN INDIA PAPER, GENUINE MOROCCO BOUND. Leather Lined, Silk Sewed. 8vo. Size, 6½ x 7½ inches. Large Bourgeois Type. Self-Pronouncing. Overlapping covers, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk sewed, silk head bands and purple silk marker, with HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY. Heretofore such a binding was only obtainable on very high priced Bibles, but, through a special arrangement with the publishers, we are now enabled to offer this excellent Bible at an exceptionally low price. Post Paid, 5.00

A BIBLE FOR OLD FOLKS or the HOME

Printed from large clear Pica Type, with Marginal References. Family Record and Maps. Size, 6½ x 9 in. This HOME BIBLE is new and very desirable for everyday use, containing all the advantages of a Family Bible in a compact size that can be easily handled, with Record for Births, Marriages and Deaths. The best Bible obtainable for old folks who need extra large clear print and a light-weight book. The chapter headings are printed on the outside corner of each page, which makes the Bible self-indexed.

No. 2014. Strongly and Durably Bound in French Seal Leather, full flexible covers, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles. Binding will not break in the back, and will lie open perfectly flat, or can be turned back to back. Post Paid, 2.35

Flexible Binding

Thumb Index on any of the above styles, 35 cents additional. Names lettered in Gold, 25 cents additional.

PRESENTS

ADDRESS

The Southern Christian Publishing Co.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

GIVE THEM A CHANCE

While you are educating your children and giving them the benefit of every possible opportunity to improve their talents, do not overlook supplying them with a sweet-toned Piano or Player Piano. You can never tell what talent a child may possess, or what skill it may acquire until you have given it a chance. Daily companionship with a high-grade instrument will be the great incentive to acquire that most coveted Art of Music. Do not make the mistake of waiting until your boy or girl has reached mature years. There will then be other demands on their time; their minds will have lost much of their earlier alertness, and it will be difficult for them to master the piano.

Act now while the Christian Sun Piano Club offers you the opportunity to secure the best pianos and player-pianos at the lowest possible cost and on terms to suit your convenience. For catalogue and full information address the Managers, Cadden & Bates, Christian Sun Piano Club Department, Atlanta, Ga. Ad.

